The use of the term “Septuagint” in the title of A New English Translation of the Septuagint (NETS) requires some justification. According to legend it was seventy(-two) Jerusalem elders who at the behest of King Ptolemy II (285–246 BCE) and with the consent of High Priest Eleazaros translated the Scriptures of Egyptian Jewry into Greek from a Jerusalem manuscript inscribed in gold. The event is said to have occurred on the island of Pharos in the Mediterranean Sea off the coast of Alexandria and to have taken seventy-two days. “Scripture,” however, comprised only the so-called five books of Moses, also known as the Pentateuch. Other books were translated in subsequent centuries and also in other locations. In time the entire anthology became popularly known as “the translation of the seventy,” irrespective of the precise origin of individual books.

Not surprisingly then, though the various parts of “the translation of the seventy” have many features in common, it is also true that, as modern scholarship has increasingly shown, there is wide-ranging diversity and heterogeneity within the collection—to the point that some scholars now question the continued use of the term “Septuagint,” which to the unwary reader might suggest a greater degree of uniformity than can be demonstrated. Though “Old Greek” would undoubtedly be a more suitable term to refer, in the case of each individual book or unit of translation, to the earliest rendition into Greek, NETS has bowed to the weight of tradition and has thus continued the use of the term “Septuagint.”

WHY A NEW ENGLISH TRANSLATION OF THE SEPTUAGINT?

Only two English translations of the entire Septuagint, albeit in modified form, have ever been published. The first was by the American businessman-scholar Charles Thomson and published together with his translation of the New Testament in 1808 and the second by the British cleric Sir Lancelot Charles Lee Brenton. Thomson’s rendition excludes the so-called deutero-canonical books, but does feature Ps 151. The order of books is that of the Hebrew canon. His translation was based indirectly—via J. Field’s edition of 1665 and the Sixtine edition of 1587—on a single manuscript, namely, the well-known fourth century CE manuscript Codex Vaticanus (B). No preface or notes of any kind were appended.

Brenton’s work, though it appeared some thirty-five years later than Thomson’s, acknowledges only cursory and indirect acquaintance with it. As the title indicates, it too is (indirectly) based on Codex Vaticanus. In the Preface (xi) Brenton gives the Valpy edition of 1819 as his immediate source, which in turn was based on the Sixtine edition. Like Thomson, Brenton translated only the books of the Hebrew canon, plus Psalm 151, and ordered them accordingly. For Esther, however, he did not excise the Additions, as Thomson had done. Notes of various kinds, embedded in the text, include variants from the fifth century Codex Alexandrinus (A), as well as comments on the Hebrew and Greek texts.

Of the two translations, Brenton’s has easily been the more influential and, though not originally published with facing Greek and English texts, has long been made available as a diglot with both versions in parallel columns.

Since the publication of these two translations, now more than one hundred and fifty years ago, significant advances have been made in Greek lexicography, numerous ancient manuscripts have come to light, and important steps have been taken in recovering the pristine text of each Septuagint book. By way of comparison it may be noted that whereas both Thomson and Brenton were based on (essentially) diplomatic editions of a single manuscript, the critical edition of the Göttingen Septuagint for the book of Genesis rests on a foundation of some one hundred and forty manuscripts (nine pre-dating the fourth century CE), ten daughter-versions, plus biblical citations in Greek literature. A new translation of the Septuagint into English is, consequently, not only much needed for biblical studies but is in fact long overdue.

1 For the earliest full-blown version see the Letter of Aristeas §§28–33; 301–307.
2 For the initial pages of this edition see http://ccat.sas.upenn.edu/ioscs/brenton/.
Ancient texts, including biblical texts, have been translated from time immemorial, and the need for such work continues. What is often less clear is the precise reading-public a translation should target. Because of its widely varied audience, this is perhaps especially true for biblical literature. Writing specifically on the topic of Bible translations, Nida and Taber\(^3\) envisaged no fewer than three such audiences.

It is usually necessary to have three types of Scriptures: (1) a translation which will reflect the traditional usage and be used in the churches, largely for liturgical purposes (this may be called an “ecclesiastical translation”), (2) a translation in the present-day literary language, so as to communicate to the well-educated constituency, and (3) a translation in the “common” or “popular” language, which is known to and used by the common people, and which is at the same time acceptable as a standard for published materials.

NETS is aimed primarily at the reading public identified in Nida and Taber’s second grouping, namely, a biblically well-educated audience, on the assumption that it is most probably this audience that has a more than passing interest in traditions of biblical literature other than their own. Since NETS has been based, however, on the New Revised Standard Version (1989), its character can be said to derive, in part at least, from the NRSV.

That an existing English translation of the Hebrew Bible should have been used as a base for NETS perhaps needs some justification. Why not, it might be suggested, simply translate the Septuagint in the tradition of Thomson or Brenton, without any overt dependence on an English translation of the Hebrew? The answer to this question is based, in the editors’ view, on considerations of both principle and practicality. First, the considerations of principle.

While it is obvious that the so-called Septuagint \(in\) \(time\) achieved its independence from its Semitic parent, and that it \(at\) \(some\) \(stage\) in its reception history sheds its subservience to its source, it is equally true that it was, at its stage of production, a Greek \(translation\) of a Hebrew (or Aramaic) \(original\). That is to say, the Greek had a dependent and subservient \(linguistic\) relationship to its Semitic parent. Or again, although the Septuagint was a translation of the Bible, it did not thereby automatically become a biblical translation. More particularly, for the vast majority of books the linguistic relationship of the Greek to its Semitic parent can best be conceptualized as a Greek \(interlinear\) translation of a Hebrew original within a Hebrew-Greek \(diglot\). Be it noted immediately, however, that the terms “interlinear” and “diglot” are intended to be nothing more than (or less than) visual aids to help the reader conceptualize the linguistic relationship that is deemed to exist between the Hebrew original and the Greek translation. In other words, “interlinear” is a metaphor, and as such it points not to the surface meaning of its own components but to a deeper, less visual, linguistic relationship of dependence and subservience. As Max Black aptly states,

\[\text{a memorable metaphor has the power to bring two separate domains into cognitive and emotional relation by using language directly appropriate for the one as a lens for seeing the other . . .}\]

Be it noted further that the deeper linguistic reality, which the metaphor attempts to make more tangible, is in no way contingent on the existence of a physical, interlinear entity at any point during the third to the first centuries BCE. What precise physical format the translation took we may never know. A variety of possibilities is not difficult to imagine.

Looked at from a different perspective, NETS is presupposing a Greek translation which aimed at bringing the Greek reader to the Hebrew original rather than bringing the Hebrew original to the Greek reader.\(^5\) Consequently, the Greek’s subservience to the Hebrew may be seen as indicative of its aim.

NETS has been based on the interlinear paradigm for essentially three reasons. First, the concept of interlinearity has superior explanatory power for the “translationese” character of Septuagint Greek, with its strict, often rigid, quantitative equivalence to the Hebrew. As Conybeare and Stock\(^6\) (and others) noted nearly a century ago, Septuagintal Greek is at times “hardly Greek at all, but rather Hebrew in disguise,” especially in its syntax and word order. Secondly, interlinearity not only legitimizes the use of the Hebrew parent as arbiter of established meanings in the target language but as well absolves the reader of positing new meanings derived solely from translation equivalency. Differently put, the interlinear paradigm recognizes that unintelligibility of the Greek text qua text is one of its inherent characteristics. Thirdly, and perhaps paradoxically, the interlinear paradigm safeguards the Greekness of the Septuagint by emphasizing that its linguistic strangeness, rather than reflecting a form of the living language at odds with its Hellenistic environment, was made to serve a specific (possibly pedagogical) purpose.

Thus whatever else one might consider the LXX to be—a repository of textual variants to the Masoretic Text, the oldest “commentary” on the Hebrew Bible, Holy Writ for Egyptian Jewry (at least from the time of Aristeas) and, later, for Christianity—the Committee decided to focus on the most original character of this collection, namely, that of interlinearity with and dependence on the Hebrew, or, from a slightly different angle, the Septuagint as produced rather than as received. Or yet again, NETS aims to focus on the translated corpus in its Hebrew-Greek context.

Once the aim and focus of NETS had been decided upon, a methodological directive seemed compelling. If NETS was to render into English the Greek half of a Hebrew-Greek interlinear diglot posited as paradigm, its English text might then be made “interlinear to” a modern English translation of the current Hebrew text. Put another way, since NETS was to echo the original dependent relationship of the Greek upon the Hebrew, one could seemingly do no better than to base NETS on an existing English translation of the Hebrew and to modify that base as dictated by the Greek.

But if the linguistic makeup of the Septuagint can best be conceptualized in terms of interlinearity, it follows that, characteristically for interlinears, one should read the Septuagint as produced with one eye on the parent member of the diglot, namely, the Hebrew. Thus what this Septuagint says, and how it says it, can only be understood in its entirety with the help of the Hebrew. This interlinearity with and dependence on the Hebrew may be termed the constitutive character of the Septuagint, in contradistinction to its history of interpretation, or better, its reception history. From the NETS perspective these two aspects of the Septuagint are not only distinct but might in fact be termed the apples and oranges of its history.

In the light of what has been argued, it is thus appropriate to think of NETS along the lines of the Göttingen Septuagint: as the Göttingen editors attempt to establish the original form of the Greek text and in so doing draw on the Hebrew for text-critical leverage, so NETS has availed itself of what leverage the Hebrew can provide in arbitrating between competing meanings of the Greek. Moreover, just as the form of the original text differed from its later textual descendants, so what the original translator thought his text to mean differed from what later interpreters thought the text to mean.

But in addition to the dictum of principle, there emerged also an intensely practical consideration for basing NETS on an existing English translation of the Hebrew. In the Committee’s view, important to the raison d’être of a new translation of the (original) Septuagint—i.e., a translation of a translation—is its synoptic potential. That is to say, users of such a translation, especially in light of the diglot paradigm, should be able to utilize it to the greatest degree achievable (within set parameters) in a comparative study of the Hebrew and Greek texts, albeit in English translation. This aim could best be realized, the Committee believed, if English translations of the Hebrew and the Greek were as closely interrelated as the two texts themselves dictate or warrant, both quantitatively and qualitatively. In other words, ideally the user of NETS would be able to determine not only matters of longer or shorter text and major transpositions of material, but also questions of more detailed textual, interpretational, and stylistic difference. Needless to say, the Committee harbors no illusions about this goal having been fully reached.

Given the above decision, essentially two options were open: (1) one could first translate the MT into English and then use this translation as the point of departure for an English translation of the Greek, or (2) one could use an existing English translation of the MT as base. Clearly the latter route recommended itself as being the more practical and economical one. It was, furthermore, difficult for the Committee to see how the work of the committees of scholars that have produced the major English translations of the Hebrew could be greatly improved upon even though they are admittedly translations of a presumed original rather than being translations of a translation, like NETS.

NETS AS MODIFIED NRSV

Two considerations have guided the Committee in choosing an English version as the base text for NETS: (1) general compatibility of translational approach with that of the LXX itself and (2) widespread use among readers of the Bible. The New Revised Standard Version, based as it is on the maxim “as literal as possible, as free as necessary” (Preface), was thought to be reasonably well suited to NETS’ purposes on both counts. Consequently, throughout those Septuagint books which have extant counterparts in Hebrew (or Aramaic). NETS translators have sought to retain the NRSV to the extent that the Greek text, in their understanding of it, directs or permits. NETS' synoptic aim, however, has not been allowed to interfere with faithfulness to the Greek text.

When NETS differs from the NRSV, the reason is typically one of the following: (1) the lexical choice of the NRSV to represent the Hebrew differs significantly from that of the Greek translator's, even though either rendering, independently, might be regarded as an adequate translation of the same Hebrew; (2) differences in translational approach between the translators of the NRSV and the ancient Greek translators has occasioned noteworthy differences between the two versions (for example, in any given passage, the Greek might be hyper-literalistic, where the NRSV is not, or again it might be very free, which the NRSV is not); (3) an attempt to reflect linguistic features in the Greek, such as word echoes or paratactic style, at times has required that the NRSV wording be modified; (4) the Greek translator has apparently rendered a text at variance with MT, due to textual difference; (5) the NRSV has opted for gender-inclusive or explicit language, eschewed by NETS; (6) the NRSV has not translated MT, but opted instead for some other reading. Naturally, where, in such instances, the NRSV has adopted the reading of the Septuagint, NETS and NRSV agree. As a rule such cases have been annotated in the NRSV, but the reader should not take for granted that the precise English word used by the NRSV has been adopted by NETS.

The Committee's desire to enable the reader to make use of NETS in synoptic manner with the NRSV has been second only to its commitment to giving a faithful rendering of the Greek original. In fact, NETS may be said to have two competing aims: (1) to give as faithful a translation of the Greek as is possible, both in terms of its meaning and in terms of its mode of expression and (2) to create a tool in English for the synoptic study of the Hebrew and Greek texts of the Bible. Since these are competing aims, the translator often, especially on the expression side, has been called upon to do a balancing act.

TRANSLOGING A TRANSLATION
Translating an ancient text can only be described as a profoundly difficult undertaking. Not only do the translators have to contend with the natural gulf that exists between languages and with the absence of the authors who wrote the pieces in question, but they also suffer from the lack of native speakers of the ancient languages, who might be cajoled into giving some much needed help. Consequently, what the modern translator of an ancient text is trying to do is something like starting up a one-way conversation, or a monologue that passes for a dialogue. Translation, as someone has aptly noted, is an act of hubris.

The difficulties of the undertaking are certainly not decreased when one attempts to translate an ancient translation into a modern language. If translating is an act of interpreting, as linguists suggest it is, rather than a simple transfer of meaning, a Greek interpretation of a Hebrew original can be expected to reflect what the translator understood the Hebrew text to mean. The end result is therefore inevitably to some degree a commentary written at a specific historical time and place by an individual person, whose understanding of the Hebrew will often have been at variance with our own, though at times perhaps equally viable.

But as has already been suggested by the interlinear paradigm, much of the Septuagint is a translation of a special kind. Thus whereas a translation that replaces the original can be counted on to "solve" the problems of the original, in an interlinear rendition these may simply be passed on to the reader. In fact new problems might often be created because of its inherent preoccupation with representing as much of the linguistic detail of the original as possible. All of this is not to say that the interlinear type of translators of the LXX had no concern for making sense, but simply that the interlinear language-game of the ancient translator has added an extra dimension to the problems faced by the modern translator. The notion of constitutive character, introduced earlier, comprises inter alia certain realities of the source language, Hebrew (or Aramaic). Just as inappropriate as accusing the interlinear translator of lacking concern for making sense would be to saddle him with inadequate knowledge of Greek, since his use of Greek is determined by the aim he wishes to achieve, whatever that be.

The paradigm of the Septuagint as an interlinear text within a Hebrew-Greek diglot, in contradistinction to the Septuagint as a free-standing, independent text now calls for a further distinction alluded to earlier, namely, that between the text as produced, on the one hand, and the text as received, on the other. The distinction is important because it demarcates two distinct approaches to the Greek text. That is to say, one can either seek to uncover the meaning of the Greek text in terms of its interlinear dependence on the Hebrew, or one can aim at rendering the meaning of the text from the perspective of its reception history, i.e., in terms of its autonomy. The difference between the two may be simply illustrated. Though the entire Greek language community of third to the first centuries BCE would agree that Greek δυνάμει sometimes means “host/army” but at other times means “power/might,” which component of meaning was right for which context might well be a matter of dispute. From the perspective of the Septuagint text as an independent, self-sufficient entity, context is recognized as the sole arbiter of meaning. That is to say, should the context speak of military might, δύναμις would be translated by “army,” but if the (Greek) context be about bodily might instead, δύναμις would be rendered by “power/might.” On the other hand, from the perspective of the Septuagint as a dependent, subservient entity, one could not agree that context is the sole arbiter of meaning. What if context should admit either reading and thus fail to steer the reader into one direction or the other? In that case, based on our diglot model, the Hebrew parent text would be the arbiter in the dispute. Should the underlying Hebrew have אָנָן (“army, war, warfare”). Greek δύναμις should be understood as “host/army,” but if the Hebrew be מְלֶאכֶת (“strength, might”) instead, δύναμις would have to be understood as meaning “might/strength.” An even simpler example is the distinction between the Greek pronouns “us” and “you” (pl) (e.g., ἡμῶν and ὑμῶν) which, due to their identical pronunciation in post-Classical Greek, are frequently confused in Greek manuscripts. Which of the two is to be regarded as original LXX can often be determined only by using the Hebrew as arbiter. The latter example underscores the analogy between NETS and the Göttingen Septuagint.

Perhaps the most obvious examples of Septuagintal dependence (as opposed to independence) are cases in which, due to the ambiguity inherent in Greek grammar, only the syntactic relationships (e.g., subject or object role) of the Hebrew can guide the English translator to what the Greek text means. Thus a sentence such as τὸ παιδίον ἔδω μήτι might mean either “the child saw” or “(s)he saw the child.”

The distinction between the text as an independent entity or the text as a dependent entity is, therefore, not only a valid one in terms of the NETS paradigm, but in the Committee’s view, it is an important methodological stance for translators of the Septuagint as produced, with frequent practical consequences for NETS. Differently put, one can either treat the LXX as though it were an original (as Charles Thomson did) or one can treat it as a translation of an original in a non-Greek language. Though both are worthy undertakings in their own right, NETS perceives them as fundamentally different.

Constitutive character or Sitz im Leben is a figure for socio-linguistic realities. As such it includes not only what, judging from the language used, the text overtly means but also what at times resulted covertly from the model that informed the translator’s work. Again, inherent in the model of the LXX as an interlinear rendition is the word-by-word method of translating, including the so-called structural words (articles, prepositions, conjunctions). Also to be expected from an interlinear perspective are standard and stereotypical equations between Hebrew and Greek words, again often including structural words. For these reasons and more, though the LXX is in Greek, there is also much that is decidedly un-Greek. “The voice is Jakob’s, but the hands are Esau’s” (Gen 27.22) is a statement aptly applied to much of the Septuagint.

How NETS Determines what the Greek Means

Simply put NETS has been governed by five lexical guidelines, which can be made to apply as well, mutatis mutandis, to the grammar of Septuagint Greek, and all of them are implicit in or concordant with the interlinear paradigm: (1) Greek words in the LXX normally mean what they meant in the Greek of that period (statistically the vast majority of the lexical stock belongs here); (2) the precise nuance of Greek words is sometimes arbitrated by the Hebrew parent text (see the δύναμις and ἡμῶν/ὑμῶν illustrations above); (3) some Greek words, when they are used rigidly as uniform renderings of the corresponding Hebrew words, fit poorly into some of the contexts in which they stand—these may be dubbed stereotypes (see e.g., “will” [θέλημα] for NRSV’s “desire” in Ps 1.2); (4) some Greek words in the LXX have been selected by the translator solely because of their perceived connection with (a) Hebrew morpheme(s)—these may be called isolates (see e.g., בְּ [oh please!] = ἐν ἐμοί = “in/with me” in 1Rgns 1.26 et al.); (5) some Greek words in the LXX have Hebrew meanings, i.e., the chief meaning of the Hebrew counterpart has been transferred to the Greek, which has then become part of the living language—these may be labeled calques (see e.g., ΠΤΩΣΗ = διαθήκη = “covenant” throughout the LXX, but “will, testament” in extra-biblical Greek). Calques may be expected to predate the Septuagint. Graphically these guidelines may be represented as follows:

<th>Contextual renderings</th>
<th>Stereotypes</th>
<th>Isolate renderings</th>
<th>Calques</th>
</tr> </thead>
<tbody>

The vertical line on the scale represents a semantic demarcation, since words or lexemes placed to the left are governed by their normal Greek semantic range, while those to the right may in part be governed by their Hebrew counterparts, though, when such is the case, not by their full semantic range. NETS-lators have ordered the linguistic information of the Greek in terms of this scale and have translated accordingly.

Though the full extent of the scale may be represented in all books or units of translation of the Septuagint, not all may show the same translation profile. Two factors that may have exercised a direct influence on a given book’s profile are its degree of literalness and its relative chronological placement within the corpus. By literalness is here understood the degree of consistency of Hebrew-Greek verbal equations, as well as the relative number of such one-to-one equations a given book or translation unit features. Potentially a book’s chronological place within the corpus determines the number of calques it contains. That is to say, the later the book the more calques may have been part of its translator’s everyday, living lexicon.

Even though, in deference to long-standing usage, the title of the NETS project speaks of the literature as a body, namely, the Septuagint, it has already been noted that the members of this anthology show considerable diversity, the interlinear model notwithstanding. Thus, Greek translations within it range all the way from highly literal to very free. Moreover, on a scale extending from what might be called the prototypical translator, who acts as a mere conduit for his author, to the prototypical author, who composes everything from scratch, Septuagintal writers would be seen scattered along most of its baseline. One finds not only full-fledged authors (e.g., 2 Makkabees and Wisdom of Salomon) who composed their works in Greek, but also bona fide translators who in varying degrees attempted to approximate our prototypical translator. Thus one might note, for example, Ecclesiast (Qoheleth) as the most prototypical translator (being very literal) and Iob as the least prototypical (being very free). Needless to say, a loban translator must be labeled part author. NETS introductions to individual books or units are designed to give some detail on the nature of individual translations.

What has been noted in the preceding paragraph draws attention to a number of facts. First, though the paradigm basic to NETS is that of the Septuagint as an interlinear text, it does not follow that all interlinear texts are equally literalistic. Second, there are within the translated corpus exceptions that prove the rule, such as Iob, Proverbs, Esaias (?) and Esther in part. Third, those books originally composed in Greek, such as 2–4 Makkabees and Wisdom of Salomon, by virtue of not being translations are not governed by the NETS paradigm.

NETS: ITS CHARACTER AND EXTENT

Though NETS is based on the NRSV, it is not intended to be the-NRSV-once-over-lightly but rather a genuine representation of the Greek, reflecting not only its perceived meaning but also, to the extent possible in an English translation, its literary nuggets as well as its infelicities, pleonasms, problems and conundra.

One scarcely expects literary beauty and rhetorical flourish from an interlinear text, since that was clearly not its purpose. In fact, it would make little sense to accuse an interlinear translator of lack of literary sense. When literary beauty occurs it is the exception that proves the rule. Consequently, NETS readers would be remiss in expecting literary elegance in the English. That would have required, from the NETS perspective, a different Greek. Since the Septuagint, with a few exceptions, was not originally composed in Greek and often used unidiomatic Greek, a fully idiomatic translation into English can scarcely be justified. Consequently NETS is perfere more a translation of formal correspondence than one of dynamic equivalence. All in all, what readers can expect is a reasonable facsimile of the (original) Septuagint such as it is, including many of its warts. For commentary, one may consult the forthcoming series, the Society of Biblical Literature Commentary on the Septuagint (SBLCS).

The reason for the NETS approach is integral to the NETS aim: that of reflecting the Septuagint’s constitutive character and of attempting to capture the incipit of the history of interpretation of what in time became the Greek Bible. Implicit in this aim has been a concerted effort not to make the Greek text say more than is strictly warranted, but to leave such elaboration to later stages of exegesis or eisegesis, as the case may be.

Names have been treated in essentially two ways: (1) as translations of Hebrew (or Aramaic), i.e., names in general use in the Hellenistic world apart from the LXX, and (2) as transcriptions of Hebrew (or Aramaic), i.e., names produced de novo from the source language. The former have been given their standard equivalent in English (e.g., Egypt and Syria), while the latter appear in English transcription (e.g., Dauid and Salomon).

Since the Septuagint collection includes translations from extant Hebrew (Aramaic) sources and translations of lost Semitic works, as well as books originally composed in Greek, the Committee has decided to be inclusive. To cite the NETS Statement of Principles (art. 3): "For the purposes of NETS, the term

One “book” not included in NETS, however, is Odes since it has dubious integrity as a literary unit, and, in any case, almost all of the individual Septuagint odes have already been included in their native setting in other books. The sole exception is Ode 12 in Rahlfs’ edition, the Prayer of Manasses, which for that reason has been separately appended to the Psalter.

The one major addition to Rahlfs has been the so-called Alpha-Text of Esther. Here and elsewhere the Committee has been guided by the Göttingen Septuagint, which has presented two Greek texts of Esther in parallel. While it is true that in Esther and in certain other books (Judges and Tobit, for example) it is most unlikely that both texts, qua texts, can lay equal claim to originality, the texts that have been transmitted clearly defy conflation. Furthermore, even though the Committee aims to present the original Septuagint or Old Greek in English translation, here too it has not been oblivious to the weight of tradition. Thus, though in Job the Septuagint has been presented as the main text of NETS, the asterisked materials, sanctioned solely by ecclesiastical usage, have been included, albeit conspicuously marked off. For the same reason, the so-called Greek II text of Sirach, added in small print in Ziegler’s edition, has been included. Similar procedures have been followed in other books (see Introductions to individual books).

A special effort has been made in the case of books with parallel Greek texts to reflect their interrelationships in English.

Clearly where no parent texts are extant, whether because they have been lost or because they never existed, no comparison can be attempted between (Semitic) original and (Greek) translation. Thus, whether a book has been composed originally in Greek or is based on a lost original, it has been treated as an original, even though an effort has been made to reflect its style. Similarly, since the synoptic aim of NETS is not applicable in these cases, the NRSV has functioned only optionally as the base text for the NETS translator, though certain basic NETS practices and procedures have been carried through, especially in terms of translation style and names.

Greek Text

Since NETS claims to be a translation of the Greek text as it left the hands of its respective translators—or a “Göttingen Septuagint in English form”—it stands to reason that NETS has been based on the best available critical editions. That is to say, where available, NETS has used the Göttingen Septuagint, and Rahlfs’ manual edition has been used for the remainder of the books. In the event that new and improved critical editions appear during the life of the project, the Committee is committed to using these, if at all possible. But since no edition, no matter how carefully and judiciously executed, can lay claim to being the definitive text of the Greek translator, NETS translators have from time to time sought to improve on their respective base texts. Just how much will have been changed varies with the quality of the edition used. All such deviations, however, have been meticulously noted.

Since NETS has used the NRSV as its base text, it stands to reason that some of the latter’s editorial policy has been continued.

More specifically the NRSV for its so-called Old Testament segment has maintained the traditional distinction between shall (should) and will (would), and NETS has followed suit.

Though the NRSV adopted the practice of distinguishing between the Hebrew divine names Yahweh and Adonai by means of printing “LORD” and “Lord” as respective equivalents, NETS has felt committed to this practice only where it can be shown that the Greek translator made a comparable distinction between Yahweh and Adonai. Otherwise Greek kyrios has been routinely represented by English “Lord.”

The footnoting of the NRSV has been largely followed in NETS, though the specific content is often of a different kind. In NETS footnotes are generally of five kinds: (1) deviations from the Greek text used as base; (2) linguistic items in the English but lacking in the Greek; (3) graded (in terms of preference) alternative translations to the lemma text; (4) elucidations of various kind; (5) indications of a very obscure Greek text.

Deviations from the Greek text have been further divided into additions, omissions and transpositions. All three kinds of deviations from the Greek edition used are followed by an equal sign (=) in order to indicate the source of the variation without implying exact equivalence. Substitutions for obvious reasons have not been tagged as such.

Items in the English that are explicitly lacking in the Greek have been included when the information is judged to be implicit. When, however, added items may have some possible bearing on the interpre-itation of the text, they have been tagged. Hence the employment of this category is one of several ways in which NETS has sought to present the reader with the maximum of interpretational openness the Greek translator's text offers.

The category of other translations comprises alternative renderings of the Greek that are deemed to have varying degrees of warrant in the Greek. These degrees, in descending order of acceptability, have been marked as (a) alternative rendering (to the NETS text) marked by "or," (b) alternative rendering preceded by "possibly," (c) alternative rendering preceded by "perhaps." Again, the intent here is to present translation options supported by the Greek.

Clarifications are intended to communicate useful information to the reader. They are preceded by "i.e." or are phrased more explicitly.

The flagging of uncertainty in the Greek text has been a measure of last resort and has been used very sparingly, since it is of very limited help to the reader. Items so marked are typically clear from a textual point of view but very obscure as to their coherent sense.

Chapter and verse numbers in NETS follow those of the particular Greek text edition that has been used as base. The numbering of the NRSV, which often though not always follows MT, has been supplied in parentheses when different.

Since the NT regularly cites the Septuagint and synoptic use of the Bible is an important aim of NETS, translators have made an effort to align NETS and the NRSV NT in such cases, using similar principles to those outlined above.

A NEW ENGLISH TRANSLATION OF THE SEPTUAGINT GENESIS

Edition of the Greek Text
The New English Translation of the Septuagint (NETS) version of the book of Genesis is based on the standard critical edition prepared by John William Wevers (Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Autoritate Academiae Scientiarum Gottingensis editum 1: Genesis [Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1974]). In addition, I have incorporated changes to the critical text proposed by the editor in his Notes on the Greek Text of Genesis (SBLSCS 35; Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1993) wherever alteration of the Septuaginta edition has implications for the English translation. In such cases, the difference between the edition and the emended text of Notes is duly recorded in the NETS footnotes. For example, in Gen 17.3 bface downb represents the changed text of Wevers’ Notes (WeN) while b on his face = We ed in the footnote reflects the text of the critical edition.

General Character
The overall assessment of Greek Genesis is that, lexically and syntactically, it is a strict, quantitative representation of its source text. Thus the concept proposed in NETS discussions of the Septuagint (LXX) as an interlinear translation is an apt metaphor for this book because of the significant degree of dependence on the Hebrew that it exhibits. However, this general characterization of LXX Genesis as being slavishly subservient to the Hebrew needs to be nuanced somewhat in the light of the Greek translator’s periodic departures from his typical patterns to produce renderings that reflect Greek usage rather than Hebrew idiom, or that, in one way or another, contextualize a given passage for the benefit of the Greek reader.

Semantic Leveling
Several observations can be made about the set of Hebrew-Greek equivalences that exist in the book of Genesis. For example, a Greek term often will serve as the counterpart to several different Hebrew terms throughout the book, a practice called semantic leveling. There are more than 75 cases in Genesis of one Greek word being used to gloss three or more Hebrew words. Some of these, like δικήν “be wronged, do injustice, injure” (סמכ, עבש, קד, קד), and δικαια “wrongdoing, injustice” (סמכ, עבש, קד, קד), are cognates. Others belong to the same semantic domain, like the preceding, but are not cognates: e.g., γῆ “earth, land, ground, country, world” (אדום, קד, קד, קד) and χώρα “country, territory” (אדום, קד, קד).

Where possible this leveling has been reproduced in the NETS translation. One does not, of course, automatically translate a Greek term the same way each time it appears, because any lexeme typically has a range of denotations. Yet the likelihood of translation uniformity in English is increased when a single Greek term is used to render several Hebrew ones. In such cases, the NRSV often has a different English term for each Hebrew one. Consequently the NRSV rendering may well have been altered for NETS to reflect the semantic leveling that occurs in the Greek vis-à-vis the Hebrew. A case in point involves γῆ as the equivalent for several terms in the standard Hebrew Masoretic Text (MT).
TO THE READER OF GENESIS

In the preceding examples, decisions as to which English terms to use for NETS are based on factors such as their suitability in context as equivalents for γυνικόν, and the way in which, in a given chapter or pericope, those terms reflect the Greek translator’s uniformity of word choice in rendering a variety of Hebrew terms.

Semantic Differentiation

Although there is a good deal of evidence for semantic leveling in LXX Genesis, a significant amount of semantic differentiation also takes place. Such situations often showcase the translator’s skill or creativity in employing a variety of Greek equivalents for individual Hebrew terms or expressions in accordance with the demands of each context.

Hebrew verbs tend to generate greater numbers of Greek counterparts than nouns or adjectives do. One such verb is ἐμελτώ, which occurs 113 times in the Qal stem, and for which the LXX translator has used sixteen verbal roots as well as the adverbial forms δύω (3) “come” and δεύτε (2) “come.” In the majority of cases (58%), προσεύμαι (61) “go, proceed, walk, walk on, journey, travel” and its compound forms προπορεύμαι (2) “go on, go on before,” and συμπορεύμαι (3) “journey together, go along” serve as equivalents. ἔρχομαι (3) “go, come” and its compounds ἀπέρχομαι (21) “go away, go off, depart,” διέρχομαι (1) “go through” and ἠξίματομαι (1) “go forth” account for another 23%. The other Hebrew verbal roots that have been selected to render the Qal of ἐμελτώ are: ἀποδιδάσκω (1) “escape,” ἀποτελείμαι (2) “depart,” ἀπολυτόμαι (1) “go away,” ἀποτρέπω (2) “hurry off, leave quickly,” βαδίζω (1) “go,” ἐπιφέρομαι (1) “be carried along,” ὀχύρω (3) “leave, go away,” and προβαίνω (1) . . . γίνομαι (1) “keep getting (greater).” The three remaining cases of Qal Ἐμελτώ are not represented quantitatively in the Greek. Three additional Greek verbal roots serve as counterparts to the Hithpael stem of Ἐμελτώ in the eight places that it occurs in Genesis: διοδεύω (1) “pass through,” εὑρέστεω “be well pleasing (to / before God)” (6) in a dynamic equivalent rendering of “stem”/ “stem” “walk (with / before God)” and περίπατεω (1) “walk about.”

The Hebrew noun אָדָם can serve as a representative example of non-verbal forms that exhibit semantic differentiation. In 41 of the 43 contexts in which it is found (95%), the LXX translator’s equivalent is ῥαθήναι “animating force, creature, being, soul, life, heart, person.” In the remaining cases, however, the translator has chosen the plural of άνθρωπος, “men,” to describe the ones whom Abram rescued from the coalition of kings who had invaded the cities of the plain (14.21) and the plural of σώμα “slaves” to depict members of Esau’s household (36.6).

Neologisms

The LXX of Genesis features approximately 50 terms that do not appear in extant Greek literature that dates prior to the creation of this translation. Most of these, of course, are based on existing stems, and so some whose cognates do pre-date, or are contemporaneous with, the LXX may well already have been in use. The fact that they are previously unattested is no doubt accidental. Examples of this sort include compounds with the ἄρχο- prefix, a good number of which apparently made their first appearance in the Hellenistic period. Thus in Genesis one encounters forms like ἄρχισεμφύλαια / ἄρχισεμφύλατα “chief jailer,” ἄρχισυμφύλαια “chief butcher,” and ἄρχισυμφύλατα “chief baker,” whose unprefixed forms δεσμοφύλατα / δεσμοφύλαξ “jailer,” μογείρας “baker,” and αὐτοποίω “baker” are attested by the time of the translation of the Pentateuch into Greek. Similarly, terms like διοσφάσεως “explanation” and ὅρθρου “rise/start early” are likely to have been in use, since cognates (e.g., διοσφάσω “make quite clear,” ὅμερος “dawn”) were well known.

The Genesis translator follows various conventions of word formation. A term like βαρυσμός “be heavy-sighted” (48.10), for example, combines the adjective βαρύς “heavy” with the noun ὄφρα “eye,” and to the resulting compound is attached the verbal suffix –σάω which typically denotes either a condition or an activity (in this case it is the former). For γενέσιον, the translator has begun with the noun γαμάρδωs, whose semantic domain has to do with a connection by marriage and which, in a given context, can be applied to any one of a number of different kinds of male in-laws and has added the verbal suffix –τενω, which has the force of “acting the part of,” hence, “act a part of a brother-in-law” (38.8). The noun ἐντόσφοιος “shroud, winding-sheet” is the basis for ἐντόσφιαζο, the form that the LXX translator creates by adding the verbal suffix –ιζω denoting action, i.e., “prepare for burial” (50.2). The new cognate noun ἐντόσφιαστής “undertaker,” which appears in the same verse, exhibits the nominal suffix -τής signifying the agent or doer of an action. The technical term θυσιστήριον “altar” is the product of the addition of the suffix -τήριον, signifying place, to θυσία (noun) / θυσιαζω (verb) “sacrifice.” A puzzling development is the Genesis translator’s invention of the term σκροβυστία “foreskin” (17.11 πασιάν), given that ἐκποροσθεία “tip of the foreskin” (cf. ποσβία “foreskin”) was already in use. Some have speculated that the translator combined ἀκρός “at the farthest point/end” with a Semitic root signifying pudenda (ḥīṭ), but whatever the process it seems likely that ἀκροβυστία is derived from ἀκροποσθία.

Stereotypes

While the translation style of the LXX of Genesis is literalistic in nature, the meanings of the Greek words are usually ones that are attested in other non-translation Greek literature. This is true even in situations when rigid adherence to an established Hebrew-Greek equivalence gives rise to a reading that is in tension with its context. Examples of such stereotypes in Genesis include αὐξάνω “to increase” (for the Hebrew counterpart הָרִיקוֹנָה meaning “to be fruitful”), εὑρίσκω “to find” (note especially 26.12 where Hebrew נְבָא denotes “reap,” as the NRSV indicates), ὁρῶ “mountain” (where מים signifies the westward direction), θεῖος “mountain” (where מים refers generally to hill country), χεῖλος “lip, edge” (where עִבָּד denotes “language”).

Calques

A number of calques (see “TO THE READER OF NETS”) make their appearance in the Greek Genesis. They include terms such as διαθήκη “covenant” = νόμος, εὐλογέω “to bless” = πρόσελέξα, κύριος “(the) LORD” = ὁ λόγος, παρακαλέω “to comfort / be comforted” = πρόσελέξα, παροικέω “to reside as an alien” = πρόσελέξα, παροικίσσα “living as an alien” = πρόσελέξα, and στερέωμα “firmament” = πρόσελέξα.

Isolates

Examples of isolates (see “TO THE READER OF NETS”) may be found in LXX Gen 7.4 and 7.23, where the use of ἐξανάστασις “a rising up” and ἀνάστασις “something that rises” as equivalents for מִשָּׁךְ “living thing” (NRSV) is apparently occasioned by the desire to reflect the root מָשָׁךְ “arise, stand up, stand” by means of cognates of its Greek semantic counterpart, ἀνάστημι. Similarly, the rationale for περατός “emigrant” in Gen 14.13 as a rendering of מֵעֶשׁ “Hebrew” in reference to Abram undoubtedly be that both have etymological links to verbs denoting “to traverse” and cognates connoting “on the other side.”

Loan Words and Transcriptions

The most literal of translation strategies in the LXX involves simply the transcription of the letters of a Hebrew word into Greek characters. This happens frequently when it comes to the rendering of names in Genesis, though other terms are handled in the same fashion. χερουβίμ “cherubim” (3.24) is the transcription of מַעְרָבָא, an equivalence that obtains throughout the LXX. As Jews conversant with the Hebrew Bible, LXX translators must have had some familiarity with the traditions concerning the identity of these creatures, though they apparently knew of no Greek counterparts that could serve as suitable equivalents. In another case involving שֶבֶךְ = Κβα (22.13), however, the transcription seems to have come about because the Genesis translator was not sure about the meaning of the Hebrew term. That the translator understood it was some kind of plant is evident from the fact that it is paired attributively with φυτόν, i.e., a sabek plant. A term like ἄρραβων “pledge” (Hebrew נִשָּׁךְ [Gen 38.17, 18, 20]), on the other hand, is not just a transcription but a true loan word, derived from a Semitic root, that was in use already in pre-LXX Greek.

The Genesis translator’s dependence on the underlying Hebrew text is exemplified not only by recurring semantic equivalences in the book but also by the number of cases of rigid adherence to Hebrew idiom resulting in quantitative equivalences. The latter can be divided into two broad categories: (1) Hebrew idiomatic constructions that have no precedent in Greek and (2) constructions in Greek for which there is some precedent in pre-LXX literature but which are attested in the LXX much more frequently than they are elsewhere.

In Genesis, examples of the first category include constructions that are reproduced as literallistically in NETS as they have been in the LXX (English translations of the Hebrew are taken from the NRSV).

4.2: καὶ προσῆλέξα τικείν “And she proceeded to bear” = מִשָּׁךְ הָרִיקוֹנָה “Next she bore”

4.8: καὶ εὐγενέτου ἐν τῷ εἶναι αὐτοῦ “And it came about when they were in the plain, that then Kain rose up” = מִשָּׁךְ הָרִיקוֹנָה “And when they were in the field, Cain rose up”

9.5: ἐκ χεῖλος πάντων τῶν θηρίων “from the hand of all the animals” = מים מים “from every animal”

11.10: υἱὸς ἑκατῶν ἓτων "a son of one hundred years" = תבשׁל ועמה | ב “one hundred years old"
12.19: καὶ ἐλαβὼν αὐτὴν ἐμαυτῷ εἰς γυναῖκα “And I took her to myself for a wife” = אספינא נב גירש | מ “so that I took her for my wife”
24.12: καὶ ποίησον ἕλεος μετὰ τοῦ κυρίου μου “and do mercy with my lord” = ינשש תמר נב עא | נ “and show steadfast love to my master”
33.19: τὴν μέριδα τοῦ ἄγρου, οὐ διατήρησαν οἱ τῶν σκηνῆς αὐτοῦ “the portion of the field, there where he had set up his tent” = רבקה נב עא | נ “the plot of land on which he had pitched his tent”

Constructions of the second category (those for which there is some pre-LXX precedent though not with the frequency attested in the LXX) are translated for NETS with varying degrees of literalness, depending on the degree to which they reflect standard Greek idioms and meet the NETS requirement for grammatical English. A case in point involves the use of the particle εἰ in questions. In addition to its interjectional and conditional uses, εἰ is employed in pre-LXX Greek in indirect and alternative questions, but in LXX Genesis it can appear as a counterpart to the Hebrew conditional/interrogative particle כִּי in direct questions: e.g., εἰ [כִּי] Σάρα πήγε εἰς γήνῃ ἐνεμίσκοτα ἕτων ὁσα τείχατο; “shall Sarra who is ninety years of age give birth?” (17.17). The use of the εἰ τῶ + infinitive construction (=ב + infinitive construct) in circumstantial clauses likewise predates the LXX, though the frequency of its occurrence in Genesis and elsewhere in the biblical corpus is greater. One of the 18 examples of this equivalence in Genesis is found in 34.22: εἰ τῶ περιτίμησαθι ημῶν πᾶν ἀρσενικόν “when every male of ours is circumcised”; δῆμοι λίγοι λέγετε “that every male among us be circumcised” (NRSV).

The Greek default for the ubiquitous Hebrew conjunction כִּי is καί. Its usual NETS equivalent when Hebrew parataxis is replicated is “and,” though this may mean departure from the NRSV when the latter glosses with inferrational, adversative or other kinds of counterparts. Alternatives to “and” in NETS include “with” and “along with.” “Then” is sometimes employed when χάρτες continuing narrative sequence marks continuing narrative sequence and the subject of the conjoined clauses/sentences remains the same: e.g., “And when Abram looked up with his eyes he saw the place far away. Then Abraam said . . . ” (22.4–5). Typically “that then” is the NETS gloss when the LXX reproduces Hebrew idiom by introducing apodotic clauses by means of כִּי (=כִּי): e.g., ἐγένετο δὲ ηῆμα ἐξηγάγα τοῖς θεὸς ἐκ τοῦ οἴκου τοῦ πατρὸς μου, καὶ εἶπα “Now it came about when God brought me forth from my father’s house, that then I said . . . ” (20.13). Wherever possible, the presence in the LXX of something other than the default rendering of the Hebrew כִּי conjunction (ב for example) is indicated in NETS by modification of the NRSV: e.g., Ῥβέκκα δὲ ἤγαγο τοῦ Ἰακώβ “Rebekka, however, loved Iacob”; הַבְּרֶכֶת נב עא | נ “but Rebekah loved Jacob” (NRSV [25.28]).

Other Translation Issues

In the matter of tense-aspect equations, the Genesis translator’s default for Hebrew preterites and per- fects is the aorist and for imperfects it is the future indicative. Thus where these patterns are not maintained, I endeavor to indicate that with modifications to the NRSV.

7.19: “The waters swelled (Hebrew perfect) so mightily on the earth that all the high mountains under the whole heaven were covered (Hebrew preterite) . . . ”; “So the water was prevailing (Greek imperfect) very greatly on the earth, and it covered (Greek aorist) all the high mountains that were under heaven . . . ”
31.39: “That which was torn by wild beasts I did not bring (Hebrew perfect) to you; I bore the loss of it myself (Hebrew prefix conjugation / imperfect); of my hand you required it, whether stolen by day or stolen by night.” . . . “that which was caught by wild beasts I have not brought back (Greek perfect) to you; I would exact (Greek imperfect) from myself what was stolen by day and what was stolen by night . . . ”
38.23: “. . . you see, I sent (Hebrew perfect) this kid, and you could not find (Hebrew perfect) her.”
“I, for my part, have sent (Greek perfect) this kid, whereas you have not found (Greek perfect) her.”
42.38: “My son shall not go down (Hebrew imperfect) with you, for his brother is dead (Hebrew perfect), and he alone is left (Hebrew participle). If harm should come (Hebrew perfect) to him on the journey that you are to make (Hebrew imperfect), you would bring down (Hebrew perfect) my gray hairs with sorrow to Sheol.” “My son shall not go down (Greek future) with you, because his brother died (Greek aorist) and he alone has been left (Greek perfect). And it will turn out (Greek future) that he becomes sick (Greek aorist infinitive) on the journey that you travel (Greek present), and you will bring down (Greek future) my old age with sorrow to Hades.”
45.8: “So it was not you who sent (Hebrew perfect) me here, but God; he has made (Hebrew preterite) me a father to Pharaoh . . .”; “Now therefore it is not you who have sent (Greek perfect) me here, but rather God, and he made (Greek aorist) me as a father to Pharaoh . . .”

With regard to word order, where the MT and the LXX agree, I try to follow the NRSV in order to preserve the synoptic value of NETS vis-à-vis the NRSV. For example, NRSV Genesis typically reverses the Hebrew sequence of name with attributive phrase, and in NETS I follow suit. In Genesis 4.1, the NRSV has, “Now the man knew his wife Eve” (וְהִכְרָתָה הַיְּתָם הָאָדָם הָאִנָּה), and NETS reads, “Now Adam knew his wife Heua” (Ἄντων ὁ ἀντίος ἡ γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ). Another pattern exhibited in the NRSV is the reversal of the sequence of Hebrew first person and second or third person pronouns—especially following the preposition “between”—when the antecedent of the first person is human, but the retention of the Hebrew sequence when the first person is divine. Thus in 9.15, where (the LORD) God speaks, both the NRSV and NETS read, “I will remember my covenant that is between me and you,” following the order of the pronouns in both the MT and the LXX. In 13.8, however, Abram expresses his wish to Lot that there not be strife “between you and me” (NRSV, NETS), though in both the MT and the LXX the pronouns are reversed.

NETS follows the gender language policy adopted by the NRSV in reference to human beings. Departures from the NRSV in this regard take place when it is evident that the LXX translator has deliberately chosen to move in the direction of either greater specificity or inclusivity in comparison to what the Hebrew has. LXX Gen 14.21 provides an example of the former progression, inasmuch as the king of Sodoma demands the return of “the men” (tούς ἄνδρας) whom Abram has rescued from the invading kings, whereas in the MT he wants נְבִיא, which the NRSV renders as “the persons.” In 24.13, the LXX translator has ensured that the Hebrew phrase נְבִיא שְׁמוֹן “men/people of the city” is not construed in a gender-specific fashion by rendering it as τοὺς οἰκεῖους τῆς πόλεως “those who live in the city.” The NRSV’s “townspeople” likewise preserves the gender-neutral sense inherent in the Hebrew term for “people,” though, unlike the LXX, without venturing beyond its normal semantic domain.

EDITORIAL DETAIL

With respect to punctuation, I have attempted to conform where possible to Wevers’ edition, though I have felt free to depart from it (without acknowledging it in the notes) when that seems warranted. I have sometimes consulted the edition of Alfred Rahlfs (1935) in this regard. The following comparison of punctuation patterns in Gen 2.4–7 provides an indication of the kinds of variations that are possible.

NRSV:

4 These are the generations of the heavens and the earth when they were created.

In the day that the LORD God made the earth and the heavens, 5 when no plant of the field was yet in the earth and no herb of the field had yet sprung up—for the L ORD God had not caused it to rain upon the earth, and there was no one to till the ground; 6 but a stream would rise from the earth, and water the whole face of the ground— 7 then the L ORD God formed man from the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and the man became a living being.

My translation of Wevers’ edition:

4 This is the book of the origin of heaven and earth, when it originated. On the day that God made the heaven and the earth, 5 and all verdure of the field before it came to be upon the earth and all herbage of the field before it sprang up; for God had not sent rain upon the earth, and there was not a human to till the earth; 6 yet a stream was rising from the earth and watering the whole face of the earth— 7 then the L ORD God formed man from the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and the man became a living being.

4 This is the book of the origin of heaven and earth, when it originated, on the day that God made the heaven and the earth 5 and all verdure of the field before it came to be upon the earth and all herbage of the field before it sprang up, for God had not sent rain upon the earth, and there was not a human to till the earth, 6 yet a spring was rising from the earth and watering the whole face of the earth. 7 And God formed man, dust from the earth, and breathed into his face a breath of life, and the man became a living being.
1 In the beginning God made the sky and the earth. 2 Yet the earth was invisible and unformed, and darkness was over the abyss, and a divine wind was being carried along over the water.

3 And God said, “Let light come into being.” And light came into being. 4 And God saw the light, that it was good. And God separated between the light and between the darkness. 5 And God called the light Day and the darkness he called Night. And it came to be evening, and it came to be morning, day one.

6 And God said, “Let a firmament come into being in the midst of the water, and let it be a separator between water and water.” And it became so. And God made the firmament, and God separated between the water that was under the firmament and between the water that was above the firmament. 8 And God called the firmament Sky. And God saw that it was good. And it came to be evening, and it came to be morning, a second day.

9 And God said, “Let the water that is under the sky be gathered into one gathering, and let the dry land appear.” And it became so. And the water that was under the sky was gathered into their gatherings, and the dry land appeared.

10 And God called the dry land Earth, and the systems of the waters he called Seas. And God saw that it was good. 11 And God said, “Let the earth put forth herbaceous vegetation, seeding seed according to kind and to likeness, and a fruit-bearing tree producing fruit of which its seed is in it according to kind, on the earth.” And it became so. 12 And the earth brought forth herbaceous vegetation, seeding seed according to kind and according to likeness, and a fruit-bearing tree producing fruit of which its seed is in it according to kind, on the earth. And God saw that it was good. 13 And it came to be evening, and it came to be morning, a third day.

14 And God said, “Let luminaries come into being in the firmament of the sky for illumination of the earth, to separate between the day and between the night, and let them be for signs and for seasons and for days and for years. 15 And let them be for illumination in the firmament of the sky so as to give light upon the earth.” And it became so. 16 And God made the two great luminaries, the great luminary for rulership of the day and the lesser luminary for rulership of the night, and the stars. 17 And God set them in the firmament of the sky so as to give light upon the earth and to rule the day and the night and to separate between the light and between the darkness. And God saw that it was good. 18 And it came to be evening, and it came to be morning, a fourth day.

20 And God said, “Let the waters bring forth creeping things among living creatures and birds flying on the earth against the firmament of the sky.” And it became so. 21 And God made the great sea monsters and every creature among creeping animals, which the waters brought forth according to their kinds, and every winged bird according to kind. And God saw that they were good. 22 And God blessed them, saying, “Increase, and multiply, and fill the waters in the seas, and let birds multiply on the earth.” 23 And it came to be evening, and it came to be morning, a fifth day.

24 And God said, “Let the earth bring forth the living creature according to kind: quadrupeds and creeping things and wild animals of the earth according to kind.” And it became so. 25 And God made the wild animals of the earth according to kind and the cattle according to kind and all the creeping things of the earth according to their kind. And God saw that they were good.

26 Then God said, “Let us make humankind according to our image and according to likeness, and let them rule the fish of the sea and the birds of the sky and the cattle and all the earth and all the creeping things that creep upon the earth.”
And God made humankind; according to divine image he made it; male and female he made them. And God blessed them, saying, “Increase, and multiply, and fill the earth, and subdue it, and rule the fish of the sea and the birds of the sky and all the cattle and all the earth and all the creeping things that creep upon the earth.” And God said, “See, I have given to you any herbage, sownable, seeding seed, which is over all the earth, and any tree that has in itself fruit of sowable seed—to you it shall be for food—and to all the wild animals of the earth and to all the birds of the sky and to every creeping thing that creeps on the earth that has in itself the animating force of life,—and all green herbage for food.” And it became so. All has in itself the animating force of life, and to all the birds of the field, but for Adam there was not found a helper like him. And God cast a trance upon Adam, and he slept, and he took one of his ribs and filled up flesh in its place. And the rib that he had taken from Adam the Lord God fashioned into a woman and brought her to Adam. And Adam said, “This now is bone of my bones and flesh of my flesh; this one shall be called Woman, for out of her husband she was taken.” Therefore a man will leave his father and mother and will be joined to his wife, and the two will become one flesh.

And the sky and the earth were finished, and all their arrangement. And on the sixth day God finished his works that he had made, and he left off on the seventh day from all his works that he had made. And God blessed the seventh day and hallowed it, because on it he left off from all his works that God had begun to make. This is the book of the origin of heaven and earth, when it originated, on the day that God made the sky and the earth and all verduce of the field before it came to be upon the earth and all herbage of the field before it sprang up, for God had not sent rain upon the earth, and there was not a human to till the earth, yet a spring would rise from the earth and water the whole face of the earth. And God formed man, dust from the earth, and breathed into his face a breath of life, and the man became a living being. And the Lord God planted an orchard in Edem toward the east, and there he put the man whom he had formed. And out of the earth God furthermore made to grow every tree that is beautiful to the sight and good for food, the tree of life also in the orchard’s midst and the tree for knowing what is knowable of good and evil. Now a river goes out of Edem to water the earth and to water the whole face of the earth. And he said to him, “I heard the sound of your walking in the garden, where you are, who is it that you heard the sound of?” And he said, “I heard the sound of the Lord God walking in the garden in the morning, and I was afraid, because I am naked, and I hid myself.” And he said to him, “Who told you that you were naked, unless you have eaten from the tree of which I commanded you, of this one alone, not to eat from it?” And Adam said, “The woman whom you gave to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I ate.” And God said to the woman, “What is this you have done?" And the woman said, "The snake tricked me, and I ate." 14 And the Lord God said to the snake, "Because you have done this, cursed are you from all the domestic animals and from all the wild animals of the earth; upon your chest and belly you shall go, and earth you shall eat all the days of your life. 15 And I will put enmity between you and between the woman and between your offspring and between her offspring; he will watch your head, and you will watch his heel." 16 And to the woman he said, "I will increasingly increase your pains and your groaning; with pains you will bring forth children, and your recourse will be to your husband, and he will dominate you." 17 Then to Adam he said, "Because you have listened to the voice of your wife and have eaten from the tree of which I commanded you, of this one alone, not to eat from it, cursed is the earth in your labors; with pains you will eat it all the days of your life; thorns and thistles it shall cause to grow up for you, and you will eat the herbage of the field. 18 By the sweat of your face you will eat your bread until you return to the earth from which you were taken, for you are earth and to earth you will depart." 20 And Adam called the name of his wife Life, because she is the mother of all the living. 21 And the Lord God made leather tunics for Adam and for his wife and clothed them. 22 Then God said, "See, Adam has become like one of us, knowing good and evil, and now perhaps he might reach out his hand and take of the tree of life and eat, and he will live forever." 23 And the Lord God sent him forth from the orchard of delight to till the earth from which he was taken. 24 And he drove Adam out and caused him to dwell opposite the orchard of delight, and he stationed the cherubim and the flaming sword that turns, to guard the way of the tree of life.

4 Now Adam knew his wife Heua, and after she had conceived she bore Kain and said, "I have acquired a man through God." 2 And she proceeded to bear his brother Habel. And Habel became a herder of sheep, but Kain was tilling the earth. 3 And it came about after some days that Kain brought to the Lord an offering of the fruits of the earth, 4 and Habel, he also brought of the firstlings of his sheep and of their fat portions. And God looked upon Habel and upon his gifts, 5 but on Kain and on his offerings he was not intent. And it distressed Kain exceedingly, and he collapsed in countenance. 6 And the Lord God said to Kain, "Why have you become deeply grieved, and why has your countenance collapsed? 7 If you offer correctly but do not divide correctly, have you not sinned? Be still; his recourse is to you, and you will rule over him." 8 And Kain said to his brother Habel, "Let us go through into the plain." And it came about when they were in the plain, that then Kain rose up against his brother Habel and killed him. 9 And God said to Kain, "Where is your brother Habel?" And he said, "I do not know; surely I am not my brother's keeper!" 10 And God said, "What have you done? The voice of your brother's blood is crying out to me from the earth! 11 And now you are cursed from the earth, which has opened wide its mouth to receive your brother's blood from your hand. 12 For you will till the earth, and it will not continue to yield its strength to you; you will be groaning and trembling on the earth." 13 And Kain said to the Lord, "My guilt is too great for me to be forgiven! 14 If today you are driving me out from off the earth and I shall be hidden from your face, then I shall be groaning and trembling on the earth, and it will be that anyone who finds me will kill me." 15 And the Lord God said to him, "Not so! Anyone who kills Kain will let loose seven acts of vengeance." And the Lord God allocated a sign to Kain so that no one who found him would do away with him. 16 Then Kain went away from the presence of God and lived in the land of Naid over against Edem. 17 And Kain knew his wife, and after she had conceived she bore Henoch, and he was building a city and named the city after the name of his son Henoch. 18 Then to Henoch was born Gaidad, and Gaidad was the father of Mathousala, and Mathousala the father of Lamech. 19 And Lamech took for himself two wives; the name of the one was Ada, and the name of the second was Sella. 20 And Ada bore Iobel; he was the ancestor of cattle-raisers living in tents. 21 And his brother's name was Ioubal; he was the one who introduced the harp and lyre. 22 As for Sella, she also bore Thobel, and he was a smith, a forger of bronze and iron, and the sister of Thobel was Noema. 23 Now Lamech said to his own wives: "Ada and Sella, hear my voice; you wives of Lamech, listen to my words, because I have killed a man for a wound to me, and a young man for a welt to me, 24 because seven times vengeance has been exacted by Kain, but by Lamech seventy times seven." 25 Now Adam knew his wife Heua, and after she had conceived she bore a son and named his name Seth, saying, “For God has raised up for me another offspring instead of Habel, whom Kain killed.” 26And to Seth a son was born, and he named his name Enos. He hoped to invoke the name of the Lord God.

5 This is the book of the origin of human beings. On the day that God made Adam, he made him according to divine image; 2male and female he made them, and he blessed them. And he named their name “Adam” on the day that he made them.

3 Now Adam lived two hundred thirty years and became a father, according to his form and according to his image and named his name Seth. 4And the days of Adam after he became the father of Seth amounted to seven hundred years, and he had sons and daughters. 5And all the days of Adam, that he lived, amounted to nine hundred thirty years, and he died.

6 Now Seth lived two hundred five years and became the father of Enos. 7And Seth lived after he became the father of Enos seven hundred seven years and had sons and daughters. 8And all the days of Seth amounted to nine hundred twelve years, and he died.

9 And Enos lived one hundred ninety years and became the father of Kainan. 10And Enos lived after he became the father of Kainan seven hundred fifteen years and had sons and daughters. 11And all the days of Enos amounted to nine hundred five years, and he died.

12 And Kainan lived one hundred seventy years and became the father of Maleleel. 13And Kainan lived after he became the father of Maleleel seven hundred forty years and had sons and daughters. 14And all the days of Kainan amounted to nine hundred ten years, and he died.

15 And Maleleel lived one hundred sixty-five years and became the father of Iared. 16And Maleleel lived after he became the father of Iared seven hundred thirty years and had sons and daughters. 17And all the days of Maleleel amounted to eight hundred ninety-five years, and he died.

18 And Iared lived one hundred sixty-two years and became the father of Henoch. 19And Iared lived after he became the father of Henoch eight hundred years and had sons and daughters. 20And all the days of Iared amounted to nine hundred sixty-two years, and he died.

21 And Henoch lived one hundred sixty-five years and became the father of Mathousala. 22Now Henoch was well pleasing to God after he became the father of Mathousala, for two hundred years, and had sons and daughters. 23And all the days of Henoch amounted to three hundred sixty-five years. 24And Henoch was well pleasing to God, and he was not found, because God transferred him.

25 And Mathousala lived one hundred sixty-seven years and became the father of Lamech. 26And Mathousala lived after he became the father of Lamech eight hundred two years and had sons and daughters. 27And all the days of Mathousala, which he lived, amounted to nine hundred sixty-nine years, and he died.

28 And Lamech lived one hundred eighty-eight years and became the father of a son 29and named his name Noe, saying, “This one shall give us respite from our labors and from the pains of our hands and from the earth that the Lord God has cursed.” 30And Lamech lived after he became the father of Noe five hundred sixty-five years and had sons and daughters. 31And all the days of Lamech amounted to seven hundred fifty-three years, and he died.

6 (5.32)And Noe was five hundred years of age, and Noe became the father of three sons: Sem, Cham, Iapheth.

(6.1) And it came about when humans began to become numerous on the earth, that daughters also were born to them. 2Now when the sons of God saw the daughters of humans, that they were fair, they took wives for themselves of all that they chose. 3And the Lord God said, “My spirit shall not abide in these humans forever, because they are flesh, but their days shall be one hundred twenty years.” 4Now the giants were on the earth in those days and afterward. When the sons of God used to go in to the daughters of humans, then they produced offspring for themselves. Those were the giants that were of old, the renowned humans.

5 And when the Lord God saw that the wicked deeds of humans were multiplied on the earth and that all think attentively in their hearts on evil things all the days, then God considered that he had made humankind on the earth, and he thought it over. 6And God said, “I will wipe out from off the earth humankind which I have made, from human to domestic animal and from creeping things to birds of the sky, for I have become angry that I have made them.” 7Yet Noe found favor before the Lord God.

9 Now these are the generations of Noe. Noe was a righteous man, being perfect in his era; Noe was well pleasing to God. 10And Noe had three sons: Sem, Cham, Iapheth.

11 Now the earth was corrupt before God, and the earth was full of wrongdoing. 12And the Lord God saw the earth, and it was ruined, for all flesh had ruined his way upon the earth. 13And God said to Noe, “The time of all humankind has come before me, for the earth has become full of wrongdoing by reason of them, and see, I am going to ruin them and the earth. 14Therefore make yourself an ark of squared lumber; you shall make the ark with nests and shall bituminize it within and without with bitumen. 15And thus you shall make the ark: the length of the ark three hundred cubits and the width fifty cubits and its height thirty cubits. 16You shall make the ark, bringing it together, and shall finish it to a cubit above, and the door you shall make in the side; you shall make it with ground floor, second story and third story chambers. 17And for my part, look, I am going to bring the flood, water on the earth, to destroy under heaven all flesh in which is a spirit of life, and as many as there are on the earth shall perish. 18And I will establish my covenant with you, and you shall come into the ark, you and your sons and your wife and your sons’ wives together with you. 19And of all the domestic animals and of all the creeping things and of all the wild animals and of all flesh, you shall bring some of them all two by two into the ark in order to sustain them together with yourself; they shall be male and female. 20Of all the winged birds according to kind and of all the domestic animals according to kind and of all the creeping things that creep upon the ground according to their kind, two by two some of them all shall come in to you, to be sustained together with you, male and female. 21And you shall take for yourself some of all the provisions, which you will eat, and shall gather them to yourself, and they shall be for you and for them to eat.” 22And Noe did all things that the Lord God had commanded him; so he did.

7 And the Lord God said to Noe, “Go into the ark, you and all your household, for I have seen you as righteous before me in this generation. 2And bring in to you seven by seven some of the clean domestic animals, male and female, but two by two some of the domestic animals that are not clean, male and female, 3and seven by seven some of the clean birds of the sky, male and female, and two by two some of the birds that are not clean, male and female, to sustain offspring upon all the earth. 4For within seven more days I am going to bring rain on the earth for forty days and forty nights, and every thing that rises up, which I have made, I will wipe out from the face of the earth.” 5And Noe did all that the Lord God had commanded him.

6 Now Noe was six hundred years of age, and the flood of water came on the earth. 7And Noe and his sons and his wife and his sons’ wives went with him into the ark because of the water of the flood. 8And of the birds and of the clean domestic animals and of the domestic animals that are not clean and of all the creeping things that are on the earth, 9two by two, male and female, went into the ark to Noe, as God had commanded him. 10And it came about after the seven days, that then the water of the flood came on the earth.

11 In the six hundredth year in Noe’s life, the second month, on the twenty-seventh of the month, on this day all the fountains of the abyss burst forth, and the cataracts of the sky were opened, 12and the rain came on the earth for forty days and forty nights. 13On this day Noe, Sem, Cham, Japheth, Noe’s sons, and Noe’s wife and the three wives of his sons with him, entered into the ark. 14And all the wild animals according to kind and all the domestic animals according to kind and every creeping thing that moves on the earth according to kind and every bird according to kind 15entered into the ark to Noe, two by two of all flesh in which there is a spirit of life. 16And those that were coming in, male and female of all flesh, entered as God had commanded Noe. And the Lord God closed the ark apart from him.

17 And the flood came for forty days and forty nights on the earth, and the water increased and bore up the ark, and it was raised up from the earth. 18And the water was prevailing and increasing greatly on the earth, and the ark was being carried along over the water. 19So the water was prevailing very greatly on the earth, and it covered all the high mountains that were under heaven; 20the water was raised up fifteen cubits above, and it covered all the high mountains. 21And all flesh that moves on the earth—of birds and of domestic animals and of wild animals—died, and every creeping thing that moves on the earth and every human being. 22And all things that have a breath of life, and everyone who was on the dry land, died. 23And he wiped out every thing that rises, which was on the face of the whole earth, from human being to domestic animal and creeping things and the birds of the sky, and they were wiped out from the earth. And only Noe was left, and those with him in the ark. 24And the water was raised up on the earth one hundred fifty days.

8 And God remembered Noe and all the wild animals and all the domestic animals and all the birds and all the creeping things that were with him in the ark, and God brought a wind upon the earth, and the water subsided, 2and the fountains of the abyss and the cataracts of heaven were covered over, and the rain from heaven was restrained. 3And the water, as it was proceeding from the earth, was giving way; after fifty and one hundred days the water was giving way and diminishing. 4And in the seventh month, on the twenty-seventh of the month, the ark settled on the mountains of Ararat. 5Now the water, as it was proceeding, was diminishing until the tenth month; then in the eleventh month, on the first of the month, the tops of the mountains appeared.

6 And it came about after forty days that Noe opened the window of the ark that he had made 7and sent out the raven to see if the water had subsided, and after it had gone out it did not return until the water was dried up from the earth. 8And he sent out the dove after it to see if the water had subsided from the face of the earth. 9And the dove, because it could not find a resting place for its feet, returned to him into the ark, for water was on the whole face of the whole earth, and extending his hand he took it and brought it into the ark to himself. 10And when he had waited yet another seven days, again he sent forth the dove from the ark, 11and the dove went back to him toward evening, and it had an olive leaf, a dry twig, in its mouth, and Noe knew that the water had subsided from the earth. 12And when he had waited yet another seven days, again he sent forth the dove, and it did not continue to turn back to him any more.

13 And it came about in the six hundredth first year in the life of Noe, the first month, on the first of the month, that the water disappeared from the earth, and Noe uncovered the roof of the ark that he had made, and he saw that the water had disappeared from the face of the earth. 14Then in the second month, on the twenty-seventh of the month, the earth was dry. 15And the Lord God spoke to Noe, saying, 16"Go out of the ark, you and your wife and your sons and your wives with you, 17and bring out with yourself all the wild animals that are with you, and all flesh from birds to domestic animals and every creeping thing that moves on the earth, and increase, and multiply on the earth." 18And Noe went out, and his wife and his sons and his sons' wives with him, 19and all the wild animals and all the domestic animals and every bird and every creeping thing that moves on the earth went out of the ark according to their kind.

20 And Noe built an altar to God and took of the clean beans of the earth and of all the clean birds and offered whole burnt offerings on the altar. 21And the Lord God smelled an odor of fragrance, and the Lord God, when he had given it thought, said, "I will not proceed hereafter to curse the earth because of the deeds of humans, for the mind of humankind applies itself attentively to evil things from youth; so I will not proceed hereafter to smite all living flesh, as I have done.

22 During all the days of the earth, seed and harvest, cold and heat, summer and spring shall not cease—during day and night." 9 And God blessed Noe and his sons and said to them, "Increase, and multiply, and fill the earth, and subdue it. 2And the trembling and fear of you shall be on all the animals of the earth and on all the birds of the sky and on all the things that move on the earth and on all the fish of the sea; I have given them under authority to you. 3And every creeping thing that is alive you shall have for food; like the pasture land herbs, I have given you all things. 4Only you shall not eat meat with the blood of life. 5For truly, your blood of your lives I give, as the sign of the covenant that I have made between me and you and between every living creature that is with you, for everlasting generations: 13I set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a covenant sign between me and the earth. 14And it shall be that when I gather clouds over the earth, my bow shall be seen in the cloud, 15and I will remember my covenant that is between me and you and between every living creature among all flesh, and the water shall no more become a flood so as to wipe out all flesh. 16And the bow shall be in the cloud, and I will see it to remember the everlasting covenant between me and between every living creature among all flesh that is on the earth." 17And God said to Noe, ‘This is the sign of the covenant that I have made between me and between all flesh that is on the earth.’

18 Now the sons of Noe who went out of the ark were Sem, Cham, and Japheth; Cham was the father of Canaan. 19These three are the sons of Noe; from these they were scattered abroad over the whole earth.

20 And Noe was the first soil-tilling person, and he planted a vineyard. 21And he drank some of the wine and became drunk, and he was stripped naked in his house. 22And Cham, the father of Canaan, saw the nakedness of his father, and after he had gone out he told his two brothers outside. 23And Sem and Japheth, when they had taken the garment, laid it on their two backs and walked backward and covered the nakedness of their father, and their face was looking backward, and they did not see their father’s nakedness. 24Then Noe sobered up from the wine, and he knew what his younger son had done to him. 25And he said, “Cursed be Canaan; a slave, a domestic, shall he be to his brothers.”

26 He also said, “Blessed be the Lord, the God of Sem, and Canaan shall be his slave.

27 May God make space for Japheth, and let him live in the houses of Sem, and let Canaan become their slave.”

28 Now after the flood Noe lived three hundred fifty years. 29And all the days of Noe amounted to nine hundred fifty years, and he died.

10 Now these are the generations of Noe’s sons: Sem, Cham, and Japheth, and sons were born to them after the flood.

2 The sons of Japheth: Gomer and Magog and Madai and Javan and Eliph and Thubiel and Mosoch and Tiras.
3 And the sons of Gomer: Ashchenaz and Riphath and Togarmah.
4 And the sons of Javan: Elisa and Tharsis, Kittians, Rhodians. 5From these the islands of the nations were separated in their land, each according to language, in their tribes and in their nations.

6 And the sons of Cham: Cus and Mesraim, Phus and Canaan.
7And the sons of Cus: Saba and Heuila and Sabatha and Regina and Sabakatha. And the sons of Regina: Saba and Dadan. 8Now Chous became the father of Nebrod. He was the first on earth to be a giant. 9He was a giant hunter before the Lord God; therefore they will say, “Like Nebrod a giant hunter before the Lord.” 10And the beginning of his kingdom came to be Babylon, Orec and Arachad and Chalanne in the land of Sennaar. 11From that land he went forth to Assour and built Nineue and Rooboth-city and Kalach, 12and Dasem between Nineue and between Kalach; this is the great city. 13And Mesraim became the father of the Loudieim and the Enemetieim and the Labieim and the Nephthalieim 14and the Patrosonieim and the Chashonieim, there where Phylstieim came from, and the Kaphthorieim.

15Now Chanaan became the father of Sidon as his firstborn and the Chettite 16and the lebousite and the Amorrite and the Gergesite 17and the Heuite and the Aroukite and the Hasenite 18and the Aradian and the Samarite and Hamathi. And afterward the tribes of the Chananites were scattered abroad. 19And the boundaries of the Chananites extended from Sidon until one came to Gerara and Gaza, until one came as far as Sodoma and Gomorra, Adama and Sidon until one came to Gerara and Gaza, until one came to Sophera, a mountain of the east.

20And Ragau lived after he became the father of Thara two hundred fourteen years and became the father of Serouch. 21And Serouch lived after he became the father of Ragau nine years and had sons and daughters and died. 22And Ragau lived after he became the father of Serouch two hundred seventeen years and had sons and daughters and died. 23And Serrouch lived after he became the father of Phalek one hundred thirty years and had sons and daughters and died. 24And Phalek lived one hundred thirty years and became the father of Eber. 25And Eber lived after he became the father of Phalek one hundred thirty years and had sons and daughters and died. 26And Eber lived after he became the father of Phalek three hundred seventy years and had sons and daughters and died.

27These then are the generations of Thara: Thara was the father of Abram and Nachor and Harran. 28And Harran died before his father Thara in the land in which he was born, in the country of the Chalsaw the woman, that she was very beautiful—15 that when Abram entered into Egypt—as the Egyptians habit the land. 7 And the Lord appeared to Abram oak. Now at that time the Chananites used to in-its length as far as the place Sychem, at the high Pharao and brought her into Pharao's house. 16 And then the rulers of Pharao saw her and praised her to for her sake they dealt well with Abram, and he had sheep and calves and donkeys, male and female slaves, mules and camels.
17 And God tried Pharao and his house with great and grievous trials because of Sara, Abram’s wife. 18 Now when Pharao had called Abram he said, “What is this you have done to me, that you did not tell me that she is your wife? 19 Why did you say, ‘She is my sister’? And I took her to myself for a wife. And now here is your wife before you; take her, hurry off.” 20 And Pharao commanded men concerning Abram to join in escorting him and his wife and all that he had and Lot with him.

13 Then Abram went up from Egypt, he and his wife and all that was his and Lot with him, into the wilderness.

2 Now Abram was very rich in livestock and in silver and in gold. 3 And he journeyed whence he had come into the wilderness as far as Baithel, to the place where formerly his tent had been, between Baithel and between Haggai, 4 to the place of the altar that he had made there at first, and there Abram invoked the name of the Lord. 5 And Lot, who was journeying together with Abram, had sheep and cattle and tents. 6 And the land did not have room for them to live together, for their possessions were many, and they could not live together. 7 And strife occurred between the herders of Abram’s livestock and between the herders of Lot’s livestock. Now at that time the Chananites and the Pherezites used to inhabit the land.

8 So then Abram said to Lot, “Let there not be strife between you and me and between your herders and my herders, for we are kindred. 9 See, is not the whole land before you? Separate yourself from me. If you go to the left, I will go to the left.” 10 And Lot, lifting up his eyes, saw all the region round about the Jordan, that all was watered—before God had overthrown Sodoma and Gomorra—one came to Zogora. 11 And Lot chose for himself all the region round about the Jordan, and Lot set out from the east, and they separated, each one from his kinsman. 12 So then Abram setted in the land of Chanaan, but Lot settled in a city of the regions round about and tented in Sodoma. 13 Now the people who were in Sodoma were wicked and exceedingly sinful before God.

14 And God said to Abram after Lot had separated from him, “Look up with your eyes; look from the place where you are now, toward the north and southwest and east and sea. 15 For all the land that you see, I will give it to you and to your offspring forever. 16 And I will make your offspring like the sand of the earth; if anyone can count the sand of the earth, your offspring also shall be counted. 17 Rise up, pass through the land, both in the length of it and in the breadth, for I will give it to you.” 18 And moving his tent, Abram came and settled by the oak of Mambre, which was in Chebron, and there he built an altar to the Lord.

14 Now it came about in the kingship of Amraphel king of Salem, that Arioch king of Ellasar and Chedor-lagomor king of Ailaam and Tharbel king of nations made war with Bara king of Sodom and with Birsha king of Gomorrah and Adelaphel king of Edom and with Kedemah king of Arama and Zemaphor king of Eshcol and and the king of Bala (this is Sogor). 2All these made an agreement at the salt ravine (this is the sea of salt). 3Twelve years they were subject to Chedorlagomor, but in the thirteenth year they rebelled. 4Then in the fourteenth year Chedorlagomor and the kings who were with him came and cut down the giants who were in Astaroth Karnaim and strong nations together with them and the Ommites who were in the city Sore and the Chorrites who were in the mountains of Seir, as far as the terebinth of Pharan which is in the wilderness. 5And after they had turned back they came to the spring of judgment (this is Kades) and cut down all the rulers of Amalek and the Amorites who live in Hasasen Thamar. 6Then the king of Sodom and the king of Gomorrah and the king of Adama and the king of Sore and the king of Bala (this is Sogor) went out, and they drew up in battle array with them for war in the salt valley. 7Against Chedorlagomor king of Ailaam and Tharbel king of nations and Amraphel king of Astaroth and Arioch king of Ellasar, four kings against five. 8Now the salt valley was pits, pits of bitumen, and the king of Sodom and the king of Gomorrah fled and fell in there, but those who were left fled to the hill country. 9Then they took all the cavalry of Sodom and Gomorrah and all their provisions and went away. 10And they also took Lot, the son of Abram's brother, and his chattels and departed, for he was living in Sodom. 11And one of those who had been rescued, when he arrived, told Abram the emigrant. Now he, Amor, used to live near the oak of Mambre. 12When he arrived, told Abram the emigrant. Now he, Amor, used to live near the oak of Mambre. 13And one of those who had been rescued, when he arrived, told Abram the emigrant. Now he, Amor, used to live near the oak of Mambre. 14And when Abram heard that his kinsman Lot had been taken captive, he fell upon them during the night, he and his servants, and smote them and chased them away to Choba, which is on the left of Damascus. 15And he fell upon them during the night, he and his servants, and smote them and chased them away to Choba, which is on the left of Damascus. 16Then he brought back all the cavalry of Sodom, and he brought back his kinsman Lot and his possessions and the women and the people. 17Now after he had returned from the slaughter of Chedorlagomor and the kings who were with him, the king of Sodom went out to meet him at the valley of Sore (this was the plain of a king). 18And Melchisedek king of Salem brought out bread loaves and wine; now he was priest of God Most High. 19And he blessed Abram and said, "Blessed be Abram to God Most High, who created the sky and the earth, 20and blessed be God Most High, who has delivered up your enemies as subjects to you!" And he gave him one tenth of everything. 21Then the king of Sodom said to Abram, "Give me the men, but take the cavalry for yourself." 22But Abram said to the king of Sodom, "I will extend my hand to God Most High, who created the sky and the earth: If I shall take from a small cord to a sandal-thong of all the things that are yours—lest you say, 'I have made Abram rich,' except the things that the young men have eaten and the share of the men who went along with me—Eschol, Aunan, Mambre—these shall take a share."

15 Now after these matters the Lord's word came to Abram in a vision, saying, "Do not be afraid, Abram; I am shielding you; your reward shall be very great." 2But Abram was saying, "O Master, what will you give me? And I, I am going away childless; as for the son of Masek, my female homebred, he is Damascus Eliezer." 3And Abram said, "Since you have given me no offspring, my male homebred will be my heir." 4And immediately a divine voice came to him, saying, "This one shall not be your heir, but one who shall come out of you, he shall be your heir." 5Then he brought him outside and said to him, "Look up to the sky, and number the stars, if you will be able to count them." And he said, "So shall your offspring be." 6And Abram believed God, and it was reckoned to him as righteousness. 7Then he said to him, "I am the God who brought you out of the country of the Chaldeans so as to give you this land to possess." 8But he said, "O Master, Lord, how shall I know that I shall possess it?" 9And he said to him, "Take for me a heifer three years old and a female goat three years old and a ram three years old and a turtledove and a dove." 10And he took for him all these and divided them in the middle and placed them facing one another, but he did not divide the birds. 11And birds came down on the carcasses, their cut halves, and Abram sat together with them. 12Then about sunset a trance fell upon Abram, and look, a great dark fear was falling upon him. 13And it was said to Abram, "Knowledgeably you shall know that your offspring shall be alien in a land not its own, and they shall enslave them and maltreat them and humble them for four hundred years. 14But I will judge the nation that they are subject to; then afterward they shall come out here with much baggage. 15Now as for yourself, you shall depart to your fathers in peace, buried in a good old age. 16Then in the fourth generation they shall be brought back here, for the sins of the Amorites are not yet, to the present, filled up."

17 Now after the sun began to appear in the west, a flame appeared, and look, a smoking oven and torches of fire that passed through between these cut halves. 18On that day the Lord made a covenant with Abram, saying, "To your offspring I will give this land from the river of Egypt to the great river, the river Euphrates: The Kenites and the Kenzites and the Redmonites and the Chettites and the Pherezites and the Rhaphain and..."
the Amorrites and the Chananites and the Heuites and the Gergesites and the lebousites.’

16 Now Sara, Abram’s wife, was not giving birth for him. She, however, had an Egyptian slave-girl whose name was Hagar. 2And Sara said to Abram, “See, the Lord has shut me off from giving birth; so go in to my slave-girl in order that you may beget children by her.” 3And Abram listened to the voice of Sara. 4And after ten years of Abram’s living in the land of Chanaan, Sara, Abram’s wife, took Hagar the Egyptian, her own slave-girl, and gave her to her husband Abram as a wife for him. 4And he went in to Hagar, and she conceived. And she saw that she was pregnant, and her mistress was dishonored before her. 5Then Sara said to Abram, “I am being wronged due to you! I have given my slave-girl into your bosom, but when she saw that she was pregnant, I was dishonored before her. May God judge between you and me!” 6But Abram said to Sara, “See, your slave-girl is in your hands; treat her as it may please you.” And Sara maltreated her, and she ran from her presence.

7 But the Lord God’s angel found her by the spring of water in the wilderness, by the spring on the way to Sour. 8And the angel of the Lord said to her, “Hagar, slave-girl of Sara, where are you coming from, and where are you going?” And she said, “I am running from the presence of my mistress Sara.” 9But the angel of the Lord said to her, “Return to your mistress, and humble yourself under her hands.” 10The angel of the Lord also said to her, “I will make you extremely fertile, and I will bless you, and I will give you a son by her. And I will bless her, and she shall be a mother of nations; and kings of nations shall come from her.” 11And the angel of the Lord said to her, “See, you are pregnant and shall bear a son and shall call his name Ismael. For the Lord has given heed to your humiliation.

12 He shall be a rustic man; his hands shall be against all, and the hands of all against him, and he shall live facing all his kinfolk.”

13And Hagar called the name of the Lord who was speaking to her, “You-are-the-God-who-looks-down-upon-me,” because she said, “For truly I saw him speaking to her, “You-are-the-God-who-looks-down-upon-me,” because she said, “For truly I saw him speaking to her.” 14Therefore she called the well, “Well-of-the-one-whom-I-saw-face-to-face”; see, it is between Kades and between Barad.

15 And Hagar bore Abram a son, and Abram called the name of his son, whom Hagar bore him, Ismael. 16And Abram was eighty-six years of age when Hagar bore Abram Ismael.

17 Now Abram came to be ninety-nine years of age, and the Lord appeared to Abram and said to him, “I am your God; be well pleasing before me, and become blameless, 2and I will set my covenant between me and between you and will make you very numerous.” 3And Abram fell on his face down, and God spoke to him, saying, 4And as for me, see, my covenant is with you, and you shall be an ancestor of a multitude of nations. 5And no longer shall your name be called Abram, but your name shall be Abraam, for I have made you an ancestor of many nations. 6And I will increase you very, very much, and I will make you into nations, and kings shall come from you. 7And I will establish my covenant between me and between you and between your offspring after you throughout their generations for an everlasting covenant, to be your god and your offspring’s after you. 8And I will give to you and to your offspring after you the land that you inhabit as a resident alien, all the land of Chanaan, for a perpetual holding, and I will be a god to them.”

9 And God said to Abram, “Now as for you, you shall keep my covenant, you and your offspring after you throughout their generations. 10And this is the covenant, which you shall keep, between me and you and between your offspring after you throughout their generations: Every male of yours shall be circumcised, 11and you shall be circumcised in the flesh of your foreskins, and it shall exist as a covenant sign between me and you. 12And a youngster of eight days shall be circumcised among you—every male throughout your generations, the homebred of your household and the one bought with money from any son of a foreigner, who is not of your offspring. 13The homebred of your household and the one bought with money shall be circumcised with circumcision, and my covenant shall be on your flesh for an everlasting covenant. 14And as for an uncircumcised male who shall not be circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin on the eighth day, that soul shall be destroyed from his kin, for he has scattered my covenant.”

15 And God said to Abraam, “As for Sara your wife, her name shall not be called Sara, but Sarrha shall be her name. 16And I will bless her, and I will give you a child by her. And I will bless her, and she shall become nations, and kings of nations shall be from her.” 17And Abraam fell face down and laughed and spoke in his mind, saying, “Shall a son be born to a hundred-year-old, and shall Sarrha who is ninety years of age give birth?” 18And Abraam said to God, “As for Ismael, let him live before you!” 19But God said to Abraam, “Indeed; see, your wife Sara shall bear you a son, and you shall call his name Isaak, and I will establish my covenant with him as an everlasting covenant and for his offspring after him. 20Now concerning Ismael, see, I heard you; see, I have blessed him and will make him increase and will make him very numerous; he shall be the father of twelve nations, and I will appoint him as a great nation. 21But my covenant I will establish with Isaak, whom Sara shall bear to you at this season in another year.” 22And he finished talking to him, and God went up from Abraam.

23 And Abraam took his son Isaak and all his homebreds and all the ones bought with money and every male of the men that were in Abraam’s Indeed give birth? But I have grown old. '14 Can it Sarra laughed within herself, saying, 'Shall I then listened at the tent door. 11 Now Abraam and Sarra shall have a son.' And Sarra, who was behind him, during this season next year, and Sarra your wife were old, advanced in days, and menstruation had ceased to happen to Sarra. 12 And Sarra laughed within herself, saying, 'It has not yet happened to me, but if not—that I may know.' 13 And the Lord said to Abraam, 'Why is it that Sarra laughed within herself, saying, 'Shall I then indeed give birth? But I have grown old.' 14 Can it be that a matter is impossible with God? In this season I will come back to you next year, and Sarra your wife shall have a son.' And Sarra, who was behind him, listened at the tent door. 11 Now Abraam and Sarra were old, advanced in days, and menstruation had ceased to happen to Sarra. 12 And Sarra laughed within herself, saying, 'It has not yet happened to me up to the present, and my lord is rather old.' 13 And the Lord said to Abraam, 'Why is it that Sarra laughed within herself, saying, 'Shall I then indeed give birth? But I have grown old.' 14 Can it be that a matter is impossible with God? In this season I will come back to you next year, and Sarra shall have a son.' 15 But Sarra denied, saying, 'I did not laugh,' for she was afraid. And he said, 'No, but you did laugh.' 16 And when the men had set out from there, they looked down upon the face of Sodoma and Gomorrah, and Abraam was going along with them as he joined in escorting them. 17 And the Lord said, 'Surely I shall not hide from my servant Abraam what I am about to do.' 18 As for Abraam, he shall come to be a great and populous nation, and all the nations of the earth shall be blessed in him. 19 For I knew that he will instruct his sons and his household after him, and they will keep the ways of the Lord by doing righteousness and justice so that the Lord may bring upon Abraam all the things that he has talked about to him.' 20 Then the Lord said, 'The outcry concerning Sodoma and Gomorrah has been increased, and their sins are very great! 21 So when I go down I shall see whether they are perpetrating according to the outcry concerning them that is coming to me, but if not—that I may know.' 22 And after the men had turned away from there, they went to Sodoma, but Abraam was still standing before the Lord. 23 Then when Abraam had come near, he said, 'Surely you will not destroy the righteous with the ungodly, and the righteous will be as the ungodly? 24 If there should be fifty righteous in the city, will you destroy them? Will you not let the whole place go free on account of the fifty righteous, if they should be in it? 25 By no means will you do anything like this thing, to slay the righteous with the ungodly, and the righteous will be like the ungodly! By no means! Shall not you, the one who judges all the earth, do what is just?' 26 Then the Lord said, 'If I find in Sodoma fifty righteous in the city, I will forgive the whole place for their sake.' 27 And Abraam said in reply, 'Now I have begun to speak to the Lord, though I am earth and ashes. 28 But if the fifty righteous should be diminished by five, will you destroy the whole city on account of the five?' And he said, 'I will not destroy it, if I find forty-five there.' 29 And he continued still to speak to him and said, 'But if forty should be found there?' And he said, 'On account of the forty I will not destroy it.' 30 And he said, 'Pardon, Lord, if I should speak. But if thirty should be found there?' And he said, 'I will not destroy it, if I find thirty there.' 31 And he said, 'Since I am compelled to speak to the Lord—and if twenty should be found there?' And he said, 'On account of the twenty I will not destroy it.' 32 And he said, 'Pardon, Lord, if I should speak on one more. But if ten should be found there?' And he said, 'On account of the ten I will not destroy it.' 33 Then the Lord went away, when he had left off speaking to Abraam, and Abraam returned to his place.

Now the two angels came to Sodoma at evening, and Lot was sitting beside the gate of Sodoma. And when Lot saw them he rose to meet them and did obeisance with his face upon the ground 2 and said, 'Here, lords, turn aside to your servant's house, and find lodging, and wash your feet, and when you have risen early you will depart on your way.' They, however, said, 'No, but we will find lodging in the street.' 3 And he kept constraining them, and they turned aside to him and entered into his dwelling. And he made them a feast and baked them unleavened loaves, and they ate before they lay down. 4 And the men of the city, the Sodomites, from young man to elder, all the people together, encircled the dwelling, 5 and they were summoning Lot and were saying to him, 'Where are the men who came in to you tonight? Bring them out to us in order that we may have relations with them.' 6 And Lot went out to the doorway to them, but he shut the door after him. 7 And he said to them, 'By no means, brothers, do not act wickedly. Then I have two daughters who have not known a man. I shall bring them out to you, and use them as it may please you; only do not do anything unjust to these men, inasmuch as they have come in under the shelter of my beams.” But they said, “Stand away from there! As one, you came to reside as an alien. Surely not also to pass judgment? So now we will maltreat you rather than them.” And they were pressing the man Lot very hard and came near to smash the door. But the men, extending their hands, drew Lot into the house to themselves and shut the door of the house. And they struck with blindness the men who were at the door of the house, from small to great, and they became exhausted searching for the door.

12 Then the men said to Lot, “Have you anyone here, sons-in-law or sons or daughters? Or if you have anyone else in the city, bring that one out of this place. For we are about to destroy this place, because the outcry concerning them has been raised before the Lord, and the Lord has sent us to annihilate it.”

13 Then Lot went out and spoke to his sons-in-law to be jesting. “The Lord is about to annihilate the city.” But he seemed to his sons-in-law to be jesting.

14 Then Lot went out and spoke to his sons-in-law to be jesting. “The Lord is about to annihilate the city.” But he seemed to his sons-in-law to be jesting.

15 Now when dawn was breaking, the angels were urging Lot, saying, “Rise, take your wife and the two daughters whom you have, and get out, lest you also be destroyed together with the lawlessness of the city.” And they were confounded, and the angels seized his hand and his wife’s hand and his two daughters’ hands, as the Lord spared him. And it came about when they had brought them outside, that then they said, “In saving, save your own soul; do not look around backwards or stop in the whole region round about; get safely to the mountain, that you not be included.” But Lot said to them, “I pray, Lord, 19 since your servant has found mercy before you and you have magnified your righteousness—that which you bring about with regard to me—to quicken my soul, but I shall not be able to proceed safely to the mountain, for fear the disasters overtake me and I die; look, this city, which is small, is near enough for me to flee for refuge there; I shall escape there. Is it not small? And my soul will live!” And he said to him, “Look, I have indulged your person also in reference to this matter, not to overthrow the city concerning which you have spoken. So hurry to escape there, for I shall not be able to do a thing until you enter there.” Therefore he called the name of the city Segor. The sun came out on the earth, and Lot entered into Segor. And the Lord rained on Sodoma and Gomorra sulfur and fire from the Lord out of the sky. And he overthrew these cities and all the neighboring region and all the inhabitants in the cities and all the things that grew up out of the earth. And his wife gazed backwards, and she became a stele of salt.

And Abraam started early in the morning for the place where he had stood before the Lord, and he gazed upon the face of Sodoma and Gomorra and upon the face of the land of the region round about and saw, and see, the flame of the land was going up like the vapor of a furnace.

And it came about when God annihilated all the cities of the neighboring region that God remembered Abraam and sent Lot out of the midst of the overthrow when the Lord overthrew the cities which Lot used to dwell in.

30 Now Lot went up out of Segor and settled in the mountain, and his two daughters with him, for he was afraid to dwell in Segor. And he lived in the cave, he and his two daughters with him. 31 Now the elder said to the younger, “Our father is elderly, and there is no one on the earth who will come in to us, as is fitting in all the world. 32 Come, and let us give our father wine to drink, and let us raise up offspring from our father.” And they gave their father wine to drink on this night, and the elder, when she had gone in, lay with her father that night, and he did not know when she lay down and got up. And it came about on the next day that then the elder said to the younger, “Look, I lay yesterday with our father; let us give him wine to drink this night also, and when you have gone in, lie with him, and let us raise up offspring from our father.” And they gave their father wine to drink on this night also, and the younger, when she had gone in, lay with her father, and he did not know when she lay down and got up. And the two daughters of Lot became pregnant by their father. And the elder bore a son and called his name Moab: “From my father”; he is the ancestor of the Moabites to the present day. And the younger bore a son too and called his name Amman: “Son of my race”; he is the ancestor of the Ammonites to the present day.

And from there Abraam moved to the land toward the southwest and lived between Kades and between Sour and resided in Gerara as an alien. 2 And Abraam said of his wife Sarra, “She is my sister,” for he was afraid to say, “She is my wife,” lest perhaps the men of the city kill him on her account. Then Abimelech king of Gerara sent and took Sarra. And God came in to Abimelech in his sleep during the night and said, “Look, you are about to die by reason of the woman whom you have taken, whereas she is married to a man.” Now Abimelech had not touched her, and he said, “Lord, will you destroy an unwitting and righteous nation? Did not he himself say to me, ‘She is my sister’? And she herself said to me, ‘He is my brother.’ I did this with a pure heart and righteousness of hands.” Then God said to him during his sleep, “I too knew that you did this with a pure heart, and I was the one who spared you so that you did not sin in regard to me. Therefore I did not allow you to touch her. And now return the woman to the man, for he is a prophet, and he will pray for you, and you will live. If, however, you do not restore her, know that you shall die, you and all that are yours."

8 And Abimelech rose early in the morning and called all his servants and spoke of all these matters in their hearing; then all the men were very much afraid. 9And Abimelech called Abraam and said to him, "What is this you have done to us? Surely we have not committed some sin in regard to you, that you have brought great sin on me and on my kingdom? You have done a deed to me that no one shall do." 10And Abimelech said to Abraam, "What did you observe that you did this?"

11And Abraam said, "Because I said, It appears there is no piety in this place, and so they will kill me because of my wife. 12For indeed, she is truly my sister by my father, but not by my mother, and she became a wife to me. 13Now it came about when God brought me forth from my father's house, that then I said to her, 'This righteousness you shall do for me: in every place, where we enter, say about me, He is my brother.'

14Then Abimelech took a thousand didrachmas, sheep and calves and male and female slaves and gave them to Abraam and restored his wife Sarra to him. 15And Abimelech said to Abraam, "Look, my land is before you; settle where it may please you. 16And to Sarra he said, 'Look, I have given your brother a thousand didrachmas; these shall be to you for the honor of your person and to all those with you, and tell the whole truth.'

21And the Lord visited Sarra as he had said, and the Lord did for Sarra as he had spoken, 2and when Sarra had conceived, she bore Abraam a son in his old age at the appointed time, as the Lord had spoken to him. 3And Abraam called the name of his son who was born to him, whom Sarra bore him, Isaak. 4And Abimelech circumcised Isaak on the eighth day, as God had commanded him. 5Now Abraam was a hundred years of age when his son Isaak was born to him. 6And Sarra said, "The Lord has made laughter for me, for anyone who hears will congratulate me." 7And she said, "Who will reward you with a son, and who will give birth to a nation for him?" 8And God said, "Through your offspring shall your name be called, and it shall be, when you call the name of God's servant who was in your midst, I will give the seven ewe lambs of the field for you, for I have given you this son in this place." 9And God said, "Go from your country and from your father's house to the land that I will tell you of. 10And I will make of you a great nation. 11And I will bless you, and will make your name great; and you shall be a blessing. 12And I will bless those who bless you, and will curse him that curses you; and in you shall all the families of the earth be blessed. 13Then Abraam rose early in the morning and took bread loaves and a skin of water and gave them to Hagar and put them on her shoulder, along with the child, and sent her away. And when she departed she began wandering about the wilderness over against the well of the oath.

15Then the water from the skin gave out, and she cast the child under a silver fir. 16And after departing she sat down opposite him a good way off, about a bowshot, for she said, "I will not look upon the death of my child." And she was seated opposite him, and the child cried out and wept. 17And God listened to the voice of the child from the place where he was, and God's angel called Hagar from the sky and said to her, "What is it, Hagar? Do not be afraid, for God has given ear to the voice of your child from the place where he is. 18Rise, take the child, and hold it fast with your hand, for I will make him into a great nation."

19And God opened her eyes, and she saw a well of living water. And she went and filled the skin with water and gave the child a drink.

20And God was with the child, and he grew up. And he dwelt in the wilderness and became an archer. 21And he dwelt in the wilderness of Pharan, and his mother got a wife for him from the land of Egypt.

22And it came about at that time that then Abimelech, with Ochozath his groomsman and Phichol the commander-in-chief of his army, spoke to Abraam, saying, "God is with you in everything that you do; 2now then swear to me by God that you will not injure me nor my offspring nor my name, but according to the righteousness with which I have dealt with you, you will deal with me and the land that you have resided in as an alien." 24And Abraam said, "I will swear."

25And Abraam rebuked Abimelech on account of the wells of water that Abimelech's servants had taken away. 26And Abimelech said to him, "I did not know who did this deed, neither did you tell me, nor did I hear, except today."

27And Abraam took sheep and calves and gave them to Abimelech, and both made a covenant. 28And Abraam made seven ewe lambs of the sheep stand alone. 29And Abimelech said to Abraam, "Why are there the seven ewe lambs of these sheep that you have made stand alone?"

30And Abraam said, "Because these seven ewe lambs you shall receive from me in order that they may become a witness for me that I am the one who dug this well." 31Therefore he named the name of that place Well-of-adjuration, because there both swore an oath. 32And they made a covenant at the well of the adjuration. Then Abimelech, with Ochozath his groomsman and Phichol the commander-in-chief of his army, rose and returned to the land of the Philistieim. 33And Abraam planted a ploughed field by the well of the oath and there invoked the name of the Lord: Everlasting-god. 34And Abraam resided as an alien many days in the land of the Phylisteim.

22And it came about after these matters that God tested Abraam and said to him, “Abraam, Abraam!” And he said, “Here I am.” 2And he said, “Take your beloved son Isaak, whom you love, and go into the high land, and offer him as a whole burnt offering in the place that I will mention to you.” 3And when Abraam had risen in the morning, he saddled his donkey. Now he took along with himself two servants and his son Isaak, and after he had split wood for a whole burnt offering and risen, he went and came to the place that God had mentioned to him, (on the third day. 4And when Abraam looked up with his eyes, he saw the place far away. 5Then Abraam said to his servants, “Sit right here with the donkey, and the youngster and I will go through hither, and after we have done obeisance, we will come back to you.” 6And Abraam took the wood of the whole burnt offering and laid it on his son Isaak; then he took both the fire and the knife in hand, and the two walked on together. 7And Isaak spoke to his father Abraam (when he had said, “Father!” and he had said, “What is it, child?”), saying, “Look, the fire and the wood! Where is the sheep for a whole burnt offering?” 8And Abraam said, “God will see to a sheep as a whole burnt offering for himself, child.”

And as both walked on together they came to the place that God had mentioned to him. And Abraam built the altar there and laid on the wood, and when he had bound his son Isaak hand and foot, he laid him on the altar atop the wood. 10Then Abraam reached out his hand to take the knife to slay his son. 11And the Lord's angel called him from the sky, saying, “Abraam, Abraam!” And he said, “Here I am.” 12And he said, “Do not lay your hand on the youngster nor do anything to him. For now I know that you do fear God, and for my sake you have not spared your beloved son.” 13And as Abraam looked up with his eyes he saw, and see, a ram held fast in a sabek plant by the horns. And Abraam went and took the ram and offered it up as a whole burnt offering instead of his son Isaak. 14And Abraam called the name of that place “The Lord saw,” that they might say today, “On the mountain the Lord appeared.” 15And the Lord's angel called Abraam a second time from the sky, saying, 16“By myself I have sworn, says the Lord: Inasmuch as you have carried out this matter and for my sake have not spared your beloved son, 17I will indeed bless you with blessings, and I will make your offspring as numerous as the stars of the sky and as the sand that is by the seashore, and your offspring shall possess the cities of their adversaries, and in your offspring shall all the nations of the earth be blessed, because you have obeyed my voice.”

19Then Abraam returned to his servants, and when they had risen, they went together to the well of the oath. And Abraam lived at the well of the oath.

20Now it came about after these matters, that then it was told Abraam—they were saying—See, Melcha, she too has borne sons to your brother Nachor: 21Ox the firstborn and Baux his brother and Chasad and Hazau and Phaldas and ledlap and Bathouel. 22And Bathouel became the father of Rebekka. These were eight sons whom Melcha bore to Nachor, Abraam's brother. 24And as for his concubine, whose name was Reema, she too bore Gaam and Tabech and Tochos and Mocha.

23Now the life of Sarra amounted to one hundred twenty-seven years. 2And Sarra died in the city of Arbok that is in the lowland (this is Chebron) in the land of Chanaan. And Abraam went to mourn for Sarra and to grieve. 3And Abraam rose up from his dead and spoke to the sons of Chet, saying, “I am a resident alien and a sojourner among you; therefore give me possession of a burying place among you, and I shall bury my dead away from me.” 5And the sons of Chet replied to Abraam, saying, “Not so, lord; but hear us. You are a king from a god among us. Bury your dead in our choice tombs, for not one of us shall withhold from you any tomb to bury your dead there.” 7And when he had risen Abraam did obeisance to the sons of Chet, the people of the land, 8and Abraam spoke to them, saying, “If you have it in your heart that I bury my dead away from my presence, hear me, and speak on my behalf to Ephron the son of Saar, and let him give me the double cave that he has, which is in part of his field. For the money it is worth let him give it to me among you for possession of a tomb.” 9Now Ephron was sitting among the sons of Chet, and in reply Ephron the Chettite spoke to Abraam, as the sons of Chet and all who were going into the city were listening, saying, “Be attentive to me, lord, and hear me. I give you the field and the cave that is in it; before all my fellow citizens I have given it to you; bury your dead.” 11And Abraam did obeisance before the people of the land, 13and he said to Ephron in the hearing of the people of the land, “Since you are in my presence, listen to me! Accept from me the money for the field, and I shall bury my dead there.” 14Then Ephron answered Abraam, saying, “No, lord, for I have heard of four hundred didrachmas of silver; what would this be between you and me? But as for you, bury your dead.” 16And Abraam listened to Ephron, and Abraam handed over to Ephron the money that he had talked about in the hearing of the sons of Chet, four hundred didrachmas of silver certified by merchants.

17And the field of Ephron, which was at the double cave, which is facing Mambre, the field and the cave that was in it, and every tree that was in the field, that is within its borders round about, were assigned to Abraam as a possession before the sons of Chet and all who were going into the city. After this Abraam buried Sarra his wife in the field's double cave, which is opposite Mambre (this is Chebron) in the land of Chanaan. And the field and the cave that was in it were confirmed by the sons of Chet to Abraam for possession of a burying place.

24 And Abraam was elderly, advanced in days, and the Lord blessed Abraam in regard to all things. And Abraam said to his servant, the elder of his household, the ruler of all that was his, "Put your hand under my thigh, 3 and I will make you swear by the Lord, the God of the sky and the God of earth, so that you do not get a wife for my son Isaak from the daughters of the Chananites, whom I live among. 4 but you shall go to my country, where I was born, and to my tribe, and get a wife for my son Isaak from there." And the servant said to him, "Perhaps the woman is not willing to go with me, back to this land. Shall I bring your son back there."

But Abraam said to him, "Take heed to yourself; do not bring my son back there. 7 The Lord, the God of the sky and the God of earth, who took me from my father's house and from the land where I was born, who spoke to me and swore to me, saying, 'To you I will give this land, and to your offspring and to your offspring's offspring, I will give it,' 8 If, however, the woman does not wish to go with you to this land, you will be clear of this oath; only do not bring my son back there." And the servant put his hand under the thigh of Abraam his lord and swore to him concerning this matter.

Then the servant took ten camels from his lord's camels and some of all his lord's goods with himself, and when he had risen, he went to Mesopotamia to the city of Nachor. And he allowed the camels to rest outside the city beside the well of water toward evening, when the women who fetch water go out. And he said, "O Lord, God of my lord Abraam, be exalted, and give him sheep and cattle and silver and gold and male and female slaves, camels and donkeys. And Sarra my lord's wife bore one son to my lord after he had grown old, and he gave him as much as he had. And my lord administered an oath to me, saying, 'You shall not take a wife for my son from the daughters of the Chananites, whom I am living among in their land, but you shall go to my father's house and to my tribe and get a wife for my son from there.' Then I said to my lord, 'Perhaps the woman will not go with me.' And he said to me, 'The Lord, whom I have been well pleasing before, will send his angel with you and prosper your journey, and you shall get a wife for my son from my tribe and from my father's house. Then you will be free from my curse; indeed, when perchance you

18 And she said, "Drink, lord." And she hurried and lowered the jar upon her arm and gave him a drink (19) until he stopped drinking. And she said, "I will fetch water for your camels also until they all have drunk." And she hurried and emptied the jar into the watering trough and ran again to the well to draw and fetched water for all the camels. Now the man was observing her closely and was keeping silent to learn whether or not the Lord had prospered his journey.

And it came about when all the camels had stopped drinking, that the man took gold earrings a drachma each in weight and two bracelets for her arms, their weight being ten gold pieces. And he questioned her and said, "Whose daughter are you? Tell me: Is there room at your father's place for us to lodge?" And she said to him, "I am a daughter of Bathouel the son of Melcha, whom she bore to Nachor." And she said to him, "We have both straw and fodder in abundance and a place to lodge." And the man, being content, did obeisance to the Lord (27) and said, "Blessed be the Lord, the God of my lord Abraam, who has not left behind righteousness and truth from my lord. Me the Lord has prospered on the way to the house of my lord's kinsman."

And running off, the girl brought news to her mother's house about these matters. Now Rebekka had a brother whose name was Laban, and Laban ran out to the man at the spring. And it came about as soon as he saw the earrings and the bracelets on his sister's arms, and when he heard the words of his sister Rebekka as she was saying, "Thus the man has spoken to me," that then he went to the man as he stood by the camels at the spring and said to him, "Here, come in. Blessed be the Lord. Why do you stand outside? As for me, I have prepared the dwelling and a place for the camels." Then the man came into the dwelling and unloaded the camels. And he gave him straw and fodder for the camels and water for his feet and the feet of the men who were with him. And he set bread loaves before them to eat. And he said, "I will not eat until I have spoken my piece." And they said, "Speak on."

And he said, "I am Abraam's servant. Now the Lord has greatly blessed my lord, and he has been exalted, and he has given him sheep and calves and silver and gold and male and female slaves, camels and donkeys. And Sarra my lord's wife bore one son to my lord after he had grown old, and he gave him as much as he had. And my lord administered an oath to me, saying, 'You shall not take a wife for my son from the daughters of the Chananites, whom I am living among in their land, but you shall go to my father's house and to my tribe and get a wife for my son from there.' Then I said to my lord, 'Perhaps the woman will not go with me.' And he said to me, 'The Lord, whom I have been well pleasing before, will send his angel with you and prosper your journey, and you shall get a wife for my son from my tribe and from my father's house. Then you will be free from my curse; indeed, when perchance you come to my tribe and they do not give her to you, then you will be free from my adjuration.'

42 "And on coming today to the spring I said, 'O Lord, the God of my lord Abraam, if only you prosper my journey that I am now going on!' 43 Here I stand near the spring of water, and the daughters of the people of the city will come out to fetch water, and it shall be that the maiden to whom I should say, 'Give me a little water from your jar to drink,' 44 and she should say to me, 'You drink, and I will fetch water for your camels too,' may this be the woman whom the Lord prepared for my own attendant Isaak, and by this I shall know that you have done mercy toward my lord Abraam.'

45 "And it came about before I finished speaking in my mind, that at once Rebekka was coming out with the water jar on her shoulders, and she went down to the spring and fetched water. Then I said to her, 'Give me a drink.' 46 And hurriedly she let down the jar from herself and said, 'You drink, and I will water your camels.' And I drank, and she watered my camels. 47 And I asked her and said, 'Whose daughter are you?' 'I am a daughter of Bathouel, Nachor's son,' she said, 'whom Melcha bore to him.' And I put the earrings on her and the bracelets around her arms. 48 Then, being content, I did obeisance to the Lord and blessed the Lord, the God of my lord Abraam, who had prospered me on the way of truth to obtain the daughter of my lord's kinsman for his son. 49 So if you are going to do mercy and righteousness toward my lord, tell me; but if not, tell me in order that I may turn to the right hand or to the left.'

50 Then Laban and Bathouel said in reply, 'This ordinance has come from the Lord; therefore we shall not be able to speak against you bad for good. 51 Look, Rebekka is before you; take her, lead quickly, and let her be wife to your lord's son, as the Lord has spoken.'

52 Now it came about when the servant of Abraam heard their words that he did obeisance upon the ground to the Lord. 53 And when the servant had brought out articles of silver and gold and clothing, he gave them to Rebekka, and he gave gifts to her brother and mother. 54 And he and the men who were with him ate and drank, and they went to bed. And when he rose in the morning, he said, 'Send me away in order that I may depart to my lord.' 55 And her brothers and mother said, 'Let the maiden remain with us about ten days, and after that she shall depart.' 56 But he said to them, 'Do not detain me, and the Lord has prospered my journey; send me away in order that I may depart to my lord.' 57 Then they said, 'Let us call the girl and ask her mouth.' 58 And they called Rebekka and said to her, 'Will you go with this man?' And she said, 'I will go.' 59 And they sent away their sister Rebekka and her possessions and Abraam's servant and those with him. 60 And they blessed their sister Rebekka and said to her, 'You are our sister; become thousands of myriads, and let your offspring gain possession of the cities of their adversaries.'

61 Then Rebekka and her maids, when they had risen, mounted the camels and went with the man, and taking along Rebekka, the servant departed.

62 Now Isaak used to go through the wilderness over against the well of the appearance, but he was dwelling in the land that is toward the south-west. 63 And Isaak went out toward evening to meditate in the plain, and looking up with his eyes he saw camels coming. 64 And Rebekka, looking up with her eyes, saw Isaak and leaped down from the camel 65 and said to the servant, 'Who is that man who is walking on the plain to meet us?' And the servant said, 'This is my lord.' Then taking her light summer garment she threw it around herself. 66 And the servant recounted to Isaak all the matters that he had carried out. 67 Then Isaak entered into his mother's house and took Rebekka, and she became his wife, and he loved her. And Isaak was comforted concerning his mother Sarra.

25 Now Abraam again took a wife, whose name was Chettoura. 2 And she bore him Zembron and lexan and Madan and Madiam and lesbok and Soye. 3 And lexan was the father of Saba and Thaiman and Dauid. And the sons of Dauid were Ragouel and Nabdeel and Assourieim and Latouseim and Loonimeim. 4 And the sons of Madiam: Gaiphar and Apher and Henoch and Abira and Elraga. These all were the sons of Chettoura. 5 And Abraam gave all his possessions to his son Isaak, 6 and to the sons of his concubines Abraam gave gifts, and while he was still living he sent them away from his son Isaak, eastward to the east country.

7 Now these are the years of the days of the life of Abraam that he lived: one hundred seventy-five years. 8 And breathing his last, Abraam died at a good old age, an old man and full of days, and was added to his people. 9 And his sons Isaak and Ismael buried him in the double cave in the field of Ephron the son of Saar the Chetite, which is opposite Mambre, 10 the field and the cave that Abraam acquired from the sons of Chet; there they buried Abraam and his wife Sarra. 11 And it came about after Abraam died that God blessed his son Isaak. And Isaak settled by the well of the appearance.

12 Now these are the generations of Ismael, Abraam's son, whom Hagar, Sarra's slave-girl, bore to Abraam. 13 and these are the names of the sons of Ismael, by the name of his clans: Nabaito, the firstborn of Ismael, and Kedar and Nabdeel and Massam 14 and Masma and Idouma and Masse 15 and Choddad and Thaiman and Letour and Naphes and Kedma. 16 These are the sons of Ismael, and these are their names in their tents and in their encampments, twelve rulers according to their nations. 17 And these are the years of the life of Ismael: one hundred thirty-seven years, and breathing his last he died and was added to his kin. 18Now he settled from Heuilat to Sour, which is facing Egypt, until one comes to the Assyrians; he settled facing all his kinfolk.

19 And these are the generations of Isaak, Abraam’s son: Abraam was the father of Isaak. 20Now Isaak was forty years of age when he took Rebekka, daughter of Bathouel the Syrian of Mesopotamia, sister of Laban the Syrian, as a wife for himself. 21And Isaak petitioned the Lord concerning his wife Rebekka, because she was barren, and God heard him, and his wife Rebekka became pregnant. 22And the children were cavorting within her, and she said, “If it is thus going to be with me, why do I have this?” Then she went to inquire of the Lord, 23and the Lord said to her, “Two nations are in your womb, and two peoples from your uterus shall be divided, and a people shall excel over a people, and the greater shall be subject to the lesser.”

24 And the days for her to give birth were completed, and she had twins in her uterus. 25And the firstborn son came out red all over like a hairy hide; then she named his name Esau. 26And afterward his brother came out, with his hand gripping Esau’s heel, and she called his name Jakob. Now Isaak was sixty years of age when Rebekka bore them.

27 So the boys grew up, and Esau was a man who knew how to hunt, a rustic, while Jakob was a simple man, living at home. 28And Isaak loved Esau, because his game was food for him; Rebekka, however, loved Jakob.

29 Now Jakob cooked a stew, and Esau came from the plain languishing, 30and Esau said to Jakob, “Give me a taste of this red stew, for I am languishing!” Therefore his name was called Edom. 31And Jakob said to Esau, “Sell to me today your rights of primogeniture.” 32And Esau said, “Look, I am going to perish, and why do I have these rights of primogeniture?” 33And Jakob said to him, “Swear to me today.” And he swore to him, “Surely I will give you all these rights of primogeniture.” And he swore to him, “Swear to me today.” And he swore to him, “Surely I will give you all these rights of primogeniture.”

34 And Jakob gave Esau bread and lentil stew, and Esau sold the rights of primogeniture to Jakob. 35And Jakob gave Esau bread and lentil stew, and Esau sold the rights of primogeniture to Jakob. 36And Jakob gave Esau bread and lentil stew, and Esau sold the rights of primogeniture to Jakob.

26 Now a famine occurred upon the land, besides the former famine that had occurred in the time of Abraam. Then Isaak went to Gerara, to Abimelech, king of Phylstieim. 2And the Lord appeared to him and said, “Do not go down to Egypt, but settle in the land about which I speak to you. 3And reside in this land as an alien, and I will be with you and will bless you. For to you and to your offspring I will give all this land, and I will establish my oath that I swore to your father Abraam. 4And I will make your offspring as numerous as the stars of the sky and will give to your offspring all this land, and all the nations of the earth shall be blessed in your offspring. 5since your father Abraam obeyed my voice and kept my ordinances and my commandments and my statutes and my precepts.”

6 And Isaak settled in Gerara. 7Then the men of the place asked about his wife Rebekka, and he said, “She is my sister,” for he was afraid to say, “She is my wife,” lest perhaps the men of the place kill him for the sake of Rebekka, because she was attractive in appearance. 8And he stayed on there quite some time. Now Abimelech the king of Gerara, when he peered through the window, saw Isaak playing around with his wife Rebekka. 9Then Abimelech summoned Isaak and said to him, “So then she is your wife! Why is it that you said, ‘She is my sister?’” And Isaak said to him, “Because I said, ‘Lest perhaps I die because of her.’” 10And Abimelech said to him, “What is this you have done to us? Very nearly did someone of my kin lie with your wife, and you had brought ignorance upon us.” 11Then Abimelech instructed all his people, saying, “Anyone who touches this man or his wife shall be liable to the death penalty.”

12 And Isaak sowed seed in that land and in that year found barley bearing a hundredfold. And the Lord blessed him, 13and the man was exalted, and he kept getting greater until he became very great. 14And he had flocks of sheep and herds of cattle and many tilled fields. And the Phylstieim envied him, 15and all the wells that his father’s servants had dug in the time of his father—the Phylstieim stopped them up and filled them with earth. 16And Abimelech said to Isaak, “Go away from us, for you have become much more powerful than we.”

17 And Isaak departed from there and lodged in the ravine of Gerara and settled there. 18And again Isaak dug the wells of water that the servants of his father Abraam had dug, and the Phylstieim had stopped them up after his father Abraam had died, and he gave them names in accordance with the names that his father had named. 19And Isaak’s servants dug in the ravine of Gerara and found there a well of living water. 20And the herders of Gerara quarreled with Isaak’s herders, asserting that the water was theirs. And he called the name of the well Injustice, for they did him injustice. 21Then setting out from there he dug another well, but they were disputing over that one also, and he named its name Enmity. 22Then setting out from there he dug another well, but they did not quarrel over it, and he named its name Open-space, saying, “Inasmuch as now the Lord has made room for us and increased us on the land.”

23 And from there he went up to the well of the oath. 24And on that night the Lord appeared to him and said, “I am the God of your father Abraam; do not be afraid, for I am with you and have blessed you and will make your offspring numerous for your father Abraam’s sake.” 25And he built an altar there and invoked the name of the Lord and pitched his tent there. And there Isaak’s servants dug a well.

26 And Abimelech went to him from Gerara with Ochozath his groomsman and Phichol the commander-in-chief of his army. 27 And Isaak said to them, “Why did you come to me? You are the ones who hated me and sent me away from you.” 28 And they said, “Seeing, we have seen that the Lord was with you, and we said, Let there come to be an oath between you and between us, and we will make a covenant with you 29 that you will not do us harm, just as we did not loathe you, and as we treated you well and sent you away in peace. And now you are blessed by the Lord.” 30 And he made them a banquet, and they ate and drank.

31 And when they had risen in the morning, they told him about the well that they had dug and said, “We did not find water.” 32 And he called it Oath; therefore he called the city’s name Well-of-oath, to the present day.

34 Now Esau was forty years of age, and he took as a wife loudin the daughter of Beer the Chetite and Basemmath daughter of Ailon the Heuite. 35 And they were contending with Isaak and with Rebekka.

27 Now it came about after Isaak had grown old and his eyes had become too dim to see, that then he called his elder son Esau and said to him, “My son,” and he said, “Here I am.” 2 And he said, “See, I have grown old, and I do not know the day of my death. 3 Now therefore take your equipment, both quiver and bow, and go out into the plain, and hunt game for me, 4 and prepare for me victuals, such as I like, and bring them to me in order that I may eat, so that my soul may bless me before I die.”

5 Now Rebekka heard Isaak speaking to his son Esau. And Esau went into the plain to hunt game for his father. 6 Then Rebekka said to her lesser son Jakob, “Look, I heard your father speaking to your brother Esau, saying, 7 ‘Bring me game, and prepare for me victuals in order that when I have eaten I may bless you in the presence of the Lord before I die.’ 8 Now then, son, listen to me, as I command you, 9 and go to the flock; get me two kids from there, tender and good, and I shall prepare them as victuals for your father, such as he likes, 10 and you shall bring them in to your father, and he will eat, so that your father may bless you before he dies.”

11 But Jakob said to his mother Rebekka, “My brother Esau is a hairy man, while I am a smooth man. 12 Perhaps my father will feel me, and I shall be before him like a scorner and bring a curse on myself and not a blessing.” 13 But his mother said to him, “Your curse be on me, child; only obey my voice, and go, bring them to me.” 14 And he went, got them and brought them to his mother, and his mother prepared victuals, just as his father used to love them. 15 And Rebekka, when she had taken the fine garment of her elder son Esau, which was with her in the house, then she put it on her younger son Jakob, 16 and she placed the skins of the kids on his arms and on the bare parts of his neck, 17 and she gave the victuals and the bread loaves that she had prepared into the hands of her son Jakob.

18 And he brought them in to his father. And he said, “Father.” And he said, “Here I am; who are you, child?” 19 And Jakob said to his father, “I am Esau your firstborn; I have done according to what you talked about to me; rise, sit, and eat of my game, so that your soul may bless me.” 20 But Isaak said to his son, “What is this that you have quickly found, O child?” And he said, “That which the Lord your God delivered up before me.” 21 Then Isaak said to Jakob, “Come near to me, and I shall feel you, child, whether you are my son Esau or not.” 22 And Jakob drew near to his father Isaak, and he felt him and said, “The voice is Jakob’s voice, yet the hands are the hands of Esau.” 23 And he did not recognize him, for his hands were hairy like his brother Esau’s hands, and he blessed him. 24 And he said, “Are you my son Esau?” And he said, “I am.” 25 And he said, “Bring it to me, and I shall eat of your game, child, in order that my soul may bless you.” 26 And he presented it to him, and he ate, and he brought wine in to him, and he drank. 27 And his father Isaak said to him, “Come near to me, and kiss me, child.” 28 And coming near he kissed him, and he smelled the scent of his clothes and blessed him and said, “See, my son’s scent is like the scent of a full field that the Lord has blessed.

28 And may God give you of the dew of heaven 29 and an abundance of grain and wine. 29 And let nations be subject to you, 30 and rulers shall do obeisance to you, and your father’s sons shall do obeisance to you.

Accursed be the one who curses you, 31 but blessed be the one who blesses you!”

30 And it came about after Isaak had left off blessing his son Jakob, and it came about when Jakob had gone out from the presence of his father Isaak, that then his brother Esau came from the hunt. 31 And he too prepared victuals and presented them to his father and said to his father, “Let my father rise and eat of his son’s game, so that your soul may bless me.” 32 And his father Isaak said to him, “Who are you?” And he said, “I am your firstborn son, Esau.” 33 Then Isaak was astonished with very great astonishment and said, “So who was the one who hunted game for me and brought it in to me? And I ate of everything before you came, and I blessed him, and let him be blessed!” 34 Now it came about when Esau heard his father Isaak’s words, that then he uttered a very great and bitter cry and said, “Do bless me also, father!” 35 But he said to him, “Your brother, coming with deceit, took away your blessing.”

36 And he said, “His name was rightly called Jakob, for he has sup Plant away my rights of primogeniture, and now he has taken away my blessing.” Then Esau said to his father, “Did you not leave a blessing for me, father?” 37 And in reply Isaac asked Esau, “If I made him your lord, and I made all his brothers his domestics, with grain and wine I sustained them, then what shall I do for you,child?” 38 And Esau said to his father, “Surely you do not have only one blessing, father? Do bless me also, father!” And with Isaac cut to the quick, Esau uttered a cry and wept.

39 Then in reply his father Isaac said to him: “See, away from the fatness of the earth shall your dwelling be, and away from the dew of the sky on high.

40 And by your dagger you shall live, and you shall be subject to your brother, but it shall be that when perchance you bring him down, then you shall loose his yoke from your neck.

41 And Esau was indignant at Jakob because of the blessing with which his father had blessed him. Then Esau said in his mind, “Let the days of mourning for my father come near in order that I may kill my brother Jakob.” 42 But the words of her mourning for my father come near in order that I may kill my brother Iakob.” 43 Now then, child, listen to my voice, and rise, escape to Mesopotamia to my brother Laban, your mother’s brother. 44 And he dreamed, and see, a ladder set firmly in the earth, whose top was reaching into heaven, and the angels of God were ascending and descending on it.

45 Then Isaak, having called for Jakob, blessed him and commanded him, saying, “You shall not take a wife from the daughters of Chanaan,” 46 but that Jakob obeyed his father and mother and went to Mesopotamia, and Esau saw that the daughters of Chanaan were evil in the sight of his father Isaak, 47 and Esau went to Ismael and took Maileth daughter of Abraam’s son Ismael, sister of Nabaioth, as a wife in addition to his wives.

10 And Jakob departed from the well of the oath and went to Charran. 11 And he came upon a place and lay down there, for the sun had set. And he took one of the stones of the place and put it at his head and lay down in that place. 12 And he dreamed, and see, a ladder set firmly in the earth, whose top was reaching into heaven, and the angels of God were ascending and descending on it.

13 And the Lord leaned on it and said, “I am the Lord, the God of Abraam your father and the God of Isaak; do not be afraid; as for the land which you are sleeping on, I will give it to you and to your offspring. 14 And your offspring shall be like the sand of the earth, and it shall widen out to the sea and to the southwest and to the north and to the east, and all the tribes of the earth shall be blessed in you and in your offspring. 15 And see, I am with you, carefully guarding you in every way where you might go, and I will bring you back to this land, for I will not leave you until I have done all the things that I talked about to you.” 16 And Jakob woke from his sleep and said, “The Lord is in this place—yet I did not know it!” 17 And he was afraid and said, “How awesome is this place! This is nothing other than a divine house, and this is the gate of heaven.”

18 And Jakob rose in the morning, and he took the stone that he had put down there at his head and set it up for a stele and poured oil on the top of it. 19 And Jakob called the name of that place Divine-house, and the city’s name was formerly Oulamlouz. 20 And Jakob made a vow, saying, “If the Lord God should be with me and should carefully guard me in this way that I go and should give me bread to eat and clothing to put on 21 and should bring me back to my father’s house in safety, then the Lord shall become god to me, and this stone, which I have set up for a stele, shall be a divine house to me, and of all things that you might give me, as a tithe I will tithe them to you.”

30 And Jakob, lifting up his feet, went to the land of the east, to Laban the son of Bathouel the Syrian and brother of Rebekka, mother of Jakob and Esau. 2 And he was looking, and there was a well in the plain, and three flocks of sheep were resting there near it, for out of that well they would water the flocks. Now a large stone was on the well’s mouth, 3 and all the flocks would water the sheep and restore the stone to its place on the mouth of the well.

4 And Jakob said to them, “Brothers, where are you from?” And they said, “We are from Charran.” 5Then he said to them, “Do you know Laban the son of Nachor?” And they said, “We know him.” 6And he said to them, “Is he well?” And they said, “He is well.” And see, his daughter Rachel was coming with her father. 7And Jakob said, “There is still much daylight; it is not yet time for the livestock to be gathered together. Water the sheep; go off, and pasture them.” 8But they said, “We shall not be able to until all the shepherds have been gathered together, and they roll the stone from the mouth of the well, and we shall water the sheep.”

9 While he was still speaking with them, then Laban’s daughter Rachel was coming with her father’s sheep, for she was tending her father’s sheep. 10Now it came about when Jakob saw Rachel, daughter of his mother’s brother Laban, and the sheep of his mother’s brother Laban, that then Jakob, drawing near, rolled the stone from the well’s mouth and watered the sheep of his mother’s brother Laban. 11And Jakob kissed Rachel, and cried out with his voice he wept. 12And he told her brother Laban, “Give me Rachel to wife, for I will serve you seven years for your younger daughter Rachel.”

13 And it came about when Laban heard the name of his sister’s son Jakob, that he ran to meet him and, embracing him, kissed him and brought him into his house. And he related to Laban all these particulars. 14And Laban said to him, “You are of my bones and of my flesh!” And he was with him a month of days. 15Then Laban said to Jakob, “Indeed, because you are my kinsman, you shall not be subject to me for nothing. Tell me what your wage is.” 16Now Laban had two daughters; the name of the bigger was Leia, and the name of the younger was Rachel. 17And Leia’s eyes were weak, but Rachel was shape-ly in figure and lovely in appearance. 18Now Jakob loved Rachel, and he said, “I will be subject to you seven years for your younger daughter Rachel.” 19And Laban said to him, “It is better that I give her to you than that I give her to another man; dwell with me.” 20And Jakob was subject seven years for Rachel, and they were in his sight like a few days because he loved her.

21 Then Jakob said to Laban, “Give up my wife, that I may go in to her, for my days have been com-pleted.” 22And Laban gathered together all the men of the place and made a wedding feast. 23And evening came, and Laban, taking his daughter Leia, brought her in to Jakob, and Jakob went in to her. 24Now Laban gave to his daughter Leia his maid Zelpha as a maid for her. 25Then morning came, and there was Leia! And Jakob said to Laban, “What is this you have done to me? Was I not sub-ject to you for Rachel? And why have you deceived me?” 26And Laban said, “It is not possible thus in our locality to give the younger before the elder.

27Therefore finish the heptad of this one, and I will give you this one also in return for work that you shall do at my place for yet another seven years.” 28And Jakob did so and fulfilled her heptad, and Laban gave him his daughter Rachel as a wife for him. 29Now Laban gave his maid Balla to his daughter Rachel as a maid for her. 30And he went in to Rachel, and he loved Rachel more than Leia. And he was subject to him another seven years.

31 Now when the Lord saw that Leia was hated, he opened her womb, but Rachel was barren. 32And Leia conceived and bore a son to Jakob, and she called his name Rouben, saying, “Inasmuch as the Lord has seen my humiliation, now it is me my husband will love.” 33And Leia conceived again and bore a second son to Jakob and said, “Because the Lord has heard that I am hated, he has also in addition given me this one too,” and she called his name Symeon. 34And yet again she conceived and bore a son and said, “Now yet again with respect to this I will acknowledge the Lord”; therefore she called his name Leui. 35And after she had conceived yet again, she bore a son and said, “This time I have won my husband’s favour.” 36And she called his name Issachar. 37And yet again she conceived and bore a son, and said, “God has added to my多番たちに幸福をもたらす故に、名をZelaphayahu手にした。” 38And she gave him her name Simeon. 39And yet again she conceived and bore a son, and said, “God has judged me and heard my voice and given me a son”; therefore she called his name Levi. 40And Rachel’s female slave Balla conceived and bore Jakob a son. 41And Rachel said, “God has heard me and heard my voice and given me a son”; therefore she called his name Dan. 42And Rachel’s female slave Balla conceived yet again, and she bore Jakob a second son. 43And Rachel said, “God has assisted me, and I have lived together with my sister and have been strong enough,” and she called his name Nephthali.

9 Now Leia saw that she had ceased to bear, and she took her female slave Zelpha and gave her to Jakob as a wife. 10Then Jakob went in to her, and Leia’s female slave Zelpha conceived and bore Jakob a son. 11And Leia said, “By fortune!” and she named his name Gad. 12And Leia’s female slave Zelpha conceived and bore Jakob a second son as well. 13And Leia said, “Happy am I! For the women pronounce me happy,” and she called his name Aser. 14Now in the days of wheat harvest Rouben went and found mandrake apples in the field and brought them to his mother Leia. Then Rachel said to Leia, “Give me some of your son’s mandrakes.”

aPossibly seven-day feast  blouda = WeAed
15 But Leia said, "Is it not enough for you that you have taken away my husband? Surely you will not also take away my son’s mandrakes?" Then Rachel said, "Not so; let him lie with you through this night in exchange for your son’s mandrakes."

16 And Iakob came in from a field at evening, and Leia went out to meet him and said, "You shall come in to me today, for I have hired you in exchange for my son’s mandrakes." And he lay with her through that night. 17 And God heard Leia, and God also took away her shame.

18 And Leia said, "God has given me my hire, since I gave my female slave to my husband," and she called her name Issachar, which is Hire. 19 And Leia went out to meet him and said, "You shall come in to me today, for I have hired you in exchange for my son’s mandrakes." And he lay with her through that night in exchange for your son’s mandrakes."

20 Then Leia said, "God has given a good gift to me; at the present time my husband will choose me, for I have borne him six sons," and she called his name Zabouleon. 21 And afterwards she bore a daughter and called her name Dinah.

22 Then God remembered Rachel, and God heard her and opened her uterus, and after she had conceived she bore Iakob a sixth son. 23 Then Leia said, "God has taken away all the living things of my husband," and she called his name Issachar, which is Hire.

25 Now it came about when Rachel had borne Joseph, that Iakob said to Laban, "Send me away in order that I may depart to my region and to my country. 26 Give up my wives and children, on account of whom I was subject to you, in order that I may depart, for you know very well the servitude with which I have served you." 27 But Laban said to him, "If I had found favor before you, I would have learned it by ornamentimacy. Indeed, God blessed me by your coming. 28 Specify your wage to me, and I will give it." 29 Then Iakob said to him, "You do know in what things I was subject to you and how numerous your cattle have been with me. 30 For what you had before me was little, and it increased to a multitude, and the Lord blessed you at my foot. Now then when shall I too prepare a household for myself?" 31 And Laban said to him, "What shall I give to you?" And Iakob said to him, "You shall not give me anything; if you carry out this matter for me, I will again shepherd your sheep, and I will keep them. 32 Let your sheep pass by today, and separate these every gray sheep among the lambs and every pure white and spotted one among the goats; such shall be my wage. 33 And my righteousness will hearken to me tomorrow, because my wage is before you. Any one that is not spotted and pure white among the goats and gray among the lambs shall, in my judgment, have been stolen." 34 Then Laban said to him, "Let it be according to your word." 35 And on that day he set apart the male goats that were spotted and pure white and all the female goats that were spotted and pure white and every one that was white among them and every one that was gray among the lambs and gave them into the control of his sons. 36 And he put a distance of three days' journey between them and between Iakob. Now Iakob was shepherding Laban's remaining sheep.

37 And Iakob took for himself a green rod of styrax and walnut and one of a plane tree, and Iakob stripped white stripes in them, tearing away the green. And the white that he had stripped appeared variegated on the rods. 38 And he set the rods that he had stripped in the channels of the watering troughs of water in order that, when the sheep would come to drink in front of the rods, as they came for drinking, (39) the sheep would come into heat at the rods, (40) and the sheep would produce pure white and variegated and ash-colored spotted young. 40 And Iakob set apart the lambs and set before the sheep a pure white ram and every variegated one among the lambs, and he separated flocks for himself on his own and did not mix them with Laban's sheep. 41 Now it came about in the season in which the sheep came into heat, as they were conceiving, that Iakob placed the rods in the channels before the sheep that they might come into heat opposite the rods, but when the sheep would give birth, he would not place them; so then the unmarked were Laban's, and the marked Iakob's. 42 And the man became very, very rich and had large herds and cattle and male slaves and female slaves and camels and donkeys.

31 Now Iakob heard the words of the sons of Laban, saying, "Iakob has taken all that was our father's, and he has made all this glory from what was our father's." 2 And Iakob saw Laban's face, and see, it was not towards him as it was yesterday and the third day. 3 Then the Lord said to Iakob, "Return to the land of your father and to your kindred, and I will be with you." 4 And Iakob went for and called Laban andRachel into the plain where his flocks were and said to them, "I see your father's face, that it is not in favor of me as yesterday and the third day, but the God of my father has been with me. 5 Now you yourselves too know that I was subject to your father with all my strength. 6 Yet your father cheated me, and exchanged my wage for ten lambs, and God did not give him leave to harm me. 7 If he should say thus, 'The variegated shall be your wage,' then all the sheep will bear variegated, but if he should say, 'The white shall be your wage,' then all the sheep will bear white. 8 And God took away all the livestock of your father and gave them to me. 9 And it came about when the sheep were coming into heat, that then I saw them with my eyes in my sleep, and see, the male goats and the rams—pure white and variegated and ash-colored spotted—were mounting the sheep and the female goats. 10 And the angel of God said to me during sleep, 'Iakob.' And I said, 'What is it?' 11 And he said, 'Look up with your eyes, and see the male goats and the rams—pure white and variegated and ash-colored spotted—mounting the sheep and the female goats, for I have seen how much Laban is doing to you. 13I am the God who appeared to you at a divine place, there where you anointed a stele to me and made a vow to me there. Now therefore rise, and go forth from this land, and depart to the land of your origin, and I will be with you." 14And Rachel and Leia said to him in reply, "Surely there is no longer a portion or an inheritance in our father's house! 15Have we not been regarded by him as foreigners? For he has sold us, and he consumed our money by a devouring. 16All the wealth and the glory that God took away from our father shall belong to us and to our children. Now therefore do what God has said to you." 17Then Iakob, when he had arisen, took his wives and his young men on the camels, 18and he carried off all his possessions and all his chattels that he had procured in Mesopotamia and all that was his, to go off to his father Isaak in the land of Chanaan. 19Now Laban went away to shear his sheep, and Rachel stole her father's idols. 20And Iakob concealed his intention from Laban the Syrian so as not to tell him that he was fleeing, 21and he fled with all that was his and crossed the river and set out for the mountain of Galaad. 22Then on the third day it was told to Laban the Syrian that Iakob had fled, 23and taking along all his kinsfolk with himself he followed hard after him a seven days' journey, and he caught up with him at the mountain of Galaad. 24But God came to Laban the Syrian in his sleep during the night and said to him, "Watch yourself, that you not speak evil with Iakob." 25And Laban caught up with Iakob. Now Iakob pitched his tent on the mountain, and Laban stationed his kinsfolk on the mountain of Galaad. 26And Laban said to Iakob, "What have you done? 27Why did you flee secretly and rob me 28and carry off my daughters like those captured by dagger? 29And if you had told me, I would have sent you away with mirth and with music, with drums and lyre. 30I was not deemed worthy to kiss my own father and my own mother. 31Why have you stolen my gods?" 32And Iakob said to Laban in reply, "Because I said, 'Lest perhaps you take away my daughters from me, and all that is mine.' 33Discover what I have of yours, and take it." And he did not discover anything with him. And Iakob said, "Anyone with whom you should find your gods shall not live in the presence of our kinsfolk." Now Iakob did not know that his wife Rachel had stolen them. 33And Laban, when he had gone in, searched in Leia's house and found nothing. And he went out of Leia's house and searched in Iakob's house and in the house of the two maids and found nothing. Then he also entered into Rachel's house. 34Now Rachel had taken the idols and put them into the camel's pack-saddles and sat on them. 35And she said to her father, "Do not take it ill, lord; I cannot rise before you, for I have what is customary with women." And Laban searched in the whole house and did not find the idols. 36Then Iakob became angry and quarreled with Laban. And Iakob said to Laban in reply, "What is my crime, and what is my fault, that you have followed hard after me 37and that you have searched all my effects? What have you found of all the effects of your house? Set it here before your kinsfolk and my kinsfolk, and let them decide between us two. 38These twenty years of mine I was with you; your sheep and your female goats were not barren; I did not consume the rams of your sheep; 39that which was caught by wild beasts I have not brought back to you; I would exact from myself what was stolen by day and what was stolen by night; 40by day I would become inflamed by heat and by frost by night, and sleep would withdraw from my eyes. 41These twenty years of mine I was in your household; I was subject to you fourteen years in exchange for your two daughters and six years among your sheep, and you falsified my wage with ten ewe lambs. 42If the God of my father Abraam had not been with me—even the Fear of Isaak—you would now have sent me away empty-handed; God saw my humiliation and the labor of my hands and rebuked you yesterday." 43Then in reply Laban said to Iakob, "The daughters are my daughters, and the sons are my sons, and the livestock are my livestock, and all things that you see are mine and my daughters'. What shall I do today for these or for their children whom they have borne? 44Now therefore, come, let us make a covenant, you and I, and it shall become an attestation between you and me. And he said to him, "Look, no one is with us; see, God is a witness between you and me." 45Then Iakob, taking a stone, set it up as a stele. 46And Iakob said to his kinsfolk, "Gather stones." And they gathered stones and made a mound, and they ate and drank there by the mound. 47And Laban said to him, "This mound bears witness between you and me today." 48And Laban called it Mound-of-the-witness, but Iakob called it Mound-witness. 49(51) Then Laban said to Iakob, "Here is this mound and the stele that I have set up between you and me; 52(53) this mound bears witness, and this stele bears witness." (46b) Therefore its name was called Mound-bears-witness, 49and The-act-of-seeing, about which he said, "May God oversee between you and me, that we shall withdraw one from the other. 50If you shall humiliate my daughters, if you shall take wives in addition to my daughters, beware, no one is with us. 52For whether I do not cross over to you, or you do not cross over this mound and this stele to me for harm, 53the God of Abraam and the God of Na-chor will judge between us." 54And Iakob swore by the Fear of his father Isaak. 54And Iakob offered a sacrifice on the mountain and called his kinsfolk, and they ate and drank and slept on the mountain.

55(32.1) Then in the morning when Laban had risen, he kissed his sons and his daughters and blessed them, and Laban, turning back, departed to his region.

32(2) And Jakob departed on his own way. And looking up he saw a divine camp encamped, and the angels of God met him. 4(5) Now Jakob, when he saw them, said, “This is a divine camp!” And he called the name of that place Camps.

3(4) And Jakob sent messengers ahead of him to his brother Esau in the land of Seir in the territory of Edom, 4(5) and he commanded them, saying, “Thus you shall say to my lord Esau: Thus says your servant Jakob, ‘I have lived with Laban as an alien and stayed until now, 6(7) and cattle and donkeys and sheep and male and female slaves have come into my possession, and I have sent to tell my lord Esau in order that your servant may find favor before you.’”

6(7) And the messengers returned to Jakob, saying, “We came to your brother Esau, and he is coming to meet you, and four hundred men are with him.” 7(8) Then Jakob was greatly afraid and perplexed. And he divided the people that were with him and the cattle and the sheep into two companies. 8(9) And Jakob said, “If Esau should come to one company and eradicate it, then there will be the second company to save itself.”

9(10) And Jakob said, “God of my father Abraam and God of my father Isaak, O Lord who said to me, ‘Hurry off to the country of your origin, and I will do you good,’ 10(11) it is sufficient for me. Therefore to this day the sons of Israel shall not eat the sinew that became numb, that is on the flat part of the thigh, because he touched the flat part of Jakob’s thigh became numb as he wrestled with him, 26(27) and he said to him, “Send me away, for the dawn has come up.” But he said, “I will not send you away, unless you bless me.” 27(28) And he said to him, “What is your name?” And he said, “Iakob.” 28(29) Then he said to him, “Your name shall no longer be called Jakob, but Israel shall be your name, because you have prevailed with a god, and with humans you are powerful.” 29(30) Then Jakob asked and said, “Tell me your name.” And he said, “Why do you ask this, my name?” And there he blessed him, 30(31) and Iakob called the name of that place Divine-form, “For I have seen a god face to face, and my life has been preserved.” 31(32) And the sun rose upon him when he passed by Form-of-God; now he was limping upon his thigh.

32(33) Therefore to this day the sons of Israel shall not eat the sinew that became numb, that is on the flat part of the thigh, because he touched the flat part of Jakob’s thigh, the sinew, and it became numb.

33 Now when Jakob looked up he saw, and see, his brother Esau was coming, and four hundred men with him. And Jakob distributed the youngsters to Leia and Rachel and the two maids 2 and put the two maids with their sons out front, and Leia with her youngsters behind, and Rachel and Joseph last. 3 But he himself advanced ahead of them and did obeisance upon the ground seven times until he came near his brother.

4 And Esau ran forward to meet him, and embracing him he kissed him and fell upon his neck, and they both wept. 5 And looking up he saw the women and youngsters and said, “What are these to you?” And he said, “The youngsters by which God has shown mercy to your servant.” 6 And the maids and their children drew near and bowed down, 7 and Leia and her children drew near and did obeisance, and afterwards Rachel and Joseph drew near, and they did obeisance. 8 And he said, “What are these to you, all these companies that I have met?” And he said, “That your servant may find favor before you, lord.” 9 But Esau said, “I have much, brother; let your property be yours.” 10 But Jakob said, “If I have found favor before you, accept my presents through my hands; with regard to this I saw your face, as someone might see a divine face, and you will be pleased with me. 10 Receive my blessings that I have brought to you, because God has shown mercy to me and I have everything.” And he urged him, and he received them.

12 And he said, “When we depart, we shall go a direct route.” 13 But he said to him, “My lord knows that the youngsters are rather delicate, and the sheep and cows are giving birth for me; so if I should drive them hard for one day, all the cattle will die. 14 Let my lord advance ahead of his servant, whereas I will regain strength on the way in accordance with the leisure of the journey that is before me and in accordance with the pace of the young children until I come to my lord in Seir.”

15 Then Esau said, “I shall leave behind with you some of the people who are with me.” But he said, “Why is this? It is enough that I have found favor before you, lord.” 16 Then Esau turned back on that day to his way to Seir.

17 And Iakob was setting out for Tents, and he made himself dwellings and tents for his cattle; therefore he called the name of that place Tents.

18 And Iakob came to Salem, a city of Sikima, which is in the land of Chanaan, when he came from Mesopotamia of Syria, and he encamped facing the city. 19 And from Hemmor, Sychem’s father, he acquired for one hundred lambs the portion of the field, there where he had set up his tent, 20 and there he set up an altar and invoked the God of Israel.

34 Now Dina the daughter of Leia, whom she had borne to Iakob, went out to observe the daughters of the inhabitants. 2 And Sychem the son of Hemmor, the Chorrite, the ruler of the land, saw her, and seizing her he lay with her and humbled her. 3 And he applied to the person b of Dina the daughter of Iakob, and he loved the maiden and spoke with her according to the maiden’s mind. 4 And Sychem spoke to his father Hemmor, saying, “Get me this girl for a wife.”

5 Now Iakob heard that the son of Hemmor had defiled his daughter Dina, but his sons were with his livestock in the plain, and Iakob kept silent until they came. 6 And Hemmor the father of Sychem went out to Iakob to speak with him. 7 And the sons of Iakob came from the plain. And when they heard, the men were cut to the quick, and it was very painful to them because he had done an unseemly thing in Israel by lying with Iakob’s daughter, and it shall not be thus.

8 And Hemmor spoke with them, saying, “My son Symeon has selected your daughter with his soul; give her to him as a wife. 9 Make marriages with us; give your daughters to us, and take our daughters for your sons. 10 And settle among us, and as for the land, see, it is broad before you; settle, and travel for business in it, and acquire property in it.” 11 Then Sychem said to her father and to her brothers, “May I find favor before you, and whatever you say, we will give. 12 Increase the bride price very much, and I will give it, just as you tell me, and you shall give me this girl for a wife.”

13 But the sons of Iakob answered Sychem and his father Hemmor with deceit and spoke with them, because they had defiled their sister Dina, 14 and Symeon and Leui, Dina’s brothers, Leia’s sons, said to them, “We will not be able to carry out this matter, to give our sister to a man who has a foreskin, for it is a disgrace to us. 15 In this we will become like you and settle among you, if you, even you, become like us when every male of yours has been circumcised, 16 and we will give our daughters to you, and we will take some of your daughters as wives for us, and we will live beside you, and we will be as one clan. 17 But if you do not listen to us to be circumcised, we will depart, taking our daughters.”

18 And their words were pleasing before Hemmor and before Sychem, the son of Hemmor. 19 And the young man did not delay to carry out this matter, for he was devoted to Iakob’s daughter. Now he was the most honored of all those in his father’s house. 20 So then Hemmor and his son Sychem came to the gate of their city and spoke to the men of their city, saying, 21 These people are peaceable with us; let them live on the land and travel it for business, and as for the land, see, it is broad before them. We will take their daughters as wives for us, and we will give them our daughters. 22 Only in this will the people become like us to live with us so as to be one people, when every male of ours is circumcised, as they also have been circumcised. 23 And will not their livestock and their possessions and their quadrupeds be ours? Only in this let us become like them, and they will live with us.” 24 And all those going out the gate of their city listened to Hemmor and his son Sychem, and they had the flesh of their foreskin circumcised, every male.

25 Now it came about on the third day, when they were in pain, that the two sons of Iakob, Symeon and Leui, Dina’s brothers, took each one his dagger and entered into the city safely and killed every male. 26 They killed both Hemmor and his son Sychem with a dagger’s edge and took Dina out of Sychem’s house and went away. 27 Then the sons of Iakob came upon the casualties and plundered the city in which they had defiled their sister Dina, 28 and they took their sheep and their cattle and their donkeys, both as many as were in the city and as many as were in the plain. 29 And all their slaves and all their chattels and their wives they captured, and they plundered both as many things as were in the city and as many things as were in the dwellings. 30 Then Iakob said to Symeon and Leui, “You have made me hateful so that I am evil to all those inhabiting the land, both among the Chananites and the Pherezites. But as for me, I am few in number, and they, gathering together against me, will chop me up, and I shall be annihilated, I and my house-Now God said to Jakob, “Arise, go up to the place Baithel, and reside there, and make an altar there to the God who appeared to you when you were fleeing from the presence of your brother Esau.” 2Then Jakob said to his household and to all those who were with him, “Remove from your midst the foreign gods that are with you, and purify yourselves, and change your garments, 3and arise, let us go up to Baithel, and let us make an altar there to the God who hearkened to me in a day of distress, who was with me and preserved me on the road that I traveled.” 4And they gave to Jakob the foreign gods that were in their hands and the earrings in their ears, and Jakob hid them under the terebinth in Siquima, and he destroyed them to the present day.

5 And Israel rose up from Siquima, and a divine fear came upon the cities all around them, and they did not go in pursuit after the sons of Israel.
6Then Jakob came to Louza, which is Baithel, which is in the land of Chanaan, and he and all the people who were with him set up an altar and called the name of the place Baithel, for there God had revealed himself to him when he was fleeing from the presence of his brother Esau.
8Now Debbora, Rebekka’s nurse, died under the city of palm trees, for she was fleeing from the presence of her brother Esau.
9 And God appeared to Jakob again in Louza, when he arrived from Mesopotamia of Syria, and God blessed him. 10And God said to him, “Your name is Jakob; no longer shall it be called Jakob, but Israel shall be your name.” 11And God said to him, “I am your God: increase, and multiply; nations and gatherings of nations shall be from you, and kings shall come from your loins. 12And the land that I have given to Abraam and Isaak, I have given it to you; it shall be yours, and I will give this land to your off spring after you.” 13Then God went up from him out of the place where he had spoken with him. 14And Jakob set up a stele in the place in which he had spoken with him, a stone stele, and he poured out a libation on it and poured oil on it.
15And Jakob called the name of the place, there at which God had spoken with him, Baithel.

16(21) Then after Jakob had set out from Baithel, he pitched his tent beyond the tower of Gader. (16)Now it came about when he drew near Chabratha to go to the land of Ephratha, that Rachel gave birth, and she experienced severe birth
pangs in the birth. 17And it came about while she was giving birth with difficulty that the midwife said to her, “Take courage, for this one also is a son for you.” 18And it came about as she was giving up her soul, for she was dying, that she called his name Son-of-my-pain, but his father called him Benjamin. 19So then Rachel died, and she was buried on the way to Ephratha (this is Bethleem).
20And Jakob set up a stele at her tomb; this is the stele of Rachel’s tomb to the present day.

21(22) And it came about when Israel dwelt in that land that Rouben went and lay with Balla his father’s concubine, and Israel heard, and it seemed evil in his sight.

22 Now the sons of Jakob were twelve. 23The sons of Leia: Rouben (Jakob’s firstborn), Symeon, Leui, Ioudas, Issachar, Zaboulon. 24And the sons of Rachel: Joseph and Benjamin. 25And the sons of Balla, Rachel’s maid: Dan and Nephtali. 26And the sons of Zelpha, Leah’s maid: Gad and Aser.
These were the sons of Jakob who were born to him in Mesopotamia of Syria.

27 Now Jakob came to his father Isaak at Mambre, at a city of the plain (this is Chebron) in the land of Chanaan, where Abraam and Isaak had resided as aliens. 28And the days of Isaak that he lived amounted to one hundred eighty years.
29And breathing his last he died and was added to his kin, old and full of days, and his sons Esau and Jakob buried him.

And these are the generations of Esau (he is Edom). 2Now Esau took wives for himself from the daughters of the Chananites: Ada daughter of Ailon the Chettite and Olibema daughter of Ada. 3And Esau’s wife Olibema bore Ieous and Ieglom and Kore; these are the sons of Esau who were born to him in the land of Chanaan.

6 Then Esau took his wives and his sons and his daughters and all the slaves of his household and all his possessions and all his livestock and all that he had acquired and that he had procured in the land of Chanaan, and he went out of the land of Chanaan away from the presence of his brother Jakob. 7For their possessions were many so as to come and live together, and the land of their sojourning could not bear them because of the multitude of their possessions. 8And Esau lived on the mountain of Seir (as for Esau, he is Edom).

9 Now these are the generations of Esau, ancestor of Edom, on the mountain of Seir, 10and these are the names of the sons of Esau: Eliphaz son of Ada the wife of Esau, and Ragouel son of Sebegon Basem-
math, Isaiael’s daughter, sister of Nabaoith. 4And Ada bore Eliphaz to Esau, and Basemmath bore Ragouel, and Olibema bore Ieous and Ieglom Kore; these are the sons of Esau who were born to him in the land of Chanaan.

14 These are the chieftains, the sons of Esau.
The sons of Eliphaz the firstborn of Esau: chieftain Thaiman, Omar, Sophar, Gothom and Kenez. 12Now Thaima was a concubine of Eliphaz the son of Esau, and she bore Amalek to Eliphaz; these were the sons of Ada, Esau’s wife. 13And these were the sons of Ragouel: Nachoth, Zare,
Some and Moze; these were the sons of Esau’s wife, Basemmath. 14And these were the sons of Esau’s wife Olibema daughter of Ana the son of Sebegon:
now she bore to Esau Ieous and Leglom and Kore.

15 These are the chieftains, the sons of Esau.

16(21) Then after Jakob had set out from Baithel, he pitched his tent beyond the tower of Gader. (16)Now it came about when he drew near Chabratha to go to the land of Ephratha, that Rachel gave birth, and she experienced severe birth
pangs in the birth. 17And it came about while she was giving birth with difficulty that the midwife
said to her, “Take courage, for this one also is a son
for you.” 18And it came about as she was giving up her soul, for she was dying, that she called his name Son-of-my-pain, but his father called him Benjamin. 19So then Rachel died, and she was buried on the way to Ephratha (this is Bethleem).
20And Jakob set up a stele at her tomb; this is the
stele of Rachel’s tomb to the present day.

21(22) And it came about when Israel dwelt in of Raguel in the land of Edom; they are the sons of Esau's wife Basemmath. And these are the sons of Esau's wife Olibemah: chieftain Ieus, chieftain Jegom, chieftain Kore; these are the chieftains of Olibema. These are the sons of Esau, and these are their chieftains. These are the sons of Edom.

20 And these are the sons of Seir the Chorrite who inhabits the land: Lotan, Sobal, Sebegon, Ana, 21 and Deson and Asar and Rison; these are the chieftains of the Chorrite the son of Seir in the land of Edom. 22 And these are the sons of Lotan: Chor, Haiman; now Lotan's sister was Thamna. 23 And these are the sons of Sobal: Golon and Manachath and Gaibel, Soph and Onam. 24 And these are the sons of Sebegon: Aie and Onan; this is the Onas who found Iamin in the wilderness, when he was pasturing the draft animals of his father Sebegon. 25 And these are the sons of Ana: Deson and Olibema daughter of Ana. 26 And these are the sons of Deson: Hamada and Asban and Iethran and Charran. 27 And these are the sons of Asar: Balan and Zoukam and Ioykam and Oukan. 28 And these are the sons of Rison: Os and Aram. 29 These are the chieftains of Chorri: chieftain Lotan, chieftain Sobal, chieftain Sebegon, chieftain Ana. 30 chieftain Deson, chieftain Asar, chieftain Rison. These are the chieftains of Chorri by their chieftainships in the land of Edom.

31 And these are the kings who reigned in Edom before a king reigned in Israel. 32 And Bala son of Beor reigned in Edom, and his city's name was Dinnaba. 33 Then Bala died, and Ijob son of Zara of Bosorra reigned in his stead. 34 Then Iobab died, and Hasom of the city of the Thaimanites reigned in his stead. 35 Then Hasom died, and Hadad son of Barad, who eradicated Madiam in the plain of Moab, reigned in his stead, and his city's name was Geththaim. 36 Then Hadad died, and Balaennon son of Achobor reigned in his stead. 37 Then Balaennon died, and Iobab son of Samala of Masekka reigned in his stead. 38 Then Iobab died, and Iobab son of Ragouel in the land of Edom; they are the sons of Esau's wife Basemmath. 39 Then Balaennon son of Achobor died, and Iobab son of Samala of Masekka reigned in his stead. 40 These are the chieftains of Esau, in their tribes according to their locality, in their countries and in their nations: chieftain Thaimna, chieftain Gola, chieftain Iliram, 41 chieftain Olibemas, chieftain Elas, chieftain Phinon, 42 chieftain Kenez, chieftain Thaiman, chieftain Mazar, 43 chieftain Megediol, chieftain Zaphoin. These are the chieftains of Edom in the built places in the land of their possession.

37 Now Jakob settled in the land where his father had resided as an alien, in the land of Chanaan. And these are the generations of Jakob. Joseph, seventeen years of age, used to shepherd the sheep with his brothers, when he was young, with the sons of Balal and with the sons of Zelpha, his father's wives. And Joseph brought back grievous censure to their father Israel. Now Jakob loved Joseph more than all his sons, because he was a son of old age to him, and he made him a variegated tunic. But when his brothers saw that their father was cherishing him above all his sons, they hated him and could not speak anything peaceable to him.

5 And when Joseph had dreamed a dream, he told it to his brothers, and he said to them, “Hear this dream that I dreamed. 7 I imagined we were binding sheaves in the middle of the plain, and my sheaf rose and stood upright; then your sheaves, turning around, did obeisance to my sheaf.” And his brothers said to him, “Surely you will not, when reigning, reign over us, or, when exercising dominion, exercise dominion over us?” And they proceeded to hate him more because of his dreams and because of his words.

9 And he saw another dream and related it to his father and to his brothers and said, “See, I have dreamed another dream, as though the sun and the moon and eleven stars were doing obeisance to me.” And his father rebuked him, saying, “What is this dream that you have dreamed? Shall we indeed, I and your mother and your brothers, when we come, come to do obeisance upon the ground to you?” And his brothers were jealous of him, but his father closely watched the matter.

12 Now his brothers went to Sychem to pasture their father’s sheep. And Israel said to Joseph, “Are not your brothers herding sheep at Sychem? Come, let me send you to them.” And he said to him, “Here I am.” And Israel said to him, “Go, see if your brothers and the sheep are well, and tell me.” And he sent him from the valley of Chebron, and he came to Sychem. And a man found him wandering in the plain, and the man asked him, saying, “What are you seeking?” And he said, “I seek my brothers; tell me where they are pasturing.” And the man said to him, “They have departed from here, for I heard them say, ‘Let us go to Dothaim.’” And Joseph went after his brothers and found them at Dothaim. Now they saw him beforehand from a distance before he came near to them, and they intended to act wickedly to kill him. And they said, each one to his brother, “Here comes that dreamer. So come now, let us kill him and cast him into one of the pits, and we shall say, ‘An evil animal has devoured him,’ and we shall see what his dreams will be.” But when Rouben heard it, he delivered him out of their hands and said, “We shall not smite him in regard to life.” And Rouben said to them, “Shed no blood; throw him into this pit in the wilderness, but lay no hand on him” —that he might rescue him out of their hands and restore him to his father. Now it came about when Joseph came to his brothers, that they stripped Joseph of the variegated tunic that was around him, and taking him, they cast him into the pit. Now the pit was empty; it had no water.

25 Then they sat down to eat bread, and looking up with their eyes, they saw, and see, Ismaelit camels were laden with fragrant substances and a pine resin and oil of myrrh. Now they were traveling to bring them down to Egypt. 26Then Ioudas said to his brothers, "What advantage is it if we kill our brother and conceal his blood? 27Come, let us sell him to these Ismaelites, but let our hands not be upon him, because he is our brother and our flesh." And his brothers listened. 28And some Madienite traders were passing by, and they drew out and brought up Joseph from the pit and sold Joseph to the Ismaelites for twenty gold pieces, and they brought Joseph down to Egypt.

29 Then Rouben returned to the pit, and he did not see Joseph in the pit, and he tore his clothes.
30 And he returned to his brothers and said, "The younger is not there, and I, where shall I yet go?"
31 Then taking Joseph's tunic, they slaughtered a kid of the goats and stained the tunic with the blood. 32 And they sent the variegated tunic, and they brought it in to their father and said, "This we have found; observe whether it is your son's tunic or not." 33 And he recognized it and said, "It is my son's tunic! An evil animal has devoured him, an animal has seized Joseph." 34 Then Jakob tore his clothes and put sackcloth on his loins, and he was mourning for his son many days. 35 And all his sons and daughters gathered together and came to comfort him, and he would not be comforted, saying, "I shall go down to Hades to my son, mourning, "I shall go down to Hades to my son, mourning, "I shall go down to Hades to my son, mourning, "I shall go down to Hades to my son, mourning, "I shall go down to Hades to my son, mourn-

38 Now it came about at that time that Ioudas went down from his brothers and came as far as to a certain Odollamite man whose name was Hiras. 2 And there Ioudas saw a Chananite man's daughter whose name was Saua, and he took her and went in to her. 3 And after she had conceived she bore a son and called his name Er.
4 And after she had conceived again she bore a son and called his name Aunan. 5 And yet again she bore a son, and she called his name Selom. Now she was in Chasbi when she bore them. 6 And Ioudas took for Er his firstborn a wife whose name was Hiras. 7 But Er, Ioudas' firstborn, became wicked in the sight of the Lord, and God killed him. 8 Then Ioudas said to Aunan, "Go in to your brother's wife so that he would not give offspring to your brother." 9 But because Aunan knew that the offspring would not be his, it would come about that he would pour out his semen upon the ground when he would go in to his brother's wife so that he would not give offspring to his brother. 10 Now it seemed evil in the sight of God that he did this, and he put him to death also. 11 Then Ioudas said to his daughter-in-law Thamar, "Stay as a widow in the house of your father until my son Selom becomes full-grown"—for he said, "Lest perhaps he too should die just like his brothers." And Thamar, after she had departed, stayed in the house of her father.
12 Now the days were multiplied, and the wife of Ioudas, Saua, died, and after Ioudas had been comforted, he went up to Thamna to those shearing his sheep, he and his shepherd Hiras the Odollamite. 13 And it was reported to his daughter-in-law Thamar—they were saying—"See, your father-in-law is going up to Thamna to shear his sheep." 14 And taking off from herself the garments of her widowhood, she clothed herself with a light summer garment and adorned herself and sat down near the gates of Ainan, which is on the way past Thamna, for she saw that Selom had become full-grown, yet he did not give her to him as a wife.
15 And when Ioudas saw her he thought she was a prostitute, for she had covered her face, and he did not recognize her. 16 Then he turned aside to her from the way and said to her, "Allow me to come in to you," for he did not know that she was his dughter-in-law. And she said, "What will you give me, if you come in to me?" 17 And he said, "I will send to you a kid of the goats from the flocks." And she said, "If you give a pledge until you send it," 18 And he said, "What pledge shall I give to you?" And she said, "Your ring and your small necklace and the staff that is in your hand." And he gave them to her and went in to her, and she became pregnant by him. 19 And getting up she went away and took off from herself her light summer garment and put on the garments of her widowhood.
20 Now Ioudas sent the kid from the goats by the hand of his shepherd the Odollamite, to recover the pledge from the woman, and he did not find her. 21 Then he asked the men of the place, "Where is the prostitute who was at Ainan by the road?" And they said, "There was no prostitute there." 22 And he returned to Ioudas and said, "I did not find her, and the people of the place say that there was no prostitute there." 23 And Ioudas said,
"Let her have them, but let us not be laughed at; I, for my part, have sent this kid, whereas you have found; observe whether it is your son's tunic or not." 24 Now it came about after a period of three months that it was reported to Ioudas—they were saying—"Your daughter-in-law Thamar has played the whore, and see, she is with child by where-dom." Then Ioudas said, "Bring her out, and let her be burned." 25 But as she was being brought she sent to her father-in-law, saying, "By the man whose things these are, I am with child." And she said, "Take note whose is the ring and the small necklace and the staff that is in your hand." 26 Then Ioudas recognized them and said, "Thamar has been justified rather than I, inasmuch as I did not give her to my son Selom." And he did not continue to know her any more.
27 Now it came about at the time she was giving birth, that then she had twins in her womb.
28 And it came about as she was giving birth that the one put forth his hand, and taking it, the mid-wife bound scarlet material on his hand, saying, “This one will come out earlier.” 29But when he retracted his hand, then immediately out came his brother. And she said, “Why has a barrier been cut through because of you?” And she called his name Phares. 30Afterward his brother came out, upon whom was the scarlet material upon his hand, and she called his name Zara.

39 Now Joseph was brought down to Egypt, and Potipher, the eunuch of Pharaoh, a chief butcher, an Egyptian, acquired him from the hand of the Israelites, who had brought him down there. 2And the Lord was with Joseph, and he was a successful man, and he was in the house with his Egyptian lord. 3And his lord knew that the Lord was with him and the Lord was prospering whatever he did. 4And Joseph found favor before his lord, and he was well pleased with him and appointed him over his house and gave everything that he had into Joseph’s control. 5Now it came about after he had been appointed over his house and over everything that he had, that then the Lord blessed the Egyptian’s house for Joseph’s sake, and the Lord’s blessing was on all that belonged to him in the house and in the field. 6And he entrusted everything that he had into Joseph’s hands, and he had no knowledge of any of his own affairs except the bread that he would eat.

And Joseph was handsome in physique and very pleasing in appearance. 7And it came about after these matters, that then his lord’s wife cast her eyes upon Joseph and said, “Lie with me.” 8But he would not, and he said to his lord’s wife, “If, because of me, my lord has no knowledge of anything in his house and he gave everything that he has into my hands and nothing in this household is above me and he has not excluded anything from me except you, because you are his wife, then how shall I carry out this evil matter and sin against God?” 9And when she would speak to Joseph day after day, then he would not submit to her to sleep with her in order to have relations with her. 10Now some such day came: Joseph went into the house to perform his tasks, and no one of those in the household was inside, 11that then she called those who were in her household and spoke to them, saying, “See, he has brought among us a Hebrew servant to mock us! He came in to me, saying, ‘I will lie with you,’ and I cried out with a loud voice. 12And as soon as he heard that I raised my voice and cried out, he fled and went outside, leaving his garments behind with me.” 13And she left his garments behind with herself until the morning, 14that then he was incensed with anger. 15And Joseph’s lord, taking him, put him into the stronghold, into the place in which the king’s prisoners are confined, there in the stronghold. 16And the Lord was with Joseph and poured down mercy upon him, and he gave him favor before the chief jailer, 17and the chief jailer gave the prison into Joseph’s control, and all who had been led away, who were in the prison, and everything that they were doing there. 18The chief jailer of the prison had no knowledge of anything because of him, for everything was under Joseph’s control, because the Lord was with him, and whatever he would do, the Lord would prosper in his hands.

40 Now it came about after these matters that the chief cupbearer of the king of Egypt and the chief baker transgressed against their lord the king of Egypt. 2And Pharaoh became angry with his two eunuchs—with the chief cupbearer and with the chief baker— 3and he put them in custody at the chief butcher’s place in the prison, in the place, there where Joseph had been led away. 4And the chief jailer put them together with Joseph, and he came to their aid, and they were in the jail for some days. 5And both saw a dream—the chief cupbearer and the chief baker, who belonged to the king of Egypt, who were in the prison—each one a dream, in a single night was the appearance of his dream. 6And Joseph came in to them in the morning, and he saw them, and they were troubled. 7And he was asking Pharaoh’s eunuchs, who were with him in the jail at his lord’s place, saying, “Why is it that your faces are gloomy today?” 8And they said to him, “We have seen a dream, and there is no one to interpret it.” Then Joseph said to them, “Is not the clarification of them through God? So relate them to me.” 9And the chief cupbearer related his dream to Joseph and said, “In my sleep a vine was before me. 10And on the vine were three stems, and it was flourishing, having produced shoots; the grapes of a bunch of grapes were ripe. 11And Pharaoh’s cup was in my hand, and I took the bunch of grapes and squeezed it out into the cup and gave the cup into Pharaoh’s hands.” 12And Joseph said to him, “This is its interpretation: the three stems are three days; 13yet three days and Pharaoh will remember your office and restore you to your chief cupbearer- 14ship, and you shall give Pharaoh’s cup into his hand in accordance with your former office, when you used to pour wine. 15But remember me through yourself, when it should go well with you, and you shall do mercy with me and make mention of me to Pharaoh and bring me out of this stronghold. 15 For by stealth I was stolen out of the land of the Hebrews, and here I did nothing, but they put me into this pit."

16 And the chief baker saw that he interpreted rightly, and he said to Joseph, "I also saw a dream, and I imagined I was taking up on my head three baskets of coarse meal loaves. 17 Now in the topmost basket was baker's work of all sorts, which the king, Pharaoh, eats, and the birds of the sky were devouring them from the basket that was atop my head." 18 Then Joseph said to him in reply, "This is its interpretation: the three baskets are three days; 19 within three more days Pharaoh will take away your head from you and hang you on a pole, and the birds of the sky will eat your pieces of flesh from you."

20 Now it came about on the third day that Pharaoh had a birthday, and he was making a feast for all his servants. And he remembered the office of the chief cupbearer and the office of the chief baker among his servants. 21 And he restored the chief cupbearer to his office, and he gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand, 22 but the chief baker he hanged, just as Joseph had interpreted to them. 23 But the chief cupbearer did not remember Joseph; rather, he forgot him.

41 Now it came about after two years of days that Pharaoh saw a dream. He imagined he was standing by the river, 2 and look, coming up as it were out of the river were seven cows, fair in form and choice in flesh, and they were grazing in the reed grass. 3 And seven other cows, ugly in form and scrawny in flesh, were coming up out of the river and were feeding in the reed grass. 4 And the seven cows that were ugly and scrawny in flesh ate up the seven fair and choice cows. 5 Then Pharaoh awoke, I fell asleep. 6 And I saw again in my sleep, and as it were seven ears of grain, full and fair, were coming up on one stalk; 22 then seven other ears of grain, scrawny and wind-blasted, were growing up in proximity to them; 24 and the seven scrawny and wind-blasted ears of grain swallowed up the seven fair and full ears of grain. So I spoke to the expounders, and there was no one to tell me."

25 And Joseph said to Pharaoh, "Pharaoh's dream is one; God has shown to Pharaoh what he is about to do. 26 The seven fair cows are seven years, and the seven fair ears of grain are seven years; Pharaoh's dream is one. 27 And the seven scrawny cows that were coming up after them are seven years, and the seven scrawny and wind-blasted ears of grain shall be seven years of famine. 28 Now as for the word that I have spoken to Pharaoh, 'God showed to Pharaoh what he is about to do,' 29 look, seven years are coming, great plenty in all the land of Egypt. 30 Then afterwards will come seven years of famine, and they will forget the abundance in the whole land of Egypt, and the famine will consume the land, 31 and the plenty will not be observed on the land because of the famine that will be afterwards, for it will be very severe. 32 And as for Pharaoh's dream being repeated twice: because the matter that is from God will be real, and God will hasten to do it. 33 Now then search out a man, sensible and intelligent, and appoint him over the land of Egypt. 34 And let Pharaoh make and appoint district governors over the land, and let them take one-fifth of all the produce of the land of Egypt in the seven years of plenty, 35 and let them gather all the provisions of these seven good years that are coming, and let the grain be gathered under the authority of Pharaoh; let provisions be kept in the cities. 36 And the provisions shall be kept for the land in regard to the seven years of famine that will be in the land of Egypt, and the land will not be annihilated by the famine."

*Or day—it was Pharaoh's birthday—that then

37 And the words were pleasing before Pharaoh and before all his servants. 38 And Pharaoh said to all his servants, “Surely we shall not find such a person, who has a divine spirit within?” 39 Then Pharaoh said to Joseph, “Seeing that God has shown you all these things, there is no person more sensible and intelligent than you. 40 You shall be over my house, and all my people shall comply with your mouth; only with regard to the throne will I be above you.” 41 And Pharaoh said to Joseph, “Look, I am appointing you today over all the land of Egypt.” 42 And removing his ring from his hand, Pharaoh placed it on Joseph’s hand and arrayed him in fine linen apparel and placed a gold collar around his neck. 43 And he mounted him on the second chariot of those that were his, and a crier cried out in front of him. And he appointed him over all the land of Egypt. 44 And Pharaoh said to Joseph, “I am Pharaoh; without you no one shall lift up a hand in reference to all the land of Egypt.” 45 And Pharaoh called Joseph’s name Psonthom-phanech, and he gave him Asenneth daughter of Phanech, and he married her. Then Asenneth bore to him. 51 And Joseph had two sons, whom Asenneth daughter of Phanech bore to him, Manasse and Ephraim. And Joseph called the name of the firstborn Manasse, because “God has caused me to forget all my hardships and all my father’s affairs.” 52 And the name of the second he called Ephraim, because “God has made me increase in the land of my humiliation.”

53 So the seven years of plenty that occurred in the land of Egypt passed, and the seven years of famine began to come, just as Joseph had said. And famine occurred in all the earth, yet in all the land of Egypt there were bread loaves. And all the land of Egypt was hungry, and the people cried to Pharaoh for bread loaves. Then Pharaoh said to all the Egyptians, “Go to Joseph, and whatever he says to you, do.” And the famine was over the face of all the land, and Joseph opened all the granaries and was selling to all the Egyptians. And all the countries came into Egypt to Joseph to buy, for the famine prevailed in all the earth.

42 Now Jakob, when he saw that there was a sale in Egypt, said to his sons, “Why are you idle? See, I have heard that there is grain in Egypt; go down there, and purchase a few provisions for us in order that we may live and not die.” And the ten brothers of Joseph went down to purchase grain from Egypt. 44 But he did not send Joseph’s brother Benjamin with his brothers, for he said, “Lest perhaps sickness befall him.” 5 And the sons of Israel came to buy with those who were coming, for the famine was in the land of Chanaan.

6 Now Joseph was ruler of the land; he was selling to all the people of the land. And when Joseph’s brothers came, they did obeisance to him face down on the ground. 7 And Joseph, when he saw his brothers, recognized them, and he was keeping himself estranged from them and spoke harshly to them and said to them, “Where have you come from?” And they said, “From the land of Chanaan to buy provisions.” 8 Now Joseph recognized his brothers, but they did not recognize him. 9 And Joseph remembered the dreams that he himself had seen, and he said to them, “You are spies; you have come to scrutinize the tracks of the country!” 10 But they said, “No, lord, your servants came to purchase provisions. 11 We are all sons of one man. We are peaceable; your servants are not spies.” 12 Nevertheless he said to them, “No, but you came to see the tracks of the land!” 13 Then they said, “We, your servants, are twelve brothers in the land of Chanaan, and see, the younger is with our father today, and the other is no more.” 14 But Joseph said to them, “This is what I have said to you, saying, ‘You are spies!’ 15 In this you shall manifest yourselves: by the health of Pharaoh, you shall not depart from this place unless your younger brother comes here! 16 Send one of you, and take your brother, but as for you, be led away until your words become manifest, whether you are telling the truth or not; otherwise, by the health of Pharaoh, surely you are spies.” 17 And he put them in custody for three days.

18 Then on the third day he said to them, “Do this, and you will live, for I fear God. 19 If you are peaceable, let one brother of you be confined in the jail, but you yourselves go, and carry away the purchase of your grain allowance, 20 and bring your younger brother to me, and your words will be believed; otherwise, you shall die.” And they did so. 21 And each one said to his brother, “Indeed, for we are at fault concerning our brother, because we disregarded the affliction of his soul, when he pleaded with us, and we did not listen to him. This is why this affliction has come upon us.” 22 Then Rouben said to them in reply, “Did I not speak to you, saying, ‘Do not injure the youngster?’ And you did not listen to me. And see, his blood is being sought out.” 23 Now they did not know that Joseph was listening, for the interpreter was between them. 24 And turning away from them Joseph wept. And again he came to them and spoke to them, and he took Symeon from them and bound him before them. 25 Then Joseph commanded that they fill their containers with grain and to return the money to each one in his sack and to give them a stock of provisions for the journey. And thus it happened to them.
26 And after they had put their grain upon their donkeys, they departed from there. 27 Now when one loosened his bag to give the donkeys fodder where they had lodged, he saw his bundle of money, and it was atop the mouth of the bag. 28 And he said to his brothers, "The money has been returned to me, and, look, this is in my bag!" And their heart was confounded, and they were mutually troubled, saying, "What is this that God has done to us?"

29 And they came to their father Jakob in the land of Chanaan, and they told him all that had befallen them, saying, 30 "The man, the lord of the land, has spoken harshly to us, and he put us in custody as ones spying out the land. 31 But we said to him, 'We are peaceable, we are not spies. 32 We are twelve brothers, sons of our father; the one is no more, and the smaller one is with our father today in the land of Chanaan.' 33 Then the man, the lord of the land, said to us, 'By this I shall know that you are peaceable: leave one brother here with me, and go off, taking the purchase of your household's grain allowance, 34 and bring your younger brother to me—and I shall know that you are not spies, but that you are peaceable, and I will return your brother to you—and travel in the land for business.'"

35 Now it came about as they were emptying their sacks that then each one's bundle of money was in their sack. And they saw their bundles of money, they and their father, and they were afraid. 36 And their father Jakob said to them, "I am the one you have bereaved of children: Ioseph is not, Symeon is not, and you will take Beniamin. All one you have bereaved of children: Ioseph is not, Symeon is not, and you will take Beniamin. All this has come upon me!" 37 Then Rouben spoke to his father, saying, "Kill my two sons, if I do not bring him to you and set him before you, I will have failed in regard to you for all days. 38 But he said, "My son shall not go down with you, because his brother died and he alone has been left. And it will turn out that he becomes sick on the journey that you travel, and you will bring down my old age with sorrow to Hades."

43 Now the famine prevailed upon the land. 2 And it came about when they had finished eating up the grain that they had brought from Egypt, that then their father said to them, "Again go purchase a few provisions for us." 3 But loudas spoke to him, saying, "With a solemn declaration the man has solemnly declared to us, saying, 'You shall not see my face unless your younger brother be with you.' 4 If, therefore, you send our brother with us, we will go down and buy provisions, 5 but if you do not send our brother with us, we will not go, for the man spoke to us, saying, 'You shall not see my face unless your younger brother be with you.'" 6 And Israel said, "Why did you treat me badly by telling the man whether you have a brother?" 7 And they said, "As he was inquiring, the man asked questions about us and our kindred, saying, 'Is your father still alive? Have you a brother?' And we reported to him in accordance with this questioning. Surely we did not know whether he would say to us, 'Bring your brother.'"

8 Then Ioudas said to his father Israel, "Send the youngster with me, and rising, we will go in order that we may live and not die—both you and we and our dependants. 9 And I am the one who is surety for him; demand him from my hand. If I do not bring him to you and set him before you, I will have failed in regard to you for all days. 10 For if we had not delayed, we would already have returned twice." 11 Then their father Israel said to them, "If it is so, do this: take some of the fruits of the land in your containers, and bring down presents to the man, some pine resin and some honey, incense and oil of myrrh and terebinth and nuts. 12 And take twice the money in your hands; bring back with you the money that was returned in your bags; perhaps it is a mistake. 13 Take your brother also and rise, go down to the man. 14 And may my God grant you favor before the man, and may he send off your one brother and Beniamin. For indeed, as for me, just as I have been bereaved of children, I have been bereaved of children." 15 Now when the men took these presents they also took double the money in their hands, and Beniamin, and rising, they went down into Egypt and stood before Joseph.

16 And Joseph saw them and his brother Benjamim, and he said to the one in charge of his household, "Bring the men in to the house, and slaughter animals, and make ready, for the men shall eat bread loaves with me during the noon hour." 17 And the man did just as Joseph said, and he brought the men in to the house of Joseph. 18 Now when the men saw that they had been brought in to Joseph's house, they said, "Because of the money that was returned in our bags at first we are being brought in so that he may accuse us falsely and set upon us, to take us as slaves with our donkeys." 19 And going to the man who was in charge of Joseph's house, they spoke with him in the gateway of the house, 20 saying, "We plead, lord; we came down at first to purchase provisions. 21 Now it came about when we came to the lodging and opened our bags, that then there was the money of each one in his bag! Our money by weight we have now brought back in our hands, 22 and we have brought with ourselves other money to buy provisions. We do not know who put our money into our bags." 23 But he said to them, "May he be gracious to you; do not be afraid; your God and the God of your fathers gave you treasures in your bags, but I have your good money in full." And he brought Symeon out to them. 24 And he brought water to wash their feet and gave their donkeys fodder. 25 And they made the presents ready until Joseph came at noon, for they had heard that he was going to have lunch there.

26 And Joseph came into the dwelling, and

they brought to him the presents that they had in their hands—into the house—and did obeisance to him face down on the ground. And he asked them, “How are you?” And he said to them, “Is your father well, the old man of whom you spoke? Is he still alive?” And they said, “Your servant our father is well; he is still alive.” And he said, “Blessed be that man to God.” And bending forward they did obeisance to him. Then looking up with his eyes, he saw his brother Benjamin, born of the same mother, and said, “Is this your younger brother, whom you said you would bring to me?” And he said, “May God show mercy to you, child!” And Ioseph was troubled, for his insides were twisting up over his brother, and he was seeking to weep. And going into the chamber he wept there. Then washing his face and coming out he controlled himself and said, “Serve bread loaves.” And they served him alone and them by themselves and the Egyptians who were dining with him by themselves, for the Egyptians could not eat bread loaves together with the Hebrews, for it is an abomination to the Egyptians. And they were seated before him, the firstborn according to his seniority and the younger according to his youth, and the men were amazed, each one to his brother. And they carried portions to them from him, but Benjamin’s portion was magnified beyond the portions of all, five-fold in comparison to the ones of those. And they drank and became intoxicated with him.

And Ioseph commanded the one who was in charge of his household, saying, “Fill the men’s bags with provisions, as much as they can carry, and put each one’s money at the mouth of his bag, and put my silver cup into the bag of the younger one, with the price of his grain.” And it happened according to the word of Ioseph, just as he said. The morning dawned, and the men were sent off, they and their donkeys. Now when they had gone from the city, they were not far off, and Joseph said to the one in charge of his household, “Rise, pursue after the men, and you shall overtake them and say to them, ‘Why is it that you returned evil for good? Why did you steal my silver cup? Is it not this with which my lord drinks? And by or-nithomancy he practices ornithomancy with it. You have perpetrated evil in what you have done.’ “

And when he found them, he spoke to them according to these words. Then they said to him, “Why does our lord speak according to these words? Heaven forbid for your servants to do according to this word! If indeed the money that we found in our bags we brought back to you from the land of Chanaan, how would we steal silver or gold from your lord’s house? As for the one among your servants with whom the cup should be found, let him die, but as for us, we will be slaves to our lord.” And he said, “Even now, as you say thus it shall be: the one with whom the cup should be found shall be my slave, but as for you, you shall be clear.” And each one hurried and lowered his bag to the ground, and each opened his bag. And he was searching, beginning from the elder until he came to the younger, and he found the cup in the bag of Benjamin. And they tore their clothes, and each one put his bag on his donkey, and they returned to the city.

Then Ioudas and his brothers came in to Joseph while he was still there, and they fell on the ground before him. And Ioseph said to them, “What is this deed that you have done? Do you not know that a person such as I will practice ornithomancy by ornithomancy?” And Ioudas said, “What shall we say in answer to our lord or what should we speak or how should we justify ourselves? But God has found out the injustice of your servants. Here we are, our lord’s domestics, both we and the one with whom the cup has been found.” But Ioseph said, “Heaven forbid for me to carry out this matter! The person with whom the cup was found, he shall be my slave, but as for you, go up in safety to your father.”

Then Ioudas, drawing near to him, said, “I plead, lord, let your servant speak a word before you, and do not become angry with your servant, because you are after Pharao.” Lord, it was you who asked your servants, saying, ‘Do you have a father or a brother?’ And we said to our lord, ‘We have an elderly father, and he has a younger child of his old age, and his brother died, and he alone was left to his mother, and his father loved him.’ Then you said to your servants, ‘Bring him down to me, and I am going to take care of him.’ And we said to our lord, ‘The youngster will not be able to leave his father behind, and if he should leave his father behind, he will die.’ Then it was you who said to your servants, ‘Unless your younger brother comes down with you, you shall not continue still to see my face.’ And it came about when we went up to your servant, our father, that we told him the words of our lord. Then our father said to us, ‘Go again; buy us a few provisions.’ But we said, ‘We shall not be able to go down; yet if indeed our younger brother goes down with us, we will go down, for we shall not be able to see the man’s face, if our younger brother is not with us.’ Then your servant our father said to us, ‘You know that my wife bore me two. And the one went away from me, and you said that he had come to be eaten by wild beasts, and I have not seen him ever since. So if you take this one also from my presence and sickness befall him on the way, then you will bring down my old age with sorrow to Hades.’ So now if I go in to your servant, our father, and the youngster be not with us (now his soul depends upon the soul of this one), then it shall be that when he sees the youngster is not with us, he will perish, and your servants will bring down the old age of your servant, our father, with grief to Hades. For your servant has become surety for the child with my father, saying, ‘If I do not bring him to you and set him before you, I will have failed towards my father for all days.’ So now I will remain with you as a slave, my lord’s domestic, in place of the child, but let the child go up with his brothers. For how shall I go
And Joseph could not bear with all those who were standing by him, but said, “Send all away from me.” And no one stood by Joseph any longer when he was making himself known to his brothers. 2And he let go his voice with weeping now all the Egyptians heard it, and it came to be heard in the household of Pharaoh. 3And Joseph said to his brothers, “I am Joseph. Is my father still alive?” And his brothers could not answer him, for they were troubled.

4 Then Joseph said to his brothers, “Come near to me.” And they came near. And he said, “I am your brother Joseph, whom you sold into Egypt. 5Now therefore do not be distressed nor let it seem hard to you that you sold me here, for God sent me before you for life. 6For famine is on the earth this second year, and there are still five years remaining in which there will be neither plowing nor harvest. 7For God sent me before you, to leave behind a remnant of you on the earth and to nourish a great nation there, 8and I will nourish you and your son’s sons, your sheep and your cattle in which there will be neither plowing nor harvest. 9So hurry, go up to my father, and say to him, ‘This is what your son Joseph says, God made me lord of all the land of Egypt; so come down to me, and do not remain. 10And you shall settle in the land of Gesem of Arabia; and you shall be near me, you and your sons and your son’s sons, your sheep and your cattle and as much as you have, 11and I will nourish you there—for there is famine for five more years—lest you be annihilated, you and your sons and all your possessions.’ 12Look, your eyes and the eyes of Benjamin see how it is my mouth that speaks to you. 13So report to my father all my glory in Egypt and how much you have seen and make haste; bring my father down here.” 14And falling upon his brother Benjamin’s neck, he wept on him, and Benjamin wept on his neck. 15And kissing all his brothers, he wept on them, and after that his brothers spoke to him.

16 And the utterance was proclaimed in Pharaoh’s house—they were saying—“Joseph’s brothers have come.” And Pharaoh and his retinue were delighted. 17Then Pharaoh said to Joseph, “Say to your brothers, ‘Do this: load your transport animals, and go off to the land of Chanaan, 18and come to me, taking along your father and your possessions, and I will give you some of all the good things of Egypt, and you shall eat the marrow of the land.’ 19And as for you, command these things, to take wagons for them from the land of Egypt—for your children and wives—and when you have taken up your father, come. 20Do not spare your accoutrements with your eyes, for all the good things of Egypt shall be yours.” 21 And the sons of Israel did so. And Joseph gave them wagons in accordance with what was said by Pharaoh the king, and he gave them a stock of provisions for the journey, 22and to all he gave two garments, but to Benjamin he gave three hundred gold pieces and five exceptional garments, 23and to his father he sent the same kinds of things, and ten donkeys carrying some of all the good things of Egypt, and ten mules carrying bread loaves to his father for the journey. 24Then he sent his brothers off, and they went, and he said to them, “Do not get angry on the way.” 25 And they went up out of Egypt and came into the land of Chanaan to their father Iakob, 26and they told him, saying, “Your son Joseph is alive, and he rules over all the land of Egypt!” And Iakob’s mind was confounded, for he did not believe them. 27And they spoke to him all the things said by Joseph, as many as he had said to them. And when he saw the wagons that Joseph had sent so as to take him up, the spirit of their father Iakob was rekindled. 28Then Israel said, “It is a great thing for me if my son Joseph is still alive. I will go see him before I die.”

Now after Israel had set out, he and all that was his, he came to the well of the oath and offered a sacrifice to the God of his father Isaak. 2Then God said to Israel in a vision of the night (when he had said, “Iakob, Iakob,” and he had said, “What is it?”), saying, “I am the God of your fathers; do not be afraid to go down to Egypt, for I will make you into a great nation there, 4and it is I who will go down with you to Egypt, and it is I who will bring you up totally, and Joseph shall lay his hands on your eyes.”

5 Then Iakob rose up from the well of the oath, and the sons of Iakob took up their father Israel and their chattels and their wives on the wagons that Joseph had sent to carry him, 6and when they had taken up their possessions and every acquisition that they had acquired in the land of Chanaan, then he came into Egypt, Iakob and all his offspring with him, 7sons and his sons’ sons with him, daughters and his sons’ daughters, and all his offspring he brought into Egypt.

8 Now these are the names of the sons of Israel who came into Egypt. Iakob and his sons: Rouben, Iakob’s firstborn. 9And the sons of Rouben: Henoch and Phallousb, Hasron and Charmi. 10And the sons of Symeon: Lemuel and Laimin and Oad and Iachin and Saar and Saoul, son of the Chananite woman. 11And the sons of Leui: Gedsom, Kaath and Merari. 12And the sons of Ioudas: Er and Aunan and Selom and Phares and Zara, but Er and Aunan died in the land of Chanaan; now the sons of Phares were Hasron and Lemuel. 13And the sons of Issachar: Thola and Phoua and Iasoub and Zambram. 14And the sons of Zaboulon: Sared and Allon and Haloe. 15These are the sons of Leia, whom she bore to Iakob in Mesopotamia of Syria, and Dina his daughter; all the persons, sons and daughters, were thirty-three. 16And the sons of Gad: Saphon and Haggis and

And the sons of Aser: Lemna and Lesoua and Ieoul and Baria and their sister Sara. And the sons of Baria: Chobor and Asbel. 18 These are the sons of Zelpha, whom Laban gave to his daughter Leia, who bore these to Iakob, sixteen persons. 19 And the sons of Iakob’s wife Rachel: Joseph and Benjamin. 20 And to Joseph in the land of Egypt were born sons, Manasse and Ephraim, whom Asenneth daughter of Petephres, priest of Heliopolis, bore to him. And to Manasse were born sons, whom the Syrian concubine bore to him: Machir, and Machir became the father of Galaad. And the sons of Manasse’s brother Ephraim: Southalaam and Taam. And the sons of Southalaam: Edem. 21 And the sons of Benjamin: Bala and Chobor and Asbel. And to Bala were born sons: Gera and Noeman and Anchis and Ros and Mamphin and Hophim, and Gera became the father of Arad. 22 These are the sons of Rachel, whom she bore to Iakob—all eighteen persons. 23 And the sons of Dan: Hasom. 24 And the sons of Nephthali: Iasiel and Goyni and Issar and Syllem. 25 These are the sons of Balla, whom Laban gave to his daughter Rachel, all seven persons. 26 And all the persons who came with Iakob into Egypt, who came out from his land of Ramesses, as Pharao had ordered. 27 And the sons of Joseph who were born to him in the land of Egypt were nine persons. All the persons of Iakob’s house who came into Egypt were seventy-five. 28 And he sent Joudas ahead of him to Joseph in order to meet him over against Heroonpolis in the land of Ramesses. 29 Then they brought their livestock to him, he hitched up his chariots, and went up to meet his father over against Heroonpolis in order that you may settle in the land of Gesem.” 30 And Joseph said to his brothers, “Henceforth I shall die, since I have seen your face, for you are still alive.” 31 And Joseph said to his brothers, “When I go up, I will tell Pharao and will say to him, ‘My brothers and my father’s household, who were in the land of Chanaan, have come to me. Now the men are shepherds, for they have been stockmen, and they have brought their livestock and their cattle and all that is theirs’.” So if Pharao should call you and say to you, ‘What is your occupation?’ you shall say, ‘We your servants are stockmen from childhood until now, both we and our fathers— in order that you may settle in the land of Gesem of Arabia, for every shepherd of sheep is an abomination to Egyptians.”

And Joseph went and told Pharao, saying, “My father and my brothers with their livestock and cattle and all that is theirs have come from the land of Chanaan, and see, they are in the land of Gesem.” 2 And of his brothers he took along five men and set them before Pharao. 3 And Pharao said to Joseph’s brothers, “What is your occupation?” And they said to Pharao, “Your servants are shepherds, both we and our fathers.” 4 And they said to Pharao, “We have come to reside as aliens in the land, for there is no pasture for the livestock of your servants, because the famine has prevailed in the land of Chanaan. Now therefore your servants will settle in the land of Gesem.” 5 Then Pharao said to Joseph, “Let them settle in the land of Gesem, and if you know that there are capable men among them, appoint them as rulers of my livestock.” And Iakob and his sons came into Egypt to Joseph, and Pharao king of Egypt hearkened. 6 And Pharao spoke to Joseph, saying, “Your father and your brothers have come to you. 7 See, the land of Egypt is before you; settle your father and your brothers in the best land.”

Then Joseph brought in his father Iakob and set him before Pharao, and Iakob blessed Pharao. 8 And Pharao said to Iakob, “How many are the years of the days of your life?” 9 And Iakob said to Pharao, “The days of the years of my life during which I am sojourning are one hundred thirty years. Few and grievous have been the years of the years of my life; they did not attain to the days of the years of the life of my fathers, during which days they sojourned.” 10 And when Iakob had blessed Pharao, he departed from him. 11 And Joseph settled his father and brothers and granted them a holding in the land of Egypt, in the best land, in the land of Ramesses, as Pharao had ordered. 12 And Joseph would measure out grain to his father and brothers and all his father’s household, grain per person.

13 Now there was no grain in all the land, for the famine prevailed greatly, and the land of Egypt and the land of Chanaan failed because of the famine. 14 Then Joseph gathered all the money that was found in the land of Egypt and in the land of Chanaan for the grain that they would buy, and he would measure out grain to them, and Joseph brought all the money into Pharao’s house. 15 And the money from the land of Egypt and from the land of Chanaan failed. Then all the Egyptians came to Joseph, saying, “Give us bread loaves, and why are we dying in your presence? For our money has failed.” 16 And Joseph said to them, “Bring your livestock, and I will give you bread loaves in exchange for your livestock, if the money has failed.” 17 Then they brought their livestock to Joseph, and Joseph gave them bread loaves in exchange for the horses and in exchange for the sheep and in exchange for the cattle and in exchange for the donkeys, and in that year he nourished them with bread loaves in exchange for all their livestock. 18 And that year came to an end, and they came to him in the second year and said to him, “Let us not be wiped out by our lord, for if the money has failed and the possessions and the livestock are with you, our lord, then there is nothing left to us in the presence of our lord except our own body and our land. So lest we die in your presence and the land be desolated, acquire us and our land in exchange for bread loaves, and we with our land will be Pharaoh’s slaves; grant seed in order that we may sow and live and not die, and the land will not be desolated.”

20 And Joseph acquired all the land of the Egyptians for Pharaoh. For the Egyptians sold their land to Pharaoh, because the famine gained mastery over them. And the land became Pharaoh’s—21 and the people he subjugated to him as slaves from the furthest boundaries of Egypt to the furthest—22 except for the land of the priests alone. Joseph did not acquire it, for by a grant Pharaoh gave a gift to the priests, and they would eat the grant that Pharaoh gave them; therefore they did not sell their land. 23 So then Joseph said to all the Egyptians, “See, I have acquired you and your land today for Pharaoh. Take seed for yourselves, and sow the land, and there will be produce from it; you shall give to Pharaoh the fifth part to Pharaoh, but the four parts shall be your very own as seed for the land and as food for yourselves.”

24 And Joseph imposed it for them as an ordinance upon the land of Egypt, to this day, to give one-fifth to Pharaoh, except for the land of the priests alone; it was not Pharaoh’s.

25 Now the days for Israel to die drew near, and he called his two sons, whom God had given him in the land of Egypt, to him; 26 and he blessed them on that day, saying, “The God whom my fathers Abraam and Isaak were well pleasing before, the God who sustains me from my youth to this day, the angel who rescues me from all evils, bless these youngsters, and in them my name will be invoked, and the name of my fathers Abraam and Isaak, and may they be multiplied into a great multitude upon the earth.”

31 And he blessed them on that day, saying, “In you Israel will be blessed when they say, ‘God make you like Ephraim and like Manasse.’ ” And he put Ephraim ahead of Manasse.

48 Now it came about after these matters that when Israel had come into Egypt, he said to Joseph, “Your father is ill.” And taking along his two sons, Manasse and Ephraim, he went to Jakob. 2 And it was reported to Jakob—they were saying—”See, your son Joseph is coming to you.” And summoning his strength, Israel sat upon the bed. 3 And Jakob said to Joseph, “My God appeared to me in Louza in the land of Chanaan, and he blessed me, and he said to me, ‘See, I will make you increase and will multiply you and will make you into gatherers of nations and will give to you this land, and to your offspring after you, for a perpetual holding.’ ” Now therefore your two sons, who were born to you in Egypt before I came into Egypt to you, are mine, Ephraim and Manasse; like Rouben and Symeon they shall be mine. 5 But the descendants that you may produce hereafter shall be yours; they shall be called after the name of their brothers in their allotments.

7 Now as for me, when I was coming from Mesopotamia of Syria, your mother Rachel died in the land of Chanaan, while I was drawing near, by the hippodrome of aChabratha, of the land a, to go to Ephratha, and I buried her on the way to the hippodrome,” this is Bethleem.

8 And Israel, when he saw Joseph’s sons, said, “Who are these to you?” And Joseph said to his father, “They are my sons, whom God has given me here.” And Jakob said, “Bring them to me in order that I may bless them.” 9 Now his eyes were heavy-sighted because of old age, and they could not see. And he brought them near to him, and he kissed them and embraced them. 10 And Israel said to Joseph, “See, I was not deprived of your face, and see, God has shown me your offspring also.”

16 Now when Joseph saw that his father laid his right hand on the head of Ephraim, it seemed grievous to him, and Joseph took hold of his father’s hand to remove it from Ephraim’s head to Manasse’s head. 17 And Joseph said to his father, “Not so, father; for this one is the firstborn. Put your right hand on his head.” 18 And he would not, but said, “I know, child, I know; this one also shall become a people, and this one shall be exalted, but his younger brother shall be greater than he, and his offspring shall become a multitude of nations.”

19 And he blessed them on that day, saying, “In you Israel will be blessed when they say, ‘God make you like Ephraim and like Manasse.’ ” And he put Ephraim ahead of Manasse.

21 Then Israel said to Joseph, “Look, I am about to die, and God will be with you, and God will bring you back from this land to the land of your fathers. 22 Now I am giving you Sikima, as something special beyond your brothers, which I took from the hand of the Amorrites with my dagger and bow.”

Then Jakob summoned his sons and said: "Gather together in order that I may tell you what will happen to you at the last of the days.

2 Assemble, and hear, O sons of Jakob; hear Israel your father.

3 Ruben, you are my firstborn, my might and beginning of my children, hard to bear and hard, self-centered. You became wanton like water; do not boil over. For you went up upon your father’s bed; then you defiled the couch where you went up!

5 Shimon and Levi are brothers; they perpetrated injustice by their choice.

6 May my soul not come into their council, and may my inward parts not press in on their company, because in their anger they killed men and in their passion they hamstrung a bull.

7 Cursed be their anger, because it is self-centered, and their wrath, because it has grown hard! I will divide them in Jakob and scatter them in Israel.

8 Judah, may your brothers praise you; your hands b on the back of your enemies; your father’s sons shall do obeisance to you.

9 A lion’s whelp you are, Judah; from a shoot, my son, you went up. When you reclined, you slept like a lion and like a whelp. Who will rouse him?

10 A ruler shall not be wanting from Judah and a leader from his thighs until the things stored up for him come, and he is the expectation of nations.

11 Binding his foal to a vine and his donkey’s foal to the tendril, he shall wash his robe in wine and his garment in the blood of a bunch of grapes; his eyes are gladdening from wine, and his teeth are more white than milk.

12 Zabulon by the sea shall settle, and he shall be near a haven of ships, and he shall extend as far as Sidon.

14 Issachar desired the good, resting between the allotments; and when he saw the resting place—that it was good, and the land—that it was rich, he subjected his shoulder to toil and became a tiller of the ground.

16 Dan shall judge his own people, as also one tribe in Israel.

17 And let Dan become a snake on the road lying in ambush on the path, biting a horse’s heel, and the rider shall fall backwards, awaiting the deliverance of the Lord.

19 Gad, a raider gang shall raid him, but he shall raid close on their heels.

20 Aser, his bread is rich, and he shall give delight to rulers.

21 Nephthali is a stem let loose, bestowing beauty by the produce.

22 Joseph is a grown son, an enviable grown son, my youngest son; return to me; one at whom, while deliberating, they would rail, and masters of arrows would have it in for him.

24 And their bows were crushed with force, and the sinews of the arms of their hands gave way because of the hand of a mighty one of Jakob; thenceforth he was the one who strengthened Israel.

25 on the part of your father’s god, and my God helped you, and he blessed you with a blessing of heaven above and a blessing of earth containing everything, for the sake of a blessing of breasts and of womb,

26 a blessing of your father and of your mother; it has prevailed, in blessings, over stable mountains, and, in blessings, over everlasting dunes; they shall be upon the head of Joseph and on the crown of the brothers whom he led.

27 Benjamin is a rapacious wolf; in the early morning he shall still be devouring, and at evening he shall distribute food."

28 All these are the twelve sons of Jakob, and these things their father spoke to them, and he blessed them; each one according to his blessing he blessed them.

29 And he said to them, "I am about to be added to my people. Bury me with my fathers in the cave which is in the field of Ephron the Chettite, 30in the double cave that is opposite Mambre in the land of Chanaan, which cave Abraam acquired from Ephron the Chettite in acquisition of a tomb. 31There they buried Abraam and his wife Sarra, and there they buried Isaak and his wife Rebekka, and there they buried Leia, 32in the acquisition of the field and the cave that is in it from the sons of Chet." 33And Iakob ceased issuing orders to his sons, and lifting his feet onto the bed he breathed his last and was added to his people.

And Ioseph, falling on his father's face, wept over him and kissed him. 2And Ioseph ordered his servants, the undertakers, to prepare his father for burial, and the undertakers prepared Israel for burial. 3And they completed his forty days, for so the days of burial are reckoned. And Egypt mourned for him seventy days. 4Then after the days of mourning had passed, Ioseph spoke to the chief men of Pharao, saying, "If I have found favor before you, speak into the ears of Pharao, saying: 5My father made me swear an oath, saying, 'In the tomb that I dug out for myself in the land of Chanaan, there you shall bury me.' Now then I will go up and bury my father, and I will return." 6And Pharao said, "Go up; bury your father, as he made you swear."

15Now when Joseph's brothers saw that their father had died, they said, "Perhaps Joseph may bear a grudge against us and requite us a requital for all the evils that we showed him." 16And approaching Joseph they said, "Your father administered an oath before he expired, saying, 17'Say thus to Joseph: Forgive them their injustice and fault, seeing that they showed you painful things. And now accept the injustice of the attendants of the God of your father." And Joseph wept as they were speaking to him. 18And coming to him they said, "We here are your domestics." 19And Joseph said to them, "Do not be afraid, for I am God's. 20You deliberated against me for painful things, but God deliberated concerning me for good things in order that a numerous people might be sustained, so that it might come to be as today." 21And he said to them, "Have no fear; it is I who will sustain you and your households." And he reassured them and spoke to their heart.

24And Ioseph spoke to his brothers, saying, "I am about to die, but with a visitation God will visit you and bring you up out of this land to the land that God swore to our fathers Abraam and Isaak and Iakob." 25And Ioseph made the sons of Israel swear, saying, "In the time of the visitation with which God will visit you, you shall also carry up my bones from here together with you." 26And Ioseph expired at one hundred ten years of age, and they honored him with funeral rites and placed him in the coffin in Egypt.

This English translation has not altered Wevers' edited Greek text of Exodus, except infrequently in relation to punctuation. Whereas one might argue for modifications in selected texts, it seemed prudent to adhere to the Göttingen edition and to postpone discussion of possible changes to Wevers' edition and treat them in the commentary on the NETS translation of Exodus under preparation.

In the account of the tabernacle (Hebrew [MT] 28.23–28; 36.8–34; 37.10b–15, 17–27), in those contexts where the Greek translation omits material in the Hebrew as we know it, Wevers inserted the Greek text as Origen constructed it. However, because these insertions are not part of the original translation, an English translation of Origen’s text appears indented and in smaller typeface in the appropriate places.

General Character

The material found in Exodus consists of narrative, poetry, legal formulation and instructions for building and operating the tabernacle. The Greek translator generally adhered closely to a form of the Hebrew text similar to the MT. From time to time, however, the Greek is longer, shorter or ordered differently. Reasons for such variation are not always clear, and each context requires careful evaluation. For the most part, however, the translator sought to provide a word-for-word rendering. The terms “interlinearity” or “isomorphism” appropriately describe how the translator seems to have proceeded.

While the Greek is often stilted, it normally conveys the sense of the Hebrew text well, and the translator uses various approaches to bring liveliness to the text. For example, in some contexts where the same Hebrew term is used repeatedly, the translator selected different Greek terms as glosses for the same Hebrew. An interesting example is found in the genealogies of chapter 6.

In this case the translator, presumably because he has already used a preferred term to represent one Hebrew lexeme, then selected a second Greek term to represent ἡσυγήνεσις. So within the space of ten verses

2 32.9 in the MT text is not represented in the Greek translation. NRSV renders the MT as The Lord said to Moses, “I have seen this people, how stiff-necked they are.”

we find three different terms rendering הַכְּפֻלִּים. Another example would be in 2.7 where the MT reads הַכְּפֻלִּים ("nurse") and הַכְּפֻלִּים ("to nurse"), using the same Hebrew root. The translator chose the participle הַכְּפֻלִּים ("a nursing woman") and הַכְּפֻלִּים ("she shall suckle"), two distinct terms, to gloss the same Hebrew root. This kind of lexical variation in the Greek translation occurs quite regularly, even as the translator is careful to preserve general, interlinear correspondence in his translation.

In the Hebrew narrative of Exodus the waw-conjunctive occurs frequently. The translator of Exodus normally used καί as the Greek equivalent. However, where a change in subject occurs or some other emphasis may be warranted, he selected δέ. Aejmelaeus observes that in the case of the translation of Exodus "[c]oordination of clauses by καί has been rendered by the use of various literal and free renderings, but total omission of καί—disregarding the apodotic cases—is found in less than 3% of the cases, of which 3% some cases may even depend upon a difference in the Vorlage."5 So the places where the translator failed to render the conjunction are rather infrequent. The translator was equally careful to render pronouns in his Hebrew text.

In the case of word order the translator tended to follow his Hebrew text, but not always slavishly. For example, in Hebrew the pronominal formations normally are attached to nouns as suffixes. We should expect the translator to place the pronoun in Greek following the noun, imitating the Hebrew order, if adherence to Hebrew word order was a significant issue. Non-translation Greek tends to place them in front. In Greek Exodus we discover that about 30 (out of approximately 350) cases are pre-posed, a proportion that is unusually high among the various Septuagint translators.

The aorist form of the verb is the most common rendering chosen by the translator for the Hebrew verb, reflecting the large number of suffixed forms or waw (ו) + prefixed forms (in narrative). However, he does not hesitate to employ other Greek tense forms should that convey more adequately his understanding of the sense of his Hebrew text. An interesting example of this is found in 1.12–14. In the comparative clause structure of v. 12 the translator rendered the imperfect aspect of the Hebrew verbs well by the Greek imperfect form ("But as much as they were humbling them, by so much the more they kept becoming more numerous and stronger"). Each of the verbs that follow (vv. 12b–14) continues to use Greek imperfect forms. This tense form fit the context well, because at this point in the story the narrative reports the worsening condition of the Israelite people as they were oppressed. We also observe in this same context the translator’s use of lexical variation for the same Hebrew term:

v. 13 קָטָדְוַלְוֵהוּ (imperfect tense)
v. 14 קָטָדְוַלְוֵהוּ (imperfect tense)

And further his repeated use of similar formations (in this case κατα- compounds), presumably for literary effect, may be noted:

v. 13–14 קָטָדְוַלְוֵהוּ . . . קָטָדְוַלְוֵהוּ • . . . קָטָדְוַלְוֵהוּ .

After his extensive study of the Septuagint of Exodus, Wevers comments that “the dominant characteristic of Exod as a translation document is its expansionist character. On the whole Exod expands far more than contracts.”6 This tendency appears in many different forms. For example, the translator is careful to define Aaron as Moyses’ brother even when this is not present in the source text (cf. 7.7, 9, 19; 8.5). At 25.6(17) the translator defined the γῆς (τοῦ ἱδρυμα), the gold plate placed at the top of the ark, as a “cover” (ἐπίθεμα), a term that has no equivalent in the Hebrew text.

Other examples could be added, but the tendency is clear. There is no indication that such clarifications are based on a different Hebrew text. Rather, these additions probably represent the translator’s efforts to ensure that his understanding of the source text would be communicated clearly and explicitly in Greek to the reader.

Of Stereotypes, Calques and Isolates

As the translator proceeded in his work, choosing appropriate terms in the target language to render adequately and contextually the sense of the source text taxed his ability. In Exodus the translator was sensitive to the Hebrew context and so did not hesitate to choose different Greek terms so that the Hebrew sense, as he understood it, would be conveyed adequately. Once he connected a Greek term semantically with a Hebrew term, he tended to continue with this equivalency, unless the context led him to gloss the source text in a different way. For example, the usual rendering of רבד in Exodus is λαλεῖν, whereas λέγειν normally renders ריה. However, in one case (31.12, where there is no textual variant in the Septuagint tradition) λαλεῖν renders ריה, and out of the three hundred occurrences of λέγειν, it translates רבד about seventeen times. λαλεῖν would seem to constitute the default rendering of רבד. It is not clear why variation from the default occurs, but it indicates that the translator exercised some freedom. As we have noted previously, we discover lexical variation in contexts where we would expect the usual Greek equivalent because the same Hebrew term is repeated.

Sometimes a Hebrew term will have several distinctive meanings, but the translator will use one Greek term whose semantic content only covers one of the meanings expressed by the Hebrew term. In such cases if the translator sticks with the usual equivalent, then it may create some tension in the context. An examination of the use of ἁμαρτία as the usual equivalent for בְּרֵית (eleven times) and מְנֵי (three times) provides an interesting example. בְּרֵית indicates both sin and the ritual associated with removing sin (i.e., sin offering). NRSV, for instance, renders it as “sin offering” at 29.14, 36; 30.10, but in all other contexts it uses “sin” (10.17; 32.21, 30, 31, 32, 34; 34.7, 9). The standard sense of ἁμαρτία is “failure, fault or sin.” It does not carry the sense of “sin offering.” When the translator uses ἁμαρτία as the stereotypical gloss for בְּרֵית, the Greek term no longer makes sense in those contexts where בְּרֵית signifies “sin offering.” In 29.36 where Moyses is instructed every day to “offer a bull as a sin offering for atonement” (NRSV), the Septuagint reads καὶ τὸ μοσχάριον τῆς ἁμαρτίας ποιήσεις τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τοῦ καθαρισμοῦ (“and the young calf for the sin you shall do on the day of the purification” [NETS]). In these contexts ἁμαρτία becomes an isolate, i.e., being the default rendering for בְּרֵית but not rendering the contextualized meaning of this Hebrew term in the context of the source language, leading to semantic tension in the Greek context (on isolates, see “TO THE READER OF NETS”).

If we move further along this lexical continuum, the calque represents the point on the semantic scale where the semantic range of the Hebrew term dominates that of the chosen Greek gloss. The use of διαρκής (27.21; 31.7; 39.15) as the standard equivalent for הָלִיך is a well-known example. Others commonly found in the Septuagint also occur in Exodus—ἰδῶν for עָנָן, κύριος for הַחֵלָק and δόξα for בְּרִית.

At times the translator has recourse to transliteration as his only viable strategy. Some of these become standard Greek terms. These would include σάββατα (Sabbata), πάσχα (passover), μάν (Man), χεροῦβ/χερουβίμ (cherouβ/cherouvim) and terms of measurement such as γόμορ and ἱν.

Selected Words and Phrases

1. The Bread of Presentation

The translator rendered variously the bread that God commands to be placed on the table outside the most holy part of the tent of witness, the bread of the presence. In the first three Exodus contexts where these ritual loaves are discussed, as God gives instructions to Moyses for the construction of the tent of witness and Moyses has it built, the MT has מְנֵי מִלְחֶם (25.30) or מְנֵי מִלְחֶם מִלְחֶם חַיָּה (35.13; 39.36). The Septuagint renderings are various:

- 25.29(30) ἀρτοὺς ἑνώπιον ἑναντίον μου (facing loaves in front of me, NETS)
- 35.13 (no equivalent in Septuagint)
- 39.18 (39.36) καὶ τοὺς ἀρτοὺς τοὺς προκειμένους (and the presentation loaves, NETS)

In Ex 40.23 (LXX 40.21) as the writer describes the placement of the table in the constructed tent of witness, the bread is placed on it but defined as בְּרֵית לְעִם (lit. “an arrangement of bread”). NRSV renders the sentence “and set the bread in order on it.” This clause is rendered by the translator:

καὶ προεθείμη ἐπ᾿ αὐτῆς ἀρτοὺς τῆς προβέβλεσσιν ἑναντὶ κυρίου

and he presented on it loaves of presentation before the Lord (NETS)

(he set the bread in order on it before the Lord) (NRSV)

The translator did not consider the Hebrew expression to be a technical, cultic phrase, or if he did, neither he felt no compulsion to render it consistently or he did not have readily to hand a Greek equivalent that had become normative for Greek-speaking Jews in Alexandria. The rendering that becomes somewhat standard (used in Supplements [Chronicles] for example), i.e., ἦτες προθεσμοὶ, only occurs in the Pentateuch at Exodus at 40.21(23) and possibly 39.18(36). We do not know for sure whether the original translator devised the phrase that comes to represent the "loaves of presentation" in Greek, since it is not clear if the same person translated Ex 1–34 and 35–40. What the translator does present consistently is that these loaves were placed "before the Lord."

2. Divine Name and General Term for Deity

The usual rendering of the tetragrammaton (תִּרְנָפָּן) in Exodus is קִבְרְיוֹס, as in the other sections of the Septuagint. Four times (3.4, 13.19, 18.1, 20.1), however, the translator uses קִבְרְיוֹס to render תִּרְנָפָּן. Why the translator glossed תִּרְנָפָּן with קִבְרְיוֹס is not altogether clear, but the variation does not seem to be textually based. קִבְרְיוֹס as a translation of the tetragrammaton renders the qere of the Hebrew text (i.e., what the vowel marks indicate, תִּרְנָפָּן), not the kethibh (i.e., what the consonants indicate). Several times (4.10, 13; 5.22; 15.17; 32.22) when the author addresses God as מֵהָי (“Lord” or “Master”), the translator renders it as קִבְרְיוֹס. In these cases קִבְרְיוֹס renders the Hebrew term appropriately. In ten contexts the translation has קִבְרְיוֹס with no equivalent in the MT. Sometimes the addition seems to be for clarification (8.28; 17.15; 24.1, 16; 32.31; 34.10; 35.3; 39.12), and in the other instance the translator has apparently chosen to represent the meaning of the Hebrew text in a different way (16.32).

In 4.24 the translator has opted for διαφανές κυρίου to render תִּרְנָפָּן. Perhaps the translator did not want to attribute directly to "the Lord" this attempt on Moyses’ life. Several times the double term תִּרְנָפָּן קִבְרְיוֹס was rendered by קִבְרְיוֹס alone (8.10; 9.30), and תִּרְנָפָּן alone was rendered by קִבְרְיוֹס ὁ θεός υψών / σου (12.31; 13.5, 11). Whether these anomalies were textually based or occurred for some other reason is uncertain.

In the Septuagint of Exodus קִבְרְיוֹס normally lacks a definite article (about 354 times in Wevers’ edition), which would indicate that the translator considered it primarily a proper name. There are fifteen occasions when the translator used the definite article with קִבְרְיוֹס to represent תִּרְנָפָּן. There does not appear to be any specific pattern.

噻σδ usually translates תִּרְנָפָּן (about 129 times in Exodus). However, in 41 contexts it rendered תַּרְנָפָּן (almost a quarter of the occurrences of噻σδ). The only occurrence of תַּרְנָפָּן (6.3, preposed by the preposition ת) is rendered as噻σδ ὁ θεός σουτου ("being their God," NETS). Several times (3.18 [2x]; 5.3b) the translator rendered the combined תִּרְנָפָּן תִּרְנָפָּן by噻σδ alone. Perhaps the translator thought that the use of קִבְרְיוֹס would not be appropriate because of the way God’s personal name was being revealed to Israel (3.18), or perhaps, because Moyses was making his first appeal to Pharao (5.3b), the more generic term seemed appropriate. There are also several contexts where the Hebrew text has תִּרְנָפָּן as the reference to God, and the translator normally used噻σδ as his gloss. In a number of contexts噻σδ apparently has no Hebrew equivalent, usually in conjunction with cases of קִבְרְיוֹס to render תִּרְנָפָּן.

The translator’s use of噻σδ, the general term for deity (including non-Israelite deities), was more diverse than his use of the equivalent for the proper name of Israel’s God. In NETS Exodus噻σδ is rendered as ‘G/god’ and קִבְרְיוֹס as ‘/lord.’ The capitalized forms refer to Israel’s deity.

In Ex 3.13–14, when God appears to Moyses through the burning bush, Moyses asks God to tell him his name. The translator rendered the difficult Hebrew as Εγώ εἰμι ὁ δύναμις ("I am The One Who Is," NETS). The translator repeated (14b) this expression (ὁ δύναμις = תִּרְנָפָּן) as the name for the God of Israel, who has sent Moyses. The similar form of תִּרְנָפָּן (proper name) and תִּרְנָפָּן (first person singular, prefix form of the Qal stem of תִּרְנָפָּן = "to be") and the corresponding etiology cannot be duplicated in Greek. The translator opted to translate the expression, not to transliterate it in this context.

3. Pharoa’s “Hardness of Heart”

In Exodus one of the most provocative issues is the way in which Israel’s God interacts with Pharoa. As God acts to extricate Israel from her bondage in Egypt, he influences Pharoa’s behavior. His motive is explained in 14.4: “I will harden Pharaoh’s heart . . . so that I will gain glory for myself over Pharaoh and all his army; and the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord” (NRSV). Three Hebrew verbs are used to express this concept and the translator is quite consistent, if not stereotyped, in his renderings, with the exception of 7.13.

In these choices the translator sought to reflect the different emphases in the Hebrew terms—heaviness or weightiness in the equivalence of baru/nw for dbk and hardness in the equivalence of sklhru/nw for h#q. However, the equivalence of sklhru/nw and katisxu/w for qzx (“make strong, strengthen”) is notable, but for different reasons. In the case of sklhru/nw, the semantic overlap in Exodus with qzx focuses on the idea of firmness = stubbornness. The Hebrew term generally means, “to be strong or firm” and in the Piel form “to make strong or firm.” When related to the noun bl (“heart”), it signifies positively devotion (a firm conviction), but negatively stubbornness. sklhru/nw represents the latter in Exodus as it defines Pharaoh’s response to God’s activities through the plagues or the catastrophe at the Red Sea. If the evidence in LSJ is correct and complete, this usage of the verb sklhru/nw to signify stubbornness may have emerged initially in the Septuagint of Exodus. 11

The singular use of katisxu/w at 7.13 as the rendering of qzx with the sense of “prevail” is also interesting (“and the heart of Pharaoh prevailed, and he did not listen to them” [NETS]). Wevers suggests that “presumably Exod here used katisxu to set the scene of the struggle between the divine signs and the stubborn heart of Pharaoh.” 12 In other words the translator purposely changed the stereotypical rendering of qzx by sklhru/nw to katisxu/w, probably to emphasize this aspect of contest. In this context God performs the first sign through Moses and Aaron to convince Pharaoh to release Israel (the rod becoming a dragon) (7.8–13), and it follows the explanation that God provides to Moses concerning the series of events that is about to unfold and result in Israel’s release. Only in this context (7.1–13) do we find all three terms (baru/nw, sklhru/nw, katisxu/w) used to define God’s influence on Pharaoh and Pharaoh’s response to Moses’ demands as God’s representative.

4. “Seeing God”

Exodus is unusual in the narratives of the Old Testament with respect to the number of times when people, either individually or as a group, ask to “see God” or are permitted by God’s initiative to see him. In addition to the times that Moses is invited up onto Mount Sinai in order to meet with God (Moses’ face is shining after he meets with God), the pillar of cloud and fire or the cloud that descended over the newly erected tabernacle signify the presence of God with Israel, all of which reflect this emphasis upon seeing, meeting, or in some other way directly interacting with God.

Where the Hebrew text states that people “see God,” the translator employs various means to express a theologically sensitive rendering, presumably preserving the theological principle that no person can see God and live. At 3.6 the comparative texts and translations read:

9 Significant manuscripts in the tradition read beba/rhtai, and Rahlfis opted for this as the original text. Wevers disagrees, arguing that the variation occurs because of homonymy, which only occurs between these verbs in the perfect form. Because bawrh does not occur elsewhere in Exodus (nor in the Septuagint other than as a variant at 2 Makk 13.9) and barwn is the usual rendering for dbk in Exodus, when it has this sense, Wevers opts for beba/rntai as the original reading.

10 In 10.1 there are significant Greek texts that have the alternative reading e)sklh/runa. Rahlfis chose this reading, presumably because it had the support of B. However, I think Wevers’ judgment is correct that the translator’s consistent use of baru/nw in reference to Pharaoh’s stubbornness would urge us to accept ibarwn as the original text.

11 The adjective sklhroj does signify stubbornness as early as Plato’s writings, and so the extension of the cognate verb to signify this would not be exceptional, if this is in fact what the translation of Exodus initiated. See LSJ, 1612.

TO THE READER OF EXODUS

MT: יִרְאוּ אֶל צְבָא אֵלֶּה, אֶל אֱלֹהִים (11) ...
NRSV: and they saw the place, there where the God of Israel stood ...
LXX: καὶ εἶδον τὸν τόπον, οὗ εἰστίκει οἱ θεοὶ τοῦ Ἰσραήλ ...
NETS: And they saw the place, there where the God of Israel stood ...

The Septuagint translator would only admit that Israel's leaders saw “the place . . . where the God of Israel stood,” but not that human beings saw God. He described this place in the following manner: “that which was beneath his feet, like something made from lapis lazuli brick and like the appearance of the firmament of heaven in purity.” This note in the narrative may have influenced his choice to emphasize the “place” of God. The Hebrew text (v. 11) notes the expectation that seeing God should result in calamity, but God graciously restrains himself. “Not even one . . . perished,” the Septuagint notes.

The other primary context comes in Ex 33–34 as Moyses intercedes with God, seeking Israel’s preservation from God’s threatened judgment after the golden calf episode. When God promises to relent and to continue with his program to bring Israel to the land of Chanaan, Moyses asks for some visible sign that God will stand by his word. Moyses boldly asks to see God. “Show me your glory!” he demands (33.18). The risk in his demand becomes explicit as the narrator records God’s warning that “you cannot see my face; for no one shall see me and live” (33.20). Yet God makes an accommodation for Moyses’ sake. While many things in this narrative context deserve comment, I will focus on 33.23.

MT: וְיִתְחַדַּשׁ יָנֵהַלְךָ, וְאָשֶׁר נִהְיָתָ֔ה אֱלֹהִים (10)
NRSV: then I will take away my hand, and you shall see my back; but my face shall not be seen.
LXX: καὶ ἀφεῖλὼ τὴν χεῖρα, καὶ τοῦτο ὁμοὶ ὁ πίσιόν μου, τὸ δὲ πρόσωπόν μου οὐκ ὀφθήσεται σοι.
NETS: And I will take my hand away, and then you shall see my hind parts, but my face will not appear to you.

The translator removes any suggestion that Moyses might see any significant part of God, only his “hind parts.”

The translator's handling of these contexts would suggest that his theological framework governed his rendering, as he sought to follow the principle (33.20) that “no one shall see me [God] and live,” at the same time dealing with segments in the narrative of Exodus that affirmed that some in Israel did see God and continued to live.

Perhaps connected with this phenomenon is the way in which the translator renders the Hebrew root בּוּד, which means “to appoint, meet.” When it occurs in the description of the ark and the use of the propitiatory or the tabernacle itself, God affirms to Israel that “there I will meet with you” (25.21; 29.42, 43; 30.6, 36). However, in each of these settings the translator “quite intentionally” understood this root as the verb בּוּד, which means “to know.”

14 Wevers, Notes, 401.
It is improbable that in all four instances the translator misread his source text or that he read a source at variance with MT. More likely, they bespeak theological sensitivity about divine involvement in human agency. The translator emphasized that God revealed himself, and this is how a “meeting” was to be understood between God and human beings. The use of \textit{ta/comai} in 29.43 reinforces this idea that God’s meeting was the occasion when his commands were communicated.

5. The Ten Commandments
The translator's rendering of the traditionally named “ten commandments” (Ex 20.1–17) was very close to the Hebrew text as we have it today. However, characteristically the Greek text is expansionist:

20.10 \textit{ο\ βούς σου καί το\ υποξύγιον σου} (“your ox and your draft animal”)
20.12 \textit{ινα ε\ oun ēγνήται} (“so that it may be well with you”) 20.12 (\textit{επί τις γης} τις ἄγαθης (“[on] the good [land]”).

Further, there are several texts in which the order of materials is different:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Text</th>
<th>MT</th>
<th>NRSV</th>
<th>LXX</th>
<th>NETS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>20.13</td>
<td>לִבְנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל</td>
<td>You shall not murder.</td>
<td>Ο\  μοιχεύσεις</td>
<td>You shall not commit adultery.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>20.14</td>
<td>לִבְנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל</td>
<td>You shall not commit adultery.</td>
<td>Ο\  κλέφεις</td>
<td>You shall not steal.</td>

<tr>
<td>20.15</td>
<td>לִבְנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל</td>
<td>You shall not steal.</td>
<td>Ο\  φονέυσεις</td>
<td>You shall not murder.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Whether the different order is due to textual or other reasons is not possible to determine at this point. One other word order change worth noting occurs in 20.17. The Septuagint places the neighbor’s wife first before the neighbor’s house, in contrast to the Hebrew text that places the house first, followed by the wife. Why such a reordering occurs remains a matter of speculation.

The terminology referring to the various commands that God gives to Israel tends to be stereotyped in translation. The exceptions are the term פָּרָת, which is rendered by four different terms, and פְּרָעָה, which was translated primarily by εντολή, but once by πρόσταγμα. What nuance πρόσταγμα carried that made it the right choice for the translator in 20.6 is uncertain.

The use of the adjective νόμιμος in the singular as a substantive τὸ νόμιμον, although infrequently documented in the third century BCE, became the stereotyped rendering for (תהלת תוק with the singular form of the Hebrew terms.

6. The Peoples of Chanaan
When God talks about fulfilling his promise to Abraam, Isaak and Iakob in Exodus, the land to which he will lead them is defined as belonging to specific people. In the Greek Pentateuch seven different groups are specified consistently:

τῆς τῶν τῶν Χαναναίων καὶ Χέτταιων καὶ Ἀμορραίων καὶ Φερεζίων καὶ Ἑβουσίων καὶ Γέργεσίων (into the place of the Chananites and Chettites and Amorrites and Pherezites and Heuites and Gergesites and lebousites.

[NETS 3.8, 17; 23.23; 34.11; in different order at 13.5; partial list at 23.28; 33.2]]

Consistently (apart from 23.28) Γεργεσίων has been added at some point (position 4, 5 or 6) in the list, although it does not occur in the translator’s Hebrew text.

7. Specific Texts
In Ex 25–31 Moyses receives instructions for building the tabernacle. After the event of the Golden Calf (32–34), Moyses proceeds with the construction of the "tent of witness" (35–40). Undoubtedly the account describing the construction of the tabernacle (παραλόγον, σκηνῆ τοῦ μαρτυρίου, “tent of witness,” or παραλόγον/παραλόγη “tent,” presents the greatest problem in Exodus to understanding the translation process.

The Greek text, when compared to the MT, is much shorter and puts various materials in a different order. Further, some indicators suggest that either the translator responsible for at least part of chapters 35–40 was different from the translator of chapters 1–34 or a later editor has substantially altered the initial translation for some reason.

Generally speaking the Greek translation describes the production of the priestly vestments (36.8–40) and then the construction of the tabernacle and its equipment (37.1–39.11), whereas the Hebrew text begins with the construction of the tabernacle and its equipment (36.8–38.31) and then describes the priestly vestments (39). But the alterations in the translation are sometimes surprising. The Greek text does not describe the making of the incense altar, for example. It abbreviates significantly passages related to the lampstand and the table of the presence. Detailed charts comparing the Hebrew and Greek texts can be found in various treatments of this problem.17 Midrashic explanation that is not found in the Hebrew text occurs at one point. The bronze for the bronze altar is said to be taken “from the bronze firepans that belonged to the men who revolted with the gathering of Kore” (38.22).18

18 The material seems to be taken from the account in Num 16.37–39 (MT: 17.2–4).
Various hypotheses have been proposed to explain why these major differences emerged in the tradition:

1. The translator had a Hebrew text different from that which we have today, and this accounts for the variation in the Greek text. However, no Hebrew text yet discovered seems to match the Greek translation.

2. For some reason the translator of chapters 1–34 did not complete the translation and another person finished the task, who used a different translation process, while consulting the earlier material. Detailed studies of translation technique expressed in these respective sections, however, indicate only minor variations in translation techniques between these sections of Exodus, apart from chapter 38.

3. One person did the original translation of Exodus following the order of the Hebrew text as we know it, but because he misunderstood the text, or for some other reasons, he created inconsistencies in his translation. A later reviser has edited this original work, adding some materials particularly in chapter 38 and being responsible for a major rearrangement of the Greek text.

4. The original translator is responsible for the current Greek text and used specific principles as the basis for his unique account, which is a “well-planned, well-constructed account which when read by itself and without prejudice usually makes good sense.”

At this point we might suggest that the most recent comprehensive studies (1) see no need to postulate a different Hebrew text throughout chapters 35–40, (2) discern a large degree of consistency in the fundamental translation technique used throughout Greek Exodus, but (3) detect enough difference between 1–34 and 35–40 to indicate another hand may be at work in some way in the final chapters of the translation, and (4) proceed from the assumption that the original translation of 35–40 was created to make sense to the translator and his presumed audience. We have little data to inform us about the sociological aspects of translation in antiquity and in particular biblical translation. Whether it was acceptable to abbreviate portions of sacred text and make major rearrangements in the structure of the narrative remains debated. However, the fact remains, whether we postulate one translator for Ex 1–40 or several translators or editors, we have a Greek translation for this section that is quite different, being much shorter and ordered differently, from the Hebrew text that we possess today.

EDITORIAL DETAIL
NETS Exodus normally has followed the punctuation proposed in Wevers’ edited text. In terms of versification, where the Septuagint differs from that of the NRSV, the NRSV versification is noted in parenthesis (cf. 18.18; 21.16, 17).

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE
In addition to the standard grammars and lexica, I have received considerable assistance from the works by John William Wevers, particularly his Notes on the Greek Text of Exodus (1990) and his Text History of the Greek Exodus (1992). The translation and commentary by Alain le Boulluec and Pierre Sandevoir in L’Exode BA (1989) has been helpful in many instances. The earlier translation by Brenton has also provided assistance from time to time.

Wevers’ discussion of the Tabernacle section, as well as those by David Gooding in The Account of the Tabernacle: Translation and Textual Problem of the Greek Exodus (1959) and Martha Wade in Consistency of Translation Techniques in the Tabernacle Accounts of Exodus in the Old Greek (2003), have provided significant methodological and textual suggestions.

I must also acknowledge the assistance of Albert Pietersma, who provided editorial guidance and helped to resolve many translation issues.

1 These are the names of the sons of Israel who had entered into Egypt with Jakob their father. Each with their whole household went in: 2 Ruben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, 3Issachar, Zabulon and Benjamin, 4Dan and Naphtali, Gad and Aser. 5But Joseph was in Egypt. Now all souls from Jakob were seventy-five. 6Then Joseph died, and all his brothers and all that generation. 7But the sons of Israel increased and multiplied and became common and were growing very, very strong. Now the land kept multiplying them.

8 Now another king arose over Egypt, who did not know Joseph. 9Now he said to his nation, “Look, the race of the sons of Israel is a great multitude and is becoming stronger than we. 10Come then, let us deal shrewdly with them, lest it be multiplied, and, whenever war happens to us, these also shall be added to the opponents, and after going to war against us, they shall depart from the land.” 11And he set over them overseers of tasks in order to afflict them in the tasks. And they built fortified cities for Pharaoh, both Pithom and Ramses and On, which is Heliopolis. 12But as much as they were humbling them, by so much they multiplied, and the Egyptians were disgusted with the midwives: 13And the Egyptians were oppressing the sons of Israel forcefully and were grievously afflicting their life by the hard tasks in clay and brick making and all the tasks in the plains, according to all the tasks in which they were enslaving them with force.

14 And the king of the Egyptians spoke to the Hebrews’ midwives, to one of them whose name was Sepphora, and the name of the second was Phoua. 15And he said, “Whenever you act as midwives to the Hebrew women and they should be at the birthing stage, if then it be male, kill it, but if female, preserve it alive.” 16But the midwives feared God, and they did not as the king of Egypt instructed them and tried to keep the males alive. 17Then the king of Egypt summoned the midwives and said to them, “Why is it that you were quick to arrive today?” 18And they said to Pharaoh’s daughter, “Do you wish that I summon for you a nursing woman from the Hebrews, and she shall suckle the child for you?” 19Then she, Pharaoh’s daughter, said to her, “Go!” But the girl went and summoned the child’s mother. 20And Pharaoh’s daughter said to her, “Take care of this child for me, and suckle it for me, and I will give you your pay.” Then the woman took the child and kept suckling it. 21Now when the child grew up, she brought it to Pharaoh’s daughter, and it became to her for a son. And she named his name Moyses, saying, “I drew him out of the water.”

22Then Pharaoh’s daughter came down to the marsh beside the river to bathe, and her attendants were walking beside the river. And when she saw the basket in the marsh, she sent her attendant, and she picked it up. 23Now when she opened it, she saw a child crying in the basket, and Pharaoh’s daughter spared it and said, “This is one of the Hebrews’ children.” 24And her sister said to Pharaoh’s daughter, “Do you wish that I summon for you a nursing woman from the Hebrews, and she shall suckle the child for you?” 25Then she, Pharaoh’s daughter, said to her, “Go!” But the girl went and summoned the child’s mother. 26And Pharaoh’s daughter said to her, “Take care of this child for me, and suckle it for me, and I will give you your pay.” Then the woman took the child and kept suckling it. 27Now it came to pass in the course of those many days, when he had fully grown, Moyses went out to his brothers, the sons of Israel. 28And as he observed their toil, he saw an Egyptian man beating some Hebrew from his own brothers, the sons of Israel. 29Now when he looked around this way and that, he saw no one, and he struck the Egyptian and hid him in the sand. 30Then he went out on the next day, he saw two Hebrew men fighting, and he said to the one who was in the wrong, “Why do you beat your fellow?” 31But he said, “Who appointed you ruler and judge over us? You do not intend to kill me, do you, in the same way you killed the Egyptian yesterday?” Then Moyses was afraid and said, “Has this matter perhaps become so well known?”

2 Now there was a certain man from the tribe of Levi who took one of the daughters of Levi and married her. 2And she conceived and bore a male child. Now when they saw it was handsome, they sheltered it for three months. 3But when they could hide it no longer, its mother took a basket and plastered it with a mixture of pitch and tar, and she put the child in it and placed it in the marsh beside the river. 4And his sister was watching from a distance to learn what would happen to him.

5 Now Pharaoh’s daughter came down to the river to bathe, and her attendants were walking beside the river. And when she saw the basket in the marsh, she sent her attendant, and she picked it up. 6Now when she opened it, she saw a child crying in the basket, and Pharaoh’s daughter spared it and said, “This is one of the Hebrews’ children.” 7And her sister said to Pharaoh’s daughter, “Do you wish that I summon for you a nursing woman from the Hebrews, and she shall suckle the child for you?” 8Then she, Pharaoh’s daughter, said to her, “Go!” But the girl went and summoned the child’s mother. 9And Pharaoh’s daughter said to her, “Take care of this child for me, and suckle it for me, and I will give you your pay.” Then the woman took the child and kept suckling it. 10Now when the child grew up, she brought it to Pharaoh’s daughter, and it became to her for a son. And she named his name Moyses, saying, “I drew him out of the water.”

11 Now it came to pass in the course of those many days, when he had fully grown, Moyses went out to his brothers, the sons of Israel. And as he observed their toil, he saw an Egyptian man beating some Hebrew from his own brothers, the sons of Israel. 12Now when he looked around this way and that, he saw no one, and he struck the Egyptian and hid him in the sand. 13Then he went out on the next day, he saw two Hebrew men fighting, and he said to the one who was in the wrong, “Why do you beat your fellow?” 14But he said, “Who appointed you ruler and judge over us? You do not intend to kill me, do you, in the same way you killed the Egyptian yesterday?” Then Moyses was afraid and said, “Has this matter perhaps become so well known?” 15Now Pharaoh heard about this matter, and he was seeking to kill Moyses.

Then Moyses withdrew from Pharaoh’s presence and settled in the land of Madian. Now when he came into the land of Madian, he sat upon the well. 16Now the priest of Madian had seven daughters who were tending their father’s sheep. So when they arrived, they were drawing water until they filled the receptacles in order to water their father’s sheep. 17But when the shepherds arrived, they were driving them away. But Moyses got up and rescued them and drew water for them and watered their sheep. 18Now they arrived back to Ragouel, their father, and he said to them, “Why is it that you were quick to arrive today?” 19And they said, “An Egyptian man rescued us from the shepherds and drew water for us and watered the sheep.” 20And he said to his daughters, “And where is he? And for what reason have you left this man behind like this? Invite him then in order that he might eat bread.” 21Now Moyses stayed with the man, and he gave Sephora, his daughter, to Moy-

23 Now after those many days the king of Egypt died, and the sons of Israel groaned from the tasks and cried out, and their cry rose up to God from the tasks. 24 And God listened to their groaning, and God remembered His covenant with Abraam and Isaak and Iakob. 25 And God looked upon the sons of Israel, and He became known to them.

3 And Moyses was tending the sheep of Iothor, his father-in-law, the priest of Madian, and he led the sheep beyond the wilderness and came to the mountain, Choreb. 2 Now an angel of the Lord appeared to him in a fire of flame out of the bush, saying, "Moyses, Moyses." And he said, "What is it?" 3 And he said, "Do not come near here! Loose the sandal of your feet! For the place on which you are standing is holy ground." 4 And he said to him, "I am the God of your father, God of Abraam and God of Isaak and God of Jakob." And Moyses turned his face away, for he was being reverent to look down before God.

7 Then the Lord said to Moyses, "When I looked, I saw the affliction of my people in Egypt, and I have heard their cry on account of the taskmasters. For I know their pain. 8 And I came down to deliver them from the hand of the Egyptians, and to bring them into a good and spacious land, into a land flowing with milk and honey, into the place of the Chananites and Chettites and Heuites and Amorrites and Pherezites and Gergesites and lebousites, into a land flowing with milk and honey." 18 And they will listen to your voice, and you and the elders’ council of Israel shall go in to Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and you shall say to him, ‘The God of the Hebrews has summoned us. Therefore, let us go a three days’ journey into the wilderness so that we may sacrifice to our God.’ 19 Now I know that Pharaoh, king of Egypt, will not permit you to go, except with a mighty hand. 20 And when I stretch out my hand, I will strike the Egyptians with all my wonders that I will perform among them, and after these things he will send you away. 21 And I will give favor to this people before the Egyptians. Now whenever you depart, you will not go away empty-handed. 22 But a woman will ask from a neighbor and tent mate of hers silver and gold articles and clothing, and you shall put them on your sons and on your daughters, and you shall plunder the Egyptians.”

4 Then Moyses answered and said, "If then they should not believe me or listen to my voice, for they will say, 'God has not appeared to you!' what shall I say to them?" 2 Then the Lord said to him, "What is this in your hand?" And he said, "A rod." 3 And he said, "Throw it on the ground!" And he threw it on the ground, and it became a snake, and Moyses fled from it. 4 And the Lord said to Moyses, "Stretch out your hand, and seize the tail! (then he stretched out his hand and seized the tail, and it became a rod in his hand) 5—so that they may believe you, that the Lord, the God of their fathers, God of Abraam and God of Isaak and God of Jakob, has appeared to you.”

6 Now the Lord said to him again, "Put your hand into your bosom!" And he put the hand into his bosom, and he brought his hand out of his bosom, and his hand became as snow. 7 And he said, "Again put your hand into your bosom!" And he put the hand into his bosom and brought it out of his bosom, and again it was restored to the color of his flesh. 8 Now if they should not believe you or listen to the voice of the first sign, they will believe you because of the voice of the last sign. 9 And it will be if they should not believe you for these two signs or listen to your voice, you shall take some of the river’s water and pour it on the dry ground, and the water, whatever you take from the river, will be blood on the dry ground."
10 But Moyses said to the Lord, “Please, Lord, I am incompetent—before yesterday or the third day or since you began to speak to your attendant. I am weak-voiced and slow-tongued.” 11 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Who gave a mouth to a person, and who made him deaf and mute, seeing and blind? Is it not I, the Lord God? 12 And now go, and I will open your mouth and teach you what you are going to speak.” 13 And Moyses said, “Please, Lord, appoint another capable person, whom you will send.” 14 And enraged with anger towards Moyses the Lord said, “Look, is not Aaron your brother, the Leuite? I know that when he speaks, he will speak for you. And look, he will come out to meet you, and when he sees you, he will be glad in himself. 15 And you shall speak to him and put my words in his mouth. And I will open your mouth and his mouth and will teach you what you shall do. 16 And he shall speak for you to the people, and he shall be your mouth, but you shall be to him the things pertaining to God. 17 And this rod, which was turned into a snake, you shall take in your hand, with which you shall perform the signs with it.” 18 Now Moyses went and returned to Iothor, his father-in-law, and said, “I shall go and return to my brothers in Egypt and see whether they are still living.” And Iothor said to Moyses, “Go in health.” 19 Then the Lord said to Moyses in Madian, “Go! Return to Egypt! For all those who were seeking your soul are dead.” 20 Then Moyses took his wife and children and put them on draft animals, and he went back to Egypt. And Moyses took the rod from God in his hand.

21 And the Lord said to Moyses, “As you go and return to Egypt, see, all the wonders which I put in your hand’s; you shall perform them before Pharao, But I will harden his heart, and he will not send the people away. 22 Then you shall say to Pharao, ‘This is what the Lord says, “My firstborn son is Israel.”’ 23 And I said to you, ‘Send my people away so that they may serve me.’” Now then, if you are unwilling to send them away, see then, I will kill your firstborn son.” 24 Now it happened on the way at the lodging, an angel of the Lord met him and was seeking to kill him. 25 And Sepphora took a pebble and circumcised the foreskin of her son, and she fell at his feet and said, “The blood of the circumcision of my child is staunched.” 26 And he went away from him, because she said, “The blood of the circumcision of my child is staunched.”

27 And the Lord said to Aaron, “Go into the wilderness for a meeting with Moyses.” And he went and met him at the mountain of God, and they kissed one another. 28 And Moyses reported to Aaron all the words of the Lord that he sent and all the signs that he commanded him. 29 Then Moyses and Aaron went and assembled the elders’ council of the sons of Israel. 30 And Aaron spoke all these words that God had spoken to Moyses and performed the signs before the people. 31 And the people believed and were glad because God had observed the sons of Israel and because he had seen their oppression. Then the people bowed down and did obeisance.

5 And after these things Moyses and Aaron went in to Pharao and said to him, “This is what the Lord, the God of Israel, says, ‘Send away my people so that they may celebrate a feast to me in the wilderness.’” 2 And Pharao said, “Who is this whose voice I shall listen to so that I send away the sons of Israel? I do not know the Lord, and I am not sending Israel away!” 3 And they say to him, “The God of the Hebrews has summoned us. We will travel then a three days’ journey into the wilderness in order to sacrifice to our God, lest death or murder meet us.” 4 And the king of Egypt said to them, “Moyses and Aaron, why are you diverting my people from their tasks? Each of you, go back to his tasks.” 5 And Pharao said, “Look, the people of the land now are very numerous. Therefore, let us not give them relief from their tasks.” 6 Then Pharao instructed the people’s taskmasters and recorders, saying, “No longer will straw continue to be given to the people for brick-making, as it was yesterday and the third day. Let them go to themselves and gather straw for themselves. 8 And the levy of brick-making that they themselves make each day, you shall impose on them; you shall not remove anything. For they have spare time! For this reason they have cried out, saying, ‘Let us go and offer sacrifice to our God.’” 9 Let the tasks of these people be made heavy, and let them be preoccupied with these things and let them not be preoccupied by empty words.” 10 Then the taskmasters and recorders kept urging them on and telling the people, saying, “This is what Pharaoh says, ‘I am no longer giving you straw. 11 As you yourselves go, gather for yourselves straw wherever you may find it, for nothing is being removed from your levy.’” 12 And the people were scattered in the whole of Egypt to gather stubble for straw. 13 Now the taskmasters kept urging them on, saying, “Complete the customary tasks daily even as when the straw was being given to you.” 14 And the recorders of the race of the sons of Israel, who had been set over them by the overseers of Pharaoh, were beaten, saying, “Why did you not finish your levies of brick-making, just as yesterday and the third day, also today?” 15 Then the recorders of the sons of Israel, they came in and cried out to Pharaoh, saying, “Why are you acting like this to your domestics?” 16 Straw is not being given to your domestics, and they tell us to make the brick, and look, your servants have been beaten. So you will treat your people unjustly.” 17 And he said to them, “You have spare time; you are men of leisure! For this reason you say, ‘Let us go; let us offer sacrifice to our God.” 18 Now then, go, and get to work! For the straw shall not be given to you, and you shall deliver the levy of brick-making.” 19 Now the recorders of the sons of Israel were seeing themselves in difficulties, because they were saying, “You shall not come short of the customary amount of brick-making daily.”
Now they met Moyses and Aaron coming to meet them, as they were going out from Pharao.
and they said to them, "May God see you and judge, because you have made our smell loathsome before Pharao and before his attendants, to put a sword into his hands to kill us."

22 Then Moyses turned to the Lord and said, "Lord, why did you harm this people? And why have you sent me? Even from the time when I have gone in to Pharao to speak in your name, he has harmed this people, and you have not delivered your people."

And the Lord said to Moyses, "Now you shall see what I will do to Pharao. For by a mighty hand he will send them away, and by a raised arm he will drive them out of his land."

2 Then God spoke to Moyses and said to him, "I am the Lord, and I appeared to Abraam and Isaak and Jakob, being their God, and my name, Lord, I did not make known to them. Also, I established my covenant with them in order to give them the land of the Chananites, the land of their sojourning, in which they also lived as sojourners; and I gave it to them by allotment. I am the Lord."

3 But I will harden Pharao's heart, and I will multiply my signs and wonders in the land, Egypt. And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, "I am the Lord, and I will bring you out from the land of Egypt, out of the captivity of the Egyptians."

4 And I will bring you into the land for which I stretched out my hand to give it to Abraam, Isaak, and Jakob, their father's brother, for his own wife, and she bore him both Aaron and Moyses and Mariam, their sister. Now the years of Amram's life were one hundred thirty-six.

26 This is Aaron and Moyses whom God told to bring the sons of Israel out of the land of Egypt with their host. These are the ones negotiating with Pharao, king of Egypt, and they brought the sons of Israel out of Egypt—Aaron himself and Moyses.

27 On the day in which the Lord spoke to Moyses in the land, Egypt, the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, "I am the Lord, and I will bring you out from the land of Egypt, the house of bondage."

28 But God said to Moyses, "Now you shall speak to Pharao, king of Egypt, and they will not listen to you. Then you shall say to them, 'This is what the Lord says: In the land of Egypt I will make you so sick that when you see my sign and wonder, you will say, 'This is the work of the Egyptian sorcerers.' And when you see that I have done all these things, you will say, 'This is the work of the mighty God; this is the work of Egypt.' And when my people Israel see all the things that I have done in Egypt, they will know that I am the Lord.' "

29 For I will harden Pharao's heart, and I will multiply my signs and wonders in the land, Egypt. And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, "I am the Lord, and I will bring you out from the land of Egypt, out of the captivity of the Egyptians."

30 And I will bring you into the land for which I stretched out my hand to give it to Abraam, Isaak, and Jakob, their father's brother, for his own wife, and she bore him both Aaron and Moyses and Mariam, their sister. Now the years of Amram's life were one hundred thirty-six.

These are the generations of Kore. And Eleazar, Aaron's son, took one of the daughters of Phoutiel for his wife, and she bore him Phinees. 32 This is Aaron and Moyses whom God told to bring the sons of Israel out of the land of Egypt with their host. These are the ones negotiating with Pharao, king of Egypt, and they brought the sons of Israel out of Egypt—Aaron himself and Moyses.

33 Now you shall speak to him all things that I command you, and Aaron, your brother, shall tell Pharao so that he sends the sons of Israel away from his land.

34 But I will harden Pharao's heart, and I will multiply my signs and wonders in the land, Egypt. And Pharao shall not listen to you, and I will lay my hand upon Egypt, and I will bring out with my host my people, the sons of Israel, from the land of Egypt with great vengeance.

35 And all the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord, when I stretch out the hand against Egypt, and I shall bring the sons of Israel out from their midst. And Moyses and Aaron did just as the Lord commanded them; so they did. Now Moyses was eighty years old, but Aaron, his brother, was eighty-three years old, when he spoke to Pharao.

36 And the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying, "Look, I have given you as a god to Pharao, and Aaron, your brother, shall be your prophet. Now you shall speak to him all things that I command you, and Aaron, your brother, shall tell Pharao so that he sends the sons of Israel away from his land.

37 But I will harden Pharao's heart, and I will multiply my signs and wonders in the land, Egypt. And Pharao shall not listen to you, and I will lay my hand upon Egypt, and I will bring out with my host my people, the sons of Israel, from the land of Egypt with great vengeance. And all the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord, when I stretch out the hand against Egypt, and I shall bring the sons of Israel out from their midst."

38 And Moyses and Aaron did just as the Lord commanded them; so they did. Now Moyses was eighty years old, but Aaron, his brother, was eighty-three years old, when he spoke to Pharao.

39 And if Pharao should speak to you, saying, 'Give us a sign or wonder,' you also shall say to Aaron, your brother, 'Take the rod, and throw it upon the ground before Pharao and before his attendants, and it will be a dragon.' Now Moyses and Aaron went in before Pharao and his attendants and did so just as the Lord commanded them. And Aaron threw down the rod before Pharao and before his attendants, and it became a dragon. And Pharao summoned the experts of Egypt and the sorcerers, and they also, the enchanters of the Egyptians, did likewise by their magical potions. And each one threw down his rod, and they became dragons, and the rod of Aaron swallowed the rods of those people. 13 And the heart of Pharao prevailed, and he did not listen to them, just as the Lord spoke to them.

14 Now the Lord said to Moses, "The heart of Pharao is weighed down so as not to send away the people. 15 Go to Pharao in the morning. Look, he himself is going out to the water, and you shall stand, meeting him on the bank of the river, and the rod that was turned into a snake you shall take in your hand. 16 And you shall say to him, 'The Lord, the God of the Hebrews, has sent me to you, saying, "Send away my people so that they may serve me in the wilderness." And look, you did not listen up to this point. 17 This is what the Lord says, "By this you shall know that I am the Lord, Look, with the rod that is in my hand I am about to strike upon the water that is in the river, and it shall turn to blood.

18 And the fish that are in the river shall die, and the river shall stink, and the Egyptians shall be unable to drink water from the river."" 19 Now the Lord said to Moses, "Say to Aaron, your brother, 'Take your rod, and stretch out the hand over the waters of Egypt and over their rivers and over their canals and over all their accumulated water, and they shall be blood.' " And blood occurred in all the land of Egypt, both in things made from wood and things made from stone.

20 And Moses and Aaron did so just as the Lord commanded them, and Aaron lifted it up and with his rod struck the water that was in the river before Pharao and before his attendants, and all the water in the river turned into blood. 21 And the fish in the river died, and the river stank, and the Egyptians could not drink water from the river, and there was blood in the whole land of Egypt. 22 But also the Egyptians' enchanters did likewise with their magical potions, and they brought a rod, and they became dragons, and the rod of Aaron swallowed the rods of those people. 23 And Pharao turned and went into his house, and he did not put his mind even to this.

24 Now all the Egyptians dug around the river so as not to send away the people. 25 And seven days were completed after the Lord struck the river.

8 Then the Lord said to Moses, "Go in to Pharao, and you will say to him, 'This is what the Lord says: Send away my people so that they may serve me. 2 But if you are unwilling to send them away, look, I am going to strike all your borders with frogs. 3 And the river shall vomit frogs, and when they come up, they shall enter into your houses and into the secret places of your bedrooms and upon your beds and into the houses of your attendants and your people and in your bread dough and in your ovens. 4 And upon you and upon your attendants and upon your people the frogs shall come up.' " 5 Then the Lord said to Moses, "Say to Aaron, your brother, 'Stretch out by hand your rod over the rivers and over the canals and over the marshes, and bring up the frogs.' " 6 And Aaron stretched out the hand over the waters of Egypt and brought up the frogs. And the frog was made to come up and covered the land of Egypt. 7 But also the Egyptians' enchanters did likewise with their magical potions, and they brought up frogs on the land of Egypt.

8 Then Pharao called Moses and Aaron and said, "Pray on my behalf to the Lord, and let him take away the frogs from me and from my people, and I will send away the people, and they may sacrifice to the Lord." 9 Then Moses said to Pharao, "Arrange for me when I should pray for you and for your attendants and your people, to remove the frogs from you and from your people and out of your houses—only in the river shall they remain." 10 And he said, "Tomorrow." He said, therefore, "As you have said so that you may know that there is no other except the Lord. 11 And the frogs shall be taken away from you and out of your houses and out of your villages and from your attendants and from your people—only in the river shall they remain." 12 Then Moses and Aaron went out from Pharao, and Moses cried to the Lord about the curtailing of the frogs, as he had arranged with Pharao. 13 And the Lord did just as Moses said, and the frogs died from the houses and from the villages and from the fields. 14 And they gathered them in heaps and heaps, and the land stank. 15 But when Pharao saw that respite had occurred, his heart was weighed down, and he did not listen to them, just as the Lord said.

16 Then the Lord said to Moses, "Say to Aaron: 'Stretch out by hand your rod, and strike the levees of earth, and there shall be gnats both on people and on quadrupeds and on the whole land of Egypt.' " 17 Aaron, therefore, stretched out by hand the rod and struck the levees of the earth, and the gnats were both on people and on quadrupeds, and in every levee of the earth, the gnats were in all the land of Egypt. 18 But also the enchanters did likewise with their magical potions to produce the gnat, and they could not. And the gnats were both on people and on quadrupeds. 19 The enchanters, therefore, said to Pharao, "This is the finger of God!" And Pharao's heart was hardened, and he did not listen to them, just as the Lord said.

20 Then the Lord said to Moses, "Rise early in the morning, and stand before Pharao. Look, he himself will go out to the water, and you will say to him, 'This is what the Lord says: Send away my people so that they may serve me. 21 But if you should be unwilling to send away my people, look, I am going to send against you and against your attendants and against your people and against your houses the dog-fly, and the Egyptians' houses shall be filled with the dog-fly, even into the land which they are on. 22 And I will distinguish gloriously on that day the land of Gesem, which my people are on, whereon the dog-fly shall not be, so that you may know that I am the Lord, the Lord of all the land." 23 And I will put a distinction between my people and between your people. Now on the morrow this sign shall be upon the land.’ “ 24And the Lord did so, and the dog-fly came in great numbers into the houses of Pharaoh and into the houses of his attendants and into the whole land of Egypt, and the land was ruined as a result of the dog-fly.
25 Then Pharaoh summoned Moyses and Aaron, saying, “Go, and sacrifice to your God in the land!” 26And Moyses said, “It cannot be so!
For we would sacrifice to the Lord our God the abominations of the Egyptians. For if we should sacrifice the abominations of the Egyptians before them, we will be stoned. 27A three days’ journey we will go into the wilderness, and we will sacrifice to the Lord, our God, according as he told us.” 28 And Pharaoh said, “I will send you away—and sacrifice to the Lord, your God, in the wilderness, but not far shall you proceed to go. Pray, therefore, for me to the Lord.” 29Then Moyses said, “Right now I will go out from you, and I will pray to God, and the dog-fly will depart from you and from your attendants and your people tomorrow. Do not add anymore, Pharaoh, to deceiving, so as not to send away the people to sacrifice to the Lord.” 30 Then Moyses went out from Pharaoh and prayed to God. 31 Now the Lord did as Moyses said, and he took away the dog-fly from Pharaoh and from his attendants and from his people, and not one remained. 32 And Pharaoh made his heart heavy also on this occasion, and he was unwilling to send away the people.

9 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Go into Pharaoh, and you shall say to him, ’This is what the Lord, the God of the Hebrews, says: Send away my people so that they may serve me. 2Yet if you are unwilling to send away my people, but still hold on to them, 3look, the hand of the Lord will be on your animals on the plains, both on the horses and on the draft animals and on the camels cattle and sheep—a very great death. 4 And I will distinguish gloriously between the animals of the Egyptians and between the animals of the sons of Israel. Not a thing from all the sons of Israel shall die.” 5 And God gave a limit, saying, “Tomorrow the Lord will do this thing on the land.”
6 And the Lord did this thing on the next day, and everything that Pharaoh had to his hand died, but the animals of the sons of Israel nothing died. 7 But when Pharaoh saw that nothing from the animals of the sons of Israel died, Pharaoh’s heart became heavy, and he did not send away the people.
7 Then the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying, “You take handfuls of furnace soot, and let Moyses scatter it toward heaven before Pharaoh and before his attendants. 9And let it become a dust cloud over all the land of Egypt, and there shall be upon humans and quadrupeds festering sores, oozing blisters occurred both on humans and on quadrupeds. 11 And the magicians were unable to stand before Moyses because of the festering sores.
For the festering sores occurred on the magicians and in the whole land of Egypt. 12 But the Lord hardened Pharaoh’s heart, and he did not listen to them, according as the Lord instructed Moyses.

13 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Rise early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh, and you shall say to him, This is what the Lord says, the God of the Hebrews: Send away my people so that they may serve me. 14 For at the present time I am sending out all my encounters into the heart of you and your attendants and your people so that you may know that there is no other like me in all the land. 15 For if now I sent my hand, I would strike you and your people with death, and you would be destroyed from the land. 16 And for this reason you have been spared in order that I might display in you my power and in order that my name might be proclaimed in all the land. 17 Still then you hold on to my people so as not to send them away. 18 Look, I am about to rain at this hour tomorrow very abundant hail, such as has not occurred in Egypt from the day which it was founded until this day. 19 Now, therefore, hurry to gather your animals and whatever belongs to you on the plain. For all the humans and animals, whatever should be found on the plains and should not enter into a dwelling, but the hail shall fall upon them, shall die.” 20 The one among Pharaoh’s attendants who feared the word of the Lord gathered his animals into dwellings. 21 But whoever did not pay attention with his mind to the word of the Lord left the animals on the plain.

22 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Stretch out your hand toward heaven, and there shall be hail on the whole land of Egypt, both on humans and animals and on all herbage which is on the land.” 23 Then Moyses stretched out his hand towards heaven, and the Lord gave sounds and hail, and fire ran about on the land, and the Lord rained hail on the whole land of Egypt. 24 Now there was hail and fire flashing in the hail. Now the hail was very, very abundant, such as had not occurred in Egypt from the time when a people had come into being upon it. 25 Then hail struck in all the land of Egypt from human to animal, and all herbage on the plain the hail struck, and all the trees on the plains the hail crushed. 26 Only in the land, Gesem, where the sons of Israel were, the hail did not occur.
27 Then Pharaoh sent and summoned Moyses and Aaron and said to them, “Now I have sinned.
The Lord is just but I and my people are impious.
28 Therefore pray for me to the Lord, and let him put a stop to God’s sounds and hail and fire, and I will send you away, and you will no longer continue to stay.” 29 And Moyses said to him, “As soon as I leave the city, I will spread out my hands to the Lord, and the sounds will stop, and the hail and the rain will be no more so that you may know that the land is the Lord’s. 30 Both you and your at-

tendants—I know that you have not yet come to fear the Lord." 31Now the flax and the barley were ruined. For the barley was ripe, and the flax was going to seed. 32But the wheat and the spelt were not ruined, for they were late. 33Then Moyses went out from Pharaoh outside of the city, and he spread out hands to the Lord, and the sounds ceased, and the hail, and the rain no longer dripped on the land. 34Now when Pharaoh saw that the rain had ceased, and the hail and the sounds, he continued to sin and made his heart hard and that of his attendants heavy. 35And the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, and he did not send away the sons of Israel, according as the Lord said to Moyses.

10 Then the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, “Go in to Pharaoh. For I made his heart and that of his attendants heavy in order that one after another these signs might come upon them. 2that you may recount in the ears of your children and to the children of your children how I mocked the Egyptians, and my signs that I did among them, and you will know that I am Lord.” 3Then Moyses and Aaron went in before Pharaoh and said to him, “This is what the Lord, the God of the Hebrews, says, ‘For how long are you not willing to respect me? Send away my people so that they may serve the Lord! 4But if you are not willing to send away my people, look, I am bringing disaster upon your borders. 5And it shall cover the face of the land, and you will not be able to see the land, and it shall devour all the rest that remains that the hail left for you, and it shall devour every tree that grows for you on the land. 6And your houses and the houses of your attendants and all the houses in all the land of Egypt shall be filled, something that your fathers or their grandfathers have never seen, from the day when they came on the land until this day.” 7 And Moyses turned away and went out from Pharaoh.

7 Then the attendants of Pharaoh say to him, “For how long will this be a stumbling-block for us? Send away the people so that they may serve the Lord their God. Or do you wish to know that Egypt lies in ruins?” 8And they brought back both Moyses and Aaron to Pharaoh, and he said to them, “Go! Serve the Lord your God. But who and who are those that are going?” 9And Moyses says, “With the young and old men we will go, with our sons and daughters and sheep and cattle, for it is the Lord our God’s feast.” 10And he said to them, “Let the Lord so be with you. According as I send you, I should not also send your chattels, should I? Take note that wickedness lies before you. 11Not so! But let the men go, and you serve God! For this you yourselves are asking.” Then they thrust them out from the presence of Pharaoh.

12 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Stretch out the hand on the land of Egypt, and let the grasshopper come up on the land, and it will devour all the herbage of the land and all the fruit of the trees, which the hail left behind.” 13And Moyses lifted up the rod towards heaven, and the Lord brought up a south wind upon the land that whole day and whole night. The morning came, and the south wind took up the grasshopper and brought it up on all the land of Egypt, and a great many settled on all the borders of Egypt. A grasshopper such as this had not occurred before it, and after it there shall not be such. 15And it covered the face of the land, and the land was ruined. And it devoured all the herbage of the land and all the fruit of the trees, which was left from the hail. Nothing green was left on the trees and on all the herbage of the plain in the whole land of Egypt.

16 Then Pharaoh hastened to summon Moyses and Aaron, saying, “I have sinned before the Lord your God and against you. 17Therefore bear with my sin now again, and pray to the Lord your God, and let him take away from me this death.” 18So Moyses went out from Pharaoh and prayed to God. 19And the Lord turned a violent wind from the sea, and it took up the grasshopper and threw it into the Red Sea, and not one grasshopper was left in the whole land of Egypt. 20And the Lord hardened Pharaoh’s heart, and he did not send away the sons of Israel.

21 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Stretch out the hand towards heaven, and let there be darkness over the land of Egypt, palpable darkness.” 22So Moyses stretched out the hand toward heaven, and there was darkness, gloom, hurricane, on all the land of Egypt for three days. 23And no one saw his brother, and no one rose up from his bed for three days. But for all the sons of Israel there was light in all places where they were dwelling. 24And Pharaoh summoned Moyses and Aaron, saying, “Go! Serve the Lord your God. Only leave behind the sheep and cattle. And let your chattels depart with you.” 25And Moyses said, “But you also will give us whole burnt offerings and sacrifices that we shall make to the Lord our God. 26And our animals will go with us, and we shall not leave behind a hoof. For from them we shall take to serve the Lord our God. But we do not know how we should worship the Lord our God until we go there.” 27But the Lord hardened Pharaoh’s heart, and he was unwilling to send them away. 28And Pharaoh says, “Depart from me; watch out that yet again you see my face. Now on whatever day you should appear to me, you shall die!” 29Then Moyses says, “You have spoken! I shall no longer appear to you in person.”

11 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Still one plague I will bring upon Pharaoh and upon Egypt, and after these things he will send you away from here. Now whenever he sends you away, with everything he will expel you with expulsion. 2Speak then secretly to the ears of the people, and let each one ask from his neighbor and a woman from her neighbor silver and gold articles and clothing.” 3Now the Lord gave favor to his people before the Egyptians, and they supplied them. And the man Moyses became very great before the

4 And Moyses said, “This is what the Lord says: Around midnight I am going to enter into the midst of Egypt, and every firstborn in the land, Egypt, shall die, from the firstborn of Pharaoh, who sits on the throne, to the firstborn of the female slave by the millstone and to the firstborn of every animal. And there will be a great cry throughout the whole land of Egypt, such as has not been and such as will not again be repeated. But among all the sons of Israel a dog will not snarl with his tongue from human being to animal in order that you might know by what means the Lord shall distinguish gloriously between the Egyptians and Israel. And all these servants of yours shall come down to me and do obeisance before me, saying, ‘Leave, you and all your people, whom you are leading away,’ and after these things I will go out.” Then Moyses went out from Pharaoh with wrath.

9 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Pharaoh will not listen to you in order that I may multiply my signs and wonders in the land, Egypt.” So Moyses and Aaron did all these signs and wonders in the land, Egypt, before Pharaoh. But the Lord hardened Pharaoh’s heart, and he was unwilling to send away the sons of Israel from the land of Egypt.

12 Then the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron in the land, Egypt, saying: "This month shall be for you the beginning of months; it is first for you among the months of the year. Speak to the whole congregation of the sons of Israel, saying, ‘On the tenth of this month let them take, each person, a sheep according to the paternal families and sacrifice the pascha. And it shall be kept for you until the fourteenth of this month, and all the multitude of the congregation of the sons of Israel shall slay it towards evening. And they shall take some of the blood and shall put it on the two doorposts and on the lintel in the houses whichever they eat them in. And they shall eat the meat this night, roasted in fire, and they shall eat unleavened bread with bitter herbs. You shall not eat from it raw or boiled in water but rather roasted in fire, head with the feet and inner organs. You shall not leave any of it until morning, and you shall not break a bone of it. But that which remains from it until morning, you shall burn with fire. Now in this way you shall eat it: your loins girded and your sandals on your feet and your staves in your hands. And you shall eat it haste—it is the Lord’s pascha.

14 And this day shall be a memorial for you, and you shall celebrate it as a feast to the Lord throughout your generations. You shall celebrate it as a perpetual precept. For seven days you shall eat unleavened bread, but from the first day you shall remove leaven from your houses. Everyone, whoever eats leaven, that soul shall be destroyed from Israel, from the first day until the seventh day. And the first day shall be called holy, and the seventh day shall be designated holy for you. No work of service shall be done on them, except what shall be done for every soul; this only shall be done for you. And you shall keep this commandment. For on this day I will bring your host out of the land of Egypt, and you shall make this day a remembrance to you, and you shall celebrate it as a feast to the Lord throughout your generations. You shall celebrate it as a perpetual precept. For seven days leaven shall not be found in your houses. Everyone, whoever eats something leavened, that soul shall be destroyed from the congregation of Israel both among the gioras and the natives of the land. Anything leavened you shall not eat; in every habitation of yours you shall eat unleavened bread."

21 Then Moyses summoned the entire elders’ council of Israel and said to them, “When you go away, take for yourselves a sheep according to your families and sacrifice the pascha. And you shall take a bunch of hyssop, and dipping from the blood by the door, you shall also touch the lintel and on both doorposts, from the blood that is by the door. But you, each one, shall not go out the door of his house until morning. And the Lord will pass by to strike the Egyptians, and he will see the blood upon the lintel and on both doorposts, and the Lord will pass by the door, and he will not allow the destroyer to enter into your houses to strike. And you shall keep this word as a precept for yourself and your sons forever. Now when you come into the land whichever the Lord gives you, according as he said, you shall observe this service. And it shall be if your sons shall say to you, ‘What is this service?’ then you shall say to them, ‘This pascha is a sacrifice to the Lord who protected the houses of the sons of Israel in Egypt when he struck the Egyptians, but our houses he preserved.’ And the people bent down and did obeisance.

28 And when they went away, the sons of Israel did as the Lord commanded Moyses and Aaron; so they did.

29 Now it happened during the middle of the night that the Lord struck every firstborn in the land, Egypt, from the firstborn of Pharaoh who sits upon the throne, to the firstborn of the female captive who is in the pit, even to the firstborn of every animal. 30And Pharaoh arose during the night and all his attendants and all the Egyptians, and there was a great cry in all the land of Egypt. For there was not a house which had no dead person in it. 31And Pharaoh summoned Moyses and Aaron during the night and he said to them, "Arise, and go out from my people, both you and the sons of Israel. Go! Serve the Lord your God according as you say. 32Take both your sheep and cattle, and get going, but bless me too."

33 And the Egyptians were forcing the people, to throw them out of the land quickly. For they said, "We are all dying!" 34Now the people took the dough before it was leavened, their kneaded mixtures wrapped in their clothes on their shoulders. 35And the sons of Israel did as Moyses instructed them and asked from the Egyptians silver and gold articles and clothing. 36And the Lord gave favor to his people before the Egyptians, and they supplied them, and they plundered the Egyptians.

37 Now the sons of Israel marched from Rameses to Sokchotha; the men were about six hundred thousand foot soldiers, apart from the chattels. 38And a great, mixed crowd went up with them, and sheep and oxen, even a great many animals. 39And they baked the dough that they brought from Egypt, unleavened bread baked in ashes, for it was not leavened. For the Egyptians had thrown them out, and they were unable to remain, nor did they make provision for themselves for the journey.

40 Now the residence of the sons of Israel during which they dwelt in the land, Egypt, and in the land of Canaan was four hundred and thirty years. 41And it happened after four hundred and thirty years that all the house of the Lord went out from the land of Egypt during the night. 42It is a vigil for the Lord so that he might bring them out of the land of Egypt. That night is this vigil for the Lord so that it might be for all the sons of Israel throughout their generations.

43 Then the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying: This is the law of the pascha. No alien shall eat of it. 44And any domestic of anyone or purchased slave you shall circumcise him, and then he shall eat of it. 45A resident alien or hired person shall not eat of it. 46In one house it shall be eaten; you shall not take any of the meat outside of the house, and you shall not break a bone of it. 47The entire congregation of the sons of Israel shall do this. 48But if any guest should draw near to you to keep the pascha to the Lord, you shall circumcise every male of his, and then he shall draw near to keep it, and he shall be like a native of the land. No uncircumcised person shall eat of it. 49There shall be one law for the local inhabitant and for the guest among you who has drawn near.

50 And the sons of Israel did just as the Lord commanded Moyses and Aaron for them; so they did. 51And it happened on that day the Lord brought the sons of Israel out of the land of Egypt together with their host.
For Joseph made the sons of Israel swear an oath, saying, “With a concern the Lord will concern himself with you, and you shall bring my bones there with you.” 20Then the sons of Israel, when they departed from Sokchoth, camped at Othom on the edge of the wilderness. 21Now God was leading them, by day by a pillar of cloud to show them the way but during the night by a pillar of fire. 22The pillar of cloud during the day and the pillar of fire by night did not depart from before all the people.

14 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 2Speak to the sons of Israel, and when they turn back, let them camp opposite the village between Magdolos and between the sea, opposite Beelsepphon. Before them you shall camp by the sea. 3And Pharao will say to his people, “These sons of Israel are wandering in the land. For the wilderness has closed in on them.” 4Now I will harden Pharao’s heart, and he will pursue after them. And I will be glorified in Pharao and in all his army, and all the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord. And they did so.

5 And it was reported to the king of the Egyptians that the people had escaped. And the heart of Pharao and his attendants was turned against the people, and they said, “What is this we have done, sending away the sons of Israel so they are not subject to us?” 6Then Pharao hitched up his chariots and led away all his people together with him, 7and he took six hundred choice chariots and all the cavalry of the Egyptians and the third-ranked officers over all of them. 8And the Lord hardened the heart of Pharao, king of Egypt, and he pursued after the sons of Israel. Now the sons of Israel were leaving with a high hand. 9And the Egyptians pursued after them and found them encamped by the sea, and all the cavalry and chariots of Pharao and the horsemen and his army were opposite the village, opposite Beelsepphon.

10 And Pharao advanced. And when they looked up, the sons of Israel saw with their eyes, and the Egyptians encamped behind them, and they were very afraid. Then the sons of Israel cried out to the Lord. 11And they said to Moyses, “Because there were not graves in the land, Egypt did you bring us out to put us to death in this wilderness? What is this you have done to us, bringing us out of Egypt? 12Was this not the matter that we told you in Egypt, saying, ‘Leave us alone in order that we might be subject to the Egyptians?’ For it was better for us to be subject to the Egyptians than to die in this wilderness.” 13But Moyses said to the people, “Take courage! Stand, and see the deliverance from God that he will perform for you today. For as you have seen the Egyptians today, you shall not ever again see them time without end. 14The Lord will fight for you, and you will be quiet.”

15 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Why are you crying out to me? Speak to the sons of Israel, and let them break camp. 16And you, raise your rod, and stretch out your hand over the sea, and break it apart, and let the sons of Israel enter into the midst of the sea on what was dry. 17And look, I will harden the heart of Pharao and all the Egyptians, and they will enter in after them. And I will be glorified in Pharao and in all his army and in his chariots and in his horses. 18And all the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord, as I am being glorified in Pharao and in his chariots and his horses.”

19 Then the angel of God, who was going before the camp of the sons of Israel, rose up and went behind. Now the pillar of cloud also rose up from before them and stood behind them. 20And it went in between the camp of the Egyptians and between the camp of Israel. And there was darkness and gloom, and the night elapsed, and they did not mix together with one another during the whole night.

21 But Moyses stretched out the hand over the sea, and the Lord drew off the sea by a strong south wind during the whole night, and he made the sea dry, and the water was divided. 22And the sons of Israel entered into the midst of the sea on the dry ground, and the water became a wall for them on the right and a wall on the left. 23Then the Egyptians pursued, and all the cavalry of Pharao and the chariots and the riders went in after them into the midst of the sea. 24And it happened in the early morning watch that the Lord looked at the camp of the Egyptians in the pillar of fire and cloud, and he threw the camp of the Egyptians into disarray. 25And he bound together the axles of their chariots and led them violently. And the Egyptians said, “Let us flee from Israel! For the Lord fights the Egyptians for them!”

26 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Stretch out your hand over the sea, and let the water return and cover up the Egyptians, both the chariots and the riders.” 27So Moyses stretched out the hand over the sea, and the water returned near day to its place. Now the Egyptians fled under the water, and the Lord shook off the Egyptians in the middle of the sea. 28And when the water had returned, it covered the chariots and riders and all the host of Pharao that had entered after them into the sea. Not even one of them remained! 29But the sons of Israel went across dry ground in the midst of the sea, and the water was for them a wall on the right and a wall on the left.

30 And the Lord rescued Israel in that day from the hand of the Egyptians. And Israel saw the Egyptians dead along the shore of the sea. 31So Israel saw the great hand, which things the Lord had done to the Egyptians. And the people feared the Lord and trusted God and Moyses, his attendant.

15 Then Moyses and the sons of Israel sang this song to God and spoke, saying, “Let us sing to the Lord, for gloriously he has glorified himself; horse and rider he threw into the sea. 2Helper and defender he has become to me, for deliverance; this is my God, and I will glorify him; my father’s God, and I will exalt him. 3The Lord, when he shatters wars, the Lord is his name.
4 "The chariots of Pharao and his host he threw into the sea; choice riders, third-ranked officers, he drowned in the Red Sea.
5 With open sea he covered them; they sank down into the deep like stone.
6 Your right hand, O Lord, has been glorified in power; your right hand, O Lord, crushed enemies.
7 And in the abundance of your glory you shattered the adversaries; you sent your anger, and it consumed them like stubble.
8 And through the breath of your wrath the waters separated; the waters were congealed like a wall; the waves were congealed in the midst of the sea.
9 The enemy said, ‘In pursuit I will overtake; I will divide spoils; I will satisfy my soul; I will destroy with my dagger; my hand shall dominate.’
10 You sent your breath; the sea covered them; they sank like lead in violent water.

11 "Who is like you among the gods, O Lord? Who is like you, glorified among holy ones, awesome in glorious deeds, doing wonders?
12 You extended your right hand; the earth swallowed them.
13 "You led by your righteousness this people of yours whom you redeemed; you summoned by your power into your holy abode.
14 Nations heard and became angry; pangs seized those dwelling among the Phylistiim.
15 Then leaders of Edom made haste. And rulers of the Moabites, trembling seized them; all those inhabiting Chanaan melted away.
16 May fear and trembling fall upon them; by the greatness of your arm let them be turned into stone until your people should pass by, O Lord, until this people of yours, whom you acquired, should pass by.
17 Lead them in, and plant them in the mountain of your inheritance, in your prepared dwelling place that you made, O Lord, a holy precinct, O Lord, that your hands prepared.
18 The Lord, ruling forever and ever and beyond."
19 Because the cavalry of Pharao together with chariots and riders went into the sea, the Lord also brought the water of the sea upon them, but the sons of Israel walked through dry land in the midst of the sea.
20 Then Mariam, the prophetess, the sister of Aaron, took the tambourine in her hand, and all the women went out after her with tambourines and dances. 21 And Mariam took their lead, saying: "Let us sing to the Lord, for gloriously he has glorified himself. Horse and rider he threw into the sea."
22 Then Moyses removed the sons of Israel from the Red Sea and led them into the wilderness of Sour. And they were journeying for three days in the wilderness and were not finding water to drink.
23 And they came to Merra and could not drink water from Merra, for it was bitter. Therefore the name of that place was called Bitterness. 24 And the people were complaining against Moyses, saying, “What shall we drink?” 25 Then Moyses cried to the Lord, and the Lord showed him wood, and he threw it into the water, and the water became sweet. There he set for him statutes and judgments, and there he tested him. 26 And he said, “If you by paying attention listen to the voice of the Lord, your God, and do before him pleasing things, and give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes, every disease which I brought upon the Egyptians, I will not bring upon you. For I am the Lord who heals you.”
27 And they came to Ailim, and twelve springs of water and seventy date palm trunks were there. And they camped there by the waters.

16 And they set out from Ailim, and the entire congregation of the sons of Israel came to the wilderness of Sin, which is between Ailim and between Sina. And on the fifteenth day, in the second month, after they had gone out from the land of Egypt, 2 the entire congregation of the sons of Israel was complaining against Moyses and Aaron, 3 and the sons of Israel said to them, “If only we had died, struck by the Lord, in the land, Egypt, when we sat at the cauldrons of meat and were eating bread to the full, because you led us out into this wilderness to kill all this congregation by famine.” 4 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “Look, I am going to rain bread from heaven for you, and the people shall go out, and they shall collect the day’s portion for a day so that I might test them whether they will walk by my law or not. 5 And it shall be on the sixth day, and they shall prepare whatever they bring in, and it shall be double whatever they gather together daily for a day.” 6 Then Moyses and Aaron said to the entire congregation of the sons of Israel, “At evening you shall know that the Lord brought you out of the land of Egypt, 7 and in the morning you shall see the glory of the Lord, when he heard your complaining against God. But we, what are we that you complain against us?” 8 And Moyses said, “When the Lord gives you meat in the evening to eat and bread in the morning to the full, because the Lord heard your complaining which you complain against us, then we, what are we? For not against us is your complaining, but rather against God.”

9 And Moyses said to Aaron, “Say to the entire congregation of the sons of Israel: Draw near before God. For he has heard your complaining.”

10 And when Aaron was speaking to the entire congregation of the sons of Israel, they also turned about towards the wilderness, and the glory of the Lord appeared in a cloud. 11 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, 12 “I have heard the complaining of the sons of Israel. Speak to them, saying: Towards evening you shall eat meat, and in the morning you shall be filled with bread. And you shall know that I am the Lord, your God.”

13 So evening came, and quail came up and covered the camp. Then morning came, when the dew was lifting around the camp, 14 and look, upon the surface of the wilderness was something fine like coriander, white like frost on the ground. 15 And when they saw it, the sons of Israel said one to the other, “What is this?” For they did not know what it was. Then Moyses said to them, “This is the bread that the Lord has given you to eat. 16 This is the word that the Lord instructed, ‘Each person, gather from it for those appropriate; a gomorb[a] per head, according to the number of your souls, each of you with your tent mates collect.’” 17 And the sons of Israel did so, and they collected, the one much and the other less. 18 And they measured by the gomorb. The one with much did not have too little, each person collected for those appropriate at his own home. 19 Then Moyses said to them, “Let no one leave any of it to the morning.” 20 And they did not listen to Moyses, but certain ones left some of it to the morning. 21 And the sun grew hot, it melted. 22 But it happened on the sixth day, they collected double what was required, two gomors[b] for one person. And all the leaders of the congregation went in and reported to Moyses. 23 And Moyses said to them, “This is the word that the Lord spoke: Tomorrow is Sabbata, a rest holy to the Lord. Whatever you bake, bake, and whatever you boil, boil. And all the excess, leave it in storage until the morning.” 24 And they left some of it until the morning, according as Moyses instructed them. And it did not stink, nor was there a worm in it. 25 And Moyses said, “Eat today! For today is Sabbata to the Lord. It will not be found on the plain. 26 Six days you will collect, but on the seventh day is Sabbata. There will be none in it.”

27 And it happened on the seventh day, certain of the people went out to collect, and they found none. 28 Then the Lord said to Moyses, “For how long are you unwilling to listen to my commandments and my law?” 29 See! For the Lord has given you this day, the sabbaths. Therefore he gave you on the sixth day bread for two days. Sit, each person, in your houses; let no one go out from his place on the seventh day.” 30 And the people sabbatized on the seventh day.

31 And the sons of Israel called its name Man. Now it was white like coriander seed, but its taste was like cake with honey. 32 Then Moyses said, “This is the word that the Lord instructed: Fill the gomor[b] with Man for deposit for your generations in order that they might see the bread that you ate in the wilderness, how the Lord brought you out from the land of Egypt.” 33 And Moyses said to Aaron, “Take one golden jar, and place in it the gomor[b] full of Man, and you will put it away before God for preservation for your generations.” 34 As the Lord instructed Moyses, Aaron also put it away before the witness for preservation. 35 Now the sons of Israel ate Man for forty years until they came into inhabited land. They ate Man until they came near to the region of Phoenicia. 36 Now the gomor[b] was a tenth of three measures.

17 And the entire congregation of the sons of Israel set out from the wilderness of Sin according to their encampments by the word of the Lord, and they camped at Raphidin. But there was not water for the people to drink. 2 And the people were railing against Moyses, saying, “Give us water so that we may drink!” And Moyses said to them, “Why are you railing at me, and why are you testing the Lord?” 3 But the people thirsted there for water, and the people kept complaining against Moyses, saying, “Why is it that you brought us up from Egypt to kill us and our children and animals with thirst?” 4 Then Moyses cried out to the Lord, saying, “What shall I do with this people? A little while yet and they will stone me!” 5 And the Lord said to Moyses, “Go on ahead of this people, but take with you some of the elders of the people and the rod with which you struck the river take in your hand, and go. 6 Here have taken my stand, before you came, on the rock at Choreb. And you shall strike the rock, and water will come out of it, and the people will drink.” And Moyses did so before the sons of Israel. 7 And he called the name of that place Testing and Raillery because of the railing of the sons of Israel and because they tested the Lord, saying, “Is the Lord among us or not?”

8 Then Amalek came and was fighting Israel at Raphidin. 9 And Moyses said to Iesous, “Choose for yourself capable men, and go forth, and set up in battle array with Amalek tomorrow. And look, I stand on top of the hill, and the rod of God is in my hand.” 10 And Iesous did as Moyses said to him and set up in battle array with Amalek, and Moyses and Aaron and Hor went up onto the top of the hill. 11 And it happened whenever Moyses held up his hands, Israel was prevailing, and whenever he lowered his hands, Amalek was prevailing. 12 But Moyses’ hands were heavy. And they took a stone and put it under him, and he sat on it. And Aaron...

and Hor kept supporting his hands, here one and there one. And the hands of Moyses were supported until the setting of the sun.

Then the Lord said to Moyses, "Write this down for a memorial in a book, and put into the ears of lesous that with a wipe out I will wipe out the memorial of Amalek from what is beneath heaven. " And Moyses built an altar to the Lord and called its name "The Lord is my refuge," because by a secret hand the Lord fights against Amalek from generations to generations.

Now Iothor, the priest of Madian, Moyses’ father-in-law, heard all that the Lord did to Israel, his own people. For the Lord brought Israel out from Egypt.

And Moyses took Sephora, Moyses’ wife, after her dismissal, and his two sons. The name of one of them was Gersain (saying, "I was a resident alien in a foreign land"), and the name of the second, Eliezer ("for the God of my father was my help, and he delivered me from the hand of Pharao"). And Moyses went out for a meeting with his father-in-law, and he did obeisance before him and kissed him, and they greeted one another. And he led him into the tent.

And Moyses recounted to his father-in-law all that the Lord did to Pharao and the Egyptians for the sake of Israel and all the hardship that happened to them in the way and that the Lord delivered them from the hand of Pharao and from the hand of the Egyptians.

Now Iothor was amazed at all the good things that the Lord did to them, that he encamped at the mountain of God. And it was reported to Moyses, saying, "Look, Iothor, your father-in-law, is coming to you, and your wife and two sons with him."

And Moyses went out for a meeting with his father-in-law, and he did obeisance before him and kissed him, and they greeted one another. And he led him into the tent.

And Moyses recounted to his father-in-law all that the Lord did to Pharao and the Egyptians for the sake of Israel and all the hardship that happened to them in the way and that the Lord delivered them from the hand of Pharao and from the hand of the Egyptians.

Now Iothor was amazed at all the good things that the Lord did to them, that he delivered them from the hand of the Egyptians and from the hand of Pharao.

And Iothor said, "Blessed be the Lord, because he delivered his people from the hand of the Egyptians and from the hand of Pharao.

Now in the third month of the departure of the sons of Israel from the land of Egypt on this day they came into the wilderness of Sina. And they departed from Raphidin and came into the wilderness of Sina, and Israel camped there opposite the mountain.

Now Moyses went onto the wilderness of Sina, and Israel camped there opposite the mountain.

And Moyses chose capable men from all Israel and made them over them officers of hundreds and officers of fifties and officers of tens, and they shall judge the people every season. Now the burdensome matter they shall bring to you, but the smaller matters of judgment they themselves shall judge, and they will make it easier for you, and they will help you.

And you, search for yourself from all the people capable, god-fearing men, righteous men, who hate arrogance, and you shall set them over them as officers of thousands and officers of hundreds and officers of fifties and officers of tens, and they shall judge the people every season. Now the burdensome matter they were bringing to Moyses, but every smaller matter they themselves were judging.

Then Moyses sent away his own father-in-law, and he went away to his country.

Now Moyses went and called the elders of the sons of Israel from the land of Egypt on this day they came into the wilderness of Sina. And they departed from Raphidin and came into the wilderness of Sina, and Israel camped there opposite the mountain.

And Moyses went onto the wilderness of God, and God called him from the mountain, saying, "This is what you shall say to the house of Jakob and report to the sons of Israel: You yourselves have seen what I have done to the Egyptians, and I took you up as though on eagles’ wings, and I brought you to myself. And now if by paying attention you listen to my voice and keep my covenant, you shall be for me a people special above all nations. For all the earth is mine. And you shall be for me a royal priesthood and a holy nation. These words you shall say to the sons of Israel.”

And Moyses went and called the elders of the people and set before them all these words that God instructed him.

And all the people with one accord answered and said, “All that God said we will do and heed.” Then Moyses carried the words of the people up to God.

Or My Lord is a refuge

Perhaps because Moyses, “Look, I am coming to you in a pillar of cloud in order that the people may listen while I speak to you and they may trust you forever.”

And Moyses reported the words of the people to the Lord. 10 And the Lord said to Moyses, “When you go down, testify solemnly to the people, and purify them today and tomorrow, and let them wash their clothes, and be prepared for the third day. For on the third day the Lord will come down upon the mountain Sina before all the people. 12 And you shall set limits for the people round about, saying, ‘Be on your guard against going onto the mountain, they shall come up on the mountain.”

14 And Moyses went down from the mountain to the people and consecrated them, and they washed their clothes. 15 And he said to the people, “Prepare for three days. Do not go near a woman.”

16 And it happened on the third day, when it was toward dawn, sounds and lightning and dark cloud were occurring upon the mountain Sina; the sound of the trumpet was ringing loudly, and all the people in the camp were terrified. 17 And Moyses led the people out from the camp for a meeting with God, and they stood near, below the mountain. 18 Now the mountain Sina was smoking in its entirety, because God had come down upon it in fire, and the smoke was rising up like the smoke of a furnace. And all the people were very astonished.

19 Now the sounds of the trumpet, increasing, became much stronger. Moyses was speaking, and God answered him with sound. 20 And the Lord came much stronger. Moyses was speaking, and God was speaking alongside him with sound. 21 And Moyses said to God, “The people will not listen to me; they will not obey your words.”

22 And the Lord said to Moyses: This is what the Lord said to Moyses.

20 And the Lord spoke all these words, saying: 21 I am the Lord your God who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of a house of slavery. 22 You shall not have other gods beside me.

3 You shall not make for yourself an idol or likeness of anything whatever is in heaven above and whatever is in the earth beneath and whatever is in the waters beneath the earth. 4 You shall not make for yourself an idol or likeness of anything whatever is in heaven above and whatever is in the earth beneath and whatever is in the waters beneath the earth. 5 You shall not do obeisance to them, nor are you to serve them, for I am the Lord your God, a jealous god, repaying sins of fathers upon children up to the third and fourth generation to those who hate me, and doing mercy unto thousands, for those who love me and keep my ordinances.

8 Remember the day of the sabbaths to consecrate it. 9 For six days you shall labor and do all your labor, but on the seventh day there is Sabbath to the Lord your God. You shall not do in it any labor, you and your son and your daughter, your male slave and your female slave, your ox and your draft animal and any animal of yours and the guest who resides among you. 11 For in six days the Lord made the heaven and the earth and the sea and all things in them, and he rested on the seventh day. For this reason the Lord blessed the seventh day and consecrated it.

12 Honor your father and mother so that it may be well with you and so that you may be long-lived on the good land that the Lord your God is giving you. 13 You shall not commit adultery. 14 You shall not steal. 15 You shall not murder. 16 You shall not testify falsely against your neighbor with false witness. 17 You shall not covet your neighbor’s wife; you shall not covet your neighbor’s house or his field or his male slave or his female slave or his ox or his bird or any animal of his or whatever belongs to your neighbor. 18 And all the people were perceiving the sound and the flashes and the sound of the trumpet and the mountain smoking. Now all the people were afraid and stood at a distance. 19 And they said to Moyses, “You speak to us, and do not let God speak to us, lest we die.” 20 And Moyses says to them, “Take courage! For in order to test you God has come to you in order that his fear might be in you so that you do not sin.” 21 Now the people were standing at a distance, but Moyses went into the darkness where God was.

22 And the Lord said to Moyses: This is what you shall say to the house of Jakob and report to the sons of Israel, “You have seen what I have spoken from heaven to you. 23 You shall not make for yourselves silver gods, and gold gods you shall not make for yourselves. 24 An altar of earth you shall make for me, and you shall sacrifice on it your whole burnt offerings and deliverance offerings, your sheep and your bull calves in every place, there where I pronounce my name, and I will come to you and bless you. 25 But if you make an altar of stones for me, you shall not build them cut. For you have placed the tool upon it, and it has been defiled. You shall not go up by steps onto my altar so that you do not reveal your shame upon it.

8 Or Prepare. For three days do not go near a woman

12 Now if someone strikes someone and he dies, let him be put to death with death. 13But the one who acts unwittingly, but God delivered him from my altar you shall take him to put him to death.

14 Now if someone attacks his neighbor to kill him treacherously and he flees, from my altar you shall take him to put him to death.

15 Let the one who strikes his father or his mother be put to death with death. 16(17) Let the one who insults his father or his mother end with death.

17(16) Whoever steals any of the sons of Israel and, having gained control over him, sells him, and he be found with him, let him end with death. 18 Now if two men rail at one another and one strikes his neighbor with a stone or fist and he does not die but he be laid upon his bed, 19if the person arises and walks around outside on a rod, the striker shall not be liable, except for his loss of employment he shall pay compensation and for medical treatment.

20 Now if someone strikes his male slave or his female slave with a rod and he dies under his hands, let him justly be punished. 21But if he survives one day or two, he shall not be punished, for he is his silver.

22 Now if two men fight and strike a pregnant woman and her child comes forth not fully formed, he shall be punished with a fine. According as the husband of the woman might impose, he shall pay with judicial assessment. 23But if it is fully formed, he shall pay life for life, 24eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot, 25burn for burn, wound for wound, stripe for stripe.

26 Now if someone strikes the eye of his male domestic or the eye of his female attendant and cause blindness, he shall send them away free in exchange for their eye. 27Now if he knocks out the tooth of a male domestic or the tooth of his female attendant, he shall send them away free in exchange for their tooth.

28 Now if a bull goes a man or a woman and he dies, the bull shall be stoned with stones, and its meat shall not be eaten, but the owner of the bull shall not be liable. 29But if the bull was prone to gore before yesterday and before the third day and they warn its owner and he does not restrain it and it kills a man or a woman, the bull shall be stoned, and its owner shall die as well. 30And if a ransom is imposed upon him, he shall pay a ransom for his life, whatever they impose upon him.

31 But if it goes a son or a daughter, according to this statute they shall deal with him. 32And if the bull goes a male servant or female servant, he shall give to their master thirty didrachmas of silver, and the bull shall be stoned.

35 Now if someone’s bull goes the neighbor’s bull and it dies, they shall sell the living bull and divide its silver, and the dead bull they shall divide.

36But if it is known that the bull was prone to gor- ing before yesterday and before the third day and they warn its owner and he does not restrain it, he shall pay compensation, bull for bull, but the one that died shall be his.

22 Now if anyone steals a calf or sheep and slughters or sells it, he shall pay five calves in compensation for the bull calf and four sheep for the sheep.

2 Now if the thief is found at the point of break-in and, being beaten, dies, it is not homicide in his case. 3Now if the sun has risen upon him, he is guilty. He shall die in exchange. Now if he does not have anything let him be sold for the theft.

4Now if he is caught and the stolen item from don- key to sheep is found in his hand alive, he shall compensate them double.

5 Now if someone grazes a field or vineyard and leaves his animal to graze another field, he shall pay compensation from his field according to its yield. But if he should graze all the field, the best of his field or the best of his vineyard he shall pay in compensation.

6 Now if fire breaks out and finds thorns and burns a threshing floor or ears of grain or a plain, the one who started the fire shall pay compensation.

7 Now if someone gives to a neighbor silver or goods to guard and it is stolen from the person’s house, if the thief be found, he shall pay double in compensation. 8But if the thief is not found, the owner of the house shall draw near before God and swear that surely he himself has not acted wickedly against the entire deposit of the neighbor.

9 With regard to any specific injustice concerning calf and draft animal and sheep and garment and any loss which is alleged, whatever in fact it might be, the trial of both parties shall come before God, and the one convicted by God shall pay double in compensation to his neighbor.

10 Now if someone gives the neighbor a draft animal or sheep or calf or any animal to guard and it breaks a limb or dies or becomes captive and no one knows, 11there shall be an oath of God between both parties that surely he has not acted wickedly against the entire deposit of the neighbor, and so his owner shall accept, and he shall not at all make compensation. 12But if it is stolen from him, he shall pay compensation to the owner. 13And if it becomes prey to wild beasts, he shall take him to the prey and shall not pay compensation.

14 Now if someone asks from the neighbor and it breaks a limb or dies and the owner is not with it, he shall pay compensation. 15But if the owner is with it, he shall not pay compensation. But if he be one who hired it, it shall be his in lieu of his hire.

16 Now if someone leads astray an unbetrothed virgin and lies with her, with a bride price he shall pay the bridal price for her as a wife for him. 17But if her father by refusing refuses and does not wish to give her to him as a wife, he shall pay silver as compensation to the father, as much as the bride price for virgins is.

18 You shall not keep sorcerers alive.

19 Everything lying with an animal, you shall with death kill them.

20 The one who sacrifices to the gods, except to the Lord alone, shall be destroyed.

21 And you shall not harm a guest, nor shall you oppress him, for you were guests in the land, Egypt. 22Every widow and orphan you shall not harm. 23But if you harm them with harm, and crying out, they call out to me, I will by paying attention listen to their voice, 24and I will be enraged with anger and will kill you with the dagger, and your wives shall be widows, and your children orphans.

25 Now if you lend silver to a poor brother near you, you shall not press him; you shall not apply interest to him. 26And, as pledge, you take in pledge the neighbor’s garment, before the setting of the sun you shall restore it. 27For this is his cloak; this alone is the garment for his shame. In what shall he sleep? If then he should cry out to me, I will listen to him, for I am merciful.

28 You shall not revile gods, and you shall not speak ill of your people’s rulers.

29 First fruits of your threshing floor and press you shall not hold back.

The firstborn of your sons you shall give to me. 30You shall do the same with your bull calf and your sheep and your draft animal. For seven days it shall be under its mother, but on the eighth day you shall restore it to me.

31 And you shall be my holy men, and meat torn by animals you shall not eat. Throw it to the dog!

23 You shall not accept a groundless report. You shall not consent with the unjust person to be an unjust witness. 2You shall not be with the majority for wrongdoing. You shall not associate with a crowd to turn side with the majority so as to turn aside a trial. 3And a poor person you shall not pity in a trial.

4 Now if you meet your enemy’s ox or his draft animal when they go astray, you shall turn back and restore them to him.

5 Now if you see your enemy’s draft animal fallen under its load, you shall not pass it by, but you shall raise it together with him.

6 You shall not pervert judgment of a poor man in his trial. 7From every unjust thing said you shall keep away. An innocent and just person you shall not kill, and you shall not acquit the impious person for the sake of bribes. 8And you shall not take bribes. For bribes blind the eyes of those who see and corrupt just matters.

9 And you shall not oppress a guest. For you know the life of a guest. For you yourselves were guests in the land, Egypt.

10 For six years you shall sow your land and gather its produce. 11But in the seventh year you shall make it rest and leave it, and the poor of your nation shall eat, and that which is left over the wild animals shall eat. So shall you do with your vineyard and your olive grove.

12 Six days you shall do your tasks, but on the seventh day you shall rest in order that your ox and your draft animal might rest and that the son of your female servant and the guest might be refreshed. 13All that I have spoken to you, observe. And you shall not recall a name of other gods; neither shall it be heard from your mouth.

14 Three times during the year hold a feast for me. 15Take heed to keep the feast of unleavened bread. Seven days you shall eat unleavened bread, just as I commanded you according to the time of the month of the new things. For in it you came out of Egypt.

You shall not appear before me empty-handed.

16 And you shall make a feast of the harvest of first products of your labors, whichever you sowed in your field, and a feast of completion at the end of the year at the gathering of your labors that are from your field. 17Three times during the year every male of yours shall appear before the Lord your God.

18 For whenever I cast out nations from before you and enlarge your borders, you shall not offer the blood of my sacrifice near leaven, nor shall the fat of my feast lie until morning.

19 The first fruits of the first products of your land you shall bring into the house of the Lord your God.
You shall not boil a lamb in its mother’s milk.

20 And look, I am sending my angel in front of you in order to guard you on the way in order to bring you into the land that I prepared for you. 21Mind yourself, and listen to him, and do not disobey him. For he shall not hold you in undue awe, for my name is upon him.

22 If by paying attention you listen to my voice and do all that I tell you, I will be an enemy to your enemies and will resist those who resist you. 23 For my angel will go, leading you, and will bring you in to the Amorrite and Chettite and Pherezite and Chananite and Gergesite and Heuite and Iebousite, and I will destroy them. 24You shall not do obeisance to their gods nor serve them. You shall not act according to their practices, but with demolition shall demolish and by smashing shall smash their stèles. 25And you shall serve the Lord your God, and I will bless your bread and your wine and your water, and I will turn away sickness from you. 26There shall not be a childless or barren woman in your land. I will fulfill the number of your days. 27And I will send fear, leading you, and I will confound all the nations, those into which you are entering, and I will make all your adversaries fugitives. 28And I will send horns before you, and it shall drive out the Amorrites and the Huites and the Chananites and the Chettites from you. 29I will not drive them out in one year, lest the land become desolate and the wild animals of the land become many against you. 30Littl by little I will drive them out from you until you are increased and inherit the land. 31And I will set your boundaries from the Red Sea until the Sea of the Phyllistim and from the wilderness until the great river Euphrates. And I will surrender into your hands those dwelling in the land, and I will drive them out from you. 32You shall not make a covenant with them and their gods. 33And they shall not dwell in your land, lest they make you sin against me. For if you are subject to their gods, these people shall be an obstacle for you.

24 And he said to Moyses, “Come up to the Lord, you and Aaron and Nadab and Abioud and seventy of the elders’ council of Israel. 2And Moyses alone shall come near to God, but they themselves shall not come near. And the people shall not come up together with you.” 3And Moyses went in and recounted to the people all God’s words and statutes. And all the people answered with one voice, saying, “All the words that the Lord has spoken we will do and heed.” 4And Moyses wrote all the words of the Lord. Now, early in the morning, Moyses constructed an altar at the foot of the mountain and twelve stones for the twelve tribes of Israel. 5And he sent the young men of the sons of Israel, and they offered whole burnt offerings and sacrificed a sacrifice of deliverance to God, bull-calves. 6Now, taking half of the blood, Moyses poured it into bowls, and half of the blood he poured out towards the altar. 7And taking the book of the covenant, he read in the ears of the people, and they said, “All that the Lord has said we will do and heed.” 8Then Moyses, taking the blood, scattered it over the people and said, “Look, the blood of the covenant that the Lord made with you concerning all these words.”

9 And Moyses and Aaron and Nadab and Abioud and seventy of the elders’ council of Israel went up. 10And they saw the place, there where the God of Israel stood, and that which was beneath his feet, like something made from lapis lazuli brick and like the appearance of the firmament of heaven in purity. 11And not even one of the chosen of Israel perished. And they appeared in the place of God and were eating and drinking.

12 And the Lord said to Moyses, “Come up to me into the mountain, and be there. And I will give you the stone tablets, the law and the commandments that I wrote to legislate for them.” 13And Moyses rose up, and Iesous who assisted him, and went up into the mountain of God. 14And they said to the elders, “Wait quietly here until we return to you. And look, Aaron and Hor are with you. If a case arises for someone, let them go to them.”

15 And Moyses and Iesous went up into the mountain, and the cloud covered the mountain. 16And God’s glory descended upon the mountain, Sina, and the cloud covered it for six days, and the Lord called Moyses on the seventh day from the midst of the cloud. 17Now the appearance of the Lord’s glory was like a flaming fire on the top of the mountain before the sons of Israel. 18And Moyses entered into the midst of the cloud and went up into the mountain, and he was there on the mountain for forty days and forty nights.

25 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 2Speak to the sons of Israel, and take for me first fruits from all those to whom it seems good in their heart, and you shall receive my first fruits. 3And this is the first fruits that you shall take from them: gold, silver, bronze, 4blue, purple, double scarlet and twisted linen and goat’s hair 5and red-dyed rams’ skins and blue skins and decay-resistant wood 6and stones of sardius and stones for engraving for the shoulder-strap and the full-length robe. 7And you shall make a holy precinct for me, and I shall appear among you. 8And you shall make for me according to all that I show you on the mountain—the pattern of the tent and the pattern of all its furnishings. So you shall make.

9(10) And you shall make an ark of witness from decay-resistant wood, the length two and a half cubits and the width a cubit and a half and the height a cubit and a half. 10(11)And you shall gold-plate it with pure gold. Outside and inside you shall gild it, and you shall make for it twisted gold moldings around. 11(12)And you shall cast four gold rings for it and put them on the four sides, two rings on the one side and two rings on the second side. 12(13) And you shall make carrying-poles from decay-resistant wood and gold-plate them with gold. 13(14) And you shall put the carrying-poles into the rings on the sides of the ark to lift the ark with them. 14(15) In the rings of the ark the carrying-poles shall be fixed. 15(16) And you shall deposit in the ark the witnesses, whichever I give you.

16(17) And you shall make a propitiatory as a cover of pure gold, the length two and a half cubits and the width one and a half cubits. 17(18) And you shall make two cherubim engraved in gold, and you shall position them at both sides of the propitiatory. 18(19) They shall be made—one cherub on this side and one cherub on the second side of the propitiatory. And you shall make the two cherubim on the two sides. 19(20) The cherubim shall be stretching the wings above, overshadowing with their wings the propitiatory and their faces towards one another. Towards the propitiatory shall the faces of the cherubim be. 20(21) And you shall place the propitiatory on the ark above, and in the ark you shall deposit the witnesses, whichever I give you. 21(22) And I will be known to you from there, and I will speak to you from above the propitiatory in between the two cherubim that are on the ark of witness, even in accord with all that I may command you for the sons of Israel.

22(23) And you shall make a table of pure gold, the length two cubits and the width one cubit and the height a cubit and a half. 23(24) And you shall make for it twisted gold moldings around, 24(25) and you shall make for it a rim, a handbreadth all around. 24 And you shall make a twisted molding for the rim around. 25(26) And you shall make four gold rings, and you shall place the rings on the four parts of its feet (27) under the rim. 25(26) And the rings shall be for sheaths for the carrying-poles so as to lift the table with them. 27(28) And you shall make the carrying-poles from decay-resistant wood, and you shall gold-plate them with pure gold, and the table shall be lifted by them. 28(29) And you shall make its bowls and censers and libation cups and ladles, those with which you shall pour a libation. Of pure gold you shall make them. 29(30) And you shall place upon the table facing loaves, in front of me always. 30(31) And you shall make a lampstand from pure gold. You shall make the lampstand engraved. Its stem and branches and bowls and buds and lilies shall be part of it. 31(32) Now six branches going out sideways, three branches of the lampstand out of its one side and three branches of the lampstand out of the second side. 32(33) And three bowls shaped like nuts on one branch, a bud and a lily. This is a perpetual precept for your descendants from the sons of Israel.

28 And you, bring near to yourself both Aaron, your brother; and his sons from the sons of Israel to serve me as priests—Aaron and Nadab and Abioud and Eleazar and Ithamar, sons of Aaron. 2 And you shall make a holy vestment for Aaron, your brother, for honor and glory. 3 And you, tell all those skilled in mind, whom I have filled with the spirit of perception, and they shall make the holy vestment of Aaron for the holy place, in which he shall serve me as priest. 4 And these are the vestments that they shall make—the chest piece and the shoulder-strap and the full-length robe and tasseled tunic and turban and sash. And they shall make holy vestments for Aaron and his sons to serve as priests. 5And they shall take the gold and the blue and the purple and the scarlet and the linen.

6 And they shall make the shoulder-strap from twisted linen, woven work of an embroiderer. 7There shall be two shoulder-straps for it, joined one to the other, attached at the two sides. 8And the web of the shoulder-straps, which is on it, in accordance with its fabrication, shall be of gold and blue and purple and spun scarlet and twisted linen. 9And you shall take two emerald stones and shall engrave on them the names of the sons of Israel, 10six names on the one stone and the six remaining names on the second stone, according to their generations. 11With the work of the gem-cutter's craft, engraving of a seal, you shall engrave the two stones with the names of the sons of Israel. 12And you shall set the two stones on the shoulders of the shoulder-strap. Stones of remembrance they shall be for the sons of Israel. And Aaron shall bear the names of the sons of Israel before the Lord on his two shoulders, a remembrance for them.

23(29) And Aaron shall take the names of the sons of Israel on the oracle of judgment on his chest, d as he enters into the holy place, a remembrance before God d. 24And you shall place on the oracle of judgment the tassels; you shall place the chains on both sides of the oracle. 25And the two little shields you shall place upon both the shoulders of the shoulder-strap in the front. 26(30)And you shall place in the oracle of judgment the “disclosure” and the “truth,” and it shall be on the chest of Aaron whenever he enters into the holy place before the Lord, and Aaron shall bear the judgments of the sons of Israel on his chest before the Lord always.

27(31) And you shall make a foot-length undergarment entirely blue. 28(32)And its collar shall be in the middle, having a border around the collar, work of a weaver, with the binding interwoven with it, lest it be torn. 29(33)And you shall make on the hem of the undergarment below little pomegranates, as a flowering pomegranate tree, from blue and purple and spun scarlet and twisted linen, upon the hem of the undergarment around, and the same form, little gold pomegranates and bells between them round about. 30(34) Beside a little golden pomegranate, a bell and a blossom on the hem of the undergarment around. 31(35) And its sound shall be heard for Aaron in his ministering, as he enters into the holy place before the Lord and comes out, lest he die.

32(36) And you shall make a pure gold thin plate and shall put in relief in it the relief of the seal “Holiness of the Lord.” 33(37) And you shall place it on twisted blue, and it shall be on the headaddress. It shall be at the front of the headaddress. It shall be at the front of the headaddress, and this plate shall be in the middle, having a border around it, and a border like the one above it, and it shall be on the forehead of Aaron, and Aaron shall take the names of the sons of Israel on his shoulders on the two rings of the shoulder-strap on the front of his face. 34(38) And it shall be between the high places of the feet, and the shoulder-strap shall be visible before God. 35(39) And the fringes of the tunics shall be of linen. And you shall make a linen turban, and a sash you shall make, work of an embroiderer.

36(40) And for the sons of Aaron you shall make tunics and sashes, and you shall make turbans for them for honor and glory. 37(41) And you shall put them on Aaron, your brother, and his sons with him. And you shall anoint them and fill them with the holy膏油, and consecrate them so that they may serve me as priests. 38(42) And you shall make for them linen drawers to hide the shame of their flesh; from hip to... thighs they shall be. 39 And Aaron and his sons shall wear them, whenever they enter the tent of witness or whenever they come near to the altar of the holy place to minister, and they shall not bring onto themselves sin, lest they die: a perpetual precept for him and his seed after him.

29 And these are things that ye shall make for them to consecrate them so that they serve me as priests. You shall take one young calf from the cattle and two rams without blemish and unleavened loaves kneaded with oil and unleavened cakes coated with oil. You shall make them with fine flour from wheat. 3And you shall place them upon one reed basket and bring them near on the reed basket, and the young bull and the two rams. 4And Aaron and his sons you shall bring near to the doors of the tent of witness and wash them with water. 5And taking the vestments, you shall clothe Aaron, your brother, with both the full-length robe and the shoulder-strap and the oracle, and you shall join together the oracle to the shoulder-strap for him. 6And you shall place the headdress on his head and place the thin plate "Holiness" on the headdress. 7And you shall take some of the oil of anointing and pour it upon his head and anoint him. 8And his sons you shall bring near and clothe them with tunics and gird them with the sashes and put on them the turbans, and they shall have a priesthood to me forever. And you shall validate the hands of Aaron and the hands of his sons.

10 And you shall bring near the calf to the doors of the tent of witness, and Aaron and his sons shall place their hands on the head of the calf before the Lord by the doors of the tent of witness. 11And you shall slaughter the calf before the Lord by the doors of the tent of witness, and the blood, you shall pour it against the altar round about. 12And the ram you shall divide limb by limb. 13And you shall take from the blood of the calf and place on the altar. 14And you shall slaughter it, and taking thefat covering the intestines and the lobe of the liver and the two kidneys and the fat on them and the right shoulder—for this is validation—23 and a loaf, one from oil, and a cake, one from the reed basket of unleavened things placed before the Lord, 24 and you shall place all these things on the hands of Aaron and on the hands of his sons, and you shall deduct them as an advance deduction before the Lord. 25 And you shall take these things from their hands and offer up on the altar of the whole burnt offering for an odor of fragrance before the Lord. It is a sacrifice for the Lord.

26 And you shall take the breast from the ram of validation, which is for Aaron, and set it apart as something set apart before the Lord, and it shall be for you for a share. 27 And you shall consecrate the breast as something set apart, and the shoulder of the advance deduction, which has been set apart and which has been deducted in advance from the ram of validation from Aaron and from his sons. 28 And it shall be for Aaron and his sons a perpetual precept from the sons of Israel. For this is an advance deduction, and it shall be an advance deduction from the sons of Israel from the victims of deliverance, an advance deduction for the Lord.

29 And the vestment of the holy place that is for Aaron shall be for his sons after him, for them to be anointed in them and to validate their hands. 30 For seven days the priest who replaces him from his sons shall wear these things, who shall enter into the tent of witness to minister in the holy things.

31 And you shall take the ram of validation and boil the flesh in a holy place. 32 And Aaron and his sons shall eat the flesh of the ram and the loaves in the reed basket beside the doors of the tent of witness. 33 They shall eat these things that they have been consecrated by, to validate their hands, to consecrate them, and an alien shall not eat from these things, for they are holy. 34 But if there should remain any of the flesh of the sacrifice of validation and of the loaves until morning, you shall burn the leftovers with fire. It shall not be eaten, for it is something made holy.

35 And you shall do to Aaron and his sons thus according to all things that I commanded you. For seven days you shall validate their hands. 36 And the young calf for the sin you shall do on the day of the purification, and you shall purify the altar when you perform consecration for it, and you shall anoint it so that you consecrate it. 37 For seven days you shall purify the altar and consecrate it, and the altar shall be holy of the holy. Everyone who touches the altar shall be consecrated.
38 And these are things that you shall do on the altar: two yearling lambs without blemish each day upon the altar perpetually, an offering in perpetuity. 39The one lamb you shall do in the morning, and the second lamb you shall do in the evening. 40And a tenth of fine flour mixed with beaten oil, the fourth of a hin, and a libation, the fourth of a hin of wine, with the one lamb. 41And the second lamb you shall do in the evening. In accordance with the morning sacrifice and in accordance with its libation you shall do, an odor of fragrance, an offering for the Lord, 42a sacrifice in perpetuity throughout your generations, at the doors of the tent of witness before the Lord, by which I will be known to you there so as to speak to you. 43And I will there prescribe for the sons of Israel, and I will be regarded as holy by my glory. 44And I will consecrate the tent of witness and the altar, and Aaron and his sons I will consecrate to serve me as priests. 45And I will be invoked among the sons of Israel and will be their god. 46And they will know that I am the Lord their God who brought them from the land of Egypt, to be invoked by them and to be their god.

30 And you shall make an altar of incense from decay-resistant wood. 2And you shall make it a cubit long and a cubit wide. It shall be square and two cubits high. Its horns shall be part of it. 3And you shall gold-plate them with pure gold, its hearth and its sides round about and its horns, and you shall make for it a twisted gold molding round about. 4And two pure gold rings you shall make for it below its twisted molding; on the two sides you shall make them at the two flanks. And they shall be housings for the sticks to carry it by them. 5And you shall make sticks from decay-resistant wood, and gold-plate them with gold. 6And you shall place it in front of the veil that is over the ark of witnesses by which I will be known to you there. 7And Aaron will burn on it mixed, finely ground incense. Morning by morning, whenever he prepares the lamps, he will burn incense on it. 8And whenever Aaron lights the lamps in the evening, he will burn incense on it—incense of perpetuity always before the Lord for their generations. 9And you shall not offer it other incense, offering, sacrifice, and a libation you shall not pour on it. 10And Aaron will make atonement on its horns once in the year. By means of the blood of the purification of sins, the atonement, once in the year he will purify it for their generations. It is a holy of holies for the Lord.

11 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 12If you take the count of the sons of Israel in their review, they each shall also give a ransom for his soul to the Lord, and there shall not be damage among them in their review. 13And this is what they shall give, as many as pass along the review: the half of the didrachma, which is according to the holy didrachma. The didrachma is twenty obols. Now the half of the didrachma is a tax for the Lord.

14Everyone who passes along for the review from twenty years and upward shall give the tax to the Lord. 15The wealthy person will not increase, and the poor person will not decrease the half of the didrachma when giving the tax to the Lord to make atonement for your souls. 16And you shall take the silver of the tax from the sons of Israel and give it for the labor cost of the tent of witness, and for the sons of Israel it shall be a remembrance before the Lord to make atonement for your souls.

17 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 18Make a bronze washbasin and a bronze base for it for washing. And you shall put it between the tent of witness and between the altar, and you shall pour water into it. 19And Aaron and his sons will wash from it their hands and their feet with water. 20Whenever they enter into the tent of witness, they will wash with water and will not die, or whenever they come near to the altar to minister and to offer the whole burnt offerings to the Lord, 21they will wash their hands and their feet with water, lest they die. And it will be for them a perpetual precept, for him and his generations after him.

22 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 23And you, take spices, the flower of choice myrrh, five hundred shekels and sweet-smelling cinnamon, half of this, two hundred and fifty and sweet-smelling cane, two hundred and fifty 24and five hundred sanctuary shekels of iris and a hin of oil from olives. 25And you shall make it a holy anointing oil, aromatic perfume by the craft of a perfumer; it shall be a holy anointing oil. 26And you shall anoint from it the tent of witness and the ark of witness 27and the lampstand and all its utensils and the altar of incense 28and the altar of the whole burnt offerings and all its utensils, and the table and its utensils, and the washbasin and its base. 29And you shall consecrate them, and they shall be holy of holies. Everyone who touches them shall be consecrated. 30And Aaron and his sons you shall anoint and shall consecrate them to serve me as priests. 31And to the sons of Israel it shall be a remembrance between you and me, a holy thing to the Lord.

32On the flesh of a person it shall not be poured, and according to this mixture there shall not be made for yourselves such as this. It is holy, and it shall be to you something made holy. 33Whoever makes such as this and whoever gives of it to an alien shall be destroyed from his people.” 34 And the Lord said to Moyses: Take for yourself spices—oil of myrrh, onycha, galbanum that is sweet and translucent frankincense, each shall be in equal proportion. 35And they will make it incense, perfumed work of a perfumer, mixed, pure, holy work. 36And you shall beat some of it small and place it before the witnesses in the tent of witness, there where I shall be known to you. It shall be a holy of holies for you. 37Incense according to this mixture you shall not make for yourselves. It is to you something made holy to the Lord. 38Whoever makes such as this, so as to be scented with it, shall perish from his people.

31 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

2 Look, I have summoned by name Beseleel the son of Ouri son of Hor of the tribe of Lousas, 3 and I have filled him with a divine spirit of skill and intelligence and knowledge in every work, 4 to be designing and to construct, to fashion the gold and the silver and the bronze and the blue and the purple and the spun scarlet and the twisted linen 5 and the stone works and for the works crafted from wood, to fashion according to all the works. 6 And I have appointed him and Eliab the son of Achisamach from the tribe of Dan, and to everyone intelligent at heart I have given intelligence, and they shall make all things that I instructed you—7 the tent of witness and the ark of the covenant and the propitiatory that is on it and the furnishings of the tent 8 and the altars and the table and all its utensils and the pure lampstand and all its utensils 9 and the washbasin and its base 10 and Aaron’s ministry vestments and the vestments of his sons to serve me as priests 11 and the oil of anointing and the incense of the mixture for the sanctuary—according to all that I commanded you, they shall do.

12 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

13 And you, instruct the sons of Israel, saying, “Observe and keep my sabbaths! For it is a sign with me and among you for your generations in order that you may know that I am the Lord who consecrates you. 14 And you shall keep the sabbaths, because this is holy for you. The one who profanes it shall with death be put to death. Everyone who does work on it, that soul shall be destroyed throughout his people. 15 For six days you shall do work, but on the seventh day there is Sabbath, a rest holy to the Lord. Everyone who does work on the seventh day shall be put to death. 16 And the sons of Israel will keep the sabbaths to observe them throughout their generations, an everlasting covenant with me and the sons of Israel.” It is an everlasting sign because in six days the Lord made the heaven and the earth, and on the seventh day he stopped and rested.

18 And he gave Moyses, when he stopped speaking to him on the mountain, Sina, the two tablets of witness, stone tablets written by the finger of God.

32 And when the people saw that Moyses delayed to come down from the mountain, the people gathered together before Aaron and say to him, “Get up, and make us gods who will go before us. For this Moyses, the man who brought us out from the land of Egypt, we do not know what has happened to him.” 2 And Aaron says to them, “Remove the gold earrings in the ears of your wives and daughters, and bring them to me.” 3 And all the people removed the gold earrings in their ears and brought them to Aaron. 4 And he received from their hands and formed them with an engraving tool and made them a molten calf and said, “These are your gods, Israel, who brought you up from the land of Egypt.” 5 And when Aaron saw, he built an altar before it, and Aaron proclaimed, saying, “The Lord’s feast tomorrow!” 6 And early the next day, he brought whole burnt offerings and offered a sacrifice of deliverance, and the people sat down to eat and drink, and they arose to play.

7 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, “Go! Descend quickly from here, for your people have acted lawlessly, whom you brought out of the land of Egypt. 8 They have deviated quickly from the way that you commanded them. They made for themselves a calf and did obeisance to it and offered sacrifices to it, and they said, 9 These are your gods, Israel, who brought you up from the land of Egypt.” 10 And now allow me, and, enraged with anger against them, I will destroy them and make you into a great nation.”

11 And Moyses prayed before the Lord his God and said, “Why, Lord, are you enraged with anger against your people whom you brought out of the land of Egypt with great power and an uplifted arm? 12 Lest the Egyptians should speak, saying, ‘With evil intent he led them out to kill them in the mountains and to destroy them utterly from the earth,’ stop the anger of your rage, and be propitious at the wickedness of your people, 13 remembering Abraam and Isaak and Iakob, your domestics, to whom you swore by yourself and spoke to them, saying, ‘I will greatly multiply your seed as the stars of the sky in number,’ and all this land that you said you would give to their seed, and they will possess it forever.” 14 And the Lord was propitiated concerning the harm that he said he would do to his people.

15 And Moyses turned and went down from the mountain, and the two tablets of witness were in his hands, stone tablets written on both their sides; on this side and that side they were written. 16 And the tablets were God’s work, and the writing, God’s writing, was engraved in the tablets. 17 And when Iesous heard the sound of the people shouting, he says to Moyses, “The sound of war is in the camp!” 18 And he says, “It is not the sound of those taking the lead by force or the sound of those taking the lead in a rout, but the sound of those taking the lead in wine I hear.”

19 Now when he was drawing near to the camp, he sees the calf and the dancing, and being enraged with anger, Moyses threw from his hands the two tablets and shattered them beneath the mountain. 20 And taking the calf that they made, he burnt it with fire and ground it small and scattered it on the water and made the sons of Israel drink it.

21 And Moyses said to Aaron, “What did this people do to you that you brought upon them great sin?" 22 And Aaron said to Moyses, "Do not be enraged, lord. For you know the impulse of this people. 23 For they say to me, 'Make us gods who will go before us. For this Moyses, the man who brought us out of the land of Egypt, we do not know what has happened to him.' 24 And I said to them, 'If gold things belong to anyone, take them off!' and they gave them to me, and I threw them into the fire, and this calf came out!"

25 And when Moyses saw the people, that it had scattered—for Aaron scattered them, an object of gloating to their opponents—26 then Moyses stood at the gate of the camp and said, "Who is with the Lord? Let him come to me!" Then all the sons of Leui gathered to him. 27 And he says to them, "This is what the Lord, the God of Israel, says, 'Each one put his own sword on his thigh, and go through, and return from gate to gate through the camp, and each one kill his brother, and each one his neighbor, and each one the one nearest to him.'" 28 And the sons of Leui did according as Moyses said to them, and there fell from the people on that day about three thousand men. 29 And Moyses said to them, "You filled your hands with a great sin, and made for yourselves gold gods. 30 And it happened on the next day that Moyses saw the people, that it had scattered for Aaron scattered them, an object of gloating to their opponents—31 then Moyses went up into the mountain unto the Lord, and he stood upon the top of the mountain two days and two nights. 32 And he said to Moyses, "If anyone has sinned before me, I will erase him from my book. 33 But now go, and make atonement for your sin." Then Moyses went back to the people and said to them, "Thus has the Lord commanded..."

30 And it happened on the next day that Moyses said to the people, "You have sinned a great sin, and now I will go up to God in order that I might make atonement for your sin." 31 Then Moyses turned to the Lord and said, "I beg, O Lord. This people has sinned a great sin and made for themselves gold gods. 32 And now, if you shall forgive them the sin, forgive. But if not, erase me from your book that you have written." 33 And the Lord said to Moyses, "If anyone has sinned before me, I will erase him from my book. 34 But now go, and lead this people to the place that I told you. Look, my angel will go before your face. But on whichever day I concern myself, I will bring upon them their sin."

35 And the Lord struck the people for the making of the calf that Aaron made.

And the Lord said to Moyses, "Go, ascend from here, you and your people, whom you brought out of the land of Egypt, into the land that I swore to Abraam, Isaak and Iakob, saying, 'To your seed I will give it.' 2 And I will send along my angel before you, and he will cast out the Amorrite and Chettite and Pherezite and Gergesite and Heuette and Leboisite. 3 And he will lead you into a land flowing with milk and honey. For I shall never go up together with you because you are a stiff-necked people, lest I exterminate you in the way."

4 And when the people heard this grievous statement, they mourned in mournful ways. 5 And the Lord said to the sons of Israel, "You are a stiff-necked people. Watch, lest I bring another plague upon you and exterminate you. Now then, take off the vestments of your glory and the ornamentation, and I will show you what I will do to you."

6 And the sons of Israel removed their ornamentation and finery from the mountain of Choreb.

7 And Moyses took his tent and pitched it outside the camp, far from the camp, and it was called "tent of witness." And it happened that everyone who was seeking the Lord would go out to the tent outside the camp. 8 And when Moyses would go into the tent, all the people stood, watching, each one at the doors of his tent, and they would pay attention as Moyses went away until he entered into the tent. 9 And whenever Moyses entered into the tent, the pillar of cloud would descend and stand at the doors of the tent and would speak to Moyses. 10 And all the people would see the pillar of cloud standing at the doors of the tent, and all the people stood and did obeisance each one at the door of his tent. 11 And the Lord spoke to Moyses face to face, as if someone should speak to his own friend. And he would return to the camp, but his attendant, Iesous son of Naue, a young man, would not go out of the tent.

12 And Moyses said to the Lord, "Look, you say to me, 'Lead up this people!' but you did not disclose to the Lord whom you would send along with me. And you said to me, 'I have known you above all others, and you have favor with me.' 13 If then I have found favor before you, disclose yourself to me. Let me see you recognizably in order that I might find favor before you and in order that I might know that this nation is your people." 14 And he says, "I myself will go before you, and I will give you rest." 15 And he says to him, "If you yourself do not go, do not lead me up from here. 16 And how shall it be truly known that I have found favor with you and in order that I might know this nation is your people?"

17 Then the Lord said to Moyses, "Even this word that you have spoken, I will do for you. For you have found favor before me, and I know you above all others." 18 And he says, "Show me your own glory!" 19 And he said, "I will pass by before you in my glory, and I will call by my name Lord before you. And I will have mercy on whomever I have mercy, and I will have compassion on whomever I have compassion." 20 And he said, "You shall not be able to see my face. For a person shall never see my face and live." 21 And the Lord said, "Look, a place is near me. You shall stand on the rock. 22 Now, whenever my glory passes by, then I will put you in a hole of the rock, and I will cover you with my hand until I pass by. 23 And I will take my hand away, and then you shall see my hind parts, but my face will not appear to you."

34 And the Lord said to Moyses, "Cut for yourself two stone tablets, just like the first ones, and ascend to me onto the mountain, and I will write upon the tablets the words that were on the first tablets that you shattered, 2 and be pre-

pared for the morning, and you shall come up onto the mountain, Sinai, and shall stand there for me on the top of the mountain. 3And let no one come up with you or be seen in all the mountain. And do not let the sheep and the cattle graze near that mountain. 4And he cut two stone tablets, just like the first ones. And when it was early in the morning, Moyses went up onto the mountain, Sinai, just as the Lord instructed him. And Moyses took with him the two stone tablets. 5And the Lord descended in a cloud, and he stood beside him there, and he called in the name of the Lord. 6And the Lord passed by before his face, and he called, "The Lord, the Lord God is compassionate and merciful, patient and very merciful and truthful and preserving righteousness and doing mercy for thousands, taking away acts of lawlessness and of injustice and sins, and he will not acquit the guilty person, bringing lawless acts of fathers upon children and upon children of children, upon the third and fourth generation."

And quickly, bowing down to the earth, Moyses did obeisance 9 and said, "If I have found favor before you, let my Lord go together with us. For the people are stiff-necked, and you shall take away our sins and lawless acts, and we will be yours." 10 And the Lord said to Moyses: Look, I am making a covenant with you. Before all your people I shall do glorious things that have not happened in all the earth and in any nation. And all the people among whom you are will see the works of the Lord because the things that I will do made are witnesses of all the earth and in any nation. And all the people among whom you are will see the works of the Lord because the things that I will do shall be declared before their eyes. 11 Mind all the things that I command you. Look, I am casting out from before you the Amorite and Chananite and Chettite and Pherezite and Gergesite and leboussite. 12 Mind yourself, lest you make a covenant with those dwelling on the land that you are entering into, lest it become a stumbling block for you. 13 Their altars you shall tear down, and their steles you shall break, and their groves you shall cut down, and the cast images of their gods you shall burn with fire. 14 For you shall not do obeisance before another god. For the Lord God, a jealous name, is a jealous God, 15 lest you make a covenant with those dwelling on the land and they go fornicating after their gods and they sacrifice to their gods and invite you and you should eat their sacrifices 16 and you should take from their daughters the sons of your sons and from your daughters you should give to their sons and your daughters go fornicating after their gods and they lead your sons to fornicate after their gods.

And you shall not make for yourself molten gods.

And the feast of unleavened bread you shall keep. Seven days you shall eat unleavened bread, according as I have commanded you, during the time in the month of the new things. For in the month of the new things you came out of Egypt. 19 All that opens the womb, the males are mine, firstborn of a cow and firstborn of a sheep. 20 And you shall redeem the firstborn of a draft animal with a sheep. Now if you do not redeem it, you shall give a price. Every firstborn of your sons you shall redeem.

You shall not appear before me empty-handed.

21 Six days you shall work, but on the seventh day you shall rest. In seedtime and harvest you shall rest. 22 And a feast of weeks you shall make for me during the beginning of the wheat harvest, and a feast of gathering in the middle of the year. 23 Three times per year every male of yours shall appear before the Lord, the God of Israel. 24 For whenever I cast out the nations from before you and enlarge your borders, no one shall desire your land whenever you go up to appear before the Lord your God three times per year.

25 You shall not slaughter the blood of my sacrifices near leaven, and sacrifices of a feast of pascha shall not lie until morning.

26 The first products of your land you shall bring into the house of the Lord your God.

You shall not boil a lamb in its mother’s milk.

27 And the Lord said to Moyses: Write for yourself these words. For on the basis of these words I have made a covenant with you and Israel. 28 And Moyses was there before the Lord for forty days and forty nights. He did not eat bread and he did not drink water. And he wrote these words on the tablets of the covenant, the Ten Words.

29 And as Moyses was descending from the mountain, the two tablets also were in Moyses’ hands. Now as he was descending from the mountain, Moyses did not know that the appearance of the skin of his face was charged with glory, and they were afraid to come near to him. 30 And Aaron and all the elders of Israel saw Moyses, and the appearance of the skin of his face was charged with glory, and they were afraid to come near to him. 31 And Moyses called them, and Aaron and all the rulers of the congregation turned to him, and Moyses spoke to them. 32 And after these things all the sons of Israel drew near to him, and he commanded them all the things that the Lord said to him on the mountain, Sinai. 33 And when he stopped speaking to them, he placed a covering over his face. 34 But whenever Moyses would enter in before the Lord to speak with him, he would remove the covering until coming out. And when he came out, he would tell all the sons of Israel what the Lord commanded him. 35 And the sons of Israel saw the face of Moyses that it was charged with glory, and Moyses put a covering over his face until he went in to converse with him.
2 Six days you shall do works, but on the seventh day there is a rest, something holy, Sabbath, a reposing for the Lord. Let everyone who does work in it die! 3 You shall not kindle a fire in any settlement of yours on the day of the sabbaths. I am the Lord.

4 And Moyses spoke to the entire congregation of the sons of Israel, saying: This is the matter that the Lord instructed, saying: 5 Take from among yourselves an advance deduction for the Lord. Everyone who is disposed in heart will bring the first fruits to the Lord, gold, silver, bronze, 6 blue, purple, double spun scarlet and twisted linen and goats’ hair 7 and red-dyed rams’ skins and blue skins and decay-resistant wood 8(9) and stones of sardius and stones for engraving for the shoulder-strap and the full-length robe.

9(10) And let everyone among you skilled in mind come and fashion all the things that the Lord instructed— 10(11) the tent and the wrappings and the coverings and the hooks and the bars and the pillars 11(12) and the ark of witness and its carrying poles and its propitiatory and the veil 12(13) and the hangings of the court and its pillars 13(14) and the stones of emerald 14(15) and the incense and the oil of the anointing 15(16) and the table and all its utensils 16(17) and the lampstand of the light and all its utensils 17(18) and the altar and all its utensils 18(19) and the holy vestments of Aaron, the priest, and the vestments that they will minister in 19 and the tunics of the priesthood for the sons of Aaron 15 and the oil of the anointing and the incense of the mixture.

20 And the entire congregation of the sons of Israel went away from Moyses. 21 And each one whose heart was inclining brought, and to whose mind it seemed good, they brought an advance deduction for the Lord for all the works of the tent of witness and for all its labor costs and for all the work the stone and to fashion the wood and to make by every work of skill 3 and to instruct as well he gave him in his mind, both to him and to Eliab the son of Achisamach from the tribe of Dan. 35 And they filled them with skill and intelligence of mind to understand all things, to make the works of the holy place and to weave the woven and the embroidered things with the scarlet and the linen, to make every work of construction, of embroidery.

36 And Beseleel and Eliab and everyone skilled in mind, to whom were given skill and knowledge in them to know how to make all the works according to the holy things that are fitting, did according to all that the Lord instructed. 2 And Moyses called Beseleel and Eliab and all those having the skill, to whom God gave knowledge in their heart, and all those who freely desired, to make a start on the works so as to complete them, 3 and they received from Moyses all the advance deductions that the sons of Israel brought for all the works of the holy place to make them, and they were still receiving the things being offered from those who were bringing morning by morning. 4 And all the skilled who were making the works of the holy place, each one according to his work that they were fashioning, were drawing near 5 and said to Moyses, “The people are bringing much beyond the works that the Lord has instructed to do.” 6 And Moyses ordered and proclaimed in the camp, saying, “Let man and woman no longer work for the first fruits of the holy place.” And the people were prevented from offering any more. 7 And the works were sufficient for the equipment, to make it, and they had a surplus.

8 And every skilled person among those working made the vestments of the holy places that belonged to Aaron, the priest, according as the Lord instructed Moyses.

9(2) And they made the shoulder-strap from gold and blue and purple and spun scarlet and twisted linen. 10 And the leaves of gold were cut up as hairs so as to weave together with the blue and the purple and with the spun scarlet and with the twisted linen. They made it a woven work, shoulder pieces joined from both sides, a work woven into one another by mutual twisting of each part. 12 From it they made in accord with its making, from gold and blue and purple and spun scarlet and twisted linen, according as the Lord instructed Moyses.

13(6) And they prepared both stones of emerald, having been fastened and set about with gold, inscribed and engraved with the engraving of a seal with the names of the sons of Israel, 14(7) and he set them on the shoulders of the shoulder-strap, stones of remembrance of the sons of Israel, according as the Lord instructed Moyses.

15(8) And they made an oracle, a work woven with embroidery, like the work of the shoulder-strap, from gold and blue and purple and spun scarlet and twisted linen. 16(9) They made the oracle square, doubled: the length of a span and the width of a span, doubled. 17(10) And there was interwoven in it a woven piece, set with stones, with four rows. A row of stones—sardius and topaz and emerald—was the one row. 18(11) And the second row—ruby and sapphir and beryl. 19(12) And the third row—ligurion and agate and amethyst. 20(13) And the fourth row—chrysolite and beryl and onyx, set in gold and bound in gold. 21(14) And the stones were of the names of the sons of Israel, twelve corresponding to their names, engraved seals, each with its own name for the twelve tribes. 22(15) And they made on the oracle plaeted tassels, a work of braiding, from pure gold. 23(16) And they made two small gold shields and two gold rings. 24(17) And they put the two gold rings on both corners of the oracle. 25(18) And they put the braids of gold on the rings on both sides of the oracle and onto the two couplings, the two braids. 26(19) And they put them on the two small shields and put them on the shoulders of the shoulder-strap opposite in front. 27(20) And they made two gold rings and put them on the two wings, at the extremity of the oracle, on the extremity of the rear of the shoulder-strap inward. 28(21) And they made two gold rings and put them on both shoulders of the shoulder-strap below it, in front beneath the coupling, above the woven strap of the shoulder-strap. 29(22) And he fastened the oracle by the rings on it to the rings of the shoulder-strap, being held together by the blue, having been interwoven into the woven work of the shoulder-strap, lest the oracle be loosened from the shoulder-strap, according as the Lord instructed Moyses.

30(23) And they made the undergarment beneath the shoulder-strap, a woven work entirely blue. 31(24) Now the collar of the undergarment was in the middle interwoven, plaeted together, having an indestructible border around the collar. 32(25) And they made on the hem of the undergarment little pomegranates as of a flowering pomegranate tree, from blue and purple and spun scarlet and twisted linen. 33(26) And they made gold bells and put the bells on the hem of the undergarment all around between the little pomegranates. 34(27) A gold bell and a little pomegranate were on the hem of the undergarment all around in order to minister, according as the Lord instructed Moyses.

35(28) And they made linen tunics, a woven work, for Aaron and his sons. 36(29) And the turbans from linen and the headdress from linen and the drawers from twisted linen. 37(30) And they made the thin gold plate, something set apart of the holy place, of pure gold. 38And he wrote letters on it, put in relief like a seal, “Holiness to the Lord.” 40(31) And they put on the border something blue so that it lay on the head-dress above, in the same manner as the Lord instructed Moyses.

37 (36.8b) And they made for the tent ten curtains. 2(9) Twenty-eight cubits was the length of the one curtain. All were the same. And the width of the one curtain was four cubits.

9A length of the one curtain was twenty-eight cubits, and a width of four cubits was the one curtain; the measurement was the same for all the curtains and the five curtains joining one from the other and five curtains joining one from the other. 10And he made blue loops on the edge of the one curtain from the side for the coupling. And thus he did on the edge of the outer curtain for the second coupling. 11Now fifty loops he made for the one curtain, and fifty loops he made from the side of the curtain according to the coupling of the second. The loops were opposite to one another for each one. 12And he made fifty gold clasps, and he joined together the curtains, one to the other with the clasps. And the tent became one. 13And he made hairy skins as a cover over the tent. Eleven skins he made them. 15The length of the one skin was thirty cubits and the width of the one skin was four cubits; the measurement was the same for the eleven skins. 16And he joined the five skins together and the six skins together. 17And he made fifty loops on the edge of the skin in between as a coupling, and fifty loops he made on the edge of the adjoining second skin. 18And he made fifty bronze clasps, and he joined the tent to be one. 19And he made red-dyed skins of rams as a covering for the tent and blue skins above as an outer covering. 20And he made the pillars for the tent from decay-resistant wood, standing. 21The length of the pillar was ten cubits, and the width of the one pillar was a cubit and half a cubit. 22Two hooks for the one pillar opposite one to the other; thus he made all the pillars of the tent. 23And he made the pillars of the tent twenty pillars on the side towards the south southward. 24And forty silver bases he made for the twenty pillars, two bases for the one pillar for both its parts and two bases for the one pillar for both its parts. 25And the second side of the tent towards the north he made twenty pillars and their forty silver bases, two bases for the one pillar and two bases for the one pillar. 27And on the back parts of the tent seaward he made six pillars. 28And two pillars he made on the corners of the tent on the backsides. 29And they were even beneath, and in the same way they were even at their capitals for one connection. Thus he did for the two, for both corners. 30And there were eight pillars and their silver bases, sixteen bases, two bases for the one pillar and two bases for the one pillar. [31]And he made five bars from decay-resistant wood for the pillar on the one side of the tent. [32]And five bars for the pillar on the second side of the tent and five bars for the rear pillar of the tent towards the sea. [33]And he made the middle bar reaching between the pillars from side to side. [34]And the pillars he gold-plated with gold, and their rings he made of gold into which he inserted the bars, and he gold-plated the bars with gold.

3(35)And they made the veil from blue and purple and spun scarlet and twisted linen, a woven work with cherubim. 4(36)And they put it on four decay-resistant pillars gold-plated with gold, and their capitals were gold, and their four bases silver.

5(37)And they made the veil of the door of the tent of witness from blue and purple and spun scarlet and twisted linen; a woven work with cherubim.

6(38)And its five pillars and their clasps and their capitals and their bands they gold-plated with gold, and their five bases were bronze.

7(38.9) And they made the courtyard. The hangings of the courtyard towards the southwest were from twisted linen, a hundred by a hundred. [8]And their pillars were twenty, and their bases twenty. 9And the side towards the north was a hundred by a hundred, and their pillars were twenty, and their bases twenty. 10And the side towards the sea, curtains were fifty cubits. Their pillars were ten, and their bases ten. 11And the side towards the east was fifty cubits; [14]there were hangings of fifteen cubits to the rear, [15]and their pillars were three, and their bases three. 16And on the second rear part here and there by the gate of the courtyard there were curtains of fifteen cubits, and their pillars were three and their bases three. 17And on the second side, wide enough so as to carry with the staves in them.

11(15) And the staves of the ark and the table he made and gold-plated them with gold.

[17.10b]From decay-resistant wood. Its length two cubits and its width a cubit and its height a cubit and a half. [11]He gold-plated it with pure gold, and he made for it gold molding around. [12]And he made for it a rim, a handbreadth around. And he made gold molding for its rim around it. [13]And he made for it four gold rings, and he put the rings on the four sides, which are part of its feet; [14]under the rim. And the rings were for sheaths for its poles, so as to carry the table. [15]And he made the poles from decay-resistant wood, and he gold-plated them with gold, so as to carry the table.

12(16) And he made the utensils of the table, both the bowls and the censers and the ladles and the libation bowls, those with which he would pour a libation, of gold.

13(17) And he made the lampstand, which gives light, of gold, [14]firm, the stem [18]and the branches on both of its sides, [15]from its branches the buds projecting, three from this one and three from that one, equal to one another, 16and their lamp-holders, which are on the ends, almond-like out of them, and the sockets out of them in order that the lamps might be on them, and the seventh socket on the end of the lamp-holder on the top above, firm, completely gold, 17and seven lamps on it of gold and its snuffers of gold and its pouring vessels of gold.

[17.17]From pure gold he made the lampstand engraved, its stem and its branches and its mixing bowls and its buds and its lilies; they were part of it. [18]Now, there were six branches going out from its sides, three branches of the lampstand from its one side and three branches of the lampstand from its second side. [19]Three mixing bowls, shaped like nuts, on the one branch a bud and a lily, and three mixing bowls shaped like nuts, on the one branch a bud and a lily. Thus for the six branches that go out from the lampstand. [20]And on the lampstand were four mixing bowls shaped like nuts, its buds and its lilies. [21]The bud was under the two branches of it, for the six branches that go out from it. [22]Their buds and their branches were part of it. The whole was engraved from one piece of pure gold. [23]And he made its seven lamps and its snuffers and its pouring vessels from pure gold. [24] A talent of pure gold he made it and all its utensils. [25] This man made the gold altar from decay-resistant wood. Its length was five cubits and its width, five cubits, square, and its height three cubits. He made its horns. [26] And he gold-plated them with pure gold, its top and its sides around and its horns, and he made it for gold molding around it. [27] And two gold rings he made for it under its molding on its two sides beneath both its sides, for sheaths for the poles in order to carry it by them. [28] And he made the poles decay-resistant wood, and he gold-plated them with gold.

18 This one silver-plated the pillars with silver, and he cast gold rings for the pillars and gilded the bars with gold and gold-plated the pillars of the veil with gold, and he made the hooks of gold. [19] This one made also the clasps of the tent of gold and the clasps of the courtyard and clasps to spread out the covering above of bronze. [20] This one cast the silver capitals of the tent and the bronze capitals of the door of the tent and for the gate of the courtyard. And he made silver hooks on the pillars. [21] This one silver-plated them. [22] This one made both the pegs of the tent and the pegs of the courtyard of bronze.

22 (1-2) This one made the bronze altar from the bronze fire-pan that belonged to the men who revolted with the gathering of Kore. [23] This one made all the utensils of the altar, both its base and the fire-pan and the saucers and the meat hooks, of bronze. [24] This one made for the altar an appendage, a latticed work beneath the fire-pan under it, as far as its middle, [25] and he set on it four rings on the four sides of the appendage of the altar, of bronze, wide enough for the bars so as to carry the altar by them.

25 (37,29) This one made the holy oil of anointing and the mixture of the incense, a pure work of a perfumer.

26 (38,8) This one made the bronze washbasin and its bronze base from the mirrors of the women who fasted, who fasted by the doors of the tent of witness, in the day he pitched it. [27] And he made the washbasin in order that Moyses and Aaron and his sons might wash from it, according as the Lord instructed Moyses.

be holy. 8(10) And you shall anoint the altar of the offerings and all its utensils, 9 and you shall consecrate the altar, and the altar shall be a holy of holies. 10(12) And you shall bring Aaron and his sons near to the doors of the tent of witness and wash them with water, 11(13) and you shall put the holy vestments on Aaron and shall anoint him and consecrate him, and he shall serve me as priest. 12(14) And his sons you shall bring near and shall put tunics on them, 13(15) and you shall anoint them in the same way you anointed their father, and they shall serve me as priests, and it shall be so that their anointing for priesthood is forever for their generations. 14(16) And Moyses did all the things that the Lord commanded him; so he did.

15(17) And it happened in the first month in the second year when they came out from Egypt, at the new moon, the tent was set up, 16(18) and Moyses set up the tent and put on the capitals and inserted the bars and set up the pillars, 17(19) and he stretched out the curtains over the tent and put on the covering of the tent over it above, according as the Lord instructed Moyses. 18(20) And taking the witnesses, he put them into the ark and put the staves under the ark, 19(21) and he brought the ark into the tent and put on the covering of the veil and protected the ark of witness, just as the Lord instructed Moyses. 20(22) And he positioned the table in the tent of witness on the side of the tent of witness towards the north, outside the veil of the tent, 21(23) and he presented on it loaves of presentation before the Lord, just as the Lord instructed Moyses. 22(24) And he positioned the lampstand in the tent of witness, towards the side of the tent towards the south, 23(25) and he put on its lamps before the Lord, just as the Lord instructed Moyses. 24(26) And he positioned the gold altar in the tent of witness in front of the veil, 25(27) and he burnt on it the incense of the mixture, according as the Lord instructed Moyses. 26(29) And the altar of the offerings he placed near the doors of the tent of witness, 27(33) and he set up the courtyard around the tent and the altar, and Moyses finished all the works.

28(34) And the cloud covered the tent of witness, and the tent was filled with the glory of the Lord. 29(35) And Moyses was unable to enter into the tent of witness, because the cloud was overshadowing it, and the tent was filled with the glory of the Lord. 30(36) Now whenever the cloud lifted from the tent, the sons of Israel moved camp with their household stuff. 31(37) But if the cloud did not lift, they did not move camp until the day in which the cloud lifted. 32(38) For cloud was over the tent by day and fire was over it by night before all Israel in all their journeyings.
Edition of the Greek Text
The NETS translation of Leuitikon has been based on the edition of John William Wevers (Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Auctoritate Academiae Scientiarum Gottingensis editum II.2: Leviticus [Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1986]). Wevers’ edition is accompanied by two supplemental volumes: The Text History of the Greek Leviticus (Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1986) and Notes on the Greek Text of Leviticus (SBLSCS 44; SBL: Atlanta, 1997). The Greek text of Leviticus from which I made the NETS translation includes the emendations to the Göttingen text suggested by Wevers in his Notes, p. 483. I record differences between the Göttingen edition and the emended text in Notes (WeNs) in the NETS footnotes by the designation Weed.

This Translation
On Method
What I attempt in this translation is to reflect, by way of English, the translational convention at work in the mind of the Greek translator as indicated by the text he produced. The Greek Leviticus is a text that the translator constructed on the basis of how he understood his Hebrew parent text to function, in combination with what he thought that Hebrew text meant. In other words, he was accounting as best he could for Hebrew words and syntactical units while toeing the line of a peculiar translational convention. His is not a freestanding idiomatic translation based on an understanding of the idiom of Hebrew syntactic units. Rather, his strange Greek is first and foremost a reflection of his attitude to his parent text and the force his parent text exerted on his choice of equivalents.

In the first place, then, NETS Leuitikon tries to be an English translation of a Greek translation. As the general introduction, “TO THE READER OF NETS,” points out, this is the approach of NETS: to present to the English reader the two-dimensionality of the Septuagint. This text has a horizontal dimension in terms of the relation of Greek words and phrases to each other, and it has a vertical dimension in terms of its subservience to the Hebrew text(s) from which it was translated.

Meaning of Greek words
My point of departure is that Greek words are taken to mean what they meant in standard Greek of the time. Such a method helps to avoid two lexicographical pitfalls. The first is the practice of reading Hebrew meanings into Greek words on the basis of their occurrence in the LXX. The second is partially to allow the context within the LXX to determine the meaning of a Greek word/phrase used in an abnormal way. Consequently, for example, it was not possible to translate κοίτη σπέρματος with “sexual intercourse” as the Hebrew הָגִיא הַרֹץ or the Greek context implies. Instead the reader will find “bed of semen.” Although κοίτη alone can mean “sexual intercourse” in non-translation Greek, the phrase as we find it in Leuitikon is not so attested. The same applies to προσήλυτος, which cannot be assumed to mean “stranger” on the basis of its pairing with Hebrew צֶר or its use in context. I have rather tried by the gloss “guest” to convey something of the sense of “come over as stranger.” In other words, a προσήλυτος was deemed an outsider to the group but nonetheless accorded special treatment, not unlike the Mediterranean hospitality lavished on guests. Some Greek words are transcriptions of the source language; others were constructed from Semitic roots, e.g., πάσχα from פָּסָחָה and σβατιζó from פַּסָחָה, which have been rendered as “pascha” and “sabbatize,” respectively. Leuitikon contains no obvious calques (see “TO THE READER OF NETS”).

Nature of the Greek Translation
General Remarks
Enough detailed information on the characteristics of the language employed in the Greek Leviticus and the individual quirks of the translator can be found in Wevers’ Notes. Further comment may be found in the introduction of Paul Harlé and Didier Pralon’s Le Levitique BA (1988). As a result, I will focus on the semantic aspects of a few of the translator’s choice of words.

In general it may be said that the translator of Leuitikon, to use Albert Pietersma’s words, is not “performing his translator’s duty to the reader, namely, to convey the total meaning of the source text.” Rather, instead of trying to convey meaning in idiomatic Greek from larger Hebrew phrases, he works mostly from the individual Hebrew syntactical units and what individual Greek equivalents he has chosen for them. This fact is further borne out by the lack of connecting particles found in the Septuagint.

The preceding description is witnessed most clearly by what are known as relative misnomers found in the Greek rendering of the resumption of the pronoun found in Hebrew syntax. A typical Hebrew relative sentence such as Lev 15.20b

|אַלָּו אַלָּו תְּדַבּֽר | may be translated literally: “and everything that she sits on [it] . . . shall be unclean.” The Greek translator renders the Hebrew more or less word for word as follows: καὶ πᾶν εἰς τὸ ἑαυτόν ἡ καθαρτία ἐστιν. I have endeavored to pass this on to the reader as follows, using the colloquial English sentence with the preposition separated from its object: “everything also which she sits down on shall be unclean.”

Distributives

Among the translators of the Pentateuch it was especially the Leuitikon translator who insisted on rendering the Hebrew distributive קָדָשָׁה distributives literally, and therefore woodenly, with resultant negative transfer from the source language. Thus, for example, on six occasions (17.3, 8, 10, 13; 18.6; 22.18) he translated it by ἄνθρωπος ἄνθρωπος (“person by person”), once (15.2) by ἄνδρα ἄνδρα (“man by man”), twice (22.4; 24.15) by ἄνθρωπος (“a person”) and once (20.2) by τίς (“any one”).

Some Individual Words

On the level of individual words one finds this one-to-one dependence also to be true, in most cases. For example, the Hebrew word translated as “grain offering” in the NRSV will appear in NETS simply as “offering” because the Greek translator has chosen a general Greek term for offering as his counterpart for every occurrence of that Hebrew word. The same thing applies to the Hebrew use of “hand” in combination with other words to produce idioms. Someone whose “hand reaches” is someone who has financial means. There is a good Greek word for this, ἐυπορεία, which by itself would have accounted for the Hebrew. It does indeed appear in 25.26, but the Greek translator is constrained to account in Greek for the Hebrew “hand” and therefore adds to his idiom an unnecessary item. Fortunately the English of NETS can come to the rescue with “has plenty in hand.” When in 25.35 a person becomes poor, the result is that in Hebrew one “has a shaky or slippery hand.” The Greek translator rendered this phrase by the singular and well chosen Greek term ἀδυνατία, “to lack strength,” which would have sufficed to account for the Hebrew, but once again the translator’s attitude toward his parent text demanded at this point that he account also for “hands.” This same situation holds true for the Hebrew formula “to ordain,” which is “to fill the hands.” In Leuitikon (8.33; 16.32; 21.10), as also in Numbers and Exodus, the Greek translator chooses the verb τελεσθεῖα, “to complete, validate” plus “hand.” This phrase comes into NETS as “whose hand has been validated,” compared to the phrase “who has been ordained” in the NRSV, signaling that the Greek translator worked in a word-for-word manner rather than choosing an idiomatic option. Similar examples are ἁρπάζω, which NETS renders “rupture” for מָכַס, whereas NRSV has “itch,” and ὀψις, which NETS translates “attack” for מָכַס, while NRSV has “disease.”

Cultic Terminology

In rendering Hebrew cultic terminology into Greek, there seems to be certainty about some kinds of sacrifices but not about others. For instance we find that for the Hebrew words מָכַס “sin/sin offering” and מָכַס “guilt/guilt offering,” the Greek counterparts are always the same, i.e., ἁμαρτία and πλημμέλεια. They are rendered in NETS by “sin” and “error,” respectively. But for the Hebrew “wave offering,” מָכַס, there are four different Greek equivalents: δῶμα, ἄφορισμα (also used for the Hebrew מָכַס, NRSV “offering”), ἐπίθεμα and ἀφόρισμα. Its cognate verb מָכַס (Hiphil) also has four different Greek equivalents: ἐπιτίθημι, ἀφορίσμα, ἀποφορίζω and ἀναφόρησις. In these instances the Greek equivalents do not approximate the meaning of the Hebrew. It could be that by the time this translation was made, all but certain kinds of sacrifices had lost their meaning to the translator.
Consistency

The words “mostly” and “in most cases” used above for the translator’s modus operandi are important, because the Leuitikon translator is not consistent in the way he goes about things. Even though in most cases he works atomistically, ignoring Greek idiom, the odd exception occurs. In this he is quite distinct from the translators of Deuteronomy and Exodus, for example. This circumstance can be illustrated by the comparative “than,” which in Hebrew is expressed by the word “from” (גַּם). Commonly the translator will choose his standard preposition for the Hebrew “from” and construct a barely intelligible Greek sentence, e.g., 13.3 ταπεινή στο τού δέρματος NETS: “low in the skin,” cf. NRSV “deeper than the skin.” But occasionally he decides instead to employ the standard Greek idiomatic expression for the same Hebrew, e.g., 13.30, 31 ἐγκολότερα τοῦ δέρματος NETS: “more hollow than the skin.”

The standard explanations that try to account for the inconsistency in Leuitikon do not do justice to the complexity of this book. If it appears that his poor Greek usage may provide one clue, one could put forward equal evidence of his grammar and choice of translation equivalents being of a decent standard. Variation for the sake of creativity also does not satisfy as an explanation because there are enough instances of blatant un-creativity to persuade one otherwise. Leuitikon may thus be said to have many faces.

Interlinearity as an Explanatory Model for Inconsistency

The interlinear model developed by Albert Pietersma does offer a plausible explanation in that it points to the two-dimensionality of the text. The translator worked in small bits at a time. His Greek syntactic units, at any given instance, were subject to interference from the parent text, but this interference happens to a greater or lesser degree from moment to moment. There is therefore a lack of semantic coherence at times but also a lack of systematization. The result is that we have a disordered text and a text that is episodic in its nature. The lack of semantic coherence is attributable to the interference from the parent text, but not in all instances. Other factors that produce inconsistency such as changes in number and person are difficult to explain due to our ignorance of the exact form of the translator’s source text and whether the translator ever made changes on his own initiative.

NETS AND THE NRSV

The procedure followed in my translation was always to start with the NRSV and then to alter it insofar as it did not represent the Greek or the differences between the Hebrew and the Greek. So the reader should as a rule of thumb expect NETS to reveal the differences between the Greek and the Hebrew from a synoptic point of view. Occasionally this will be overridden by the need to point out the force of the Hebrew upon the Greek, as in the occurrence of “and” or other particles that are the equivalent of Hebrew.

In NETS the actions at the altar will appear quite different from the NRSV. Often the verbs in the Greek are unrelated to the action expressed in Hebrew. Also the verbs in Hebrew would frequently have a verbal suffix or the object marker plus suffix, whereas the Greek would have none. Although an assumed objective pronoun might be standard practice in Greek, this absence of “it” or “them” will appear in NETS to distinguish these cases from the times when the objective pronoun does appear in the Greek. Thus one would find in NETS “the priest shall do the presenting” (1.15). But when neither the Hebrew nor the Greek have the objective pronoun, but NRSV does include it for the sake of style, then it will appear in NETS, e.g., “he will lay it” (2.9).

Sometimes the English of NETS unavoidably misrepresents the Greek. For example in chapter 4 and 7.10, where I have rendered ψυχή (f) by “soul,” the personal pronouns “she” or “her” that follow will be rendered by “him” or “his” in NETS.

Acknowledgments

Albert Pietersma, who is the driving force behind the NETS project, has given much of his time to devote personal attention to me and the problems raised by this difficult book. I am pleased to acknowledge his valuable advice and criticism. Leonora Jackson was a great help in the more difficult chapters.

1 Pietersma, “Paradigm.”
1 And the Lord summoned Moyses and spoke to him from the tent of witness, saying: 2 Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: When a person of you brings gifts of livestock to the Lord, you shall bring your gifts from the cattle and from the sheep.

3 If his gift is a whole burnt offering from the cattle, he shall present a male without blemish; he shall bring it to the door of the tent of witness, acceptable before the Lord. 4 And he shall lay his hand on the head of the offering, a thing acceptable to him to atone for him. 5 And they shall slaughter the bull calf before the Lord, and the sons of Aaron the priests shall offer the blood, and they shall pour out the blood against all sides of the altar that is at the entrance of the tent of witness. 6 And when they flay the whole burnt offering, they shall cut it up limb by limb. 7 And the sons of Aaron the priests shall put fire on the altar and pile wood onto the fire. 8 And the sons of Aaron the priests shall pile the divided parts and the head and the suet onto the wood that is on the fire on the altar. 9 But the entrails and the legs they shall wash with water, and the priests shall lay everything on the altar. It is an offering, a sacrifice, an odor of fragrance to the Lord.

10 But if his gift for a whole burnt offering to the Lord is from the small cattle, both from the lambs and the kids, he shall present a male without blemish, and he shall lay his hand on its head. 11 And they shall slaughter it on the north side of the altar before the Lord, and the sons of Aaron the priests shall pour out its blood against all sides of the altar. 12 And they shall divide it up limb by limb with its head and its suet, and the priests shall pile them on the wood that is on the fire on the altar. 13 And its entrails and its legs they shall wash with water. And the priest shall present everything and lay it on the altar. It is an offering, a sacrifice, an odor of fragrance to the Lord.

14 But if the gift he brings to the Lord is an offering from the birds, then he shall bring his gift from the turtledoves or from the doves. 15 And the priest shall do the presenting at the altar and snip off the head. And the priest shall do the placing on the altar and squeeze out the blood against the base of the altar. 16 And he shall remove the crop with the feathers and throw it at the east side of the altar, in the place for ashes. 17 And he shall break it open by the wings and not divide it. And the priest shall lay it on the altar on the wood that is on the fire. It is an offering, a sacrifice, an odor of fragrance to the Lord.

Now if a soul presents a gift, a sacrifice to the Lord, his gift shall be fine flour, and he shall pour oil on it and put frankincense on it—it is a sacrifice—2 and he shall bring it to the sons of Aaron the priests. And after gripping from it a handful of the fine flour with the oil and all its frankincense, the priest shall lay its memorial portion on the altar; it is a sacrifice, an odor of fragrance to the Lord. 3 And what remains from the sacrifice is for Aaron and his sons, a holy of holies from the Lord’s sacrifices.

4 But if he presents a gift, a sacrifice baked in the oven, it shall be of fine flour: unleavened cakes mixed with oil and unleavened wafers spread with oil. 5 But if your gift is a sacrifice from a frying-pan, it shall be fine flour mixed with oil, unleavened, and you shall break them in pieces and pour oil onto them; it is a sacrifice to the Lord. 6 But if your gift is a sacrifice from a brazier, fine flour shall be prepared in oil. 7 And he shall present to the Lord the sacrifice that he may prepare from these, and he shall do the presenting to the priest. And having approached the altar, 8 the priest shall remove from the sacrifice its memorial portion, and the priest shall lay it on the altar; it is an offering, an odor of fragrance to the Lord. 9 But what is left of the sacrifice is for Aaron and his sons: a holy of holies from the Lord’s offerings.

11 You shall not prepare any sacrifice that you may bring to the Lord with leaven, for you shall not present any leaven and any honey to offer of it to the Lord. 12 You shall present them to the Lord as a gift of first fruit, but they shall not be brought onto the altar for an odor of fragrance to the Lord. 13 And every gift of your sacrifice shall be salted with salt. You shall not omit from your sacrifices the salt of the Lord’s covenant; on each gift of yours you shall offer salt to the Lord your God.

14 But if you present a sacrifice of first products to the Lord, new, roasted, pounded, wheaten groats, to the Lord, then you shall bring the sacrifice of first products, 15 and you shall pour oil onto it and lay frankincense on it; it is a sacrifice. 16 And the priest shall offer up its memorial portion—some of the roasted wheaten groats with the oil and all its frankincense. It is an offering to the Lord.

3 Now if his gift to the Lord is a sacrifice of deliverance, if he brings it from the cattle, whether male or female, he shall bring it without blemish before the Lord. 2 And he shall lay his hands on the head of the gift, and he shall slaughter it at the entrance to the tent of witness, and the sons of Aaron the priests shall pour out the blood against all sides of the altar of whole burnt offerings. 3 And they shall bring from the sacrifice of deliverance an offering to the Lord: the fat that covers the entrails and all the fat that is on the entrails and the two kidneys and the fat that is on them at the thighs, and he shall remove the appendage that is on the liver with the kidneys. 4 And the sons of Aaron the priests shall offer them up on the altar, on the whole burnt offerings on the wood that is on the fire; it is an offering, an odor of fragrance to the Lord.

6 But if his gift, a sacrifice of deliverance to the Lord, is from the sheep, male or female, he shall present it without blemish. 7 If he brings a lamb as his gift, he shall bring it before the Lord, and he shall lay his hands on the head of his gift, and he shall slaughter it at the entrance of the tent of witness. And the sons of Aaron the priests shall pour out the blood against all sides of the altar. 8 And he shall present some of the sacrifice of deliverance as an offering to God: the fat and the lower back without blemish (he shall remove it with the loin muscles) and the fat that covers the entrails and the fat that is on the entrails and both the kidneys and the fat that is on them at the thighs, having also removed the appendage which is on the liver with the kidneys, the priest shall make an offering on the altar, an odor of fragrance, an offering to the Lord.

4 And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: 2 Speak to the sons of Israel, saying: If a soul sins unintentionally before the Lord regarding the Lord’s ordinances, which one must not do, and does any one of them:

3 If it is the anointed high priest who sins, so that the people sin, then he shall bring for his sin that he has committed a calf from the cattle without blemish to the Lord for his sin. And he shall bring the bull calf to the door of the tent of witness, and the sons of Aaron the priests shall pour out the blood against all sides of the altar. And he shall offer up of it as an offering to the Lord: the fat that covers the entrails and all the fat that is on the entrails and both the kidneys and all the fat that is on them at the thighs, and he shall remove the appendage of the liver with the kidneys. And the priest shall offer on the altar an offering, an odor of fragrance to the Lord.

All the fat is the Lord’s. It shall be a precept for ever throughout your generations, in all your settlement; you shall not eat any fat and any blood.
And he shall remove all the fat in the same way that he removes fat from the sacrifice of deliverance, and the priest shall offer it up on the altar for an odor of fragrance to the Lord. And the priest shall make atonement for him, and it shall be forgiven him.

32 But if he brings as his gift a sheep for sin, he shall bring it: a female without blemish.

33 And he shall lay his hand on the head of the one for sin, and they shall slaughter it at the spot where they slaughtered the whole burnt offerings.

34 And after taking some of the blood of the one for sin with his finger, the priest shall put it on the horns of the altar of whole burnt offering, and he shall pour out all its blood at the base of the altar of whole burnt offering.

35 And he shall remove all its fat, as the fat of a sheep is removed from the sacrifice of deliverance, and the priest shall lay it on the altar, on the whole burnt offering of the Lord. And the priest shall make atonement for him for the sin that he has committed, and it shall be forgiven him.

5 Now if a soul sins and hears a sound of oath-taking and he is a witness or has seen it or knows of it, if he does not report the matter, he will assume the guilt.

2 Or a soul who touches any unclean thing, whether a carcass or the kill of an unclean animal or unclean carcasses of abominations or the unclean carcasses of cattle or touches some uncleanness of a person, any of his uncleanness in which he be defiled by touching, and it escaped his notice, but later on comes to know it, and should be in error, 4 or a soul who swears, determining with his lips to do evil or to do good, in any way that the person may speak forcefully by an oath, and if it escapes the notice of his eyes and if he comes to know it and should sin in any one of these,

then he shall declare his sin concerning the things in which he has sinned.

6 And he shall bring to the Lord for whatever he has done amiss, for the sin that he has committed, a female from the sheep—a lamb, or a young nanny goat for sin. And the priest shall make atonement for him for his sin that he has committed, and the sin will be forgiven him.

7 But if his hand does not have the capability for what is sufficient for a sheep, he shall bring for his sin which he has committed two turtledoves or two young doves to the Lord, one for sin and one for a whole burnt offering.

8 And he shall bring them to the priest, and the priest shall bring the one for sin first. And the priest shall snap off its head at the neck, and he shall not divide it.

9 And he shall sprinkle some blood of the one for sin against the wall of the altar, but what remains of the blood he shall squeeze out against the base of the altar, for it is for a sin.

10 And the second he shall prepare as a whole burnt offering, as is customary. And the priest shall make atonement for him for his sin that he has committed, and it shall be forgiven him.

11 But if his hand does not find a brace of turtledoves or two young doves, then he shall bring his gift for that in which he sinned: one-tenth of an ophib of fine flour for sin. He shall not pour oil on it; neither shall he place frankincense on it, because it is for sin.

12 And he shall bring it to the priest, and after gripping from it a handful, the priest shall lay its memorial portion on the altar on the whole burnt offerings to the Lord. It is for a sin.

13 And the priest shall make atonement for him, for his sin that he has committed in respect of one of these things, and it will be forgiven him. But what is left shall be for the priest like the offering of fine flour.

14 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

If a soul forgets obliquely and sins unintentionally regarding any of the holy things of the Lord, he shall then bring to the Lord for his error a ram without blemish from the sheep, of the value of silver shekels, according to the shekel of holy things for what he has done amiss.

And he shall make restitution for some of the holy things in which he was remiss and add a fifth to it and give it to the priest. And the priest shall make atonement for him with the ram for error, and it will be forgiven him.

17 And a soul that sins and does one of any of the Lord’s commandments, which he ought not to do, and does not know and is in error and assumes the sin shall then bring a ram, without blemish from the sheep of the value of silver, for error to the priest. And the priest shall make atonement for him concerning his ignorance of which he was ignorant and did not know himself, and it shall be forgiven him, because he has committed an error before the Lord.

6 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

If a soul sins and by overlooking disregards the commandments of the Lord and falsifies matters pertaining to his neighbor—in a deposit or regarding joint ownership or regarding plunder or did his neighbor some wrong or has found a loss and lied about it—and he swears falsely about one of all which a man may do in order to sin by these, then it shall be whenever he sins and is in error and restores the booty which he seized or the injustice he committed or the deposit which was deposited with him or the loss which he found because of every matter about that which he swore about unjustly, he shall also repay the capital itself, and he shall add to it one fifth. Whosoever it is, he shall restore to him on the day he should be convicted.

6 And for his error he shall bring to the Lord: a ram from the sheep without blemish, of the value for that which he offended.

7 And the priest shall make atonement for him before the Lord, and he shall be forgiven for one of all that he did and offended by it.

bHeb 1 ephah = 22 liters
Command Aaron and his sons, saying: This is the law of the whole burnt offering. The whole burnt offering itself in its burning shall be on the altar all night until the morning, and the fire of the altar shall burn on it; it shall not be put out. And he shall put on a linen tunic, and he shall put on linen drawers around his body, and he shall remove from the altar the sacrificial remains to which the fire has reduced the whole burnt offering, and he shall deposit it nearby the altar. And he shall take off his vestment and put on another vestment and carry the sacrificial remains out to a clean place outside the camp. And fire on the altar shall burn on it and shall not be put out. And the priest shall burn wood on it morning by morning and pile on it the whole burnt offering and place on it the fat of the deliverance. And a fire shall burn perpetually on the altar. It shall not be put out.

14 This is the law of the sacrifice, that which the sons of Aaron shall offer before the Lord in front of the altar. And he shall remove from it with a handful some of the fine flour of the sacrifice with its oil and with its frankincense that are on the sacrifice, and he shall offer its memorial portion on the altar: an offering, an odor of fragrance to the Lord. But what remains of it Aaron and his sons shall eat. It shall be consumed unleavened in a holy place. In the court of the tent of witness they shall eat it. It shall not be baked as leavened bread. I have given it as a portion to them from the Lord's offerings; any one who touches them shall become holy.

20 This is the gift of Aaron and his sons, which they shall present to the Lord on the day you shall anoint him: one tenth of an ephah of fine flour as a perpetual sacrifice, half of it in the morning and half of it in the evening. It shall be prepared in a frying-pan with oil; he shall bring it kneaded, rolled, a sacrifice of pieces, a sacrifice as an odor of fragrance to the Lord. The priest who is anointed shall be his. Every sacrifice of a priest shall be wholly burned and shall not be eaten.

22 And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: This is the law for the sin. They shall slaughter the one for sin before the Lord at the spot where they slaughter the whole burnt offering. They are holy of holies. The priest who offers a person's whole burnt offering: the skin of the whole burnt offering that he offers shall be his. Every sacrifice that is prepared in the oven and everything that is prepared on a hearth or in a pan is for the priest who offers it; it shall be his. Every sacrifice made up with oil or not made up shall belong to all the sons of Aaron, to each the same.

7 This is the law of the sacrifice of deliverance that they shall offer to the Lord. If he brings it for praise, then he shall bring for the sacrifice of praise cakes of fine flour made up with oil and unleavened wafers spread with oil and fine flour mixed with oil. In addition to leavened cakes he shall bring his gifts for a sacrifice of praise for deliverance. And he shall present one out of all his gifts as an advance deduction for the Lord. It shall belong to the priest who pours out the blood of the deliverance. It shall be his. And the flesh of the sacrifice of praise for deliverance shall belong to him, and on the day it is given it shall be eaten. They shall not leave any of it until the morning. And if it is a vow or if he sacrifices his gift voluntarily, it shall be eaten on the same day that he brought his sacrifice and on the next day. And what is left of the flesh of the sacrifice until the third day shall be burned up by fire. But if when eating, he should eat some of the meat on the third day, it will not be accepted for him who offers it, nor shall it be credited to him. It is a defilement, and the soul who eats any of it shall assume the guilt.

9 And meat that touches any unclean thing shall not be eaten; it shall be burned up by fire. Anyone clean shall eat meat. But the soul who should eat any of the meat of the sacrifice of deliverance, which belongs to the Lord, and his uncleanliness is on him—that soul shall be utterly destroyed from his people. 11(21) And a soul who touches any unclean thing whether of human uncleanness or of unclean quadrupeds or any unclean abomination and eats of the meat of the sacrifice of deliverance, which is the Lord’s, that soul shall be utterly destroyed from his people.

12(22) And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 13(23) Speak to the sons of Israel, saying: You shall eat no fat of cows and of sheep and of goats. 14(24) And the fat of carcasses and of things caught by wild animals may be put to any use but shall not be eaten for food.

15(25) Anyone who eats the fat of animals, of which he may bring some of them as an offering to the Lord—that soul shall be utterly destroyed from his people. 16(26) You shall not eat any blood, either of birds or of animals, in any of your settlements.

17(27) Any soul who eats blood—that soul shall be utterly destroyed from his people.

18(28) And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 19(29) And you shall speak to the sons of Israel, saying: He who brings to the Lord a sacrifice of deliverance shall bring his gift to the Lord from the sacrifice of deliverance. 20(30) His hands shall bring the offerings to the Lord. The fat that is on the breast and the appendage of the liver—he shall offer them to add to a gift before the Lord.

21(31) And the priest shall offer up the fat on the altar, and the breast shall belong to Aaron and his sons.

22(32) And the right shoulder from your sacrifices of deliverance you shall give as an advance deduction for the priest.

23(33) The one among the sons of Aaron who brings the blood and the fat of the deliverance shall have the right shoulder as a share.

24(34) For I have taken the breast of the addition and the shoulder and the firstfruits of the offering on the altar. And from the sons of Israel, from your sacrifices of deliverance, and I have given them to Aaron the priest and to his sons as a perpetual precept from the sons of Israel.

25(35) This is the anointing of Aaron and the anointing of his sons from the offerings of the Lord on the day he consecrated them to serve the Lord as priests, just as the Lord commanded to give to them on the day he anointed them out of the sons of Israel. It is a perpetual precept throughout their generations.

26(36) This is the law of the whole burnt offerings and of sacrifice and for sin and for error and for validation, and of the sacrifice of deliverance, as the Lord commanded Moyses on the mountain of Sina on the day he commanded the sons of Israel to bring their gifts before the Lord in the wilderness of Zina.

8 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 2 Take Aaron and his sons and their vestments and the anointing oil and the bull calf for sin and the two rams and the basket of unleavened bread, and assemble the whole congregation at the door of the tent of witness. 4 And Moyses did as the Lord instructed him, and he assembled the congregation at the door of the tent of witness. 5 And Moyses said to the congregation: This is the thing that the Lord commanded to do.

6 And Moyses brought Aaron and his sons forward and washed them with water. 7 And he put the tunic on him and fastened the girdle about him and put the undergarment on him, and he placed on him the shoulder-strap and girded him about according to the procedure of the shoulder-strap, and he bound him fast with it. 8 And he put on him the oracle, and he put on the oracle the explanation and the truth. 9 And he put the headband on his head, and on the headband, in front, he put the golden leaf, the devoted holy object, as the Lord instructed Moyses.

10 And Moyses took some of the anointing oil and sprinkled some of it on the altar seven times and anointed the altar and consecrated it and all its utensils and the washbasin and its base and consecrated them. And he anointed the tent and all the things in it and consecrated it. 12 And Moyses poured out some of the anointing oil on Aaron’s head and anointed him and consecrated him.

13 And Moyses brought forward the sons of Aaron and clothed them with tunics and fastened belts around them and tied turbans on them just as the Lord instructed Moyses.

14 And Moyses led forward the bull calf for sin, and Aaron and his sons laid their hands on the head of the bull calf for sin. 15 And he slaughtered it, and Moyses took some of the blood and with his finger put it on the horns of the altar round about, and he purified the altar. And he poured out the blood at the base of the altar, and he consecrated it to make atonement on it. 16 And Moyses took all the fat that was on the innards and the appendage on the liver and both kidneys and the fat on them, and Moyses performed the offering on the altar. 17 And the bullock calf and its hide and its flesh and its dung—he burned them with fire outside the camp as the Lord instructed Moyses.

18 And Moyses brought forward the ram that was for the whole burnt offering, and Aaron and his sons laid their hands on the head of the ram. 19 And Moyses slaughtered the ram, and Moyses poured out the blood against all sides of the altar.

20 And he divided up the ram limb by limb, and Moyses offered up the head and the limbs and the fat. 21 And the entrails and the legs he washed with water, and Moyses offered up the whole ram on the altar. It is a whole burnt offering, for an odor of fragrance; it is an offering to the Lord, as the Lord commanded Moyses.

22 And Moyses brought forward the second ram, the ram of validation. And Aaron and his sons laid their hands on the head of the ram.

of the altar. 25 And he took the fat and the lower back and the fat that was on the entrails and the appendage of the liver and the two kidneys and the fat on them and the right shoulder. 26 And out of the basket of validation that is before the Lord he took one unleavened cake and one oil bread and one wafer and placed them on the fat and the right shoulder. 27 He placed all these onto the hands of Aaron and on the hands of his sons, and he offered them up as an advance deduction before the Lord. 28 Then Moyses took them from their hands, and Moyses offered them up on the altar on the whole burnt offering of validation, which is an odor of fragrance; it is an offering to the Lord. 29 And after Moyses took the breast, he separated it as an addition before the Lord, from the ram of validation, and it was Moyses’ portion as the Lord commanded Moyses.

30 And Moyses took some of the anointing oil and some of the blood that was on the altar and sprinkled them onto Aaron and his vestments and onto his sons and the vestments of his sons with him, and he consecrated Aaron and his vestments and his sons and vestments of his sons with him. 31 And Moyses said to Aaron and his sons, “Boil the meat in the court of the tent of witness in a holy place, and there eat it and the cakes that are in the basket of validation as I was instructed, saying, ‘Aaron and his sons shall eat them.’ 32 And what remains of the flesh and the cakes shall be burned up by fire. 33 And you shall not go outside the door of the tent of witness seven days until the day of your validation is completed. For for seven days he will validate your hands. 34 As he did on this day, the Lord commanded to be done in order that atonement be made for you. 35 And you shall sit at the door of the tent of witness for seven days, and day and night. And you shall keep the Lord’s charges so that you do not die, for so the Lord God commanded me.” 36 And Aaron and his sons did all the things that the Lord instructed Moyses.

9 And it happened on the eighth day that Moyses called Aaron and his sons and the council of elders of Israel. 2 And Moyses said to Aaron, “Take for yourself a calf from the cows for sin and a ram for a whole burnt offering, without blemish, and offer them before the Lord. 3 And speak to the council of elders of Israel, saying, ‘Take one billy goat from the goats for sin and a lamb without blemish for a whole offering’ and a calf and a ram for a sacrifice of deliverance before the Lord and fine flour mixed with oil. For today the Lord will be shown among you.’ ” 5 And they took them, as Moyses commanded, to the front of the tent of witness, and the whole congregation drew near, and they stood before the Lord. 6 And Moyses said, “This is the thing that the Lord said, ‘Do, and the glory of the Lord will be seen among you.’ ” 7 And Moyses said to Aaron, “Draw near to the altar, and perform the one for your sin and your whole burnt offering, and make atonement for yourself and your house. And deal with the gifts of the people, and make atonement for them, as the Lord has commanded Moyses.”

8 And Aaron drew near to the altar and slaughtered the calf for sin. 9 And the sons of Aaron presented the blood to him, and he dipped his finger in the blood, and he put it on the horns of the altar, and he poured out the blood onto the base of the altar. 10 But the fat and the kidneys and the appendage of the liver of the one for sin he offered on the altar as the Lord commanded Moyses. 11 And the flesh and the hide—he burned them with fire outside the camp.

12 And he slaughtered the whole burnt offering. And the sons of Aaron brought him the blood, and he poured it out against all sides of the altar. 13 And they brought him the whole burnt offering limb by limb, them and the head, and he placed them on the altar. 14 And he washed the entrails and the legs with water, and he placed them on the whole burnt offering on the altar.

15 And he presented the people’s gift. And he took the goat for the sin of the people, and he slaughtered it and purified it like the first time. 16 And he presented the whole burnt offering and performed it as was proper. 17 And he presented the sacrifice, and he filled his hands with some of it and placed it on the altar apart from the morning whole burnt offering.

18 And he slaughtered the bull calf and the ram of the sacrifice of deliverance that was of the people. And the sons of Aaron brought the blood to him—and he poured it out against all sides of the altar—19 and the fat of the bull calf and of the ram, the lower back and the fat that covers over the entrails and the two kidneys and the fat on them and the appendage on the liver. 20 And he placed the fat pieces on the breasts, and he offered up the fat pieces on the altar. 21 And the breces and the right shoulder Aaron removed as an advance deduction before the Lord, as the Lord had instructed Moyses.

22 And after Aaron raised his hands towards the people, he blessed them. And he came down after performing the one for sin and the whole burnt offerings and those pertaining to deliverance. 23 Moyses and Aaron entered the tent of witness, and when they came out, they blessed all the people, and the glory of the Lord became visible to all the people. 24 And fire came out from the Lord and consumed what was on the altar, both the whole burnt offerings and the fat pieces, and all the people saw it and were amazed and fell face down.

10 And when the two sons of Aaron, Nadab and Abioud, each took his fire-pan, they placed fire on it and threw incense on it and offered before the Lord strange fire such as the Lord had not ordered them. 2 And fire came out from the Lord and consumed them, and they died before the Lord. 3 And Moyses said to Aaron, “This is what the Lord spoke, saying, ‘Among those who are near me I will be shown holy,'
4 And Moyses summoned Misael and Elisaphan sons of Oziel, sons of the brother of Aaron’s father, and said to them, “Come forward, and carry your brothers away from the holy things, outside the camp.” 5And they came forward and carried them by their tunics outside the camp as Moyses had said. 6And Moyses said to Aaron and Eleazar and Ithamar, his sons who remained, “You shall not unbind your head, and you shall not tear your vestments so that you do not die, and wrath will come over the whole congregation, but your kindred, the whole house of Israel, shall bewail the burning with which they were set on fire by the Lord. 7And you shall not go out of the door of the tent of witness so that you do not die, for the anointing oil from the Lord is on you.” And they did according to the word of Moyses.

8 And the Lord spoke to Aaron, saying: 9You shall not drink wine nor sikera, neither you nor your sons with you, whenever you enter into the tent of witness or when you approach the altar, and you will not die; it is a perpetual precept throughout your generations 10to distinguish between the holy and the profane and between the unclean and the clean, 11and you shall teach the sons of Israel all the precepts that the Lord has spoken to them by the hand of Moyses.

12 And Moyses said to Aaron and Eleazar and Ithamar the sons of Aaron who remained: Take the sacrifice that is left from the Lord’s offerings, and you shall eat it unleavened beside the altar. They are holy of holies. 13And you shall eat it in a holy place. For this is a precept for you and a precept for your sons from the offerings to the Lord, for so I am commanded. 14And the breast of what has been set apart and the shoulder of the advance deduction you shall eat in a holy place, you and your sons and your house with you, for it was given as a precept to you and as a precept to your sons, from the sacrifices of deliverance of the sons of Israel.

15The shoulder of the advance deduction and the breast of what was set apart you shall offer besides the sacrifices of the fat pieces, to set apart what was set apart before the Lord. And it shall belong to you and to your sons and to your daughters with you as a perpetual precept, as the Lord instructed Moyses.

16 And when Moyses inquired and sought the goat for sin—this had already been burned up! And Moyses was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar, Aaron’s remaining sons, saying, 17“Why did you not eat the one for sin in a sacred place? For, because they are holy of holies, he gave this to you to eat so that you may remove the guilt of the congregation and make atonement for them before the Lord. 18For nothing of its blood was brought into the sanctuary. You shall eat it in a holy place facing inside, as the Lord instructed me.” 19And Aaron spoke to Moyses, saying, “If today they have brought their items for sin and their whole burnt offerings before the Lord, and these things have befallen me, and if I shall eat the items for sin today, will it not be pleasing to the Lord?” 20And Moyses heard this, and it pleased him.

11 And he Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying: 2Speak to the sons of Israel, saying: From all the land animals, these are the animals that you shall eat. 3Any animal that divides the hoof and splits the hooves into two parts and brings up the cud among the animals—these you shall eat. 4But among those that bring up the cud and divide the hoof and split the hoof, you shall not eat any of them: the camel, because it brings up the cud but does not split the hoof—this one is unclean for you. 5And the hare, because this animal brings up the cud but does not split the hoof—this one is unclean for you. 6And the pig, because this animal divides the hoof and cleaves the claws of the hoof, but this animal does not bring up the cud—this one is unclean for you. 7Of their flesh you shall not eat, and their carcases you shall not touch; these things are unclean for you.

9 And these you shall eat of all that are in the waters. All those that have fins and scales in the waters and in the seas and in the wadis—these you shall eat. 10And all those in the waters or in the seas and in the wadis that do not have fins or scales, of all those things that the waters disgorge and of every living being which is in the water are an abomination.

13 And these you shall regard with loathing among the birds. And they shall not be eaten; they are an abomination: the eagle and the bearded vulture and the osprey and the vulture and the kite and those like it and a raven and those like it and ostrich and little owl and sea gull and those like it and a hawk and those similar to it and long-eared owl and diving petrel and ibis and water hen and pelican and swan and heron and water plover and those like it and hoopoe and bat.

20 And all creeping things that can fly, that walk on all fours, shall be abominations to you. 21But among the winged creeping things that walk on all fours, these you shall eat: they that have upper legs above their feet with which to leap on the ground. 22And of them, these you shall eat: the locust larva and those similar to it and the beld locust and those similar to it and the grasshopper and those similar to it and the snake-fighting grasshopper and those similar to it.

anyone who touches any of their carcasses shall be unclean until the evening. 25And anyone who carries any of their carcasses shall wash his clothes and shall be unclean until the evening. 26And among all the animals the one that is a divider of the hoof and has a cloven hoof but does not chew the cud—they shall be unclean to you. Everyone who touches any of their carcasses shall be unclean until the evening. 27And every one that walks on paws among any animals that walk on all fours shall be unclean to you. Anyone who touches any of their carcasses shall be unclean until the evening. 28And the one who carries any of their carcasses shall wash his clothes and shall be unclean until the evening. These things shall be unclean for you.

29 And these are unclean for you among the creeping things that creep on the earth: the weasel and the mouse and the dry-land crocodile, 30field mouse and chameleon and gecko and lizard and blind rat. 31These are unclean to you among all the creeping things that are on the earth. Anyone that touches them when they are dead shall be unclean until the evening. 32And anything onto which any of them falls upon, when they are dead, shall be unclean, whether any article of wood or cloth or skin or sacking, any article, when work is done with it; it shall be dipped into water, and it shall be unclean until the evening, and then it shall be clean. 33And any earthen vessel into which some of them fall inside, whatever is in it shall be unclean, and it shall be smashed. 34And any food of them fall inside, whatever is in it shall be unclean. And any liquid that could be drunk, which water comes onto, shall be unclean. And any food that could be eaten, which water comes onto, shall be unclean. And any liquid that could be drunk shall be unclean in any such vessel. 35Anything that any of their carcasses falls onto shall be unclean. Bread-ovens and pot-stands shall be demolished. These are unclean for you, 36with the exception of springs of water and a cistern and a gathering of water—it shall be clean, but whoever touches carcasses in them shall be unclean. 37But if any of their carcasses fall on any sowing seed that could be sown, it shall be clean. 38But if water is poured onto any seed and any of their carcasses fall onto it, it shall be unclean for you.

39 Now if an animal dies, that which it is permitted for you to eat—anyone who touches their carcasses shall be unclean until the evening. 40And he who eats any of these carcasses shall wash his clothing and shall be unclean until the evening. And he who carries any of their carcasses shall wash his clothing and shall be bathed in water and shall be unclean until the evening.

41 And every creeping thing that creeps on the earth: this shall be an abomination to you; it shall not be eaten. 42And whatever moves on its belly and whatever moves on four legs at all times, whatever has many feet among all the creeping things that creep upon the earth, you shall not eat it, for it is an abomination to you. 43And you shall not make your souls detestable with any that creep, those that creep on the earth, and you shall not defile yourselves with them, and you shall not become unclean by them. 44For it is I who am the Lord your God, and you shall be sanctified, and you shall be holy, for I am holy, I the Lord your God. And you shall not defile your souls with any of the creeping things that stir on the earth. 45For it is I who am the Lord who brought you up from the land of Egypt to be your God; you shall be holy, for I am holy, I, the Lord.

46 This is the law pertaining to land animals and birds and every being that moves through the water and every being that crawls upon the earth. 47To make a distinction between the unclean and between the clean and between breeding things that may be eaten and between breeding things that may not be eaten.

12 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

2Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them:

Any woman, if she is fertilized and bears a male child, shall also be unclean seven days; as at the days of the separation of her period, she shall be unclean. 3And on the eighth day she shall circumcise the flesh of his foreskin. 4And thirty-three days after that she shall remain in her unclean blood; she shall not touch anything holy or come into the holy place until the days of her purification are completed. 5But if she bears a female child, she shall be unclean twice seven days, as in her sitting apart, and sixty-six days she shall remain in her unclean blood.

6 And when the days of her purification are completed, for a son or for a daughter, she shall bring to the priest at the door of the tent of witness a lamb in its first year without blemish, for a whole burnt offering, and a young of the doves or a turtledove for sin. 7And he shall offer it before the Lord, and the priest shall make atonement for her; and he shall purify her from the source of her blood. This is the law for her who bears a male or female child. 8But if her hand does not find what is enough for a lamb, then she shall take two turtledoves or two young of doves, one for a whole burnt offering and one for sin, and the priest shall make atonement for her, and she shall be clean.

2 When any person has on the skin of his body a conspicuous lesion indicating disease, and if there is an attack of leprous disease on the skin of his body, then he shall be brought to Aaron the priest or to one of his sons the priests. 3And the priest shall look at the attack on the skin of his body, and if the hair in the attacked area has turned white and the appearance of the attack is low in the skin of the body, it is an attack of a leprous disease, and the priest shall look and declare him defiled. 4But if the conspicuous spot is white in the skin of his body and its appearance is not low in the skin and its hair has not changed to white hair but it is hardly visible, the priest shall isolate the attack for seven days. 5And the priest shall look at the attack on the seventh day, and look, the attack remains before him, the attack has not undergone change in the skin, then the priest shall isolate him seven days for the second time. 6And the priest shall look at him a second time on the seventh day, and look, the attack is not apparent, the attack has not changed in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him clean, for it is a mark, and after he has washed his clothes he shall be clean. 7But if the mark in the skin by altering changes after the priest has looked at him for his cleansing, then he shall appear a second time before the priest. 8And the priest shall look at him, and look, the mark has changed on his skin, then the priest shall declare him defiled; it is a leprous disease.

9 And as for an attack of a leprous disease—if it happens to a person, then he shall come to the priest. 10And the priest shall see, and look, there is a white lesion in the skin, and it has turned the hair white, and some of the healthy part of the living flesh is in the lesion; 11it is a leprous disease of long standing; it is in the skin of the body. And the priest shall pronounce him defiled and isolate him, for he is unclean. 12But if in breaking out, the leprous disease breaks out in the skin, and the leprous disease covers all the skin of the attacked area, from head to foot, so far as the priest can see, then the priest shall see, and look, the leprous disease has covered all the skin of the body. And the priest shall declare him clean of the attack; since it has all turned white, he is clean. 14And on the day when living tissue appears in it, he shall be declared defiled, 15and the priest shall look at the healthy tissue, and the healthy tissue will render him defiled because it is unclean. It is a leprous disease. 16But if the healthy tissue restores itself and changes to white, then he shall come to the priest. 17And the priest shall see, and look, the attack has changed to white, and the priest shall pronounce the attacked area clean. It is clean.

18 And if the flesh in its skin becomes a festering sore and if it heals 19and in the place of the festering sore there is a white lesion or a shiny one that turns white or reddens, then he shall appear before the priest. 20And the priest shall see, and look, its appearance is deeper than the skin, and its hair has turned white, and the priest shall pronounce him unclean; it is a leprous disease; it broke out in the festering sore. 21But if the priest sees, and look, the hair on it is not white, and it is not low in the skin of the flesh but is hardly visible, then the priest shall isolate him seven days. 22And if in spreading out it spreads in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean; it is an attack of leprous disease. It has broken out in the festering sore. 23But if the bright spot remains in one place and does not spread, it is the scar of the festering sore, and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

24 And if the flesh on his skin has a burn by fire and the healthy part of the burn on his skin becomes bright, shiny reddish-white or white, then the priest shall see, and look, the hair in the bright spot has turned white, and its appearance is low in the skin, it is a leprous disease; it has broken out in the burn, and the priest shall pronounce him unclean. It is an attack of leprous disease. 25But if the priest sees, and look, the hair in the bright spot is not white, and it is not low in the skin but is inconspicuous, then the priest shall isolate him seven days. 26And the priest shall examine him on the seventh day, and if in spreading out it spreads in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean. It is an attack of leprous disease. It has broken out in the festering sore. 27But if the bright spot remains in one place and does not spread in the skin but is inconspicuous, it is a lesion from the burn, and the priest shall pronounce him clean, for it is the style of the burn.

28 And as for man or woman—if there is on them an attack of leprous disease on the head or in the beard, 30then the priest shall examine the attack. And look, its appearance is more hollow than the skin and the hair in turning yellow is thin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean; it is a rupture, a leprous disease of the head or a leprous disease of the beard. 31And if the priest examines the attack of the rupture, and look, its appearance is no more hollow than the skin and there is no yellow hair in it, then the priest shall isolate the attack of the rupture for seven days. 32And on the seventh day the priest shall examine the attack, and look, the rupture has not spread and there is no yellow hair in it and the appearance of the rupture is not hollow in the skin, 33then the skin shall be shaven, but the rupture shall not be shaven. And the priest shall isolate the rupture for a second seven days.

34And on the seventh day the priest shall examine the rupture, and look, the rupture has not spread in the skin after he has been shaved and the appearance of the rupture is not hollow in the skin, the priest shall pronounce him clean. And he shall wash his clothes and be clean. 35But if in spreading, the rupture spreads in the skin after he was pronounced clean, then the priest shall look. And look, the rupture has spread in the skin; the priest shall not inspect for yellow hair because he is unclean. 37But if the rupture remains in place, visibly, and black hair has grown in it, the rupture has healed; he is clean, and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

38 And as for man or woman—if there are bright spots on the skin of their flesh, appearing white, 39then the priest shall make an examination, and look, the bright spots on the skin of his flesh appear white, it is a scaly condition; he is clean. It broke out in the skin of his flesh; he is clean.

40 Now if anyone’s head becomes bald, he is bald-headed; he is clean. 41But if his head becomes bald from the front, he has baldness of the forehead; he is clean. 42But if there is on his baldness or on the baldness of his forehead a white attack that reddens, it is a leprous disease breaking out on his bald head or his bald forehead. 43And the priest shall examine him, and look, the appearance of the attack is white, becoming red on his baldness or on the baldness of his forehead, like the appearance of a leprous disease in the skin of his flesh, 44 he is a leprous person. With defilement the priest shall pronounce him defiled; his attack is on his head.

45 And the leprous person on whom is the attack—let his clothes be loosed and his head be uncovered, and let him put on something around his mouth, and he will have been called unclean. 46 He is unclean and shall remain unclean all the days the attack is on him. He shall reside apart, and he shall spend his life outside the camp.

47 As for clothing: if an attack of leprous disease appears in it, in woolen cloth or cloth made of tow, 48 whether in the warp or in the woof, or in linen clothes or in woolen clothes or in a skin or in any article made of skin, it is an attack of leprous disease, and one shall show it to the priest. 50 And the priest shall examine the attack, and the priest shall isolate the attack for seven days. 51 And the priest shall examine the attack on the seventh day. And if the attack has spread in the cloth, whether in the warp or the woof, or in the skin, in the case of anything whereby skin is made into a product, the attack is a lasting leprous disease; it is unclean. 52 He shall burn the clothing, whether the warp or the woof, in woolen things or in linen things, or any article of skin which the attack is in, for it is a lasting leprous disease; it shall be burned with fire.

53 Now if the priest looks, and the attack has not spread in the clothing, whether in the warp or in the woof or in any article of skin, 54 then the priest shall give orders, and he shall wash the article which the disease appears in, and the priest shall isolate the attack for a second seven days. 55 And the priest shall examine the attack after it has been washed, and this attack has not changed its appearance, and the attack is not spreading; it is something unclean; it shall be burned with fire, it has been firmly set in the garment, whether in the warp or in the woof.

56 And if the priest looks and the attack has become inconspicuous after it is washed, he shall tear it out of the cloth, whether out of the warp or out of the woof or out of the skin. 57 But if it still appears in the garment, whether in the warp or in the woof or in any article of skin, it is leprous disease that has broken out; that in which the attack occurs shall be burned with fire. 58 But the cloth, whether warp or woof, or any article of skin that shall be washed and the attack shall leave it, shall then be washed a second time, and it shall be clean.

59 This is the law for an attack of leprous disease in a cloth of wool or tow, either in warp or woof, or in any article of skin, to declare it clean or defiled.

14 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

2 This is the law for the leprous person on the day that he is to be cleansed:

And he shall be brought to the priest, 3 and the priest shall go out, outside of the camp, and the priest shall see, and look, the attack of leprous disease is healed from the leprous person, 4 and the priest shall give orders, and they shall take for the one who has been cleansed two living clean fowl and cedar wood and scarlet spun thread and hyssop. 5 And the priest shall give orders, and they shall slaughter the one fowl over living water in an earthen vessel. 6 And as for the living fowl: he shall take it and the cedar wood and the scarlet spun thread and the hyssop and dip them and the living fowl in the blood of the fowl that was slaughtered over living water. 7 And he shall sprinkle it about, seven times upon the one who was cleansed of the leprous disease, and he shall be clean, and he shall send forth the living bird into the plain. 8 And the one who was cleansed shall wash his clothes and have all his hair shaven and bathe in water, and he shall be clean. And after that he shall come into the camp and shall spend time outside his dwelling seven days. 9 And it shall be on the seventh day that he shall have all his hair shaven: his head and his beard and his eyebrows, and he shall have all his hair shaven. And he shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water, and he shall be clean.

10 And on the eighth day he shall take two lambs of a year old without blemish and one sheep in its first year without blemish and three-tenths of choice flour as an offering mixed with oil and one cup of oil. 11 And the priest who cleanses shall set the person who is being cleansed, along with these things, before the Lord, at the door of the tent of witness. 12 And the priest shall take the one lamb and offer it for error, along with the cup of oil, and set it apart as something set apart before the Lord. 13 And they shall slaughter the lamb in the place where they slaughter the whole burnt offerings and the ones for sin, in a holy place, for the one for sin, like the one for error, belongs to the priest; they are holy of holies. 14 And the priest shall take some of the blood of the one for error, and the priest shall put it onto the lobe of the right ear of the one who is being cleansed and on the tip of his right hand and on the tip of his right foot.

15 And the priest, after taking some of the cup of oil, shall pour it into the left hand of the priest and wet his right finger with the oil that is in his left hand and sprinkle seven times with his finger before the Lord. 16 But the remaining oil that is in his hand the priest shall put on the lobe of the right ear of the one being cleansed and on the tip of his right hand and on the tip of his right foot, on the place of the blood of the one for error. 17 Now the oil that is left in the priest’s hand the priest shall put on the head of the one who was cleansed. And the priest shall make atonement for him before the Lord; 18 the priest shall perform the one for sin, and the priest shall make atonement for the one being cleansed from his sin. And afterward the priest shall slaughter the whole burnt offerring. 20 And the priest shall offer the whole burnt offering and the sacrifice on the altar before the Lord. And the priest shall make atonement for him, and he shall be clean.

21 But if he is poor and his hand does not find, he shall take one lamb for what he has done in error as an advance deduction, to make atonement for him, and one-tenth of fine flour mixed with oil for a sacrifice and one cup of oil, 22 also two turtledoves or two young doves, such as his hand finds, and one shall be for sin and one for a whole burnt offering. 23 And on the eighth day he shall bring them to render him clean, to the priest, to the door of the tent of witness, before the Lord, 24 and the priest shall take the lamb for error and the cup of oil and shall place them as an addition before the Lord. 25 And he shall slaughter the lamb for error and the priest shall take some of the blood of the one for error and put it on the lobe of the right ear of the one being cleansed and on the tip of his right hand and on the tip of his right foot. 26 And the priest shall pour out some of the oil into the left hand of the priest, 27 and the priest shall sprinkle with the right finger some of the oil that is in his right hand seven times before the Lord. 28 And the priest shall put some of the oil that is in his hand onto the lobe of the right ear of the one being cleansed and on the tip of his right hand and on the tip of his right foot. 29 Now the oil that is remaining in the priest’s hand he shall put onto the head of the one who was cleansed, and the priest shall make atonement for him before the Lord. 30 And he shall do one of the turtledoves or of the young doves, as his hand found, 31 one for sin and one for a whole burnt offering, along with the sacrifice, and the priest shall make atonement before the Lord for the one being cleansed. 32 This is the law in which is the attack of leprous disease and of the one who cannot find with his hand for his cleansing.

34 When you come into the land of the Chananites, which I give you in possession, and I shall give a leprous disease in the houses in the land acquired by you, 35 then he whose house it is shall come and report to the priest, saying, “Something like an attack has been seen in my house.” And the priest shall give orders to strip the house of its timber and its stones, and all the soil they shall throw into an unclean place outside the city. 41 And they shall scrape off the inside of the house round about and pour out the soil in an unclean place outside the city. 42 And they shall take other scraped stones and place them in return, instead of the stones, and take other soil and re-plaster the house.

43 But if the attack returns again and arises in the house, after he has taken out the stones and after the house has been scraped out and after it has been plastered over, 44 then the priest shall go in and look; if the attack has spread in the house, it is a lasting leprous disease in the house; it is unclean. 45 And they shall demolish the house, both its timber and its stones, and all the soil they shall take outside the city to an unclean place. 46 And he who enters the house all the days that it is isolated shall be unclean until the evening. 47 And he who sleeps in the house shall wash his garments and shall be unclean until the evening, and he who eats in the house shall wash his garments and be unclean until the evening.

48 But if the priest after coming near, enters and sees, and look, the attack, by spreading, has not spread in the house after the house was plastered over, 49 then the priest shall declare the house clean, because the attack is healed. 50 And to purify the house he shall take two living, clean fowl and cedar wood and scarlet spun yarn and hyssop 51 and shall slaughter the one fowl over living water and sprinkle with them on the house seven times. 52 And he shall purify the house with the blood of the fowl and with the living water and with the living fowl and with the cedar wood and with the hyssop and with the scarlet spun yarn, 53 and he shall send forth the living fowl away from the city into the plain, and he shall make atonement for the house, and it shall be clean.

54 This is the law concerning every attack of a leprous disease and of a rupture 55 and of leprous disease of clothing and of a house 56 and of a scar and of a mark and of a bright spot 57 and to determine on which day something is unclean and on which day it will be declared clean. This is the law for leprous disease.

15 And the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying: 2 Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them:

Man by man, whoever has a flow out of his body, his flow is unclean. 3 And this is the law of his uncleanness: when he flows seed out of his body from the flow or if his body has become compacted through the flow, this is his uncleanness because of it. All the days of the flow of his body or if his body has become compacted through the flow, this is his uncleanness. 4 Every bed that the one suffering from spermatorrhoea lies on shall be unclean, and every thing that the one suffering from spermatorrhoea sits on shall be unclean. 5 And a person who touches his bed shall wash his clothes and bathe in water and be unclean until the evening. 6 And he who sits on the object that the one suffering from spermatorrhoea has sat on shall wash his clothes and bathe in water and be unclean until the evening. 7 And he who touches the flesh of the one suffering from spermatorrhoea shall wash his clothes and bathe in water and be unclean until the evening.

8 But if the one suffering from spermatorrhoea spits on one who is clean, he shall wash his clothes and bathe in water and be unclean until the evening. 9 And anyone who carries these things shall wash his clothes and bathe in water and be unclean until the evening. 10 And everyone who touches anything that was under him shall be unclean until the evening, and he who carries these things shall wash his clothes and bathe in water and be unclean until the evening. 11 And as many as the one suffering from spermatorrhoea touches without his having rinsed his hands shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water and be unclean until the evening. 12 And as for an earthen vessel that the one suffering from spermatorrhoea touches—it shall be shattered, and a vessel of wood shall be rinsed in water and shall be clean.

13 But if the one suffering from spermatorrhoea is cleansed of his flow, then there shall be counted off for him seven days for his cleansing, and he shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water, and he shall be clean. 14 And on the eighth day he shall take for himself two turtledoves or two young doves and shall bring them before the Lord to the entrance of the tent of witness and give them to the priest. 15 And the priest shall prepare them, one for sin and one for a whole burnt offering, and the priest shall make atonement for him before the Lord for his flow.

16 And as for a person whose bed of semen issues forth from him, he shall then bathe his whole body in water and shall be unclean until the evening. 17 And all clothing and all skin which a bed of semen comes upon shall then be washed with water and be unclean until the evening. 18 In the case of a woman, if a man lies with her in a bed of semen, then they shall bathe in water and be unclean until the evening.

19 And a woman who is flowing with blood, her flow shall be in her body; she shall be in her period for seven days. Any one who touches her shall be unclean until the evening. 20 And everything which she sleeps on during her period shall be unclean; everything also which she sits down on shall be unclean. 21 And anyone who touches her bed shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water and be unclean until the evening. 22 And anyone who touches any object that she sits on shall wash his clothes and bathe in water and be unclean until the evening. 23 But if while she is in her bed or on the object where she sits on—when he touches her he shall be unclean until the evening.

24 But if anyone sleeps with her in bed and her impurity be on him, then he shall be unclean seven days, and every bed that he lies on shall be unclean.

25 And a woman, if she flows with a flow of blood for rather many days, not at the time of her period, even if she flows after her period, all the days of the flow of her impurity are like the days of her period; she shall be unclean. 26 And every bed that she lies on during all the days of the flow shall be for her as in the case of the bed of her period, and every object which she sits on shall be unclean, as in the uncleanness of her period. 27 Anyone who touches her shall be unclean and shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water and be unclean until the evening. 28 But if she is cleansed of the flow, there shall then be counted off for her seven days, and after that she shall be cleansed. 29 And on the eighth day she shall take for herself two turtledoves or two young doves and bring them to the priest to the door of the tent of witness. 30 And the priest shall perform one for sin and one for a whole burnt offering, and the priest shall make atonement for her before the Lord because of the flow of her uncleanness.

31 And you shall make the sons of Israel cautious about their uncleanness, and they shall not die on account of their uncleanness when they defile my tent that is among them.

32 This is the law of the one suffering from spermatorrhoea, and if for someone a bed of semen issues forth from him so that he becomes unclean thereby, 33 and for her who flows with blood in her period: the one suffering from spermatorrhoea in his flow, whether for a male or for a female—and for the man who lies with one who sits apart.

16 And the Lord spoke to Moyses after the two sons of Aaron died, when they brought near strange fire before the Lord, and they died. 2 And the Lord said to Moyses:

Speak to Aaron your brother, and let him not enter at any time into the sanctuary inside the veil facing the propitiatory that is on the ark of witness, and he will not die, for I will be seen in the cloud upon the propitiatory. 3 Thus shall Aaron come into the holy place: with a calf from the cattle for sin and a ram for a whole burnt offering. 4 And he shall put on the consecrated linen tunic, and linen drawers shall be on his flesh, and he shall gird himself with a linen girdle and wrap around a linen turban; they are holy vestments. And he shall bathe his entire body in water and then put them on. 5 And he shall take from the congregation of the sons of Israel two billy goats for sin and one ram for a whole burnt offering.

6 And Aaron shall offer the bull calf for sin, which is his own, and shall make atonement for himself and for his house. 7 And he shall take the two goats and set them before the Lord at the door of the tent of witness, and Aaron shall place lots on the two goats, one lot for the Lord and one lot for the one to be sent off. 9 And Aaron shall present the goat which the lot fell on for the Lord and offer for sin, 9 and the goat which the lot fell on of the one to be sent off he shall set it alive before the Lord to make atonement over it, to send it away into the place for sending away—he shall let it go into the wilderness.

11 And Aaron shall offer the bull calf for sin, which is his, and shall make atonement for himself and for his house and for holy place, until he comes out. And he shall take the fire-pan full of coals of fire from the altar that is before the Lord and shall fill his hands with a fine incense-compound, and he shall bring it inside the veil 13 and put the incense on the fire before the Lord, and the vapor of the incense shall cover the propitiatory that is upon the witnesses, and he will not die. 14 And he shall take some of the blood of the bull calf and sprinkle with his finger onto the propitiatory towards the east. In front of the propitiatory he shall sprinkle some of the blood with his finger seven times.

15 And he shall slaughter the goat for sin that is for the people before the Lord and bring in its blood inside the veil and do with its blood as he did with the blood of the bull calf, and he shall sprinkle its blood on the propitiatory in front of the propitiatory. 16 And he shall make the holy place ritually acceptable because of the unclean things of the sons of Israel and because of their wrongs—concerning all their sins, and so he shall do for the tent of witness, which has been established among them in the midst of their uncleanness. 17 And no person shall be in the tent of witness, when he enters to make atonement in the holy place, until he comes out. And he shall make atonement for himself and for his house and for all the congregation of the sons of Israel. 18 And he shall go out to the altar which is before the Lord and make atonement on it and shall take some of the blood of the bull calf and some of the blood of the goat and put it on the horns of the altar, round about. 19 And he shall sprinkle some of the blood on it with his finger seven times and pronounce it clean and hallow it from the uncleanness of the sons of Israel.

20 And he shall finish making the holy place and the tent of witness and the altar ritually acceptable, and he shall pronounce clean the things that pertain to the priests. And he shall bring near live the goat. 21 And Aaron shall lay his hands on the head of the live goat and confess over it all the lawless acts of the sons of Israel and all their offenses and all their sins and shall put them on the head of the live goat and shall send it away into the desert by the hand of a ready person. 22 And the goat shall bear on itself their offenses to an untrodden region, and he shall send off the goat into the wilderness.

23 And Aaron shall enter the tent of witness and shall take off the linen garment that he put on when he went into the holy place and shall deposit it there. 24 And he shall bathe his body in water in a holy place and put on his garment; then he shall come out and perform his sacrifice and the sacrifice of the people and shall make atonement for himself and his house and for the people as for the priests. 25 And the fat for sins he shall offer up on the altar. 26 And the one who sends off the goat set apart for release shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water and afterward shall come into the camp. 27 And the bull calf for sin and the goat for sin, of whom their blood was brought in to make atonement in the holy place—they shall take them outside the camp and burn them up with fire, and their skins and their flesh and their dung. 28 Now the one who burns them shall wash his clothes and bathe his body in water and afterward shall come into the camp.

29 And this shall be a perpetual precept to you: In the seventh month, on the tenth of the month, you shall humble your souls and shall do no work, neither the native nor the guest among you who adheres. 30 For on this day he shall make atonement for you, to cleanse you from all your sins before the Lord, and you shall be clean. 31 This rest shall be Sabbath of Sabbaths to you, and you shall humble your souls; it is a perpetual precept. 32 The priest, he whom they anoint and he whose hands they shall validate to serve as priest in his father's place, shall make atonement and shall put on the linen garment, the holy vestment. 33 And he shall make the holy of the holy ritually acceptable, and he shall make ritually acceptable the tent of meeting and the altar, and he shall make atonement for the priests and for the entire congregation. 34 And this shall be a perpetual precept for you, to make atonement for the sons of Israel for all their sins. It shall be done once a year as the Lord instructed Moyses.

2 Speak to Aaron and his sons and to all the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: This is the word that the Lord has commanded, saying:
3 Person by person of the sons of Israel, whoever slaughters a calf or a sheep or a goat in the camp, or who slaughters outside and does not bring it to the door of the tent of witness, to perform it as a whole burnt offering or as a deliverance to the Lord, acceptable for an odor of fragrance, and who slaughters outside and does not bring it to the door of the tent of witness in order to bring a gift to the Lord before the tent of the Lord, then bloodshed shall be reckoned to that person. He has shed blood; that soul shall be exterminated from its people 5 in order that the sons of Israel may bring their sacrifices, whatever they shall slaughter in the plains, and they shall bring them to the Lord, to the priest at the entrance of the tent of witness, and they shall offer them as a sacrifice of deliverance to the Lord. 6 And the priest shall dash the blood against all sides of the altar, before the Lord at the entrance of the tent of witness and offer up the fat as an odor of fragrance to the Lord, and they shall no longer offer their sacrifices to useless things, to whom they go out to commit fornication after them. It shall be a perpetual precept to you throughout your generations.

8 And you shall say to them: Person by person of the sons of Israel and from the sons of the guests among you who adhere, whoever performs a whole burnt offering or sacrifice and does not bring it to the door of the tent of witness, to perform it to the Lord, that person shall be exterminated from his people.

10 Person by person of the sons of Israel or of the guests among you who adhere, whoever eats any blood—and I will set my face against the soul who eats blood and will utterly destroy it from its people. For the life of all flesh is its blood, and I have given it to you for making atonement for your souls on the altar, for it is its blood that makes atonement for the soul. Therefore I have said to the sons of Israel: No soul among you shall eat blood, and no guest among you who adheres shall eat blood. And person by person of the sons of Israel and of the guests among you who adhere, whoever hunts as prey a wild animal or bird that may be eaten, shall pour out the blood and cover it with earth.

14 For the life of all flesh is its blood, and I have said to the sons of Israel: You shall not eat the blood of any flesh. For the life of all flesh is its blood; anyone who eats it shall be exterminated. And any soul, among the natives or among the guests who eats a carcass or what has been torn by wild animals shall wash his clothes and bathe in water, and be unclean until the evening; then he shall be clean. But if he does not wash his clothes and bathe his body in water, he shall assume his transgression of the law.

18 And the Lord said to Moyses, saying:

2 Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: I am the Lord your God. You shall not act according to the practices of the land of Egypt, wherein you lived, and you shall not act according to the practices of the land of Chanaan, there where I am bringing you, and you shall not live by their precepts. My judgments you shall perform, and my ordinances you shall keep, to walk by them; I am the Lord your God. And you shall keep all my ordinances and all my judgments, and you shall do them; as for the things a person does, he shall live by them; I am the Lord your God.

6 Person by person shall not approach any of the household of his flesh to uncover shame; I am the Lord. You shall not uncover the shame of your father and the shame of your mother, for she is your relative. You shall not uncover her shame. You shall not uncover the shame of your father’s wife; it is the shame of your father. You shall not uncover her shame—the shame of your sister, from your father or from your mother, whether born at home or born abroad. You shall not uncover their shame—the shame of your son’s daughter or of your daughter’s daughter, for it is your own shame. You shall not uncover the shame of your father’s wife’s daughter; she is your sister by the same father. You shall not uncover her shame. You shall not uncover the shame of your father’s sister, for she is of your own household. You shall not uncover the shame of your father’s brother, and you shall not approach his wife, for she is your relative. You shall not uncover the shame of your daughter-in-law, for she is your son’s wife; you shall not uncover her shame. You shall not uncover the shame of your brother’s wife; it is your brother’s shame. You shall not uncover the shame of a woman and her daughter. You shall not take her son’s daughter and her daughter’s daughter to uncover their shame, for they are of your own household; it is a profane act. You shall not take a woman as a rival in addition to her sister, to uncover her shame in addition to her while she is still alive. You shall not approach a woman to uncover her shame in the separation of her uncleanness. You shall not give your bed of semen to the wife of your neighbor, to bring defilement onto her. And you shall not give any of your offspring to serve a ruler. And you shall not profane the holy name. I am the Lord. And you shall not sleep with a male as in a bed of a woman, for it is an abomination. And you shall not give your bed to any quadruped for sowing to bring defilement on it, nor shall any woman stand before any quadruped so as to be mounted, for it is loathsome.

24 Do not defile yourselves in any of these ways. For by all these things the nations I am sending out before your face were defiled. And the land became defiled, and I repaid their evil because of it, and the land was angry with its inhabitants. And you shall keep all my precepts and all my ordinances and not commit any of all these abominations, the inhabitant and the guest among you who has come for the men of the land, who were before you, committed all of these abominations, and the land became defiled; otherwise the land will become angry with you when you defile it, as it became angry with the nations that were before you. For anyone who commits any of all these abominations—the souls that do so shall be exterminated from their people.

19 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

2 Speak to the congregation of the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: You shall be holy, for I am holy, the Lord your God. Let each fear his father and his mother, and you shall keep my sabbaths; I am the Lord your God. You shall not follow after idols, and you shall not make gods of cast metal for yourselves; I am the Lord your God.

5 And if you offer a sacrifice of deliverance to the Lord, offer it acceptable on your behalf. If it shall be eaten on the day you offer it and on the next day, and if it is left over until the third day, it shall be burned up by fire. But if in eating it is eaten on the third day, it is not fit to be offered; it will not be accepted. And he who eats it shall assume guilt because he has profaned what is holy to the Lord, and the souls who eat it shall be exterminated from their people.

6 And when you reap the harvest of your land, you shall not make a thorough job of your harvest, to harvest your field altogether, and you shall not gather what falls down of your harvest. And you shall not harvest your vineyard over again or gather the grapes of your vineyard; you shall leave them for the poor and the guest; it is I who am the Lord your God.

7 You shall not steal; you shall not deal falsely; each of you shall not falsely accuse his neighbor; you shall not swear by my name in an unjust matter, and you shall not profane the name of your God; it is I who am the Lord your God.

8 You shall not act unjustly towards your neighbor, and you shall not plunder, and the wages of a day laborer shall not rest overnight with you until morning. You shall not speak badly of the deaf and put an obstacle before the blind, and you shall fear the Lord your God; it is I who am the Lord your God.

9 You shall not do something unjust in judgment; you shall not accept the person of the poor or admire the person of a high official; with justice you shall judge your neighbor. You shall not go around in deceit among your nation; you shall not conspire against the blood of your neighbor; it is I who am the Lord your God.

10 You shall not hate in your mind your kin; in reproof you shall reprove your neighbor, and you shall not assume guilt because of him. And your own hand shall not take vengeance, and you shall not be angry against the sons of your people, and you shall love your neighbor as yourself; it is I who am the Lord.

11 You shall keep my law. You shall not breed your animals to those of a different kind, and you shall not sow your vineyard with something different, and you shall not put on yourself an adulterated garment woven with two materials.

12 And if one lies with a woman in a bed of another man, and they have come in Israel—whoever gives any of his offspring to a ruler, to defile my holy things and to profane the name of those consecrated to me. You shall not profane your daughter by making her commit fornication, and the land shall not fornicate, and the land shall be full of lawlessness.

13 You shall keep my sabbaths and be respectful of my sanctuaries; it is I who am the Lord your God.

14 You shall not follow after ventriloquists, and you shall not attach yourselves to enchanters, to be thoroughly polluted by them; it is I who am the Lord your God.

15 You shall rise before a gray-haired person and honor the person of the old, and you shall fear your God; it is I who am the Lord your God.

16 You shall not do what is unjust in judgment in measures and in standard weights and in balances. You shall have just balances and just standard weights and an honest half-peck; it is I who am the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt; it is I who am the Lord your God.

17 You shall not do what is unjust in judgment and you shall not judge your neighbor. You shall not go around in deceit among your nation; you shall not conspire against the blood of your neighbor; it is I who am the Lord your God.

18 You shall not hate in your mind your kin; in reproof you shall reprove your neighbor, and you shall not assume guilt because of him. And your own hand shall not take vengeance, and you shall not be angry against the sons of your people, and you shall love your neighbor as yourself; it is I who am the Lord.

19 You shall keep my law. You shall not breed your animals to those of a different kind, and you shall not sow your vineyard with something different, and you shall not put on yourself an adulterated garment woven with two materials.

20 And if one lies with a woman in a bed of semen and she is a domestic carefully guarded for a man but she by means of release had not been ransomed neither had freedom been given her, they shall get an inquiry. They shall not die, since she had not been freed, and he shall bring for his error to the Lord, at the door of the tent of meeting, a ram for error. And the priest shall make atonement for him with the ram for error before the Lord for the sin that he committed, and the sin he committed shall be forgiven him.

21 Now when you enter into the land that the Lord your God is giving you and plant any kind of tree for food, then you shall thoroughly purify its uncleanness; three years its fruit shall be impure to you; it shall not be eaten. And in the fourth year all its fruit shall be holy, laudable to the Lord. But in the fifth year you shall eat the fruit, its yield is an increase for you; it is I who am the Lord your God.

22 Do not eat on the mountains. And you shall not practice ornithomancy or divination by means of birds. You shall not make a hair roll out of the hair on your head or spoil the appearance of your beard. And you shall not make any incisions in your body for a soul and make any tattooed characters upon you; it is I who am the Lord your God.

23 You shall not profane your daughter by making her commit fornication, and the land will not fornicate, and the land shall be full of lawlessness.

24 You shall keep my sabbaths and be respectful of my sanctuaries; it is I who am the Lord your God.
ed in going out to commit fornication with the rulers. 6 And a soul that follows after ventriloquists or enchanters so as to commit fornication after them, I will set my face against that soul and will utterly destroy him from his people. 7 And you shall be holy, for I, the Lord your God, am holy. 8 And you shall keep my ordinances and observe them; I am the Lord that sanctifies you. 9 A person, a person who commits adultery with his father’s wife—he has uncovered his father’s shame; let both of them by death be put to death; they are liable. 10 A person who commits adultery with the wife of his neighbor—he shall be put to death; they are liable. 11 And if anyone lies with his father’s wife, he has uncovered his father’s shame; let both of them by death be put to death; they are liable. 12 And if anyone lies with his daughter-in-law, let both of them by death be put to death, for they have behaved impiously; they are liable. 13 And he who lies with a male in a bed for a woman, both have committed an abomination; by death let them be put to death; they are liable. 14 He who takes a wife and her mother—it is abhorrent among you. 15 And he who gives his sleeping-with to a quadraped, by death let him be put to death; they are liable. 16 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 17 Say to Aaron: A person from your kin among your kin, a land that is flowing with milk and honey, which I bring you there to settle in it will never be dead; nor shall they shave the appearance of their beard, and they shall not cut incisions into their flesh. 18 And they shall be holy to their God and not profane the name of their God. For it is they that offer the sacrifices of the Lord as gifts of their God, and they shall be holy. 21 They shall not marry a woman who is a prostitute and one who has been profaned and a woman rejected by her husband. For he is holy to the Lord his God, and he will sanctify it—he is he that offers the gifts of the Lord your God; he shall be holy, for I, the Lord, who sanctifies them, am holy. 22 And you shall not uncover the shame of your father’s sister; he shall bear guilt. 18 And a woman who sits apart and uncovers her shame—he has laid bare her spring, and she has laid bare her flow of blood; both of them shall be excommunicated from their race. 19 And you shall not uncover the shame of your father’s sister or of your mother’s sister, for one has laid bare one’s own blood family; they shall carry guilt. 20 He who lies with one who is his relative—he has uncovered the shame of his kinship; they shall die childless. 21 He who takes the wife of his brother—it is impurity; he has uncovered his brother’s shame; they shall die childless.

22 And you shall keep all my ordinances and all my judgments and do them, and the land to which I bring you there to settle in it will never be angry with you. 23 And you shall not walk by the precepts of the nations that I am sending out away from you. Because they did all these things, I also abhorred them. 24 And I have said to you: You shall inherit their land, and it is I who will give it to you in possession, a land that is flowing with milk and honey. I am the Lord your God who has separated you from all the nations. 25 And you shall separate them: between the clean animals and between the unclean animals and between the clean birds and between the unclean; you shall not cause your souls to be loathsome by the animals and by the birds and by any of the creeping things of the earth, which I have set apart for you by uncleanness. 26 And you shall be holy to me, for I the Lord your God am holy, who has separated you from all the nations to be mine.

27 And a man or a woman—whoever among them becomes a ventriloquist or an enchanter, let both by death be put to death; with stones you shall stone them; they are liable.

21 And the Lord said to Moyses: Address the priests, the sons of Aaron, and you shall say to them:

They shall not be defiled by souls except by their nearest kin: for father and mother and sons and daughters, for a brother and for a virgin sister, who approaches him, who had not been given in marriage to a husband—he shall be defiled for these. 4 He shall not be defiled suddenly among his people to his own desecration.

And you shall not have a bald spot shaven upon your head for the dead, nor shall they shave the appearance of their beard, and they shall not cut incisions into their flesh. 6 They shall be holy to their God and not profane the name of their God. For it is they that offer the sacrifices of the Lord as gifts of their God, and they shall be holy. 7 They shall not marry a woman who is a prostitute and one who has been profaned and a woman rejected by her husband. For he is holy to the Lord his God, and he will sanctify it—he is he that offers the gifts of the Lord your God; he shall be holy, for I, the Lord, who sanctifies them, am holy. 8 And if the daughter of a person who is a priest profanes herself through going out to commit fornication, she profanes the name of her father; she shall be burned on fire.

10 And the priest who is great among his brothers, when the anointing oil has been poured on his head and when he has been validated to wear the vestments, shall not unbind his head and shall not tear his vestments. 11 And he shall not enter for any dead soul; he shall not be defiled for his father or even for his mother. 12 And he shall not depart from the holy things, and he shall not profane what is consecrated, belonging to his God, for God’s holy oil of anointing is upon him; I am the Lord. 13 He shall marry a wife who is a virgin of his own kin. 14 A widow and one rejected and profaned and a prostitute—these he shall not marry. Rather, he shall marry a wife who is a virgin of his own kin. 15 And he shall not profane his offspring among his kin; I am the Lord that sanctifies him.

16 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 17 Say to Aaron: A person from your kin among your families—if any such person has a blemish on him, he shall not approach to offer the gifts of his
God. 18 Any person who has a blemish on him shall not draw near—a person who is lame or blind or having a mutilated nose or who has a cut ear 19 or a person who has a crushed hand or a crushed foot 20 or a hunchback or one with white spots on the eye or one that has inflammation in his eyes or a person who has on him a severe itch or lichen-like growth or one with a single testicle. 21 Anyone of the offspring of Aaron the priest who has on him a blemish shall not come near to offer sacrifices to your God; since he has a blemish, he shall not come near to offer the gifts of God. 22 He shall eat the gifts of God, the holy of holies, and of the holy things. 23 Only he shall not draw near to the veil and not come near the altar, because he has a blemish, and he shall not profane the sanctuary of his God, for it is I who am the Lord who sanctify them. 24 And Moyses spoke to Aaron and his sons and to all the sons of Israel.

22 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 25 Speak to Aaron and his sons, and let them give heed because of the sacred things of the sons of Israel, which they dedicate to me, and they shall not profane my holy name; I am the Lord. 26 Say to them: Any person from all your offspring throughout your generations who comes near the sacred things, which the sons of Israel dedicate to the Lord, and his uncleanliness is upon him—that soul shall be cleansed from my presence; I am the Lord your God. 27 And a man of the offspring of Aaron the priest—and he is a sufferer from a leprous disease or spermatorrhoea—shall not eat of the sacred things until he has been cleansed. And he who touches anything of the uncleanness of a soul 28 or a person whose bed of semen issues forth from him 29 or whoever touches any unclean creeping thing that defiles him or by any human being by whom he defiles him, according to all his uncleanness— 30 a soul who touches them shall be unclean until evening. He shall not eat of the sacred things unless he has washed his body in water. 31 And should the sun set, he shall then be clean, and then he shall eat of the sacred things, for it is his bread. 32 A carcass and what was torn by wild animals he shall not eat, to be defiled by them; I am the Lord. 33 And they shall not keep my charges so that they may not through them assume guilt and die for them; there shall be no blemish in it. 34 Anything blind or broken-limbed or with its tongue cut or having warts or acute itching or having lichen-like growth—these you shall not offer to the Lord and you shall not give of them as an offering on the altar to the Lord. 35 And a calf or a sheep that has a cut on its ear or one with a stunted tail, you shall make a slaughtering of them for yourself, but it will not be accepted for your vow. 36 A gelding and one bruised and one castrated and one whose testicles were torn off—you shall not offer these to the Lord, and you shall not do them in your land. 37 And from an alien’s hand you shall not offer any of these as gifts to your God, since there are corruptions in them; there is a blemish in them; they shall not be acceptable to you.

26 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 27 When a calf or a sheep or a goat is born, then it shall remain seven days under its mother, but on the eighth day and beyond it shall be accepted as a gift, an offering to the Lord. 28 And as for a calf or a sheep—you shall not slaughter her and her young on one day. 29 But if you sacrifice a sacrifice, a vow of joyfulness, to the Lord, you shall sacrifice it as something acceptable to you. 30 It shall be eaten on the same day; you shall not leave any of the meat until morning; I am the Lord.

31 And you shall keep my commandments and do them. 32 And you shall not profane the name of the holy one, and I shall be sanctified among the sons of Israel; I am the Lord who sanctifies you, 33 who brought you out of the land of Egypt to be your God; I am the Lord.

23 And the Lord said to Moyses, saying: 24 Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: The feasts of the Lord, those that you shall call designated, holy—these are my feasts.

3 Six days you shall do acts of work, and on the seventh day there is Sabbath, a rest, designated, holy to the Lord; you shall do no work; it is Sabbath to the Lord in your every settlement.

4 These are the feasts for the Lord, and they are designated, holy, those that you shall call out at their appointed time. 5In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month, in the middle of the time approaching evening, is a passcha to the Lord.

6 And on the fifteenth day of the same month is the feast of unleavened bread to the Lord; seven days you shall eat unleavened things. 7And the first day shall be a designated, holy one to you; you shall not do any work of service. 8And for seven days you shall present whole burnt offerings to the Lord, and the seventh day shall be a designated holy one to you; you shall not do any work of service.

9 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

10 Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: When you enter into the land that I give you and you reap its harvest, you shall also bring a sheaf as the first fruit of your harvest to the priest.

11 And he shall raise up the sheaf before the Lord, acceptable for you; on the day after the first the priest shall raise it up. 12And on the day when you bring the sheaf, you shall do a sheep a year old, without blemish, as a whole burnt offering to the Lord, and its sacrifice—two-tenths of choice flour prepared with oil; a sacrifice to the Lord it is, an odor of fragrance to the Lord, and its libation, one-fourth of a hin3 of wine. 14And you shall eat no bread or parched fresh kernels until this very day, until you yourselves offer the gifts to your God; it is a perpetual precept throughout your generations in your every settlement.

15 And from the day after the sabbaths, from the day on which you bring the sheaf of the addition, you shall count off seven whole weeks. 16 You shall count until the day after the last week, fifty days, and you shall present a new sacrifice to the Lord. 17You shall offer bread as an addition from your settlement: two loaves of bread. They shall consist of two-tenths of fine flour, baked with leaven, of first products to the Lord. 18 And you shall offer with the bread seven lambs, a year old without blemish, and one calf from the cattle-herd and two rams without blemish; they shall be a whole burnt offering to the Lord, along with their sacrifices and their libations; a sacrifice, an odor of fragrance to the Lord. 19 You shall also prepare one lamb a year old as a sacrifice of deliverance with the bread of the first products. 20 And the priest shall place them with the bread of the first products—an addition before the Lord, together with the two lambs; they shall be holy to the Lord for the priest who offers them; they shall be his. 21 And this day you shall call designated; it shall be holy to you; you shall not do any work of service on it—a perpetual precept throughout your generations in your every settlement.

22 And when you reap the harvest of your land, you shall not in your harvesting thereafter make a thorough job of the harvest of your field, and you shall not gather the gleanings of your harvest; you shall leave them remaining for the poor and for the guest; I am the Lord your God.

23 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

24 Speak to the sons of Israel, saying: On the seventh month, on the first of the month, you shall have a rest, a memorial with trumpets; it shall be designated, holy to you. 25 You shall do no work of service, and you shall present a whole burnt offering to the Lord.

26 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

27 Also on the tenth of this seventh month there is a day of atonement; it shall be designated, holy to you, and you shall humble your souls and present a whole burnt offering to the Lord; 28 you shall do no work on this particular day; for this is a day of atonement for you, to make atonement for you before the Lord your God. 29 Any soul who does not humble himself on that particular day shall be exterminated from his people. 30 And any soul that shall do work on that particular day—that soul shall be utterly destroyed from his people. 31 You shall do no work; it is a perpetual precept throughout your generations in all your settlements. 32 It shall be to you Sabbath of Sabbaths, and you shall humble your souls; from the ninth of the month, from evening to evening you shall sabbatize on your sabbaths.

34 Speak to the sons of Israel, saying: On the fifteenth day of this seventh month and lasting seven days is the feast of tents to the Lord. 35 And the first day is designated, holy; you shall not do any work of service. 36 Seven days you shall present whole burnt offerings to the Lord, and the eighth day shall be designated, holy to you, and you shall present a whole burnt offering to the Lord; it is a finale; you shall not do any work of service.

37 These are the feasts to the Lord, which you shall call designated, holy, for presenting to the Lord offerings—whole burnt offerings and their sacrifices and their libations, each on its proper day—apart from the sabbaths of the Lord and apart from your gifts and apart from all your vows and apart from your voluntary gifts, which you give to the Lord.

38 Also on the fifteenth day of this seventh month, when you finish the produce of the land, you shall keep a feast to the Lord for seven days, a rest on the first day and a rest on the eighth day. 40 And on the first day you shall take ripe fruit of a tree, both brushes of palm trees and bushy branches of a tree and branches of willow and of chaste-tree from a wadi, to rejoice before the Lord your God for seven days in the year. 41 It is a perpetual precept throughout your generations. You shall keep it as a feast in the seventh month. 42 You shall live in tents for seven days; everyone who is a native in Israel shall live in tents, 43 so that your generations may know that I made the sons of Israel settle in tents when I brought them out of the land of Egypt; I am the Lord your God.

44 And Moyses declared to the sons of Israel the feasts of the Lord.

24 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

Command the sons of Israel, and let them take for you oil, pure olive, beaten, for light, to burn a lamp continually outside the veil in the tent of witness. And Aaron and his sons shall burn it from evening to morning before the Lord perpetually; it is a perpetual precept throughout your generations. You shall burn the lamps on the pure lampstand before the Lord until morning.

5 And you shall take fine flour and make it twelve loaves; two-tenths shall be the one loaf.

6 And you shall lay them in two piles, six loaves per one pile, on the pure table before the Lord. You shall put on the pile pure frankincense and salt, and they shall be as loaves for remembrance, set before the Lord. On the day of the sabbaths he shall set them out before the Lord continually as an everlasting covenant from the sons of Israel.

9 And they shall be for Aaron and his sons, and they shall eat them in a holy place, for they are holy of holies; this is for him from the things sacrificed to the Lord, a perpetual precept.

10 And a son of an Israelite woman (and he was the son of an Egyptian) came out among the sons of Israel, and the Israelite woman's son and the Israelite person began fighting in the camp. And the Israelite person began fighting in the camp, and all who heard shall lay their hands on him; from the plains you shall eat its produce.

13 And the Lord said to Moyses, saying: Take the one who called down the curse outside the camp, and all who heard shall lay their hands on his head, and the whole congregation shall stone him. And speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: If a person, a person who curses God, he shall assume guilt. Whoever names the name of the Lord—by death let him be put to death; let the whole congregation of Israel stone him with stones. Whether a guest or a native, when he names the name, let him die. And a person who strikes a person's soul and he dies, by death let him be put to death. And whoever strikes an animal and it dies—let him repay soul for soul. And if anyone should give a blemish to your neighbor, let a person not oppress your neighbor, even if you make an acquisition from your neighbor, let a person not oppress his neighbor. You shall acquire from your neighbor according to the number of years since the signal; he shall sell to you according to the number of years of produce. Insofar as there be an increase in years, you shall increase his tenure, and insofar as there be a decrease in years, you shall decrease his tenure, for he shall sell to you a number of yields. Let not a person oppress his neighbor, and you shall fear the Lord your God; it is I who am the Lord your God.

18 And you shall observe all my statutes and all my judgments, and you shall guard yourselves and do them, and you shall dwell on the land feeling confident. And the land will yield its produce, and you will eat to satiety and dwell on it feeling confident. But if you say, What shall we eat in this seventh year, if we do not sow or gather in our land all its yield shall be for food.

25 And the Lord spoke to Moyses on the mountain Sina, saying: Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: If you enter the land that I give you, the land which I give you, you shall also rest—Sabbata to the Lord. Six years you shall sow your field, and six years you shall prune your vine and gather in its fruit, but in the seventh year there shall be Sabbata—a rest for the land, Sabbata for the Lord; you shall not sow your field, and you shall not prune your vine. You shall not reap completely that which sprouts by itself of your field or gather in the grapes of what is something made holy for you; it shall be a year of rest for the land. And the sabbaths of the land shall be food for you and for your male slave and your female slave and your hired laborer and for the resident alien who adheres to you, for your livestock also and for the wild animals which are in your land all its yield shall be for food.

8 And you shall count off for yourself seven rests of years, seven times seven years, and they shall be for you seven weeks of years—forty-nine years. And you shall proclaim with the sound of the trumpet throughout all your land, in the seventh month, on the tenth of the month. On the day of atonement you shall proclaim with the trumpet throughout all your land. And you shall hallow the year, the fiftieth year, and you shall proclaim release on the land to all its inhabitants. It shall be a year of release; a signal this shall be for you, and each one shall depart to his possession, and each shall depart to his clan. This is a signal of release: the fiftieth year. It shall be a year for you; you shall not sow or gather its spontaneous sprouts, and you shall not harvest its consecrated things. For it is a signal of release; it shall be a holy thing to you; from the plains you shall eat its produce.

13 In the year of release, by its signal, each one shall return to his possession. But if you make a sale to your neighbor, even if you make an acquisition from your neighbor, let a person not oppress his neighbor. You shall acquire from your neighbor according to the number of years since the signal; he shall sell to you according to the number of years of produce. Insofar as there be an increase in years, you shall increase his tenure, and insofar as there be a decrease in years, you shall decrease his tenure, for he shall sell to you a number of yields. Let not a person oppress his neighbor, and you shall fear the Lord your God; it is I who am the Lord your God.

18 And you shall observe all my statutes and all my judgments, and you shall guard yourselves and do them, and you shall dwell on the land feeling confident. And the land will yield its produce, and you will eat to satiety and dwell on it feeling confident. But if you say, What shall we eat in this seventh year, if we do not sow or gather in our land all its yield shall be for food.
crop? 21 I will also send my blessing to you in the sixth year, and it will yield its crop for three years.
22 And you shall sow in the eighth year, and you will be eating from the old crop until the ninth year. When its produce comes in, you shall eat old of old things. 23 And the land shall not be sold irrevocably, for the land is mine, because before me you are guests and resident aliens. 24 And on the basis of all the land of your holding, you shall provide ransom for the land.
25 But if your brother who is with you should become poor and should sell some of what he holds and the next of kin who is nearest should come, then he shall redeem the sale of his brother.
26 But if someone does not have one who is next of kin and has plenty in hand and finds for himself what is sufficient for his ransom, 27 then he shall compute the years of his sale and give back what he has over to the person who sold it to him, and he shall depart to his holding. 28 But if his hand does not find what is sufficient to give it back to him, then the sale shall belong to the one who acquired them until the year of release, and at the release it shall expire, and he shall depart to his holding.
29 But if anyone sells a dwelling house in a walled city, then its redemption shall stand; until a year of days has elapsed, its redemption shall stand. 30 But if it is not redeemed until a full year has elapsed, the house that is in a city that has a wall shall be confirmed irrevocably to belong to its purchaser, throughout his generations, and it shall not expire in the release. 31 But houses in farmsteads, those that have no wall around them, let them be classed as the field of the earth; these shall always be redeemed, and they shall expire in the release. 32 And as for the cities of the Leuites, the houses of the cities of their holding shall always be redeemed for the Leuites. 33 And he who redeems them from the Leuites, then the sale of their houses of a city of their holding shall expire in the release, because the dwellings in the cities of the Leuites are their holding among the sons of Israel. 34 And the fields bordering on their cities shall not be sold; for this is their holding for all time.
35 Now if your brother is needy and with you becomes weak in his hands, you shall help him as a guest or the resident alien with you as a possession. 46 And you shall distribute them to your children after you, and they shall be held in possession by you forever. But of your brothers the sons of Israel, each shall not abuse his brother with toil. 47 If the hand of the guest or the resident alien with you finds, and if your brother, having fallen in difficulty, is sold to the guest or to the resident alien with you or to a guest by descent, 48 after he has been sold to him he shall have redemption; one of his brothers shall redeem him; 49 a brother of his father or a son of his father’s brother shall redeem him, or some of his relatives who are of his own flesh, of his own tribe, shall redeem him, but if he prospers with his hands he shall redeem himself. 50 He shall compute with his purchaser from the year when he sold himself to him until the year of the release, and the amount of the sale shall be as for a hired laborer. Year by year he shall be with him. 51 But if more years remain to someone, for these he shall pay his ransom from the money of his sale, 52 but if few years remain until the year of the release, then he shall compute for him according to his years, and he shall pay his ransom. 53 As a hired laborer he shall be with him year by year. You shall not abuse him with toil in your sight.
54 But if he has not been redeemed in any of these ways, he and his young children with him shall go forth in the year of release. 55 For to me the sons of Israel are domestics; these are my servants whom I brought out from the land of Egypt.

26 I am the Lord your God. You shall make for yourselves nothing made by hand nor carved, neither erect a stèle of your own, nor shall you place a stone as a lookout in your land, to do obeisance to it; it is I who am the Lord your God. 2 You shall keep my sabbaths and be respectful of my sanctuaries; I am the Lord.
3 If you walk by my ordinances and observe my commandments and do them, 4 I will then give you the rain in its season, and the land shall yield its produce, and the trees of the plains shall yield their fruit. 5 And for you the harvest shall overtake the vintage, and the vintage shall overtake the sowing, and you shall eat your bread to satiety and dwell in safety on your land, and war shall not go through your land. 6 And I will grant peace in your land, and you shall fall asleep, and there shall be no one making you afraid, and I will destroy bad animals from your land. 7 And you shall give chase to your enemies, and they shall fall before you by slaughter. 8 And five of you shall give chase to a hundred, and a hundred of you shall give chase to tens of thousands, and your enemies shall fall before you by dagger. 9 And I will look attentively upon you and increase you and multiply you, and I will establish my covenant with you. 10 And you shall eat the old and the old things of the old, and you shall bring out the old out of the new. 11 And I will place my tent among you, and my soul shall not abhor you. 12 And I will walk among you and will be your God, and you shall be for me a nation. 13 It is I who am the Lord your God who brought you out of the land of Egypt since you were slaves, and I have shat tered the bond of your yoke and led you with boldness.

14 But if you do not obey me, neither do these ordinances of mine, 15 but refuse to comply with them, and your soul be angered by my judgments so that you do not carry out all my commandments so that you scatter my covenant to the wind, 16 then I in turn will do thus to you, and I will gather difficulty upon you, both itch and jaundice, and your eyes as being purulent and your life as pining away. And you shall sow your seed in vain, and your adversaries shall eat it. 17 And I will set my face against you, and you shall fall down before your enemies, and those who hate you shall pursue you, and you shall flee though no one pursues you. 18 And if up to this point you do not obey me, then I will do more to discipline you sevenfold for your sins. 19 And I will smash the insolence of your arrogance, and I will make your sky iron and your earth like copper. 20 And your strength shall be to no purpose, and your land shall not yield its seedtime, and the tree of your field shall not yield its fruit.

21 If after this you walk sideways and are not willing to obey me, I will add to you seven blows in accordance with your sins. 22 And I will send to wild animals of the land against you, and they shall devour you and utterly destroy your livestock, and they shall make you very few in number, and your roads shall be deserted.

23 And if by these things you are not disciplined but walk sideways with me, 24 then I too will walk with you in skewed anger, and I myself will strike you sevenfold for your sins. 25 And I will bring against you a dagger avenging the cause of the covenant, and you will flee for refuge to your cities. And I will send death among you, and you shall be delivered into enemy hands. 26 When you are hard pressed for want of bread, then ten women shall bake your bread in a single oven, and they shall dole out your bread by weight, and you shall eat and never be satisfied.

27 Now if by these things you do not obey me but walk sideways with me, 28 I myself too will walk with you in skewed anger, and it is I who will discipline you sevenfold in accordance with your sins. 29 And you shall eat the flesh of your sons, and you shall eat the flesh of your daughters. 30 And I will strip bare your steles and utterly destroy your wooden handcrafted objects, and I will place your limbs on the limbs of your idols. And my soul will be very angry with you. 31 And I will lay your cities waste, will make your sanctuaries quite desolate, and I will not smell the odor of your sacrifices anymore. 32 And I will devastate your land, and your enemies who inhabit it shall be astonished at it. 33 And you I will scatter into the nations, and the dagger, coming by surprise, will utterly destroy you, and your land shall be desolate, and your cities shall be desolate.

34 Then the land shall enjoy its sabbaths all the days of its desolation. And you shall be in the land of your enemies; then the land shall sabbatize and enjoy its sabbaths. 35 All the days of its desolation, it shall sabbatize what it did not sabbatize on your sabbaths when you were living on it. 36 And onto those of you who are left, I will send faintness into their heart in the land of their enemies, and the sound of a driven leaf shall put them to flight, and they shall flee as those who flee from battle, and they shall fall though no one pursues you. 37 And brother shall disdain brother as in a war, though no one is running away, and you shall not be able to withstand your enemies. 38 And you shall perish among the nations, and the land of your enemies shall devour you. 39 And those of you who are left shall be corrupted because of their sins. In the land of their enemies they shall melt away.

40 And they shall confess their sins and the sins of their fathers, because they transgressed and disdained me and because they walked sideways before me. 41 And I, in turn, walked in skewed anger with them, and I shall destroy them in the land of their enemies. Then their uncircumcised heart will feel ashamed, and then they will be content with their iniquities. 42 And I will remember the covenant of Jakob, and I will remember the covenant of Isak and the covenant of Abraam, and I will remember the land. 43 And the land shall be abandoned by them. Then the land shall accept its sabbaths while it was made desolate by them, and they themselves shall accept their lawlessness on account of which they disdained my judgments and were vexed in their soul by my ordinances.

44 And not even when they were in the land of their enemies did I ever disdain them or was angered by them so as to destroy them utterly, to scatter to the wind my covenant with them; for it is I who am the Lord their God, 45 and I will remember their former covenant when I brought them out of the land of Egypt, out of a house of slavery in the sight of the nations, to be their God; I am the Lord.

46 These are the judgments and the ordinances and the law that the Lord established between him and between the sons of Israel on the mountain Sina by the hand of Moyses.

27 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:
2 Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: A person who vows a vow to the Lord, for instance the value of his life, the value for a male shall be: from twenty to sixty years of age the value shall be fifty didrachmas of silver by the sanctuary standard. 4 But for a female the valuation shall be thirty didrachmas. 5 Now if it is from five to twenty years of age, the value of a male shall be twenty didrachmas and of a female, ten didrachmas. 6 And from one month to five years, the value of a male shall be five didrachmas of silver, but of a female, three didrachmas. 7 But if from sixty years and over, if the person is a male—the value shall be fifteen didrachmas of silver, but in the case of a female ten didrachmas. 8 And if he is base with regard to the value, he shall stand before the priest, and the priest shall assess him; in accordance with the strength of the hand of the one making the vow, the priest shall assess him.

9 But if a gift to the Lord be from the animals, from those that are being offered, if he gives from these to the Lord, it shall be holy. 10 He shall not exchange it, either good for bad or bad for good.
But if by exchanging he exchanges it, animal for animal, both that one and its substitute shall be holy. 11 But if a gift to the Lord is any unclean animal, from those that are not brought, he shall set the animal before the priest. 12 And the priest shall assess it; between good and between bad, as the priest sets the value, so it shall stand. 13 But if by redeeming, he redeems it, he shall add one-fifth to its value.

14 If a person consecrates his house holy to the Lord, then the priest shall assess it: whether between good and between bad; as the priest values it, so it shall be fixed. 15 But if the one who consecrates it redeems his house, he shall add to it one-fifth of the money of its value, and it shall be his.

16 Now if a person consecrates to the Lord some of the field of his holding, then its value shall be in accordance with its seed: fifty didrachmas of silver to a kor of barley seed. 17 But if he consecrates his field from the year of release, according to its assessment it shall stand, 18 but if he consecrates his field later, after the release, the priest shall compute the price for it according to the years that remain until the year of release, and there shall be a deduction made from its assessment. 19 Now if the one who consecrates it redeems the field, then he shall add one-fifth of the money to its value, and it shall be his, 20 but should he not redeem the field and should sell the field to another person, he shall no longer redeem
it. 21 But when the release has expired, the field shall be holy to the Lord as the land that has been set aside; it shall be the priest’s holding. 22 Now if someone consecrates to the Lord part of the field that he has purchased, which is not a part of the field of his holding, 23 the priest shall assign to it the full amount of the value from the year of release, and he shall pay the value on that day, something sacred to the Lord. 24 And in the year of release the field shall be given back to the person from whom he bought it, whose land-holding it had been. 25 And every assessment shall be by holy weights: twenty obols shall make a didrachma.

26 And every firstling that may be born among your animals shall belong to the Lord, and no one shall consecrate it; whether calf or sheep, it is the Lord’s. 27 But if it is of unclean quadrupeds, he shall make an alteration according to its assessment and add one-fifth to it. And it shall be his.
But if he does not redeem, it shall be sold at its as-essed value.

28 But nothing dedicated that a person may dedicate to the Lord, which he owns, from human to animal and from his field of holding, shall be sold or redeemed; every devoted thing shall be holy of holies to the Lord. 29 And nothing that has been dedicated of human beings shall be redeemed, but by death it shall be put to death.

30 Every tithe of the land from the seed of the ground and of tree-fruit is the Lord’s; it is holy to the Lord. 31 But if a person should by redeeming redeem his tithe, he shall add one-fifth to it, and it shall be his. 32 And every tithe of cows and sheep, and everything that may come into the count under the rod—the tithe shall be holy to the Lord.
33 You shall not exchange good for bad. But if by exchanging you exchange it, then its substitute shall be holy; it shall not be redeemed.

34 These are the commandments that the Lord commanded Moyses for the sons of Israel on the mountain Sina.

Edition of the Greek Text

The New English Translation of the Septuagint (NETS) version of Numbers is based on the critical edition prepared by John William Wevers (Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Auctoritate Academiae Scientiarum Gottingensis editum III.1: Numeri [Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1982]). In addition, several of the thirty-five changes to the critical text later proposed by Wevers in his Notes on the Greek Text of Numbers ([SBLSCS 46; Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1998] 608–609) have been incorporated into NETS Numbers where these alterations affect the English translation. In such cases, differences between the critical edition (Weed) and the emended text of Wevers’ Notes (WeN) are evident in the footnotes to NETS. For example, in Num 21.11 the translation reads “and camped in bAchel Gaib,” although the edition has “and camped in Achelgai.” The correction of the Notes is cited at the foot of the page as follows: bAchelgai = Weed.

Character of the Translation

LXX Numbers may be described as quite a literal reproduction of the Hebrew that is often wooden. The translator is at times careless or inaccurate, but he can also be skillful in carrying out his task, with successful attempts to achieve consistency and to harmonize passages he is rendering.

In his 1851 analysis of LXX Numbers as a translation,1 Zacharias Frankel came to the conclusion that it is a chance amalgam without an overall plan or purpose. However, in his Notes on the Greek Text of Numbers, which constitutes the most thorough study of LXX Numbers in modern times, Wevers offers a more balanced assessment.

On the one hand, Wevers considers the Greek translation of Numbers as “without a doubt by far the weakest volume in the Greek Pentateuch” (Notes, p. ix), with numerous examples of incompetence evidenced by gross failures to follow the rules of grammar. On the other, he also views LXX Numbers as the product of “a mind at work, making judgments at times quite astute in its approach to the task of translating holy writ” (Notes, p. xv). Despite his flaws, the translator is actively engaged in the interpretation of Scripture, making strong efforts to clarify obscure passages and sometimes even to correct what he perceives as factual errors or contradictions in the parent text.

Carelessness and Grammatical Inconsistencies

There are many apparent careless renditions and grammatical inconsistencies on the part of the translator.

A striking example of carelessness on the translator’s part is at Num 9.22–23, where he omitted two pieces of the text due to homoioteleuton (i.e., his eye skipping from one Hebrew word to the same word later in the text, resulting in the omission of the words in between). In the MT, 9.22 ends with “[the Israelites] would not set out; but when it [i.e., the cloud] lifted they would set out,” (וְלֹא תָבַעְנָה בְּנֵי-יִשְׂרָאֵל הִיוּ מְצַמחִיתוּ נַח) , and v. 23 continues: “At the command of the LORD (לְיוָהוֹ יְהוָה הֲלֹא תָבַעְנָה בְּנֵי-יִשְׂרָאֵל הִיוּ מְצַמחִיתוּ נַח) they would camp, and at the command of the LORD (לְיוָהוֹ יְהוָה הֲלֹא תָבַעְנָה בְּנֵי-יִשְׂרָאֵל הִיוּ מְצַמחִיתוּ נַח) they would set out.” LXX Numbers, however, simply reads “[the sons of Israel] . . . shall certainly not set out (καὶ οὐ μὴ ἐπάρωσιν).” (23) For at the ordinance of the Lord they shall set out) (δότι διὰ προστάγματος κυρίου αἱ παροῦσιν). In these two verses, the translator’s eye most likely skipped from the first “[they] would set out” to the second, resulting in loss of the intervening text (“but when it lifted” in the MT). In similar fashion, his eye seems to have skipped from the first “at the command of the Lord” to the second, resulting in loss of the intervening text (“they would camp” in the MT).

Another example of carelessness is at Num 3.25, where the translator unfortunately uses σκηνῆς for both רֵאשׁ הָעָרֹב and קְרוֹשׁ, which gives rise to confusion, since the Hebrew here uses them coordinately: “And the guard duty of the sons of Gedson in the tent (τῆς σκηνῆς) of witness is the tent (i.e., the tabernacle) (ἡ σκηνή) and the screen.

Several grammatical inconsistencies are also evident. For example, we find cases where no grammatically fitting antecedent can be found in the context. Thus at 11.10 we read “and before Moyses it was evil,” although there is no neuter singular word nearby. We can only presume that Moyses found it evil to hear the people weeping in their divisions, each one at his door. At 22.5 Balak sent ambassadors to Balaam son of Beor “of Pathoura, which is on the river.” The translator presumably regards Pathoura as the name of a city, which would normally be feminine. However, he then refers to this noun with a relative neuter pronoun (ὁ ἐστὶν, “which is”).

Formulaic Patterns

A more positive view of the translator arises when other aspects of his technique are taken into account. In Num 1.2–46, for example, he shows his preference for rigidly following formulaic patterns, regardless of changes in the parent text: “according to their families, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, according to the number of their names, according to their head, every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in the force.”

On occasion, a mini-pattern emerges when the translator’s work is compared with the Hebrew of the MT. Num 4.41, for example, ends with a phrase: “(whom Moyses and Aaron enrolled by the voice of the Lord) by the hand of Moyses.” Although not found in the MT, “by the hand of Moyses” has apparently been added in conformity to formulas found elsewhere in this chapter (cf. vv. 37, 45, 49).

Consistency and Harmonization

On numerous occasions, the translator’s attempts to achieve consistency are evident. At Num 21.3, for example, he makes the account consistent with v. 2, which read: “And Israel vowed a vow to the Lord and said: ‘If you deliver to me this people as subject, I will anathematize it and its towns. ‘” In the MT, however, v. 3 reads: “and they utterly destroyed them and their towns.” LXX Numbers makes this verse consistent with the vow in v. 2 by stating: “and he anathematized him and his cities to destruction.” The translator also tries to level the text by the use of harmonizations. In Num 27.18, for example, Moyses is ordered to take Iesous as his successor, “and you shall lay your hands (ταῦτα χείρα σου) upon him”—the Hebrew here has the singular “your hand” (כְּחֵיָרָא σוֹ). A few verses later, this command is carried out when Moyses “laid his hands (יִנְתָּה רָא) upon him.” In the earlier verse the translator used the plural “your hands” in order to harmonize the readings in vv. 18 and 23. Thus, while attempting to translate the Hebrew parent text faithfully, the Greek translator did not hesitate to change specific details in order to achieve consistency and harmonization.

Standard Equivalents and Calques

As is the case for many other books of the Septuagint, LXX Numbers presents several standard equivalents for Hebrew terms. Some examples evident in LXX Numbers are found elsewhere in the Pentateuch; for example: διοθήκη (“covenant”) for תּוֹנה and ψυχή (“soul/ spirit”) for בּוֹל. More specific to Numbers are προσκυνέω (“bow down/worship”) for προσκύνησις; παραβολή (“illustration”) for παραβολή; υἱοί (“sons”) for בֶּן (construct state in chapter 26); χίμαιρον ἐξ ἀγωνὸν (“male goat from the goats”) for βιβλίον ἵμαιρον; ἀποσκευή (“chattel”) for αὐτης; and δύναμις (“army/force”) for לִחְכ.

Another feature of LXX Numbers is the translator’s use of calques, i.e., Greek words with Hebrew meanings, or which at least incorporate meanings from the Hebrew parent text (see “TO THE READER OF NETS”). One prominent example of a calque is κύριος (“LORD”) for the Hebrew הוהי. Another is διοθήκη (“covenant”) for תּוֹנה, which is also classified as a standard equivalent (see above).

Translation of Difficult Terms

In several cases, the translator of LXX Numbers was faced with difficult or baffling Hebrew terms, and he did his best to render them in an intelligible manner. Five examples are presented here.

Even today there is some disagreement among scholars as to the precise meaning of תּוֹנה in Num 11.8; our translator simply contextualized by rendering γάλακτος (“cake”).

The puzzling words רְשָׁאָה, כֹּה—possibly meaning “my displeasure”—are found in Num 14.34 (see also Iob 33.10). Here LXX Numbers gives a contextualized translation, τὸν θυμὸν τῆς ὀργῆς μου (“the wrath of my anger”), which makes good contextual sense.

The Hebrew term גָּבוֹת (“high places”) was apparently not understood as an idolatrous place of worship at Alexandria when the translator did his work. In Numbers it is rendered by στήλαι ("steles") at 21.28; 22.41; 33.52 (thus also Leu 26.20).

In Num 23.14 the Hebrew text tells us that Balak brought Balaam בֶּלֶךְ לֵבַע ("to the field of Zophim"). Sinceֶלֶךְ לֵבַע literally means "watchers," the translator rendered the phrase by εἰς ἄγγελον σκοπίαν ("to a look-out [or, watchtower] of a field").

In Num 32.33 the land of Og is called בָּלָע כְּרֵסָר ("the land and its towns, with the territories of the surrounding towns") is compared with the more literal Authorized Version ("the land, with the cities thereof in the coasts, even the cities of the country round about"). The Greek translator made reasonable sense of the Hebrew by rendering τὴν γῆν καὶ τῶν πόλεων συν τοῖς ὀρίοις αὐτῶν, πόλεις τῆς γῆς κύκλῳ ("the land and the cities, together with its borders, cities of the land round about").

Major Differences in Arrangement or Structure

When LXX Numbers is compared with the MT, several variations in arrangement or structure are evident. Besides affecting verse numbering, which complicates a synoptic reading with the MT, such differences affect exegesis of the sections in which they are found, and in some cases they might affect our understanding of the textual development of the book of Numbers.

First, in the pedigree (MT “census”) of Israel found in Numbers 1, vv. 20–37 deal with the descendants of Jacob’s twelve sons in the following order: Ruben, Symeon, Judah, Issachar, Zabulon, Ephraim (Joseph’s son), Manasse (Joseph’s son), Benjamin, Gad, Dan, Aser, and Naftali. In contrast, the MT covers them in the order of: Ruben, Simeon, Gad, Judah, Issachar, Zebulun, Ephraim (Joseph’s son), Manasseh (Joseph’s son), Benjamin, Dan, Asher, and Naftali. The effect of the sequence in the LXX is to bring Gad into proximity with Aser (ninth and eleventh, respectively), whereas in the MT they are far apart (third and eleventh). This phenomenon is even more striking in the pedigree detailed in Num 26.5–50, where in the MT Gad is third and Asher seventh. In LXX Numbers, however, Gad is sixth and Asher is seventh. An explanation or motivation for the close proximity of Gad and Aser in the two LXX pedigrees is to be found in the list of Num 1.5–15, where Aser is tenth and Gad is eleventh (in both the MT and LXX).

Second, the arrangement of the Priestly Benediction in Num 6.22–27 differs from that in the MT: (22) And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: (23) Speak to Aaron and his sons, saying: Thus you shall bless the sons of Israel, saying to them—24(27 MT) and they shall put my name on the sons of Israel, and I the Lord will bless them—25(24 MT) May the Lord bless you and keep you; 26(25 MT) may the Lord make his face shine upon you and show mercy to you—27(26 MT) may the Lord lift up his face upon you and give you peace.

The final passage involves another pedigree (MT “census”), this time of the new generation who will live on to conquer the Promised Land. In the Greek, 26.15–47 mention the following descendants of nine of Jacob’s sons: Judah, Issachar, Zabulon, Gad, Aser, Manasse (Joseph’s son), Ephraim (Joseph’s son), Benjamin, and Dan. In the MT, however, the order is somewhat different (equivalent to 26.19–27, 15–18, 44–47, 28–43 in the LXX): Gad, Judah, Issachar, Zebulun, Manasseh (Joseph’s son), Ephraim (Joseph’s son), Benjamin, Dan, and Asher.

THE NETS TRANSLATION OF NUMBERS

Policy on Gender Language and Translating in a Literal Manner

NETS generally follows the gender language policy adopted by the NRSV with respect to human beings. However, departures from the NRSV in this regard are quite common in NETS Numbers, for two main reasons. First, the translation presented here is quite literal, in an attempt to reflect the Greek relationship to its source. Second, in accordance with its stated goal with respect to gender, the NRSV sometimes avoids terms that are clearly masculine in the Hebrew, substituting instead ones that are more neutral. This course has generally not been followed in the NETS translation.

The challenges presented and decisions made are illustrated in Num 1.2. Here NETS reads: “Take a sum total of the whole congregation of the sons of Israel (NRSV: “of Israelites”), according to their families, according to their paternal houses (NRSV: “by ancestral houses”).” The Greek translator rendered ἄρσει Ἰσραήλ with ὑπὸ Ἰσραήλ (“the sons of Israel”) and ἄρσει Ἰσραήλ with κατ’ ὀίκοις πατριωτῶν αὐτῶν (“according the houses of their paternal families”). While the more literal renderings given here do not accord with the NRSV’s policy with respect to gender neutral language, for this verse and many like it the NETS Numbers is based on the overriding principle of translating what the Greek actually says.
And the Lord spoke to Moyses in the wilderness of Sina, in the tent of witness, on the first of the second month of the second year after they had come out of the land of Egypt, saying: 2 Take a sum total of the whole congregation of the sons of Israel, according to their families, according to their paternal houses, according to number by their names, according to their head—3 every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in Israel's force. Enroll them with their force; you and Aaron are to enroll them. 4 And with you shall be each of the rulers, according to the tribe of each. They shall be according to paternal houses. 5 And these are the names of the men who shall be present with you:

From those of Rouben, Elisour son of Sediour.
From those of Symeon, Salamiel son of Sourisadai.
From those of Ioudas, Naasson son of Aminadab.
From those of Issachar, Nathanael son of Sogar.
From those of Zaboulon, Eliab son of Chailon.
From those of Dan, Achierez son of Amisadai.
From those of Aser, Phagaiel son of Echran.
From those of Gad, Elisaph son of Ragouel.
From those of Nephthali, Achiere son of Ainam.

6 These were the ones designated from the congregation, rulers of the tribes according to their paternal family; they were officers of thousands of Israel.

17 And Moyses and Aaron took these men who had been designated by name, 18 and on the first of the month of the second year they assembled the whole congregation. And they tabulated according to their birth, according to their paternal family, according to the number of their names from twenty years and above, every male, according to their head, 19 in the manner the Lord had instructed Moyses. And they were numbered in the wilderness of Sina.

20 And there were the sons of Rouben, Israel's firstborn, according to their families, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, according to the number of their names, according to their head, every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in the force; 21 their numbering from the tribe of Rouben was forty-six thousand and five hundred.

22 For the sons of Symeon, according to their families, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, according to the number of their names, according to their head, every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in the force: 23 their enrollment from the tribe of Symeon was fifty-nine thousand and three hundred.

24(26) For the sons of Ioudas, according to their families, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, according to the number of their names, according to their head, every male from twenty years and above, everyone who goes out in the force: 25(27) their enrollment from the tribe of Ioudas was sixty-two thousand and three hundred.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE
As indicated above, the New English Translation of the Septuagint (NETS) version of Numbers is based on John W. Wevers' critical edition with frequent reference to his Notes on the Greek Text of Numbers. I have also consulted the earlier edition by Alfred Rahlfs (1935). A most helpful research tool has been the Accordance Software for Biblical Studies program (produced by OakTree Software, Inc.). The standard English translation by Brenton has provided many valuable insights. Various scholarly articles in the BIOSCS and some chapters in the Congress volumes of the IOSCS have also provided relevant information and cogent insights.

Personal discussions and interactions with other NETS translators—especially those translating the other four books of the Pentateuch—have been instructive and illuminating.

I especially acknowledge the expert help and input of Albert Pietersma, co-editor (with Benjamin Wright) of the NETS project. By publishing the first translation in the NETS project (The Psalms) as well as the NETS Manual, Professor Pietersma has produced a paradigm and a roadmap for the other translators to follow, each, of course, with his or her own adaptations. Above all, I am most grateful to this leader and mentor in our field for providing detailed communications with me and the other translators as we worked and for helping me avoid several pitfalls by checking this translation with care and in detail.

44 This is the enrollment which Moyses and Aaron and the rulers of Israel, twelve men, enrolled—one man for one tribe, according to the tribe of their paternal houses. 45 And the whole enrollment of the sons of Israel with their force from twenty years and above, everyone who would go out to do battle in Israel was 46 six hundred three thousand and five hundred fifty. 47 But the Leuites from their paternal tribe were not enrolled among the sons of Israel.

48 And the Lord had spoken to Moyses, saying: 49 See to it that you do not enroll the tribe of Leui and that you do not take their number amidst the sons of Israel. 50 And you shall appoint the Leuites over the tent of witness and over all its furnishings and over all the things that are in it; they shall carry the tent and all its furnishings, and they shall minister in it, and they shall encamp around the tent. 51 And when the tent sets out, the Leuites shall take it down, and when the tent encamps, they shall erect it. And let the alien who comes near die. 52 And the sons of Israel shall encamp, a man in his own unit and a man according to his own rank, together with their force, 53 but let the Leuites encamp opposite, around the tent of witness, and there shall be no offense among the sons of Israel. And the Leuites themselves shall keep guard duty over the tent of witness. 54 And the sons of Israel did according to all that the Lord commanded Moyses and Aaron; so they did.

2 And the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying: 2 Let the sons of Israel encamp—a person next to him, according to unit, according to ensigns, according to their paternal houses—opposite round about the tent of witness let the sons of Israel encamp. 3 And those who encamp first towards the east: the unit of the camp of Loudas with their force. And the ruler of the sons of Aser: Phagail son of Echran; 28his force, those enrolled: forty-one thousand and five hundred. 29And those who encamp next to him: the tribe of Naphtali. And the ruler of the sons of Naphtali: Achier son of Ainian; 30his force, those enrolled: fifty-three thousand and four hundred. 31All those enrolled of the camp of Dan: one hundred and fifty-seven thousand and one hundred with their force. They shall set out last, according their unit.

32 This was the enrollment of the sons of Israel according to their paternal houses; the total enrollment of the camps with their forces: six hundred and three thousand, five hundred fifty. 33But the Leuites were not enrolled among them, just as the Lord had commanded Moyses. 34And the sons of Israel did everything that the Lord had instructed Moyses. So they encamped according to their unit, and so they set out, each in order according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses.

3 And these are the generations of Aaron and Moyses in the day when the Lord spoke to Moyses in Mount Sina. 1These are the names of the sons of Aaron, the anointed priests, whose hands they had validated to serve as priests. 2And Nadab and Abioud died before the Lord, when they offered strange fire before the Lord in the wilderness of Sina. But they had no children, and Eleazar and Ithamar served as priests with Aaron their father.

5 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 6Take the tribe of Leui, and you shall place them before Aaron the priest, and they shall minister to him, 7and they shall keep his guard duties and the guard duties of the sons of Israel before the tent of witness to perform the works of the tent. 8And they shall keep all the furnishings of the tent of witness, and the guard duties of the sons of Israel according to all the works of the tent. 9And you shall give the Leuites to Aaron and to his sons the priests; these have been given as a gift to me from the sons of Israel. 10And you shall appoint Aaron and his sons over the tent of witness, and they shall keep guard of their priesthood and all the things pertaining to the based-altar and within the veil, but the alien who touches them shall die.

11 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 12And, behold, I have taken the Leuites from the midst of the sons of Israel in place of every firstborn that opens the womb among the sons of Israel. They shall be their ransom, and the Leuites shall be mine. 13For every firstborn is mine; in the day when I struck every firstborn in the land of Egypt, I consecrated to me every firstborn in Israel from human to animal; they shall be mine. I am the Lord.

14 And the Lord spoke to Moyses in the wilderness of Sina, saying: 15Enroll the sons of Leui according to their paternal houses, according to their divisions, according to their families; every male from a month and above, you shall enroll them. 16And Moyses and Aaron enrolled them by the voice of the Lord, in which manner the Lord had instructed them. 17And these were the sons of Leui, by their names: Gedson, Kaath and Merari. 18And these are the names of the sons of Gedson according to their divisions: Lobeni and Simei. 19And the sons of Kaath according to their divisions: Amram and Issaar, Chebron and Ozziel. 20And the sons of Merari according to their divisions: Mooli and Mousi. These are the divisions of Leui according to their paternal houses.

27 For Kaath, the Amramis division and the Issarits division and the Chebronim division and the Ozielis division; these were the divisions of Kaath. 28According to number, every male from a month and above were eight thousand and six hundred, keeping guard duty over the holy things. 29The divisions of the sons of Kaath shall encamp to the side of the tent towards the southwest. 30And the ruler of the paternal house of the divisions of Kaath is Elisaphan son of Ozrie. 31And their guard duty is the ark and the table and the lampstand and the altars and the furnishings of the holy place with which they shall minister and the covering and all their tasks. 32And the ruler over the rulers of the Levites is Eleazar son of Aaron the priest, having been appointed to keep guard duties over the holy things.

33 For Merari, the Mooli division and the Mousi division; these are the divisions of Merari. 34Their enrollment according to number, every male from a month old and above, is six thousand and fifty. 35And the ruler of the paternal house of the division of Merari is Zouriel son of Abichail; they shall encamp to the side of the tent towards the north. 36The oversight, the guard duty of the sons of Merari, is the capitals of the tent and its bars and its pillars and its bases and all their furniture and their works 37and the pillars of the court all around and their bases and their pegs and their cords.

38 And those encamping before the tent of witness on the east are Moyse and Aaron and his sons, keeping guard duty over the holy place, for the guard duties of the sons of Israel, but the alien who touches it shall die. 39The total enrollment of the Levites, whom Moyse and Aaron enrolled by the voice of the Lord according to their divisions, every male from a month old and above, is twenty-two thousand.

40 And the Lord spoke to Moyse, saying: Enroll every firstborn male of the sons of Israel from a month old and above, and take their number by name. 41But you shall take the Levites for me—I am the Lord—in place of all the firstborn of the sons of Israel, and the flocks of the Levites in place of all the firstborn in the flocks of the sons of Israel. 42And Moyse enrolled, in which manner the Lord had commanded, every firstborn among the sons of Israel. 43And all the firstborn males from a month old and above were eight thousand and six hundred, keeping guard duty over the holy things. 44And the Lord spoke to Moyse, saying: Take the Levites in place of all the firstborn of the sons of Israel from amidst the sons of Levi, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, from twenty-five years and above until fifty years, everyone who enters in to minister, to perform all the tasks in the tent of witness. 45And these are the tasks of the sons of Kaath in the tent of witness, the holy of holies.

4 And the Lord spoke to Moyse and Aaron, saying: 2Take the sum total of the sons of Kaath from amidst the sons of Levi, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, from twenty-five years and above until fifty years, everyone who enters in to minister, to perform all the tasks in the tent of witness. 3And these are the tasks of the sons of Kaath in the tent of witness, the holy of holies.

5 And Aaron and his sons shall go in, whenever the camp sets out, and shall take down the shadowy veil and cover it with the ark of witness, 6and they shall put on it a covering of blue leather and throw on it a wholly blue cloth above and insert the carrying-poles. 7And over the presentation table they shall throw over it a wholly purple cloth, and the bowls and the censers and the lades and the libation cups, with which he libates, and the perpetual loaves shall be on it. 8And they shall put over it a scarlet cloth and cover it with a covering of blue leather and insert the carrying-poles through it. 9And they shall take a blue cloth and cover the lampstand, which gives light, and its lamps and its snuffers and its pouring vessels and all the vessels of oil with which they minister. 10And they shall put it and all of its implements into a covering of blue leather and place it upon carrying-poles. 11And over the golden altar they shall cover a blue cloth and cover it with a covering of blue leather and insert its carrying-poles.

12 And they shall take all the ministry implements with which they minister in the sanctuary and put them into a blue cloth and cover them with a covering of blue leather and put them on carrying-poles, 13and he shall put the cover upon the altar, and they shall cover it with a wholly purple cloth. 14And they shall put on it all the implements, with as many as they minister with them, and the firepans and the meat hooks and the saucers and the cover and all the implements of the altar, and they shall put on it a cover of blue leather and insert its carrying-poles. And they shall take purple cloth and cover up the washbasin and its base, and they shall put them into a covering of blue leather and place them on poles. 15And Aaron and his sons shall finish covering the sanctuary and all the holy implements, when the camp sets out, and after this the sons of Kaath shall enter to carry them, but they shall not touch the holy things, lest they die. These things in the tent of witness the sons of Kaath shall carry.

16 The overseer is Eleazar son of Aaron the priest—the oil of the light and the incense of the mixture and the daily sacrifice and the anointing oil—the oversight of the entire tent and as many things that are in it in the holy place, in all the works.

17 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 18You shall not destroy from the tribe the division of Kaath from the midst of the Leuites.
19You shall do this for them, and they will live and surely not die, when they approach the holy of holies: let Aaron and his sons come forward, and they shall appoint them, each according to his office of bearing—and they shall by no means enter in suddenly to see the holy things and die.

22Take the sum total of the sons of Gedson and those according to their paternal houses, according to their divisions; 23from twenty-five years and above to fifty years enroll them, everyone who goes out to minister and perform his tasks in the tent of witness. 24This is the ministry of the division of Gedson, to minister and to carry, 25and it shall be as many as those with which they minister. 26And the mouth of Aaron and his sons shall be the ministry of the sons of Gedson, in all their services and in all the things borne by them.
27According to the mouth of Aaron and his sons shall carry the skins of the tent, both the tent of witness and its veil and the blue veil which is upon it above and the veil of the door of the tent of witness and the curtains of the court, as many as were upon the tent of witness, and the remaining items and all the ministry implements, and they shall handle as many as those with which they minister. 28This is the ministry of the division of Kaath, everyone who was ministering in the tent of witness, and their guard duty shall be in the hand of Ithamar son of Aaron the priest.

29 As for the sons of Merari, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, enroll them; 30from twenty-five years and above to fifty years, enroll them—everyone going in to minister in the tasks of the tent of witness. 31And these are the requirements of the things borne by them according to all their tasks in the tent of witness: the capitals of the tent and its bars and its pillars and its bases and the pillars of the court all around and their bases and the pillars of the veil for the gate of the court and their bases and their pegs and their cords and all their implements and all their objects used in worship—enroll them by name, and all the implements of the guard duty of the things borne by them. 32This is the ministry of the division of Merari’s sons in all their tasks in the tent of witness, by the hand of Ithamar son of Aaron the priest.

34 And Moyses and Aaron and the rulers of Israel enrolled the sons of Kaath according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, 35from twenty-five years and above to fifty years—everyone going in to minister and to perform tasks in the tent of witness, and their enrollment, according to their divisions, was two thousand seven hundred fifty. 37This was the enrollment of the division of Kaath, everyone who was ministering in the tent of witness, just as Moyses and Aaron enrolled by the voice of the Lord by the hand of Moyses.

38 And the sons of Gedson were enrolled according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, 39from twenty-five years and above to fifty years, everyone going in to minister and perform the tasks in the tent of witness. 40And their enrollment, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, was two thousand six hundred thirty. 41This was the enrollment of the division of the sons of Gedson, everyone who was ministering in the tent of witness, whom Moyses and Aaron enrolled by the voice of the Lord by the hand of Moyses.

42 And there were enrolled also the division of the sons of Merari according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, 43from twenty-five years and above to fifty years, everyone going in to minister, for the tasks of the tent of witness. 44And their enrollment, according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, was three thousand and two hundred. 45This was the enrollment of the division of Merari’s sons, whom Moyses and Aaron enrolled by the voice of the Lord by the hand of Moyses.

46 All those who were enrolled, whom Moyses and Aaron and the rulers of Israel enrolled—the Leuites according to their divisions, according to their paternal houses, 47from twenty-five years and above to fifty years—everyone who was going in for the task of the works and for the tasks that were done in the tent of witness, and those enrolled were eight thousand five hundred eighty. 49He enrolled them by the voice of the Lord by the hand of Moyses, man by man with regard to their tasks and with regard to the things they were bearing. And they were enrolled, in which manner the Lord had instructed Moyses.

5 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 2Order the sons of Israel, and let them send away from the camp everyone who is leprous and everyone who has a discharge and everyone who is an unclean person regarding a soul. 3From male to female you shall send away outside the camp, and they shall not defile their camps in which I dwell among them. 4And the sons of Israel did so and sent them away outside the camp; just as the Lord spoke to Moyses, so the sons of Israel did.

5 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 6Speak to the sons of Israel, saying: Man or woman, if anyone commits one of the human sins and in disregarding disregards and that individual commits an offense, he shall confess the sin which he has committed, and he shall pay back the full sum for the error, and a fifth part of it shall he add to it,
And he shall pay the one whom he wronged. But if the person has no near relative to compensate him for the error to him, the error compensated to the Lord shall be for the priest, except for the ram of atonement through which he shall make atonement by it for him. And every first fruit with respect to all the sanctified things among the sons of Israel, whatever they offer to the Lord for the priest shall be his. And the sanctified things of each shall be his, and if a man gives to the priest, it shall belong to him.

11 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: Man by man—if his wife goes astray and disregards him, despising him, 13and if anyone sleeps with her in a union of seed and escapes the notice of her husband's eyes and she conceals it—although she is defiled—and there is no witness with her and she has not been caught and if a spirit of jealousy comes upon him, and he becomes jealous of his wife but she has defiled herself or if a spirit of jealousy comes upon him and he becomes jealous of his wife but she is not defiled, 15then the man shall bring his wife to the priest, and he shall offer the gift concerning her: one-tenth of an ephah of barley flour. He shall pour no oil upon it, nor shall he put frankincense upon it, for it is a sacrifice of jealousy, a sacrifice of remembrance, recalling an offense.

16 And the priest shall bring her forward and place her before the Lord. 17And the priest shall take pure, living water in an earthen vessel and take some of the dust that is on the floor of the tent of witness and shall set the water before the Lord. 18And the priest shall set the woman before the Lord and uncover the woman's head and place upon her hands the sacrifice of remembrance, the sacrifice of jealousy—but in the priest's hand shall be the water of this reproof that brings the curse. 19And the priest shall make her take an oath by the oaths of this curse, and the curse-bringing water of reproof shall enter her. 20But if you have gone astray being under your own husband, be innocent from the water of this reproof that brings the curse. 21Then the priest shall make the woman take an oath by the oaths of this curse, and the priest shall say to the woman, "May the Lord make you as a curse and bound by oath in the midst of your people, when the Lord makes your thigh fall to pieces and your womb swell, and this water that brings the curse shall enter your belly, to swell the belly and make your thigh fall to pieces." And the woman shall say, "May it be; may it be!" 22And the priest shall write these curses on a scroll and shall wipe them out into the water of reproof that brings the curse, and the curse-bringing water of reproof shall enter her. 23And the priest shall take from the woman's hand the sacrifice of jealousy, and he shall place the sacrifice before the Lord and bring it to the altar. 24And from the sacrifice the priest shall take a handful as its memorial and offer it upon the altar, and afterwards he shall have the woman drink the water. 25And it shall be, if she is defiled and has escaped her husband's notice by stealth, then the water of reproof that brings the curse shall enter her, and she shall be swelled up in her belly, and her thigh shall fall to pieces, and the woman shall become a curse among her people. 26But if the woman was not defiled and is pure, then she shall be innocent and shall tseed seed.

29 This is the law of jealousy, in case a woman who is under her husband goes astray and is defiled or in case a man on whom a spirit of jealousy comes and he becomes jealous of his wife. And he shall place his wife before the Lord, and the priest shall apply this entire law to her. And the man shall be innocent of sin, but that woman shall bear her sin.

6 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: Man or woman, whoever especially vows a pure vow to the Lord to purify himself 3 from wine and sikera, he shall be purified from wine, and vinegar from wine and vinegar from sikera he shall not drink. And whatever is prepared from the grape he shall not drink, and he shall not eat fresh grapes and raisins. All the days of his vow, of all the things that come from the vine, wine from pressed grapes to grape-stone seed he shall not consume.

5 All the days of his vow of purification a razor shall not come upon his head until the days be fulfilled, as many as he vowed to the Lord; he shall be holy, letting the hair of his head grow into a mane.

6 All the days of the vow to the Lord, he shall not enter for any dead souls, nor for mother and for brother and for sister; he shall not be defiled for them when they have died, because a vow of his god is upon him, upon his head. For all the days of his vow, he shall be holy to the Lord.

9 Now if someone dies suddenly nearby him, at once the head of his vow shall be defiled, and he shall shave his head on whatever day he be cleansed; on the seventh day he shall be shaved. 10And on the eighth day he shall bring two turtle-doves or two young doves to the priest at the entrance of the tent of witness. And the priest shall offer one for sin and one for a whole burnt offering and the priest shall make atonement on his behalf for the things in which he sinned concerning the souls, and he shall sanctify his head on that day on which he was consecrated to the Lord for the days of the vow, and he shall bring a year-old male lamb for error, and the previous days shall not be reckoned, because the head of his vow was defiled.

13 And this is the rule for the one who has taken a vow. On whatever day he fulfills the days of his vow, he shall personally bring an offering to the entrance of the tent of witness, 14 and he shall bring his gift to the Lord: one year-old male lamb without blemish for a whole burnt offering and one year-old ewe lamb without blemish for sin and one ram without blemish for deliverance 15 and a basket of unleavened bread of fine flour, loaves mixed with oil and unleavened cakes anointed with oil and their sacrifice and their libation. 16 And the priest shall bring an offering before the Lord, and he shall do his victim for sin and his whole burnt offering. 17 And he shall make the ram an offering for deliverance to the Lord, along with the basket of unleavened bread, and the priest shall do his sacrifice and his libation. 18 And the one who made a vow shall shave the head of his vow at the entrance of the tent of witness, and he shall place the hair upon the fire, which is under the sacrifice of deliverance. 19 And the priest shall take the boiled shoulder from the ram and one unleavened loaf from the basket and one unleavened cake, and he shall place them upon the hands of the one who had made a vow, after he has his vow shaved. 20 And the priest shall offer them as an addition before the Lord; it shall be holy for the priest beside the breast of the addition and beside the shoulder of the advance deduction; after this, the one who has made a vow shall drink wine. 21 This is the rule for the one who makes a vow, whoever vows his gift to the Lord, concerning his vow, apart from what his hand might find, according to the strength of his vow, which he vows according to the law of purity.

22 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:
23 Speak to Aaron and his sons, saying: Thus you shall bless the sons of Israel, saying to them—
24 (27) and they shall put my name on the sons of Israel, and I the Lord will bless them—
25 (24) May the Lord bless you and keep you;
26 (25) may the Lord make his face shine upon you and show mercy to you;
27 (26) may the Lord lift up his face upon you and give you peace.

And it came to pass on the day in which Moyses finished so as to set up the tent, and he anointed it and consecrated it and all its furnishings and the altar and all its utensils, and he anointed them and consecrated them. 2 And the rulers of Israel, twelve rulers of their paternal houses, offered. These were rulers of the tribes; these were the ones who presided over the overseeing. 3 And they brought their gift before the Lord: six covered wagons and twelve cattle, a wagon from two rulers and a calf from each, and they advanced before the tent. 4 And the Lord said to Moyses, saying: 5 Take from them, and they shall be for the ministry tasks of the tent of witness, and you shall give them to the Leuites, to each one according to his service. 6 And Moyses took the wagons and the cattle and gave them to the Leuites. 7 Two wagons and four cattle he gave to the sons of Gedson according to their ministries, 8 and four wagons and eight cattle he gave to the sons of Merari according to their ministries, through Ithamar son of Aaron the priest. 9 And to the sons of Kaath he did not give, because they have the objects used in worship of the holy place; they shall carry them upon their shoulders.

Lord speaking to him from above the propitiatory, which is upon the ark of witness, between the two cherubim, and he was speaking to him.

And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:
2Speak to Aaron, and you shall say to him:
When you set up the lamps, the seven lamps shall give light from the side in front of the lamp-stand. 4And Aaron did so; from the one side facing the lampstand he lit its lamps, just as the Lord instructed Moyses. 5And this is the construction of the lampstand: solid golden, its stem and its lilies, totally solid; according to the pattern that the Lord showed Moyses, so he made the lampstand.

5 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 6Take the Leuites from amidst the sons of Israel, and you shall purify them. 7And thus you shall carry out for them their purification; you shall sprinkle them with water of purification, and a razor shall come upon all of their body, and they shall wash their clothes, and they shall be clean. 8And they shall take one calf from the cattle and its sacrifice of fine flour mixed with oil, and you shall take a year-old bull calf from the cattle for sin. 9And you shall bring the Leuites before the tent of witness, and you shall gather all the congregation of Israel’s sons, you shall bring the Leuites before the Lord, and the sons of Israel shall place their hands on the Leuites. 11And Aaron shall set apart the Leuites as a restitution before the Lord from the sons of Israel, and they shall be so as to perform the works of the Lord. 12Now the Leuites shall lay their hands on the heads of the calves, and he shall do the one for sin and the one as a whole burnt offering to the Lord in order to make atonement for them. 13And you shall stand the Leuites before the Lord and before Aaron and before his sons, and you shall give them back as a restitution before the Lord.

14 And you shall separate the Leuites from amidst the sons of Israel, and they shall be mine.
15And afterwards the Leuites shall enter to perform the tasks of the tent of witness, and you shall cleanse them and give them back before the Lord, and you shall give them as a restitution, given to Aaron and to his sons for them. 17And these have been given back to me as a restitution from amidst Israel’s sons. In place of all the firstborn of the sons of Israel that open every womb, I have taken them for myself. 17For every firstborn among Israel’s sons is mine, from human to animal; on the day when I struck every firstborn in the land of Egypt, I consecrated them to me, 18and I took the Leuites in place of every firstborn among Israel’s sons. 19And I gave back the Leuites as a restitution, given to Aaron and to his sons from amidst Israel’s sons, to perform the tasks of the sons of Israel in the tent of witness and to make atonement for the sons of Israel, and there shall be none among the sons of Israel who draws near to the holy things.

20 And Moyses and Aaron and all the congregation of Israel’s sons did to the Leuites just as the Lord commanded Moyses concerning the Leuites; thus the sons of Israel did to them. 21And the Leuites purified themselves and washed their clothes, and Aaron delivered them up as a restitution before the Lord, and Aaron made atonement for them to purify them. 22And afterwards the Leuites entered to minister in their ministry in the tent of witness before Aaron and before his sons; just as the Lord instructed Moyses concerning the Leuites, so they did to them.

23 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:
24This is what concerns the Leuites: from twenty-five years and above, they shall enter to minister in the ministry in the tent of witness. 25And from fifty years old, he shall depart from the ministry, and he shall not perform any longer. 26And his brother shall minister in the tent of witness to keep ward duties, but he shall not perform tasks. Thus you shall do to the Leuites in their guard duties.

9 And the Lord spoke to Moyses in the wilderness of Sina, in the second year after they went out of the land of Egypt, in the first month, saying:
2Speak, and let the sons of Israel keep the pascha according to its season. 3On the fourteenth day of the first month towards evening, you shall keep it according to appointed times; according to its law and according to its interpretation you shall keep it.
4And Moyses told the sons of Israel to keep the pascha.
5When the month began, on the fourteenth day, in the wilderness of Sina, just as the Lord instructed Moyses, so the sons of Israel did.
6And the men came near, who were unclean regarding a human soul; and they were not able to keep the pascha in that day, and they came before Moyses and Aaron in that day. 7And those men said to him, “We are unclean regarding a human soul. Surely, then, we are not to fail to offer the gift to the Lord according to its appointed time in the midst of Israel’s sons?” 8And Moyses spoke to them, “Stand here, and I shall hear what the Lord shall command concerning you.”

9 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:
10Speak to the sons of Israel, saying: 11Person by person—whoever is unclean regarding a human soul or is on a journey far off to you or among your families shall also keep the pascha to the Lord. 11In the second month, on the fourteenth day, towards evening they shall keep it; with unleavened bread and bitter herbs they shall eat it.
12They shall leave none of it until morning, and they shall not break a bone from it; according to the law of the pascha they shall keep it. 13And a person who is pure and is not on a journey far off and fails to keep the pascha, that soul shall be totally destroyed from his people; because he did not offer his gift to the Lord according to its appointed time, that person shall receive his sin. 14Now if a guest comes to you in your land, he also shall keep the pascha to the Lord; according to the law of the pascha and according to its organization, so shall he keep it; there shall be one law for you and for the guest and for the native of the land.

15 And on the day on which the tent was set up, the cloud covered the tent, the house of witness, and in the evening upon the tent it was like the appearance of fire until morning. 16So it was all the time; the cloud covered it by day, and the appearance of fire during the night. 17And when the cloud rose up from the tent, after that also the sons of Israel departed, and in the place where the cloud stood, there the sons of Israel encamped.

18And at the ordinance of the Lord the sons of Israel shall encamp, and at the ordinance of the Lord they shall set out; all the days in which the cloud casts a shadow over the tent, the sons of Israel shall encamp. 19And when the cloud is drawn over the tent for many days, also the sons of Israel shall keep the guard duty of God, and they shall certainly not set out. 20And it shall be, when the cloud casts a shadow over the tent for days in number, at the voice of the Lord they shall encamp, and at the ordinance of the Lord they shall set out. 21And it shall be, when the cloud occurs from evening until morning and the cloud rises up in the morning, then they shall set out by day or by night, and when the cloud rises up, they shall set out. 22In a day or a month—as a day prolongs from evening until morning and the cloud rises up in the morning, then they shall set out by day or by night, and when the cloud rises up, they shall set out. 23For at the ordinance of the Lord they shall set out. They kept the guard duty of the Lord at the ordinance of the Lord by the hand of Moyses.

10 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

2Make for yourself two silver trumpets; you shall make them beaten, and they shall be for you to summon the congregation and to remove the camps. 3And you shall trumpet with them, and all the congregation shall be gathered together at the door of the tent of witness. 4But if they trumpet with one, all the rulers shall come to you, chiefs of Israel. 5And you shall trumpet a signal, and the tents of the Levites shall set out. 6And you shall trumpet a second signal, and the camps encamping on the east shall set out. 7And whenever you gather the congregation, you shall trumpet, but not with a signal. 8And the sons of Aaron, the priests, shall trumpet with the trumpets, and it shall be to you a perpetual precept for your generations. 9And if you go out to war in your land against the adversaries who oppose you, you shall also give a signal with the trumpets, and you shall be remembered before the Lord, and you shall escape to safety from your enemies. 10And in the days of your gladness and at your feasts and at your new moons, you shall trumpet with the trumpets over the whole burnt offerings and over your sacrifices of deliverance, and it shall be for you a reminder before your God. I am the Lord your God. 11And it happened in the second year, in the second month, on the twentieth of the month, the cloud rose up from the tent of witness. 12And the sons of Israel set out with their equipment in the wilderness of Sina, and the cloud stood in the wilderness of Pharan. 13And the first ones set out by the voice of the Lord, by the hand of Moyses. 14And a camp unit of Lous’ sons were the first to set out together with their force, and over their force was Naasson son of Aminadab, 15and over the force of the tribe of Issachar’s sons was Nathanael son of Sogar, 16and over the force of the tribe of Zaboulon’s sons was Eliab son of Chailon. 17And they shall take down the tent, and the sons of Gedson and the sons of Merari shall set out, carrying the tent. 18And a camp unit of Rouben set out together with their force, and over their force was Elisour son of Sediour, 19and over the force of the tribe of Symeon’s sons was Salamiel son of Sourisadai, 20and over the force of the tribe of Gad’s sons was Elisaph the son of Ragouel.

25 And a camp unit of Dan’s sons shall set out, last of all the camps, together with their force, and over their force, Achiezer the son of Amisadai, 26and over the force of the tribe of Aser’s sons, Phagaieel son of Echran, 27and over the force of the tribe of Nephtali’s sons, Achire the son of Ainan.

29 And Moyses said to Hobab son of Ragouel the Madianite, Moyses’ brother-in-law, "We are setting out for the place of which the Lord said, ‘This I will give to you. Come with us, and we will treat you well, for the Lord has spoken fine things concerning Israel.’" 30But he said to him, "I will not go; rather, I will go to my land and to my kindred." 31And he said, "Do not leave us, on account of the fact that you were with us in the wilderness, and you will be an elder among us. 32And it shall be, if you go with us and those good things shall occur with which the Lord benefits us, we will also treat you well."

33 And they set out from the mountain of the Lord on a journey of three days, and the ark of the covenant of the Lord went ahead before them on a journey of three days, and the ark of the covenant of the Lord benefited us, we will also treat you well."

34(35) And it happened when the ark set out, then Moyses said: "Be aroused, O Lord, let your enemies be scattered; let all those who hate you flee!"

35(36)And when it came to rest he said, "Turn, O Lord, the thousands, the myriads in Israel."

36(34)And the cloud came, overshadowing them by day, when they set out from the camp.

11 And the people were muttering wicked things before the Lord, and the Lord heard... and was angered with wrath. And fire was kindled among them from the Lord, and it devoured a certain part of the camp. 2 And the people cried out to Moyses, and Moyses prayed to the Lord, and the fire abated. 3 And the name of that place was called Burning, because fire was kindled among them from the Lord.

4 And the rabble among them craved with desire, and after they sat down, they wept—also the sons of Israel—and said, "Who shall feed us with meat? 5 We remembered the fish that we used to eat in Egypt, for nothing, and the cucumbers and the melons and the leeks and the onions and the garlic. 6 But now our soul is parched; our eyes are towards nothing except the manna."

7 Now the manna was like coriander seed, and its appearance was the appearance of rock-crystal. 8 And the people would go through and collect and grind it in the mill or crush it in the mortar, and they would boil it in the pot and make it into cakes, and its flavor was like the taste of a cake made with oil. 9 And when the dew descended upon the camp by night, the manna would descend on it.

10 And Moyses heard them weeping in their divisions, each one at his door. And the Lord was greatly angered with wrath, and before Moyses it was evil. 11 And Moyses said to the Lord, "Why have you mistreated your attendant, and why have I not found favor before you, to lay the onslaught of this people upon me? 12 Was it I who carried in the womb all this people, or was it I who gave birth to them, that you are saying to me, 'Take them to your bosom, as a nurse might take up the sucking child,' into the land, which you swore to their fathers? 13 From where do I get meat to give to all this people, or was it I who gave birth to them? Was I the one who bore this people alone, because this thing is too heavy for me. 15 But if this is how you are going to treat me, kill me by slaying if I have found mercy with you so that I may not see my suffering."

16 And the Lord said to Moyses, "Gather for me seventy men from the elders of Israel, whom you personally know that they are elders of the people and are their scribes, and you shall lead them to the tent of witness, and they shall stand there with you. 17 And I will come down and speak to him, and I will remove some of the spirit that is upon you, and I will place it upon them, and they shall assist you with the onslaught of the people, and you will not bear them alone. 18 And you shall say to the people: Purify yourselves for tomorrow, and you shall eat meat; for you wept before the Lord, saying, 'Who shall feed us with meat? For it was well for us in Egypt,' and the Lord will give you meat to eat, and you shall eat meat. 19 You shall not eat one day, nor two, nor five days, nor ten days, nor twenty days—up to a month of days you shall eat until it comes out of your nostrils and shall become as cholera to you, because you disobeyed the Lord who is among you and you wept before him, saying, 'What did we do, to come out of Egypt?' " 21 And Moyses said, "The people whom I am among are six hundred thousand on foot—and you said, 'Meat I will give them, and they will eat for a month of days!' 22 Shall sheep and cattle really be slain for them, and will this be enough for them? Or shall all the food of the sea be gathered together for them, and will this be enough for them?" 23 And the Lord said to Moyses, "Will the Lord's hand not be sufficient? Now you shall know whether my word will overtake you or not."

24 And Moyses went out and spoke to the people the words of the Lord, and he gathered seventy men from the elders of the people, and he placed them around the tent. 25 And the Lord came down in a cloud and spoke to him and took away some of the spirit that was upon him and put it upon the seventy men who were elders. Now as the spirit rested upon them, they also prophesied, and they no longer added.

26 And two men were left in the camp, the name of the one Eldad and the name of the second Modad, and the spirit rested upon them. And these were among the ones who had been registered, and they did not go to the tent, and they prophesied in the camp. 27 And the young man ran out and reported to Moyses and spoke, saying, "Eldad and Modad are prophesying in the camp." 28 And lesous the son of Naue, the one who stood by Moyses, the chosen one, said, "O Sir Moyses—stop them!" 29 And Moyses said to him, "Are you really jealous for me? And who might grant that all the Lord's people be prophets, when the Lord grants his spirit upon them?" 30 And Moyses departed into the camp, he and the elders of Israel.

31 And a wind went out from the Lord, and it brought quail from the sea, and it cast them upon the camp, a day's journey on this side and a day's journey on the other side, all around the camp, about two cubits in height from the ground. 32 And the people rose up all the day and all the night and the next day and gathered the quail. He who gathered little gathered ten kors, and they dried them for themselves with dryings around the camp. 33 The meat was still between their teeth before it expired, and the Lord became angry against the people, and the Lord struck among the people with a very great plague. 34 And the name of that place was called Tombs of Craving, because there they buried the people that craved. 35 From Tombs of Craving the people set out for Haseroth, and the people were in Haseroth.

12 And Mariam and Aaron spoke against Moyses on account of the Ethiopian woman whom Moyses had taken, because he had taken an Ethiopian woman. 2 And they said, "The Lord has not spoken only to Moyses, has he? Did he not also speak to us?" And the Lord listened.
3And the man Moyses was very meek, more than all the people who were upon the earth. 4And the Lord said at once to Moyses and Mariam and Aaron, "Come out, you three, to the tent of witness." 5And the three came out to the tent of witness. And the Lord descended in a pillar of cloud and stood at the door of the tent of witness. And Aaron and Mariam were called, and they both came out. 6And he said to them, "Hear my words: If there is a prophet of you for the Lord, in a vision I will be known to him, and in sleep I will speak to him.

8Mouth to mouth I will speak to him, in visible form and not through riddles. And he has seen the glory of the Lord. And why were you not afraid to speak against my attendant Moyses?" 9And the anger of the Lord's wrath was against them, and he departed.

10And the cloud withdrew from the tent, and behold, Mariam was leprous like snow, and Aaron looked upon Mariam, and look, she was leprous. 11And Aaron said to Moyses, "I beg you, Sir, do not lay extra sin upon us, because we were ignorant in that we sinned. 12Do not let her be like unto death, like a miscarriage coming out of a mother's womb, and it devours half her flesh." 13And Moyses cried out to the Lord, saying, "O God, I beg you, heal her!" 14And the Lord said to Moyses, "If her father when spitting had spat in her face, would she not be put to shame for seven days? Let her be separated for seven days outside the camp, and afterwards she shall enter." 15And Mariam was kept apart outside the camp for seven days, and the people did not set out until Mariam was cleansed.

1(1)And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, 2Send out for yourself men, and let them spy out the land of the Chananites, which I am giving to the sons of Israel as a possession: one man per tribe, according to their paternal divisions you shall send them off, everyone of them a chief." 3(3)And Moyses sent them out from the wilderness of Pharan by the voice of the Lord; all these men were chiefs of Israel. 4(4)And these are their names: Of the tribe of Rouben, Samou son of Zacchour; 6(5)of the tribe of Symeon, Saphat son of Houri; 7(6)of the tribe of Ioudas, Chaleb son of Lephonhe; 8(7)of the tribe of Issachar, Igal son of Joseph; 9(8)of the tribe of Ephraim, Hause son of Naue; 10(9)of the tribe of Benjamin, Phalti son of Raphou; 11(10)of the tribe of Zaboulon, Goudiel son of Soudi; 12(11)of the tribe of Joseph (of the sons of Manasse), Gaddi son of Soui; 13(12)of the tribe of Dan, Amiel son of Gamali; 14(13)of the tribe of Aser, Sathour son of Michael; 15(14)of the tribe of Nephthali, Nabi son of Iabi; 16(15)of the tribe of Gad, Goudiel son of Macchi. 17(16)These are the names of the men whom Moyses sent to spy out the land. And Moyses named Hause son of Naue, Iesous.

18(17)And Moyses sent them to spy out the land of Chanaan and said to them, "Go up by this wilderness, and you shall go up to the mountain. 19(18)And you shall see the land, what it is and the people who dwell upon it, if they are rather strong or weak, if they are few or many, 20(19)and what the land is, which they dwell on, whether it is good or bad, and what the cities are which they live in, whether they are walled or unwalled, 21(20)and what the land is, if it is rich or untended, if there are trees in it or not. And you shall perceive and take some of the fruit of the land." And the days were days of spring, forerunners of the grape.

22(21)And they went up and spied out the land from the wilderness of Sin as far as Raab, as people enter Hemath. 23(22)And they went up by the wilderness and came as far as Chebron, and Achiman and Sesi and Thelamin were there, generations of Enak, and Chebron was built seven years before Tanis of Egypt. 24(23)And they came as far as Cluster Ravine, and they spied it out, and they cut down from there a branch and one cluster of grapes upon it, and they lifted it up on carrying-poles, and some of the pomegranates and some of the figs. 25(24)That place they named Cluster Ravine, because of the cluster that the sons of Israel cut down from there.

26(25)And they turned back from there, having spied out the land, after forty days. 27(26)And they went and came to Moyses and Aaron and to all the congregation of Israel’s sons, to the wilderness of Pharan Kades, and they brought back word to them and to all the congregation, and they showed the fruit of the land. 28(27)And they explained to him and said, "We came into the land, into which you sent us, a land flowing with milk and honey—and this is its fruit. 29(28)Except that the nation that is inhabiting the land is bold, and the cities are strong, walled and very large, and we have seen the generation of Enak there. 30(29)And Amalek lives in the land that is towards the south, and the Chettite and the Heuite and the Iebousite and the Amorrite are living in the hill country, and the Chananite lives by the sea and by the Jordan river.

31(30)And Chaleb silenced the people towards Moyses and said to him, "No, but when we go up we shall go up, and we shall obtain it as an inheritance, because being powerful we shall prevail against them." 32(31)But the men who went up together with him said, "We are not going up, because by no means will we be able to go up against the nation, because they are much stronger than we." 33(32)And they brought about consternation for the land that they had spied out, to the sons of Israel, saying, "The land that we passed through to spy it out—it is a land that devours those who live

upon it. All the people that we saw in it are very tall men, 34(33) and we have seen the giants there, and we were before them like grasshoppers—indeed even so we were before them."

14 And all the congregation lifted up and gave voice, the people also kept weeping that whole night. 2And all the sons of Israel were complaining against Moyses and Aaron, and all the congregation said to them, "Would that we had died in the land of Egypt! Or if we had died in this wilderness! 3And why is the Lord bringing us into this land to fall in war? Our wives and children will become plunder! Now then, it is better for us to turn back into Egypt." 4And they said one to the other, "Let us assign a chief and turn back into Egypt."

5 And Moyses and Aaron fell face down before all the congregation of Israel's sons. 6But Iesous son of Naue and Chaleb son of Iephonne, of those who had spied out the land, ripped their clothes, 7and they said to all the congregation of Israel's sons, saying, "The land, that which we spied out, is very, very good. 8If the Lord is choosing, 9Only do not become deserters from the Lord. But as for you, do not fear the people of the land, since they are food for us; for the right time has departed from them, but the Lord is among us. Do not fear them."

10 And all the congregation said that they would stone them with stones. And the glory of the Lord appeared in a cloud upon the tent of witness among all the sons of Israel. 11And the Lord said to Moyses, "How long is this people going to provoke me, and how long are they not going to believe me amidst all the signs that I have performed among them? 12I will strike them with death, and I will destroy them, and I will make you and your father's house into a great nation and more numerous than this."

13 And Moyses said to the Lord, "And Egypt will hear that you brought up this people by your might from them. 14But also, all those who dwell upon this land have heard that you are Lord among this people—you who are seen with eyes by eyes, O Lord, and your cloud has stood over them, and you go in front of them in a pillar of cloud during the day and in a pillar of fire during the night. 15And you shall wipe out this people as one person, and the nations, as many as have heard your name, shall speak, saying. 16Because the Lord was not able to bring this people into the land, which he swore to them, he strewed them in it. 17And now let your strength be exalted, O Lord, in the manner that you spoke, saying, "The Lord is long-suffering and very merciful and true, removing acts of lawlessness and injustice and sin."

And by cleansing he will not cleanse the guilty, repaying sins of fathers upon children until the third and fourth."

19Forgive this people their sin according to your great mercy, just as you were gracious to them from Egypt until the present."

20 And the Lord said to Moyses, "I am merciful to them according to your word. 21But I live, and my name is living; the glory of the Lord shall also fill all the earth. 22For all the men who saw my glory and the signs that I performed in Egypt and in this wilderness and tested me this tenth time and did not listen to my voice, surely they shall not see the land that I swore to their fathers. Instead, their children who are with me here, as many as do not know good nor evil, every inexperienced younger person—to these I will give the land, but all those who provoked me shall not see it. 24But as for my servant Chaleb, because there was another spirit in him and he followed me, I too will bring him into the land, there where he entered, and his offspring shall inherit it. 25But Amalek and the Chanahite are living in the valley; tomorrow, as for you, return, and set out for the wilderness, by way of the Red Sea."

26 And the Lord said to Moyses and Aaron, saying: 27How long—this wicked congregation? I have heard what they yourselves are complaining against me, the complaint of the sons of Israel, which they have complained concerning you. 28Say to them, "I live," says the Lord, "surely in the way you have spoken in my ears, so I will do to you. 29In this wilderness your limbs shall fall, even your entire tally, and those of you who were enumerated from twenty years and above, as many as complained against me. 30If you shall enter into the land upon which I stretched out my hand to make you encamp upon it—except for Chaleb son of Iephonne and Iesous son of Naue 31And as for the children who you said would be as plunder—I will lead them into the land, and they shall inherit the land, that which you turned away from. 32And your limbs shall fall in this wilderness. 33But your sons shall be feeding in the wilderness for forty years, and they shall bear your fornication until your limbs are wasted in the wilderness. 34According to the number of the days, as many as you spied out the land—forty days, a day per year—you shall bear your sins for forty years, and you shall know the wrath of my anger. 35I the Lord have spoken; surely I will do thus to this evil congregation that has banded together against me. In this wilderness they shall be utterly consumed, and there they shall die.

36 And as for the men whom Moyses sent to spy out the land and when they arrived complained against it to the congregation in order to bring about evil words concerning the land— 37the men who were saying bad things against the land also died by a blow before the Lord. 38And Iesous son of Naue and Chaleb son of Iephonne lived on of those men who had gone to spy out the land.

39 And Moyses spoke these words to all sons of Israel, and the people mourned very much. 40 And early in the morning they went up to the top of the mountain, saying, "Behold, we here will go up to the place which the Lord has said, because we have sinned." 41 And Moyses said, "Why are you transgressing the word of the Lord? It will not be easy going for you. 42 Do not go up, for the Lord is not with you, and you will fall before your enemies. 43 For Amalek and the Chananite are there before you, and you shall fall by dagger; because you have turned away by disobeying the Lord, the Lord will also not be among you." 44 And they acted forcefully and went up to the top of the mountain, but the ark of the covenant of the Lord and Moyses did not move from the camp. 45 And Amalek came down and the Chananite, who was lying in ambush in that mountain, and they routed them and cut them down as far as Herma, and they turned back to the camp.

2 Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: When you come into the land of your dwelling, which I am giving you, 3 and you will make an offering to the Lord: a whole burnt offering or a sacrifice to magnify a vow or voluntarily or to make an odor of fragrance to the Lord at your feasts, whether from the cattle or from the sheep, 4 he who presents his gift to the Lord shall also present a sacrifice of fine flour, one-tenth of an ephahb mixed in oil, with a fourth part of a hin. 5 And you shall do wine as a libation, the fourth part of a hin, upon the whole burnt offering or upon the sacrifice; for the one lamb you shall make so much as an offering, an odor of fragrance to the Lord. 6 And for the rain, when you do it as a whole burnt offering or as a sacrifice, you shall make a sacrifice of two-tenths of fine flour, mixed in oil, the third part of a hin. 7 And you shall present wine as a libation, the third part of a hin, as an odor of fragrance to the Lord. 8 But if you offer one of the cattle as a whole burnt offering or as a sacrifice to magnify a vow or for deliverance to the Lord, 9 he shall also present upon the bull calf a sacrifice of fine flour, three-tenths mixed in oil, half a hin, 10 and wine as a libation, half a hin, as an offering, an odor of fragrance to the Lord.

11 Thus you shall do to the one bull calf or to the one ram or to the one lamb from the sheep or from the goats: 12 according to the number of what you might offer, so you shall do to the one, according to their number. 13 Every native shall do such things so, to present offerings as an odor of fragrance to the Lord. 14 But if there is a guest among you in your land or one who is born among you in your generations and he makes an offering, an odor of fragrance to the Lord—in the manner you yourselves do, so (15) the congregation shall do for the Lord. 15 One law shall be for you and for the guests who associate themselves among you, an everlasting law for your generations; as you are, also the guest shall be before the Lord. 16 There shall be one law and one statute for you and for the guest who attaches himself to you.

18 Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: When you enter into the land, there where I am bringing you into, 19 and it shall be, when you eat from the loaves of the land, you shall remove an advance deduction as something set apart for the Lord, 20 as the first fruit of your dough, a loaf. As an advance deduction you shall set it apart: as an advance deduction from the threshing floor, so you shall remove it, 21 as the first fruit of your dough, and you shall give to the Lord an advance deduction for your generations.

22 But when you fail utterly and do not perform all these commandments that the Lord spoke to Moyses—23 just as the Lord instructed you by the hand of Moyses, from the day on which the Lord instructed you, and beyond throughout your generations—24 and it shall be, if it happens unintentionally outside the eyes of the congregation, all the congregation shall also do one unblemished calf from the cattle as a whole burnt offering, as an odor of fragrance to the Lord, and the sacrifice of this and its libation according to instruction and one male goat from the goats for sin. 25 And the priest shall make atonement for all the congregation of Israel’s sons, and it shall be forgiven them because it is unintentional. And they themselves have brought their gift as an offering to the Lord for their sin before the Lord, for their unintentional sins. 26 And it shall be forgiven with respect to all the congregation of Israel’s sons and for the guest who attaches himself to you, because for all the people it is unintentional.

27 Now if one soul sins unintentionally, he shall bring forward one year-old female goat for sin. 28 And the priest shall make atonement concerning the soul that acts unintentionally and sins unintentionally before the Lord, to make atonement for him. 29 For the local inhabitant among Israel’s sons and for the guest who associates himself among them, there shall be one law for them, whoever might have acted unintentionally. 30 And a soul that shall act with a hand of arrogance, from the natives or from the guests, this one provokes God; that soul shall be completely destroyed from his people, 31 because he despised the word of the Lord and scattered his commandments. That soul shall be wiped out with a wiping; his sin is in him.

32 And the sons of Israel were in the wilderness, and they found a man gathering sticks on the day of the sabbaths. 33 And those who found him gathering sticks brought him to Moyses and Aaron and to all the congregation of Israel’s sons. 34 And they placed him in custody, for they did not decide what they should do to him. 35 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, “Let the man by death be put to death; stone him with stones—all the congregation—}
And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

And Kore son of Issar son of Kaath son of Leui spoke, and Dathan and Abiron sons of Eliab and Aun son of Phaleth son of Rouben, and they rose up against Moyses, and two hundred and fifty men of the sons of Israel, chiefs of the congregation, summoned for council and renowned men, stood together against Moyses and Aaron, and said, "Enough with you, because the whole congregation—all are holy, and the Lord is among them. And why do you rise up against the congregation of the Lord?" And when Moyses heard it, he fell face down, and he spoke to Kore and to all his congregation, saying, "God has enrolled, and he recognized the ones who are his and who are holy, and he brought them to himself, and those whom he chose for himself he brought to himself. This do: Take for yourselves fire-pan, Kore and all his congregation, and put fire on them, and put incense on them before the Lord tomorrow. And Kore son of Issar son of Kaath son of Leui, and Aaron, and all their congregation—all are holy, and the Lord is among them. And why do you rise up against the congregation of the Lord?" And when Moyses heard it, he fell face down, and he spoke to Kore and to all his congregation, saying, "God has enrolled, and he recognized the ones who are his and who are holy, and he brought them to himself, and those whom he chose for himself he brought to himself. This do: Take for yourselves fire-pan, Kore and all his congregation, and put fire on them, and put incense on them before the Lord tomorrow. And it shall be, the man whom the Lord chooses, he shall be holy; let it be sufficient for you, sons of Leui!" And Moyses said to Kore, "Listen to me, sons of Leui! This is not a small thing for you, is it, that the God of Israel has separated you from the congregation of Israel and brought you to himself to minister in the services of the tent of the Lord and to stand by before the congregation to serve them? And as for Aaron—who is he that you are complaining against him?"

15 And Moyses was extremely indignant and said to the Lord, "Pay no attention to their sacrifice; I have not taken what was desired from any one of them, nor did I harm any one of them."

16 And Moyses said to Kore, "Sanctify your congregation, and be ready before the Lord, you and they and Aaron, tomorrow. And take, each one, his fire-pan, and you shall put incense upon them, and you shall bring forward, each one, his fire-pan before the Lord, two hundred and fifty fire-pans; you also and Aaron, each his fire-pan." And each man took his fire-pan, and they placed upon them fire, and they laid upon them incense, and they stood near the entrance of the tent of witness, Moyses and Aaron. And Kore banded together against them all his congregation by the door of the tent of witness, and the glory of the Lord appeared to all the congregation.

20 And the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying: Be separated from the midst of this congregation, and I will utterly destroy them once and for all. And they fell upon their face and said, "O God, God of the spirits and of all flesh, if one person sinned, is the anger of the Lord upon all the congregation?"

23 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: Speak to the congregation, saying: Depart from around the congregation of Kore. And Moyses arose and went to Dathan and Abiron, and all the elders of Israel went together with him. And he spoke to the congregation, saying, "Be separated from the tents of these stubborn men, and do not touch anything of all that is theirs, lest you too perish in all their sin." And they departed from around the tent of Kore, and Dathan and Abiron came out, and they stood by the doors of their tents, and their wives and their children and their chattel. And Moyses said, "By this you shall know that the Lord has sent me to do all these works, because it is not of my own accord. If these are to die according to death of all people, if also their visitation is to be according to the visitation of all people, the Lord has not sent me. But if the Lord will show forth by an omen and the earth opens its mouth and swallows them down and their households and their tents and all that belongs to them and they go down alive into Hades, then you shall know that these men provoked the Lord."

31 Now as he stopped speaking all these words, the earth underneath them was split apart. And the earth was opened and swallowed them down, and their households and all the men who were with Kore and their cattle. And they went down, they and as much as was theirs, alive into Hades, and the earth covered them, and they perished from the midst of the congregation. And all Israel who were around them fled from the sound of them, for they were saying, "Lest the earth swallow us down!" And fire went out from the Lord and consumed the two hundred and fifty men who were offering the incense.
36 And the Lord spoke to Moyses and Eleazar the priest the son of Aaron: Take away the bronze fire-pan from the midst of those who have been burned up, and scatter this strange fire there, for they sanctified the fire-pan of these sinners with their lives. And make them into hammed plates, a covering for the altar, because they were brought forward before the Lord and were sanctified and became a sign to the sons of Israel. And Eleazar son of Aaron the priest took the bronze fire-pan, as many as those who had been burned up brought forward, and they added them as a covering for the altar; a reminder to the sons of Israel so that not one alien should draw near who is not of the offspring of Aaron, to place incense before the Lord. And it shall not be like Kore and his insurrection, just as the Lord spoke by the hand of Moyses, “You have killed the people of the Lord.” And it came to pass, when the congregation ganged up against Moyses and Aaron, then they rushed headlong to the tent of witness, and this—the cloud covered it and the glory of the Lord appeared. And Moyses and Aaron went in, in front of the tent of witness. And the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying, “Depart from the midst of this congregation, and I will utterly destroy them once and for all.” And they fell upon their face. And Moyses said to Aaron, “Take the fire-pan and place on it fire from the altar, and throw incense on it, and carry it away quickly to the camp, and make atonement for them, for anger has gone out from before the Lord, and it has begun to shatter the people.” And Aaron took it, just as Moyses spoke to him, and he ran into the congregation. And already the shattering had begun among the people, and he threw the incense and made atonement for the people. And he stood between the dead and the living, and the shattering abated. And the dead in the shattering were fourteen thousand and seven hundred, apart from those who had died on account of Kore. And Aaron returned to Moyses at the door of the tent of witness, and the shattering abated.

17 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: Speak to the sons of Israel, and take from them a rod, a rod according to the paternal houses from all their rulers, according to their paternal houses, twelve rods, and of each one inscribe his name upon his rod. And inscribe Aaron’s name upon the rod of Levi, for there is one rod; according to the tribe of their paternal house they shall give. And you shall place them in the tent of witness opposite the witness, where I shall be made known to you. And it shall be: the person, if I choose him, his rod shall sprout forth, and I will strip away from me the complaining of the sons of Israel, which things are themselves complaining against you. And Moyses spoke to the sons of Israel, and all their rulers gave to him a rod, a rod for one ruler, according to ruler, according to their paternal houses, twelve rods, and the rod of Aaron was among their rods. And Moyses deposited the rods before the Lord in the tent of the witness.

8 And it came to pass on the next day that Moyses and Aaron went into the tent of witness, and behold, the rod of Aaron for Levi’s house had sprouted, and it had produced a bud and had blossomed flowers and had sprouted almonds. And Moyses brought out all the rods from before the Lord to all of Israel’s sons, and they looked and they took, each his rod. And the Lord said to Moyses, “Deposit the rod of Aaron before the witnesses for safekeeping, as a sign to the sons of the disobedient ones, and let their complaining cease from me, and they will certainly not die.” And Moyses did—and Aaron—just as the Lord instructed Moyses, so they did.

12 And the sons of Israel spoke to Moyses, saying, “Behold, we have been completely destroyed; we are lost; we are totally ruined. Everyone who touches the tent of the Lord dies—are we to die totally?”

18 And the Lord spoke to Aaron: And I, behold, I have given to you the safekeeping of the first fruits of all the things consecrated to me by the sons of Israel; to you I have given them as an honor and to your sons with you as a perpetual precept. And let this be for you, from the holy things that are consecrated, the offerings, from all their gifts and from all their sacrifices and from every error of theirs and from all their sins, as many as they give back to me from all the holy things—they shall be for you and for your sons. 10 In the holy of holies you shall eat them; every male shall eat them, you and your sons; they shall be holy to you. 11 And this shall be for you a first fruit of their gifts, from all the additions of the sons of Israel; to you I have given them and to your sons and to your daughters with you, as a perpetual precept. Every clean person in your house shall eat them. 12 Every first fruit of oil and every first fruit of wine and of grain, their first fruit, as much as they may give to the Lord, to you I have given them. 13 All the first products, as many as are in their land, as many as they may bring to the Lord, shall be yours; everyone who is clean in your house shall eat them. 14 Everything anathematized among Israel’s sons shall be yours. 15 And everything that opens the womb from all flesh, which they offer to the Lord, from human to animal, shall be yours, but the firstborn of people shall be redeemed with a ransom, and the firstborn of the unclean animals you shall redeem. 16 And its redemption is from a month old; its evaluation is five shekels, according to the holy shekel; twenty obols there are. 17 But firstborn of calves and firstborn of sheep and firstborn of flocks you shall not redeem. And you shall pour out their blood against the altar, and the fat you shall offer up as an offering for an odor of fragrance to the Lord, 18 but the meat shall be for you, just as also the breast of the addition and just as the right shoulder shall be for you. 19 Every advance deduction of the holy things, as many as the sons of Israel may deduct for the Lord, I have given to you and to your sons and to your daughters with you, as a perpetual precept; it is a covenant of perpetual salt before the Lord, for you and for your offspring after you. 20 And the Lord spoke to Aaron: You shall have no inheritance in their land, and there shall not be a portion for you among them, for I am your portion and your inheritance in the midst of the sons of Israel. 21 And to the sons of Levi, behold, I have given every tithe in Israel as an allotment for their ministries, as much as they minister in the ministry in the tent of witness. 22 And the sons of Israel shall no longer go up into the tent of witness—to incur purification. 23 And the Levite himself shall minister in the ministry of the tent of witness, and they shall bear their sins as a perpetual precept for their generations, and in the midst of Israel’s sons they shall not inherit an inheritance, 24 because I have given the tithes of the sons of Israel, which they set apart as an advance deduction, to the Levites as an allotment. Therefore I have said to them: In the midst of Israel’s sons they shall not inherit an allotment.

25 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 26 And you shall speak to the Levites, and you shall say to them: If you receive from the sons of Israel the tithe that I have given to you from them as an allotment, you shall also deduct from it an advance deduction to the Lord, a tithe from the tithe. 27 And your advance deductions shall be reckoned to you as grain from a threshing floor and as an advance deduction from a wine press. 28 So you too shall deduct from the advance deductions of the Lord, from all your tithes, as much as you receive from the sons of Israel, and from them you shall give an advance deduction to the Lord, to Aaron the priest. 29 From all your gifts you shall deduct an advance deduction to the Lord, or from all the first fruits the sanctified part of it. 30 And you shall say to them: When you deduct the first fruit from it, it shall also be reckoned to the Levites as produce from a threshing floor and as produce from a wine press. 31 And you shall eat it in every place, you and your households, because this is a wage for you for your ministries in the tent of witness. 32 And you shall not bear sin because of it, when you deduct the first fruit from it, and you shall not profane the holy things of the sons of Israel so that you might not die.

19 And the Lord spoke to Moyses and Aaron, saying: 2 This is the requirement of the law, inasmuch as the Lord instructed, saying: Speak to the sons of Israel, and let them take to you an unblemished red heifer, which does not have a blemish on it and which no yoke was put upon. 3 And you shall give it to Eleazar the priest, and they shall lead it outside the camp to a clean place, and they shall slaughter it before him. 4 And Eleazar shall take some of its blood and sprinkle some of its blood seven times opposite the face of the tent of witness. 5 And they shall burn it up before him, and the skin and its flesh and its blood, together with its dung, shall be burned up. 6 And the priest shall take cedar wood and hyssop and scarlet, and they shall cast them into the midst of the burning of the heifer. 7 And the priest shall wash his clothes and bathe his body with water, and afterwards he shall enter into the camp, and the priest shall be unclean until evening. 8 And the one who burns it up shall wash his clothes and bathe his body, and he shall be unclean until evening. 9 And a clean person shall collect the ashes of the heifer and deposit them outside the camp into a clean place, and they shall be for the congregation of Israel’s sons for safekeeping, water for sprinkling. It is a purification. 10 And the one who gathers the ashes of the heifer shall wash his clothes and shall be unclean until evening.

And it shall be a perpetual precept for the sons of Israel and for the guests who associate themselves. 11 The one who touches the dead of any human soul shall be unclean for seven days. 12 He shall be purified on the third day and on the seventh day, and he shall be clean, but if he is not purified on the third day and on the seventh day, he shall not be clean. 13 Everyone who touches the dead from a human soul—if he died and was not purified—has defiled the tent of the Lord. That soul shall be wiped out from Israel; because water for sprinkling was not sprinkled upon him, he is unclean; his uncleanness is still in him.

14 And this is the law: a person, if he dies in a house, everyone who enters into the house and as many things as are in the house shall be unclean for seven days. 15 And every open vessel, as many as do not have a band tied on it, are unclean. 16 And everyone who, on the surface of the plain, might touch a slain person or a corpse or a human bone or a grave, for seven days he shall be unclean. 17 And they shall take for the unclean some of the burnt ashes of purification, and they shall pour out upon them living water into a vessel. 18 And a clean man shall take hyssop and dip it into the water and sprinkle it upon the house and upon the furnishings and upon the souls, as many as are there, and upon the one who touched the human bone or the slain person or the dead person or the grave. 19 And the clean one shall sprinkle upon the unclean one on the third day and on the seventh day, and he shall be purified on the seventh day. And he shall wash his clothes and bathe himself with water, and he shall be unclean until evening.

20 And a person who is defiled and is not purified, that soul shall be completely destroyed from amidst the congregation, because he defiled the holy things of the Lord; because the water for sprinkling was not sprinkled upon him, he is unclean.

21 And it shall be for you a perpetual precept, and the one who sprinkles the water for sprinkling shall wash his clothes, and the one who touches the water for the sprinkling shall be unclean until evening. 22 And everything the unclean one touches shall be unclean, and the soul who touches it shall be unclean until evening.

20 And the sons of Israel, the whole congregation, came into the wilderness of Sin in the first month, and the people stayed in Kades, and Mariam died there and was buried there.

2 And there was no water for the congregation, and they were gathered together against Moyses and Aaron. 3 And the people were reviling Moyses, saying, “If only we had died in the destruction of this evil place, for nothing is there to drink.” 4 And Moyses went, and Moyses went, and Aaron, from before the congregation to the door of the tent of witness, and they fell face down, and the glory of the Lord appeared to them. 5 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 6 “Take the rod, and hold an assembly of the congregation, you and your brother Aaron, and speak to the rock before them, and it shall give forth its waters. And you shall bring water out from the rock for them, and you shall provide drink for the congregation and their animals.

9 And Moyses took the rod that was before the Lord, just as the Lord instructed. 10 And Moyses and Aaron held an assembly of the congregation before the rock, and he said to them, “Listen to me, you disobedient people; we shall not bring forth water from this rock for you, shall we?” 11 And Moyses lifted up his hand and struck the rock twice with the rod, and much water came out, and the congregation drank, and their animals. 12 And the Lord said to Moyses and Aaron, “Because you did not believe, to sanctify me before Israel’s sons, therefore, you yourselves shall not lead this congregation into the land that I have given to them.” 13 And this is a water of dispute, because the sons of Israel reviled before the Lord, and he was sanctified in them.

14 And Moyses sent messengers from Kades to the king of Edom, saying, “This is what your brother Israel says: You understand about all the trouble that has found us, and our fathers went down into Egypt, and we lived as sojourners in Egypt for rather many days, and the Egyptians mistreated us and our fathers. 16 And we cried out to the Lord, and the Lord listened to our voice, and having sent an angel he led us out of Egypt, and now we are in Kades, a town on the edge of your borders. 17 We shall pass through your land; we shall not traverse fields or vineyards, nor shall we drink water from your cistern. We will travel by the Royal Road; we will not turn aside to the right nor to the left until we have passed through your borders.”

18 And Edom said to him, “You shall not traverse me, and if otherwise, I will come out in war to meet you.” 19 And the sons of Israel were saying to him, “We will pass along the mountain, but if we drink of your water, both I and the animals, I will pay you a price. But the matter is nothing; we will pass along the mountain.” 20 But he said, “You shall not traverse me.” And Edom went out to meet him with a heavily armed crowd and with a strong hand. 21 And Edom did not want to grant Israel to go through his borders, and Israel turned away from him.

22 And they departed from Kades, and the sons of Israel, all the congregation, arrived at Hor the mountain. 23 And the Lord said to Moyses and Aaron in Hor the mountain, on the borders of the land of Edom, saying, 24 “Let Aaron be added to his people. For you shall not enter into the land that I have given to the sons of Israel, because you provoked me at the water of reviling.” 25 Take Aaron and Eleazar his son, and make them go up to Hor the mountain before all the congregation. 26 And strip Aaron of his cloak, and put it on Eleazar his son, and when Aaron has been added let him die there.” 27 And Moyses did just as the Lord instructed, and he brought them up to Hor the mountain before all the congregation. 28 And he stripped Aaron of his clothes and put them on Eleazar his son. And Aaron died on the top of the mountain, and Moyses and Eleazar came down from the mountain. 29 And all the congregation saw that Aaron had departed, and they wept for Aaron for thirty days, all the house of Israel.
and carried off a body of captives of them. And Israel vowed a vow to the Lord and said, "If you deliver to me this people as subject, I will anathematize it and its towns to destruction." And the Lord listened to the voice of Israel and handed over Chananis as subject to him, and he anathematized him and his cities. And they called the name of that place Anathema.

4 And they set out from Hor the mountain by way to the Red Sea, and they went around the land of Edom. And the people became faint-hearted on the way. And the people railed against God and against Moyses, saying, "Why have you brought us up out of Egypt to kill us in the wilderness? For there is no bread and no water, and our soul has become weary by this empty food." And the Lord sent bread and no water, and our soul has become weary of Egypt to kill us in the wilderness?

5 And the people railed at God and against Moyses, saying, "Why have you brought us up out of Egypt to kill us in the wilderness? For there is no bread and no water, and our soul has become weary by this empty food." And the Lord sent bread and no water, and our soul has become weary of Egypt to kill us in the wilderness?

6 And the Lord sent bread and no water, and our soul has become weary of Egypt to kill us in the wilderness?

7 And the people came to Moyses and said, "We have sinned, for we have railed against the Lord. Ask him to remove the snake from us." And Moyses prayed to the Lord for the people. And the Lord said to Moyses, "Make for yourself a snake, and set it on a sign. And it shall be that if a snake bites a person, everyone who is bitten when he looks at it shall live." And Moyses made a snake of bronze and put it upon a sign, and it came to pass that if a snake bites a person, everyone who is bitten when he looks at it shall live.

8 And Moyses made a snake of bronze and put it upon a sign, and it came to pass that when a snake bit a person, he looked at the bronze snake, then he lived.

9 And the sons of Israel set out and camped in Oboth. And they departed from Oboth and camped in Achel Gaib, on the farther side in the wilderness, which is opposite Moab toward sunrise. From there they set out and camped in the ravine of Zared. And from there they set out and camped on the farther side of Arnon in the wilderness, which is opposite Moab toward sunrise. From there they set out and camped in the ravine of Zared. And from there they set out and camped on the farther side of Arnon in the wilderness, which is opposite Moab toward sunrise.

10 And the sons of Israel set out and camped in Oboth. And they departed from Oboth and camped in Achel Gaib, on the farther side in the wilderness, which is opposite Moab toward sunrise. From there they set out and camped in the ravine of Zared. And from there they set out and camped on the farther side of Arnon in the wilderness, which is opposite Moab toward sunrise.

11 And from there they set out and camped in the ravine of Zared. And from there they set out and camped on the farther side of Arnon in the wilderness, which is opposite Moab toward sunrise. From there they set out and camped in the ravine of Zared. And from there they set out and camped on the farther side of Arnon in the wilderness, which is opposite Moab toward sunrise.

12 From there they set out and camped in the ravine of Zared. And from there they set out and camped on the farther side of Arnon in the wilderness, which is opposite Moab toward sunrise. From there they set out and camped in the ravine of Zared. And from there they set out and camped on the farther side of Arnon in the wilderness, which is opposite Moab toward sunrise.

13 Then Israel sang this song over the well:

"Take the lead for it!
O Well—rulers dig it;
kings of nations heewed it out in their kingdom, when they were in control of them."

And from the well to Manthanain and from Manthanain to Naaliel and from Naaliel to Bamoth and from Bamoth to a valley, which is in the plain of Moab, from the top of the Hewn —that which looks down towards the wilderness.

21 And Moyses sent ambassadors to Seon king of the Amorrites with peaceful words, saying, "We shall pass through your land; we will travel by the road; we shall not divert into field or vineyard, nor shall we drink water from your well. We will travel by the Royal Road until we have passed through your borders. And Seon did not grant Israel to pass through his borders. And Seon gathered together all his people and went out to array his army for battle against Israel into the wilderness, and he came to Iasad and arrayed his army against Israel. And Israel struck him with a slaughter of dagger and won complete control of his land, from Arnon to Iabok, as far as Amman's sons, for Lazer is the borders of Amman's sons.

25 And Israel took all these cities, and Israel settled in all the cities of the Amorrites, in Hesebon and in all those contiguous to it. For Hesebon is a city of Seon, the king of the Amorrites, and he waged war previously against the king of Moab, and they took all his land from Aron as far as Arnon. Therefore, those who speak riddles will say, "Come to Hesebon so that Seon's city may be built and prepared.

For a fire came out from Hesebon, a flame from Seon's city, and it devoured as far as Moab and swallowed up the steles of Arnon.

Woe to you, O Moab! You were ruined, O people of Chamos! Their sons were given over to escape, and their daughters are captives to the king of the Amorrites, to Seon. And their offspring shall perish—Hesebon as far as Daibon, and the women yet further ignited a fire against Moab."

31 And Israel settled in all the cities of the Amorrites. And Moyses sent to spy out Lazer, and they captured it and its villages, and they cast out the Amorrite who was there.

33 And they turned about and went up the road to Basan. And Og, king of Basan, came out for an engagement with them, and all his people, for war to Edrain. And the Lord said to Moyses, "Do not be afraid of him, for into your hands I have delivered him and all his people and all his land. And you shall do to him as you did to Seon, king of the Amorrites, who dwelt in Hesebon." And he struck him and his sons and all his people until he left none of his as live captives, and they inherited their land.

22 And the sons of Israel set out and encamped on the west of Moab by the Jordan opposite Jericho. And when Balak son of Sepphor saw all that Israel had done to the Amorrite, also Moab feared the people very much, because they were many, and Moab was vexed because of the presence of Israel's sons. And Moab said to the council of elders of Madiam, "Now this gathering will lick up all those who are around us, as the bull calf might lick up the greenery of the plain." And Balak, son of Sepphor, was king of Moab at that time. And he sent ambassadors to Balaam, son of Beor of Pethor, which is on the river of the land of the Amorites, with the word in his hand, to call him, saying, “Behold, a people has come out of Egypt, and their number is vast and hard to count. 2And now come, curse me this people, as I have done to you, and I will cast them out from the land. For I know that whomever you bless are blessed, and whomever you curse are cursed.” 3And the council of elders of Moab went, and the council of elders of Midian, and the instruments of divination were in their hands, and they came to Balaam and said to him the words of Balak. 4And he said to them, “Lodge here tonight, and I will answer you the word the Lord may speak to me.” And the rulers of Moab stayed with Balaam. 5And God came to Balaam and said to him, “What are these people with you?” 6And Balaam said to God, “Balak son of Sepphor, king of Moab, sent them to me, saying, 7‘Behold, a people has come out of Egypt, and behold, it has covered the sight of the earth, and it is lying in wait next to me. 8And now come, curse me this people, as I have done to you, and I will cast them out from the land. For I know that whomever you bless are blessed, and whomever you curse are cursed.’” 9And God said to Balaam, “You shall not go with them, nor shall you curse the people, for it is not in any way pleasing to me.” 10And God said to Balaam, “Shall I not bless you? For I will bless the one I bless, and I will curse him that I curse.” 11And the rulers of Moab arose and went to Balak, and said to him, “What are these people with you? 12And God said to Balaam, “You shall not go with them, nor shall you curse the people, for it is not pleasing to me.” 13And Balaam rose up in the morning and said to the rulers of Balak, “Run off to your homesteads, a fence here and a fence there. 14And the rulers of Moab arose and went to Balak and said, “Balaam does not want to go with us.” 15And Balak added again to send rulers, more numerous and more distinguished than these. 16And they came to Balaam and said to him, “This is what Balak son of Sepphor says, ‘I beg you, do not hesitate to come to me. 17For I will honor you honorably, and whatever things you say I will do for you. And come, curse me this people.’” 18And Balaam answered and said to the rulers of Balak, “If Balak gives me his house full of silver and gold, I shall not be able to transgress the word that God puts into my mouth, whether small or great in my mind. 19And now remain here, you too, this night, and I will know what the Lord will add to speak to me.” 20And God came to Balaam by night and said to him, “If these people are here to call you, rise up, and follow them, but the word that I speak to you—this you shall do.” 21And Balaam rose up in the morning and saddled his donkey and went with the rulers of Moab. 22And God was angry with wrath, because he went, and the angel of the Lord rose up to oppose him. And he himself was sitting on his donkey, and his two servants were with him. 23And when the donkey saw the angel of God standing opposed in the road, she turned away from the road and the sword drawn in her hand, the donkey turned away from the road and kept going into the plain. And he struck the donkey with his rod to direct it in the road. 24And the angel of God stood in the furrows of the vineyards, a fence here and a fence there. 25And when the donkey saw the angel of God, it pressed itself against the wall and squeezed Balaam’s foot, and he added to whip it again. 26And the angel of God proceeded and went on and stood still in a narrow place in which it was not possible to turn right or left. 27And when the donkey saw the angel of God, it settled down under Balaam, and Balaam was angered and kept beating the donkey with the rod. 28And God opened the mouth of the donkey, and it said to Balaam, “What have I done to you that you have struck me this third time?” 29And Balaam said to the donkey, “Because you have mocked me! And if I had a dagger in my hand, I would already have stabbed you!” 30And the donkey says to Balaam, “Am I not your donkey on which you would ride from your youth to this very day? Disregarding with disregard—I have not done so to you, have I?” And he said, “No!” 31Now God uncovered the eyes of Balaam, and he saw the angel of God standing opposed in the road and the dagger drawn in his hand, and he bowed down and did obeisance to his face. 32And he said, “No! I did not do so to you, have I?” 33And when the donkey saw me, it turned away from me this third time. And if it had not turned away, now surely I would have killed you but kept it alive.” 34And Balaam said to the angel of the Lord, “I have sinned, for I did not understand that you stood opposed to me on the road for a meeting. And now, if it is not pleasing to you, I will turn back.” 35And the angel of God said to Balaam, “Go with the men, but the word that I say to you, this you shall take heed to speak.” 36And when Balak heard that Balaam had come, he went out to meet him, to a city of Moab, which is on the borders of Arnon, which is on the edge of the borders. 37And Balak said to Balaam, “Did I not send to you to call you? Why did you not come to me? Really, shall I not be able to honor you?” 38And Balaam said to Balak, “Behold, I have come to you. Shall I now be able to speak anything? The word that God puts into my mouth, this I shall speak.” 39And Balaam went with Balak, and they came to cities of quarters. 40And Balak sacrificed sheep and calves and sent them to Balaam and to the rulers who were with him. 41And it became morning, and Balak took along Balaam and brought him up to the steeple of Baal, and he showed him from there a part of the people.

to me in a meeting. And whatever word he shows me I will report to you.” And Balak stood beside his sacrifice, and Balaam went to inquire of God, and he went straight ahead.

4 And God appeared to Balaam, and Balaam said to him, “I prepared the seven altars, and I brought up a calf and a ram on the altar.” 5 And God put a word into Balaam’s mouth and said, “When you return to Balak, thus you shall speak.” 6 And he returned to him, and the latter stood over his whole burnt offerings, and all the rulers of Moab with him. 7 And a divine spirit was upon him. (7) And he took up his parable and said:

“Out of Mesopotamia Balak sent for me, Moab’s king from mountains on the east, saying:

‘Come, curse Iakob for me, and come, call down curses upon Israel for me!’

8 How shall I curse whom the Lord does not curse? Or how shall I call down curses on whom God does not call down curses?

9 For from a top of mountains I shall see him, and from hills I shall observe him. Behold, a people shall dwell alone, and shall not be reckoned among nations!

10 Who has accurately counted the offspring of Iakob, and who shall number Israel’s divisions? May my soul die among souls of righteous ones, and may my offspring be as their offspring!”

11 And Balak said to Balaam, “What have you done to me? For cursing my enemies have I called you—and behold, you have blessed them with a blessing.” 12 And Balaam said to Balak, “No, as much as God puts into my mouth, shall I beware of speaking it.”

13 And Balak said to him, “Come yet with me to another place, from there where you shall not see it; rather, some part of it you shall see, but all you shall not see. And curse it for me from there.” 14 And he took him to a lookout place of a field, on the top of Hewn. And he built there seven altars and brought up a calf and a ram on the altar.

15 And Balaam said to Balak, “Stand beside your sacrifice, but I will go to inquire of God.” 16 And God met with Balaam, and he put a word into his mouth and said, “Turn back to Balak, and this is what you shall speak.” 17 And he turned back to him, and the latter stood beside his whole burnt offering, and all the rulers of Moab with him. And Balak said to him, “What did the Lord speak?” 18 And he took up his parable and said, “Rise up, Balak, and hear; give ear as a witness, O son of Sepphor:

19 God is not to be put upon like man, nor is he to be threatened like a son of man.

When he himself has said, shall he not do? Shall he speak and not make good? Behold, I have been taken hold of to bless; I will bless, and I will not turn away.

There shall be no trouble in Iakob, nor shall hardship be seen in Israel. The Lord his God is with him; the glories of rulers are in him.

22 God was the one who brought them out of Egypt; like a unicorn’s glory he was to him. For there is no omen in Iakob nor divination in Israel; opportune it shall be told to Iakob and to Israel what God shall accomplish.

23 Behold, a people shall rise up like a whelp and shall bear itself proudly like a lion! It will not lie down until it eats prey and will drink blood of mortally wounded.”

24 And Balak said to Balaam, “You shall not curse them with curses for me, nor, when blessing, shall you bless them.” 25 And Balaam answered and said to Balak, “Did I not speak to you, saying The word that God speaks, this I shall do?”

And Balak said to Balaam, “Come, let me take you to another place, if it shall please God, and curse it for me from there.” 27 And Balak took Balaam to the top of Phogor, which extends into the wilderness. 28 And Balaam said to Balak, “Build me here seven altars, and prepare for me here seven calves and seven rams.” 29 And Balak did just as Balaam told him, and he offered a calf and a ram on the altar.

24 And when Balaam saw that it was good before the Lord to bless Israel, he did not go, according to his custom, to meet the omens but turned his face toward the wilderness. 2 And when Balaam raised his eyes, he looked down upon Israel encamped tribe by tribe. And a divine spirit came upon him, 3 and he took up his parable and said:

4 Says one who hears divine oracles, who saw a divine vision, in sleep when his eyes had been uncovered:

5 How beautiful are your dwellings, O Iakob, your tents, O Israel!

6 Like wooded valleys giving shade and like orchards by rivers and like tents that the Lord pitched, like cedar trees beside waters.

7 A person will come forth from his offspring, and he shall rule over many nations, and reign of him shall be exalted beyond Gog, and his reign shall be increased.

8 A god guided him out of Egypt;
like a unicorn’s glory he was to him. He shall devour his enemies’ nations and de-marrow their stoutnessa and shall shoot down an enemy with his missiles.

9 He lay down and rested like a lion and like a whelp. Who will raise him up? Blessed are those who bless you, and cursed are those who curse you.”

10 And Balak became infuriated with Balaam, and he clapped his hands together. And Balak said to Balaam, “I have summoned you to curse my enemy, and behold, in blessing you have blessed him this third time. 11 Now then be off to your place! I said, ‘I will honor you,’ but now the Lord has deprived you of glory.”

12 And Balaam said to Balak, “No, even to your messengers whom you sent to me I spoke, saying, 13 ‘If Balak gives me his place! I will honor you,’ but now the Lord has deprived you of glory.”

14 And now, behold, I am going off to the tent of witness. 7 And when Phinees son of El-azar son of Aaron the priest saw it, he arose from the midst of the congregation. And he took a barbed lance in his hand, 8 and he went in after the Israelite man into the alcove and pierced both of them, both the Israelite man and the woman through her womb. And the blowc from Israel’s sons. 9 And those that died in the blowc were twenty-four thousand.

15 And when he saw Amalek and took up his parable, he said:

“Rule of nations is Amalek, and shall shoot down an enemy with his missiles. 9 He lay down and rested like a lion and like a whelp. Who will raise him up? Blessed are those who bless you, and cursed are those who curse you.”

16 And Edom will be an inheritance, and he shall crush the chiefs of Moab, and he shall plunder all Seth’s sons.

17 And one shall arise out of Iakob, and he shall destroy one being saved from a city.

18 And when he saw Og and took up his parable, he said:

“Strong is your dwelling place; even if you set your nest in a rock, even if a nest of cleverness accrues to Beor, Assyrians shall take you away captive.”

19 And when he saw Og and took up his parable, he said:

“Says Balaam son of Beor; says the man who truly sees, one who hears divine oracles, and one who sees a divine vision, in sleep when his eyes had been uncovered:

17 I will point to him, and not now; I deem him happy, but he is not at hand. A star shall dawn out of Iakob, and a person shall rise up out of Israel, and he shall crush the chiefs of Moab, and he shall plunder all Seth’s sons.

20 And when he saw Amalek and took up his parable, he said:

“Rule of nations is Amalek, but their offspring will perish.”

21 And when he saw the Keniteb and took up his parable, he said:

“Speak to the sons of Israel, saying. 17 ‘Be at enmity with the Madianeans, and strike them. 18 For they are at enmity with you in deceitfulness, as much as they deceived you on account of Phogor and on account of Chasbi daughter of a ruler of Madi-an, their sister, who was slain on the day of the blowc on account of Phogor.’ ”

22 And when Balak became infuriated with Balaam, and he clapped his hands together. And Balak said to Balaam, “I have summoned you to curse my enemy, and behold, in blessing you have blessed him this third time. 11 Now then be off to your place! I said, ‘I will honor you,’ but now the Lord has deprived you of glory.”

23 And when he saw Og and took up his parable, he said:

“Alas, alas, who shall live when God ordains these things?”

24 And one shall go forth from the hand of Kitieans, and shall harm Assour, and they shall harm Ebreans, and they too shall perish together.”

25 And Balaam got up and went away as he returned to his place; Balak too went home.

26 And Israel stayed in Sattim, and the people were profaned by whoring after the daughters of Moab. 4 And they invited them to the sacrifices of their idols, and the people ate of their sacrifices and did obeisance to their idols. 3 And Israel was initiated to Beel-Phegor, and the Lord was angry with wrath against Israel. 4 And the Lord said to Moyses, “Take the chiefs of the people, and make an example of them to the Lord before the sun, and the anger of the Lord’s wrath shall be turned away from Israel.” 5 And Moyses said to the tribes of Israel, “Each of you kill his family-member who has been initiated to Beel-Phegor.”

6 And behold, a man of the sons of Israel came and brought his brother to the Madianeans, and struck them. 18 For they are at enmity with you in deceitfulness, as much as they deceived you on account of Phogor and on account of Chasbi daughter of a ruler of Madian, their sister, who was slain on the day of the blowc on account of Phogor.”

7 And when Phinees son of Eleazar son of Aaron the priest saw it, he arose from the midst of the congregation. And he took a barbed lance in his hand, 8 and he went in after the Israelite man into the alcove and pierced both of them, both the Israelite man and the woman through her womb. And the blowc stopped from Israel’s sons. 9 And those that died in the blowc were twenty-four thousand.

10 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, 11 “Phinees son of Eleazar son of Aaron the priest has put a stop to my wrath from Israel’s sons when I was jealous with jealousy among them, and I did not utterly destroy the sons of Israel in my jealousy. 12 Thus I said, ‘Behold, I am giving him a covenant of peace. 13 And there shall be for him and for his offspring after him an everlasting covenant of priesthood, because he was zealous for his God and made atonement for the sons of Israel.’ ”

14 Now the name of the slain Israelite man who was slain together with the Madianeans woman was Zambri son of Salo, ruler of a paternal house of those of Symeon. 15 And the name of the Madianeans woman who was slain was Chasbi daughter of a ruler of Ommoth; he was of a paternal house of those of Madian.

16 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, “Speak to the sons of Israel, saying, 17 ‘Be at enmity with the Madianeans, and strike them. 18 For they are at enmity with you in deceitfulness, as much as they deceived you on account of Phogor and on account of Chasbi daughter of a ruler of Madi-an, their sister, who was slain on the day of the blowc on account of Phogor.’ ”

51 This is the enrollment of Israel’s sons: six hundred and one thousand and seven hundred and thirty.

52 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 53 To these the land shall be apportioned in order to inherit, based on number of names. 54 To more you shall increase the inheritance, and to less you shall decrease their inheritance; to each one, as they were enrolled, their inheritance shall be given. 55 The land shall be apportioned by lots. By the names, according to their paternal tribes, they shall inherit. 56 Based on the lot, you shall apportion their inheritance by between many and few.

57 And Levi’s sons according to their divisions: to Gedson, the Gedsoni division; to Kaath, the Kaathi division; to Merari, the Merari division. 58 These are divisions of Levi’s sons: the Lobeni di-

And Kaath fathered Amram. 59 And the name of the wife of Amram was lochabe daughter of Leui, who bore these to Leui in Egypt, and she bore to Amram: Aaron and Moyses and Mariam their sister. 60 And to Aaron were born both Nadab and Abioud and Eleazar and Ithamar. 61 And Nadab and Abioud died when they offered strange fire before the Lord in the wilderness of Sina. 62 And there were from their enrollment twenty-three thousand, every male from a month old and above; for they were not enrolled in the midst of Israel's sons, because no allotment is given to them in the midst of Israel's sons.

63 And this is the enrollment of Moyses and Eleazar the priest, who enrolled the sons of Israel in Arabor of Moab near the Jordan opposite Jericho.

64 And among these there was not a person of those enrolled by Moyses and Aaron whom—the sons of Israel—they enrolled in the wilderness of Sina. 65 For the Lord said to them, "They shall die by death in the wilderness." And there was not left one even of them, except for Chaleb son of lephon and Iesous son of Naue.

27 And when the daughters of Salpaad son of Hophar son of Galaad son of Machir of the division of Manasse of the sons of Joseph came forward—and these were their names: Maala and Noua and Helga and Melcha and Thersa—and when they stood before Moyses and before Eleazar the priest and before the rulers and before all the congregation, at the door of the tent of witness, they said, "Our father died in the wilderness, and he was not in the midst of the gathering that conspired against the Lord in the gathering of Kor, for he died for his sin, and he had no sons. 4 Let the name of our father not be wiped out from the midst of his division because he had no son. Give to us a possession in the midst of our father's brothers.

5 And Moyses brought their case before the Lord. 6 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 7 Salpaad's daughters have spoken correctly. You shall give to them as a gift a possession of inheritance in the midst of their father's brothers, and you shall confer the allotment of their father on them. 8 And you shall speak to the sons of Israel, saying, "If a person dies, and he has no son, you shall confer his inheritance on his daughter. 9 Now if he has no daughter, you shall give the inheritance to his brother. 10 Now if he has no brothers, you shall give the inheritance to his father's brother. 11 Now if there are no brothers of his father, you shall give the inheritance to his nearest relative from his tribe; he shall inherit what is his. And this shall be for the sons of Israel a requirement of judgment, just as the Lord instructed Moyses."

12 And the Lord said to Moyses, "Go up into the mountain that is on the other side (this Mount Nabau), and see and the land Chanaan, which I am giving to the sons of Israel for a possession. 13 And you shall see it, and you too shall be added to your people, just as your brother Aaron was added in Hor the mountain. 14 Because you transgressed my word in the wilderness of Sin, when the congregation resisted to sanctify me. You did not sanctify me at the water before them." (This is water of dispute of Kades in the wilderness of Sin.) 15 And Moyses said to the Lord, 16 "Let the Lord, the God of the spirits and of all flesh, consider a person over this congregation, 17 who shall go out before them and who shall come in before them and who shall bring them out and who shall bring them in, and the congregation of the Lord shall not be like sheep that have no shepherd." 18 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, "Take to yourself Iesous son of Naue, a person who has a spirit in him, and you shall lay your hands upon him, 19 and you shall have him stand before Eleazar the priest, and you shall command him before all the congregation, and you shall give authorization concerning him before them. 20 And you shall give over some of your glory upon him so that the sons of Israel may listen to him. 21 And before Eleazar the priest he shall stand, and they shall inquire of him before the Lord. At his mouth they shall go out, and at his mouth they shall come in, in and all the sons of Israel of one accord and all the congregation." 22 And Moyses did just as the Lord commanded him. And he took Iesous and had him stand before Eleazar the priest and before all the congregation, 23 and he laid his hands upon him and introduced him—just as the Lord instructed Moyses.

28 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying:

2 Command the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them, saying: My gifts, my presents, my offerings as an odor of fragrance you shall take heed to offer to me at my feasts. 3 And you shall say to them, These are the offerings, as many as you shall bring to the Lord: two lambs, a year old without blemish, daily, as a whole burnt offering, perpetually. 4 The one lamb you shall do in the morning, and the second lamb you shall do towards evening. 5 And you shall do a tenth of an ophar, fine flour for a sacrifice, mixed with oil, with a fourth of a hin. 6 It is a whole burnt offering of perpetuity, the sacrifice that was done at Mount Sinai, as an odor of fragrance to the Lord. 7 And its libation, a fourth of a hin for the one lamb, you shall pour it out, in the holy place, as a libation, sikeret to the Lord. 8 And the second lamb you shall do towards evening. According to its sacrifice and according to its libation you shall do it as an odor of fragrance to the Lord.

9 And on the day of the sabbaths you shall bring forward two lambs, a year old without blemish, and two tenths of fine flour mixed with oil, for a sacrifice and a libation—10 it is a whole burnt offering of sabbaths on the sabbaths, apart from the continual whole burnt offering and its libation.

11 And at the new moons you shall bring forward whole burnt offerings to the Lord: two calves of the cattle and one ram, seven lambs, a year old without blemish, 12three-tenths of fine flour mixed in oil for the one bull calf and two-tenths of fine flour mixed with oil for the one ram, 13a tenth, a tenth of fine flour mixed with oil for the one lamb, as a sacrifice, an odor of fragrance, an offering to the Lord. 14Their libation shall be half a hin\(^4\) for the one bull calf and the third of a hin\(^4\) for the one ram and the fourth of a hin\(^4\) of wine for the one lamb. This is the whole burnt offering month after month up to the months of the year—and one male goat from the goats for sin to the Lord—on top of the continual whole burnt offering it shall be done, and its libation.

16 And in the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month, it is pascha to the Lord. 17And on the fifteenth day of this month is a feast; seven days you shall eat unleavened bread. 18And the first day shall be designated, holy for you. 40 And Moyses spoke to the sons of Israel according to everything that the Lord commanded Moyses.

2(30.1) And Moyses spoke to the rulers of the tribes of Israel, saying: This is the word that the Lord ordered: Person by person—if he vows a vow to the Lord or swears an oath or determines for himself with determination about his soul, he shall not profane his word; everything that proceeds out of his mouth he shall do.

4(3) Now if a woman vows a vow to the Lord or determines for herself a determination in her father’s house in her youth and if her father hears of her vows and her determinations that she determined against her soul and her father makes no mention to her, then all her vows shall stand, and her determinations that she determined against her soul shall remain for her. But if her father in withholding consent withholds consent from her on the day when he hears of all her vows and the determinations that she determined against her soul, they shall not stand, and the Lord will clear her, because her father withheld consent.

7 But if, when she grows up, she becomes a man’s and her vows are upon her according to the parting of her lips, as many things as she determined for herself against her soul and if her husband hears and says nothing to her on the day when he hears, then thereby all her vows shall stand, and her determinations that she determined for herself against her soul—they shall stand.

9 But if her husband in withholding consent withholds consent from her on the day when he hears, all her vows and her determinations that she determined for herself against her soul shall not remain, because her husband withheld consent from her, and the Lord will clear her.

10 And if her vow was in her husband’s house or her determination against her soul was with an oath and if her husband hears and says nothing to her and does not withhold consent to her, then all her vows shall stand, and all her determinations which she determined for herself against her soul—they shall stand. But if her husband in canceling cancels them on the day when he hears, all the things that proceed out of her lips regarding her vows and regarding her determination that are against her soul shall not remain for her. Her husband canceled them, and the Lord will clear her.

14 Every vow and every oath for binding, to afflict the soul, her husband shall establish for her, and her husband shall cancel. But if her husband is silent and says nothing to her from day to day, then he shall establish for her the all her vows, and he shall establish for her the determinations that are upon her, because he kept silent to her on the day when he heard. But if in canceling he cancels after the day that he heard, then he shall bear his sin.

17 These are the statutes, as many as the Lord commanded Moyses, between a man and his wife and between a father and his daughter in youth, in her father’s house.

31 And the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying, Exact the vengeance of the sons of Israel against the Midianites, and at last you shall be added to your people. And Moyses spoke to the people, saying, Fully arm men from you to do battle before the Lord against Midian, to requite vengeance on Midian from the Lord. Send a thousand from a tribe by a thousand from a tribe from all the tribes of Israel to do battle. And they numbered from the thousands of Israel, a thousand from a tribe, twelve thousand armed for battle. And Moyses sent them off, a thousand from a tribe by a tribe.

thousand from a tribe, with their force, and Phineas son of Eleazar son of Aaron the priest. And the holy vessels and the signal trumpets were in their hands. And they did battle against Midian, just as the Lord had commanded Moyses, and they killed every male. And the kings of Midian they killed together with their slain: even Euis and Sour and Rokom and Hour and Robok, five kings of Midian. And Balaam son of Beor they killed with a sword together with their slain. And the Israelites plundered the women of Midian and their chattel and their cattle and all their possessions, and they plundered their army. And all their cities, those in their settlements, and their quarters, they burned with fire. And they took all the plunder and all their spoils, from human to animal, you and Eleazar the priest and the rulers of the paternal families of the congregation. And you shall divide the spoils between all the congregation. And you shall remove as a levy to the Lord, from the men, the warriors who went out into the battle line, one soul out of five hundred from the humans and from the animals and from the cattle and from the sheep and from the donkeys. And you shall take from their half, and you shall give Eleazar the priest the first fruits of the Lord. And from the half of the sons of Israel you shall take one out of fifty, from the humans and from the cattle and from the sheep and from the donkeys and from all the animals, and you shall give them to the Levites who keep the guard duties in the tent of the Lord. And Moyses and Eleazar the priest did just as the Lord instructed Moyses. And the abundance of the plunder that the warriors had plundered was: of the sheep six hundred and seventy-five thousand, and cattle, seventy-two thousand, and donkeys, sixty-one thousand, and human souls of the women who did not know a man's bed, all souls thirty-two thousand. And the halved part, the portion of those who went out to war was: from the number of the sheep, three hundred and thirty-seven thousand and five hundred, and the levy to the Lord was: from the sheep, six hundred and seventy-five, and cattle, thirty-six thousand, and the levy to the Lord, seventy-two, and donkeys, thirty thousand and five hundred, and the levy to the Lord, sixty-one, and human souls, sixteen thousand, and their levy to the Lord, thirty-two souls. And Moyses gave the levy to the Lord, the advance deduction of God to Eleazar the priest, just as the Lord instructed Moyses, from the halved part of the sons of Israel, which Moyses separated from the warriors.

And the halved part of the congregation: from the sheep was three hundred and thirty-seven thousand and five hundred, forty and cattle, thirty-six thousand, forty and donkeys, thirty thousand and five hundred, and human souls, sixteen thousand. And Moyses took from the halved part of the sons of Israel the one out of fifty, from the humans and from the animals, and he gave them to the Levites who were keeping the guard duties of the tent of the Lord, in the manner that the Lord instructed Moyses.

And there came to Moyses all those in charge of the thousands of the force, officers of thousands and officers of hundreds, and they said to Moyses, "Your servants have received the sum total of the warriors that are with us, and not even one of them is missing. And we have brought forward the gift to the Lord, a man what golden object he found: an ankletc and a bracelet and a ring and an armlet for the right arm and a hair-clasp, to make atonement for ourselves before the Lord." And Moyses and Eleazar the priest took the gold from them, every wrought article. And all the gold, the advance deduction that they removed for the Lord: sixteen thousand and
And the sons of Rouben and the sons of Gad had a multitude, a great multitude, of cattle. And they saw the country of Iazer and the country of Galaad and the place was a place for cattle. And when the sons of Rouben and the sons of Gad came forward, they said to Moyses and to Eleazar the priest and to the rulers of the congregation, saying, “Ataroth and Daibon and Iazer and Nambra and Hesebon and Eleale and Sebama and Nabau and Baian—the land that the Lord delivered before the sons of Israel—is cattle rearing land and your servants possess cattle.” And they were saying, “If we found favor before you, let this land be given to your domestic for a possession, and do not make us cross the Jordan.”

And Moyses said to the sons of Gad and to the sons of Rouben, “Shall your brothers go to war and you will sit here? And why are you perverting the minds of the sons of Israel not to cross over into the land that the Lord is giving to them? Did your fathers not do so, when I sent them from Kades Barne to observe the land? And they went up to Cluster Ravine and observed the land, and they turned aside the heart of the sons of Israel not to go into the land that the Lord gave them. And the Lord was angry with wrath on that day, and he swore, saying, “If these people who came up out of Egypt, from twenty years and above, who know evil and good, shall see the land that I swore to Abraam and Isaak and Jakob, for they have not followed along after me. On the other hand, there are Chaleb son of lepbonne, who had separated himself, and Iesen the son of Naue, for he followed along after the Lord.’ And the Lord was angry with wrath against Israel, and he made them roam about in the wilderness for forty years until the entire generation, those who were doing evil things before the Lord, was utterly consumed. Behold, you rose up in place of your fathers, as a band of sinful persons, to add further to the wrath of the Lord’s anger against Israel, because you will turn away from him to add further to abandon him in the wilderness, and you will act lawlessly against this whole congregation.”

And they came forward to him and kept saying, “Let us build quarters for sheep here, for our animals and cities, for our chateels, and, having taken up arms, let us be a vanguard ahead of the sons of Israel until we bring them to their place. And our chateel will settle in walled cities, because of those that inhabit the land. We will not turn back to our homes until all the sons of Israel have been apportioned, each one to his inheritance.

And let us no longer inherit among them from the other side of the Jordan and beyond, because we have our allotments on the other side of the Jordan in the east.”

And Moyses said to them, “If you do according to this word—if you arm yourselves before the Lord for war, then every armed soldier of you shall pass the Jordan before the Lord until his enemy is wiped out from before him and the land is dominated before the Lord. And after this you shall turn back, and you shall be innocent before the Lord and from Israel, and this land shall be to you as a possession before the Lord. But if you will not do so, you will sin against the Lord, and you will know your sin when misfortunes overtake you. And you shall build for yourselves cities for your chateel and quarters for your animals, and what proceeds from your mouth, you shall do.”

And Moyses brought together Eleazar the priest and Iesous the son of Naue, for he followed along after the Lord, and the sons of Rouben and the sons of Gad said to Moyses, saying, “Your servants will do just as our lord commands. And our chateel and our wives and all our animals shall be in the cities of Galaad. But your servants will pass by, all armed and arrayed before the Lord for the war, just as our lord says.”

And Moyses brought together Eleazar the priest and Iesous the son of Naue and the rulers of the patriarchal tribes of Israel. And Moyses said to them, “If the sons of Rouben and the sons of Gad and half the tribe of Manasse of Ioseph’s sons—the kingdom of Seon king of the Amorrites and the kingdom of Og king of Basan, the land and the cities, together with its borders, cities of the land round about. And the sons of Gad built Daibon and Ataroth and Aror and Sophar and Iazer, and they raised them up, and Nambra and Baitharan, strong cities and quarters for sheep. And the sons of Rouben built Hesebon and Eleale and Kariathaim and Nabau and Beelmeon encircled and Sebama, and they named the names of the cities they built after their own names. And a son of Machir son of Manasse went to Galaad and took it, and he destroyed the Amorite who was living in it. And Moyses gave Galaad to Machir son of Manasse, and he settled there. 41 And Iair, the son of Manasseh, went and took their homesteads and named them Iair’s Homesteads. 42 And Nabau went and took Kanath and its villages and named them Naboth after his name.

And these are stations of the sons of Israel as they went out of the land of Egypt together with their force by the hand of Moyses and Aaron. 2 And Moyses wrote down their departures and their stations, through the word of the Lord, and these are stations of their journey. 3 They set out from Rameses in the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month; on the day after the pascha the sons of Israel went out with a high hand before all the Egyptians, and the Egyptians were burying all those of them who had died, whom the Lord struck down, every firstborn in the land of Egypt. And among their gods the Lord executed vengeance.

5 And when the sons of Israel set out from Rameses, they encamped at Sokchoth. 6 And they set out from Sokchoth and encamped at Bouthan, which is some part of the wilderness. 7 And they set out from Bouthan and encamped at Heiroth’s mouth, which is opposite Beelsephon, and they encamped opposite Magdolos. 8 And they set out from before Heiroth and crossed through the middle of the sea into the wilderness, and they went a journey of three days through the wilderness, and they encamped at Bitternesses. 9 And they set out from Bitternesses and came to Ailim, and in Ailim there were twelve springs of water and seventy date palm trunks, and they encamped there beside the water. 10 And they set out from Ailim and encamped by the Red Sea. 11 And they set out from the Red Sea and encamped in the wilderness of Sin. 12 And they set out from the wilderness of Sin and encamped at Raphaka. 13 And they set out from Raphaka and encamped in Ailous. 14 And they set out from Ailous and encamped in Raphidin, and there was no water for the people to drink there. 15 And they set out from Raphidin and encamped in the wilderness of Sinai. 16 And they set out from the wilderness of Sinai and encamped in Tombs of Craving. 17 And they set out from Tombs of Craving and encamped in Haseroth. 18 And they set out from Haseroth and encamped in Rathama. 19 And they set out from Rathama and encamped in Remmon Phares. 20 And they set out from Remmon Phares and encamped in Lebona. 21 And they set out from Lebona and encamped at Dessa. 22 And they set out from Dessa and encamped at Makelath. 23 And they set out from Makelath and encamped at Saphar. 24 And they set out from Saphar and encamped at Charadath. 25 And they set out from Charadath and encamped at Makeloth. 26 And they set out from Makeloth and encamped at Kataath. 27 And they set out from Kataath and encamped at Tarath. 28 And they set out from Tarath and encamped at Matekka. 29 And they set out from Matekka and encamped at Haselmona. 30 And they set out from Haselmona and encamped at Masourouth. 31 And they set out from Masourouth and encamped at Banaikan. 32 And they set out from Banaikan and encamped at the mountain of Gadgad. 33 And they set out from the mountain of Gadgad and encamped at Etebatha. 34 And they set out from Etebatha and encamped at Ebronah. 35 And they set out from Ebronah and encamped at Gesion Gaber. 36 And they set out from Gesion Gaber and encamped in the wilderness of Sin. And they set out from the wilderness of Sin and encamped in the wilderness of Pharan; this is Kades. 37 And they set out from Kades and encamped at Hor, the mountain near the land of Edom.

38 And Aaron the priest went up by the ordinance of the Lord and died there in the fortieth year of the departure of the sons of Israel from the land of Egypt, in the fifth month, on the first day of the month. 39 And Aaron was a hundred and twenty-three years old when he died on Hor the mountain.

40 And Chananis, king of Arad (and he was living in the land of Chanaan), heard when the sons of Israel were coming in.

41 And they set out from Hor the mountain and encamped at Selmona. 42 And they set out from Selmona and encamped at Phino. 43 And they set out from Phino and encamped at Oboth. 44 And they set out from Oboth and encamped in Gai, on the other side, on the borders of Moab. 45 And they set out from Gai and encamped at Daibon Gad. 46 And they set out from Daibon Gad and encamped in Gelmon Deblathaim. 47 And they set out from Gelmon Deblathaim and encamped on the mountains of Abarim, opposite Nabau. 48 And they set out from the mountains of Abarim and encamped to the west of Moab by the Jordan opposite Iericho, 49 and they encamped by the Jordan between Haisimoth as far as Belsattim to the west of Moab.

50 And the Lord spoke to Moyses at the west of Moab by the Jordan opposite Iericho, saying: 51 Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: As for you, you are crossing the Jordan into the land of Chanaan, 52 and you shall destroy all those who live in the land before you, and you shall remove their lookouts, and as for all their molten idols you shall destroy them, and all their steles you shall remove. 53 And you shall destroy the inhabitants of the land, and you shall settle in it, for to you I have given their land as an allotment. 54 And you shall obtain their land as a possession by lot according to your tribes; to the more numerous ones you shall increase their possession, and to the less numerous ones you shall decrease their possession. 55 To what his name goes out therewithal, his shall it be. According to your paternal tribes you shall inherit. 56 But if you do not destroy those living on the land from before you, then it shall be that whomever of them you leave shall be thorns in your eyes and missiles in your sides, and

34 And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying:
2 Command the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: As for you, you are entering into the land of Canaan (this shall be to you for an inheritance, the land of Canaan together with its borders). 3 And the side that is to the southwest shall be for you from the wilderness of Sin as far as next to Edom, and the borders to the southwest shall be for you from the part of the Salt Sea on the east. 4 And your borders shall go around you from the southwest to the ascent of Akrabin, and they shall pass along Senna, and its outlet shall be to the steading of Arad, and it shall go out from Arad to the wide expanse of the sea of Chinnereth from the east, 12 and the borders shall go down from Bela at the wide expanse of the sea of Chinnereth from the east, 12 and the borders shall descend to the Jordan, and its outlet shall be the Salt Sea. This shall be the land which you shall measure for yourselves along b the mountain, the mountain
b you shall measure for them, as they enter into Hemath, and its outlet shall be the borders of Sarada. 9 And the borders shall go out to Deprona, and its outlet shall be Hasernain; this shall be for you the borders from the north. 10 And you shall measure out for yourselves the borders of the east from Hasernain to Sepphama, 11 and the borders shall go down from Seppham to Harbela from the east to springs, and the borders shall descend to the Jordan, and its outlet shall be the Salt Sea. This shall be the land for you, and its borders all around. 11 And Moses commanded the sons of Israel, saying: This is the land that you shall obtain as a possession by lot, in the manner that the Lord instructed Moses to give it to the nine tribes and to the half-tribe of Manasse. 12 For Reuben's sons' tribe and Gad's sons' tribe received according to their paternal houses, and the half-tribe of Manasse accepted their allotments; 13 twelve tribes of the half-tribe received their allotments beyond the Jordan opposite Jericho from the south, towards the east. 14 And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: These are the names of the men who shall inherit the land for you: the priest Eleazar and lesous the son of Naue. 15 And you shall take one ruler from a tribe to obtain for you the land as a possession. 16 And these are the names of the men: Of the tribe of Lousas, Chabeb son of lephonhe. 20 Of the tribe of Symeon, Salamiel son of Emioud.

21 Of the tribe of Benjamin, Eldad son of Haschlon. 22 Of the tribe of Dan, a ruler, Bakchir son of Egli. 23 Of the sons of Joseph: of Manasse's sons' tribe, a ruler, Haniel son of Ouphid, 24 of the tribe of Ephraim's sons, a ruler, Kamouel son of Sabatha. 25 Of the tribe of Zaboulon, a ruler, Elisaphan son of Pharnach. 26 Of the tribe of Issachar's sons, a ruler, Phaltiel son of Oza. 27 Of the tribe of Aser's sons, a ruler, Achior son of Selami. 28 Of the tribe of Neptali, a ruler, Phadeel son of Benammiad. 29 These are the ones whom the Lord commanded to make the distribution for the sons of Israel in the land of Canaan.

35 And the Lord spoke to Moses to the west of Moab, by the Jordan opposite Jericho, saying: 2 Instruct the sons of Israel, and they shall give to the Leuites from the allotments of their possession cities to live in, and the suburbs of the cities around them they shall give to the Leuites—3 and the cities shall be for them to live in, and their areas set apart shall be for their cattle and for all their quadrupeds. 4 And the areas adjoining the cities that you shall give to the Leuites shall be from the city wall and outwards, two thousand cubits all around. 5 And you shall measure outside the city, the side towards the east, two thousand cubits, and the side towards the southwest, two thousand cubits, and the side towards the Sea, two thousand cubits, and the side towards the north, two thousand cubits, and the city in the midst of this shall be for you, and the contiguous areas of the cities—6 even the cities that you shall give to the Leuites, the six cities of places of refuge that you shall give to the murderer to flee there, and in addition to these, forty-two cities; 7 all the cities that you shall give to the Leuites are forty-eight cities—them and their suburbs; 8 even the cities that you shall give from the possession of Israel's sons, many from those with many and fewer from those with fewer. They shall give of their cities to the Leuites, each one according to his inheritance that they shall inherit.

9 And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying: 10 Speak to the sons of Israel, and you shall say to them: As for you, you are crossing the Jordan into the land of Canaan, 11 and you shall set aside for yourselves cities; they shall be places of refuge for you for the murderer to flee there, everyone who strikes a soul unintentionally. 12 And the cities shall be for you places of refuge from one doing the relative's blood duty, and the one that commits murder will not die until he stands before the congregation for judgment.

13 And the cities that you give as the six cities shall be places of refuge for you. 14 Three cities you shall give beyond the Jordan, and three cities you shall give in the land of Canaan. 15 They shall be an asylum for the sons of Israel and for the guest and for the resident alien among you. These cities shall be a place of refuge for everyone to flee there when he strikes a soul unintentionally.
16 But if he strikes him with an iron instrument and he dies, he is a murderer; let the murderer be put to death by death. 17 Now if he strikes him with a stone out of hand—by which he may die—and he dies, he is a murderer; let the murderer be put to death by death. 18 Now if he strikes him with a wooden instrument out of hand—from which he may die—and he dies, he is a murderer; let the murderer be put to death by death. 19 As for the one doing the relative's blood duty, he shall kill the one that committed murder; when he meets up with him, he shall kill him. 20 Now if out of enmity he pushes him and hurls at him any object from an ambush and he dies 21 or out of rage he struck him with the hand and he dies, let the one who struck be put to death by death—he is a murderer; let the murderer be put to death by death; the one doing the relative's blood duty shall strike the one that committed murder when he meets him.

22 But if he pushes him suddenly, not out of enmity, or throws at him any object not from an ambush 23 or with any stone—by which he may die—unknowingly, and it falls upon him and he dies but he was not his enemy nor was he seeking to harm him, 24 then the congregation shall judge between the striker and between the one doing the relative's blood duty, according to these judgments, 25 and the congregation shall rescue the one that committed murder from the one doing the relative's blood duty. And the congregation shall restore him to the city of his place of refuge, where he fled for refuge. And he shall live there until the great priest dies, him whom they anointed with the holy oil. 26 But if he that commits murder by an exit leaves the bounds of the city, there where he fled for refuge, and he dies outside the bounds of the city, 27 and the one adoing the relative's blood duty finds him outside the bounds of the city, in the place of his refuge, and he hurls at him a wooden instrument out of hand—from which he may die, he is a murderer; let the murderer be put to death by death; the one doing the relative's blood duty shall strike the one that committed murder when he meets him.

28 For let him live in the city of refuge until the great priests die, and after the great priests die, he that committed murder shall return to the land of his possession.

29 And these things shall be for you a requirement of judgment for your generations in all your settlements.

30 Every one, when he strikes a soul, through witnesses you shall kill the murderer, and one witness shall not bear witness against a soul that he should die. 31 And you shall not receive ransom for a soul from the one that committed murder, liable to be killed, for he shall be put to death by death. 32 And you shall not receive ransom to flee to a city of places of refuge to live again on the land until the great priests die. 33 And you shall not kill by murder the land on which you live. For this blood killsb the land by murder, and the land shall not be atoned for from the blood that was shed upon it, except by the blood of the one who shed it. 34 And you shall not defile the land that you live upon, on which I will encamp among you, for I am the Lord, encamping in the midst of the sons of Israel.

36 And the rulers of the tribe of Galaad's sons—son of Machir son of Manasse—came forward and spoke before Moyses and before Eleazar the priest and before the rulers of the paternal houses of the sons of Israel. 2 And they said, “The Lord commanded our lord to give back the land of the inheritance by lot to the sons of Israel, and the Lord instructed the lord to give the inheritance of Salpaad our brother to his daughters. 3 And they shall become wives to one of the tribes of Israel's sons, and their allotment will be taken away from the possession of our fathers and added to the inheritance of the tribe to whom they may become wives; then it will be taken away from the allotment of our inheritance. 4 But if the release of the sons of Israel takes place, then their inheritance shall be added to the inheritance of the tribe to whom they may become wives, and from the inheritance of our paternal tribe their inheritance shall be taken away.”

5 And Moyses commanded the sons of Israel through an ordinance of the Lord, saying, “Thus Joseph's sons' tribe are saying. 6 This is the thing that the Lord instructed for the daughters of Salpaad, saying, 'Of whomever is pleasing before them, let them be wives; only out of the division of their father let them become wives; 7 and an inheritance for the sons of Israel shall not rotate from tribe to tribe; for the sons of Israel shall stick together, each one in the inheritance of his paternal tribe. 8 And as for every daughter when as next of kin she is entitled to an inheritance from the tribes of Israel's sons, they shall become wives to one of those from the division of her father so that the sons of Israel may be entitled as next of kin, each one to his paternal inheritance. 9 And an allotment shall not rotate from tribe to another tribe, but the sons of Israel shall stick together, each one in his inheritance.'”

10 In the manner the Lord instructed Moyses, so Salpaad's daughters did. 11 And Thersa and Hegla and Mélcha and Noua and Maala, daughters of Salpaad, became their cousins. 12 They became wives of the division of Manasses, of Joseph's sons, and their inheritance was for the tribe of their father's division.

13 These are the commandments and the statutes and the judgments that the Lord commanded by the hand of Moyses at the west of Moab, at the Jordan down from Jericho.

EDITION OF THE GREEK TEXT

The NETS translation of Deuteronomion has been based on the edition by John William Wevers (Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Auctoritate Academiae Scientiarum Gottingensis editum III.2: Deuteronomium [Gottingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1977]). This fully critical edition is the best available. Its printed text was modified only where Wevers himself, in Appendix A of his Notes on the Greek Text of Deuteronomy (SBLSCS 39; Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1995), proposed that changes be made. Most of the forty-four suggested modifications involve matters of punctuation or accentuation. Others consist of variation in pronouns due to itacisms (ὡμῶν/ὑμῶν, etc.), changes in the form of the nomina sacra, the odd omission of a possessive or a copula and so on. Only a single reading in the list (the metathesis of lambda and alpha in λαον 28.9) was a genuine printing error. But in one or two cases such as 28.62 or 30.13, readings that the editor initially considered secondary and therefore placed in the apparatus, he deemed on further reflection to be primary. In every instance, such changes that can be shown are noted in the brief apparatus to NETS Deuteronomion, where WeN is made to contrast with Weed.

TRANSLATION PROFILE OF THE GREEK

General Comment

The aim here is not to present a complete picture of the character of the translation of Greek Deuteronomy within the constraints of a brief introduction. What follows, rather, is a discussion of some features that might interest the NETS reader conversant with Hebrew and Greek and interested in the relationship of the latter to the former. It may be assumed that the translator of Greek Deuteronomy (hereafter DeutTr) had before him a text similar in the main to the printed text of BHS and that the printed text of Weed (as modified by WeN) is representative of the original Greek translation.

Every translation must be examined, of course, for its own peculiarities, and each translator evaluated in relation to the content of the material on which he worked. Statistical representations are relevant only when judged against patterns and practices of a particular translator and the choices he faced. Deuteronomy is noted for its hortatory style and repetitive content. Thus its study, even though tedious, can be instructive to a textual critic evaluating whether and when formulaic expressions are accurately transmitted. But Deuteronomy also repeats legal material found in earlier books of the Pentateuch and contains more sustained poetry than any of the others. Furthermore, if we assume that the Pentateuch was translated sequentially, Deuteronomy, given its position, might reflect knowledge of the work of previous translators, and so we might look for evidence along those lines. These factors add a unique dimension to the task of evaluating Greek Deuteronomy. It is fair to say that DeutTr typically maintains a very close relationship to his source text, though, within a linguistically rather constricting framework, one can nevertheless speak of an interpretative dimension. I discuss each aspect in turn.

Formal Correspondence and Representation

The indicators of a close connection between a Greek translation and a Hebrew source text are well established. Some are attested throughout the Pentateuch, others in the larger corpus of LXX translation Greek and even in the NT. These include for example: fixed lexical equivalents on the content side (verbs and nouns) and even non-content elements—particles, prepositions and the like; the use of λέγων as a consistent translation for יָכַה; ὅτι as a translation for יָכַה irrespective of contextual concerns; for יֵ in the use of a Greek conjunctive participle with a cognate finite verb to represent the Hebrew free infinitive (absolute) used for emphasis before a cognate finite verb; the (related) practice of using a participle plus finite verb to represent two successive Hebrew verbs describing the same or related activity; and infinitive + infinitive + pronoun for and infinitive + bound infinitive (construct); the ubiquitous καὶ for and even in places where standard Greek would opt for postpositive so and so forth. Beyond these lie matters of quantitative representation—the tendency to represent one word in Hebrew by one in Greek as far as possible, often down to the morphemic level—and matters of strict adherence to Hebrew word order at the expense of standard Greek style.

A translation that conforms regularly to these patterns exhibits formal correspondence with its source text—the conventions and demands of that source being dominant throughout. One that takes seriously the needs and expectations of the reader—the target audience—might be expected to deviate from these patterns regularly and demonstrate what is termed dynamic equivalence. Few translations exhibit one or the other pattern exclusively; Deuteronomion is no different in this respect. Each of the above examples of formal correspondence can be demonstrated, though some are more worthy of attention than others. I discuss a few below.

The first chapter should provide representative examples since it would presumably show DeutTr's initial approach to his task. Indeed, a look at the very first verse demonstrates a number of DeutTr's characteristic features. One will note: (1) an almost isomorphic relationship to the source text; (2) identical word order to the source text; (3) occasional translation of names; (4) at times excessive focus on individual items; (5) a certain freedom vis-à-vis the source text.

DeutTr selected πέραν to represent רָעָבָה and maintained it throughout the book even though he seemed unsure at that stage whether the נ should be represented discretely or not; by verse 5 he has decided that it should be, since there (and in 3.20, 4.46) he preceded πέραν with ἐν τῷ. In all but two (30.13 2x) of thirteen places, the reference is to the Jordan. The preposition ἐν here is a ἱπατι as pointed in BHS; its variant form ἐν appears rarely in BHS and only four more times in Deuteronomy (2.19; 3.29; 4.46; 34.6). Of course, it cannot be known whether or not DeutTr read his unpointed text just as the Masoretes did, since the meaning of both forms of the preposition remains the same. It may be entirely coincidental but noteworthy, however, that only in 1.1, where the variant Masoretic vocalization appears, does πλησιόν appear and there in relation to the Red Sea. But πλησιόν is never used again as a translation of ἐν; by the time DeutTr next encountered it in 2.19, he had decided that ἐγγὺς or σύνεγγὺς = ἐν and that either πέραν or ἐν τῷ πέραν = רָעָבָה. Thus, by 4.46 when ἐν and ἐν appear in the same verse, he rendered them ἐν τῷ πέραν τοῦ Ἰορδάνου . . . ἐγγὺς ὀκον Φογώρ "beyond the Jordan . . . near the house of Phgor." The variation in the gloss for ἐν, however, can be accounted for on contextual grounds. Towards the end of the first verse, DeutTr seemed confident that Pharan, Tophol, and Lobon were place names because they were clearly set off by οἰκου, even though the second is left untranslated (cf. infra), but he seems unsure that ἐντολῆ and ἐντὸν ἦν were. He therefore translated them as faithfully as he could—Ἀίλων "Courts" and Καταξρείσε “Goldplaces.” Oddly, though, the last named is in the wrong case to be a constituent of the preceding series. Consequently, it dangles rather uncertainly at the end.

One well-established marker of a translator’s dependence on his source is the treatment of clause connectors. A. Aejmelaeus has noted the importance of this issue in several publications.1 If a translator selected ὅτι instead of γάρ (even when standard Greek style would suggest the latter) to render буд, it is one of many signs that the source text controlled the process. She cites 4.6 “because this is your wisdom,” 16.3 “because you came out . . . in haste,” and 22.5 “for anyone doing these things is an abhorrence to the Lord your God,” and especially 30.11 ὅτι ἐντολή σου, ἦν ἔγω ἐντέλλομαι σοι σήμερον = NETS: “because this commandment I command you today” as examples where the ὅτι stands first in its clause under Hebrew influence but a postpositive γάρ would seem perfectly warranted in the contexts.

Another clear example of DeutTr’s heavy dependence on the source is his literal rendering of pleonastic expressions—“the land which you are crossing the Jordan there to inherit it.” This type of syntactical structure is typical and frequent in Deuteronomion. Full lexeme-for-lexeme representation is always evident in Greek. Likewise, free infinitives are juxtaposed before or after cognate verbs frequently in Deuteronomion. DeutTr made no attempt to interpret the sense of such Hebraistic expressions but rendered them quite literally, word for word, striving to imitate his source text by utilizing cognate roots in Greek. Singular and plural forms of address in Hebrew are almost religiously followed in Greek, and the few variations can usually be explained reasonably.

Neologisms

Throughout Deuteronomion one finds new words (neologisms) or instances of known words combined in new ways. Some are unique to the Pentateuch; almost forty appear for the first time in Deuteronomion. These illustrate certain decisions Deut\textsuperscript{Tr} made when confronting Hebrew expressions for which he knew of no Greek equivalent quite close enough to his source text. For example, a Hebrew root may have only a noun equivalent in Greek but no verb equivalent. As a result, a translator, if he is intent on matching the source text word class for word class, might need to coin a Greek verb. So, while coining a neologism may reflect literary creativity, it can equally well indicate rigid adherence to the source text. The vast majority of Deut\textsuperscript{Tr}'s creations are best placed in the latter category.

The noun קִרְפָּן occurs less than ten times in the book, the first being in 1.15. In this context it describes specific officials connected to judges. Rather than replacing the Hebrew with a contextually suitable Greek term, Deut\textsuperscript{Tr} apparently coined a word by fusing two known Greek functionaries: a γραμματεύς “a scribe” and an εἰσισγωγεύς “one who brings cases to court” into γραμματεοεισισγωγεύς “one who records things for judges.” He also used it elsewhere (16.18; 29.10; 31.28), but in three other places (20.5, 8, 9) he rendered קִרְפָּן more simply as γραμματεύς “scribes.”

The idiom “to be long of days,” קִרְפָּן קַלִּיָּה, is variously translated by πολυχρονίζω “to prolong time” (4.26), μακροχρόνος/-ρω “to have long days” (4.40; 5.33; 6.2; 11.9; 32.47) or μακροχρονίζω “to have a long time” (17.20) and so on. Components of these words were already in use. For example, the adjective πολυχρόνιος rendering the same Hebrew occurs in Gen 26.8. What Deut\textsuperscript{Tr} does in these instances then is make a verb out of a known adjective as a way of remaining close to the source text without being too slavishly literal.

The neologism δευτερονομιόν itself provides a final example. Neither δευτερός nor νόμος were new Greek words. With the suffixing of -ος, however, they together constituted an interpretation, not simply a translation of תְּנֵי דְּתוֹר in 17.18 that in time was adopted as the name of the book. The Hebrew phrase could be understood as describing either a copy, a repetition of or another, a second, law. This latter sense is clearly the intent of Deut\textsuperscript{Tr}; he makes this even more explicit in 31.26 by speaking of “the book of this law” rather than of “this book of the law” (=MT). “This law” seems in his mind to stand in contrast to the first law (Exodus-Numbers).

Dynamic Equivalence and Interpretation

All the foregoing notwithstanding, Deut\textsuperscript{Tr} often shows that he is not invariably wedded to formal correspondence, at least not to a rigid one-to-one equivalency. Accordingly, one finds in Deut\textsuperscript{Tr} both semantic leveling (the use of one Greek word for several in Hebrew) and semantic differentiation (the use of two or more Greek words to render the same Hebrew). I discuss a few examples of each.

Deut\textsuperscript{Tr} had previously translated the simple verb ἔσσω “to lift up” by φέρω “to bear/carry,” but in 1.31 he contextualized its meaning by choosing τροφοφέρεω “to nurse.” He seems to have had in mind the image of the people of Israel being nurtured by their god with food in the desert, as analogous to a father nursing his son to adulthood, presumably in difficult circumstances. The noun σπέρμα (τα) regularly translates בְּנֵי but also בֵּית (25.5). The very popular verb ἐξολοθρεύω translates six Hebrew roots—בָּשַּׁל 5x (4.38; 7.17; 9.4, 5; 18.12); בַּל 3x (2.34; 3.6 2x); בָּשַׁל, 2x (7.10; 28.63); בָּשַׁל 4x (9.26; 10.10; 20.19; 20.20); בָּשַׁל (12.29); בָּשַׁל 18x.

As for semantic differentiation, Deut\textsuperscript{Tr} offers numerous examples; his treatment of בְּנֵי is representative. The default rendering προσθήκας describes in the Pentateuch and certainly in Deuteronomion someone clearly not yet a proselyte, a convert, but more like a guest of the community who receives preferential treatment alongside the orphan and the widow. He should be treated fairly and paid a just wage. He has “come over” to the community and is treated as its guest, with all the privileges that such a status implies. However, Deut\textsuperscript{Tr} also used πάροικος for בְּנֵי in two instances (14.20 [21] and 23.7[8]) to describe someone who is not a permanent resident and does not enjoy special privileges. By differentiating, he evidently intended to highlight a distinction.

The word מִשְׁמַר (NRSV: “fruit”) modifies nouns three times in 28.4 and 30.9, and twice in 7.13 and 28.11. In 28.4, it becomes ἐγκόνα, γενήματα, βουκόλια (NETS: “progeny,” “produce,” “herds”), whereas in 30.9 ἐγκόνα, γενήματα, ἐγκόνα (NETS: “progeny,” “produce,” “progeny”). In 7.13 it becomes ἐγκόνα and κάρπος (NETS: “progeny” and “fruit”), while in 28.11 it is ἐγκόνα, ἐγκόνα (NETS: “progeny, progeny”). Thus one Hebrew word מִשְׁמַר is rendered in this small sample by four Greek words, in view of the difference in semantic range between Hebrew מִשְׁמַר and Greek κάρπος (its most common equivalent throughout the LXX).

Though Deut\textsuperscript{Tr} at times “solved” problems in his source text, he also sometimes unwittingly created problems that the source text did not have. So, for example, in 1.43 he chose παραβιβάζω to translate יְהוּדָה “to act forcefully” to translate יְהוּדָה “to act with arrogance.” But since the context clearly speaks of obedience to God’s word transmitted by Moyses, παραβιαζόμαι is scarcely an obvious fit. (Note that in 17.13 and 18.20 he uses σπειρέω.)

The entire verse in 19.3 may be an example of contextual interpretation. Three separate Hebrew verbs are rendered in unusual ways vis-à-vis the text of BHS. Hebrew נמצא (imperfect of נמצא “you must prepare” is read differently from the Masoretic as an imperative of a root נמצא (as P. Dion has suggested2 and as the NRSV has adopted) and becomes in Greek στόχασαν “estimate for yourself.” DeutTr may have misread or interpreted a text like the Masoretic text, but it seems more probable that נמצא was in his Vorlage. The verse לחירש “you will make three of” is more explicitly rendered as τριμερίζετε “you shall make (or divide) into three portions.” The very popular verb κληρονομείω (Hiphil) “to give as a possession/inheritance,” usually translated as κληρονομείω, is only in this context translated as καταμερίζω “to divide into sections/to apportion.” Either by design or by inadvertence DeutTr ends up with a verbal repetition: τριμερίζω...καταμερίζω.

DeutTr made explicit that when (as in 13.5[6]; 17.7, 12; 19.19; 21.21; 22.21, 22, 24; 24.7) the source text suggests, ambiguously, that נמצא “the evil” is to be removed from among the people of Israel, evil is to be understood concretely. For him, it is the evil person τον ποιησόν, not evil as an abstraction το ποιησόν that is the intent of the source; that person must be removed.

In terms of style, he usually utilized classical reflexive pronouns when speaking of the extirpation of these community evildoers; see for example 13.5[6]; 19.19; 21.21; 22.21, 24; 24.7. In these cases, the selection of εξ υμῶν αὐτῶν rather than εξ εαυτῶν “from among yourselves” or even of εξ υμῶν “from you” may possibly signal a heightened sense of outrage, but more likely is indicative of the relatively early date of Deuteronomion.

DeutTr judged the expression in 10.16, ἐξ ὑμῶν ἀφαίρεσθαι “the foreskin of your heart,” perhaps too graphic and made a moral/theological judgment to render it as σκληροκαρδίαν υμῶν “your hardheartedness.” It is also quite clear that he deliberately sought to avoid translating קָנָה as βασιλεύς when the referent could possibly be construed as a king of Israel. In those five instances (17.14, 15(2x); 28.36; 33.5), he chose the word ἀρχαῖον “ruler.” For him, it seems there could only be one βασιλεύς in Israel and that would be κύριος their god.

These brief comments should suffice to demonstrate that DeutTr was, on the one hand, a translator who often slavishly mimicked his source text but who, on the other hand, from time to time slipped in some exegesis. He does not make unwarranted changes, but when he deems them necessary, he does not hesitate to act.

ISSUES OF THE PARENT TEXT

We turn now to examples of variance between Greek and Hebrew Deuteronomy whether occasioned by misreading, misunderstanding or, as seems clear in a few places, a source text different from BHS. The well-known “shema” in 6.4 consists in Hebrew of six words. In Greek the verse is prefaced with: Καὶ ταύτα τὰ δικαίωματα καὶ τὰ κρίματα, ὅσα ἐνεπέλατο κύριος τῶν υἱῶν Ισραήλ ἐν τῇ ἑρμῆς ἐξαλάθωντων αὐτῶν ἔγερσα Αἰγύπτου “And these are the statutes and the judgments, which the Lord commanded to the sons of Israel in the wilderness as they were coming out from the land of Egypt.” Given DeutTr’s preoccupation with quantitative representation of his source in undisputed areas, there is no reason to think that the Hebrew equivalent of this passage was absent from his Vorlage. The initial introductory remarks in 6.1 in the Greek tradition are directed to Moyses; those in 6.4 to the sons of Israel.

The case in 30.15, 16 is similar but less debatable. The Hebrew of BHS is both illogical and deficient, the Greek quite clear. Hebrew verse 15 indicates that what Moses set before the people was “the life and the good, the death and the evil.” The following verse begins with וָהוָה, the logical antecedent of which is וָהוָה. As the text stands, it would be translated “the evil (16) which I command you today to love the Lord your God”—clearly an untenable text. The Greek reads: ἦδον δεδόκα πρὸ προσώπου σου σήμερον τὴν ζωὴν καὶ τὸν βάσανον, τὸ ἀγαθὸν καὶ τὸ κακόν. 16. ἐὰν δὲ εἰσακο¸σθησας τὰς ἐντολὰς κύριον τοῦ θεοῦ σου, σὺς ἐγὼ ἐντέλλομαι σοι σήμερον, ἀγαθὸν κύριον τὸν θεὸν σου “See, I have given before you today life and death, good and evil. 16. Now if you listen to the commandments of the Lord your God that I command you today, to love the Lord your God.” Though it might be argued in this and other places that the smoother text derives from an attempt to correct the perceived difficulty in the original, that seems unlikely. Only an inclination to privilege BHS on other grounds would lead one to set aside the LXX Vorlage in this instance and argue for a shorter text.

2 “Deuteronomy 19.3 Prepare the Way, or Estimate the Distance?” ET 25 (1994) 333–341. Dion shows that the LXX reading does not reflect any form of the root ἐκατοστάσεις per the Masoretic vocalization but rather ἐκατοστάσεις, a verb used in the Hebrew Bible for measuring.

In 32.43, the Greek is twice as long as the extant Hebrew text—eight lines to four hemistichs. The longer text is not merely an elaboration of the Hebrew but adds significant details (including a reference to “all the angels of God”), which, given the generally conservative attitude of DeutTr, are best explained as text-based. A text from Qumran representing in part the source text of the LXX is extant.3 Let it suffice to note that the next verse (44) is also longer in Greek than in BHS, preposing the equivalent of “And Moses wrote this song in that day and taught it to the sons of Israel.” BHS is not identically rendered either. BHS’s equivalent of “all the words of this song” appear in Greek as “all the words of this law,” producing two subscriptions to the narrative. Indeed, throughout this entire chapter and the following one, there are notable differences between the Greek and the Hebrew.

Variance between the verse numbers of BHS and Greek exists in some chapters. Chapter 5 provides a good example. The order of the apodictic commandments is adultery, murder, theft, unlike the Hebrew (murder, adultery, theft) and unlike Exodus (adultery, theft, murder). Likewise, the list of clean and unclean food in chapter 14 shows variation in the number of some verses vis-à-vis BHS.

Less important, but equally intriguing, are the instances where, for reasons not always apparent, DeutTr chose to translate rather than transliterate place names or vice versa. Examples appear throughout with no observable pattern. In 34.6, “in the valley” (קֵינֶים) is read as a proper name “in Gai” (ın Γαί); Abib (אַבִּיָּם) and Pesach (פֶּסַח) are rendered respectively as τα νέα “of new things” and τὸ πασχα “the pascha (= passover)” in 16.1ff. The oft-quoted passage in 26.5 Ἰησοῦς Χριστός ἐγένετο “a wandering Aramean was my father” becomes in Greek Σωρίαν ὁ πατέρας μου “my ancestor abandoned Syria.” The difference might simply be due to wrong word division of an unpointed Hebrew text, or may be a contextualized interpretation to connect with “going down into Egypt.”

The NETS Translation of Deuteronomion

The problems inherent in “translating a translation” assume unique dimensions in each specific translation unit when one tries, in line with NETS policy, to achieve not only semantic fidelity to the Greek but at the same time reflect something of the style in which it has been translated. Vis-à-vis the NRSV as base text for NETS, this can mean that the former has been altered for either one or both of the above reasons.

DeutTr, as has been noted, is closely tied to his source text both in terms of what he understands the text to mean and in terms of its text linguistics. Therefore, when variation is present in the translation of common expressions, it seems fair to conclude that he was acting intentionally. I have striven to reflect this consistency in NETS Deuteronomion in order to signal precisely what is present in Greek. For example, ἐκγόνον and σπέρμα(το) are both acceptably translated as “offspring”; indeed, the NRSV translates some of their Hebrew equivalents (בֵּן־סְפֶרֶם(ַו) and בֵּן־עִיּוֹסֵי) in this way. I have, however, reserved “offspring” as the translation of only σπέρμα(το) and have chosen “progeny” consistently to translate ἐκγόνον; ὡς is, of course, “son.” What is relevant here for the NETS reader is that progeny will always indicate a particular word choice of DeutTr without indicating his decision about the Hebrew text; offspring, when found in the same place in NETS and the NRSV, may point to different Hebrew/Greek originals.

The reader will also find certain seemingly inelegant renderings for the Hebraisms so prominent throughout Deuteronomion. For instance, in expressions like φυλάξε οἱ ποιεῖν, ἀκούσατε ποιεῖν, and so forth, I have regularly chosen to perform as a translation for the infinitive ποιεῖν, and guard rather than “keep” for the imperative, making for the awkward “be watchful to perform” or “listen to perform.” I have also sought to reflect the imitative style of DeutTr’s treatment of Hebrew free infinitives juxtaposed to cognate verbs. So rather than translating ἔννοον ὁ ὄκοιν ὁκούσατε as “if you will only hear” (cf. NRSV), NETS displays “in/with hearing you will hear” and similar expressions throughout. Similarly, pleonastic expressions, as mentioned earlier, have generally been translated in full. The reason for this approach is not a desire for dogged literalism, but a recognition of the fact that DeutTr under the influence of his source text produced non-idiotic Greek.

The treatment of the formulaic language should be easy to decode, but a few popular choices follow: κλήρος = “allotment,” ἐν κλήρῳ = “as an allotment,” κληρονομία = “possession” or “inheritance,” φυλάγματα = “orders,” προστάγματα = “ordinances,” δικαίωμα = “statutes,” κρίσις = “judgments,” μαρτυρία = “testimonies.” Such stereotyping is, of course, not always the case. This is particularly true of the frequently recurring verbal forms of κληρονομέω. This verb and its cognates almost always translate irrespective of its Hebrew stem. Thus the appearance of κληρονομέω in the Greek text signals, in the first instance, only that the translator was formally reflecting the Hebrew before him. Following DeutTr’s approach to his Hebrew, I have utilized the English word “inherit” as a sort of default rendering of κληρονομέω in Deuteronomion. The NETS reader may thus find some degree of tension at times between the word “inherit” and its context. When the choice of “inherit” would produce not simply tension but ambiguity in English, I have employed words like “possess,” “dispossess” or “take possession of” as alternatives.

Again, I have routinely retained NRSV’s choice of “to bring” (whether in or out) as a translation for the Hebrew verb (םָּלְּך mostly in the Hiphil) underlying both בָּאָסָגַו and בָּאָסָגַו, although in some instances “to lead” seemed more appropriate. The simplex form of the verb בָּאָסָג, however, was always translated “to lead.” Consistent with NETS principles, the NRSV’s reading was retained when the Greek text is equivalent to the Hebrew, with deviations occurring only when the NRSV’s word choice would violate NETS objectives on other grounds. I have chosen “guest” as the translation for Greek προσήλυτος even though NRSV’s “resident alien” might suffice. Also, where DeutTr used πάροικος, I have chosen the word “sojourn(er)” for the translation of ἀλλότριος and cognates.

Similarly, while in the NRSV “slave” is used without distinction to translate Hebrew נֶפֶל and its cognates, DeutTr differentiated types of servitude and servants. Thus, when οἰκέτης appears in Greek, I have generally chosen “domestic” as the translation, reserving “slave” for δούλος, and “male slave” and “female slave” respectively as the translations for παῖς and παιδίσκη. When the gender of the male slave is not in doubt, παῖς is translated in some instances simply as “slave.”

Of the same nature is the undifferentiated use of the verb “destroy” throughout the NRSV to translate a number of Hebrew verbs. By far the most frequently used verb for “destruction” in Greek Deuteronomy is ἐκτριβέω, a neologism shared with other Pentateuchal books. I have chosen “utterly destroy” as its default translation. The unqualified word “destroy” was reserved for the next most frequently used Greek verb, ἀπολλύω and its cognates. In the handful of instances when ἀναλίσκω and its cognates are used, I have chosen “eliminate,” “consume,” or “devour” depending on context, whereas for ἔκτριβω, I routinely select “wipe out” or perhaps “rub out” in keeping with its sense in Greek. I generally have been spare with footnotes, assuming that readers who know Greek will check the original and those who do not will only be bogged down by excessive details.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Work of this kind depends on any number of resources, and I am happy to recognize my debts. Beyond the standard grammars and lexical aids, I was helped especially by the CATSS resources, notably the Parallel Aligned Text of Deuteronomy, by Wevers’ Text History of the Greek Deuteronomy (=MSU XIII; Göttingen; Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1978), particularly chapter 7 dealing with the critical text of Deuteronomy, by his article on “The Attitude of the Greek Translator of Deuteronomy toward his Parent Text” (Beiträge zur alttestamentlichen Theologie: Festschrift für W. Zimmerli zum 70. Geburtstag [H. Donner, R. Hanhart, R. Smend, eds.; Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1977] 498–503) and his Notes on the Greek Text of Deuteronomy cited above. This latter was unusually helpful when obscure lexical items or unusual Greek expressions made for ambiguous or impossible readings. In addition, C. Dogniez and M. Harl’s French translation, Le Deutéronome BA (1992), though translating primarily Rahlfs’ edition and operating on different principles from NETS, took account of the Göttingen apparatuses and thus was of inestimable value in many ways. Until a commentary on NETS Deuteronomion is available, the reader is well advised to consult the extensive introduction and copious notes of this edition. Older English translations of Brenton and Thomson provided occasional assistance, but given their respective dates and their diplomatic nature, their help was not as valuable.

It remains then for me only to thank formally Albert Pietersma, general co-editor of the NETS project, whose insightful critique of a few sample pages of this translation helped sharpen my understanding of the finer nuances of the project on which we were jointly embarking. Whatever infelicities and inconsistencies remain are, however, entirely my own.

MELVIN K. H. PETERS
These are the words that Moyses spoke to all Israel beyond the Jordan—in the wilderness, towards the west near the Red Sea, among Pharan, Tophol and Lobon and Courts—-and Gold-places—and Gold-places—(a route of eleven days from Choreb, by way of Mount Seir, up to Kades Barne). And it happened in the fortyieth year, in the eleventh month, on the first of the month, that Moyses spoke to all the sons of Israel according to all that the Lord had commanded him for them. After he struck Seon king of the Amorrites, who lived in Hesebon, and Og king of Basan, who lived in As-taroth and in Edrain, across from the Jordan, in the land of Moab, Moyses began to clarify this law, saying:

6 The Lord our God spoke to us at Choreb, saying, "Let it be sufficient for you to live at this mountain. 7 Turn, and depart, you, and go into the mountain of the Amorrites and to all those who live around Araba, to mountain and plain and to the southwest and seacoast, the land of Chananites and Anti-Lebanon, as far as the great river Euphrates. 8 See, I have given the land before you; when you have gone in, inherit the land that I swore to your fathers, to Abraam and Isaak and Jakob, to give to them and to their offspring after them."

9 And I said to you in that time, saying: "I will not be able alone to bear you. 10 The Lord your God has multiplied you, and look, you are today like the stars of the sky in number. 11 May the Lord, the God of your fathers, add to you, as you are, a thousand times and bless you, as he has spoken to you! 12 How will I be able alone to bear your hardship and your substance and your disputes? 13 Assign for yourselves men, wise and discerning and prudent, for your tribes, and I will appoint them as leaders over you—officers of thousands and officers of hundreds and officers of fifties and officers of tens and recorders for your judges. 14 And you answered me and said, "The word which you have spoken to do is good." 15 And I took from your men, wise and discerning and prudent, and appointed them to be leaders over you—officers of thousands and officers of hundreds and officers of fifties and officers of tens and recorders for your judges. 16 And I commanded your judges at that time, saying: "Give a full hearing among your brothers, and judge rightly between a man and between his brother and between his guest. 17 You shall not recognize the person when judging; like the small so you shall judge the great; you shall not shrink from the face of a person, for the judgment is God's. And the matter, if it be too hard for you, you will bring it to me, and I will hear it." 18 And I commanded you in that time all the things that you should do.

19 And after we departed from Choreb, we went through all that great and terrible wilderness that you saw, by route of the mountain of the Amorrite, just as the Lord our God had commanded us, and we came as far as Kades Barne. 20 And I said to you, "You have come as far as the mountain of the Amorrite, which the Lord our God is giving you. 21 See, the Lord your God has given over to you the land before you. After you have gone up, inherit, as the Lord, the God of your fathers, said to you; do not fear, neither be afraid."

22 And all of you came to me and said, "Let us send men ahead of us, and let them explore the land for us, and let them report to us a decision regarding the route through which we shall go up on it and the cities into which we will come into them." 23 And the matter was pleasing to me, and I took from you twelve men, one man a tribe. 24 And after they had set out, they went up into the mountain and went as far as Cluster Ravine and surveyed it. 25 And they took in their hands some of the fruit of the land and brought it down to us and said, "The land is good that the Lord our God is giving us."

26 And you did not want to go up. And you disobeyed the word of the Lord your God, and you grumbled in your tents and said, "It is because the Lord hates us that he brought us out of the land of Egypt, to give us into the hands of the Amorrites to destroy us utterly. 28 Where are we going up? Our brothers have disquieted our hearts, saying, 'A great and numerous nation and more powerful than we, and cities, large and walled up to the sky! Nay, even sons of giants we have seen there! '" 29 And I said to you, "Do not be alarmed, neither be afraid of them. 30 The Lord your God, who goes before you, will fight them together with you, according to all which he did for you in the land of Egypt and in this wilderness which you saw, how the Lord your God nursed you, as some person would nurse his son, along all the way that you went until you came to this place. 31 And in this matter you did not believe the Lord your God, 32 who went before you on the way to choose a place for you, leading you by fire at night, showing you the route whereby you should go upon it, and in a cloud by day. 33 And the Lord heard the sound of your words and, being provoked, he swore, saying: 33 If one of these men shall see this good land that I swore to your fathers! 36 Except Chaleb son of Iephonne, he shall see it, and to him I will give the land on which he trod, and to his sons, because he followed closely the things of the Lord. 34 Even with me the Lord was angry on your account, saying, "Not even you shall enter there. 35 In theisous son of Nae, who stands beside you, he shall enter there; strengthen him, for he will take possession of it for Israel. 39 And every young child, who today does not know good or evil, they shall enter there, and to them I will give it, and they shall inherit it. 40 And when you have turned, march into the wilderness, by the route toward the Red Sea."

41 And you answered and said to me, "We have sinned against the Lord our God! Let us go up and fight, in accordance with all that the Lord our God commanded us." And, each of you, when you had strapped on your battle gear and had gathered, went up into the mountain. 42 And the Lord said to me, "SAY to them, You shall not go up, neither shall you fight, for I am not with you, and you shall not be wiped out before your enemies."

43 And I spoke to you, but you did not listen to me. And you transgressed the word of the Lord, and by force you went up into the mountain. 44 And the Amorrite who lived in that mountain came out to meet you and chased you as bees might do. And they were wounding you from Seir as far as Herma. 45 And when you sat down, you were weeping before the Lord, and the Lord neither listened to your voice nor paid you any attention. 46 And you stayed at Kades for many days, however many days you stayed.

2 And after we had turned, we departed into the wilderness by way of the Red Sea, as the Lord had told me, and went around Mount Seir for many days. 2And the Lord said to me: 3 "Let it be sufficient for you to go around this mountain. Turn therefore to the north, and command the people, saying: You are passing through the borders of your brothers, the sons of Esau, who live in Seir. And they will be afraid of you, and they will be very cautious. 5 Do not engage in battle with them, for I will not even give you a foot's pace of their land, since I have given Mount Seir to Esau as an allotment. 6 Purchase food from them, and you will eat, and you will drink. 7 For the Lord our God has blessed you in every work of your hands. Consider how you crossed this great and terrible wilderness. Look, for forty years the Lord your God has been with you; you have not been in need of a thing." 8And we passed by our brothers, the sons of Esau who live in Seir, along the route of the Araba, from AILON and from GASION GABER.

And after we had turned, we went along the wilderness route of Moab, and the Lord said to me: 9 "You shall not act with enmity against the Moabites, and do not engage in battle with them, for I will not give you any of their land as an allotment, for I have given AROER to the sons of Lot to inherit." 10 The erstwhile Ommin—a nation large and numerous and mighty like the Enakim—had settled in it. 11 Like the Enakim, these also shall be reckoned as Rephain, and the Moabites name them Ommin. 12 And the Chorrite had formerly lain couched in Seir, and the sons of Esau destroyed them and wiped them out from before them, and they were settled in their place, as Israel did with the land of its inheritance that the Lord gave them. 13 Now then, rise up, and depart, and go alongside the ravine of Zared.

So we passed along the ravine of Zared. 14 And the days which we had gone alongside from KADES Barne until we passed along the ravine of Zared were thirty-eight years until the entire generation of the men, warriors of the camp, had fallen away, as the Lord had sworn to them. 15 And the hand of God was against them, to eliminate them from the camp until they fell away. 16 And it happened, when all the men, the warriors, had fallen away, since they were dying off from among the people, 17 that the Lord spoke to me, saying, 18 "Today you are going to pass the boundary of Moab at AROER, and you will draw near to the sons of Amman. Do not act with enmity against them, and do not engage them in battle, for I will not give any of the land of the sons of Amman to you as an allotment, because I have given it to the sons of Lot as an allotment." 19 It will be reckoned as a land of Rephain, for the Rephain formerly inhabited it, and the Ammanites name them Zomzomin, 20 a nation, great and numerous and rather powerful, just as the Enakim, and the Lord destroyed them from before them, and they took possession and were settled in place of them. 21 Just as they did to the sons of Esau, who live in Seir, as they wiped out the Chorrite before them, so they took possession and were settled in their place even to this day. 22 As for the Heuites, who live in Haseroth as far as Gaza, and the Cappadocians, who came from Cappadocia, they wiped them out and were settled in their place. 23 Now then, arise, and depart, and pass through the ravine of Arnon. See, I have given into your hands King Seon the Amorrite of Hesebon and his land. Begin to inherit; engage him in battle. 25 On this day begin to put your trembling and your fear upon all the nations beneath the sky who, when they hear your name, will be troubled and have pains because of you."

26 And I sent ambassadors from the wilderness of Kedmoth to King Seon of Hesebon with words of peace, saying: 27 "I will pass by through your land; I will travel along the road; I will turn neither right nor left. 28 You will sell me food for money, and I will eat, and you will sell me water for money, and I will drink. Only that I will pass by on foot—just as the sons of Esau who live in Seir did for me and likewise the Moabites who live in Aroer—until I pass the Jordan into the land that the Lord our God is giving us." 29 And King Seon of Hesebon did not want to let us pass by him, for the Lord our God had hardened his spirit and prevailed over his heart in order that he might be delivered into your hands, as it is on this day.

31 And the Lord said to me, "See, I have begun to give King Seon the Amorrite of Hesebon and his land over before you. Begin to inherit his land." 32 And Seon came out to meet us, he and all his people for battle at IASA, 33 and the Lord our God gave him over before us, and we struck him down, and his sons and all his people. 34 And we captured all the cities at that time, and we utterly destroyed every city in order, and their women and their children we did not leave alive. 35 Only the cattle we plundered, and the spoils of the cities we took: 36 from AROER, which is along the edge of the WADI ARNON, and the city that is in the ravine, even as far as the mountain of Galaad. There was not a city which escaped us. The Lord our God gave over all of them into our hands. 37 We did not enter, however, into the land of the sons of Amman, all the regions bordering the WADI LABOK as well as the cit-

And after we had turned, we went up the road to Basan. And King Og of Basan came out to meet us, he and all his people, for battle at Edrain. 2And the Lord said to me, "Do not fear him, for I have given him over into your hands, and all his people and all his land. And you shall do to him as you did to King Seon of the Amorrites, who used to live in Hesebon." 3And the Lord our God delivered him into our hands, even King Og of Basan and all his people. And we struck him down until we did not leave him offspring. 4And at that time we captured all his cities; there was no city that we did not take from them—sixty cities, all the environs of Argob, the kingdom of Og in Basan. 5All these were strong cities, high walls, gates and bars, besides the very many cities of the Pheresites. 6We utterly destroyed them, as we did King Seon of Hesebon, and we utterly destroyed every city in order, and the women and the children. 7And all the cattle and the spoils of the cities we plundered for ourselves.

8And at that time we took out of the hands of the two Amorrite kings who were beyond the Jordan the land from the Wadi Arnon up to Haërmon (9the Phoenicians named Haërmon Sanior, and the Amorrites named it Sanir). 10All were cities of Misor and all of Galaad and all of Basan, as far as Selcha and Edraine, cities of Og’s kingdom in Basan. 11Because only King Og of Basan was left from the Raphain. Look, his bed was an iron bed; look, it is in the citadel of the sons of Amman. By a man’s forearm it is nine cubits long and four cubits wide. 12And we took possession of that land at that time, from Aroer, which is along the edge of the Wadi Arnon, and half of the mountainous area of Galaad and its cities I gave to Rouben and to Gad. 13And I gave to the half-tribe of Manasse the rest of Galaad and all of Basan, Og’s kingdom, and all the environs of Argob, all of said Basan. (It will be reckoned a land of Raphain.) 14And Iair son of Manasse took all the environs of Argob as far as the borders of Gargasi and Homachathi, and he named them after his name—Basan Hauoth Iair—until this day. 15And to Machir I gave Galaad. 16And to Rouben and to Gad I gave from Galaad as far as the Wadi Arnon, the middle of the wadi being a boundary, and up to the Iabok, the wadi being the boundary for the sons of Amman, 17the Araba also and the Jordan, being a boundary of Machanarath even up to the sea of Araba, the Salt Sea, under Aseodoth of Phasga on the east.

18And at that time I commanded you, saying: "The Lord your God gave you this land as an allotment; proceed fully armed before your brothers, the sons of Israel, every mighty one of you. 19Only your wives and your children and your cattle—I know that you have much cattle—let them settle in your cities that I have given to you until the Lord your God gives your brothers rest, as also you and they too will inherit the land that the Lord your God is giving them beyond the Jordan, and you will return, each one to his inheritance that I have given to you.” 21And I commanded Iesous at that time, saying: "Your eyes have seen everything that the Lord your God has done to these two kings; so the Lord will do to all the kingdoms which you are about to cross into there. 22You shall not be fearful of them, for the Lord your God himself will fight for you.”

23At that time, too, I entreated the Lord, saying: 24"O Lord, Lord, you have begun to show your attendant your strength and your power and your strong hand and your high arm. For what god is there in the sky or on the earth who will do as you have done, and according to your strength? 25After I cross over, therefore, I will see this good land, which is beyond the Jordan, this good mountainous area and the Anti-Lebanon.” 26And the Lord ignored me on your account and did not listen to me. And the Lord said to me, "Let it be sufficient for you! Do not continue any longer to speak to me of this matter! 27Go up to the top of Hewn, and look with your eyes to the sea and the north and the southwest and the east, and see with your eyes, for you shall not cross over this Jordan. 28And command Iesous, and strengthen him, and encourage him, because he will cross over ahead of this people, and it is he who will secure for them the possession of the land that you have seen.”

And now, Israel, hear the statutes and judgments that I am teaching you to do today so that you may live and, after you have entered, may inherit the land that the Lord, the God of your fathers, is giving you. 2You shall not add to the word I command you, and you shall not take away from it. Keep the commandments of the Lord your God which with which I command you today. 3Your eyes have seen all that the Lord your God did to Beelphegor—that, everyone who went after Beelphegor, the Lord your God wiped him out from among you, 4but those of you who held fast to the Lord your God are all alive today.

5See, I have shown you statutes and ordinances, as the Lord has commanded me, to do so in the land into which you are entering there to inherit it. 6And you shall keep and do them, because this is your wisdom and discernment before all the nations, as many as might hear all these statutes, and they will say, "Look, this great nation is a wise and understanding people!" 7For what sort of great nation has a god for itself so near to them as the Lord our God is in everything whenever we invoke him? 8And what sort of great nation has for itself statutes and righteous judgment in accord with all this law that I am giving before you today?

have seen, and let them not be far from your heart all the days of your life, and you shall direct your sons and your sons’ sons about the day when you stood before the Lord your God at Choreb, on the day of the assembly when the Lord said to me, “Assemble the people to me, and let them hear my words so that they may learn to fear me all the days as long as they live on the earth and may teach their sons,” and you approached and stood at the foot of the mountain, and the mountain was burning with fire up to the sky: darkness, gloom, tempest. And the Lord spoke to you from the midst of the fire. You heard the sound of words but you did not notice a likeness, only a voice. And he announced to you his covenant, which he commanded you to do, the ten words, and he wrote them on two stone tablets. And the Lord commanded me at that time to teach you statutes and ordinances for you to do them in the land into which you are entering there to inherit it.

15 And guard your souls closely, because you did not notice a likeness on the day the Lord spoke to you at Choreb in the mountain from the midst of the fire. Do not act lawlessly and make for yourselves an engraved likeness, any kind of icon—a likeness of male or female, a likeness of any animal of those that are on the earth, a likeness of any winged bird that flies under the sky, a likeness of any reptile that creeps on the ground, a likeness of any fish that is in the waters beneath the earth. And do not, when you look up to the sky and see the sun and the moon and the stars, even any ornament of the sky, be led astray and do obeisance to them and serve them—those things that the Lord your God has allotted to all the nations beneath the sky. But God has taken you and brought you out of the iron furnace, out of Egypt, to become for him an allotted people, as in this day.

21 And the Lord was angry with me because of the things being said by you, and he swore that I would not cross this Jordan and that I would not enter into the land that the Lord God is giving to you as an allotment. For I am going to die in this land, and I am not crossing over this Jordan, but you are going to cross over, and you will take possession of this good land. As for you, take care, lest you forget the covenant of the Lord your God, which he made with you, and make for yourselves an engraved likeness of all of the things that the Lord your God has instructed you. For the Lord your God is a devouring fire, a jealous god.

25 Now if you bear sons and sons’ sons and live long in the land and you act lawlessly and make an engraved likeness of anything and do what is evil before the Lord your God, to provoke him to anger, call sky and earth to witness against you today that by destruction you will perish from the land that you are crossing the Jordan to inherit there; you will not prolong days on it but will be wiped out with a wiping. And the Lord will scatter you among all the nations, and you will be left few in number among the nations into which the Lord will bring you there. And there you will serve other gods, works of human hands, wood and stone, which will neither see nor hear nor eat nor smell. And there you will seek the Lord your God, and you will find him when you seek him out with your whole heart and with your whole soul, in your distress. And all these words shall find you in the end of days, and you will return to the Lord your God and listen to his voice. Because the Lord your God is a compassionate god, he will neither abandon you nor wipe you out; he will not forget the covenant with your fathers that he swore to them.

32 Ask of former days which occurred long before your own, from the day that God created a human being on the earth; ask at the end of the sky up to the end of the sky whether a thing this great has ever happened, whether such a thing has been heard of; whether any nation has ever heard the voice of a living god speaking from the midst of the fire, as you have heard, and you lived, whether a god ever attempted to go and take a nation for himself from the midst of a nation, by trial and by signs and by wonders and by war and by a strong hand and a high arm and by great exhibits, like all which the Lord your God did in Egypt before you, as you were looking on so that you might know that the Lord your God he is God, and there is no other besides him. From the sky his voice became audible to discipline you, and on earth he showed you his great fire, and you heard his words coming from the midst of the fire. Because he loved your fathers, he also chose you, their offspring after them, and himself brought you out of Egypt, by his great power, to destroy utterly before you great nations, and mightier than yourselves, to bring you in, to give you their land to inherit, as you have today; and you will know today and bear in mind that the Lord your God, he is God in the sky above and on the earth beneath, and there is no other besides him. And you will keep his statutes and his commandments, which I command you today, so that it may be well with you and with your sons after you so that you may be long-lived in the land that the Lord your God is giving you for all your days.

41 Then Moyses set apart three cities beyond the Jordan toward the rising of the sun for the murderer to flee there, whoever might unintentionally kill his neighbor, and he did not hate him before yesterday and the third day, and he shall flee to one of these cities and live; Bosor in the wilderness on the plain country belonging to Ruben and Ramoth in Galaad belonging to Gaddi and Gaulon in Basan belonging to Manasse.

44 This is the law that Moyses set before the sons of Israel. These are the testimonies and the statutes and the judgments that Moyses spoke to the sons of Israel when they had come out of the land of Egypt, beyond the Jordan in the valley near the house of Phogor, in the land of King Seon of the Amorrites, who used to live in Hesebon, whom a Moyses and the sons of Israel defeated when they had come out of the land of Egypt. 42And they took possession of his land and the land of King Og of Basan, two kings of the Amor-rites who were beyond the Jordan toward the rising of the sun, 43from Aroer, which is on the edge of the Wadi Arnon, and to Mount Seon (that is, Haermon), 44all the Araba beyond the Jordan toward the rising of the sun, east under Aseboth quarried from rock.

5 And Moyses called all Israel and said to them: Hear, O Israel, the statutes and judgments that I am speaking in your ears this day, and you shall learn them and be watchful to perform them. 2The Lord your God established a covenant with you at Choreb. 3Not with your fathers did the Lord establish this covenant, but with all of you here alive today. 4The Lord spoke with you face-to-face at the mountain, from the midst of the fire, 5and I stood between the Lord and you at that time, to report to you the words of the Lord, for you were afraid because of the fire and did not go up into the moun-tain, saying:

6 I am the Lord your God who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of a house of slavery. 7You shall have no other gods before me.

8 You shall not make for yourself a carved object or likeness of anything whatever is in the sky above and whatever is in the earth beneath and whatever is in the waters under the earth. 9You shall not do obeisance to them, nor are you to serve them, because I am the Lord your God, a jealous god, repaying the sins of fathers upon children to the third and fourth generation to those who hate me, 10and doing mercy unto thousands, for those who love me and keep my ordinances.

12 Keep the day of the sabbaths to consecrate it, as the Lord your God commanded you. 13Six days you shall labor and do all your labor, 14but on the seventh day there is Sabbath to the Lord your God; you shall not do in it any labor—you and your son and your daughter, your male slave and your female slave, your ox and your draft animal and any animal of yours and the guest within your gates so that your male slave and your female slave may rest as well as you. 15And you shall remember that you were a domestic in the land of Egypt, and the Lord your God brought you out from there with a strong hand and with a high arm; therefore, the Lord your God instructed you to keep the day of the sabbaths and to consecrate it.

16 Honor your father and your mother, as the Lord your God commanded you, so that it may be well with you and that you may be long-lived in the land that the Lord your God is giving you.

17(18) You shall not commit adultery.

18(17) You shall not murder.

19 You shall not steal.

20 You shall not testify falsely against your neighbor with a false testimony.

22 These words the Lord spoke to your whole gathering at the mountain, from the midst of the fire—darkness, blackness, tempest, a loud voice—and he did not add. And he wrote them on two stone tablets and gave them to me. 23And it happened, when you heard the voice from the midst of the fire and the mountain was burning with fire, that you approached me, all the leaders of your tribes and your council of elders, 24and you said, “Look, the Lord our God has shown us his glory, and we have heard his voice from the midst of the fire. This day we have seen that God will speak to a person, and he will live. 25And now let us not die. For this great fire will consume us; if we continue to hear the voice of the Lord our God any longer, then we will die. 26For what flesh, which has heard the voice of the living God when he speaks from the midst of fire, as we have, shall also live? 27Go you near, and hear whatever the Lord our God may say. And you shall speak to us all things, whatever the Lord our God may speak to you, and we will hear and do it.”

28 And the Lord heard the sound of your words when you were speaking to me, and the Lord said to me: “I have heard the sound of the words of this people, what they have spoken to you; all that they have spoken bthey have spokenb correctly. 29Who shall grant that their heart be in them in such a way that they fear me and keep my command-ments in all their days so that it might go well with them and with their sons forever? 30Go, say to them, ‘Return to your houses.’ 31But you, stand here with me, and I will speak to you the commandments and the statutes and the judgments that you shall teach them, and let them do them in the land that I am giving them as an allotment.’” 32And you shall be watchful to do as the Lord your God has commanded; you shall not turn right or left, 33to go according to all the way that the Lord your God has commanded so that he may give you rest and that it may go well with you and that you may prolong your days upon the land that you shall inherit.

6 And these are the commandments and the statutes and the ordinances that the Lord your God commanded to teach you to do so in the land which you are entering there to inherit 3so that you may fear the Lord your God, to keep all his statutes and his commandments that I command you today, you and your sons and your sons’ sons, all the days of your life so that you may be long-lived. 3Now hear, O Israel, and be watchful to perform so that it may be well with you and that you may multiply greatly, just as the Lord, the God of your fathers, has spoken, to give you a land flowing with milk and honey.

4 And these are the statutes and the judgments, which the Lord commanded to the sons of Israel in the wilderness as they were coming out from the land of Egypt: Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord. 5And you shall love the Lord your God with the whole of your mind and with the whole of your soul and with the whole of your power. 6And these words that I command you today shall be in your heart and in your soul. 7And you shall teach them to your sons and talk on them while sitting at home and going on the road and lying down and rising up. 8And you shall bind them as a sign on your hand, and they shall be things unshakable before your eyes, 9and you shall write them on the doorposts of your houses and of your gates.

10 And it shall be, whenever the Lord your God brings you into the land that he swore to your fathers, to Abraam and Isaak and Jakob, to give you large and fine cities that you did not build, 11houses full of all sorts of goods that you did not fill, dug cisterns that you did not dig out, vineyards and olive groves that you did not plant. And when you eat and become full, 12take care for yourself, lest you forget the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of a house of slavery, 13The Lord your God shall fear, and him you shall serve, and to him you shall cling, and by his name you shall swear. 14Do not go after other gods from the gods of the nations around you, 15because the Lord your God, who is present with you, is a jealous god. Lest the Lord your God, 16be angered with wrath against you and destroy you quickly. 17But thus you shall do to them: you shall break down their altars and smash their steles and cut down their groves and burn the carved objects of their gods with fire. 18For you are a people holy to the Lord your God, and the Lord your God has chosen you to be for him an exceptional people, more than all the nations on the face of the earth.

7 Now if the Lord your God brings you into the land that you are entering there to inherit and shall clear away great and numerous nations before you—the Chettite and the Gergesite and the Amorrite and the Chananite and the Pherezite and the Heuite and the lebousite, seven nations numerous and mightier than you—2and the Lord your God shall deliver them into your hands and you shall strike them, by annihilation you shall annihilate them. You shall not establish a covenant with them, neither shall you have mercy on them. 3Neither shall you intermarry with them. You shall not give your daughter to his son, and you shall not take his daughter for your son, 4for shed will turn away your son from me, and he will serve other gods. And the Lord will be angered with wrath against you and will utterly destroy you quickly. 5But thus you shall do to them: you shall break down their altars and smash their steles and cut down their groves and burn the carved objects of their gods with fire. 6For you are a people holy to the Lord your God, and the Lord your God has chosen you to be for him an exceptional people, more than all the nations on the face of the earth.

7 It was not because you are more numerous than all nations that the Lord chose you and picked you—for you are very few in comparison with all the nations. 8Rather, because the Lord loved you, and since he was keeping the oath that he swore to your fathers, the Lord brought you out with a strong hand and with a high arm and redeemed you from a house of slavery, from the hand of Pharao king of Egypt. 9And you shall know that the Lord your God, he is God, the faithful God, who keeps the covenant and mercy with those who love him and keep his commandments, to a thousand generations, 10and who repays those who hate him to their face, to destroy them utterly. And he will not delay with those who hate him; to their face he will repay them. 11And you will keep the commandments and the statutes and these judgments—that I command you today to do.

12 And it shall be, whenever you hear all these statutes and keep and do them, that the Lord your God will guard closely for you the covenant and the mercy as he swore to your fathers, 13and he will love you and bless you and multiply you, and he will bless the progeny of your belly and the fruit of your land, your grain and your wine and your oil, the herds of your oxen and the flocks of your sheep, in the land that the Lord swore to your fathers to give you. 14Blessed you shall be among all the nations; there shall not be an impotent one nor a sterile one among you or your cattle. 15And the Lord will remove from you every illness, and all the dread diseases of Egypt that you have seen and that you experienced he will not inflict on

Possibly fixtures "Or who is present with you, being angered with wrath" "us = We" "Or it" "Gk = bômos" you, but he will inflict them on all who hate you.

16 And you shall eat all the spoils of the nations that the Lord your God is giving to you; your eye shall not be sparing to them, and you shall not serve their gods, for this is a stumbling block to you.

17 But if you say in your mind, “This nation is more numerous than I; how will I be able to destroy them utterly?” 18 you shall not be afraid of them. With remembrance you shall remember what the Lord your God did to Pharaoh and to all the Egyptians, 19 the great trials that your eyes saw, the signs and those great wonders, the strong hand and the high arm as the Lord your God brought you out. The Lord our God will do thus to all the nations of whose faces you are afraid.

20 And the Lord your God will send the hornets against them until even the ones who have been left and those hidden “from you are wiped out. 21 You shall not be wounded before them, for the Lord your God with you is a great and strong god. 22 And the Lord your God will consume these nations before you little by little; you will not be able to consume them quickly, lest the land become a wilderness and the wild animals be multiplied against you.

23 And the Lord your God will deliver them into your hands, and he will destroy them with a great destruction until he has destroyed them utterly. 24 And he will deliver their kings into your hands, and you shall destroy their name from that place; no one will be able to stand up against you until you have destroyed them utterly. 25 The carved objects of their gods you shall burn with fire. You shall not desire silver and gold from them, and you shall not take for yourself, lest you stumble by means of it, for it is an abomination to the Lord your God. 26 And you shall not bring an abomination into your house, or you will be an anathema.

8 All the commandments that I command you today you shall be watchful to perform so that you may live and increase and go in and inherit the land that the Lord swore to your fathers. 4 And you shall remember all the way that the Lord your God has led you in the wilderness so that he might distress you and test you, that you may know the heart that as a certain person might discipline his son, so the Lord your God will discipline you.

9 For the Lord your God is bringing you into a good and extensive land in which there are wadis of waters, springs of underground waters, flowing out through the plains and through the mountains, a land of wheat and barley, vines, figs, pomegranates, a land of olive trees of oil and of honey, a land in which you will eat your bread without poverty and will not be in need of anything therein, a land whose stones are iron and from its mountains you will mine copper. 10 And you shall eat and be filled and bless the Lord your God on the good land that he gave you.

11 Take heed for yourself lest you forget the Lord your God, so as not to keep his commandments and his judgments and his statutes, which I command you today. 12 Lest, when you have eaten and been filled and, having built fine houses and lived in them, 13 and when your oxen and sheep have multiplied and when silver and gold have been multiplied to you and when all that you own has been multiplied to you, 14 you become exalted in heart and forget the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of a house of slavery. 15 Who led you through that great and fearsome wilderness, where there was a biting snake and a scorpion and thirst, where there was no water, who brought out for you from flint rock a spring of water, who fed you with manna with which you hunger and fed you with manna with which your fathers, as today.

16 But if you say in your mind, “This nation is more numerous than I; how will I be able to destroy them quickly, as the Lord has said to you. 17 Do not say in your heart, “My strength and the mastery of my hand have produced for me this great power.” 18 And you shall remember the Lord your God, for it is he who gives you strength to produce power—and so that he may uphold his covenant that he swore to your fathers, as today. 19 And it shall be, if by forgetting that he might destroy you and test you, that you might do well at your end. 17 Do not say in your heart, “My strength and the mastery of my hand have produced for me this great power.” 18 And you shall remember the Lord your God, for it is he who gives you strength to produce power—and so that he may uphold his covenant that he swore to your fathers, as today. 19 And it shall be, if by forgetting that he might destroy you and test you, that you might do well at your end.

18 Do not say in your heart, “My strength and the mastery of my hand have produced for me this great power.” 18 And you shall remember the Lord your God, for it is he who gives you strength to produce power—and so that he may uphold his covenant that he swore to your fathers, as today. 19 And it shall be, if by forgetting that he might destroy you and test you, that you might do well at your end.

19 And it shall be, if by forgetting that he might destroy you and test you, that you might do well at your end. 20 Then you shall return and be gathered to your ancestors, as today.

21 Take heed you are crossing the Jordan today, to go in to dispossess nations rather larger and mightier than you, cities great and walled up to the sky, 2 great people, both numerous and tall, sons of Enak, whom you know and of whom you have heard: “Who can stand up against sons of Enak?” 2 And you shall know today that the Lord your God—he proceeds before you; a devouring fire is he; he will destroy them utterly, and he will divert them before you, and you will destroy them quickly, as the Lord has said to you.

4 When the Lord your God eliminates these nations before you, do not say in your heart, saying: “It is because of my righteousness that the Lord has brought me in to inherit this good land,” but because of the impiety of these nations the Lord will destroy them utterly before you. 5 It is not because of your righteousness or the holiness of your heart that you are going in to inherit their land, but because of the impiety of these nations the Lord will destroy them utterly before you, and in order that he may uphold the covenant that the Lord swore to your fathers, to Abraam and Isaaq and Jakob.

Or are destroyed from you  b Or bear witness against you

6 And you shall know, today, that it is not because of your righteousness the Lord your God is giving you this good land to inherit, for you are a stiff-necked people. Remember, do not forget how you provoked the Lord your God in the wilderness; from the day you came out of Egypt until you came into this place, you have continued being disobedient regarding things concerning the Lord.

8 Even at Choreb you provoked the Lord, and the Lord was angry enough with you to destroy you utterly, when I was going up the mountain to receive the stone tablets, the tablets of the covenant that the Lord established with you, and I stayed on the mountain forty days and forty nights; I did not eat bread nor did I drink water. 10And the Lord gave me the two stone tablets written with the finger of God, and on them had been written all the words that the Lord had spoken to you at the mountain. 11And it happened, throughout forty days and forty nights, that the Lord gave to me the two stone tablets, tablets of covenant.

12And the Lord said to me, “Get up, go down quickly from here, for your people whom you brought from the land of Egypt have acted lawlessly. They have digressed quickly from the way that you commanded them; they have made for themselves a molten image.” 13And the Lord said to me, “I have spoken to you once and twice, saying: I have spoken to you. 9when I was going up the mountain to the Lord was angry enough with you to destroy you utterly, when I was going up the mountain to receive the stone tablets, tablets of covenant that the Lord established with you, and I stayed on the mountain forty days and forty nights; I did not eat bread nor did I drink water.

16And when I saw that you had sinned against the Lord your God and had made for yourselves a molten image and had digressed from the way that the Lord had commanded you, 17then having taken hold of the two tablets, I flung them from my two hands and smashed them before you. 18And I petitioned before the Lord a second time regarding things concerning the Lord.

19And I was terrified on account of the wrath and the anger, because the Lord had been provoked against you to destroy you utterly. And the Lord listened to me this time also. 20And the Lord was very full of wrath against Aaron to destroy him utterly, and I prayed also on behalf of Aaron at that time. 21And your sin which you had made, the bull calf, I took it and burned it with fire and crushed it, grinding thoroughly, until it became fine and it was as dust, and I threw the dust into the wadi that runs down from the mountain.

22And at The Burning also and at The Temptation and at The Graves of Lust, you were provoking the Lord 1b your God. 23And when the Lord sent you from Kades Barne, saying, “Go up, and inherit the land that I am giving you,” then you disobeyed the word of the Lord your God and did not trust him and did not listen to his voice. You were disobedient in regard to things concerning the Lord from the day he knew you.

25And I petitioned before the Lord, for forty days and for forty nights that I petitioned, for the Lord said that he would destroy you utterly. 26And I prayed to God and said, “O Lord, Lord, king of the gods, do not utterly destroy your people and your possession whom you redeemed by your great strength, whom you brought out of the land of Egypt with your great strength and with your strong hand and your high arm. Remember Abraam and Isaaq and Jakob your attendants to whom you swore by yourself; do not look upon the stubbornness of this people and upon the impieties and upon their sins. 28lest the inhabitants of the land from whence you have brought us say, saying: ‘Because the Lord was not able to bring them into the land that he mentioned to them and because he hates them, he brought them out to kill them in the wilderness.’ And these are your people and your allotment whom you brought out of the land of Egypt by your great strength and by your high arm.”

10At that time the Lord said to me, “Carve out for yourself two tablets of stone like the former ones, and come up to me on the mountain, and you will make for yourself an ark of wood. 2And I will write on the tablets the words that were on the former tablets, which you smashed, and you shall put them in the ark.” 3And I made an ark of indestructible boards and carved the two tablets of stone like the former ones and went up the mountain with the two tablets in my hands. 4And he wrote on the tablets, in accord with the first writing, the ten words that the Lord had spoken to you on the mountain from the midst of the fire, and the Lord gave them to me. 5And I turned and came down from the mountain and put the tablets in the ark that I had made, and they were there, as the Lord commanded me.

6And the sons of Israel departed from Beroth of the sons of Jakim Mtsadai. There Aaron died, and there he was buried, and his son Eleazar became priest instead of him. 7From there they departed to Gadgad and from Gadgad to Ietebatha, a land with a wadi of waters. 8At that time the Lord set apart the tribe of Leui to carry the ark of the covenant of the Lord, to stand before the Lord to minister and to pray in his name, to this day.

10 And I stayed on the mountain forty days and forty nights. And the Lord listened to me in that time also. And the Lord did not want to destroy you utterly. 11 And the Lord said to me, “Go, depart before this people, and let them go in and inherit the land that I swore to their fathers to give them.”

12 And now, O Israel, what does the Lord your God ask from you but to fear the Lord your God, to go in all his ways and to love him and to serve the Lord your God with the whole of your heart and with the whole of your soul. 13 To keep the commandments of the Lord your God and his statutes that I command you today so that it may be well with you? 14 Look, the sky and the sky of the sky belong to the Lord your God, the earth and all that is in it. 15 Yet, your fathers, the Lord chose to love them, and he picked you, their offspring after them, you, among all the nations, as it is this day. 16 And you shall circumcise your heart-hardness and shall not harden your neck any longer. 17 For the Lord your God is God of gods and Lord of lords, the great God, mighty and fear-inspiring, who does not marvel at a person, neither will he take a bribe. 18 Doing justice to the guest and orphan and widow and loving the guest, to give him food and clothing. 19 You shall also love the guest, for you were guests in the land of Egypt. 20 You shall fear the Lord your God, and him you shall serve, and to him you shall hold fast, and by his name you shall swear. 21 He is your boast, and he is your God, who did among you these great and glorious things that your eyes have seen. 22 Your fathers went down to Egypt with seventy persons, and now the Lord your God has made you as the stars in the sky in number.

11 And you shall love the Lord your God and keep his orders and his statutes and his commandments and his judgments always. 2 And you shall know today that it was not your children who have not known or seen the discipline of the Lord your God and his magnificent works and his strong hand and his high arm 3 and his signs and his wonders that he did in the midst of Egypt to Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and to all his land, 4 and what he did to the force of the Egyptians, to their chariots and their horses, how he made the water of the Red Sea flow over them as they pursued you from your rear, and the Lord has destroyed them to this very day, 5 and what he did for you in the wilderness until you came to this place, 6 and what he did to Dathan and Abiron sons of Eliab son of Rouben whom the earth having opened its mouth swallowed them up, along with their households and their tents and all their substance which was with them in the midst of all Israel 7 For it is your eyes that saw all the great deeds of the Lord that he did for you today.

8 And you shall keep all his commandments that I command you today so that you may live and be multiplied and go in and inherit the land into which you are crossing over the Jordan to take possession of it there, 9 so that you may live long in the land that the Lord swore to your fathers to give them and their offspring after them, a land flowing with milk and honey. 10 For the land into which you are about to enter there to inherit it is not like the land of Egypt, whence you are coming from there, when they sow the seed and water it with the feet like a garden of vegetables. 11 But the land into which you are entering there to inherit it is a hilly land and flat; it will drink water from the rain of the sky. 12 A land that the Lord your God regards it. The eyes of the Lord your God are always on it, from the beginning of the year even until the end of the year.

13 Now if by hearing you hear all his commandments that I command you today—to love the Lord your God and to serve him with the whole of your heart and with the whole of your soul— he too will give the rain for your land in season, early rain and later rain, and you will gather in your grain and your wine and your oil, 15 and he will give fodder in your fields for your cattle. 16 And, when you have eaten and been filled, you shall remember and fear the Lord your God, and him you shall hold fast, and by his commandments and his judgments always. 2 And you shall love the Lord your God and his magnificent works and his wonders that your eyes have seen. 22 Your fathers went down to Egypt with seventy persons, and now the Lord your God has made you as the stars in the sky in number.
crossing there to inherit it, you shall give the blessing on Mount Garizim and the curse on Mount Ga'il. 30Look, are these not across the Jordan beyond, by the way of the setting of the sun, in the land of Chanaan, that which is situated to the west, near Golgol, beside the high oak? 31 For you are crossing the Jordan when you go in to inherit the land that the Lord your God is giving you as an allotment, for all days, and you will inherit it and live in it. 32And you shall be watchful to perform all these ordinances and these judgments that I am giving before you today.

12 And these are the ordinances and the judgments that you shall be watchful to perform in the land that the Lord, the God of your fathers, is giving you as an allotment all the days that you live on the earth.

2 You shall with destruction destroy all the places, there where the nations whom you are about to dispossess serve their gods on the high mountains and on the dunes and beneath every leafy tree. 3And you shall chop down their altars and smash their steles and cut down their groves and burn with fire the carved objects of their gods and blot out their name from that place. 4You shall not do so to the Lord your God. 5But the place which the Lord your God may choose in one of your tribes, to designate that his name be called there, you too will seek and enter there. 6And you will bring there your whole burnt offerings and your sacrifices and your first fruits and your votive gifts, your freewill gifts and the firstlings of your oxen and sheep. 7And you shall eat there in the presence of the Lord your God and shall rejoice in all things to which you put your hands, you and your households, as the Lord your God has blessed you.

8 You shall not do all things that we are doing here today, each one doing what is pleasing before him, 9for you have not come until now into the rest and into the inheritance that the Lord your God is giving you. 10And you shall cross over the Jordan and live in the land that the Lord your God is allotting to you, and he will give you rest from all your enemies around, and you will live in safety. 11And it shall be that the place, wherever the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there, there you shall bring all that I command you today—your whole burnt offerings and your sacrifices and your tithes and the first fruits of your hands and your gifts and every choice one of your gifts, whatever you may vow to your God. 12And you shall be joyful before the Lord your God, you and your sons and your daughters, your male and female slaves and the Leuite who is at your gates (since he has no part or allotment with you). 13 Take care to yourself lest you bring your whole burnt offerings at any place where you may look. 14But at the place, that which the Lord your God may choose in one of your tribes—there you shall offer your whole burnt offerings, and there you shall do everything I command you today.

15 Yet at your every desire you shall slaughter and eat meat, according to the blessing of the Lord your God which he has given you within any city; the unclean one among you and the clean together shall eat of it, as bthey would b gazelle or deer. 16The blood, however, you shall not eat; you shall pour it out on the ground like water. 17You shall not be able to eat within your cities the tithe of your grain and of your wine and of your oil, the firstlings of your oxen and of your sheep and all votive gifts that you may vow and your agreements and the first fruits of your hands. 18But these you shall eat in the presence of the Lord your God at the place, that which the Lord your God may choose, you and your son and your daughter, your male slave and your female slave and the guest in your cities, and you shall be joyful in the presence of the Lord your God in all things where you may put your hand.

19Take care to yourself lest you neglect the Leuite all the time that you may live in the land.

20 Now if the Lord your God enlarges your borders, as he has said to you, and you shall say, “I am going to eat meat,” if your soul desires to eat meat, in every desire of your soul, you shall eat meat. 21But if the place the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there is rather far away from you, then you shall slaughter from your oxen and from your sheep that God may give you as I have commanded you, then you shall eat within your cities according to the desire of your soul. 22Just as the gazelle is eaten and the deer, so you shall eat it; the unclean one among you and the clean alike shall eat it. 23Take great care not to eat blood, because its blood is life; the life shall not be eaten with the meat. 24You shall not eat it; you shall pour it out on the ground like water. 25You shall not eat it so that it may go well with you and your sons after you, if you do what is good and pleasing before the Lord your God. 26But when you have taken your sacred things, whatever you may have, and your votive gifts, you shall come to the place which the Lord your God may choose for himself for his name to be called there. 27And you shall make your whole burnt offerings; the meat you will offer on the altar of the Lord your God, but the blood of your sacrifices you will pour out at the base of the altar of the Lord your God, but the meat you shall eat.

28 Keep, and hear, and you will do all the words that I command you so that it may go well with you and with your sons forever, if you do what is good and pleasing before the Lord your God.

29 Now if the Lord your God utterly destroys from before you the nations among which you may enter there to inherit their land, and you dispossess them and live in their land, 30take care to yourself lest you seek to follow them, after they have been utterly destroyed from before you: you shall not seek their gods, saying, "How do these nations act toward their gods? I will do the same." 31 You shall not do thus to the Lord your God, for the abominations to the Lord, which he hates, they have done for their gods. For they burn their sons and their daughters in fire to their gods. 32 Every word that I command you today, this you shall be watchful to perform; you shall not add to it or take from it.

13 Now if a prophet or one who divines by a dream should appear among you and give you a sign or a wonder, 2 and the sign or the wonder should come about, which he spoke to you, saying: ‘Let us go and serve other gods (whom you have not known).’ 3 you shall not hear the words of that prophet or diviner by that dream, for the Lord God is testing you, to know whether you love the Lord your God with the whole of your heart and with the whole of your soul. 4 Go after the Lord your God, and him you shall fear, and his commandments you shall keep, and his voice you shall hear, and to him you shall be joined. 5 And that prophet or that diviner by dream shall die, for he spoke to lead you astray from the Lord your God—who brought you out of the land of Egypt, who redeemed you from slavery—to thrust you from the way that the Lord your God commanded you to go upon it. And you shall eliminate the evil one from yourselves.

6 Now if your brother from your father or from your mother or your own son or daughter or the wife in your bosom or the friend who is like your own soul secretly entreats you, saying, ‘Let us go and serve other gods,’ whom you do not know, you nor your fathers, 7 from the gods of the nations that are around you, those near you or far away from you, from an end of the earth up to an end of the earth, 8 you shall not yield to him and listen to him. And your eye shall not be sparing toward him; you shall not have a longing for him, neither shall you shield him. 9 Reporting, you shall report concerning him, and your own hands shall be first against him to kill him, and afterwards the hands of all the people. 10 And they shall stone him with stones, and he shall die because he sought to turn you away from the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of a house of slavery. 11 And all Israel, when they have heard, will be afraid and never do again according to this evil thing among you.

12 Now if you hear in one of the cities that the Lord your God is giving you to live therein, saying:
13 ‘Lawless men have gone out from among you and led all the inhabitants of their city astray, saying, ‘Let us go and serve other gods,’ 6 whom you have not known, 14 then you shall examine and ask and make a thorough investigation, and look, the charge is clearly true, this abomination has been done among you, 15 wiping out, you shall wipe out all the inhabitants of that city by slaughter by dagger; with an anathema, you shall anathematize it, and everything in it. 16 And all of its spoil you shall gather into its streets, and you shall burn with fire the city and all its spoil with its population, before the Lord your God. It shall remain uninhabited forever, never to be rebuilt. 17 Nothing from that which is anathema shall stick to your hand so that the Lord may turn from the heat of his anger, and he shall give you mercy and be merciful to you and multiply you, as the Lord swore to your fathers, 18 if you hear the voice of the Lord your God to keep all his commandments that I command you today, to do what is good and pleasing before the Lord your God.

14 You are sons of the Lord your God. You shall not practice purification rites; you shall not place a baldness between your eyes for a corpse. 2 For you are a people holy to the Lord your God, and it is you the Lord your God has chosen to be an exceptional people to him out of all the nations on the face of the earth.

3 You shall not eat any abomination. 4 These are the animals you shall eat: calf of cows and lamb of sheep and kid of goats, deer and gazelle and roebuck and wild goat and white-rumped antelope and antelope and giraffe. 5 Any animal that divides the hoof and splits the hooves into two parts and brings up the cud, among the animals—these you shall eat. 7 And these you shall not eat of those that regurgitate the cud and of those dividing the hoofs and making distinct claws: the camel and hare and coney, because these regurgitate the cud but do not divide the hoof; these are unclean for you. 8 And the pig, because this animal divides the hoof and makes distinct claws but this one does not chew the cud; this one is unclean for you.
You shall not eat their flesh, and you shall not touch their carcasses.

9 And of all that live in water you shall eat these: whatever has fins and scales you shall eat.
10 And whatever does not have fins and scales you shall not eat; these are unclean for you.

11 You shall eat any clean bird. 12 And these, you shall not eat from them: the eagle and the bearded vulture and the osprey 13 and the vulture and the kite and those like it, 14 and every raven and those like it, 15 and ostrich and little owl and sea gull and hawk and those like it, 15(16) and heron and swan and ibis 16(17) and diving petrel and hoopoe and long-eared owl 17(18) and pelican and water plover and those like it, and water hen and bat. 18(19) All creeping ones of those that flyb—these are unclean for you; you shall not eat from them. 19(20) You shall eat any clean winged creature.

20(21) And you shall not eat any carcass; it shall be given to the resident alien in your cities, and he will eat, or you shall sell to a stranger. For you are a people holy to the Lord your God.

21(22) You shall tithe a tithe of all the yield of your seed, the yield of your field, year by year.
22(23) And you shall eat it in the presence of the Lord your God, in the place that the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there you shall bring the tithes of your grain and of your wine and of your oil, the firstlings of your cows and of your sheep so that you may learn to fear the Lord your God all your days. 23(24) But if the distance is far from you and you are unable to transport them, because the place which the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there is far away from you, because the Lord your God will bless you, 24(25) you shall then convert them into money and take the money in your hands and go to the place, that which the Lord your God may choose, 25(26) and you shall give the money for whatever your soul may desire—for oxen or for sheep, for wine or for sikera or for whatever your soul desires. And you shall eat there in the presence of the Lord your God, and you and your household shall be joyful, 26(27) and the Levite in your cities, because he has no part or allotment with you. 27(28) After three years you shall bring out every tithe of your yield; in that year, you shall store it within your cities, 28(29) and the Levite shall come, because he has no part or allotment with you, and the guest and the orphan and the widow in your cities, and they shall eat and shall be filled so that the Lord your God may bless you in all the works whatever you may do.

15 Through seven years you shall make a remission. 2And thus is the ordinance of the remission: you shall remit every personal debt which your neighbor owes you, and you shall not ask it back of your brother, because a remission to which your neighbor owes you, and you shall not remit every personal debt lease of the debt to you. 4For there will be no one longs to you; to your brother you must make a re-
23(24) But if he says to you, “I will not go out from you,” because he loved you and your household, since it is good for him with you, 17 you shall then take an awl and pierce his ear against the door, and he shall be a domestic to you forever.

And you shall do likewise with regard to your female slave.
18 It shall not be hard on you when they are being sent out from you as free persons, because for six years he was a slave to you in lieu of an annual wage for the hired laborer, and the Lord your God will bless you in all that you may do.

19 Every firstling that may be born among your cows and among your sheep, you shall consecrate the males to the Lord your God; you shall not do work with your firstling calf, and you shall not shear the firstling of your sheep. 20 In the presence of the Lord your God you shall eat it, year by year at the place that the Lord your God may choose, you and your household. 21 But if there is a defect in it—be it lame or blind—or even any serious defect, you shall not sacrifice it to the Lord your God; 22 within your cities you shall eat it; the unclean and the clean alike shall eat, like gazelle or deer. 23 But its blood you shall not eat; you shall pour it out on the ground like water.

16 Observe the month of new things, and you shall perform the paschab for the Lord your God, for in the month of new things you came out of Egypt by night. 2And you shall sacrifice the pascha for the Lord your God, sheep and cows, at the place that the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there. 3 You shall not eat leavyou in all your borders for seven days, and none of the meat of what you may sacrifice in the evening on the first day shall lie until morning. 5You shall not be able to offer the pascha within any of your cities that the Lord your God is giving you. 6But at the place that the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there, you shall offer the pascha, in the evening at sunset, the time when you departed from Egypt. 7And you shall boil and roast and eat it at the place that the Lord your God may choose, and you shall return the next morning and go back to your houses. 8For six days you shall eat unleavened bread, and on the seventh day there shall be a finale, a feast for the Lord your God; you shall do no work on it except that which shall be done for life.

9 You shall count for yourself seven complete weeks; when you have started the sickle on the standing grain, you shall begin to count seven weeks. 10And you shall make the feast of weeks for the Lord your God, according as your hand is able, whatever he may give to you, as the Lord your God has blessed you. 11And you shall be joyful before the Lord your God—you and your son and your daughter, your male slave and your female slave and the Leuite who is in your cities, as well as the guest and the orphan and the widow who is among you—at the place that the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there. 12And you shall remember that you were a domestic in the land of Egypt, and you shall keep and do these commandments.

13 You shall make for yourself a feast of tents for seven days, when you have gathered in from your threshing floor and from your wine press. 14And you shall be joyful at your feast, you and your son and your daughter, your male slave and your female slave and the Leuite who is in your cities, as well as the guest and the orphan and the widow who is among you—at the place that the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there. 12And you shall remember that you were a domestic in the land of Egypt, and you shall keep and do these commandments.

14 Now if you come into the land that the Lord your God is giving you, and you shall have entered, you may inherit the land that the Lord your God is giving you.

15 You shall not plant for yourself a grove, any tree beside the altar of the Lord your God which you will make for yourself; 22you shall not set up for yourself a stele—things which the Lord your God hated.
to multiply cavalry for himself, but the Lord has said to you, “You shall never add to return that way.” 17 And he shall not multiply wives for himself, neither shall his heart turn away; also silver and gold he shall not multiply exceedingly for himself. 18 And it shall be, when he has sat upon the seat of his rule, that he shall write for himself this second law in a book from the priests, the Levites. 19 And it shall be with him, and he shall read from it all the days of his life so that he may learn to fear the Lord his God, to keep all these commandments and these statutes to do them so that his heart may not be exalted above his brothers so that he not turn aside from the commandments, right or left, in order that he be long-lived in his rule, he and his sons among the sons of Israel.

18 There shall not be for the priests, the Levites, the whole tribe of Levi, a part or allotment with Israel. The offerings of the Lord are their allotment; they shall eat of them, but he shall have no allotment among his brothers; the Lord himself is his allotment, as he said to him. And this is the judgment for priests, things due from the people, from those offering sacrifices, whether a calf, whether a sheep, and he shall give to the priest the shoulder and the cheeks and the paunch. 4 And the first fruits of your grain and your wine and your oil and the first of the fleeces of your sheep you shall give him. 5 For the Lord has chosen him out of all your tribes, to stand before the Lord your God to minister and to bless in his name, he and his sons all the days.

6 Now if a Leuite departs (from one of your cities, from all the sons of Israel wherever he sojourns, as his soul desires) for the place that the Lord may choose, he shall minister in the name of the Lord his God, like all his brothers—the Levites who stand there before the Lord. 8 He shall eat an allotted portion, apart from the sale which is by paternal lineage.

9 Now if you enter into the land that the Lord your God is giving you, you shall not learn to act according to the abominations of those nations. 10 There shall not be found among you one who cleanses his son or his daughter by fire, one who practices divination, one who acts as diviner, one who practices ornithomancy, a sorcerer, 11 one who casts spells, a ventriloquist and one who observes omens and divinations, but as for you, the Lord your God has not granted you to do so.

15 The Lord your God will raise up for you a prophet like me from among your brothers; you shall hear him. 16 According to all that you requested of the Lord your God at Choreb on the day of the assembly, saying: “We shall not any more hear the voice of the Lord our God and again see this great fire—and we shall not die.” 17 And the Lord said to me: “They are right in all that they have said. 18 I will raise up for them a prophet just like you from among their brothers, and I will give my word in his mouth, and he shall speak to them whatever I command him. 19 And the person who does not hear his words, whatever the prophet may speak in my name, I will exact vengeance from him. 20 But the prophet who acts impiously by speaking a word in my name that I have not ordered to speak and who speaks in the name of other gods, that prophet shall die.” 21 But if you say in your heart, “How will we know the word that the Lord has not spoken?” 22 whatever the prophet might speak in the name of the Lord but the thing does not take place and does not happen, this is the word that the Lord has not spoken. That prophet has spoken it in impiety; you shall not spare him.

19 Now if the Lord your God annihilates the nations whose land your God is giving you and you dispossess them and live in their cities and in their houses, 2 you shall set apart three cities for yourself in the midst of your land that the Lord your God is giving you. 3 Calculate for yourself the distance, and you shall divide into three regions your land that the Lord your God apportions you, and there shall be a refuge there for every murderer.

4 Now this is the ordinance for a murderer who flees there and shall live: He who strikes his neighbor unintentionally and he did not hate him before yesterday and before the third day, 5 and he who goes into the forest with his neighbor to gather wood and his hand is knocked aside when he cuts the wood with the ax, and the iron slips from the wood and happens to strike his neighbor, and he dies, this one shall flee to one of these cities and live, 6 lest the avenger of blood pursue the murderer, because his heart is hot, and overtake him—if the road was rather long—and he strike his soul, and he dies, and to this one there is not a death sentence, since he did not hate him before yesterday and before the third day. 7 Therefore I command you this thing, saying: You shall set apart three cities for yourself.

8 But if the Lord your God enlarges your borders, as he swore to your fathers, and he gives you all the land that he said he would give your fathers, 9 —if you give heed to do all these commandments that I command you today, to love the Lord your God and to walk in all his ways all the days—then you shall add for yourself three more cities to these three, 10 and innocent blood shall not be shed in your land that the Lord your God is giving you as an allotment, and there shall not be among you one guilty of blood.

11 But if there be a person hating his neighbor and he lies in wait for him and attacks him and strikes his life and he dies and flees into one of these cities, 12 then the council of elders of his city shall send and take him from there and deliver him into the hand of the avenger of blood, and he shall die. 13 Your eye shall not be sparing toward him, and you shall cleanse the innocent blood from Israel, and it shall be well with you.

14 You shall not move your neighbor’s boundaries, which your fathers have set up on the inheritance you were allotted in the land that the Lord your God is giving you to inherit.

15 One witness shall not suffice against a person in any injustice and in any wrongdoing and in any sin that he may sin. By the mouth of two or three witnesses shall any word be sustained. 16 But if an unjust witness comes forward against a person, alleging impiety against him, 17 then the two persons between whom is the dispute shall stand before the Lord and before the priests and before the judges, who may be in those days, 18 and if the judges make a thorough inquiry and, look, an unjust witness has testified unjustly, he has stood up against his brother, 19 then you shall do to him just as he connived to do to his brother. And you shall remove the evil one from yourselves. 20 And the rest, when they hear, shall be afraid and will not add to act again according to this evil thing among you. 21 Your eye shall not be sparing against him: soul for soul, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot.

20 Now if you go out to war against your enemies and see horse and rider and a people more numerous than you, you shall not be afraid of them, for the Lord your God is with you, who made you go up from the land of Egypt. 2 And it shall be when you draw near for battle to the city for to fight against it, that the Lord your God will deliver it into your hands, 3 and the council of elders of his city shall take a heifer down to the city nearest the wounded, and the council of elders of that city, those nearest the wounded, shall wash their hands over the head of the heifer that was hamstrung in the ravine, 4 and it shall be the city nearest the wounded, and the council of elders of that city shall make the heifer go down to a rugged ravine, which is neither worked nor sown, and shall hamstring the heifer in the ravine. 5 And the priests, the Levites, shall come forward, for the Lord your God has chosen them to stand by him and to bless in his name, and by their mouth every dispute and every assault shall be. 6 And all the priests shall speak to the people and will say, “Who is the person who built a new house and did not dedicate it? Let him go and return to his house, lest he die in the battle and another person will take her.” 7 Then the scribes shall speak to the people, saying, “Who is the person who built a new house and did not dedicate it? Let him go and return to his house, lest he die in the battle and another person will take her.” 8 And the scribes shall add to speak to the people and will say, “Who is the person fearful and cowardly in heart? Let him go and return to his house, lest he cause the heart of his brother to be cowardly like his own.” 9 And it shall be when the scribes have ceased speaking to the people, then they shall appoint commanders of the army, as leaders for the people.

10 Now if you draw near to a city to fight against it, then you shall call them out with peace. 11 If they respond to you peaceably and open to you, it shall be that all the people found in it shall be bearers of tribute and be subject to you. 12 But if they do not respond to you and make war against you, then you shall besiege it, 13 and the Lord your God will deliver it into your hands, and you shall strike every male in it with slaughter by dagger, 14 except the women and the baggage. And all the livestock and all which is in the city and all the spoil you shall take as plunder for yourself, and you shall eat all the plunder of your enemies, which the Lord your God is giving you. 15 Thus you shall do to all the cities that are very far from you, which are not of the cities of these nations. 16 But look, of the cities of these nations that the Lord your God is giving you to inherit their land, you shall not let anything of them that breathes remain alive. 17 But with anathema you shall anathematize them—the Chettite and the Amorrithite and the Chananite and the Pherezite and the Heuite and the lebousite and the Gergesite—as the Lord your God has commanded you, lest they teach you to do all their abominations that they did for their gods and you sin before the Lord your God.

19 But if you besiege a city for rather many days, to make war against it in order to take it, you shall not utterly destroy its trees by wielding iron against them; rather you shall eat from it, but you shall not cut it down. Is the tree in the field a human being that it should enter into the palisade from before you? 20 But a tree that you know does not produce edible fruit, this one you shall utterly destroy and cut down, and you shall build siege works against the city that makes war with you until it be delivered up.

21 Now if, in the land that the Lord your God is giving you to inherit, someone wounded is found having fallen on the plain, and they do not know who struck him down, 2 the council of elders and the judges shall come out and measure out to the cities that surround the wounded. 3 And it shall be the city nearest the wounded, and the council of elders of that city shall take a heifer from the cows that has not been worked and which has not pulled in a yoke, 4 and the council of elders of that city shall make the heifer go down to a rugged ravine, which is neither worked nor sown, 5 and shall hamstring the heifer in the ravine. 6 And the priests, the Levites, shall come forward, for the Lord God has chosen them to stand by him and to bless in his name, and by their mouth every dispute and every assault shall be. 7 And the entire council of elders of that city, those nearest the wounded, shall wash their hands over the head of the heifer that was hamstring in the ravine, 8 and in reply they shall say: “Our hands did not shed this blood, and our eyes have not seen. Be merciful to your people Israel, whom you redeemed, O Lord, so that innocent blood may not be among your people Israel.’ And the blood will be propitiated for them. But you shall remove innocent blood from yourselves, if you do what is pleasing and good in the sight of the Lord your God.

10 Now if you go out to war against your enemies and the Lord your God delivers them into your hands and you take as plunder their booty 1 and you see among the booty a woman, beautiful in appearance, and you desire her and take her for yourself as wife, 12 then you shall bring her inside your house, and you shall shave her head and pare her nails, 13 and you shall remove her clothes of captivity from her, and she shall settle in your house and mourn for her father and her mother 2 days of a month, and after that you shall go in to her and live together with her, and she shall be your wife. 14 And it shall be, if you do not want her, you shall send her away free, and by a sale she shall not be sold for money. You shall not break faith with her, since you have humbled her.

15 Now if a man has two wives, one of them loved and the other hated, and if both the loved and the hated bear him children and the firstborn son is of the one who is hated, 16 it shall be, then, on the day when he wills his possessions to his sons, he shall not be able to treat the son of the loved as the firstborn by ignoring the son of the hated who is the firstborn. 17 On the contrary, he shall acknowledge the firstborn son of the one who is hated by giving him a double portion of all things which he is found to have, since he is the first issue of his children and to this one belongs the right of the firstborn.

18 Now if someone has a disobedient and contentious son who does not obey the voice of his father and the voice of his mother, and they discipline him, and he does not listen to them, 19 then his father and his mother, after they have taken hold of him, shall also bring him out to the council of elders of his city and to the gate of his place. 20 And they shall say to the men of his city, ‘This son of ours is disobedient and contentious. He does not obey our voice. Being disposed to feasting, he is a drunkard.’ 21 And the men of his city shall stone him with stones, and he shall die. And you shall remove the evil one from yourselves and the others, when they hear, will be afraid.

22 Now if there is in someone sin, a judgment of death, and he dies and you hang him on a tree, 23 his body shall not sleep upon the tree, but with burial you shall bury him that same day, for anyone hanging on a tree is cursed by a god. And you shall not defile the land that the Lord your God is giving you as an allotment.

22 When you see your brother’s bull calf or his sheep straying away on the road, do not overlook them; by restoring, you shall restore them to your brother. 2 Now if your brother is not near you or you do not know him, you shall bring them inside in your house, and they shall be with you until your brother seeks them; then you shall give them back to him. 3 So you shall treat his donkey, and so you shall treat his garment, and so you shall act in every loss of your brother, whatever may be lost by him and you find; you shall not be able to overlook.

4 You shall not see your brother’s donkey or his bull calf fallen on the road. Do not overlook them; raising, you shall raise them up with him.

5 There shall not be the equipment of a man upon a woman, nor shall a man put on a woman’s garment, because anyone doing these things is an abomination to the Lord your God.

6 Now if you come on a nest of birds before you on the road or in any tree or on the ground, with fledglings or eggs, and the mother is brooding on the fledglings or on the eggs, you shall not take the mother with the young ones. 7 By release, you shall release the mother, but the young you shall take for yourself in order that it may go well with you and you may live long.

8 Now if you build a new house, you shall make a parapet for your building, and you will not do murder in your house, if one who falls should fall from it.

9 You shall not sow your vineyard different in kind, lest the produce and the seed be sanctified, whatever you sow with the yield of your vineyard.

10 You shall not plow with an calf and a donkey together.

11 You shall not wear something adulterated—wool and linen combined.

12 You shall make tassels for yourself on the four corners of your garments, those in which you may wrap yourself.

13 Now if any one takes a woman and cohabits with her and hates her 14 and places upon her specious charges and brings upon her an evil name and says, ‘I have taken this woman, but when I had approached her, I failed to find proofs of her virginity,” 15 then the father of the girl and her mother, having taken them, shall bring the proofs of the girl’s virginity to the council of elders at the gate. 16 And the father of the girl shall say to the council of elders: ‘I gave this my daughter to this man for a wife, but, hating her, he is now placing specious charges against her, saying, ‘I failed to find proofs of her virginity.’ But these are the proofs of my daughter’s virginity.’ And they shall spread out the garment before the council of elders of the city. 18 And the council of elders of that city shall take that man and discipline him, 19 and they shall fine him one hundred shekels, and they shall give them to the young woman’s father because he cast an evil name upon an Israelite virgin. And she shall be his wife; he shall not be able to send her away for all time.

20 But if this charge is true and the evidence of the young woman’s virginity was not found, 21 then they shall bring the young woman out to her fa-

4 i.e. a whole month
her's doors, and the men of her city shall stone her with stones, and she will die, because she did folly in Israel by prostituting her father's house. And you shall remove the evil one from yourselves.

22 Now if a man is found lying with a woman married to a man, you will kill both of them, the man who lay with the woman and the woman. And you shall remove the evil one from Israel.

23 But if there is a girl, a virgin engaged to a man, and a man finding her in the city should lie with her, 24 bring both of them to the gate of their city, and they shall be stoned with stones, and they shall die—the young woman, because she did not cry out in the city, and the man, because he humbled his neighbor's woman. And you shall remove the evil one from yourselves.

25 But if a man finds the engaged girl in the field and, having forced her, should lie with her, 26 And you shall do nothing to the young woman; the young woman has not committed an offense punishable by death, because it is as if some man would rise up against his neighbor and murder his soul; so is this deed. 27 Since he found her in the field, the engaged young woman cried for help, but there was no one to help her.

28 But if someone finds the girl, the virgin, who is not engaged, and, after he forces her, lies with her and he is discovered, 29 the man who lay with her shall give fifty silver didrachmas to the young woman's father, and she shall become his wife. Because he humbled her, he shall not be able to send her away for all time.

30 A man shall not take his father's wife, and he shall not uncover his father's cover.

23 A castrated male and one made a eunuch shall not enter the assembly of the Lord.

2 One from a prostitute shall not enter the assembly of the Lord.

3 No Ammonite and Moabite shall enter into the assembly of the Lord. Even to the tenth generation, he shall not enter into the assembly of the Lord, even forever, 4 due to the fact that they did not meet you with bread and water on the way when you were coming out of Egypt and because they hired against you Balaam son of Beor, from Mesopotamia, to curse you. 5 (And the Lord your God did not want to listen to Balaam, and the Lord your God turned the curses into blessings, because the Lord your God loved you.) 6 You shall not address things of peace to them and things of profit to them all your days, forever.

7 You shall not abhor an Idumean, for he is your brother. You shall not abhor an Egyptian, because you were a resident alien in his land. 8 If sons are born to them in the third generation, they shall enter into the assembly of the Lord.

9 Now if you go out to encamp against your enemies, you shall guard against any evil thing.

10 If there is a person among you who is not clean from his flow at night, he shall go outside the camp, and he shall not enter into the camp. 11 And it shall be, at evening, that he shall wash his body with water, and when the sun has set, he shall enter into the camp.

12 And you shall have a place outside the camp, and you shall go there outside. 13 On your belt you shall have a pin; and it shall be, when you sit down apart outside, that you shall dig a hole with it and then, returning the earth, you shall cover up your disgrace with it. 14 Because the Lord your God walks about in your camp, to deliver you and to hand over your enemy before you, and your camp shall be holy, and there shall not be seen a disgrace of a matter among you, and he shall turn away from you.

15 You shall not hand over to an owner a servant who has been added to you from his owner. 16 He shall reside with you; among you he shall live, in every place wherever he may please; you shall not oppress him.

17 There shall not be a prostitute among the daughters of Israel; there shall not be one that practices prostitution among the sons of Israel. There shall not be an initiate among the daughters of Israel, and there shall not be anyone initiated among the sons of Israel. 18 You shall not bring the fee of a prostitute or the exchange for a dog into the house of the Lord your God for any vow, for it is an abomination to the Lord your God—in fact both.

19 You shall not charge interest to your brother, interest on money and interest on provisions and interest on any thing that may be lent. 20 To a stranger you shall charge interest but to your brother you shall not charge interest, so that the Lord your God may bless you in all your works in the land into which you are entering there to inherit it.

21 Now if you vow a vow to the Lord your God, you shall not delay to pay it. For the Lord your God, when he requires, will require it of you, and you shall not oppress him.

22 But if you do not want to vow, it will not be a sin to you. 23 The things that proceed from your lips you shall guard, and you shall do as you have vowed a gift to the Lord your God, which you said with your mouth.

24(25) Now if you go into your neighbor's standing grain, then you shall collect ears with your hand, and you shall not cast a sickle on your neighbor's standing grain.

25(24) And if you go into your neighbor's vineyard, you shall eat grapes, as much as to fill your soul, but you shall not put any in a container.

24 Now if anyone takes a wife and lives with her, and it shall be, if she does not find favor before him because he found a shameful thing in her, then he shall write her a bill of divorce and shall give it into her hands and shall send her out of his house, 2 and if, having gone out, she becomes another man's and the last man hates her, then he will write her a bill of divorce... and give it in her hands and send her out of his house, or if the last man who took her for himself as wife dies, the former man, who sent her away, shall not be able, having returned, to take her for himself as his wife after she has been defiled, for it is an abomination before the Lord your God, and you shall not defile the land that the Lord your God is giving you as an allotment.

5 Now if there is a debt with your neighbor, a debt of any kind, you shall not go into his house; or if the last man who took her for himself as wife dies, the former man, who sent her away, shall not be able, having returned, to take her for himself as his wife after she has been defiled, for it is an abomination before the Lord your God, and you shall not defile the land that the Lord your God is giving you as an allotment.

5 But if anyone should have taken a wife recently, he shall not go out to war, and he shall not be charged with any matter. He shall be innocent in his house one year; he shall make joyful his wife whom he has taken.

6 No one shall take a mill or the upper millstone in pledge, for this one is taking a soul in pledge.

7 And if a person is caught stealing a soul from his brothers, the sons of Israel, and, having over-powered him, he be sold, that thief shall die. And you shall remove the evil one from yourselves.

8 Guard yourself against the attack of leprosy; you shall be very watchful to do according to all the law, whatever the priests, the Levites, may announce to you. As I have commanded you, be watchful to perform. 9Remember what the Lord did to Mariam on the way, when you were coming out of Egypt.

10 Now if there is a debt with your neighbor, a debt of any kind, you shall not go into his house to take the pledge. 11You shall stand outside, and the person from whom your debt is due shall bring the pledge to you outside. 12If the person is poor, you shall not sleep in his pledge. 13By giving back you shall give his pledge back by sunset, and he shall sleep in his garment and bless you, and to you shall be mercy before the Lord your God.

14 You shall not unjustly withhold the wages of a needy and indigent person from your brothers or from the guests in your cities. 15You shall pay his wages daily; the sun shall not set upon it, because he is needy and on it he has his hope, and he shall not cry to the Lord against you, and it shall be sin for you.

16 Fathers shall not die for their children, and sons shall not be put to death for fathers; each one shall die for his own sin.

17 You shall not divert the justice of a guest and an orphan and a widow, and you shall not take a widow’s garment in pledge. 18And you shall remember that you were a domestic in the land of Egypt, and when you were coming out of Egypt, how he withstood you on the way and cut off his right ear and came to a village, 19and the vineyard owner approached him in the presence of the elders, shall say, “My husband’s brother does not want to perpetuate his brother’s name in Israel; my husband’s brother has been unwilling.” 19And the council of elders of his city shall summon him and speak to him. And, while standing, he should say, “I do not wish to take her.” 2And his brother’s wife, having approached him in the presence of the elders, shall also loosen his sandal, the one from his foot, and shall spit in his face and, while answering, shall say, “Thus shall they do to the man who will not build up his brother’s house.” 20And throughout Israel his name shall be called “the house of him whose sandal has been pulled off.”

11 Now if men get into a fight together, a man with his brother, and the wife of one of them comes in to rescue her husband from the hand of the one who strikes him and, extending her hand, should seize his testicles, 12you shall cut off her hand; your eye shall not be sparing toward her.

13 There shall not be in your bag weight and weight, large or small. 14There shall not be in your house measure and measure, large or small. 15You shall have only a true and just weight, and you shall have only a true and just measure so that you may be long-lived in the land that the Lord your God is giving you as an allotment. 16For every one who does these things, every one who acts unjustly, is an abomination to the Lord.

17 Remember what Amalek did to you on the way, when you were coming out of the land of Egypt, how he withstood you on the way and cut off your tail, all those who lagged behind you, but you were hungry and weary, and he did not fear God. 19 And it shall be, when the Lord your God gives you rest from all your enemies who surround you, in the land that the Lord your God is giving you as an allotment to inherit, you shall blot out the name of Amalek from under the sky, and you shall not forget.

26 And it shall be, if you come into the land that the Lord your God is giving you as an allotment and you take possession of it and live in it, 2 that you shall take from the first fruit of the fruits of your land that the Lord your God is giving you and put in a basket and go to the place that the Lord your God may choose for his name to be called there. 3 And you shall go to the priest who shall be in those days and say to him, “Today I declare to the Lord my God that I have come into the land that the Lord swore to our fathers to give us.” 4 And the priest shall take the basket from your hands and set it down before the altar of the Lord your God. 5 And in reply, you shall say before the Lord your God: “My ancestor abandoned Syria and went down into Egypt and sojourned there, few in number, and there he became a nation, great and numerous, many and great. 6 And the Egyptians did us ill and humbled us and imposed hard work on us, 7 and we cried to the Lord, the God of our fathers, and the Lord listened to our voice and saw our humiliation and our toil and our oppression. 8 And the Lord brought us out of Egypt with great strength and with a strong hand and a high arm and with great spectacles and with signs and with wonders, 9 and he brought us into this place and gave us this land, a land flowing with milk and honey. 10 And now look, I have brought the first fruit of the produce of the land that you, O Lord, have given me, a land flowing with milk and honey. 11 And you shall leave them before the Lord your God and do obeisance before the Lord your God and sacrifice a sacrifice of deliverance and eat and be filled there and be joyful before the Lord your God. 12 And you shall write on the stones all the words of this law when you cross over the Jordan, that you shall set up for yourself large stones on the stones all the words of this law very clearly. 13 And you shall build the altar to the Lord your God of whole stones, and you shall offer up whole burnt offerings on it to the Lord your God 2 and sacrifice a sacrifice of deliverance and eat and be filled there and be joyful before the Lord your God. 14 And you shall write on the stones all this law very clearly.

9 And Moyses and the priests, the Leuites, spoke to all Israel, saying: Keep silence, and hear, O Israel! This day you have become a people to the Lord your God. 10 And you shall listen to the voice of the Lord your God and do all his commandments and his statutes that I command you today.

11 And Moyses commanded the people in that day, saying: 12 When you have crossed over the Jordan, these shall stand to bless the people on Mount Garizin: Symeon, Leui, Ioudas, Issachar, Dan, these shall stand to bless the people on Mount Gaibal: Rouben, Gad and Aser, Zaboulon, Dan and Nephthali. 13 And the Leuites, in reply, shall say in a loud voice to all Israel:

15 “Cursed be he who makes a carved and a cast image, an abomination to the Lord, a work of the hands of an artisan and shall set it up in secret.” And all the people, in reply, shall say, “May it be!”

16 “Cursed be he who dishonors his father or his mother.” And all the people shall say, “May it be!”

17 “Cursed be he who moves a neighbor’s boundaries.” And all the people shall say, “May it be!”
18 "Cursed be he who misleads a blind person on the road." And all the people shall say, "May it be!"

19 "Cursed be he if he deprive guest and orphans and widow of justice." And all the people shall say, "May it be!"

20 "Cursed be he who lies with his father’s wife, because he has uncovered the cover of his father." And all the people shall say, "May it be!"

21 "Cursed be he who lies with any animal." And all the people shall say, "May it be!"

22 "Cursed be he who lies with his sister, whether from his father or from his mother." And all the people shall say, "May it be!"

23 "Cursed be he who lies with his mother-in-law." And all the people shall say, "May it be!"

24 "Cursed be he who strikes down a neighbor with treachery." And all the people shall say, "May it be!"

25 "Cursed be he if he take gifts to strike a soul of innocent blood." And all the people shall say, "May it be!"

26 "Cursed be any person who does not remain in all the words of this law to do them." And all the people shall say, "May it be!"

28 And it shall be, if by hearing you hear the voice of the Lord your God, to be watchful and to perform all his commandments that I command you today, that the Lord your God will render you high above all the nations of the earth, 2 and all these blessings shall come upon you and find you, if you hear the voice of the Lord your God:

3 Blessed be you in the city, and blessed be you in the field.

4 Blessed be the progeny of your belly and the produce of your land, the herds of your cows and the flocks of your sheep.

5 Blessed be your storehouses and your reserves.

6 Blessed be you when you come in, and blessed be you when you go out.

7 May the Lord your God hand over your enemies who have risen against you, when they have been crushed before you; they shall come out against you by one way and flee from before you by seven ways. 8 May the Lord send the blessing upon you in your storerooms and in all things to which you put your hand in the land that the Lord your God is giving you. 9 May the Lord raise you up for himself as a holy people, as he has sworn to your fathers, if you listen to the voice of the Lord your God and walk in his ways. 10 And all the nations of the earth shall see that the name of the Lord has been surnamed to you, and they shall be afraid of you. 11 And the Lord your God will make you abound with good things, in the progeny of your belly and in the progeny of your livestock and in the produce of your land in the land that the Lord swore to your fathers to give you. 12 May the Lord open for you his good treasury, the sky, to give the rain to your land in its season, to bless all the works of your hands. And you will lend to many nations, but you will not borrow. And you will rule over many nations, but they shall not rule over you. 13 May the Lord your God set you up as a head and not as a tail, and you shall then be on top, and you shall not be underneath—if you hear the commandments of the Lord your God, which I command you today, to guard and to perform. 14 You shall not turn aside from all of the words that I command you today, right or left, to go after other gods to serve them.

15 And it shall be, if you do not listen to the voice of the Lord your God to keep and to do all his commandments, which I command you today, that all these curses shall come upon you and overtake you:

16 Cursed be you in the city, and cursed be you in the field.

17 Cursed be your storehouses and your reserves.

18 Cursed be the progeny of your belly and the produce of your land, the herds of your cows and the flocks of your sheep.

19 Cursed be you when you come in, and cursed be you when you go out.

20 May the Lord send you lack and hunger and exhaustion in everything to which you may put your hand, whatever you might do until he utterly destroys you and until he ruins you quickly, on account of your evil deeds, because you have forsaken me. 21 May the Lord make day cling to you until it consumes you off the land that you are entering there to inherit it. 22 May the Lord strike you with difficulty and fever and cold and irritation and murder and with blight and paleness, and they shall pursue you until they destroy you. 23 And the sky over your head shall be bronze for you, and the earth under you iron. 24 May the Lord render the rain of your land as powder, and dust from the sky shall come down upon you until it wipes you out and until it destroys you.

25 May the Lord give you slaughter before your enemies; you shall go out against them by one way and flee from them by seven ways. And you shall be in dispersion in all the kingdoms of the earth. 26 And your corpses will be food for the birds of the sky and for the wild animals of the earth, and there shall be no one to frighten them away. 27 May the Lord strike you with an Egyptian festering sore in the seats and with severe itch and scratching so that you cannot be healed. 28 May the Lord strike you with derangement and blindness and distraction of mind, 29 and you shall be groping about at midday as a blind person would grope in the darkness, and he will not prosper your ways, and you will then be wronged and plundered all the days, and there shall be none to help you. 30 You shall take a wife, but another man shall have her. You shall build a house, and you shall not live in it. You shall plant a vineyard and not harvest it. 31 Your bull calf is butchered before you, but you shall not eat of it. Your donkey is seized from you, and it shall not be given back to you. Your sheep is given to your enemies, and there shall be none to help you. Your sons and daughters are given to another nation, and your eyes, being purulent, shall look for them, and your hand shall not be strong. A nation whom you do not know shall eat up the produce of your land and all your labors, and you shall be wronged and shattered all the days. And you shall be driven mad because of the sights of your eyes, which you shall see. May the Lord strike you on the knees and on the legs with a grievous festering sore so that you cannot be healed, from the sole of your feet to your crown. May the Lord lead away you and your rulers whom you may set over yourself to a nation that you and your fathers do not know, and you shall serve there other gods, of wood and stone. And there you shall become an enigma and an illustration and a tale among all the nations into which the Lord may lead you away there.

You shall carry out much seed into the field and shall bring in few, for the grasshopper shall consume them. You shall plant and work a vineyard, but you shall neither drink the wine nor be joyful from it, for the worm shall devour them. Olive trees you shall have throughout all your borders, but you shall not anoint yourself with oil, for your olive tree shall shed. You shall bear sons and daughters, but they shall not remain yours, for they shall go away in captivity. All your woody products and the produce of your land the rust shall devour. The guest who is among you shall ascend up and up above you, but you shall descend down, down. He shall lend to you, but you shall not lend to him; he shall be the head, and you shall be the tail.

And all these curses shall come upon you and pursue you and overtake you until it utterly destroy you and until it ruin you, because you did not listen to the voice of the Lord your God, to keep his commandments and his statutes that he commanded you. And there shall be signs and wonders among you and among your offspring forever, because you did not serve the Lord your God with rejoicing and with a good heart for the abundance of everything. And you shall serve your enemies whom the Lord will send against you, with famine and with thirst and with nakedness and with lack of everything. And he will put an iron collar on your neck until he utterly destroys you. The Lord will bring upon you a nation from far away, from the end of the earth, like the swoop of an eagle, a nation whose speech you will not hear, a nation shameless in face, which will not marvel at the face of an elder and have no mercy on the young. And it shall consume the progeny of your livestock and the produce of your land so that there remains for you no grain, wine, oil, the herds of your cows and the flocks of your sheep, until it destroys you. And it shall wipe you out in all your cities until your high and fortified walls, in them in which you trusted, be pulled down in all your land, and it shall afflict you in all your cities that the Lord your God has given you. And in your desperate straits and in your affliction with which your enemy shall afflict you, you will eat the progeny of your belly, the flesh of your sons and your daughters whom the Lord has given you. The gentle among you and the very soft will begrudge with his eye his brother and the wife in his bosom and the remaining children who are left, so as to give to one of them from the flesh of his children whom he may be eating, because nothing remains to him in your desperate straits and affliction by which your enemies afflict you in all your cities. And she who is gentle among you and soft, the foot of whom did not make an attempt to tread on the ground, because of delicacy and gentleness, will begrudge with her eye her husband, who is in her bosom, and her son and daughter, even her afterbirth that comes out from between her thighs, and the child that she might bear. For she will devour them in secret for want of all things, in desperate straits and in affliction with which your enemy will afflict you in your cities.

If you do not listen to perform all the words of this law that are written in this book, to fear this honorable and marvelous name, the Lord your God, then the Lord will make exceptional your plagues and the plagues upon your offspring, great and marvelous plagues and evil and constant maladies. And he will bring back upon you all the evil pains of Egypt of which you were in dread before them, and they shall cling to you. And every malady and every plague not recorded in the book of this law the Lord will bring on you until he utterly destroys you. And you shall be left few in number, instead of the fact that you were as the stars of the sky in multitude, because you did not listen to the voice of the Lord your God. And it shall be, just as the Lord took delight in you that you would do well and that you multiply, so the Lord will take delight in you to destroy you utterly, and you shall be removed from the land that you are entering there to inherit it. And the Lord your God will disperse you to all nations, from an end of the earth to an end of the earth, and there you shall be subject to other gods, of wood and stone, which you and your fathers did not know. But also among those nations he shall not give you rest, nor will there be a station for the trace of your foot. And there the Lord will give you a discouraged heart and failing eyes and a molten soul. And your life shall be hanging before your eyes, and night and day you shall be afraid, and you shall not be sure of your life. In the morning you shall say, “If only evening might come!” and at evening you shall say, “If only morning might come!”—because of the fear of your heart with which you shall fear and because of the sights of your eyes which you shall see. And the Lord will bring you back in ships to Egypt by a route that I

a Possibly sons and daughters b Or parable c i.e. things made from wood
These are the words of the covenant, which the Lord commanded Moyses to establish for the sons of Israel in the land of Moab, besides the covenant that he had made with them at Choreb.

2 And Moyses called all the sons of Israel and said to them: You have seen all that the Lord did before you in the land of Egypt, to Pharaoh and to his attendants and to all his land, the great trials that your eyes saw, the signs and those great wonders.

3 But to this day the Lord God has not given you a heart to know and eyes to see and ears to hear. 4And he led you forty years in the wilderness. Your garments have not grown old, and your sandals have not worn from your feet; 5you have not eaten bread, you have not drunk wine and sikera b—so that you may know that he is the Lord your God.

6And you came as far as this place, and King Seon of Hesebon and King Og of Basan came out to meet us for battle, and we struck them down. 8And we took their land, and I gave it as an allotment to Rouben and to Gaddi and to the half-tribe of Manasse. 9And you shall be watchful to perform all the words of this covenant in order that you may understand everything that you shall do.

10 You stand today, all of you, before the Lord your God—the leaders of your tribes and your council of elders and your judges and your recorders, every man of Israel, your women and your progeny and the guest who is in the midst of your camp, from your woodcutter even up to your water bearer—so that you may enter in the covenant of the Lord your God, and in his imprecations, which the Lord shall make today 11in order that he may establish you for yourself as a people, and he in turn shall be your god, as he said to you and as he swore to your fathers Abraam and Isaak and Iakob. 14And I am establishing this covenant and this imprecation, not with you alone but also with those who are here with us today before the Lord our God (15)and with those who are not here with us today, because you know how we lived in the land of Egypt and how we passed through the midst of the nations through which you passed. 17And you have seen their abominations and their idols, wood and stone, silver and gold, that were among them. 18Who is there among you, man or woman or family or tribe, whose mind has turned away from the Lord our God, to go to serve the gods of those nations? Who among you is a root growing up with gall and bitterness? 19And it shall be, if he hears the words of this imprecation and declares in his heart, saying: “May holy things become mine, because I shall walk in the wandering of my heart,” lest the sinner destroy the sinless as well, God will not want to pardon him, but the Lord’s anger and his zeal will then blaze out against that person. And all the imprecations of this covenant, written in the book of this law will attach themselves to him, and the Lord will blot out his name from what is beneath the sky. 21And the Lord will single him out for evil from all the sons of Israel, in accordance with all the imprecations of the covenant, which are written in the book of this law.

22And the next generation will say, your sons who will rise up after you and the stranger who may come from a land far away, and they will see the plagues of that land and its diseases which the Lord has sent upon it: sulfur and burnt salt; its whole land shall not be sown, nor shall it sprout, neither will any vegetation spring up on it, just as Sodoma was overturned, and Gomorra, Adama and Seboim, which the Lord overturned in wrath and anger. 24And all the nations will say, “Why has the Lord done thus to this land? What was this great vehemence of anger?” 25And they will say, “Because they abandoned the covenant of the Lord, the God of their fathers, which he made with their fathers when he brought them out of the land of Egypt. 26And having gone, they served other gods and did obeisance to them whom they had not known, neither had he allotted them, 27and the Lord became angry with wrath against that land, to bring on it according to all the curses written in this book. 28And the Lord removed them from their land in wrath and anger and very great provocation and cast them into another land, as it is now.” 29The secret things belong to the Lord our God, but the revealed things belong to us and to our children forever, to do all the words of this law.

30 And it shall be, when all these words come upon you, the blessing and the curse that I gave before you, that you shall receive them into your heart among all the nations wherever the Lord may scatter you there, 2and you shall return to the Lord your God and obey his voice regarding everything I command you today, with the whole of your heart and with the whole of your soul. 3And the Lord will heal your sins and have mercy on you and gather you again from all the nations among whom the Lord has scattered you there. 4If your dispersion be from an end of the sky to an end of the sky, from there the Lord your God will gather you, and from there he will take you. 5And the Lord your God will bring you into the land that your fathers inherited, and you will inherit it, and he will make you well, and he will make you numerous beyond your fathers.

6 And the Lord will purge your heart and the heart of your offspring, to love the Lord your God with the whole of your heart and with the whole of your soul in order that you may live. 7And the Lord your God will give these imprecaions on your enemies and on those who hate you, who pursued you. 8And you shall turn and listen to the voice of the Lord your God, and you shall do his commandments that I command you today, and the Lord your God will treat you with care in every

work of your hands, in the progeny of your belly and in the produce of your land and in the progeny of your livestock. For the Lord your God will turn to be joyful toward you for good things, just as he was joyful over your fathers, 10if you listen to the voice of the Lord your God, to keep his commandments and his statutes and his judgments that are written in the book of this law, if you turn to the Lord your God with the whole of your heart and with the whole of your soul, 11because this commandment that I command you today is not excessive nor is it far from you. 12It is not in the sky, saying, “Who will go up to the sky and get it for us? And when we hear it, we shall do it.” 13Neither is it beyond the sea, saying, “Who will cross to the other side of the sea for us and get it for us? And when we hear it, we shall also do it.” 14The word is very near to you, in your mouth and in your heart in and your hands, to do it.

15 See, I have given before you today life and death, good and evil. 16Now if you listen to the commandments of the Lord your God that I command you today, to love the Lord your God, to walk in his ways, to keep his statutes and his commandments and his judgments, then you shall live and become many, and the Lord your God will bless you in all the land into which you are entering there to inherit it. 17And if your heart turns away and you do not listen but having been led astray you do obeisance to other gods and serve them, 18I declare to you today that by destruction you shall perish, and you shall not have many days in the land into which you are crossing the Jordan there to inherit it. 19I call both sky and earth to witness against you today: I have given before you today life and death, blessing and curse. And choose life today, before I have brought them into the land that the Lord has sworn to our fathers to give to them. 8And the Lord, the one who goes with you, will not forsake you or abandon you. Do not fear, nor be frightened.”

9 And Moyses wrote down the words of this law in a book and gave to the priests, the sons of Leui, who carry the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and to the elders of the sons of Israel. 20And Moyses commanded them in that day, saying: “After seven years, in the time of the year of release, during the feast of tent pitching, 13when all Israel comes together to appear before the Lord your God at the place that the Lord may choose, you shall read this law before all Israel in their ears, 12having assembled the people—men and women and progeny and the guest in your cities—so that they may hear and so that they may learn to fear the Lord your God, and they shall listen to perform all the words of this law, 13and their sons, who do not know, shall hear and learn to fear the Lord your God, all the days which they themselves live in the land into which you are crossing over the Jordan there to inherit it. 14And the Lord said to Moyses, “Look, the days of your death have come near; call Iesous, and stand by the entrance of the tent of witness, and I will command him.” 15And Moyses went, and Iesous, into the tent of witness, and they stood by the entrance of the tent of witness, 13and the Lord descended in a cloud, and he stood at the entrance of the tent of witness, and the pillar of cloud stood at the entrance of the tent.

16 And the Lord said to Moyses, “Look, you are lying down with your fathers. And this people, having risen up, will prostitute after foreign gods. 17The land into which it is going there into it, and they will forsake me and break my covenant that I have established with them. 18And I shall be angry with them in that day, and I will abandon them and turn away my face from them, and it will become food, and many evils and afflictions will find it. And in that day it will say, ‘Because the Lord my God is not with me, these evils have found me.’ 19But I by turning will turn my face from them on that day, on account of all the evils they have done, because they turned to foreign gods. 20And now write the words of this song, and teach it to the sons of Israel, and put it in their mouth in order that this song may be to me a witness among the sons of Israel. 21For I will bring them into the good land which I swore to their fathers, a land flowing with milk and honey, and they shall eat and, filled, shall be sated and will turn to foreign gods and serve them and provoke me and break my covenant. 22And this song will confront them, by witnessing contrariwise, for it will not be forgotten from the mouth of their offspring. For I know their evil, what they are doing here today, before I have brought them into the

a he shall make it heard to us = Wev good land that I swore to their fathers.”

22 And on that day Moyses wrote this song and taught it to the sons of Israel.

23 And he commanded Iesous and said, “Be manly and strong, for you shall bring the sons of Israel into the land that the Lord swore to them, and he will be with you.”

24 Now when Moyses had finished writing down in a book all the words of this law, to the very end, then he commanded the Leuites, who carry the ark of the covenant of the Lord, saying, having taken the book of this law you shall put it beside the ark of the covenant of the Lord your God, and it shall be there as a witness against you.

25 For I know your rebelliousness and your hard neck. For, while I am still alive among you today, you are being fractious concerning the things of God, how not also after my death? 26 For I know that, after my demise, with lawlessness you will act lawlessly and turn aside from the way that I have commanded you. And the evils will come upon you at the end of days, because you will do what is evil in the sight of the Lord, to provoke him through the works of your hands.”

30 And Moyses spoke the words of this song, to the very end, in the ears of the whole assembly of Israel:

32 Give heed, O sky, and I will speak, and let the earth hear words from my mouth.

2 Let my utterance be awaited like rain, and let my words come down like dew, like a rainstorm on dog’s tooth grass, and like a snowstorm on grass.

3 For I have called out the name of the Lord; ascribe greatness to our God!

4 God—his works are genuine, and all his ways are justice. A faithful god, and there is no injustice, a righteous and holy Lord;

5 blemished children, not his, have sinned, a generation, crooked and perverse.

6 Do you thus repay the Lord these things, O people, foolish and not wise? Did not he himself, your father, acquire you and make you and create you?

7 Remember days of old; consider years of a generation of generations; ask your father, and he will inform you, your elders, and they will tell you.

8 When the Most High was apportioning nations, as he scattered Adam’s sons, he fixed boundaries of nations according to the number of divine sons, and his people Iakob became the Lord’s portion, Israel a measured part of his inheritance.

9 He made him self-sufficient in a desert land, in thirst of heat, in a waterless place; he encircled him and educated him and guarded him as the apple of his eye.

10 Like an eagle to protect his brood, he too yearned for his young spreading his wings, he received them and bore them aloft on his back; the Lord alone was leading them, and no foreign god was with them.

11 He made them ascend onto the strength of the land, fed them with produce of the fields; they sucked honey from a rock and oil from solid rock, butter of cows and milk of sheep, with fat of lambs and rams; of the sons of bulls and of goats, with fat of kidneys of wheat—and they drank wine, blood of grapes.

12 And Iakob ate and was filled, and the beloved one kicked. He grew fat; he became heavy; he became broad! And he abandoned God who made him, and he departed from God his savior.

13 They provoked me with foreign things; by their abominations they embittered me. They sacrificed to demons and not to God, to gods they did not know. New, recent ones have come, whom their fathers did not know.

14 You abandoned God who bore you, and you forgot God who nurtures you.

15 And the Lord saw it and was jealous, and he was provoked on account of the wrath of his sons and daughters.

16 And he said: I will turn away my face from them, and I will show what will happen to them at the end, for it is a perverse generation, sons who have no faithfulness in them.

17 They made me jealous with what is no nation, provoked me with a nation lacking understanding.

18 For a fire has lit up from my anger and will burn as far as Hades below; it will devour earth and its produce and will light up foundations of mountains.

19 I will gather evils against them and will spend my arrows against them: when they are being wasted by famine and by devouring of birds—and recurvation beyond cure. Teeth of beasts I will send against them, with rage of things that drag on the ground.
Deuteronomy 32–33

25 From outside a dagger shall bereave them, and from the inner chambers fear, young man together with maiden, nursing child with one grown old.

26 I said, I will disperse them; indeed, I will cause their memory to cease from among humans;

27 were it not for wrath of the enemies so that they may not last long and so that their adversaries not collaborate, let them not say, "Our hand is high, and it was not the Lord who did all these things."

28 For it is a nation that has lost counsel, and there is no understanding in them.

29 They had no sense to understand these things. Let them accept them for the time to come.

30 How shall one pursue thousands and two remove myriads unless God sold them and the Lord delivered them up?

31 For not like our God are their gods, but our enemies are without understanding.

32 For their vine is from the vine of Sodoma, and their branch from Gomorra; their cluster is a cluster of bile; it is a bunch of bitterness to them;

33 their wine is the wrath of dragons, and the wrath of asps beyond cure.

34 Look, have not these things been gathered with me and sealed up in my treasuries?

35 In a day of vengeance, I will repay, in a time when their foot slips, because near is the day of their destruction and things prepared for you are at hand.

36 For the Lord will judge his people and be comforted over his slaves. For he saw them paralyzed, both failed under attack and enfeebled.

37 And the Lord said: Where are their gods, they in whom they trusted, the fat of whose sacrifices you were eating and were drinking the wine of their libations?

38 Let them rise up and help you, and let them be protectors for you!

39 See, see that I am, and there is no god except me. I will kill, and I will make alive; I will strike, and I will heal, and there is no one who will deliver from my hands.

40 For I will lift up my hand to the sky, and I will swear by my right hand, and I will say: I live forever, 41 because I will sharpen my dagger like lightning, and my hand will take hold on judgment, and I will repay my enemies with a sentence, and those who hate me I will repay.

42 I will make my arrows drunk with blood—and my dagger shall devour flesh—with the blood of the wounded and of captives, from the head of the commanders of the enemies.

43 Be glad, O skies, with him, and let all the divine sons do obeisance to him. Be glad, O nations, with his people, and let all the angels of God prevail for him.

44 For he will avenge the blood of his sons and take revenge and repay the enemies with a sentence, and he will repay those who hate, and the Lord shall cleanse the land of his people.

45 And Moyses wrote this song in that day and taught it to the sons of Israel. And Moyses entered and spoke all the words of this law in the ears of the people, he and Iesous the son of Naue. 45 And Moyses finished speaking to all Israel. 46 and he said to them: "Pay heed with your heart to all these words that I am testifying against you today, which things you shall command your sons, to guard and to perform all the words of this law. 47 Because this is not an empty word for you, since it is your very life, and through this word you shall live long in the land into which you are crossing over the Jordan there to inherit."

48 And on this day the Lord spoke to Moyses, saying: 49 "Ascend the mountain, this Abarim, Mount Nabau, which is in the land of Moab, across from Jericho, and view the land of Chanaan, which I am giving to the sons of Israel as a possession, 50 and die on the mountain upon which you are ascending there, and be added to your people as your brother Aaron died on Hor the mountain and was added to his people, 51 because you both disobeyed my word among the sons of Israel at the water of dispute at Kades in the wilderness of Sin, because you both did not sanctify me among the sons of Israel. 52 Because you shall view the land from a distance, but you shall not enter there.

33 And this is the blessing with which Moyses, man of God, blessed the sons of Israel before his death. 2 And he said: The Lord has come from Sina and appeared to us from Seir and hasted from Mount Pharan with myriads of Kades;
at his right, angels with him.

And he spared his people, and all of the sanctified ones were under your hands—
even these are under you, and it accepted from his words a law,
which Moyses commanded us, an inheritance for the congregations of Jakob.

And he shall be a ruler in the beloved one, when rulers of peoples have been gathered together with the tribes of Israel.

Let Rouben live and not die out, and let him be many in number.

And this of Ioudas:
Listen, O Lord, to the voice of Ioudas, and you could enter into his people;
his hands will decide for him, and you will be a helper from his enemies.

And to Leui he said:
Give Leui his clearest explanation and his truth to the devout man, whom they tempted him with temptation.
They reviled him at the water of dispute.

He who was saying to his father and his mother,
"I have not seen you," and he did not acknowledge his brothers and did not acknowledge his sons—he guarded your oracles and kept your covenant.

They shall show Jakob your statutes and Israel your law;
they shall place incense in your wrath continually on your altar.

Bless, O Lord, his strength, and accept the works of his hands;
shatter the loins of his enemies that have risen up against him, and those that hate him, let them not rise up.

Beloved by the Lord he shall encamp in confidence—and God overshadows him all the days—and he rested between his shoulders.

His land is from the Lord’s blessing, from the seasons of the sky and of dew and from unfathomable springs below and in a season of produce of the sun’s changes and from conjunctions of months and from the top of mountains of yore and from the top of the everlasting hills
and in a season of earth’s fullness.
And may the things acceptable to him who appeared in the bush come on the head of Joseph and on his crown, when he was glorified among brothers.

A firstborn of a bull—his beauty!
His horns are horns of a unicorn;
with them he will gore nations,
all at once as far as earth’s end.
These are the myriads of Ephraim;
these the thousands of Manasse.

Be glad, Zaboulon said:
In your going out, and, Issachar, in his coverts.

They shall utterly destroy nations, and you shall invoke there, and you shall sacrifice a sacrifice of righteousness, for the riches of the sea will suckle you and the trade of those living by the seacoast.

Blessed be the one who expands Gad!
He rested like a lion, having broken arm and ruler.

And he saw his first fruit, for there was apportioned a land of rulers, gathered together with chiefs of peoples, the Lord executed righteousness and his judgment with Israel.

Dan is a lion’s whelp, and he shall leap forth from Basan.

Nephthali has a fullness of things acceptable, and let him be filled with blessing from the Lord;
he shall inherit the sea and the southwest.

Blessed of children be Aser, and he shall be acceptable to his brothers;
he shall dip his foot in oil.

His sandal will be iron and bronze, and as your days, so is your strength.

There is none like the God of the beloved;
he who rides upon the sky is your helper and the magnificent one of the firmament.

27 And there is divine protection of yore and under the strength of the everlasting arms, and he will drive out the enemy before you, saying, “May you perish!”

28 And Israel will encamp in confidence, alone in Jakob’s land with grain and wine, and the sky is cloudy with dew for him.

29 Happy are you, O Israel! Who is like you, a people saved by the Lord? Your helper will shield you, and the dagger will be your boast! And your enemies shall speak falsely to you, and you shall tread on their neck.

34 And Moyses went up from Araboth of Moab to Mount Nabau, to the top of Phasga, which is opposite Jericho, and the Lord showed him all the land: Galaad as far as Dan and all the land of Nephthali and all the land of Ephraim and Manasse and all the land of Ioudas as far as the last sea and the wilderness and the environs of Jericho, a city of palm trees—as far as Segor. 4 And the Lord said to Moyses, “This is the land of which I swore to Abraam and Isaak and Jakob, saying, ‘I will give it to your offspring, I showed it to your eyes, but you shall not enter there.’ 5 And Moyses, the domestic of the Lord, died there in the land of Moab, through the word of the Lord. 6 And they buried him in Gai, in the land of Moab, near the house of Phogor, but no one knows his grave to this day. 7 Now Moyses was one hundred twenty years old when he died; his eyes were neither dimmed nor were they ruined. 8 And the sons of Israel wept for Moyses in Araboth of Moab, near the Jordan, opposite Jericho, thirty days, and the days of mourning of the weeping for Moyses were ended. 9 And Iesous son of Naue was filled with the spirit of understanding, because Moyses had laid his hands on him, and the sons of Israel listened to him and did as the Lord had commanded Moyses. 10 And there has not again arisen a prophet in Israel like Moyses whom the Lord knew face-to-face, with all the signs and wonders, whom the Lord sent to do them in the land of Egypt, against Pharao and his attendants and his entire land and the great wonders and the strong hand which Moyses exhibited before all Israel.
IESOUS

EDITION OF THE GREEK TEXT
For this translation I have made use of the edition of A. Rahlfs, Septuaginta. Id est Vetus Testamentum graece iuxta LXX interpretes, 2 vols. (Stuttgart: Württembergische Bibelanstalt, 1935). I did not deviate from its text or punctuation. At three places—in chapters 15, 18, and 19—Rahlfs presented the texts of Codex Vaticanus (B) and Codex Alexandrinus (A) in separate columns. Each of these instances involves lists of place names, often obscure ones. I have followed Rahlfs by translating these columns separately.

An earlier edition of Greek Joshua was prepared by Max L. Margolis in the 1920s and early 1930s and published as The Book of Joshua in Greek: Parts I – IV (Paris: Geuthner, 1931–1938 [repr. 1974]) and The Book of Joshua in Greek: Part V; Joshua 19.39–24.33 (preface E. Tov; Philadelphia: Annenberg Research Institute, 1992). Margolis and Rahlfs agree that the text of Iesous as preserved in Codex B is in many respects a close approximation of the Old Greek (OG) version as it left the hands of the original translator(s). But they often differ, both in small points and in their approach to the frequently enigmatic way in which the many place names of Hebrew Joshua are represented in the Greek traditions. My decision to follow Rahlfs should not be taken to mean that I agree with Rahlfs over Margolis in every instance. The easier accessibility of the Rahlfs version makes it prudent to give it precedence in NETS. In any case, Rahlfs will be superseded by the Göttingen edition, which is in the process of preparation.

TRANSLATION PROFILE OF THE LXX OF JOSHUA

General Character
The Greek of LXX Joshua has been variously described as “one of the most interesting books of the Greek Bible,” “a thoughtful version” and “[striking] a balance between literalness and freedom.” By and large, it, like the corresponding Hebrew, is fairly easy to read.

Comparison with LXX Pentateuch
There are few, if any, indications of the specific date or locale in which the LXX of Joshua was produced; recently the case has been made for a mid-third century BCE date. There is indeed much evidence to commend the view that the person(s) responsible for LXX Joshua, while not feeling bound by the Greek translation of the Pentateuch, did make extensive use of this earlier text. Particularly instructive is LXX Joshua’s use of θυσιαστήριον, possibly to distinguish a “licit” altar from one the text condemns. So, for example, at 22.19 Hebrew (ynw) hwhy xbzm yd(lbm xbzm (“an altar other than the altar of the LORD our God”), LXX Joshua has bwmo e1cw tou= qusiasthri/ou kuri/ou tou = qeou= h9mw~n (“an altar other than the altar of the Lord our God”).

Variation in Translation
The Greek translator of Joshua, although maintaining standard renderings for a number of terms, also shows a marked tendency to vary them—and not just in instances of potential exegetical importance, as at 22.19 above. Another example of such variation is provided at 5.2 and 3. In both verses the Hebrew reads בּרֹכָּה הָנְבָאָה; the LXX has μοιχαῖρας πετρίνας [ἐκ πέτρας ὀχροτόμου] in v. 2 but μοιχαῖρας πετρίνας [ἀχροτόμους] in v. 3. It should be noted, however, that in both cases the words I have placed in square brackets have no counterpart in MT and may be textual rather than translational. The Hebrew idiom “to blow the horn” always requires the preposition -ב, as in 6.13. kai oi ierεις αὐλαπίσσων ταίς σάλπιξι, though without explicitly reproducing the Hebrew preposition. Elsewhere and even in close proximity (v. 16), however, the Greek verb alone is made to suffice (ἰσάλπισσος οἱ ἱερεῖς). The former I have translated as “sounded with the trumpets” but the latter as “trumpeted”. Among individual and recurring words that the Greek translator handled differently throughout the book of Joshua are ἣλ (δούλος, θεράπων, ποῖς) and ἤλπι (ἐντέλλομαι, συντάσσω).
Relationship between MT and LXX

The determination of the relationship between the MT and the OG of Joshua has attracted considerable scholarly debate in the last few decades. Overall, it has been estimated, the Greek version of Joshua is 4–5% shorter than the MT.

This percentage should not obscure the variety of differences between the Greek and Hebrew. (1) In many small details (which are often qualitative rather than quantitative), the two traditions differ. Three examples from proper names are instructive in this regard: throughout chapter 7, מַעֲנֵי (Maunye) becomes Αξαρά; קִדְדְוָתָן (Kiddo'ath) in chapter 10; and the site where יְשׁוּעַ (Joshua) assembles the Israelites for the last time (in chapter 24) is מַעֲנֵי in the MT, Σηλω in the LXX.

(2) Substantial differences of meaning occur, for example, in chapter 5, even when the number of words is nearly the same. In this regard, none is more dramatic than the LXX statement (5.4) that there were uncircumcised males among the Israelites who left Egypt: καὶ ὄσοι ποτὲ ἀπερίτμητοι ἦσαν τῶν ἐξεληλυθότων ἐξ Αἴγυπτου—in the face of the MT affirmation (5.5) that all the people who came out of Egypt had been circumcised:

μετὰ ᾽Ιόν γῆς ἔλθαν καὶ ἐκκαθάρισθησαν τῆν πόλιν ἐξ οὗ ἦν ἐκεῖνον. Also of considerable interest is the variation in the number of years the Israelites were in the wilderness (v. 6): forty-two in the LXX, forty in the MT.

(3) In chapter 6, the LXX is 10% shorter than the MT, and in chapter 20, three verses from the MT are absent in the LXX. Fairly typical in this regard is 6.15 in the LXX: καὶ ἡ ἡμέρα τῆς ἐξόδου ἀνέστησαν ὀρθῶν καὶ περιήλθοσαν τὴν πόλιν ἐξάκις ("And on the seventh day they rose at dawn and marched around the city seven times"), in comparison with the MT of the same verse. In chapter 20, vv. 1–2 and 7–9 are parallel in the LXX and MT; what follows in the MT as vv. 3–7 appears far more succinctly in v. 3 of the LXX.

(4) On occasion, the LXX has material not found in the MT, specifically in chapters 21 and 24. Especially notable is the reference in 21.42d to "the flint knives": καὶ ἔλαβεν ἰσακία τὰς πετρίνας; in chapter 24.31a as τὰς μαχαίρις τὰς πετρίνας. (It is worth observing that this wording differs from the renderings in chapter 5, noted above.) LXX Joshua concludes with two verses (33a–b) that form a distinctive link (vis-à-vis the MT) with the following book of Judges.

The majority of contemporary scholars locate many, if not most, of these differences, especially the larger ones, in a Hebrew Vorlage of the LXX that differed from the MT in these respects. Other scholars would allow a far greater role for interpretive activity on the part of those responsible for LXX Joshua. My translation does not depend on the acceptance of one or the other view or any permutation of them.

Hebraisms

In working through LXX Joshua, I have come to acknowledge what I would term the translation’s strengths and weaknesses. Preeminent among the strengths, as I see them, is a sincere desire on the part of the translator to convey to his (original) audience the sense and the structure of his Hebrew Vorlage as he understood them. His retention of some Hebraisms may well have made his version tough going for all but those who were truly bilingual, but his dedication to the base text does not seem to have flagged, except perhaps in the long and involved lists of place names that predominate in the book’s mid-section.

In addition to several Hebraisms mentioned earlier, I highlight here two other instances, one found only once in Iesous, the other, recurrent. At 14.9, מִּשְׁפַּת מִי־לָעַט בִּלְדֵי יְשׁוּעַ is rendered, somewhat freely, by the NRSV as “because you have wholeheartedly followed the LORD my God.” Initially I had translated the corresponding Greek—ὅτι προσέτησθε ἐπακολουθήσατε ὑπὸ εὐφανείας τοῦ θεοῦ ἡμῶν—as "because you have continued to follow closely after the Lord our God." Since προστίθημι regularly renders ἐπακολουθήσατε with the meaning “continue to”—although the Greek verb does not have this meaning outside of the LXX—I determined that “continue to,” rather than “add to” (the common, non-LXX meaning) would be appropriate. I finally settled on “apply oneself to” (so, “because you have applied yourself to”) as the rendering that best suited the context.

The Hebrew at 24.13, לֵב בְּהֵן הָעַד לְכָל דֵּלֵבם ("land on which you had not labored"), would be adequately and effectively rendered into Greek by γῆν ἐφ’ ἑνώ ἐκκαθάριστε; the fuller LXX, with ἐν ούτῃ, is clearly not a “natural” or “normal” koine idiom and can only be explained as a reflex of לֵב in the source text. The NETS translation, “a land, that on which you did not labor,” is an attempt to reflect the awkwardness of the Greek.

Transliteration

To illustrate the difficulties faced by the modern researcher—as well, I suspect, as the ancient translator and those who transmitted his words—we may look at a small section of the several chapters and many verses devoted to lists, specifically chapter 19.3–4 (describing a portion of the territory allotted to Symeon [LXX] or Simeon [MT]). What follows in transcription is Codex Vaticanus (B), Codex Alexandrinus (A), and the MT (as rendered in the NRSV):

\begin{array}{ccc}
B & A & MT \\
3 & 3 \text{Harsola and Bola}
 & 3 \text{Hasersoual and Bathoul}
 & 3 \text{Hazar-shual, Balah,} & \text{and Asom}
 & \text{and Bola and Asom} & \text{Ezem,}
 & 4 \text{and Elthoula and Boula}
 & 4 \text{and Elthoulad and Herma}
 & 4 \text{Eltolad, Bethul,} & \text{and Herma}
 & \text{Hormah,} \end{array}

In his version, Max Margolis (see above) reconstructed the oldest Greek of these verses in this way:

3 καὶ Ασσωλ καὶ Βωλὰ καὶ Ασωμ 4 καὶ Ελθωλάδ καὶ Βεθολ καὶ Ερμα.

In arriving at these transcriptions he relied heavily on the Onomasticon of Eusebius, resorting to conjecture (only) in the case of Ασωμ. It was Margolis’ judgment that Codex Alexandrinus, as a chief exemplar of his Constantinopolitan group, was on the whole a better witness than Codex Vaticanus to the earliest forms of place names, especially rare ones, although (as can be seen here) its testimony is far from faultless.

Other Translation Issues

I have wrestled with several other practices on the part of LXX Joshua. In particular, I decided, in accordance with NETS policy, not to smooth out the many rough edges of the translation. Where sentences lack syntactic cohesion, I indicate this, often with one or more dashes. An example of this is found at 7.14: καὶ ἐσται ὡς φυλή, ἐν ᾧ ἂν δεῖξῃ κύριος, προσαξεῖτε κατὰ δῆμοις, “And it shall be that the tribe that the Lord shows—you shall bring it near by districts.”

In one case, I would have wished to part company with my NETS colleagues. It seems to me that, in the majority of cases, LXX Joshua’s πρὸς (or ἐπὶ) θάλασσαν should be translated “westward” (or “to the West”), rather than “seaward” or “to the sea.” This is especially the case when the translator clearly understood other, parallel terms as directional, as in 18.12ff, where ἐπὶ τὴν θάλασσαν and πρὸς θάλασσαν are in parallel with ἀπὸ βορρᾶ, ἀπὸ λιβός and similar terms. The use of “sea” as a directional designation is without parallel in extra-LXX contexts, thus precluding my use of directional terminology in my translation for this expression.

The Book of Iesous (Joshua) in NETS and in the NRSV

The NRSV’s rendering of the book of Joshua is not as literal as that of its predecessor, the RSV. On a number of occasions, this can give the impression that the MT and the LXX of Joshua are more at variance than they actually are. Especially in the earlier chapters, I made a conscious effort to retain NRSV wording when it was a possible equivalent for the Greek; as time went on, I tended to up the ante, as it were, to probable equivalent. I sensed the need to reflect my perception of Greek nuances over against the collective responsibility to prepare an English rendering of the LXX that can be used synoptically with the NRSV.

Earlier Renderings of the LXX into English

Although there are problems with both its Greek base text and the accompanying English-language version, it is stil useful to consult Brenton.

Leonard J. Greenspoon
And it happened after the death of Moyses that the Lord spoke to Iesous son of Naue, Moyses’ assistant, saying, “Moyses my attendant is dead. Now then rise up to cross the Jordan, you and all this people, into the land that I am giving to them. Every place upon which you tread with the sole of your feet, to you I will give it, as I promised to Moyses, the wilderness and Anti-Lebanon as far as the great river, the river Euphrates, and as far as the farthest sea; from the setting of the sun shall be your boundaries. No person shall stand against you all the days of your life. And just as I was with Moyses, so I will also be with you, and I will not forsake you or overlook you. Be strong and manly, for you shall divide for this people the land that I swore to your ancestors to give to them. Be strong, therefore, and manly, to observe and act as Moyses my servant commanded you, and you shall not turn aside from them to the right or to the left so that you may be perceptive in everything you do. And the book of this law shall not depart out of your mouth, and you shall meditate on it day and night so that you may understand how to do all that is written. Then you shall prosper and make your ways prosperous, and then you shall be perceptive. Look, I have commanded you: Be strong and manly; do not be cowardly or frightened, for the Lord your God is with you in all things, we will obey you. Only let the Lord your God be with you, as he was with Moyses. But the person who is disobedient towards you and whoever disobeys your words, as you command him, let him die. Be strong and manly.”

And Iesous son of Naue sent two young men from Sattin to spy, saying, “Go up, and view the land, especially Iericho.” And the two young men went and entered Iericho, and they entered the house of a prostitute whose name was Raab and lodged there. And it was reported to the king of Iericho, saying, “Men of the sons of Israel have come here to spy out the land.” And the king of Iericho sent and spoke to Raab, saying, “Bring out the men who entered your house tonight, for they have come to spy out the land.” And the woman took the men and hid them, and she said to them, saying, “The men came to me. But when the gate was closed at dark, then the men went out. Where they went I do not know. Pursue after them, if you can overtake them.” She had, however, brought them up upon the roof and hid them in the flax-straw that she had laid out upon the roof. And the men pursued after them on the way by the Jordan to the fords, and the gate was closed.

And it happened, when those who were pursuing after them had gone out and before they too went to sleep, she too came up on the roof to them and said to them, “I know that the Lord has given you the land, for the dread of you has fallen on us. For we have heard that the Lord God died upon the Red Sea before you when you came out of the land of Egypt and what he did to the two kings of the Amorites that were beyond the Jordan, to Seon and Og, those whom you utterly destroyed. And when we heard it, we were distraught in our heart, and there was no spirit left in any of us from before you, for the Lord your God is God in heaven above and on the earth below. And now, since I am showing you pity, swear to me by the Lord God that you also in turn will show pity in the house of my father and my mother and my brothers and all my house and all that belong to them and deliver my soul from death.” And the men said to her, “Our soul for yours unto death.” And she said, “When the Lord hands over to you the city, you shall show me pitty and truth.”

And she let them down through the window. And she said to them, “Depart into the hill country so that the pursuers may not come upon you. And you shall be hidden there three days until those who pursue after you have returned, and afterward you shall depart on your way.” And the men said to her, “We are free from this oath of yours. Look, we are entering a part of the city, and you shall set in place the sign. You shall tie this scarlet cord in the window through which you let us down, and you shall gather to yourself, into your house, your father and your mother and your brothers and all your father’s family. And it shall be that everyone who goes out of the door of your house into the street, he shall be liable on his own account, and we will be free from this oath of yours. And any who are with you in your house, we shall be liable. But if anyone wrongs us or also discloses this business of ours, we shall be free from this oath of yours.” And she said to them, “According to your word, so let it be.” And she sent them away.
And they departed and went into the hill country and stayed there three days. And the pursuers searched all the roads and did not find them. And the two young men returned and came down from the mountain. And they crossed over to Iesous son of Naue and told him all that had happened to them. And they said to Iesous, "The Lord has given all the land into our hand, and everyone who inhabits that land cowers because of us."

And Iesous rose early in the morning and departed out of Sattin, and they came as far as the Jordan and lodged there before crossing over. And it happened after three days that the scribes went through the camp and commanded the people, saying, "When you see the ark of the covenant of the Lord our God and our priests and the Levites carrying it, you shall depart from your places. And go after it. But let there be a distance between you and it, as much as two thousand cubits. You shall stand still. Do not approach it so that you may know the way whereby you will go, for you have not gone the way from yesterday and the third day." And Iesous said to the people, "Purify yourselves for tomorrow; for tomorrow among you the Lord will do wonders." And Iesous said to the priests, "Take up the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and go before the people." And the priests took up the ark of the covenant of the Lord and went in front of the people.

And the Lord said to Iesous, "On this day I am beginning to exalt you before all the sons of Israel so that they may know that as I was with Moyses, so will I be also with you. And now command the priests who bear the ark of the covenant, saying, 'When you enter upon a part of the water of the Jordan, then you shall stand still, and the stone from there, let him carry it on his shoulders, and when each has taken up a stone from there, let him carry it on his shoulders, according to the number of the twelve tribes of Israel. So that these may exist as a sign for you, in place for all time; so that when your son asks you tomorrow, saying, 'What are these stones to you?' then you shall explain to your son, saying, 'Because the river Jordan failed from before the ark of the covenant of the Lord of all the earth, when it crossed over it. And these stones shall be to you a memorial, to the sons of Israel forever.'"

And the sons of Israel did so, as the Lord commanded Iesous. And they took up twelve stones out of the middle of the Jordan, as the Lord instructed Iesous at the completion of the crossing over of the sons of Israel, and they carried them river with them to the camp and laid them down there. Now Iesous also set up another twelve stones in the Jordan itself, in the place that was under the feet of the priests who bore the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and they are there until this very day.

Now the priests who bore the ark of the covenant stood in the Jordan until Iesous finished everything the Lord commanded him to tell the people. And the people hastened, and they crossed over. And it happened, as soon as all the people had finished crossing over, that the ark of the covenant of the Lord passed over, and the stones in front of them. And the sons of Rouben and the sons of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasse crossed over equipped before the sons of Israel, as Moyses had commanded them. Forty thousand well girded for battle passed over before the Lord for war against the city of Jericho.

On that day the Lord exalted Iesous before the whole race of Israel, and they feared him, as they had Moyses, for as long a time as he lived. And the Lord said to Iesous, saying, "Command the priests who bear the ark of the covenant of the Lord to come up out of the Jordan." And Iesous commanded the priests, saying, "Come up out of the Jordan."
And it happened, as soon as the priests who bore the ark of the covenant of the Lord came up out of the Jordan and set their feet on the land, that the water of the Jordan rushed headlong into place and went as yesterday and the third day throughout all its banks.

And the people went up out of the Jordan on the tenth of the first month, and the sons of Israel encamped in Galgala in the part toward sunrise, from Jericho. And those twelve stones, which he had taken out of the Jordan, Iesous set up in Galgala, saying, ‘What are these stones?’ 22 proclaim to your sons, ‘Israel crossed over the Jordan on dry ground, when the Lord our God dried up the water of the Jordan from before them until they crossed over, as the Lord our God did to the Red Sea, which the Lord our God dried up before us until we passed by, so that all the nations of the earth may know that the power of the Lord is mighty and in order that you may worship the Lord your God for all time.’

And it happened, when the kings of the Amorites, who were beyond the Jordan, and the kings of Phoenicia by the sea heard that the Lord God had dried up the Jordan river from before the sons of Israel when they crossed over, that their hearts melted, and they were panic-stricken, and there was no understanding in them, from before the sons of Israel.

Now about that time, the Lord said to Iesous, “Make for yourself flint knives out of sharp rock, and sit down, and circumcise the sons of Israel.” 3 And Iesous made sharp flint knives and circumcised the sons of Israel at the place called Hill of Foreskins. 4 And how Iesous completely purified the sons of Israel—as many as were born on the way and as many as were uncircumcised of those who had come out of Egypt—3 all these Iesous circumcised. 6 For Israel had gone about in the wilderness of Madbaritis for forty-two years, wherefore most of their warriors who had come out of the land of Egypt were uncircumcised, those who disobeyed God’s ordinances, concerning whom he also determined that they would not see the land that the Lord had sworn to their forefathers to give to us, a land flowing with milk and honey. 7 And in their place he raised up their sons, whom Iesous circumcised because they remained uncircumcised on the way. 8 Now when they had been circumcised, they kept quiet there, remaining in the camp until they were healed. 9 And the Lord said to Iesous son of Naue, “On this very day I have taken away the reproach of Egypt from you.” And he called the name of that place Galgala.

And the sons of Israel kept the pascha on the fourteenth day of the month from evening at sunset at Jericho on the opposite side of the Jordan in the plain. 11 And they ate from the grain of the land, things unleavened and fresh. On this day the manna ceased, after they had eaten from the grain of the land, and the sons of Israel no longer had manna, and they enjoyed the fruit of the country of the Phoenicians in that year. 12 And it happened, when Iesous was at Jericho, that he looked up with his eyes and saw a person standing before him, and his sword was drawn in his hand. And Iesous approached and said to him, “Are you one of us or on the side of our adversaries?” 14 Then he said to him, “As commander-in-chief of the force of the Lord I have now come.” And Iesous fell facedown onto the earth, and he said to him, “Master, what do you order your domestics?” 15 And the commander-in-chief of the Lord said to Iesous, “Loosen the sandal from your feet, for the place where you stand is holy.”

6 And Jericho was completely closed up and fortified, and no one came out from it nor went in. 7 And the Lord said to Iesous, “Look, I am delivering Jericho into your control, and its king in it, mighty ones in strength. 3 And you, station around it the warriors in a circle. 5 And it shall be as soon as you sound with the trumpet, let all the people shout together. And when they shout, the walls of the city will fall spontaneously, and all the people shall enter, each one rushing headlong into the city.” 6 And Iesous the son of Naue went in to the priests and spoke to them, saying, “Charge the people to go around and surround the city. And let the warriors pass by in arms before the Lord. 8 And let seven priests holding seven sacred trumpets proceed in this manner before the Lord, and let them signal vigorously. And let the ark of the covenant of the Lord follow. 9 And let the warriors go before, and the priests who bring up the rear, behind the ark of the covenant of the Lord, as they walk and trumpet.” 10 And the people Iesous commanded, saying, “Do not shout, and do not let anyone hear your voice until the day he himself tells you to shout, and then you shall shut.” 11 And when the ark of the covenant of God had gone around the city, it immediately went back into the camp and lodged there.

12 And on the second day Iesous rose in the morning, and the priests took up the ark of the covenant of the Lord. 13 And the seven priests carrying the seven trumpets passed on before the Lord, and afterwards the warriors entered, and the rest of the crowd behind the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and the priests sounded with the trumpets. And all the rest of the crowd encircled the city from close at hand, 14 and went back again into the camp. Thus they kept doing for six days.

15 And on the seventh day they rose at dawn and marched around the city seven times. 16 And on the seventh circuit the priests trumpeted, and Iesous said to the sons of Israel, “Cry out, for the Lord has given you the city. 17 And the city shall be devoted, it and all that is in it, to the Lord Sabaoth. Only keep safe Raab the prostitute, her and what is in her house. 18 But you, keep well away from what is devoted so that you yourselves do not covet and take any of what is devoted and make the camp of the sons of Israel a devoted thing and annihilate us. 19 And all silver or gold or bronze or iron shall be sacred to the Lord; it shall be carried into the treasury of the Lord.”

20 And the priests sounded with the trumpets. And as soon as the people heard the sound of the trumpets, all the people at the same time raised a great and strong shout, and the whole wall fell down all around. And all the people went up into the city. 21 And with the edge of the sword lesous devoted it and all that was in the city, from man even to woman, from young man even to old, and even to calf and draft animal.

22 And lesous said to the two young men who had served as spies, “Go into the woman’s house, and bring her out from there and all that is hers.”

23 And the two young men who had spied out the city went into the house of the woman and brought out Raab the prostitute and her father and her mother and her brothers and all that was hers and her kindred. And they set her outside the camp of Israel. 24 And the city was burned with burning with all that was in it. Only things of silver and gold and bronze and iron did they give, to be brought into the treasury of the Lord. 25 And Raab the prostitute and all her father’s house lesous kept alive, and it has dwelled in Israel until this very day. For she hid the spies whom lesous sent to spy out Iericho.

26 And lesous swore on that day before the Lord, saying,

“Cursed be the person who shall build that city. At the cost of his firstborn he shall find it, and at the cost of his youngest he shall set up its gates.”

And thus did Ozan of Baithel; at the cost of Abiron, his firstborn, he founded it, and at the cost of his youngest, although he escaped, he set up its gates.

27 And the Lord was with lesous, and his name was in all the land.

And the sons of Israel committed a major offense and appropriated for themselves part of what was devoted. And Achar son of Charmi son of Zambri son of Zara, of the tribe of Loudas, took from what was devoted, and the Lord was furiously angry with the sons of Israel.

2 And lesous sent men to Gai, which is near Baithel, saying, “Spy out Gai.” And the men went up and spied out Gai. 3 And they returned to lesous and said to him, “Let not all the people go up, but let about two or three thousand men go up and take the city by siege. Do not lead up there the whole people, for they are few.”

4 And about three thousand men went up, and they fled before the men of Gai. 5 And of them the men of Gai killed up to thirty-six men. And they pursued them from the gate, and they crushed them on the slope. And the heart of the people was terrified and became like water.

6 And lesous tore his clothes, and lesous fell on the ground face down before the Lord until evening, he and the elders of Israel, and they threw dust on their heads. 7 And lesous said, “I pray, Lord, why has your servant brought this people across the Jordan, to hand them over to the Amorite so as to destroy us? If only we had remained and been settled beyond the Jordan. 8 And what shall I say, since Israel has turned its neck before its enemy? 9 And when the Chananite and all the inhabitants of the land hear, they will surround us and wipe us out from the land. And what will you make of your great name?”

10 And the Lord said to lesous, “Stand up. Why is it that you have fallen upon your face? 11 The people have sinned and transgressed the covenant that I made with them. And they have stolen from what is devoted and put it into their own belongings. 12 The sons of Israel shall not be able to stand before their enemies; they shall turn their neck before their enemies, because they have become what is devoted. I will be with you no longer, unless you remove what is devoted from yourselves. 13 Stand up, sanctify the people, and tell them to be sanctified for tomorrow. This is what the Lord God of Israel says, ‘What is devoted is among you. You will be unable to withstand before your enemies until you remove what is devoted from among you.

14 And all of you shall be gathered together in the morning by tribes. And it shall be that the tribe that the Lord shows—you shall bring it near by districts. And the district that the Lord shows you shall bring near by household. And the household that the Lord shows you shall bring near by man. 15 And the one who is indicated shall be burned with fire, and all that he has, because he has transgressed the covenant of the Lord and has committed lawlessness in Israel.”

16 And lesous rose early and brought the people near by tribes, and the tribe of Loudas was shown. 17 And it was brought near by districts, and the Zarai district was shown. And it was brought near by man, 18 and Achar son of Zambri son of Zara was shown. 19 And lesous said to Achar, “Give glory today to the Lord, God of Israel, and make the confession. And tell me what you have done, and do not hide it from me.” 20 And Achar answered lesous and said, “Truly I have sinned against the Lord, God of Israel. Thus and so have I done. 21 I saw in the spoil a beautiful, many-colored carpet and two hundred didrachmas of silver and one golden tongue-shaped object of fifty didrachmas, and I coveted them and took them. And look, they are hidden in the ground in my tent, and the silver is hidden underneath them.”

22 And lesous sent messengers, and they ran to the tent into the camp, and these things were hidden in the tent, and the silver was underneath them. 23 And they brought them out of the tent and brought them to lesous and the elders of Israel, and they set them before the Lord. 24 And lesous took Achar son of Zara and brought him up to the ravine of Achar, and his sons and his daughters and his bull calves and his draft animals and all his sheep and his tent and all his belongings—and all the people with him. And he brought them up to Emekachor. 25 And lesous said to Achar, "Why have you destroyed us? May the Lord destroy you as also today.” And all Israel stoned him with stones. 26And they set up over him a great heap of stones. And the Lord ceased from burning anger. Therefore he named it Emekachor* until this day.

8 And the Lord said to Iesous, “Do not fear, nor be afraid. Take with you the men, all the military men, and get up, go up to Gai. See, I have given into your hands the king of Gai and his land. 2And you shall do to Gai as you did to Jericho and its king. And the spoil of the cattle shall you carry away as spoil for yourself. Now set for yourself an ambush against the city, behind.”

3 And Iesous and all the military people got up to go up against Gai. And Iesous picked out thirty thousand men mighty in strength and sent them off by night. 4And he commanded them, saying, “You, lie in ambush behind the city; do not be far from the city, and all of you shall be ready. 5And I and all those with me will approach the city. And it shall be that when the inhabitants of Gai come out against us, as also before, then we shall flee from before them. 6And when they come out after us, we will draw them away from the city. And they will say, ‘They are fleeing from before us, as also previously.’ 7And you shall rise up out of the ambush and go into the city. 8And you shall act according to this word; see, I have commanded you.” 9And Iesous sent them off, and they went to the ambush, and lay between Baithel and between Gai, from the sea of Gai.

10 And Iesous early in the morning mustered the people, and they went up, he and the elders, before the people to Gai. 11And all the military people with him went up, and as they went, they came opposite the city to the east. 12And the ambush of the city was at the sea. 13And it happened, when the king of Gai saw this, that he hurried and went out to meet them directly in battle, he and all the people who were with him, and he did not know that there was an ambush against him behind the city. 14And Iesous and Israel saw it and retreated from before them. 15And they closely pursued after the sons of Israel, and they themselves went away from the city. 16There was no one left in Gai who did not closely pursue after Israel, and they themselves escaped. 17There was no one left in Gai who did not closely pursue after Israel, and they left the city open and closely pursued after Israel.

18 And the Lord said to Iesous, “Stretch out your hand with the javelin that is in your hand toward the city, for I have given it into your hands. And the ambush shall rise up quickly out of its place.” And Iesous stretched out his hand, the javelin, toward the city. 19And the ambush rose up quickly out of its place, and they came out when he stretched out his hand. And they went to the city and took it, and they hurried and set the city on fire with fire. 20And when the inhabitants of Gai looked around behind them, then they beheld smoke rising up out of the city to the sky. And they no longer had anywhere to flee this way or that. 21And Iesous and all Israel saw that the ambush had taken the city and that the smoke of the city rose up to the sky. And they changed course and struck down the men of Gai. 22And these came out from the city to meet them, and they were between the camp, some on one side and some on the other side, and they struck them down until no one was left of them who survived and escaped. 23And they took the king of Gai alive and brought him to Iesous.

24 And when the sons of Israel had finished slaying all those in Gai, those in the plains and on the mountain on the descent, there where they fully pursued them, then Iesous turned back to Gai and struck it with the edge of the sword. 25And those who fell that day, from man even to woman, were twelve thousand—all the inhabitants of Gai. 26Except for the livestock and the spoils that were in the city, all things that the sons of Israel took as spoil, according to the ordinance of the Lord, as the Lord had instructed Iesous. 27And Iesous burned the city with fire; he made it an uninhabited mound forever until this day. 28And he hanged the king of Gai on a forked tree, and he was on the tree until evening. And when the sun set Iesous gave instructions, and they took his body down from the tree and threw him into the hole and set over him a heap of stones until this day.

9 Now when the kings of the Amorrites, who were on the other side of the Jordan, who were in the hill country and who were in the plain and who were in all the coast of the great sea, and who were near Anti-Lebanon, and the Chettites and the Canaanites and the Pherezites and the Heuites and the Amorrites and the Gergesites and the Jebusites heard, they gathered together, all of them with one accord, to make war against Iesous and Israel.

2a(8.30) Then Iesous built an altar to the Lord, the God of Israel, on Mount Gaibal, b(31)as Moses the attendant of the Lord had commanded the sons of Israel, as it is written in the law of Moses, “an altar of whole stones on which iron was not applied,” and he brought up there whole burnt offerings to the Lord and an offering of deliverance. 2c(32)And Iesous wrote on the stones Deuteronomion, d a law of Moses, which he wrote in the presence of the sons of Israel. 2d(33)And all Israel and their elders and their judges and their scribes passed on one side and on the other side of the ark, opposite, and the priests and the Levites took up the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and the guest and the native-born. Half of them were near Mount Garizin and half of them were near Mount Gaibal, as Moses the attendant of the Lord commanded at first, to bless the people. 2e(34)And after these things Iesous thus read all the words of this law, the blessings and the curses, according to all things written in the law of Moses. 2f(35)There was not a word of all that Moses commanded Iesous that Iesous did not read in the ears of all the assembly of the sons of Israel, to the men and the women and the children and the guests who attached themselves to Israel.

3 And the inhabitants of Gabaon heard all that the Lord did to Jericho and to Gai. 4And indeed they on their part acted with cunning, and they went, prepared provisions and got themselves ready. And they put old sacks on their donkeys and old and torn, bound-up wineskins. 5And the hollows of their shoes and their sandals were old and clouted on their feet, and their garments were worn out upon them, and the bread of their prov-ision was dry and moldy and bug-infested. 6And they came to Jesus into the camp of Israel to Galgala, and they said to Jesus and Israel, “We have come from a land far away; now then make a covenant with us.” 7And the sons of Israel said to the Chorrite, “Take heed, lest you live with me, and how am I to make a covenant with you?” 8And they said to Jesus, “We are your domestics.” And Jesus said to them, “From where are you? And from where have you come?” 9And they said, “Your servants have come from a land very far away in the name of the Lord your God; for we have heard his name and what he did in Egypt; and what he did to the kings of the Amorrites who were on the other side of the Jordan, to Seon, king of Hesebon, and to Og, king of Basan, who lived in Astaroth and in Edrain. 10And when they heard, our elders and all the inhabitants of our land spoke to us, saying, ‘Take provision for yourselves for the journey, and go to meet them, and you shall say to them, ‘We are your domestics; now then make a covenant with us.’ ” 11These are the loaves; we took them for our journey when they were hot on the day on which we set out to come to you, but now they are dried and have become bug-infested. 12And they are the skins of wine that we filled when they were new, and they are burst. And our garments and our shoes are worn out because of the very long journey.” 13And the leaders took of their provision and did not ask the leaders to make a covenant with us. “

14And the inhabitants of Gabaon had deserted to Jesus and to Israel, and the Lord shattered them as he did to Jericho and its kings. 15And Jesus called them together and said to them, “Why have you misled me, saying, ‘We live very far from you,’ but you are fellow dwellers, those who live among us? 16And now you are cursed; there shall not be lacking from you a slave or a hewer of wood for me and my God.” 17And they answered Jesus, saying, “It was reported to us what the Lord your God instructed his servant Moses, to give you this land and to destroy us and all its inhabitants from before you, and we greatly feared for our lives before you and did this thing. 18And now, see, we are in your power; do to us as it is pleasing to you and as it seems right to you.” 19And thus they did to them, and Jesus rescued them on that day out of the hands of the sons of Israel, and they did not kill them. 20And Jesus made them on that day hewers of wood and drawers of water for the whole congregation and for the altar of God. Therefore the inhabitants of Gabaon became hewers of wood and drawers of water of the altar of God until this very day, and in the place that the Lord should choose.

10 And when Adonibezek, king of Jerousalem, heard that Jesus had taken Gai and had utterly destroyed it—as they did to Jericho and its king, so they did to Gai and its king—and that the inhabitants of Gabaon had deserted to Jesus and to Israel, 2then they became greatly frightened by means of them, for he knew that Gabaon was a large city, like one of the mother-cities, and all its men were strong. 3And Adonibezek, king of Jerousalem, sent to Ailam, king of Chebron, and to Phidon, king of Jeruimouth, and to Leophtha, king of Lachis, and to Dabir, king of Odollam, saying, “Come up here to me, and help me, and let us go to war with Gabaon, for they have deserted to Jesus and to the sons of Israel.” 4And the five kings of the Jebusites—the king of Jerusalem and the king of Chebron and the king of Jeruimouth and the king of Lachis and the king of Odollam—went up, they and all their people, and surrounded Gabaon and besieged it.

6 And the inhabitants of Gabaon sent to Jesus into the camp of Israel to Galgala, saying, “Do not relax your hands from your servants. Come up to us quickly, and rescue us, and help us, for all the kings of the Amorrites who live in the hill country are gathered together against us.” 7And Jesus went up out of Galgala, he and all the military people with him, every one mighty in strength. 8And the Lord said to Jesus, “Do not fear them, for I have delivered them into your hands; not one of them shall be left before you.” 9And Jesus came upon them suddenly; he entered all night out of Galgala. 10And the Lord confounded them before the sons of Israel, and the Lord shattered them with great destruction at Gabaon, and they pursued them by the way of the ascent of Horonin and cut them down as far as Azeka and as far as Make-da. 11Now as they fled from before the sons of Israel, upon the descent of Horonin, then the Lord threw down upon them hailstones from the sky as far as Azeka, and there were more who died through the hailstones than those whom the sons of Israel killed by dagger in the battle.
12 Then Iesous spoke to the Lord, on the day when God delivered the Amorrite into the control of Israel, when he shattered them at Gabaon, and they were shattered before the sons of Israel, and Iesous said,

"Let the sun stand at Gabaon, and the moon at the ravine of Ailon."
13 And the sun stood still, and the moon was in position until God avenged himself on their enemies, and the sun stood in midheaven; it did not go forward to set until the end of one day. 14 And there was not such a day either before or after so that a god heeded a human being, because the Lord fought alongside Israel.
16 And those five kings fled and hid themselves in the cave that was in Makeda. 17 And it was told Iesous, saying, "The five kings have been found, hidden in the cave that is in Makeda."
18 And Iesous said, "Roll stones against the mouth of the cave, and set men to guard over them. 19 But you, do not stand in pursuing after your enemies, and lay hold of their rear guard. And do not let them enter into their cities, for the Lord our God has given them into our hands."
20 And it happened, when Iesous and every son of Israel finished smiting them with a very great slaughter, all the way to the end, that those who survived sought survival in the strong cities. 21 And all the people returned sound to Iesous to Makeda, and no one was not such a day either before or after so that a god heeded a human being, because the Lord fought alongside Israel.
22 And Iesous said, "Open the cave, and bring these five kings out of the cave." 23 And they brought the five kings out of the cave—the king of Chebron and the king of Jerimoth and the king of Lachis and the king of Odollam. 24 And when they brought them out to Iesous, then Iesous called together all Israel and the chiefs of war who went with him, saying to them, "Come forward, and put your feet on their necks." And they came forward and put their feet on their necks. 25 And Iesous said to them, "Neither fear them, nor be cowardly; be manly and strong; for thus the Lord will do to all your enemies against whom you fight." 26 And Iesous killed them, and he hung them on five trees. And they hung upon the trees until evening. 27 And it happened towards sunset that Iesous commanded, and they took them down from the trees and threw them into the cave, there where they had fled for refuge, and they rolled stones against the cave until this very day.
28 And they took Makeda on that day, and they slew it with the edge of the rapier, and they utterly destroyed everything breathing in it, and there was no one left in it that survived and had escaped. And they did to the king of Makeda as they did to the king of Jericho.
29 And Iesous departed out of Makeda, and all Israel with him, to Lebna, and he besieged Lebna. 30 And the Lord delivered it into the hands of Israel, and they took it and its king, and they slew it with the edge of the rapier, and everything breathing in it, and there was not left in it one that survived and had escaped. And they did to its king as they did to the king of Jericho.
31 And Iesous departed out of Lebna, and all Israel with him, to Odollam, and surrounded it and besieged it. 32 And the Lord delivered Lachis into the hands of Israel, and he took it on the second day, and they slew it with the edge of the rapier, and they utterly destroyed it as they did to Lebna.
33 Then Ailam, king of Gazer, came up to help Lachis, and Iesous smote him with the edge of the rapier, and his people, until there was not left of them any who survived and had escaped.
34 And Iesous departed out of Lachis, and all Israel with him, to Odollam, and surrounded it and besieged it. 35 And the Lord delivered it into the hands of Israel, and he took it on the second day, and they slew it with the edge of the rapier, and they utterly destroyed it as they did to Lebna.
36 And Iesous and all Israel with him departed to Chebron and surrounded it. 37 And he smote it with the edge of the rapier, and everything breathing, as many as were in it; there was not anyone who survived; as they did to Odollam, they utterly destroyed it and as many as were in it.
38 And Iesous and all Israel returned to Dabir, and when they had surrounded it, 39 they took it and its king and its villages, and they smote it with the edge of the rapier, and they utterly destroyed it and everything breathing in it, and they did not leave anyone who survived; as they did to Chebron and its king, so they did to Dabir and its king.
40 And Iesous smote all the land of the hill country and the Negeb and the plain and Aschetoth and its kings; they did not leave any of them who survived, and they utterly destroyed everything that breathed with life, as the Lord, the God of Israel, commanded, 41 from Kades Barne as far as Gaza, all Gosom as far as Gabaon. 42 And Iesous smote, once for all, their kings and their land, because the Lord, the God of Israel, fought alongside Israel.

11 Now when Iabin, king of Hasor, heard, he sent to Iobab, king of Marron, and to the king of Symoon and to the king of Aziph 2 and to the kings who were by Sidon the great, to the hill country and to Rabha opposite Keneroth and to the plain and to Napheddor 3 and to the coast-dwelling Amorrite and the Heuites and the Ishebonites and the Pherezites in the mountain and the Chettites, those under Haërmon in the land of Massepha.
4 And they came out, they and their kings with them, as the sand of the sea in multitude, and horses and very many chariots. 5 And all these kings gathered and came to the same place and encamped at the water of Marron, to fight with Israel.
6 And the Lord said to Iesous, "Do not be afraid before them, for tomorrow at this time I will deliver them, routed before Israel; you shall hamstring their horses and burn their chariots with fire.” 7 And Iesous—and all the military people—came upon them at the water of Marron suddenly, and they fell upon them in the hill country. 8 And the Lord delivered them into the power of Israel, and as they smote them, they pursued them as far as Sidon the great and as far as Maseron and as far as the plains of Massoch to the east. And they cut them down until not one of them was left who survived. 9 And Iesous did to them as the Lord commanded him; he hamstring their horses and burned their chariots with fire.

10 And Iesous turned back at that time and took Hasor and its king. And Hasor was earlier chief of all those kingdoms. 11 And they slew everything breathing in it with the rapier and utterly destroyed them all, and nothing breathing was left in it, and they burned Hasor with fire. 12 And all the cities of the kings and their kings, Iesous took and killed them with the edge of the rapier and utterly destroyed them, as Moyses the servant of the Lord instructed. 13 But all the cities fortified with mounds Israel did not burn, but Iesous burned only Hasor. 14 And the sons of Israel appropriated all its spoils for themselves, but they completely destroyed all people with the edge of the rapier until he demolished them; they did not leave anything of them breathing. 15 As the Lord instructed Moyses his servant, Moyses also commanded Iesous in like manner, and so Iesous did; he did not transgress anything of all that Moyses instructed him.

16 And Iesous took all the land: the hill country and all the Nageb and all the land of Gosom and the plain and that toward the west and the mountain of Israel and the low regions 17 by the mountain, from mount Hachil and that which rises up to Seir and as far as Baalgad and the plains of Lebanon, under Mount Haërmon. And all their kings he took and destroyed and killed them. 18 And for rather many days Iesous made war with these kings. 19 And there was not a city that Israel did not take; they took everything in war. 20 For it was through the Lord to strengthen their heart to meet for war against Israel in order that they might be utterly destroyed, that mercy not be given to them, but that they be utterly destroyed, just as the Lord said to Moyses.

21 And at that time Iesous came and utterly destroyed the Enakim out of the hill country, out of Chebron and out of Dabir and out of Anaboth and out of all the race of Israel and out of all the mountain of Lousadas with their cities, and Iesous utterly destroyed them. 22 And none of the Enakim was left by the sons of Israel, but only in Gaza and in Geth and in Asedoth was anyone left. 23 And Iesous took all the land, as the Lord commanded Moyses, and Iesous gave them as an inheritance of Israel by allotment according to their tribes, and the land stopped being at war.

And these are the kings of the land, whom the sons of Israel slew, and they inherited their land beyond the Jordan from the rising of the sun, from the ravine of Arnon to Mount Haërmon and all the land of Araba on the east: 2 Seon, the king of the Amorrites, who lived in Hesebon, ruling from Aroer, which is in the ravine, along part of the ravine, and half of Galaad as far as labok, the boundaries of the sons of Ammon; 3 and Araba as far as the sea of Chenereth eastward and as far as the sea of Araba; the sea of salt on the east along the way of Hasimoth, from Thaiman, which is under Aseodh Phasga. 4 And Og, king of Basan, was left of the giants, he who lived in Astaroth and in Edrain, 5 ruling from Mount Haërmon and from Selcha and all the land of Basan as far as the boundaries of Gesouri and Machathi and half of Galaad as far as the boundaries of Seon, king of Hesebon. 6 Moyses, the servant of the Lord, and the sons of Israel smote them, and Moyses gave it as an inheritance to Rouben and Gad and the half-tribe of Manasse.

And these are the kings of the Amorrites whom Iesous slew, and the sons of Israel, beyond the Jordan by the sea of Baalgad in the plain of Lebanon and as far as the Mount Chelcha, as they rise to Seir, and Iesous gave it to the tribes of Israel to inherit according to their allotment, 8 in the mountain and in the plain and in Araba and in Asedoth and in the wilderness and in the Nageb: the Chettite and the Amorrite and the Chananite and the Pheretzite and the Heuite and the Lebousite: 9 the king of Iericho and the king of Gai, which is near Bathel, 10 king of Ierousalem, king of Chebron, 11 king of Jerimouth, king of Lachis, 12 king of Ailam, king of Gazer, 13 king of Dabir, king of Gader, 14 king of Hermath, king of Arath, 15 king of Leba, king of Odollam, 16 king of Madea, 17 king of Taphouh, king of Hopher, 18 king of Aphek of Saron, 19 king of Hachil, and that which rises up to Seir and as far as Baalgad and the plains of Lebanon, under Mount Haërmon. 20 And all their kings he took and destroyed and killed them. 21 And for rather many days Iesous made war with these kings. 22 And there was not a city that Israel did not take; they took everything in war. 23 For it was through the Lord to strengthen their heart to meet for war against Israel in order that they might be utterly destroyed, that mercy not be given to them, but that they be utterly destroyed, just as the Lord said to Moyses.

13 And Iesous was rather old, advanced in days, and the Lord said to Iesous, “You are advanced in days, and there is much land left to in-herit. 2 And this is the land that is left: the boundaries of Phylistiim, Gesiri and the Chananite, 3 from the uninhabited region before Egypt, as far as the boundaries of Akkaron, to the left of the Chananites, it is reckoned to the five satrapies of the Phylistiim—to the Gazean and to the Azotian and to the Ascalonite and to the Geththite and to the Akkaronite—and to the Heuite, 4 from Thaiman, and to all the land of Chanaan before Gaze and the Sidonians as far as Aphek, as far as the boundaries of the Amorrites, 5 and all the land of Gabli of Phylistiim and all Lebanon, toward the rising of the sun, from Galgul under Mount Haërmon as far as the entrance of Hemath, 6 everyone who inhabits the hill country from Lebanon as far as Maserephothmaim. All the Sidonians, I will utterly destroy them from before Israel, but pass it on to you.”
as an allotment to Israel, as I commanded you. 7 And now divide this land as an inheritance for the nine tribes and for the half-tribe of Manasse. From the Jordan as far as the great sea toward the setting of the sun you shall give it; the great sea shall be the boundary.

8 But to the two tribes and to the half-tribe of Manasse, to Rouben and to Gad, Moyses gave beyond the Jordan toward the rising of the sun; Moyses the servant of the Lord has given it 9 from Aroer, which is on the edge of the wadi of Arnon, and the city in the middle of the ravine and all Misor from Maidaba as far as Daiban, 10 all the cities of Seon, king of the Amorrites, who reigned in Hesebon, as far as the boundaries of the sons of Ammon, 11 and Galaaditis and the boundaries of Gesiri and of Machati, the entire Mount Haermon, and all Basanitis as far as Selcha, 12 all the kingdom of Og in Basanitis, he who reigned in Astaroth and in Edrain; he was left of the giants, and Moyses smote and utterly destroyed him. 13 And the sons of Israel did not utterly destroy Gesiri and Machati and the Chanans, and Gesiri’s king and Machati kept living among the sons of Israel until this very day. 14 With the exception of the tribe of Levi—no inheritance was given; the Lord God of Israel, he is their inheritance, as the Lord said to them, and this is the division that Moyses divided for the sons of Israel in Arboth Moab, beyond the Jordan opposite Jericho.

15 And Moyses gave to the tribe of Rouben according to their districts. 16 And their boundaries were from Aroer, which is opposite the valley of Arnon, and the city that is in the ravine of Arnon and all the land of Misor, 17 as far as Hesebon, and all the cities that are in the land of Misor and of Daibon and of Baimoth-Baal and of the house of Edibnon 18 and Iassa and Kedemoth and Mephaath 19 and Kiriathaim and Sehama and Serada and Sion on the mountain of Emak 20 and Baithphogor and Asedoth Phassa and Baithasimoto 21 and all the cities of Misor and all the kingdom of Seon, king of the Amorrites, whom Moyses smote, him and the leaders of Madian, and Eui and Rokom and Sour and Hour and Robe, rulers alongside Seon, and the inhabitants of the land. 22 And Balaam the son of Beor, the diviner, they slew at the decisive moment. 23 And it is the boundary of Rouben. Jordan was a boundary. This was the inheritance of the sons of Rouben according to their districts, their cities and their farmsteads.

24 And Moyses gave to the sons of Gad according to their districts. 25 And their boundaries were lazer, all of the cities of Galaad and half of the land of the sons of Ammon, as far as Aroer, which is before Rabba, 26 and from Hesebon as far as Ramoth by Massepha and Botanin and Maanain as far as the boundaries of Dabir 27 and in Emek 28 Baitharam and Baithanabra and Sokchotha and Saphan and the rest of the kingdom of Seon, king of Hesebon, and the Jordan shall be the boundary as far as part of the sea of Chenereth beyond the Jordan eastward. 28 This is the inheritance of the sons of Gad according to their districts, their cities and their farmsteads.

29 And Moyses gave to the half-tribe of Manasse according to their districts. 30 And their boundaries were from Maanaim and all the kingdom of Basani and all the kingdom of Og, king of Basan, and all the villages of Iair, which are in Basanitis, sixty cities, 31 and half of Galaad and in Astaroth and in Edrain, cities of the kingdom of Og in Basanitis, and they were given to the sons of Machir son of Manasse and to half the sons of Machir son of Manasse according to their districts.

32 These are the ones whom Moyses caused to inherit beyond the Jordan in Arboth Moab, beyond the Jordan by Jericho eastward.

14 And these are the inheritors from the sons of Israel in the land of Chanaan to whom Eleazar the priest and Iesous the son of Nave and the chiefs of the paternal families of the tribes of the sons of Israel gave inheritances. 2 By lots they inherited, as the Lord commanded by the hand of Iesous to the nine tribes and to the half-tribe, from beyond the Jordan. And to the Leuites he did not give an allotment among them. 3 For the sons of Ioseph were two tribes, Manasse and Ephraim, and a portion was not given in the land to the Leuites, rather, cities to live in and areas marked off for their cattle and their cattle. 4 As the Lord commanded Moyses, so the sons of Israel did, and they distributed the land.

6 And the sons of Ioudas came to Iesous at Galgal, and Chaleb the son of Iephonne the Kenezite said to him, “You know the word that the Lord spoke to Moyses man of God concerning you and me at Kades Barne. 7 For I was forty years old when Moyses the servant of God sent me out of Kades Barne to spy out the land, and I answered him a word according to his mind. 8 And my brothers who went up with me changed the heart of the people, but I added to follow closely the Lord my God. 9 And Moyses swore on that day, saying, ‘The land upon which you have tread shall be yours as an allotment and your children’s forever, because you have applied yourself to follow closely after the Lord our God.’ 10 And now the Lord has sustained me, as he said; this is the forty-fifth year from when the Lord spoke this word to Moyses, and Israel journeyed in the wilderness, and now, look, I am today eighty-five years old. 11 I am still strong today, as when Moyses sent me; I am now just as strong to go out and to go into war. 12 And now I ask you for this mountain, as the Lord said on that day; for you have heard this word on that day. But now the Enakim are there, cities strong and great; if then the Lord is with me, I will utterly destroy them, as the Lord said to me.”

13 And Iesous blessed him and gave Chebron to Chaleb son of Iephonne son of Kenez as an allotment. 14 Therefore Chebron became an allotment for Chaleb the son of Iephonne the Kenite to this day, because he followed closely the ordinance of the Lord, God of Israel. 15And the name of Chebron formerly was city of Arbak; this is the mother-city of the Enakim, and the land abated from war.

15 And the boundaries of the tribe of Ioudas according to their districts were from the boundaries of Idumea from the wilderness of Sin as far as Kades to the southwest. And their boundaries were from the southwest as far as part of the salt sea from the ridge that stretches southwestward. And they pass through before the ascent of Akkaron and go out around Senna and go up from the southwest to Kades Barne and go out to Hasoron and go up to Addara and go around toward the west of Kades and proceed to Asemona and pass through as far as the ravine of Egypt, and the outlet of its boundaries shall be to the sea. This is their boundaries from the southwest. And the boundaries from the east: the whole salt sea as far as the Jordan, the boundaries go to the fountain of Rogel, and the boundaries go up to the fountain of the sun, and its outlet shall be to the sea of Egypt, and the outlet of its boundaries shall be to the sea. And their boundaries from the sea: the great sea shall be the boundary. These are the boundaries of the sons of Ioudas round about according to their districts.

And to Chaleb son of Iephonne he gave a portion among the sons of Ioudas, according to the ordinance of God, and Iesous gave him the city of Arbak, the mother-city of Enak (this is Chebron). 14And Chaleb son of Iephonne completely destroyed from there the three sons of Enak: Sousi and Tholmi and Achima. 15And Chaleb went up from there against the inhabitants of Dabir; now the name of Dabir formerly was City of Letters.

13 And Chaleb said, “Whoever takes City of Letters and gains power over it, to him I will give Achsa my daughter as wife.” 17And Gothoniel son of Kenez, the younger brother of Chaleb, took it, and he gave him Achsa his daughter as his wife. 18And it happened, when she came in, that she advised him, saying, “I will ask my father for a field.” And she cried out from the donkey, and Chaleb said to her, “What do you wish?” 19And she said to him, “Give me a blessing, since you have placed me in the land of Nagbe; give me Golathmain.” And Chaleb gave her upper Golathmain and lower Golathmain.

20 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the sons of Ioudas. 21And these were their cities, foremost city of the tribe of the sons of Ioudas at the boundaries of Edom at the wilderness:

62 And the lebousite dwelled in Jerousaalem, and the sons of Loudas were not able to destroy them, and the lebousites dwelled in Jerousaalem to that day.

16 And the boundaries of the sons of Joseph were from the Jordan near Jericho from the east, and they will go up from Jericho into the hill country, the wilderness, into Baithel Louza, 2 and they will go out into Baithel and will proceed to the boundaries of Chatarothi, 3 and they will go across to the sea, to the boundaries of Apterith, as far as the boundaries of Lower Baithoron, and their outlet shall be to the sea.
4 And the sons of Joseph, Ephraim and Manasse, received their inheritance.
5 And the boundaries of the sons of Ephraim were according to their districts, and the boundaries of their inheritance were from the east Ataroth and Erok, as far as Upper Baithoron and Gazarra, 4 and the boundaries will go across to the sea, into Ikasmon from the north of Therna; they will go around eastward into Thenas and Sellesa, and they will proceed from the east into Ieroku from the Jordan 7 and into Macho and Ateroth, and these are their villages, and they will go to Jericho and will pass through and out to the Jordan. 8 And from Taphou the boundaries shall proceed to the sea, to chelkana, and their outlet shall be to the sea. This is the inheritance of the tribe of Ephraim according to their districts. 9 And the cities marked off for the sons of Ephraim were in the midst of the inheritance of the sons of Manasse, all the cities and their villages. 10 And Ephraim did not destroy the Chananean living in Gazer, and the Chananean lived in Ephraim until this day, until Pharao, king of Egypt, went up and took it, and he burned it with fire, and they massacred the Chananites and the Pherezites and those living in Gazer, and Pharao gave it as a dowry to his daughter.
17 And the boundaries of the tribe of the sons of Manasse, for he was the firstborn to Ioseph, were: to Machir, firstborn of Manasse, father of Galaad, for he was a military man, in Galaaditis and in Basanitis. 2And to the remaining sons of Manasse, according to their districts they were: to the sons of Izker and to the sons of Kelze and to the sons of Izziel and to the sons of Sychem and to the sons of Symarim and to the sons of Hopheth; these are the males, according to their districts.

3 And to Salpaad son of Hopheth—he did not have sons but daughters, and these are the names of the daughters of Salpaad: Maala and Noua and Hegla and Melcha and Thersa. 4And they stood before Eleazar the priest and before Iesous and before the leaders, saying, “God commanded through the hand of Moyses, to give us an inheritance in the midst of our brothers.” And there was given to them through the ordinance of the Lord an allotment among the brothers of their father.

5 And their portion fell from Anassa and the plain of Labek, out of Galaad, which is beyond the Jordan, because the daughters of the sons of Manasse inherited an allotment in the midst of their brothers, but the land of Galaad was for the remaining sons of Manasse.

6 And the boundaries of the sons of Manasse were Delanath, which is before the sons of Anath, and they proceed to the boundaries, to Iamin and lassib, to the fountain of Thaphthoth. 8It shall belong to Manasse and Thapheth at the borders of Manasse to the sons of Ephraim. 9And the boundaries shall go down to the ravine of Karana southwestward by the ravine of Iariel—a terebinth tree belonging to Ephraim is in the midst of a city of Manasse—and the boundaries of Manasse northeastward are into the wadi, and the sea shall be its outlet.

10 From the southwest is Ephraim’s, to the north is Manasse’s, and the sea shall be their boundaries, and they shall border upon Aser to the north and on Issachar from the east. 11 And Manasse shall have, in Issachar and in Aser, Baithsan before the Lord in Selo. 12 And the sons of Manasse, according to their districts they came out first according to their districts, and the sons of Zephon received their inheritance beyond the Jordan eastward, which Moyses the servant of the Lord gave them.

13 Now the sons of Ioseph disputed with Iesous, saying, “Why have you caused us to inherit a single allotment and a single portion, for I am a numerous people, and God has blessed me?” 14 And Iesous said to them, “If you are a numerous people, go up into the thicket, and clear it for yourself, if Mount Ephraim is cramped for you.” 15 And they said, “Mount Ephraim is not enough for us, and the Chananite dwelling on it, in Baithsan and in its villages, in the valley of Izrael, has choice cavalry and iron.” 16 And Iesous said to the sons of Joseph, “If you are a numerous people and if you have great strength, you shall not have a single allotment. 17 For the thicket shall be yours, because there is a thicket, and you shall clear it, and it shall be yours, and when you utterly destroy the Chananite, because he has choice cavalry; for you are stronger than he.”

18 And the whole congregation of the sons of Israel was assembled at Selo, and they pitched there the tent of witness, and the land was subdued by them.

2 And the sons of Israel who had not received their inheritance remained, seven tribes. 3 And Iesous said to the sons of Israel, “How long will you be slack about inheriting the land that the Lord our God has given you? 4 Provide from yourselves three men from a tribe, and let them rise up and go throughout the land, and let them map it out before me, as it will be necessary to divide it.” And they came to him, and he divided for them seven portions: “Ioudas shall stand for them as a boundary from the southwest, and the sons of Joseph shall stand for them from the north. 6 Now you, apportion the land into seven portions, and bring word to me here, and I will cast a lot for you before the Lord our God. 7 For the sons of Leui have no portion among you, for the priesthood of the Lord is his portion, and Gad and Rouben and the half-tribe of Manasse have received their inheritance beyond the Jordan eastward, which Moyses the servant of the Lord gave them.”

9 And the men rose up and went on their way, and Iesous commanded the men who went to survey the land, saying, “Go, and survey the land, and come to me, and I will cast a lot for you here before the Lord in Selo.” 9 And they went and surveyed the land, and they viewed it, and they wrote it in a book according to its cities, seven parts, and they brought it to Iesous. 10 And Iesous cast a lot for them in Selo before the Lord.

11 And the allotment of the tribe of Benjamim came out first according to their districts, and the boundaries of their allotment came out between loudas and between the sons of Joseph. 12 And from the north their boundaries were: from the Jordan the boundaries shall go up behind Iericho from the north and shall go up to the mountain to the sea, and its outlet shall be Madbaritis Baithon.

13 And the boundaries shall pass through from there to Louza, behind Louza from the southwest (this is Baithel), and the boundaries shall go down to Maatarothorech, to the hill country that is to the southwest of Lower Baithoron. 14 And the boundaries shall pass through and go around to the part that looks beyond the sea from the southwest, from the mountain in front of Baithoron southwestward, and its outlet shall be at Kariathbaal (this is Kariathiarin, a city of the sons of loudas). This is the part toward the sea. 15 And the part toward the southwest is from part of Kariathbaal, and the boundaries shall pass through to Gasin, to the fountain of the water of Naphtho, and the boundaries shall go down to the part of the mountain that is in front of the wooded valley of Honnam, which is by the side of Emekraphain from the north, and they shall go down to Gaienna be-
And the second allotment of the sons of Symeon went out, and their inheritance was among the allotments of the sons of Ioudas. This was the inheritance of the tribe of the sons of Symeon according to their districts. The inheritance of the tribe of the sons of Symeon was part of the allotment of Ioudas. For the portion of the sons of Ioudas was larger than theirs, and the sons of Symeon obtained an inheritance within their allotment.

The boundaries of their inheritance shall be Esedek and Gola; the sea and Maragella are their boundaries, and they shall reach to Baitharaba toward the ravine that is opposite lebousai. And the cities of the sons of Beniamin according to their districts were Iericho and...
Chasaloth and Sounan 19 and Hagin and Siona and Reeroth and Anachereth 20 and Dabiron and Kison and Rebes 21 and Remmas and Leon and Tomman and Aimarek and Bersaphes, 22 and the boundaries shall reach to Gaithbor and to Salim seaward and Baithsamys, and the outlet of his boundaries shall be the Jordan. 23 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the sons of Issachar according to their districts, the cities and their villages.

24 And the fifth allotment went out to Aser. 25 And their boundaries were from Heleketh and Haleph and Baithok and Keaph 26 and Elimelek and Amiel and Maasa, and they shall reach to Carmel seaward and to Sion and Labananth, 27 and they shall return from the setting of the sun and Baithegeneth and shall reach to Zaboulon and from Gai and Pthhaael northward, and boundaries shall go into Saphthaibaithme and Inael and shall pass through to Choba Masomel 28 and Elbon and Raab and Hememaon and Kanthan as far as Sidon the great, 29 and the boundaries shall turn back to Ramas and as far as the fountain of Masphassat and of the Tyrians, and the boundaries shall turn back at Japhish, and his outlet shall be the sea and from Leb and Echozob 30 and Archob and Aphek and Raau. 31 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the sons of Aser according to their districts, their cities and their villages.

32 And to Nephthali went out the sixth allotment. 33 And their boundaries were Moolam and Mola and Besemiin and Arme and Nabok and lepthhamai as far as Dodam, and its outlets were the Jordan, 34 and the boundaries shall turn round seaward of Erash Thabor and shall pass through from there to Haikana and shall reach to Zaboulon from the south, and Aser shall touch seaward and the Jordan from the rising of the sun. 35 And the walled cities of the Tyrians: Tyre and Homatha, Daketh and Kenereth 36 and Armaith and Harael and Hasor 37 and Kades and Assari and the fountain of Hasor 38 and Kere and Megala, Harim and Baiththeame and Thessamys. 39 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the sons of Nephthali.

40 And to Dan went out the seventh allotment. 41 And their boundaries were Sarath and Asa, cities of Sammaus 42 and Salabin and Ammon and Silatha 43 and Ailon and Thamnatha and Akkaron 44 and Alkatha and Begethon and Gebeelan 45 and Hazor and Banaibakat and Gethremonn, and from the sea of Ierakon the boundary was near Joppe. 47 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the sons of Dan according to their districts, their cities and their villages. 47 And the sons of Dan did not force out the Amorrite who was oppressing them in the mountain, and the Amorrites did not permit them to go down into the valley, and they reduced from them the boundary of their portion.

48 And the sons of loudas proceeded and fought against Lachis, and they took it and smote it with the edge of the dagger, and they inhabited it and called its name Lasendak. 48 And the Amorrite continued to dwell in Elom and in Salamin, and the hand of Ephraim was heavy upon them, and they became as tribute to them.

49 And they proceeded to come into possession of the land according to their boundary, and the sons of Israel gave an allotment to Iesous the son of Naue among them, 50by God’s ordinance, and they gave him the city that he asked for, Thamasarach, which is in Mount Ephraim, and he built the city and dwelt in it.

51 These are the divisions that Eleazar the priest assigned as inheritances, and Iesous the son of Naue and the chiefs of the paternal families among the tribes of Israel, according to allotments, at Selō before the Lord by the doors of the tent of witness. And they proceeded to come into possession of the land.

20 And the Lord spoke to Iesous, saying, 21“Speak to the sons of Israel, saying, ‘Give the cities of places of refuge of which I spoke to you through Moyses, 3a place of refuge for the slayer who has smitten a soul involuntarily, and the cities shall be for you a place of refuge, and the slayer shall not die by the next of kin in blood until he stands before the congregation for judgment.’ ” 7 And he set apart Kades in Galilee in the mountain of Nepthali. And Sychem in the mountain of Ephraim and the city of Arbok (this is Chebron) in the mountain of Ioudas. 8And beyond the Jordan he gave Bosor in the wilderness on the plain, out of the tribe of Rouben, and areloth in Galaad, out of the tribe of Gad, and Gaulon in Basanitis, out of the tribe of Manasse. 9These were the cities designated for the sons of Israel and for the guest abiding among them, that anyone who smites a soul involuntarily may flee there so that he will not die by the hand of the next of kin in blood until he stands before the congregation for judgment.

21 And the chiefs of the paternal families of the sons of Leui approached Eleazar the priest and Iesous the son of Naue and the tribal chiefs of the families out of the tribes of Israel, 2and they said to them at Selō in the land of Chanaan, saying, “The Lord commanded through the hand of Moyses to give us cities to occupy and surrounding lands for our cattle.” 3And the sons of Israel gave to the Leuites, as they were inheriting by ordinance of the Lord, the cities and their surrounding lands round about.

4 And the allotment went out to the district of Kaath, and the sons of Aaron, the priests, the Leuites, had by lot thirteen cities from the tribe of Ioudas and from the tribe of Symeon and from the tribe of Benjamin.

5 And the remaining sons of Kaath had by lot ten cities out of the tribe of Ephraim and out of the tribe of Dan and out of the half-tribe of Manasse.

6 And the sons of Gedson had thirteen cities from the tribe of Issachar and from the tribe of Aser and from the tribe of Nepthali and from the half-tribe of Manasse in Basan.

7 And the sons of Merari according to their districts had by lot twelve cities from the tribe of Rouben and from the tribe of Gad and from the tribe of Zaboulon.

8 And the sons of Israel gave to the Leuites the cities and their surrounding lands, as the Lord commanded Moyses.

9 And the tribe of the sons of Ioudas and the tribe of the sons of Symeon and part of the tribe of the sons of Benjamin gave the cities, and they were assigned to the sons of Aaron from the district of Kaath of the sons of Leui, because theirs was the allotment. 11He gave to them Kariatharbak, the mother-city of those of Enak (this is Chebron) in the mountain of Ioudas and the surrounding lands. 12And the fields of the cities and its villages lesou gave to the sons of Chaleb son of Iephonne as a possession.

13 And to the sons of Aaron he gave the city as a place of refuge for the one who slays, Chebron and the lands set apart with it and Lemna and the lands set apart near it 14and Atolom and the lands set apart for it and Tema and the lands set apart for it 15and Gella and the lands set apart for it and Dabit and the lands set apart for it 16and Asa and the lands set apart for it and Tany and the lands set apart for it and Baithsamys and the lands set apart for it—nine cities from these two tribes. 17And from the tribe of Benjamin: Gabraon and the lands set apart for it and Getheth and the lands set apart for it 18and Anathoth and the lands set apart for it and Gamala and the lands set apart for it—four cities. 19All the cities of the sons of Aaron the priests were thirteen.

20 And the districts, the sons of Kaath, the remaining Leuites from the sons of Kaath, also had a city of their boundaries from the tribe of Ephraim, 21and they gave them the city a place of refuge for the one who slays, Sychem and the lands set apart for it and Gazzara and the lands by it and the lands set apart for it 22and Kabsaim and the lands set apart near it and Upper Baithoron and the lands set apart for it—four cities. 23And out of the tribe of Dan: Elkhaim and the lands set apart for it and Gethedan and the lands set apart for it 24and Ailom and the lands set apart for it and Getheremmon and the lands set apart for it—four cities. 25And from the half-tribe of Manasse: Tanach and the lands set apart for it and Ebatha and the lands set apart for it—two cities. 26All the cities and the lands set apart near them belonging to the remaining districts of the sons of Kaath were ten.

27 And to the sons of Gedson, the Leuites out of the half-tribe of Manasse, the cities set apart for those who slay, Gaulon in Basanitis and the lands set apart for it and Bosoran and the lands set apart for it—two cities. 28And out of the tribe of Issachar: Kison and the lands set apart for it and Debbah and the lands set apart for it 29and Remmath and the lands set apart for it and the Fountain of Letters and the lands set apart for it—four cities. 30And out of the tribe of Aser: Basell and the lands set apart for it and Dabbon and the lands set apart for it 31and Chelkat and the lands set apart for it and Rab and the lands set apart for it—four cities. 32And out of the tribe of Nepthali: the city set apart for the one who slays, Kades in Galilee and the lands set apart for it and Hemmath and the lands set apart for it and Themmon and the lands set apart for it—three cities. 33 All the cities of Gedson according to their districts were thirteen Cities.

34 And to the district of the sons of Merari, the rest of the Leuites, out of the tribe of the sons of Zaboulon: Maan and its surrounding lands and Kades and its surrounding lands 35 and Demna and its surrounding lands and Sella and its surrounding lands—four cities. 36 And beyond the Jordan opposite Jerecho, out of the tribe of Rouben: the city as a place of refuge of the one who slays, Bosc in the wilderness of Misor and its surrounding lands and Jazer and its surrounding lands 37 and Dekmon and its surrounding lands and Mapha and its surrounding lands—four cities. 38 And from the tribe of Gad: the city of a place of refuge of the one who slays, Ramo in Galaad and its surrounding lands and Kamin and its surrounding lands 39 and Hesebon and its surrounding lands and Jazer and its surrounding lands—all the cities were four. 40 All cities belonging to the sons of Merari according to the districts of those remaining from the tribe of Leui, and the boundaries were twelve cities.

41 All the cities of the Leuites within the possession of the sons of Israel were forty-eight cities and their surrounding lands 42 round about these cities—a city and the surrounding lands round about the city, pertaining to all these cities. 42a And lesous ceased dividing the land in their boundaries. 42b And the sons of Israel gave a portion to lesous according to the ordinance of the Lord. They gave him the city that he asked for; they gave him Thamnasarach in Mount Ephraim. 42c And lesous gave him the city that he asked for; they gave him Jerecho, and they gave him Iesous and the city of a place of refuge of the one who slays.

43 So the Lord gave to Israel all the land that he swore to give to their fathers: both very large herds of cattle and silver and gold and iron and a great quantity of clothing. They divided the spoil of the enemies with their brothers: both very large herds of cattle and silver and gold and iron and a great quantity of clothing.

44 And lesous sent them to the lands set apart for it—three cities. 33 All the cities of Gedson according to their districts were thirteen Cities.

45 None failed of all the good words that the Lord had spoken to the people of Israal and to the sons of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh.

22 Then lesous summoned the sons of Rouben and the sons of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasse into the land of Galaad both Phi-nees son of Eleazar son of Aaron the high priest and ten of the chiefs with him, one chief from each paternal house from all the tribes of Israel—chiefs of paternal houses they were, of the thousands of Israel. 45 And they came to Galgala of the Jordan, which is in the land of Chanaan, and the sons of Gad and the sons of Rouben and the half-tribe of Manasse built there an altar by the Jordan, a large altar 4 to see. 11 And the sons of Israel heard people saying, "Look, the sons of Gad and the sons of Rouben and the half-tribe of Manasse have built an altar at the boundaries of the land of Chanaan at Galaad of the Jordan, on the other side of the sons of Israel." 12 And all the sons of Israel gathered together at Selo, to go up to make war against them.

13 And the sons of Israel sent to the sons of Rouben and to the sons of Gad and to the half-tribe of Manasse into the land of Galaad both Phi-nees son of Eleazar son of Aaron the high priest 14 and ten of the chiefs with him, one chief from each paternal house from all the tribes of Israel—chiefs of paternal houses they were, of the thousands of Israel. 15 And they came to the sons of Gad and to the sons of Rouben and to the halves of the tribe of Manasse into the land of Galaad, and they spoke to them, saying, 16 "This is what the whole congregation of the Lord says, 'What is this trespass that you have committed against the God of Israel, to turn away today from the Lord by building for yourselves an altar so that you become rebels from the Lord? 17 Is the sin of Phogor insignificant for you, that we have not been cleansed from it until this day and there was a plague in the congregation of the Lord? 18 And shall you turn away today from the Lord? And it shall be if you rebel today from the Lord, that tomorrow there shall be anger upon all Israel. 19 And now if the land of your possession is small, cross over to the land of the possession of the Lord, there where the tent of the Lord encamps, and take your inheritance among us, but do not become rebels from God, and do not rebel from the Lord by building an altar other than the altar of the Lord our God. 20 Look! Did not Achar the son of Zara commit a trespass from what was devoted, and there was anger upon the whole congregation..." of Israel? And he was not one lone person. Did he alone die for his own sin?"

21 And the sons of Ruben and the sons of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasse answered, and they spoke to the officers of thousands of Israel, saying,

22"God is Lord God, and God, Lord God, he himself knows, and Israel itself shall know: If in rebellion we have trespassed against the Lord, may he not deliver us in this. 23And if we built an altar for ourselves so as to rebel from the Lord our God, so as to offer upon it a sacrifice of whole burnt offerings or so as to make upon it a sacrifice of deliverance, the Lord shall seek it out. 24But we have done this for the sake of a matter of caution, saying, 'Lest tomorrow your children say to our children, 'What have you to do with the Lord God of Israel? 25And the Lord sets boundaries between us and you, the Jordan, and you do not have a portion of the Lord.' And your sons shall alienate our sons, that they not worship the Lord. 26And we said to do thus, to build this altar not for produce offerings nor for sacrifices, 27but that this may be a witness between you and between our descendants after us, to serve a service to the Lord before him with our produce offerings and our sacrifices and our sacrifices of deliverance, and your children will not say to our children tomorrow, 'You do not have a portion of the Lord.' 28And we said, if it should ever happen that they speak to us and to our descendants tomorrow, then they shall say, 'See a likeness of the altar of the Lord, which our fathers made, not for produce offerings nor for sacrifices, but it is a witness between you and between us and between our sons.'

29May it not be therefore that we turn away from the Lord in these very days, to rebel from the Lord, so as to build an altar for produce offerings and for the sacrifices of deliverance, other than the altar of the Lord that is before his tent.

30 And when Phinees the priest and all the chiefs of the congregation of Israel who were with him heard the words that the sons of Ruben and the sons of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasse spoke, then it pleased them. 31And Phinees the priest said to the sons of Ruben and the sons of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasse, "Today we know that the Lord is with us, because you have not committed a trespass against the Lord and that you have delivered the sons of Israel out of the hand of the Lord." 32 And Phinees the priest returned, and the chiefs, from the sons of Ruben and from the sons of Gad and from the half-tribe of Manasse, out of the land of Galaad into the land of Chanaan, to the sons of Israel, and they reported the words to them. 33And it pleased the sons of Israel, and they spoke to the sons of Israel and blessed the God of the sons of Israel, and they said that they would no longer go up against them for war, to utterly destroy the land of the sons of Ruben and the sons of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasse, and they settled upon it. 34 And Iesous named the altar b of the sons of Ruben and those of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasse, and he said: "It is a witness between them that the Lord is their God." 35 Now you have seen what the Lord your God has done to all these nations before you, for it is the Lord your God who has fought for you. 4 And see that I have cast upon you by the allotments to your tribes these nations that remain to you, from the Jordan all the nations that I have utterly destroyed, and from the great sea it shall be the boundary toward the setting of the sun. 5 And the Lord your God, he shall utterly destroy them from before you until they perish, and he shall send wild beasts against them until he utterly destroys them and their kings from before you, and inherit their land, as the Lord your God spoke to you. 6 Therefore be very steadfast to observe and to do all the things written in the book of the law of Moyses so that you do not turn aside to the right or the left, 7 that you not go into these nations that are left, and the names of their gods shall not be named among you; neither do obeisance to them nor serve them, 8 but you shall hold fast to the Lord your God, as you have done until this day. 9 And the Lord utterly destroyed them from before you, great and strong nations, and no one has withstood you until this day.

10 One of you has put to flight thousands, since the Lord your God was fighting for you, as he said to you. 11 And take great care to love the Lord your God. 12 For if you turn away and attach yourselves to these nations remaining with you and make marriages with them and intermingle with them and they with you, 13 know that the Lord will not continue to utterly destroy these nations from before you, but they shall be snares and traps for you and nails in your heels and arrows in your eyes until you are destroyed from this good land that the Lord your God has given you.

14 But I am going the way, as also all who are on earth, and you shall know in your heart and in your soul, because not one word has crumbled of all the words that the Lord our God spoke concerning all that involves you; not one out of them failed. 15 And it shall happen that, as all the good things that the Lord spoke concerning you have come upon you, so the Lord God will bring upon you all the evil things until he utterly destroys you from this good land that the Lord has given you, 16 when you transgress the covenant of the Lord your God, which he commanded you, and go to serve other gods and do obeisance to them."

24 And Iesous gathered all the tribes of Israel to Selo and summoned their elders and their scribes and their judges and set them before God. 2And lesous said to all the people, “This is what the Lord, the God of Israel, says: Your fathers at first lived beyond the river, Thara the father of Abraam and the father of Nachor, and they served other gods. 3And I took your father Abraam from beyond the river and led him in all the land and made his offspring many and gave him Isaak, 4and to Isaak, Jakob and Esau. And I gave to Esau Mount Seir for him to inherit. And Jakob and his sons went down into Egypt and became there a great and populous and mighty nation, 4and the Egyptians afflicted them.’ And the Lord smote Egypt with things he did to them, and afterwards he brought you out 6of Egypt. And you came into the Red Sea, and the Egyptians pursued after your fathers with chariots and with horses into the Red Sea. 7And we cried out to the Lord, and he gave a cloud and darkness between us and between the Egyptians, and he brought the sea upon them and covered them, and your eyes saw what the Lord did in the land of Egypt. And you were in the wilderness rather many days. 8And he brought you into the land of the Amorrites, who lived beyond the Jordan, and they fought against you, and the Lord handed them over into your hands, and you inherited their land and utterly destroyed them from before you. 9And Balak the son of Sepphor, king of Moab, rose up and set himself against Israel, and he sent and invited Balaam to curse you. 10And the Moabites and the Amalekites and all the nations round about them. And the Lord drove out from before us the Amorrite and the Gergesse, and the Heuite and the Iebousite and the Chettite and the Pherezite and the Chananite and the Ammonite and the Jebusite. 11And they crossed over the Jordan and came to Jericho, and the inhabitants of Jericho fought against you, the Amorrites, and the Gergesse, and the Heuite and the Iebousite and the Chettite and the Pherezite and the Chananite and the Ammonite and the Jebusite. 12And he sent forth the hornet ahead of you, and he drove them out from before you, the twelve kings of the Amorrites, not by your sword or by your bow. 13And he gave you a land, that on which you did not labor, and cities that you did not build, and you were settled in them, and you shall eat of vineyards and olive yards that you did not plant.

14 “And now fear the Lord, and serve him in straightness and in righteousness, and put away the foreign gods that your fathers served beyond the river and in Egypt, and serve the Lord. 15But if it does not seem good to you to serve the Lord, choose for yourselves today whom you will serve, whether the gods of your fathers that were beyond the river or the gods of the Amorrites among whom you live upon their land, but I and my household will serve the Lord, because he is holy.” 16 And the people answered and said, “May it not be that we forsake the Lord so as to serve other gods. 17The Lord our God, he is God; he brought us and our fathers out of Egypt, and he protected us on all the way on which we went and among all the nations through whom we passed. 18And the Lord drove out from before us the Amorrite and all the nations that inhabited the land. But we also will serve the Lord, for he is our God.”

19 And lesous said to the people, “You will not be able to serve the Lord, for he is a holy god. And since he is jealous, he will not forgive your sins and your acts of lawlessness. 20Whenever you forsake the Lord and serve other gods, then he will come upon you and do you harm and consume you, instead of having done you good.” 21And the people said to lesous, “No, but we will serve the Lord.” 22And lesous said to the people, “You are witnesses against yourselves that you have chosen the Lord, to serve him. 23And now put away the foreign gods that are among you, and direct your heart toward the Lord, God of Israel.” 24 And the people said to lesous, “We will serve the Lord and hearken to his voice.” 25And lesous made a covenant with the people that day and gave them law and judgment at Selo before the tent of the God of Israel. 26And he wrote these words in the book as the law of God, and he took a large stone, and lesous set it under the terebinth tree before the Lord. 27And lesous said to the people, “Look, this stone shall be in your midst as a witness; for it has heard all the things spoken to it by the Lord, whatever he spoke to us today, and this shall be in your midst as a witness at the last of days, whenever you deal falsely with the Lord my God.” 28And lesous sent the people away, and they went each to his place.

29 And Israel served the Lord all the days of lesous and all the days of the elders who drew out the time with lesous and who knew all the works of the Lord that he did for Israel. 30And it happened after these things that lesous son of Naue, slave of the Lord, died at one hundred ten years. 31 And they buried him at the borders of his allotment in Thamnathasachara in Mount Ephraim, from the north of Mount Gaas. 32 There they put him, into the tomb in which they buried him, the flint knives with which he circumcised the sons of Israel in Galgala, when he led them out of Egypt, as the Lord instructed them, and there they are until this very day.

33 And the sons of Israel brought up the bones of Joseph out of Egypt, and they interred him in Sikima, in the portion of the field that Jakob acquired from the Amorrites living in Sikima for one hundred ewe-lambs, and he gave it to Joseph as a portion.

34 And it happened after these things that Eleazar son of Aaron, the high priest, died and was buried in Gabaath of Phinees his son, which he gave him in Mount Ephraim. 33a On that day the sons of Israel took the ark of God and carried it around in their midst. And Phinees served as priest in the place of Eleazar his father until he died, and he was interred in Gabaath, which was his own. 33b And the sons of Israel departed each to their place and to their own city. And the sons of Israel worshiped Astarte and Astaroth and the gods of the nations round about them. And the Lord delivered them into the hands of Eglom, the king of Moab, and he dominated them eighteen years.
EDITION OF GREEK TEXT
To date there is no fully critical edition of LXX Judges. The Göttingen edition has not yet appeared, and the edition of Brooke and Maclean is a “diplomatic” edition in which the main text is basically that of Codex Vaticanus (B). The NETS translation of Judges, therefore, is based on A. Rahlfs, Septuaginta. Id est Vetus Testamentum graece iuxta LXX interpretes, 2 vols. (Stuttgart: Württembergische Bibelanstalt, 1935).

In Judges Rahlfs based his edition on the readings of about twenty manuscripts. He identified two main textual traditions, which he believed were so diverse that they amounted to separate recensions (editions) of the book. He printed these as separate texts, designated A and B. NETS Judges, accordingly, offers a translation of both the A and the B texts.

Rahlfs based his A text upon Codex Alexandrinus (A) and two groups of manuscripts representing the recensions of the LXX associated, respectively, with Origen (c. 185–253 CE) and Lucian (c. 250–312 CE). His B text was based upon Codex Vaticanus (B).

OVERVIEW OF THE TEXT(S) OF JUDGES
Subsequent scholarship has refined Rahlfs’ classifications. The manuscripts which are seen as witnesses to an A-type of text are now divided into three groups, AI, AII and AIII, of which AI corresponds fairly closely to Rahlfs’ “Origenic” manuscripts, and AII to his “Lucianic” manuscripts. Similarly, the B-type of text is now held to be represented by two related but distinct manuscript groups.

It is generally held that the “Old Greek” (OG) of Judges is to be found within AII (the Lucianic group), particularly in a subgroup of AII formed by the manuscripts glnw. (The Old Latin, a translation made from an early form of LXX Judges, is also an important witness to the OG.) The two main reasons for this view are that AII and the Old Latin show less “kaige influence” than the other manuscript groups and that they show less evidence of “Hexaplaric contamination.”

“Kaige,” or “kaige revision,” is shorthand in Septuagint studies for a tendency, already observable in the first century CE, for earlier forms of the LXX to be revised towards a proto-Masoretic text (MT). This tendency is held to have reached its fullest expression in the Greek translation produced by Aquila (c. 140 CE). The revision towards the MT is notable for its use of “quantitative equivalents,” stock renderings of particular Hebrew words and phrases that seem to be chosen primarily to give Greek readers a sense of what was in the original Hebrew, with little concern for whether the resulting translation was idiomatic Greek. Of these the best known is the use of ἄνενθι, “and indeed,” as the equivalent for כה (“also”) and או (“and also”) after which the entire revising tendency has been named. Other characteristic translations linked with it are: οἷς ἐστὶν < χρόνιον (“man”) in its distributive sense of “each”; ἐγώ οἶμαι < Ἰεροσόλυμον (“I am”), even with another finite verb; ὅτι ἐστὶν < μὴ (“there is not”). All of these translations occur in the A and B texts of Judges (though B alone has ἐγώ οἶμαι + finite verb: cf. 5.3; 6.18; 11.27, 35).

“Hexaplaric contamination” takes its name from Origen’s Hexapla, a work set out in six columns for comparative purposes. It is the conflating into one LXX manuscript of readings which originally belonged in separate columns of the Hexapla, and the clearest sign of it is the presence of doublets, or double translations of words and phrases. For doublet translations in the manuscripts (including mss A and B) see Schreiner, pp. 90–104. Doublets are not entirely absent even from the AII group or from the subgroup glnw, which is why the Old Latin is important in Judges as offering independent testimony to the OG.

Neither the A nor the B text consistently represents the OG. The A text stands somewhat closer to it but still contains many examples of kaige revision and Hexaplaric contamination. What is more, whereas scholarship in the decades before Rahlfs tended to stress the independence of the textual traditions represented by A and B, the large amount of common ground between them should not be overlooked: in many passages A and B are very similar, if not normally identical. The A and B traditions probably derive from a single archetype, of which they represent different degrees of revision. It is likely, then, that the Göttingen edition, when it appears, will print only one main text, which will not be identical to either Rahlfs’ A or B texts. Textually, therefore, NETS Judges is as provisional as the book’s Greek text(s).

Translation Profile of the Greek

In what follows, a reference to either LXX A or B is always specified (e.g., 1.6A; 2.15B); references not so qualified apply to both A and B.

The Hebrew of Judges

MT Judges mostly consists of straightforward, clearly structured narrative, although it does contain occasional obscure words, e.g., הָעַלְמַת in 1.14 (NRSV, “she dismounted”) or verses, e.g., 18.7, and there are some sections of narrative where the nature of the action described is unclear (e.g., Ehud’s escape, 3.23–25; Gideon’s attack on the Midianite camp, 7.16–22). But in general there is little that one would expect to cause a translator great difficulties. The one exception is the Song of Deborah in Judges 5, written in poetry generally thought to represent a more archaic form of Hebrew than that found in most parts of the Hebrew Bible and containing a number of rare words.

LXX Judges and its Vorlage

As it stands, LXX Judges (A and B) mainly represents a form of text very close to MT. In some cases, however, it is possible that LXX Judges is based on a different Vorlage.

So, for example:

1.14: “he urged her” (A), “Gothoniel urged her” (B), instead of “she urged him” (MT). MT is less logical.
16.13–14: LXX has several lines lacking in MT (see NRSV footnote).
19.2: LXX A “became angry,” possibly נשתמה (NRSV) in place of MT’s נשתם “played the harlot.”
19.30: LXX A includes the Levite’s instructions to those who carry the dismembered limbs of his concubine throughout Israel (see NRSV footnote; in LXX A, however, these instructions are illogically inserted after the Israelites’ response to this horrible message and not where NRSV might be taken to imply).

On other occasions the translator seems to have had a consonantal text identical to MT, but he apparently divided the consonants differently or supplied different vowels:

18.25: נָכְרָא נָכַר, “do not make your voice heard” = μη σκουσθώ δή ή φωνή σου, “your voice had better not be heard” (LXX AB). Possibly נכרה has been vocalized as a Niphal, not a Hiphil.

Occasionally LXX has sentences in a different order compared to MT: e.g., the notice of Aod’s (Ehud’s) death in 3.30–4.1, especially in LXX A; the note about the location of the Ark at 20.26–28 in LXX B. In these cases the Vorlage was likely enough identical to MT, and the translation simply rearranges the sentences to produce what seemed to be a clearer or more logical presentation. Sometimes there are repeated elements or other dislocations in the text, which may be due to a scribal slip (e.g., in 18.8–9A; 18.16–20A).

Some of the cases where LXX Judges seems to offer a reading different from MT are probably due to inner-Greek corruption: ἐπορέουν, “would prostitute themselves” (2.15A) has probably arisen as a mis-copying of ἐπορέοντο, “would go” or ἐξεπορέοντο, “marched out” (LXX B); ἔξικνῳμοι, “reaching” (5.15B) is probably a corruption of an earlier reading ἔξιχνῳμοι, “searching out” (cf. the reading of LXX A ἀκρίβοιμοι, “inquiries”). Other examples are: 6.34B ἐβοήθη, “was seized by fear” for ἐβοήθη, “called out”; 8.32B ἐν πόλει ἄγωνι, “in his city” for ἐν πόλει ὀγωνι, “with a good head of grey hair”; 9.7B ἐκλαύσατο, “he wept” for ἐκλάσατο, “he called out”; 15.18B ἐυδόκησας, “you have approved,” by error for ἐδωκας “you granted.”

Selected Words and Phrases

LXX Judges is generally accurate, and it stays close to the sense of the Hebrew. But names and obscure words sometimes seemed to have caused the translator problems:

1.15: גּולְוָת-מַיִם, “Gulloth-mayim” (NRSV fn. “Basins of Water”) becomes “redemption of water,” as though יָמִים were related to יָכִין “redeem.”
These translations are perhaps due not to simple error but to a desire to find theologically significant meanings in names by a kind of wordplay. But when LXX A translates at 20.33 ὀφθαλμός, the Hiphil participle of a rare root meaning "burst forth" (cf. NRSV "rushed"), as "was struggling," this is probably no more than a guess. There are many such cases in Judges 5, where not only individual words but entire phrases seem to have caused difficulties. Thus, a comparison between 5.1–11 in NRSV and NETS reveals the following differences:

5.2: "When locks are long in Israel" (NRSV); "when chiefs take the lead in Israel" (= LXX A); "an unveiling was unveiled in Israel" (= LXX B)
5.7: "The peasantry prospered in Israel, they grew fat on plunder" (NRSV); "a spokesman was lacking in Israel; he was lacking" (= LXX A); "mighty ones were lacking in Israel; they were lacking" (= LXX B)
5.8 "When new gods were chosen, then war was in the gates" (NRSV); "they chose new gods, like barley bread" (= LXX A); "they chose new gods; then the cities of the rulers fought" (= LXX B)
5.10: "Tell of it, you who ride on white donkeys, you who sit on rich carpets . . . " (= LXX A); "mounted upon a female donkey at midday, sitting on tribunal . . . " (= LXX B)

Some of the LXX translations in these verses seem little short of nonsense. The translator has made his best guess at the meaning of individual words (and in this it may be said that he shows his intent to be faithful to the Hebrew), but these guesses taken together do not yield coherent sense. In most cases it is rare Hebrew words that have caused the problem. Things become a little better as the chapter proceeds, because many of the difficulties are found in the opening section. But it is impossible to read a modern, philologically informed translation of Judges 5 such as the NRSV without feeling that it has come closer to what the Hebrew likely meant.

Transliterations
Occasionally LXX Judges simply transliterates the Hebrew. Sometimes this may be because there was no obvious equivalent to the Hebrew: the rendering of בּוֹנֵים ("the Baals" as Baalim (2.11; 3.7; 8.33; 10.6, 10) may fall into this category. At other points transliteration may have been the translator's last resort in dealing with difficult Hebrew: 5.16A, μοῦσθαι (NRSV "sheepfolds"); 5.22A, ομφαστασθήσθαι (NRSV "gallloping"); 8.7A, βαρκόννια, B αβαρκνία (NRSV "thorns"); 20.6B, ξείμα (NRSV "outrage"). At 5.7, φρασσέω ("spokesman") is a recognizable Greek word, but one probably chosen because it resembled the Hebrew נְפִחָה (NRSV "peasantry") in sound. LXX B’s otherwise obscure translation of δοξάζω ("dead") at 5.27 by ἐξονθήσετίς ("gone") may have a similar explanation.

Word-for-Word Approach
It would be unfair, however, to focus only on the treatment of difficult words and passages. By and large LXX Judges conveys the sense of the Hebrew, sometimes with considerable skill. But it does so in a form of Greek that, by the standards of most ancient Greek literature, is not fully idiomatic. LXX Judges consistently reproduces in Greek constructions, which, while they are good Hebrew, are not attested in other forms of Greek or are only rarely attested. This is true of both LXX A and LXX B. In general LXX Judges follows a "word-for-word" translational model. Examples of this include the following:

(i) Particles

(a) MT’s standard connective אָּתָּו ("and") is typically glossed as καὶ ("and") and only rarely by other particles one would expect to find in other forms of Greek. ἀλλά ("but/and/now") occurs 18x in LXX A and 12x in LXX B; ἀλλά ("but") occurs 8x in LXX A and 3x in LXX B; οὖν ("so/therefore") 2x in LXX A and 3x in LXX B; γὰρ ("for") 2x in LXX A and never in LXX B.

(b) LXX Judges generally translates the relative particle ὅπου ("who/which/where," etc.) well, using the appropriate form of relative clause. But in some cases the οὗτος clause involves "relative resumption," ending with a word that refers back to the clause’s antecedent. In these cases LXX Judges regularly translates word for word, yielding a kind of double translation of the relative particle. Thus ἔρχεται ἡ ἡμέρα τοῦ βασιλέως,
"the mission you are on" (18.6), in which ἀπό, "in it," picks up ἀποβαίνει, "your mission," becomes in LXX A ἐκ τοῦ ὄντος ὑψόων καθ' ἐν υἱῶν πορεύεται εἰς σκοτά, "your journey, on which you are going in it." This is as clumsy in Greek as in English. (LXX B has a slightly varied but equally inelegant translation.) Making a slight concession to English usage, NETS translates LXX A at this point as "your journey, that upon which you are going." Other examples of the same phenomenon are: 6.10A; 14.17A; 16.11B, 26, 29; 18.5, 6, 10A; 20.22A.

(2) Prepositions
(i) Hebrew can use the preposition ב to mean either "into" or "in/among," depending on the context. Greek normally distinguishes εἰς followed by the accusative ("into") and ἐν followed by the dative ("in/among"), but LXX Judges uses ἐν + dative as a standard equivalent for Hebrew ב in either sense. This frequently produces what by the standards of most forms of ancient Greek amounts to an illiteracy. See for example, 1.2 ("in his hand") and 1.3 ("in your allotment").

(ii) A related point concerns Hebrew verbs followed by the preposition ב, such as לֵאמֵנ, "inquire of." At 1.1 LXX A renders this εἶπεν τῶν ἀνδρῶν καὶ θηρίων τοῦ κυρίου, "the sons of Israel were inquiring by the Lord"; LXX B has διό τοῦ κυρίου through the Lord," which is not much better. See also 18.5; 20.18, 23, 27.

(iii) The Hebrew preposition ב "between" is characteristically repeated in phrases of the type "between X and Y." An example is לְהַעַר בְּאֹהֵרָה הַמֶּרֶם (4.5), which LXX A renders ὁμοίως οὖν θεῶν καὶ ὁμοιώσας θεοῦ. This can only be rendered (unidiomatically) as "between Rama and between Baithel." LXX B has something very similar. See also 4.17; 9.23; 11.27; 13.25; 16.31.

(iv) Another preposition that is sometimes repeated is ב, "as/like," in phrases of the type "X and Y alike." Thus at 8.18 we read יְשַׁעַל בְּאֹהֵרָה (NRSV, "as you are, so were they"). LXX A renders this ὁμοιός σοι, ὁμοιός αὐτῶν, "one like you was like (of) them."

(3) Verbs
(i) The Hebrew infinitive absolute is used to represent simultaneous action in an phrase such as יָשִּׁעֲלִי, יָשִּׁעֲלִי בְּאֹהֵרָה בְּאֹהֵרָה in 14.9 (NRSV, "and went on, eating as he went"). LXX A renders this phrase καὶ ἐφράζοντο καὶ πορεύομενοι καὶ ἑσένων, "and went on, going and eating" (cf. LXX B). See also 4.24.

(ii) The infinitive absolute is also used to reinforce a finite verb from the same root. NRSV translates such phrases in a variety of ways: 7.19: "they had just set the watch"; 8.25: "we will willingly give"; 11.30: "if you will give"; 13.22: "we shall surely die." LXX Judges translates such expressions in one of two ways: either reinforcing the verb with a cognate noun in the dative (7.19A ἐφέρασεν ἐφερέρεσαι, "he roused . . . with a rousing"; 13.22, ἔθεσεν ἐπηρεϊζόμεθα "we shall die by death") or reinforcing it with a participle (7.19B ἐφιέροντες ἐφερέσαι, "rousing they roused"; 8.25 δεδομένες δέομεν, "giving we will give"). Neither is good Greek. See also 15.2; 15.13; 16.11; 17.3; 21.5.

(iii) Biblical Hebrew uses הָאָב (Qal or Hiphil) followed by the infinitive construct of another verb to denote "doing something again": יָשִּׁעֲלִי בְּאֹהֵרָה לְהַעַר בְּאֹהֵרָה, "the Israelites again did" (3.12), or, negatively יָשִּׁעְלָה יָשִּׁעlteו לְהַעַר, "I shall no longer drive out" (2.21). LXX translates this idiom literally, using προσέμεθα followed by an infinitive: 3.12 Προσέμεθα καὶ προσέβασαν τούτους τούτους, "and the sons of Israel added to do"; 2.21 Προσέβασαν τούτους εἶπαν, "I will not add to remove." See also 4.1; 8.28; 9.37; 10.6, 13; 13.1, 23; 20.22, 23, 28. See also the translation of the analogous construction ἱστύμεναι ἰστύμεναι at 13.19 as καὶ διέχωρονται ποιήσαι, "and he separated to act" (LXX B).

(4) Idioms with "Man" and "Woman"
(i) In Hebrew איש, "man" (singular) is used in a distributive sense, e.g., איש איש, "each to his inheritance" (2.6). LXX generally translates this construction word for word: άνηρ άνηρ κατὰ τὴν κληρονομιαν αὐτοῦ, "a man . . . to his inheritance" (2.6; see also 7.22; 10.18; 16.5; 21.1, 21–22, 25B). On four occasions, however, LXX A translates this construction more idiomatically, with άνθρωπος, "each," at 2.6; 7.21; 9.49; and 21.25.

(ii) The singulars of איש and אשה, "woman" can also be used in a collective sense to denote a group of men or women; for instance: איש איש (NRSV, "the men of Israel," "the Israelites"); אשה אשה (21.16; NRSV, "there are no women left in Benjamin"). LXX Judges sometimes translates such phrases literally, using the singular in contexts that demand the plural, with awkward effect (7.23; 20.15B, 36, 39A; 21.1A, 16). On other occasions the plural is used: איש איש אשה אשה at 20.17 is rendered παρὰ παρὰ παρὰ παρὰ παρὰ, "four hundred thousand men", cf. 20.15A. At 20.39 and 21.1 LXX B translates איש אשה collective with ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ θεοῦ, "the sons of Israel," which suits the context better than the literal translation of LXX A.
Here is a further selection of unidiomatic phrases and odd-seeming translations in LXX Judges behind which a particular Hebrew word or idiom may be recognized:

2.1: “I will not scatter my covenant” = LXX; NRSV, “I will never break my covenant.”
3.22: “he even drove the hilt in after the flame” = LXX; NRSV, “after the blade.”
6.13, 15: “by me, Lord” = LXX; NRSV, “but sir.”
7.17: “you will see from me” = LXX; NRSV, “look at me.”
8.35: “they did not do mercy with” = LXX; NRSV, “they did not exhibit loyalty to.”
9.17: “cast his life in opposition” = LXX A; “cast forth his life in opposition” = LXX B; NRSV, “risked his life.”
14.7: “she was pleasing before Sampson” = LXX A; “she was made straight in Sampson’s sight” = LXX B; NRSV, “she pleased Samson.”
16.20: “I will go out as once and once” = LXX B; NRSV, “I will go out as at other times.”
18.19: “you will be to us for a father and for a priest” = LXX A; “become for a father and for a priest to us” = LXX B; NRSV, “be to us a father and a priest.”
19.1: “the thighs of the hill country of Ephraim” = LXX; NRSV, “the remote parts of the hill country of Ephraim.”
19.24: “the thing of this madness” = LXX; NRSV “such a vile thing.”
20.16: “All these were slingers of stones at a hair, and not missing” = LXX B; NRSV, “every one could sling a stone at a hair, and not miss.”
20.40: “and see, the annihilation of the city went up” = LXX; NRSV, “and there was the whole city going up in smoke.”
20.42: “overtook upon them” = LXX B; NRSV “overtook them.”
20.48: “and the cities that were found they sent off with fire” = LXX A; NRSV, “also the remaining towns they set on fire.”
21.19: “from days to days” = LXX A; NRSV “yearly.”

Translations such as these, it is important to note, reflect a deliberate choice on the translator’s part (or in some cases, on the part of those who have corrected an earlier text towards the Hebrew). It is not that the translator/reviser knew no better than to write pidgin-Greek. Rather, his consistent aim was that the translation should mirror its Vorlage as closely as possible, and so he has left within the translation many signals as to the nature of the Hebrew original. LXX Judges well exemplifies the “interlinear” paradigm, which informs NETS as a whole.

The translation here offered, in accordance with the principles of NETS, attempts to capture this aspect of LXX Judges by using English which, while grammatical, is at points unidiomatic, inelegant or illiterate. This happens literally hundreds of times. But the reader should not draw inappropriate conclusions about the LXX translator’s competence from this aspect of the translation.

“Theological” Renderings

At points within LXX Judges there may be a theological issue underlying the translation. The addition at the end of 4.8 (“for I do not know the day in which the Lord will send his angel on a good journey with me”) is an example: LXX speaks of God as intervening through a mediating figure rather than directly accompanying Barak, a type of interpretation that is more common in the Targum of Judges. (E.g., at 4.14 the Targum has “Is not the angel of the Lord going forth to ensure success before you?” in place of MT’s “the Lord is indeed going out before you.”) Something similar may apply to the narrative of Gideon and the angel of the Lord in Judg 6.11–24. MT speaks sometimes of “the angel of the Lord/God” (vv. 11, 12, 20–22), and sometimes of “the Lord” (vv. 14, 16, 23). LXX has “the angel of the Lord” throughout, except at v. 23, where it seems that Gideon only hears God’s voice and no longer sees any manifestation of God’s presence. LXX seems to go beyond MT in safeguarding God’s transcendence. Compare also 2.1: the form of the angel’s words in MT leaves it ambiguous whether he speaks as the Lord’s representative or in some sense as the Lord himself, but LXX A and B in different ways remove the ambiguity.

At 5.23 MT has: “they did not come to the help of the Lord, to the help of the Lord against the mighty.” LXX A translates this “because they did not come to the help of the Lord, the Lord is our helper, mighty among warriors.” The second part of this translation echoes Psalms in which God is described as Israel’s or an individual’s helper (e.g., 18[19],15; 27[28],7; 113.17–19[115.9–11]), and that may partly explain LXX A’s deviation from MT. Additionally, it may be that the translator felt unease at words which seemed to suggest that God stood in need of human aid and so translated the second half of the line in a way that made clear that God is Israel’s helper, and not the other way around. (Targum, “they did not come to the aid of the people of the Lord, to the aid of the people of the Lord,” seems to have been similarly motivated, though its approach is different.) LXX B is closer to MT.

In Jotham’s parable, the olive tree speaks of “my rich oil by which gods and mortals are honored” (9.9 NRSV), and the vine speaks of “my wine that cheers gods and mortals” (9.13 NRSV). In these verses could instead be translated as “God.” LXX A at these points has “my fattiness which God and men extol in me” (v. 9) and “my wine, the good cheer of men, which comes from God” (v. 13), translations which avoid any suggestion of polytheism and perhaps also the idea that wine might make God merry (v. 13). LXX B has “my fattiness by which men extol God” at v. 9, an even more “theologically sound” translation than LXX A, but at v. 13 translates “my wine, that cheers God [or “god,” for there is no article] and men,” this last translation illustrating the point that tendencies in LXX Judges are not usually consistently attested.

Lastly, mention should be made of the bizarre translation of as “she-Baal/she-Baalim” at four points in LXX A: 2.13; 3.7; 10.6, 10. Baal with a feminine article and, therefore, as a goddess, may owe its origin to a popular association of Baal with “shame,” a feminine noun in both Hebrew and Greek. The Greek text as it stands, however, is clear.

Judges A

1 And it came about after the death of Iesous that the sons of Israel were inquiring by the Lord, saying, “Who shall go up for us against the Chananites as leader, to fight against them?” 2 And the Lord said, “Ioudas shall go up. See, I have given the land in his hand.” 3 And Ioudas said to his brother Symeon, “Come up with me in my allotment, and let us fight against the Chananite, and indeed I will go with you in your allotment.” And Symeon went with him. 4 And Ioudas went up, and the Lord gave the Chananite and the Pherezite into his hands, and he struck them down at Bezek, ten thousand men. 5 And they found Adonibezek at Bezek and fought against him and struck down the Chananite and the Pherezite. 6 And Adonibezek fled, and they went in pursuit after him and cut off the tips of his hands and his feet. 7 And Adonibezek said, “Seventy kings with the tips of their hands and their feet cut off used to gather the scraps under my table; therefore, as I have done, so God has paid me back.” And they brought him to Jerusalem, and he died there.

Judges B

1 And it came about after the death of Iesous that the sons of Israel were inquiring through the Lord, saying, “Who shall go up for us against the Chananites as leader, to fight with them?” 2 And the Lord said, “Ioudas shall go up. See, I have given the land in his hand.” 3 And Ioudas said to his brother Symeon, “Come up with me in my allotment, and let us fight against the Chananite, and indeed I will go with you in your allotment.” And Symeon went with him. 4 And Ioudas went up, and the Lord gave the Chananite and the Pherezite up into their hands, and they cut them down at Bezek, fully ten thousand men. 5 And they found Adonibezek at Bezek and deployed against him and cut down the Chananite and the Pherezite. 6 And Adonibezek fled, and they chased after him and captured him and cut off the tips of his hands and his feet. 7 And Adonibezek said, “Seventy kings with the tips of their hands and the tips of their feet cut off used to gather the scraps under my table; therefore, as I have done, so God has paid me back.” And they brought him to Jerusalem, and he died there.
8 And the sons of Ioudas fought against Ie-rousalem and took it. And they struck it down with the edge of the sword and set the city on fire with fire. 9 And after that the sons of Ioudas went down to fight against the Chananite who lived in the hill country and the south and the lowland. 10 And Ioudas went against the Chananite who lived in Chebron, and Chebron came out in opposition (now the name of Chebron was formerly Karia-tharboskepheth), and he struck down Sessi and Achith-man and Tholmi, offsprings of Enak.

11 And from there they went against the inhabi-tants of Dabir (and the name of Dabir was former-City of Letters). 12 And Chaleb said, "Who-ever strikes a blow against the City of Letters and captures it first, I will give him my daughter Ascha for a wife." 13 And Gothoniel son of Kenez, Chaleb's younger brother, captured it first, and he gave him his daughter Ascha for a wife. 14 And it came about, when she entered, that he urged her to ask for the field from her father. And she grum-bled upon her draft animal and cried out from where she was on her draft animal, "You have given me away into the land of the south." And Chaleb said to her, "What do you want?" 15 And Ascha said to him, "Give me a blessing; since you have given me away into the land of the south, you shall also give me redemption of water." And, according to her desire, Chaleb gave her the redemption of the upper and the redemption of the lower.

16 And the sons of Iobab the Kinite, Moyses' father-in-law, went up from the City of Palms to the sons of Ioudas, into the wilderness that is in the south near the descent of Arad. And he went and settled with the people. 17 And Ioudas went with his brother Symeon, and they struck down the Chananite who inhabited Sepheth, and anath-ematized it and destroyed it. And they called the name of the city Destruction. 18 And Ioudas did not inherit Gaza and its territory and Ascalon and its territory and Akkaron and its territory and Azotus and its surrounding lands. 19 And the Lord was with Ioudas, and he inherited the hill country, for he could not inherit the inhabitants of the valley, because Rechab commanded it. 20 And he gave Chebron to Chaleb, just as Moyses had said, and from there he inherited the three cities and re-moved from there the three sons of Enak. 21 And the sons of Beniamin did not remove the lebousse who lived in Ierousalem, and the lebousse has lived with the sons of Beniamin to this day.

22 And the sons of Josep, indeed they too went up towards Baithel, and Ioudas with them. 23 And the house of Israel encamped against Baithel (now the name of the city was formerly Louza). 24 And those who were keeping watch saw a man coming out of the city, and they captured him and said to him, "Show us the way into the city, and we will do mercy with you." 25 And he showed them...
the way into the city, and they struck down the city with the edge of the sword, but they sent the man and his family away. 26 And the man left for the land of Chettim and built a city there and called its name Louza; that is its name to this day.

27 And Manasses did not inherit Baithsan (which is the city of the Scythians) or its daughters or its surrounding lands or Ekthanaad and its daughters or the inhabitants of Dor and its daughters or the inhabitants of Kedron and its daughters or the inhabitants of Magedon and its daughters or the inhabitants of lebaam or its daughters, and the Chananite began to live in that land. 28 And it came about that when Israel grew strong, he set the Chananite to pay tribute, and removing he did not remove him.

29 And Ephraim did not remove the Chananite who lived in Gazer, and the Chananite was living in his midst in Gazer and became for tribute.

30 And Zaboulon did not remove the inhabitants of Kedron and the inhabitants of Enaala, and the Chananite lived in his midst and became for tribute.

31 And Aser did not remove the inhabitants of Akcho (and it became for tribute to him), and the inhabitants of Dor and the inhabitants of Sidon and the inhabitants of Aalaph and Achazib and the city of Chelba and of Aphek and of Roob 32 and Aser lived in the midst of the Chananite who inhabited the land, for he could not remove him.

33 And Nephthali did not remove the inhabitants of Baithsamys or the inhabitants of Baithenath, and Israel lived in the midst of the Chananite who inhabited the land; now the inhabitants of Baithsamys and the city of Baithenath became for tribute to them.

34 And the Amorrite pressed the sons of Dan back into the hill country, for he did not allow him to come down to the valley. 35 And the Amorrite began to live in the mountain of the Myrtle-grove, where there are bears and foxes, and the hand of the house of Ioseph rested heavily on the Amorrite, and he became for tribute. 36 And the border of the Amorrite was the Idumean above Akbrabin, near Petra and above.

Now an angel of the Lord went up from Galgal to Weeping and to Baithel and to the house of Israel, and he said to them: 'The Lord, the Lord brought you up from Egypt and brought you into the land that he had sworn to your fathers to give to you. And he said to you, 'I will not scatter my covenant with you forever. 2 And for your part, you shall not make a covenant with those who have their seat in this land, nor shall you do obeisance to their gods, but you shall destroy their carved objects and tear down their altars.' And you did not

Now an angel of the Lord went up from Galgal to Weeping and to Baithel and to the house of Israel, and he said to them: This is what the Lord says: 'I brought you up from Egypt and brought you into the land that I had sworn to your fathers. And I said, 'I will not scatter my covenant with you forever. 2 And for your part, you shall not make a covenant with those who have their seat in this land, nor shall you do obeisance to their gods, but you shall destroy their carved objects and demolish their altars.' And you did not listen to my
And Iesous dismissed the people, and the sons of Israel went away, each to his house and to his inheritance to inherit the land. And the people were subject to the Lord all the days of Iesous and all the days of the elders, those who prolonged their days after Iesous, those who had known all the Lord’s great work that he had done for Israel. And Iesous son of Naue, slave of the Lord, died, a son of one hundred and ten years. And they buried him within the bounds of his inheritance in Thammathares, in the hill country of Ephraim, north of Mount Gaas. And that whole generation was added to their fathers, and another generation arose after them, those who did not know the Lord and the work that he had done for Israel.

And the sons of Israel did what was evil before the Lord and were serving the Baalim, and they abandoned the Lord, god of their fathers, who had brought them out of the land of Egypt, and they went after other gods from among the gods of the peoples who were all around them and did obeisance to them, and they provoked the Lord to anger. And they abandoned the Lord and served the she-Baal and the Astartes. And the Lord was furiously angry with Israel, and he delivered them into the hand of plunderers, and they plundered them, and he gave them up in the hand of their enemies all around, and they could not withstand in the presence of their enemies. At every point at which they would prostitute themselves, the Lord’s hand also was to them for misfortune, as the Lord had said and as the Lord had sworn, and he oppressed them greatly.

And the Lord raised up judges for them and delivered them out of the hand of those who plundered them. And indeed they did not listen to their judges, for they prostituted themselves after other gods and did obeisance to them and provoked the Lord to anger. And they soon turned aside from the way in which their fathers had walked in obeying the commandments of the Lord; they did not do so. And because the Lord raised up judges for them, the Lord also was with the judge, and he delivered them from the hand of their enemies all the days of the judge, for the Lord was entreated by their groaning from before those who besieged and afflicted them. And it came about when the judge would die that they relapsed and again caused corruption beyond what their fathers had done, going after other gods, serving them and doing obeisance to them. They did not cast off their practices and they did not withdraw from their stubborn way.

And Iesous dismissed the people, and a man went to his inheritance to inherit the land. And the people were subject to the Lord all the days of Iesous and all the days of the elders, those who prolonged their days along with Iesous, those who had known all the Lord’s great work that he had done in Israel. And Iesous son of Naue, slave of the Lord, died, a son of one hundred ten years. And they buried him within the bounds of his inheritance in Thammathares, in the hill country of Ephraim, north of Mount Gaas. And indeed, that whole generation was added to their fathers, and another generation arose after them, who did not know the Lord and, indeed, the work that he had done in Israel.

And the sons of Israel did what was evil before the Lord and served the Baalim, and they abandoned the Lord, the God of their fathers, who had brought them out of the land of Egypt, and they went after other gods from among the gods of the nations who were all around them and did obeisance to them, and they provoked the Lord to anger. And they abandoned him and served Baal and the Astartes. And the Lord was furiously angry against Israel, and he delivered them into the hands of plunderers, and they plundered them, and he gave them up in the hands of their enemies all around, and they could no longer withstand in the presence of their enemies. At every point at which they marched out, the Lord’s hand was also against them for misfortune, as the Lord had said and as the Lord had sworn to them, and he oppressed them greatly.

And the Lord raised up judges, and the Lord delivered them out of the hand of those who plundered them. And indeed they did not obey the judges, for they prostituted themselves after other gods and did obeisance to them. And they soon turned aside from the way in which their fathers had walked in obeying the words of the Lord; they did not do so. And because the Lord raised up judges for them, the Lord also was with the judge, and he delivered them from the hand of their enemies all the days of the judge, for the Lord was entreated by their groaning from before those who besieged and oppressed them. And it came about when the judge would die that they relapsed and again caused corruption beyond what their fathers had done, going after other gods, serving them and doing obeisance to them. They did not cast off their practices and their stubborn ways.
And the Lord was furiously angry against Israel, and he said, “Seeing that, inasmuch as this nation has abandoned my covenant that I commanded their fathers and has not obeyed my voice, for my part will not add to remove from before them a man from among the nations that lesous left behind and let be, to test Israel by means of them, whether or not they would keep to the way of the Lord, walking in it, as their fathers had kept to it.”

And the Lord had let those nations be, not removing them at once, and had not delivered them in lesous’ hand.

And lesous left these nations so as to test Israel by means of them, all those who had no experience of all the wars of Chanaan (only on account of the generations of the sons of Israel, to teach them war; only, those before them did not know them): the five satrapies of the allophyles and the full number of the Chananite and the Sidonian and the Heuite who lived on Lebanon, from Mount Balmaeron as far as Loboemath. And it happened so as to test Israel by means of them, to know whether they would obey the commandments of the Lord, which he commanded their fathers by the hand of Moyses.

And the sons of Israel lived in the midst of the Chananite and the Chettite and the Amorrite and the Pherezite and the Heuite and the Iebousite, and they took their daughters for wives for themselves, and their own daughters they gave to their sons, and they served their gods.

And the sons of Israel did what was evil before the Lord, and they forgot the Lord, their God, and served the she-Baalim and the groves. And the Lord was furiously angry against Israel, and he gave them up into the hands of King Chousarsathaim of Syria-of-Rivers, and they were subject to him eight years. And the sons of Israel cried out to the Lord, and the Lord raised up a deliverer for Israel, and he delivered them, Gothoniel son of Kenez, Chaleb’s younger brother, and he obeyed him.

And a spirit of the Lord came upon him, and he judged Israel, and he went out to war, and the Lord gave King Chousarsathaim of Syria in his hand, and his hand prevailed over Chousarsathaim. And the land had rest fifty years. And Gothoniel son of Kenez died.

And the sons of Israel added to do what was evil before the Lord, and the Lord strengthened King Eglom of Moab against Israel, because they had done what was evil before the Lord.

And he gathered to himself all the sons of Ammon and Amalek, and he went and struck down Israel, and he inherited the City of Palms. And the sons of Israel were subject to King Eglom of Moab eighteen years.

And the sons of Israel cried out to the Lord, and the Lord raised up for them a deliverer, Aod son of Gera son of Iemeni, an ambidextrous man. And the sons of Israel sent gifts to King Eglom of Moab by his hand. 16And Aod made for himself a double-bladed dagger, a span in length, and he fastened it on his right thigh under his cloak. 17And he presented the gifts to King Egлом of Moab. And Egлом was a very handsome man. 18And it came about, when Aod had finished presenting the gifts, that he sent those who bore the gifts on their way. 19And Egлом turned back from the carved objectsa with Galgal. And Aod said, “I have a secret message for you, O king.” And Egлом said to everyone, “Away!” and all his attendants went out from him. 20And Aod came in to him, and he was sitting alone, quite by himself in his summer roof-chamber. And Aod said, “I have a divine message for you, O king.” And Egлом rose from his seat, near to him. 21And it came about just as he rose up that Aod reached with his left hand and took the dagger from his right thigh and thrust it into Egлом’s belly, 22and indeed he even drove the hilt in after the flame, and the fat closed over the flame, for he did not draw the dagger out of his belly. 23And Aod went out into the vestibule, and he closed the doors of the roof-chamber on him and wedged them.
Judges A

24 And he had gone out, and his servants came in. And they looked, and see, the doors of the roof-chamber were locked. And they said, “Perhaps he is sitting on the stool in the retreat of his bedroom.” 25And they waited, embarrassed. And see, there was no one to open the doors of the roof-chamber, and they took the key and opened, and see, their lord was lying dead on the ground.

26 And Aod escaped while they were in confusion (and there was no one paying attention to him) and he passed beyond the carved objectsa and escaped to Seirotha. 27And it came about when he arrived that he sounded with a horn in the hill country of Ephraim, and the sons of Israel went down with him, and he himself was at their head. 28And he said to them, “Come down after me, for the Lord God has given your enemies, Moab, in your hand.” And they went down after him and quickly seized the fords across the Jordan of Moab, and they did not allow a man to cross over. 29And at that time they struck down Moab, about ten thousand men, all the warriors among them, every man of power, and not a man escaped. 30And Moab was humbled in that day under the hand of Israel. And the land had rest for eighty years. And Aod judged them until he died.

31 And after him arose Samegar son of Anath, and he struck down the allophyles, fully six hundred men, as well as calves of cattle. And he himself delivered Israel.

by his hand. 16And Aod made for himself a double-bladed dagger; it was a span in length, and he fastened it on his right thigh under his cloak. 17And he went and presented the gifts to King Egлом of Moab. Now Egлом was a very handsome man. 18And it came about, when Aod had finished presenting the gifts, that he sent those who carried the gifts on their way. 19And he himself turned back from the carved objects that were with Galgal. And Aod said, “I have a secret message for you, O king.” And Egлом said to him, “Be quiet!” and he sent all those who stood by him out from him. 20And Aod came into him, and he was sitting alone, quite by himself in his own summer roof-chamber. And Aod said, “I have a divine message for you, O king.” And Egлом rose from his seat, near to him. 21And it came about just as he rose up that Aod reached with his left hand and took the dagger that was above his right thigh and thrust it into his belly, 22and indeed he even drove the hilt in after the flame, and the fat closed over the flame, for he did not draw the dagger out of his belly. 23And Aod went out by the vestibule. 24And he went out past those who had been stationed, and he closed the doors of the roof-chamber on him and wedged them.

24 And he had gone out, and the servants came in. And they looked, and see, the doors of the roof-chamber were wedged. And they said, “Perhaps he is draining his feetb in the summer storeroom.” 25And they waited patiently until they were ashamed. And see, there was no one to open the doors of the roof-chamber, and they took the key and opened, and see, their lord was lying dead on the ground.

26 And Aod escaped while they were in confusion (and there was no one paying attention to him) and he passed beyond the carved objects and escaped to Seirotha. 27And it came about when Aod entered the land of Israel that he sounded with a horn in the hill country of Ephraim, and the sons of Israel went down with him from the hill country, and he himself was at their head. 28And he said to them, “Come down after me, for the Lord God has given your enemies, Moab, in your hand.” And they went down after him and quickly seized the fords across the Jordan of Moab, and he did not allow a man to cross over. 29And in that day they struck down Moab, about ten thousand men, every sleek man, even every man of power, and not a man escaped. 30And Moab was humbled in that day under the hand of Israel. And the land had rest for eighty years. And Aod judged them until he died.

31 And after him arose Samegar son of Dinach, and he struck down the allophyles, fully six hundred men, with a bull’s ploughshare. And indeed he too delivered Israel.

4 And the sons of Israel added to do what was evil before the Lord. 2And the Lord gave them up in the hand of King Iabin of Chanaan, who reigned in Hasor, and the commander of his force was Sisara, and he himself lived in Harisoth-of-the-Nations. 3And the sons of Israel cried out to the Lord, for he had nine hundred ironclad chariots and himself cruelly oppressed Israel for twenty years. 4 And at that time a woman, Debora, a prophetess, wife of Laphidoth, was judging Israel by herself. 5And she used to sit by herself under the palm of Debora between Rama and between Baithel in the hill country of Ephraim, and the sons of Israel would come up to her there to resolve disputes. 6And Debora sent and summoned Barak son of Abineem from Kedes Nephthali and said to him, “Is it not you whom the Lord, the God of Israel, commanded? And you shall leave for Mount Thabor and bring with you ten thousand men from the sons of Nephthali and from the sons of Zaboualon. 7And I will bring out to you, to the Wadi Kison, Sisara, commander of Iabin’s force, and his chariots and his horde, and I will give him in your hand. 8And Barak said to her, “If you will go with me, I will go, and if you will not go with me, I will not go, for I do not know the day in which the Lord will send his angel on a good journey with me.” 9And Debora said to him, “Going I will go with you, but know that it will not be your success for the journey on which you are going, for the Lord will give Sisara up in the hand of a woman.” And Debora got up and went with Barak to Kedes. 10And Barak summoned Zaboualon and Nephthali to Kedes, and ten thousand warriors went up at his heels, and Debora went up with him. 11 11 And the fellows of the Kinite had separated from the sons of Iobab, a relative by marriage of Moyses, and he had pitched his tent by Oak-of-the-Resters, which is near Kedes. 12 And they told Sisara that Barak son of Abineem had gone up to Mount Thabor, and Sisara called out all his chariots, for he had nine hundred iron-clad chariots, and all the people who were with him, from Harisoth-of-the-Nations, to the Wadi Kison. 13And Debora said to Barak, “Up! For this is the day in which the Lord has given Sisara in your hand. See, will the Lord not go before you?” And Barak went down from Mount Thabor, and ten thousand men behind him. 14And the Lord threw Sisara and all his chariots and all his camp into a panic by the edge of the sword before Barak, and Sisara got down from his chariot and fled away on his feet, and Barak was pursuing after the chariots and after the camp, all the way to Thicket-of-the-Nations. And all the camp of Sisara fell by the edge of the sword; not even one was left. 15 And Sisara had retreated on his feet to the tent of Iael, wife of Chaber the Kinite, for there was peace between King Iabin of Hasor and between the clan of Chaber the Kinite. 16And Iael came out came out to meet Sisara and said to him, “Turn aside, my lord, turn aside to me; have no fear.” And he turned aside to her, into the tent, and she covered him with a garment. And Sisara said to her, “Do but give me a little water to drink, for I am thirsty.” And she opened the skin of milk and gave him a drink and covered up his face. And he said to her, “Stand at the entrance of the tent, and it shall be, if anybody comes to you and asks you and says to you, ‘Is a man within?’ that you will say, ‘There is not.’” And she covered him up with her skin curtain. And Iael, wife of Chaber, took the tent peg and placed the hammer in her hand and secretly went in towards him and drove the peg in his temple, and it went through in the ground. And as for him, he writhed between her knees, and he breathed his last and died. And see, Barak was pursuing Sisara, and Iael went out to meet him and said to him, “Come here, and I will show you the man whom you are seeking.” And he went in to her, and see, Sisara sprawled, a corpse, and the tent peg in his jaw.

And in that day God routed King Iabin of Chanaan before the sons of Israel. And the hand of the sons of Israel went out, going and becoming hard against King Iabin of Chanaan until they destroyed him. And Debbora sang, and Barak son of Abineem, in that day and said:

“When chiefs take the lead in Israel, when people make their free choice, bless the Lord!"

“Hear, O kings; give ear, O mighty satraps; I will sing to the Lord, and I will make music to the God of Israel.”

“Lord, at your marching out from Seir, when you set out from the field of Edom, earth trembled, and the sky was convulsed. And the clouds dripped water.

Mountains quaked from before the Lord, this Sina, from before the Lord, God of Israel.

“In the days of Samegar son of Anath, in the days of Iael, kings were lacking, and they traveled paths; they traveled twisting roads.

A spokesman was lacking in Israel; he was lacking until Debbora rose up, for she arose as a mother in Israel.

They chose new gods, like barley bread—protection, if I see it, of barbed lances among forty thousand!”

And Debbora and Barak son of Abineem sang in that day, saying:

“An unveiling was unveiled in Israel; when people volunteer, bless the Lord!"

“Hear, O kings, and give ear, O mighty satraps; I will sing to the Lord, and I will make music to the God of Israel.”

Mountains quaked from before the Lord, this Sina, from before the Lord, God of Israel.

“In the days of Samegar son of Anath, in the days of Iael, kings were lacking, and they traveled along by-ways; they traveled by twisting roads.

Mighty ones were lacking in Israel; they were lacking until Debbora should arise until she should arise as a mother in Israel.

They chose new gods; then the cities of the rulers fought; a shield, if it was seen, and a spear among forty thousand in Israel!
My heart is for what was ordained for Israel; you the powerful of the people, bless the Lord.

Mounted upon draft animals, sitting on covered chariots, utter a sound of people who strike up music, in the midst of those who rejoice! There they will attribute righteousness to the Lord.

The righteous prevailed in Israel; then the people of the Lord went down to their cities.

Awake, awake, Debbora! Arouse tens of thousands along with the people! Awake, awake, speak with a song. Strengthen, arise, Barak, and, Debbora, strengthen Barak. Take captive your captives, O son of Abineem.

When was his strength increased? Lord, humble for me those who are stronger than me.

People of Ephraim wreaked vengeance on them in your brother Benjamin’s valley, among your peoples. At my leading Machir went down in search, and from Zaboulon the Lord would fight for me among the mighty, from there with the scepter of him who prevails in leadership.

In Issachar he sent his foot-soldiers with Debbora into the valley. You, why do you dwell in the midst of shores? He spread out with his feet. Among the divisions of Rouben there were great inquiries of heart.

Tell me; why do you sit among the sheepfolds, to hear the piping of those who arouse? To cross over into the territory of Rouben there were great searchings of heart.

Galaad encamped beyond the Jordan; and Dan, why does he dwell by the ships? Aser sojourned at the shore of seas and encamped by his channels.

Zaboulon is a people that scorned their life to death; Nephthali too, on the heights of the field.

Kings came, and they mustered,

My heart is on what was ordained for Israel; you who volunteer among the people, bless the Lord.

Mounted upon a female donkey at midday, sitting on tribunal and going towards the ways of councils, on the way, recount with a voice of those who strike up music, in the midst of those who draw water! There they will attribute acts of righteousness to the Lord. Increase acts of righteousness in Israel! Then the Lord’s people went down to the cities.

Awake, awake, Debbora! Awake, awake! Declare a song; arise, Barak, and take captive your captives, O son of Abineem.

Then a remnant went down for the strong ones; the people of the Lord went down for him among the powerful.

At my leading Ephraim uprooted them in Amalek, behind you, Benjamin, among your peoples; through me Machir went down in search, and from Zaboulon those who draw with a rod of a scribe’s account.

And chiefs in Issachar were with Debbora and Barak. Thus Barak sent away in the valleys at his feet. Into the portions of Rouben there were great ones reaching for heart.

To what end did they sit between the double load, to hear the piping of messengers? Into the divisions of Rouben there were great examinings of heart.

Galaad encamped beyond the Jordan; and Dan, to what end does he dwell by the ships? Aser sojourned at the coast of seas and will camp by its outlets.

Zaboulon the people scorned their life to death; Nephthali too, on the heights of the field.

Their kings came, they mustered,

then fought kings of Chanaan at Thennach, by the water of Mageddo; they got no excessive share of silver.

20 Stars fought from the sky,
from their courses they fought with Sisara.
21 Wadi Kison carried them away, Wadi Kademim, Wadi Kison.
My mighty soul will trample them!

22 “Then tendons of a horse were cut, amadarotha\(^a\) of his mighty ones.

23 “Curse Maroz, said the angel of the Lord, curse its inhabitants with a curse, because they did not come to the help of the Lord;
the Lord is our helper, mighty among warriors.

24 “May Iael of women be blessed, wife of Chaber the Kinite;
of women in tents may she be blessed.
25 He asked her for water, and she gave him milk;
she brought butter near in a dish of strong ones.

26 She put her left hand to a peg, her right hand to the cutting off of weary ones, and she beheaded Sisara;
she crushed his skull,
and she shattered and pierced his jaw.
27 Between her feet he doubled up and fell;
he lay between her feet;
where he doubled up, there he fell, wretched.

28 “Out of the window the mother of Sisara was leaning down, looking down through the lattice at those who returned with Sisara:
‘Why is his chariot the last to arrive?
Why tarry the tracks of his chariots?’

29 The wise among her leading ladies replied to her;
she too answered with her own words:

30 ‘Will they not find him dividing the spoil, showing friendship to friends towards a mighty man’s head?
Sisara’s spoils of dyed cloth, spoil of dyed, embroidered cloth, a dyed robe of embroidered cloth around his neck as spoil?’

31 “So perish all your enemies, O Lord!
And may those who love him be like the rising of the sun in its dominance.”

And the land had rest forty years.

\(^a\)Heb = galloping
And the sons of Israel did what was evil before the Lord, and the Lord gave them up in the hand of Midian seven years. 2And the hand of Midian prevailed over Israel, and the sons of Israel made for themselves, from before Midian, shelters in the mountains and in the caves and the strongholds. 3And it came about whenever a man of Israel put in seed that Midian would come up, and Amalek and the sons of the east, and they would come up against him. 4And they would encamp against them, and they destroyed the produce of the land, until one comes to Gaza, and they would not leave support for life in Israel, even flock and calf and donkey. 5For they and their livestock would come up, and they would bring their tents, and they would arrive like a grasshopper in great numbers, and there was no number for them or their camels, and they would arrive in the land of Israel to waste it. 6And Israel was greatly impoverished from before Midian, and the sons of Israel cried out to the Lord.

7 And it came about when the sons of Israel cried to the Lord on account of Midian, 8that the Lord sent a man, a prophet, to the sons of Israel, and he said to them, “This is what the Lord, the God of Israel, says: I am the one who made you come up from Egypt, and I led you out of a house of slavery, and I delivered you from the hand of Egypt and from the hand of all who oppressed you, and I drove them out from before you and gave you their land. 10and I said to you, ‘I am the Lord your God; you shall not pay reverence to the gods of the Amorrite, among whom you dwell, in their land.’ And you have not given heed to my voice.’

11 And an angel of the Lord came and sat under the terebinth at Ephratha, which belonged to Joas, father of Abiezri, and his son Gideon was beating out wheat in a wine press to escape from before Midian. 12And an angel of the Lord appeared to him and said to him, “The Lord is with you, mighty in strength.” 13And Gideon said to him, “By me, Lord? And if the Lord is with us, why have all these evils found us? And where are all his wonders that our fathers recounted to us, saying, ‘Did not the Lord bring us up from Egypt?’ But now he has cast us out and given us up in the hand of Midian.” 14And the angel of the Lord looked at him and said to him, “Go in your strength and you will deliver Israel, and see, I have sent you forth.” 15And Gideon said to him, “By me, lord? By what means shall I deliver Israel? See, my thousand is more lowly in Manasses, and I am insignificant in my father’s house.” 16And the angel of the Lord said to him, “The Lord will be with you, and you shall strike down Midian as you would one man.” 17And Gideon said to him, “And if I have found favor in your eyes and you will perform a sign for me that it is you who speak with me, do not stir from here until I come to you, and I will bring my sacrifice and place it before you." And he said, "I am the Lord; I will stay seated until you return."

19 And Gedeon entered and prepared a goat kid and unleavened cakes from an oiphia of wheat flour, and the meat he placed in the breadbasket, and the broth he poured into a pot and brought it out to him under the oak and did obeisance. 20And the angel of the Lord said to him, "Take the meat and the unleavened cakes, and put them by that rock, and pour out the broth." And he did so.

25 And it came about in that night that the Lord said to him, "Take your father's fattened calf, the seven-year-old one. And you will pull down the altar of Baal that is your father's and cut down the grove that is beside it, 26and you will build an altar to the Lord your God, who appeared to you on the peak of this Mount Maoz, in proper order, and you will take the calf and offer up a whole burnt offering with the wood of the grove that you shall cut down." 27And Gedeon took thirteen men from among his slaves and did as the Lord had told him, and it came about, since he was afraid of his father's household and the men of the city, so as not to do it by day, that he did it by night.

28 And the men of the city arose early in the morning, and see, the altar of Baal broken down, and the grove beside it cut down, and the fattened calf offered up for a whole burnt offering on the altar that had been built! 29And a man said to his fellow, "Who has done this deed?" And they were searching and seeking, and they said, "Gideon son of Ioas did this deed." 30And the men of the city said to Ioas, "Bring out your son, and let him die, because he has broken down the altar of Baal and because he has cut down the grove beside it." 31And Ioas said to the men who were arrayed against him, "Are you now acting as judges for Baal? Or are you delivering him? He who has sought judgment against him shall die by morning. If he is a god, he will exact justice from him, because he has broken down his altar." 32And in that day he called it Baal's Court of Justice, because he pulled down his altar.

33 And all Madiam and Amalek and the sons of the east gathered together and crossed and encamped in the Valley of Iezrael. And a spirit entered Gedeon, and he sounded with a horn, and called out for Abiezer after him. And he sent messengers throughout all Manasses, and he himself called out after him. He also sent messengers in Aser and in Zaboulon and in Nephthali, and they went up to meet him.

And Gedeon said to God, "If you are delivering Israel by my hand, as you have spoken, see, I am placing a fleece of wool on the threshing floor; if there is dew on the fleece alone and there is dryness over all the ground, then I shall also know that you are delivering Israel by my hand, as you have spoken." And it was so. And Gedeon rose early the next morning and squeezed the fleece, and the dew flowed out of the fleece, a full basin of water. And Gedeon said to God, "Let not your anger be aroused against me, and I will speak one more time, and I will make trial with the fleece one more time, and let there be dryness only on the fleece, but over all the ground let there be dew." And God did so in that night. And there was dryness on the fleece only, but over all the ground there was dew.

And Jerobam (he is Gedeon) rose early, and all the people that were with him, and encamped beside the land of Arod, and the camp of Madiam and Amalek was north of him, away from the hill of Abar, in the valley.

And the Lord said to Gedeon, "The people with you are numerous; so I will not give up Madiam in their hand. Israel would only boast against me, saying, 'My own hand has delivered me.' And I will test them for you there. And it will be that anyone of whom I say to you, 'This one shall go with you,' he shall go with you, and anyone of whom I say to you that he shall not go with you, he shall not go with you." And he brought the people into the water, and the Lord said to Gedeon, "Everyone who laps from the water with his tongue as if a dog laps, you shall put him to one side, and every one who kneels down on his knees to drink, you shall put him to one side.

And the full number of those that lapped I will deliver you and give Madiam up in your hand. And let all the people depart, a man to his place." And they took the provisions of the people in their hand, and their horns, and he sent every man of Israel away, a man to his place. 8And they took the provisions of the people in their hand, and their horns, and he sent every man of Israel way, a man to his place. 7And the Lord said to Gedeon, "Everyone who laps from the water with his tongue as if a dog laps, you shall put him to one side, and every one who kneels down on his knees to drink, you shall put him to one side, and every one who kneels down on his knees to drink, you shall put him to one side, and every one who kneels down on his knees to drink, you shall put him to one side. 6And the full number of those that did so in that night. And there was dryness on the fleece only, and over all the ground there was dew.

And Jerobam (he is Gedeon) rose early, and all the people with him, and they encamped by the spring of Arad, and the camp of Madiam was north of him, away from Gabaath Amora, in the valley.

And the Lord said to Gedeon, "The people with you are numerous; so I will not give up Madiam in their hand. Israel would only boast against me, saying, 'My own hand has delivered me.' And I will test them for you there. And it will be that anyone of whom I say to you, 'This one shall go with you,' he shall go with you, and anyone of whom I say to you that he shall not go with you, he shall not go with you." And he brought the people into the water, and the Lord said to Gedeon, "Everyone who laps from the water with his tongue as if a dog laps, you shall put him to one side, and every one who kneels down on his knees to drink, you shall put him to one side, and every one who kneels down on his knees to drink, you shall put him to one side. 6And the number of those that lapped with their hand to their mouth was three hundred men, and all the remainder of the people bent down on their knees to drink water. 7And the Lord said to Gedeon, "With the three hundred men that lapped I will deliver you and give Madiam in your hand. And let all the people go, a man to his place." And they took the provisios of the people in their hand, and their horns, and he sent every man of Israel away, a man to his away, a man to his dwelling, but retained the three hundred men. Now the camp of Madiam was below him in the valley.

9 And it happened in that night that the Lord told to him, "Get up, go down quickly from here into the camp, for I have given it up in your hand.
But if you fear to go down, you and your young servant Phara go down into the camp, 11and you shall hear what they say, and afterward your hands shall be strengthened, and you shall go down into the camp." And he went down, he and his young servant Phara within the bounds of the fifty in the camp. 12And Madiam and Amalek and all the sons of the east had encamped in the valley like a grasshopper, in great numbers, and there was no number for their camels, but they were like the sand on the seashore, in great numbers. 13And Gedeon entered, and see, a man was telling his dream to his comrade, and he said, "See, the dream which I dreamed, and see, a cake of barley bread was tumbling in the camp of Madiam, and it came to the tent of Madiam and struck it and overturned it, and the tent collapsed." 14And his comrade answered and said, "This is nothing other than the sword of Gedeon son of Ioas, a man of Israel; the Lord has given up Madiam and all the camp in his hand."

15 And it came about, when Gedeon heard the narration of the dream and its interpretation, that he did obeisance to the Lord, and he returned to the camp of Israel and said, "Get up, for the Lord has given the camp of Madiam in your hands." 16And he divided the three hundred men into three commands and put horns in the hand of all of them and empty jars and torches in the middle of the jars. 17And he said to them, "You will see from me and do the same. And see, I am going into the middle of the camp, and it will be that as I do, so you shall do. 18And I shall sound with the horn, and all those with me, and you also shall sound with your horns around the camp and say, 'For the Lord and for Gedeon!' "

19 And Gedeon and a hundred men with him entered in the bounds of the camp at the begining of the midnight watch; however, he roused the guards with a rousing, and they sounded with the horns and shook out the jars that were in their hands. 20And the three commands sounded with the horns and broke the jars and grasped the torches in their left hand, and in their right hand were the horns to sound, and they cried, "A sword for the Lord and for Gedeon!" 21And everyone stood in his place all around the camp, and they ran, all the camp, and they gave signals and fled.
22And the three hundred horns sounded, and the Lord set a man's dagger against his fellow and against all the camp, and the camp fled as far as Baithasetta and was pressed back as far as the edge of Abelmoeula and by Tabath. 23And a man of Israel sounded the cry from Nephthalim and from Aser and from all Manasses, and they took up the pursuit after Madiam.

And the camp of Madiam was below him in the vant Phara towards the command of the fifty that were in the camp. 12And Madiam and Amalek and all the sons of the east were thrown in the valley like a grasshopper, in great numbers, and there was no number for their camels, but they were like the Gedeon arrived, and see, a man telling a dream to his comrade, and he said, "A dream, see, I ning round in the camp of Madiam, and it came to the tent and struck it, and it collapsed, and it turned it upside down, and the tent collapsed." 14And his comrade answered and said, "This is nothing if not the sword of Gedeon son of Ioas, a man of Israel; God has given up Madiam and all the camp in his hand."

15 And it came about, when Gedeon heard the explanation of the dream and its interpretation, that he did obeisance to the Lord, and he returned the command of the camp, and it will be that as I do, so you shall do. 18And I shall sound with the horn for my part, and all you with me shall sound with your horns around the entire camp and say, 'For the Lord and for Gedeon!' "

19 And Gedeon and the hundred men with him entered in the command of the camp at the begining of the middle watch, and rousing them roused the guards, and they sounded with the horns and shook out the jars that were in their hands. 20And the three commands sounded with the horns and broke the jars and seized the torches in their left hands, and in their right hands the horns to sound, and they cried, "A sword for the Lord and for Gedeon!" 21And they stood, a man for himself, all around the camp, and all the camp ran, and they gave signals and fled. 22And they sounded with the three hundred horns, and the Lord set a man's sword against his fellow throughout all the camp, and the camp fled as far as Beth-seedeeta Garagatha, as far as the edge of Abomeoula by Tabath. 23And they sounded the cry, a man of Israel, from Nephthali and from Aser and from all Manasses, and they pursued after Madiam.
And they said to Gedeon, a man of Ephraim, "Why have you done this thing to us, not to call us when you set out to deploy against Madiam?" And they argued strongly with him. 2And he said to them, "What have I done now as you have? Are not the gleanings of the grapes of Ephraim better things than the vintage of Abiezer? 3God has given up in your hand the commanders of Madiam, Oreb and Zeb, and what have I been able to do as you have?" And they desisted. Then their spirit abated because of him, when he spoke this word.

And Gedeon came to the Jordan and crossed over, he and the three hundred men with him, faint and famished. 5And he said to the men of Sokchoth, "Do give some loaves to the people who are with me, for they are famished, but as for me, I am pursuing after Zebee and Salmana, kings of Madiam." 6And the rulers of Sokchoth said, "Do you already have in your hand a hand of Zebee and Salmana, that we shall give loaves to your army?" 7And Gedeon said, "Not so! When the Lord has given Zebee and Salmana in my hand, then I for my part will thresh your flesh to pieces with the thorns of the wilderness and with the barkonnima." 8And from there he went up to Phanouel and spoke to them in a similar way, and the men of Phanouel answered him as the men of Sokchoth had answered him. 9And he said to the men of Phanouel, saying, "When I come back in peace, I will break down this tower."

10 And Zebee and Salmana were in Karkar, and their camp was with them, about fifteen thousand, those who were left among all the camp of the sons of the east, and those who had fallen were one hundred and twenty thousand men who had drawn a sword. 11And Gedeon went up by the route of those who dwell in tents, east of Nabeth, opposite Zebee, and struck the camp, but the camp was confident. 12And Zebee and Salmana fled, and he took up the pursuit after them and seized the two kings of Madiam, Zebee and Salmana, and destroyed all their camp.

13 And Gedeon son of Ioas returned from the war, from the ascent of Hares. 14And they caught a lad, one of the men of Sokchoth, and he questioned him, and he noted down for them the rulers of Sokchoth and its elders, seventy-seven men. 15And Gedeon came to the rulers of Sokchoth and said to them, "See! Zebee and Salmana, on whose account you taunted me, saying, 'Do you perhaps already have in your hand a hand of Zebee and Salmana, that we shall give loaves to your men who are exhausted?' " 16And he took the rulers and the elders of the city, and he cut them to pieces with the thorns of the wilderness and the barakenim, and he cut the men of Sokchoth to pieces with them. 17And he broke down the tower of Phanouel and killed the men of the city.

18 And he said to Zebee and Salmana, "Where are the men whom you killed at Thabor?" And they said, "As you are: one like you was like them, like the appearance, the form, of kings' sons." 19And Gedeon said, "They are my brothers and the sons of my mother." And he swore to them: "The Lord lives: if you had brought them to life, I would not have killed you." 20And he said to Iether his son, "Get up, and face us, for like a man is his power." And Gedeon got up and killed Zebee and Salmana, and he took the crescents that were on the necks of their camels.

22 And a man of Israel said to Gedeon, "Rule among us, you and your sons, for you have delivered us out of the hand of Madiam." 23And Gedeon said to them, "I will not rule over you, and my son will not rule over you; the Lord will rule over you." 24And Gedeon said to them, "I will request a request of you, and you, a manb, give me an earring from his booty." (For they had many golden earrings, because they were Ismaelites.) 25And they said, "Giving we will give them." And he spread his garment, and a manb threw there a golden earring of his booty. 26And the weight of the golden earrings that he requested was one thousand five hundred pieces of gold (apart from the crescents and the necklacesc and the cloaks and purple garments that were on the kings of Madiam and except for the bands that were on the necks of their camels). 27And Gedeon made it into an ephothd and put it in his city, in Ephratha, and all Israel prostituted themselves after it there, and it became for an obstacle to Gedeon and to his house. 28And Madiam was humbled before the sons of Israel, and they did not add to lift up their head. And the land had rest forty years in the days of Gedeon.

29 And Jerobaal son of Ioas went and lived in his own house. 30And Gedeon had seventy sons who came from his thighs, for he had many wives.

Zebee and Selmana, by means of whom you taunted me, saying, 'Do you perhaps already have in your hand a hand of Zebee and Selmana, that we shall give loaves to the men who are fainting?' " 16And he took the elders of the city among the thorns of the wilderness and the barakenim, and he threshed the men of the city with them. 17And he toppled the tower of Phanouel and killed the men of the city.

18 And he said to Zebee and Selmana, "Where are the men whom you killed at Thabor?" And they said, "As you are, so were they, for a likeness of a king's son." 19And Gedeon said, "They were my brothers and the sons of my mother. The Lord lives: if you had brought them to life, I would not have killed you." 20And Iether his son, "Get up, and face us, for your power is like a man's." And Gedeon got up and killed Zebee and Selmana, and he took the crescents that were on the necks of their camels.

22 And they said, a man of Israel, to Gedeon, "Lord, rule us, both you and your son, for you were the one who delivered us out of the hand of Madiam." 23And Gedeon said to them, "I will not rule, and my son will not rule, among you; the Lord will rule over you." 24And Gedeon said to them, "I will request a request of you, and you, a man, give me an earring out of his booty." (For they had golden earrings, because they were Ismaelites.) 25And they said, "Giving we will give them." And the land had rest forty years in the days of Gedeon.

29 And Jerobaal son of Ioas went and sat in his own house. 30And Gedeon had seventy sons who had come from his thighs, for he had many wives.

And his concubine who was in Sikima, she indeed also bore him a son, and he named his name Abimelech. 32And Gedeon son of Ioas died in his city and was buried in the tomb of his father Ioas at Ephratha Abiesdri.
And it came about as Gedeon died that the sons of Israel turned aside and prostituted themselves after the Baalim and made for themselves Baal-Berith for a covenant that he should be for a god to them. And the sons of Israel did not remember the Lord their God, who had rescued them from the hand of all their enemies on every side, and they did not do mercy with the house of Ierobaal Gedeon in return for all the goodness that he had done with Israel.

And Abimelech son of Ierobaal went to Sikima to his mother’s brothers and spoke to them and to every clan of his mother’s family, saying, “Speak now in the hearing of all the men of Sikima, ‘Which is better, that seventy men, all sons of Ierobaal, rule over you or that one man be lord over you?’ And remember that I am your flesh and your bone.” And his mother’s brothers spoke all these words about him in the hearing of all the men of Sikima, and their heart inclined after Abimelech, for they said, “He is our brother.” And they gave him seventy pieces of silver out of the house of Baal-of-Covenant, and Abimelech hired vain and alarming men with them, and they walked after him. And he entered his father’s house at Ephratha and killed his brothers, sons of Ierobaal, seventy men, on one stone, and Ioatham, the youngest son of Ierobaal, was left, for he hid. And all the men of Sikima and all the house of Maallon came together, and they went and made Abimelech for king by the acorn-tree of placing at Sikima.

And they told Ioatham, and he went and stood on the top of Mount Garizin and raised his voice and called out and said to them, “Listen to me, you men of Sikima, and may God listen to you. Going out, the trees went out to anoint a king for themselves. And they said to the olive tree, ‘Reign over us.’ And the olive tree said to them, ‘Am I to neglect my fattiness, which God and men extol in me, and go to rule the trees?’ And the trees said to the fig tree, ‘Come, reign over us.’ And the fig tree said to them, ‘Am I to neglect my sweetness and my good produce and go to rule the trees?’ And the trees said to the vine, ‘Come, reign over us.’ And the vine said to them, ‘Am I to neglect my wine, the good cheer of men which comes from God, and go to rule the trees?’ And all the trees said to the bramble, 14 Or sedition

Going out, the trees went out to anoint a king over themselves. And they said to the olive tree, ‘Reign over us.’ And the olive tree said to them, ‘Shall I abandon my fattiness by which men extol God and go to sway over the trees?’ And the trees said to the fig tree, ‘Come, reign over us.’ And the fig tree said to them, ‘Shall I abandon my sweetness and my good produce and go to sway over the trees?’ And the trees said to the vine, ‘You come; reign over us.’ And the vine said to them, ‘Shall I abandon my wine, that cheers God and men, and go to sway over the trees?’ And all the trees said to the bramble, 15 And God sent an evil spirit between Abimelech and between the men of Sikima, and the men of Sikima dealt treacherously in the house of Abimelech, 16 that they might bring up the injustice against the seventy sons of Jeroboaal to lay their blood upon their brother Abimelech, who killed them, and upon the men of Sikima, who strengthened his hands so that he killed his brothers. 17 And the men of Sikima set ambushes against him on the mountain tops, and they would kidnap all who passed by them along that way, and it was reported to Abimelech.

26 And Gaal son of Abed and his brothers came into Sikima, and the men of Sikima had put confidence in him. 27 And they went into the field and gathered grapes from their vineyards and were treading them and did dances. And they went into the house of their god and ate and drank and were cursing Abimelech. 28 And Gaal son of Abed said, “What is Abimelech, and who is the son of Sychem, that we shall be subject to him? Is he not a son of Jeroboaal? And Zeboul his supervisor is his slave along with the men of Hemmor father of Sychem. And why is it that we shall serve him? 29 And who would give this people in my hand? And I will remove Abimelech, and I will say to Abimelech, ‘Multiply your force, and come out.’ ”

30 And Zeboul the ruler of the city heard the words of Gaal son of Abed, and he himself was furiously angry. 31 And he sent messengers to Abimelech in secret, saying, "Look, Gaal son of Abed and his brothers are coming into Sychem, and see, they themselves are laying siege to the city against you. 32 Now then, get up by night, you and the people that are with you, and lie in wait in the fields. 33 And it will happen early, as the sun rises, that you will rise early and reach out against the city, and see, he himself and the people that are with him will come out against you, and you will deal with him just as your hand devises."

34 And Abimelech and all the people with him got up by night and stationed four commands in ambush against Sikima. 35 And it happened early that Gaal son of Abed went out and stood at the entrance of the gate of the city, and Abimelech and the people with him rose from their ambushes. 36 And Gaal son of Abed saw them and said to Zeboul, "Look, people coming down from the mountain tops!" And Zeboul said to him, "You are seeing the shadows on the mountains as men." 37 And Gaal added still to speak, and he said, "Look, people coming down towards the sea from the area near the navel of the land, and one command is coming from the direction of Watchers' Oak." 38 And Zeboul said to him, "Where is your mouth now, which said, 'Who is Abimelech, that we shall be subject to him?' Look, are these not the people you made light of? Go out now and fight with them." 39 And Gaal went out from before the men of Sikima and fought against Abimelech. 40 And Abimelech chased him, and he fled from before him, and many fell wounded, up to the entrance of the city. 41 And Abimelech resided at Arima, and Zeboul drove out Gaal and his brothers so that they could not live on at Sikima.

42 And it came about on the following day that the people went out into the plain, and it was reported to Abimelech. 43 And he took along the people and divided them into three commands and lay in wait in it. And he looked, and see, people came out of the city, and he rose against them and struck them down. 44 And Abimelech and the commands that were with him spread out and stood at the gate of the city, and the two commands rushed out at all who were in the fields and struck them down. 45 And Abimelech was fighting against the city all that day, and they took the city, and he killed the people that were in it, and he razed the city and sowed it with salt.

46 And all the men of the Tower of Sikima heard of it, and they entered the stronghold of the house of Baal-of-Covenant. 47 And Abimelech was told that all the men of the Tower of Sikima were gathered together. 48 And Abimelech went up to Mount Selmon, and he and all the people that were with him. And Abimelech took an axe in his hand and cut down a bundle of brushwood and took it up and laid it on his shoulders. And he said to the people with him, “What have you seen me doing? Do quickly just as I have done.” 49 And every one of them also cut down a bundle, took it up and followed after Abimelech, and they put it against the stronghold, and they burned the stronghold over them with fire, and all the men of the Tower of Sikima died, about a thousand men and women.

50 And Abimelech went to Thebes, and laid siege against it and quickly seized it. 51 And there was a strong tower in the middle of the city, and all the men and women and all the leaders of the city fled there and shut it on themselves, and they went up to the top of the tower. 52 And Abimelech came up to the tower, and they fought him, and Abimelech, came near to the door of the tower, to burn it with fire. 53 And one woman threw a piece of a millstone on Abimelech's head and crushed his skull. 54 And immediately he called out to the young servant, the one who carried his equipment, and said to him, “Draw your sword, and kill me, so they will not say, ‘A woman killed him.’ ” And his young servant thrust him through, and Abimelech died. 55 And a man of Israel saw that Abimelech had died, and they departed, a man to his place.

56 And God turned away the evil of Abimelech, which he committed against his father in killing his seventy brothers, 57 and God returned all the evil of the men of Sikima on their head, and on them came the curse of Ioatham the son of Jerobaal.

And after Abimelech, Thola son of Phoua, son of his father's brother, a man of Issachar, rose to deliver Israel, and he himself lived at Samaria in the hill country of Ephraim. 2 And he judged Israel twenty-three years. And he died and was buried in Samaria.

3 And after him arose Iair the Galaadite, and he judged Israel twenty-two years. 4 And there were born to him thirty-two sons who rode on thirty-two colts, and they had thirty-two cities and he called them Iair's Hamlets until this day, which are in the land of Galaad. 5 And Iair died and was buried in Ramno.

6 And the sons of Israel added to do what was evil before the Lord and served the she-Baalim and the Astaroth and the gods of Sidon and the gods of Moab and the gods of the sons of Ammon and the gods of the allophyles. And they abandoned the Lord and were not subject to him. 7 And the Lord was furiously angry with Israel, and he gave them up in the hand of the gods of Ammon and the gods of the Amorrites in Galaaditis. 8 And the sons of Ammon crossed the Jordan, to wage war both against Ioudas and Beniamin and against the house of Ephraim, and the sons of Israel were greatly distressed.

And after Abimelech, Thola son of Phoua, son of his father's brother, a man of Issachar, rose to deliver Israel, and he himself dwelled at Samir in the hill country of Ephraim. 2 And he judged Israel twenty-three years. And he died and was buried at Samir.

3 And after him arose Iair the one of Galaad, and he judged Israel twenty years. 4 And there were born to him thirty-two sons who rode on thirty-two colts, and they had thirty-two cities, and he called them Iair's Hamlets until this day, which are in the land of Galaad. 5 And Iair died and was buried in Ramno.

6 And the sons of Israel added to do what was evil before the Lord and served the she-Baalim and the Astaroth and the gods of Sidon and the gods of Moab and the gods of the sons of Ammon and the gods of the allophyles. And they abandoned the Lord and were not subject to him. 7 And the Lord was furiously angry with Israel, and he gave them up in the hand of the gods of Ammon and in the hand of the sons of Ammon, 8 and they oppressed and crushed the sons of Israel at that time for eighteen years, all the sons of Israel who were beyond the Jordan in the land of the Amorri, who is in Galaad. 9 And the sons of Ammon crossed the Jordan, to deploy against Ioudas and Beniamin and against Ephraim, and Israel was greatly distressed.

And the sons of Israel said to the Lord, saying, "We have sinned against you, because we have abandoned our God and have served the she-Baalim." 11 And the Lord said to the sons of Israel, "Did not the Egyptians and the Amorrites and the sons of Ammon and Moab and the philistines 12 and Sidonians and Madiam and Amalek oppress you? And you cried to me, and I delivered you out of their hand. 13 And you have abandoned me and served other gods; therefore I will not add to deliver you. 14 Go away, and cry aloud to the gods whom you have chosen for yourselves, and let them deliver you in the time of your distress." 15 And the sons of Israel said to the Lord, "We have sinned; do to us according to everything that is pleasing before you; only, Lord, deliver us in this day!" 16 And they put away the foreign gods from their midst and served the Lord, and he was not well pleased with the people, and he was worried about the suffering of Israel.

And lepthae the Galaadite was powerful in strength, and he himself was a son of a woman who was a prostitute, and she bore lepthae to Galaad. 2 And Galaad's wife bore him sons, and his wife's sons came to maturity and drove lepthae away and said to him, "You shall not inherit anything in our father's house, for you are the son of a woman who is a courtesan." 3 And lepthae fled from before his brothers and lived in the land of Tob. And petty men were coming together to lepthae and would go out together with him.

And it happened after days that the sons of Ammon made war with Israel. 5 And it happened, when the sons of Ammon were making war with Israel, that the elders of Galaad went to take along lepthae in the land of Tob. 6 And they said to lepthae, "Come, and you will be for a leader to us, and let us fight against the sons of Ammon." 7 And lepthae said to the elders of Galaad, "Was it not you that hated me and drove me out of my father's house and sent me away from you? And why is it that you came to me when you were in trouble?" 8 And the elders of Galaad said to lepthae, "It is not like that! We have come to you now, and you will go with us, and we will fight against the sons of Ammon, and you will be for a head to us, to all the inhabitants of Galaad." 9 And lepthae said to the elders of Galaad, "If you are returning me to fight against the sons of Ammon, then let the Lord give them over before me. I will be for a head to you." 10 And the elders of Galaad said to lepthae, "The Lord will be the one who hears between us, if we do not do so, according to your word." 11 And lepthae went with the elders of the sons of Ammon, and the sons of Ammon made war with Israel. 12 And it happened, when the sons of Ammon were making war with Israel, that the elders of Galaad went to take along lepthae in the land of Tob. 13 And they said to lepthae, "Come, and you will be for a leader to us, and let us fight against the sons of Ammon." 14 And lepthae said to the elders of Galaad, "Was it not you that hated me and drove me out of my father's house and sent me away from you? And for what reason did you come to me now when you are in need?" 15 And the elders of Galaad said to lepthae, "It is for this reason that we have now turned to you, and you will go with us and deploy against the sons of Ammon, and you will be for a ruler to us, to all the inhabitants of Galaad." 16 And lepthae said to the elders of Galaad, "If you are returning me to fight against the sons of Ammon, then let the Lord give them over before me, and I will be for a ruler to you." 17 And the elders of Galaad said to lepthae, "Let the Lord be hearing between us, if we do not do so, according to your word." 18 And lepthae went with the
And Israel resided at Kades. 18 And he journeyed to the king of Moab, but he did not consent. And the king of Edom did not listen. And indeed he journeyed through in the wilderness and went around the land of Edom and the land of Moab and arrived at sunrise of the land of Moab. 19 And Israel sent messengers to Seon, king of the Amorrite, king of Hesebon, and Israel said to him, 'I will pass through your land to my place.' 20 And Seon did not want Israel to cross his boundaries, and Seon gathered all his people together and encamped at Iassa and fought with Israel. 23 And now the Lord, the God of Israel, has removed the Amorrite from before his people Israel. And shall you inherit them for yourself? 24 Should it not be that whatever your god Chamos has assigned you as an inheritance, that you will inherit? And everything that the Lord our God has assigned as an inheritance from before us, that we will inherit. 25 And now, are you any better than Balak son of Sepphor, king of Moab? May the Lord, who is judging, judge today between the sons of Israel and between the sons of Ammon.' 28 And the king of the sons of Ammon sent messengers to the king of the sons of Ammon, saying, 'What is there between you and me that you have come against me to fight me in my land?' 13 And the king of the sons of Ammon said to the messengers of Iephthae, 'Because Israel took away my land when they came up out of Egypt, from Arnon up to labok and up to the Jordan, and now restore them in peace.' 14 And the messengers returned to Iephthae, and Iephthae sent messengers to the king of the sons of Ammon, saying: 'This is what Iephthae says: Israel did not take away the land of Moab or the land of the sons of Ammon in their journey up out of Egypt; rather, Israel went in the wilderness to the Red Sea and came to Kades. And Israel sent out messengers to the king of Edom, saying, 'I will pass through your land, and the king of Edom did not listen. And indeed he sent to the king of Moab, but he did not consent. And Israel resided at Kades. And he journeyed through in the wilderness and went around the land of Edom and the land of Moab and they camped on the other side of Arnon. And they did not enter the territory of Moab, for Arnon was the boundary of Moab. And Israel sent messengers to Seon, king of Hesebon, the Amorrite, and Israel said to him, 'I will pass through your land to my place.' And Seon did not want Israel to cross his boundaries, and Seon gathered all his people together and encamped at Iassa and fought with Israel. And the Lord, the God of Israel, spoke to him, and he struck them down, and Israel inherited all the land of the Amorrite who inhabited the land. And he inherited all the territory of the Amorrite from Arnon and up to the labbok and from the wilderness and up to the Jordan. And now the Lord, the God of Israel, has removed the Amorrite from before his people Israel. And shall you inherit them for yourself? May the Lord, who is judging, judge today between the sons of Israel and between the sons of Ammon.' And the king of the sons of Ammon sent messengers to the king of the sons of Ammon, saying, 'I will go.' And Iephthae still added and sent messengers to the king of the sons of Ammon and said to him: 'Thus says Iephthae: Israel did not take away the land of Moab or the land of the sons of Ammon, for when they came up out of Egypt Israel went in the wilderness to the Sea of Siph and came to Kades. And Israel sent messengers to the king of Edom, saying, 'I will indeed pass through in your land.' And the king of Edom did not listen. And he sent to the king of Moab, and he did not consent. And Israel resided at Kades. And he journeyed in the wilderness and went around the land of Edom and the land of Moab, and he came from sunrise to the land of Moab, and they camped on the other side of Arnon. And Israel sent messengers to Seon, king of the Amorrite, king of Hesebon, and Israel said to him, 'Do let us pass through in your land to our place.' And Seon did not trust Israel to cross his boundary, and Seon gathered his entire people together, and they encamped at Iassa and deployed against Israel. And the Lord, the God of Israel, gave Seon and all his people in the hand of Israel, and he struck them down, and Israel inherited the entire land of the Amorrite who inhabited that land, from Arnon and up to the labbok and from the wilderness up to the Jordan. And now the Lord, the God of Israel, has removed the Amorrite from before his people Israel. And shall you inherit them? Should it not be that whatever your god Chamos will let you inherit, that you will inherit? And all those that the Lord our God has removed from before us, them we will inherit. And now, are you in any good thing better, beyond Balak son of Sepphor, king of Moab? Did he, fighting, fight with Israel, or going to war, did he go to war with him? While he dwelt in Hesebon and in its territories and in the land of Aroer and in its territories and in all the cities that are along the Jordan, for three hundred years, and why did you not recover them within that time? And now it is me. I have not sinned against you, and you are the one who does evil against me, to deploy against me. May the Lord judge, judging today between the sons of Israel and between the sons of Ammon.'

did not pay heed, and he did not pay heed to the words of lepthae that he sent him.

29 And a spirit of the Lord came upon lepthae, and he passed through the land of Galaad and Manasses. And he passed through the vantage point of Galaad, and from the vantage point of Galaad to the other side of the sons of Ammon. 30 And lepthae vowed a vow to the Lord and said, "If with a giving over, you will give over to me the sons of Ammon in my hand, 31 it shall also be that whoever comes from the door of my house to meet me, when I return in peace from the sons of Ammon, shall also be the Lord’s, and I will offer him up as a whole burnt offering." 32 And lepthae crossed over to the sons of Ammon to fight against them, and the Lord gave them up in his hand. 33 And he struck them down from Aroer until one comes to Semoth, twenty cities, as far as Abel-of-the-vineyards, a very great blow. And the sons of Ammon were humbled from before the sons of Israel.

34 And lepthae came to Massepha, to his home, and see, his daughter was coming out to meet him with timbrels and with dancing. And she was his beloved only child, and he had no son or daughter except her. 35 And it came about, when he saw her that he tore his clothes and said, "Alas, my daughter! You have got in my way; you have become for a thorn in my eyes. But I opened my mouth to the Lord, and I cannot turn away." 36 And she said to him, "My father, if against you me you have opened your mouth to the Lord, do to me as it came out of your mouth when the Lord has exacted vengeance for you from your enemies, from the sons of Ammon." 37 And she said to her father, "Also, do this word for me: Grant me two months, and I will go and descend on the mountains and bewail my virginity, both I and my companions." 38 And he said, "Go," and sent her away for two months. And she went, she and her companions, and she bewailed her virginity on the mountains. 39 And it came about after the end of two months that she returned to her father, and lepthae fulfilled his vow that he had vowed. And she had never known a man. And it became for an ordinance in Israel: 40 from year to year the daughters of Israel would go together to lament the daughter of lepthae the Galaadite, four days in the year.

Ammon did not listen to the words of lepthae that he sent him.

29 And a spirit of the Lord came upon lepthae, and he passed by Galaad and Manasses. And he passed by the vantage point of Galaad to the other side of the sons of Ammon. 30 And lepthae vowed a vow to the Lord and said, "If giving, you will give the sons of Ammon in my hand, 31 if shall also be that he who comes out, whoever comes from the door of my house to meet me, when I return in peace from the sons of Ammon, shall also be the Lord’s; I will offer him up as a whole burnt offering." 32 And lepthae went on to the sons of Ammon to deploy against them, and the Lord gave them up in his hand. 33 And he struck them down from Aroer until coming as far as Arnon, twenty cities in number, and up to Ebelcharmin, a very great blow. And the sons of Ammon were put to shame from before the sons of Israel.

34 And lepthae came to Massepha, to his home, and see, his daughter was coming out to meet him with timbrels and with dancing. And she was an only child; he had no other son or daughter. 35 And it came about, as he himself saw her that he tore his clothes and said, "Ah ah, my daughter! With confusion you have confused me, and it is you who were in my confusion. And it is me. Against you I opened my mouth to the Lord, and I cannot turn back." 36 But she said to him, "Father, you have opened your mouth to the Lord; do to me as it came out of your mouth when the Lord exacted vengeance for you from your enemies, from the sons of Ammon." 37 And she it was who said to her father, "Let my father indeed do this matter: Grant me two months, and I will go and descend on the mountains and bewail my virginity. It is me and my companions." 38 And he said, "Go," and sent her away for two months. And she went, she and her companions, and she bewailed her virginity on the mountains. 39 And it came about at the end of the two months that she returned to her father, and he carried out against her his vow that he had vowed. And she had never known a man. And it became for an ordinance in Israel: 40 from year to year the daughters of Israel would go to lament the daughter of lepthae of Galaad, for four days in the year.

12 And the sons of Ephraim gathered together, and they came to Sephina and said to lepthae, "Why is it that you went to fight against the sons of Ammon and did not call us to go with you? We will burn your house with fire!" 2 And lepthae said to them, "I was a man facing opponents, I and my people, and the sons of Ammon were humiliating me greatly. And I called out to you, and you did not deliver me from their hand. 3 And I saw that there was none to deliver, and I took my life in my hand and crossed over against the sons of Ammon, and the Lord gave them up in my hand. And why have you come up to me this day, to fight against me?" 4And Iephthae gathered all the men of Galaad and began to fight Ephraim, and the men of Galaad struck down Ephraim, because they said, "You are the fugitives from Ephraim, O Galaad in the midst of Ephraim and in the midst of Manasses!" 5And the men of Galaad quickly seized the fords of the Jordan of Ephraim. And it came about that the fugitives of Ephraim said, "Let us pass over," and the men of Galaad said to them, "Are you not from Ephraim?" And they said, "We are not." 6And they said to them, "Then say: Password," and they did not keep straight so as to say it like that. And they seized them and slew them at the fords of the Jordan. And forty-two thousand out of Ephraim fell at that time.

7 And Iephthae judged Israel six years. And Iephthae the Galaadite died and was buried in his city, Galaad.

8 After him Eson of Baithleem judged Israel. 9And there were born to him thirty sons and thirty daughters, who were sent out outside, and he brought in thirty women from outside for his sons. And he judged Israel seven years. 10And Eson died and was buried at Bethleem.

13 And the sons of Israel added to do what was evil against the Lord, and the Lord gave them up in the hand of allophyles forty years.

2 And there was a man of Sarra, of the tribe of Dan, and his name was Manoe. And his wife was barren and was not bearing. 3And an angel of the Lord appeared to the woman and said to her, "See now! You are barren and have not borne. And you shall become pregnant and bear a son. 4And now, be careful, and do not drink wine and sikera3, and do not eat anything unclean; 5for see, you shall become pregnant and bear a son. And iron shall not come upon his head, for the boy shall be sanctified, a nazirite to God from the womb. And he it is who shall begin to deliver Israel from the hand of allophyles." 6And the woman came and said to her husband, saying, "A man of God came to me, and the seeing of him was like the seeing of an angel of God, most remarkable, and I asked where he came from, and he did not tell me his name. 7And he said to me, 'See, you shall become pregnant and bear a son. And now, drink no wine and sikera3, 8And Iephthae rallied all the men of Galaad and did battle with Ephraim, and the men of Galaad struck down Ephraim, because they said, "You are the refugees of Ephraim, O Galaad in the midst of Ephraim and in the midst of Manasses!" 9And Galaad quickly seized the fords of the Jordan of Ephraim. And the refugees of Ephraim said to them, "Let us cross over," and the men of Galaad said to them, "Are you not an Ephrathite?" And he said, "No." 10And they said to him, "Then say Ear-of-Grain," and he did not keep straight so as to say it like that. And they seized him and slaughtered him at the fords of the Jordan. And Manoe prayed to the Lord and said, “By me, Lord Adonai, about the man of God whom you sent, do let him come to us again, and let him instruct us as to what we are to do for the boy who is being born.” 2And God listened to Manoe’s voice, and the angel of God again came to the woman, and she was sitting in a field, and her husband Manoe was not with her. 3And the woman hurried and ran off and told her husband, “See, the man who came to me the other day has appeared to me.” 4And Manoe got up and went after his wife towards the man and said to him, “Are you the man who spoke to this woman?” And the angel said, “I am.” 5And Manoe said, “Now then, when your word comes, what shall be the boy’s judgment, and what will his works be?” 6And the angel of the Lord said to Manoe, “Let him keep away from all the things that I spoke to the woman about. 7He shall not eat of anything that comes from the vine. And he is not to drink wine and sikera, strong drink, and he is not to eat any unclean thing. He is to observe everything that I commanded her.”

8 And Manoe said to the angel of the Lord, “Let us then constrain you, and we will prepare a kid of goats before you.” 9And the angel of the Lord said to Manoe, “If you constrain me, I will not eat of your loaves, and if you make a whole burnt offering, you shall offer it to the Lord.” (For Manoe did not know that he was an angel of the Lord.) 10And Manoe said to the angel of the Lord, “What is your name so that we may honor you when your word comes?” 11And the angel of the Lord said to Manoe, “Let him keep away from all the things that I spoke to the woman about. 12He shall not eat of anything that comes from the vine. And he is not to drink wine and sikera, strong drink, and he is not to eat any unclean thing. He shall observe everything that I commanded her.”

13 And Manoe said to the angel of the Lord, “To what end do you ask this, my name? Even by itself it is amazing.” 14And Manoe took the kid of goats and the sacrifice and offered it on the rock to the Lord, and Manoe and his wife were watching. 15And it came about, when the flame went up above the altar toward the sky, that the angel of the Lord ascended in the flame of the altar, and Manoe and his wife were looking on, and they fell on their face to the ground. 16And the angel of the Lord did not add still to appear to Manoe and to his wife. Then Manoe realized that it was an angel of the Lord. 17And Manoe said to his wife, “We shall die by death, for we have seen a god.” 18And his wife said to him, “If the Lord had desired to kill us, he would not have accepted a whole burnt offering and a sacrifice from our hands, and he would not have enlightened us about all these things, and he would not have made them audible to us.”

19 And the woman bore a son and called his name Sampson. And the Lord blessed him and the boy grew. 20And a spirit of the Lord began to accompany him in the camp of Dan between Saraa and between Esthaol.

And Sampson went down to Thamnatha, and at Thamnatha he saw a woman of the daughters of the allophyles, and she was pleasing before him. And he came up and told his father and his mother and said, "I have seen a woman at Thamnatha of the daughters of the allophyles, and now, get her for me for a wife." And his father and his mother said to him, "Is there not a woman of your brothers’ daughters among all my people, that you will go to take a wife from the uncircumcised allophyles?" And Sampson said to his father, "Get this one for me, because she was pleasing in my sight." And his father and his mother did not know that it was from the Lord, for he himself was seeking requital from the allophyles. And at that time allophyles had dominion over the sons of Israel.

And Sampson went down, and his father and his mother, to Thamnatha. And he turned aside into a vineyard of Thamnatha, and see, a whelp of a lion roaring to meet him. And a spirit of the Lord made straight for him, and he tore it apart as he would tear apart a kid of goats, and there was nothing in his hand. And he did not tell his father or mother what he had done. And they went down and talked with the woman, and she was pleasing before Sampson. And after days he returned to marry her, and he turned aside to see the carcass of the lion, and see, a swarm of bees in the mouth of the lion, and there was honey. And he took it out into his mouth and went on, going and eating. And he came to his father and to his mother, and he gave to them, and they ate. And he did not tell them that he had taken the honey from the condition of the lion.

And his father went down to the woman, and Sampson held a drinking party there for seven days, because the young men would do thus. And it came about, when they were afraid of him, that they appointed thirty companions for him, and they were with him. And Sampson said to them, "I will set you a problem, and if you tell me the problem within the seven days of the drinking party, I will give you thirty linen garments and thirty robes. And if you cannot tell me, you shall also give me thirty linen garments and thirty robes used as outer garments." And they said to him, "Set your problem, and we will hear it." And he said to them, "Out of the eater came forth food, and out of a strong one came forth something sweet."

And for three days they could not tell the problem.

And it came about in the fourth day that they said to Sampson’s wife, "Do deceive your husband, and let him tell you the problem, or we will burn you and your father’s house with fire. Did the Lord make straight for him, and he tore it apart as he would tear apart a kid of goats, and there was nothing in his hand. And he did not tell his father or mother what he had done. And they went down and talked with the woman, and she was made straight in my sight. And his father and his mother did not know that it was from the Lord, for he himself was seeking requital from the allophyles. And at that time allophyles were dominant in Israel.

And for three days they could not tell the problem.

And it came about in the fourth day that they said to Sampson’s wife, "Do deceive your husband, and let him tell you the problem, or we will burn you and your father’s house with fire. Have you invite us to be beggars?" 16 And Sampson’s wife wept before him and said to him, “You hate me, and you do not love me, for the problem which you set for the sons of my people, even to me you have not told it.” And Sampson said to her, “Look, I have not told it to my father or my mother, and I am going to tell you!” 17 And she wept before him during the seven days, them on which there was a party, and it came about in the seventh day that he told her, because she exasperated him. And she told the sons of her people. 18 And the men of the city said to him in the seventh day before the sun went down, “What is sweeter than honey? And what is stronger than a lion?” And Sampson said to them, “If you had not tamed my heifer, you would not have found my problem.” 19 And a spirit of the Lord made straight for him, and he went down to Ascalon. And from there he struck down thirty men and took their robes and gave them to those who had told the problem. And from those the allophyles came up and burned her and her father with fire. 20 And Sampson’s wife was given to those who had told the problem. And she told the sons of her people. 21 And Sampson was furiously angry, and he went back to his father’s house.

you invited us to force us out?” 16 And Sampson’s wife wept before him and said, “But you hate me, and you do not love me, for the problem which you set for the sons of my people you have not told to me.” And Sampson said to her, “If I have not told it to my father or my mother, should I tell you?” 17 And she wept before him during the seven days on which they held the party, and it came about in the seventh day that he told her, because she exasperated him. And she told the sons of her people. 18 And the men of the city said to him in the seventh day before the sun rose, “What is sweeter than honey? And what is stronger than a lion?” And Sampson said to them, “If you had not ploughed with my heifer, you would not have known my problem.”

15 And it came about after days, during the days of the wheat harvest, that Sampson went to visit his wife, bringing along a kid of goats. And he said, “I will go in to my wife, into the bed-room.” And her father would not allow him to go in to her. 2 And her father said, “Saying I said that hating you hated her, and I gave her to your companion. See, is not her younger sister better than she? Do let her be to you in her stead.” 3 And Sampson said to her, “I am without blame from the allophyles this once, for the fact that I do mischief with you.” 4 And Sampson went and caught three hundred foxes and took torches, and he turned tail to tail and put one torch between the two tails, in the middle. 5 And he set fire to the torches, and he sent the foxes off into the standing grain of the allophyles and burned up the ears of grain and what had been previously harvested, from the sheaf up to what stood and up to vineyard and olive trees. 6 And the allophyles said, “Who has done these things?” And they said, “Sampson, the son-in-law of the Thamnathite, because he took his wife and gave her to his companion.” And the allophyles came up and burned her and her father with fire. 7 And Sampson said to them, “If you act thus, I will not be content unless I take my revenge from each and every one of you.” 8 And he struck them on the thigh, a great blow, and he went down and was staying by the wadi in the cave of Etam.

9 And the allophyles came up and encamped against Ioudas, and they were thrown back at Lechi. 10 And they said to them, every man of Ioudas, “Why have you come up against us?” And the allophyles said, “To bind Sampson and to do to him as he did to us." 11 And three thousand men of Loudas went down to the hole in the rock of Etam, and they said to Sampson, "Do you not know that the allophyles are ruling over us? And why have you done these things to us?" And Sampson said to them, "As they did to me, so I have done to them." 12 And they said to him, "We have come down to bind you and to give you into the hands of the allophyles." And Sampson said to them, "Swear to me not to kill me yourselves and give me up to them, lest you yourselves come against me." 13 And they swore to him, saying, "No, but we will bind you with a binding and give you into their hands, but we will not put you to death by death." And they bound him with two new cords and led him up from the rock.

14 And he came by himself as far as Jawbone, and the allophyles shouted in triumph to meet him and ran to meet up with him, and a spirit of the Lord made straight for him, and the cords that were on his arms became like flax when it smells fire, and the bonds were loosed from his hands. 15 And he found a jawbone of a donkey cast aside and stretched out his hand and took it, and with it he struck down a thousand men. 16 And Sampson said, "I have wiped them out, wiping them out with a donkey's jawbone, for with a donkey's jawbone I have struck down a thousand men." 17 And it came about, when he had finished speaking, that he threw the jawbone from his hand, and he called that place Jawbone's Slaying.

18 And he was very thirsty, and he called out to the Lord and said, "You have granted this great deliverance by the hand of your slave. And now, shall I die of thirst and fall in the hand of the uncircumcised?" 19 And God opened the wound of the jawbone, and waters came from it. And he drank, and his spirit returned in him, and he revived. Therefore its name was called Spring-Summoned-by-Jawbone, as it remains to this day. 20 And he judged Israel in the days of the allophyles twenty years.

16 And Sampson went from there to Gaza, and there he saw a woman, a prostitute, and went in to her. 2 And the Gazites were told, saying, "Sampson has come here." And they circled around and lay in wait for him all night by the city gate. And they kept quiet all night, saying, "Let us wait until the light, when it is early, and let us kill him." 3 And Sampson lay until midnight. And about midnight he rose up and took hold of the doors of the city gate and the two posts and pulled them up, bar and all, and put them on his shoulder and carried them to the top of the mountain that faces the front of Chebron and set them down there.

4 And it came about after this that he fell in love with a woman by the Wadi Sorech, and her name was Dalila. 5 And the satraps of the allophyles came up to them, "As they did to me, so I have done to them." 6 And they said to him, "We have come down to bind you so that we may give you in the hand of the allophyles." And Sampson said to them, "Swear to me, lest you yourselves gather against me." 7 And they said to him, saying, "No, except that we will bind you with a binding and give you in their hand, and we will not put you to death by death." And they bound him with two new cords and brought him up from that rock.

14 And they came as far as Jawbone, and the allophyles shouted in triumph and ran to meet him, and a spirit of the Lord leapt upon him, and the cords that were on his arms became like flax which was burnt by fire, and his bonds melted from his hands. 15 And he found a jawbone of a donkey cast aside and stretched out his hand and took it, and with it he struck down a thousand men. 16 And Sampson said, "I have wiped them out, wiping them out with a donkey's jawbone, for with a donkey's jawbone I have struck down a thousand men." 17 And it came about, when he had ceased speaking, that he threw the jawbone from his hand, and he called that place Jawbone's Slaying.

18 And he was very thirsty and wept to the Lord and said, "You have approved this great deliverance by the hand of your slave. And now, shall I die of thirst and fall in the hand of the uncircumcised?" 19 And God broke open the pit in the jawbone, and water came from it. And he drank, and his spirit returned, and he came to life. Therefore its name was called Caller's Spring, which is in Jawbone to this day. 20 And he judged Israel in the days of the allophyles twenty years.
Judges A

phyles came up to her and said to her, “Deceive him, and see in what his great strength lies, and how we may be strong against him and bind him, so as to subdue him, and we for our part will give you, a man, eleven hundred pieces of silver.” And Dalila said to Sampson, “Tell me in what your great strength lies and by what means you may be bound so that you could be subdued.” And Sampson said to her, “If they bind me with seven fresh bowstrings that have not been left abandoned, I shall both become weak and be like one of men.” And the satraps of the allophyles brought her seven fresh bowstrings that had not been left abandoned, and she bound him with them. And his ambush was sitting in the storeroom, and she said to him, “Allophyles are upon you, Sampson!” And he broke the bowstrings, as a strand shaken off snaps when it smells fire. And his strength was not known.

10 And Dalila said to Sampson, “Look, you have deceived me and told me lies; now then do tell me how you may be bound.” And he said to her, “If they tie me up with a binding, with seven new cords with which no work has been done, I shall both become weak and be like one of men.” And Dalila took new cords for him and bound him with them, and said to him, “The allophyles are upon you, Sampson!” (And the ambush was sitting in the storeroom.) And he snapped the cords off his arms like a thread.

11 And Dalila said to Sampson, “Until now you have deceived me and told me lies; do tell me how you may be bound.” And he said to her, “If you weave the seven plaits of my head with the warp and hammer them into the wall with the peg, I shall also become weak, like one of men.” And Dalila lulled him to sleep, and she made the seven locks of his head the warp with the stretching out and hammered them into the wall with the pegs. And she said to him, “The allophyles are upon you, Sampson!” But he awoke from his sleep and pulled away the pegs along with the web from the wall and the warp. And his strength was not known.

12 And Dalila said to him, “How can you say, ‘I love you,’ and your heart is not with me? This is the third time you have deceived me and have not told me in what your great strength lies.” And it came about, when she had overpowered him with her words for the entire night and had pestered him, that he was tired to death. And he told her everything from his heart and said to her, “A razor will not come upon my head, for I have been a nazirite of God from my mother’s belly. And if I am shaved, my strength will leave me, and I will become weak and be as all men are.”

13 And Dalila realized that he had told her everything from his heart. And she sent and called all the satraps of the allophyles, saying, “Come up this once, for he has told his whole heart to me.”

to her and said to her, “Deceive him, and see in what his great strength lies, and how we may be strong for him and bind him, so as to subdue him, and we for our part will give you, a man, eleven hundred pieces of silver.” And Dalida said to Sampson, “Do tell me in what your great strength lies and by what means you may be bound so that you could be subdued.” And Sampson said to her, “If they bind me with seven fresh bowstrings that have not been spoiled, I shall both become weak and be like one of men.” And the rulers of the allophyles brought her seven fresh bowstrings that had not been spoiled, and she bound him with them. And the ambush she had was sitting in the storeroom, and she said to him, “Allophyles are upon you, Sampson!” And he tore apart the bowstrings, as one might tear apart a twist of flax when it smells the fire. And his strength was not known.

10 And Dalida said to Sampson, “Look, you have misled me and told me lies; now then tell me how you may be bound.” And he said to her, “If when they tie me up they bind me with seven new cords, them with which no work has been done, I shall both become weak and be like one of men.” And Dalida took new cords and bound him with them, and said to him, “The allophyles are upon you, Sampson!” (And the ambush was sitting in the storeroom.) And he snapped the cords off his arms like a thread.

11 Then Dalida said to Sampson, “How can you say, ‘I love you,’ and your heart is not with me? This is the third time you have misled me and have not told me in what your great strength lies.” And it came about, when she had worn him down with her words for the entire night and had pestered him, that he was tired to the point of dying. And he told her all his heart and said to her, “Iron has not come upon my head, for I have been a holy one of God from my mother’s belly. If then I am shaved, my strength will leave me, and I will become weak and be like all men.”

12 And Dalida realized that he had told her all his heart. And she sent and called the rulers of the allophyles, saying, “Come up just this once more, for he has told his whole heart to me.” And the
And all the satraps of the allophyles came up to her and brought the money in their hands. And she lulled him to sleep between her knees, and she called a barber, and he shaved off the seven locks of his head. And he began to weaken, and his strength left him. And Dalila said to him, "The allophyles are upon you, Sampson!" and he awoke from his sleep and said, "I will go out as once and once and will be shaken free." And he himself did not know that the Lord had left him. And the allophyles seized him and gouged out his eyes. And they led him down to Gaza and bound him with bronze shackles, and he was grinding grain in the prison-house. And the hair of his head began to grow again after it had been shaved.

And the satraps of the allophyles gathered to sacrifice a great atonement to their god Dagon and to rejoice. And they said, "Our god has delivered Sampson our enemy in our hand." And they saw him and praised their gods. And they said, "Our god has delivered our enemy in our hand, yes, the ravager of our country, who multiplied our wounded." And it came about, when their heart was merry, that they said, "Call Sampson from the prison-house, and let him perform before us." And they called Sampson out of the prison-house and were making fun of him. And they placed him between the two pillars, and Sampson said to the lad who held him by the hand, "Do let me rest, and make me feel the pillars, those on which the house rests, and I will lean against them." Now the boy did so. Now the house was full of men and women, and all the satraps of the allophyles were there, and on top of the house there were about three thousand men and women, watching Sampson being made fun of.

And Sampson called out to the Lord and said, "Lord, Lord, remember me, and do strengthen me only this once more, and I will exact one act of requital against the allophyles for my two eyes." And Sampson embraced the two pillars, those on which the house stood, and he leaned against them, one in his right hand and one in his left hand. And Sampson said, "Let my soul die with the allophyles." And he leaned with strength, and the house fell on the satraps and on all the people who were in it. And the dead whom Sampson put to death at his death were more numerous, above those he had put to death during his life. And his brothers and all his father's house came down and took him and went up and buried him between Saraa and between Esthaol in the tomb of his father Manoe. And he himself judged Israel twenty years.

17 And there was a man from the hill country of Ephraim, and his name was Micha. And he said to his mother, "Eleven hundred pieces of silver, those that were taken for you—and you administered an oath and spoke in my hearing—see, the silver is in my possession; I took it. And the rulers of the allophyles came up to her and brought up the money in their hands. And Dalida lulled Sampson to sleep on her knees, and she called a man, and he shaved off the seven plaits of his head, and it began to weaken him, and his strength left him. And Dalida said, "Allophyles are upon you, Sampson!" and he awoke from his sleep and said, "I will go out as once and once and will be shaken free." And he himself did not know that the Lord had departed from upon him. And the allophyles overpowered him and put out his eyes. And they brought him down to Gaza and shackled him with bronze shackles, and he was grinding grain in the house of incarceration. And hair on his head began to grow as he had shaved it.

And the rulers of the allophyles gathered to sacrifice a great oblation to their god Dagon and to rejoice. And they said, "The god has given Sampson our enemy in our hand." And the people saw him and sang hymns to their god: "Our god has given our enemy in our hand, the ravager of our country, him who multiplied our wounded." And when their heart was merry, then they said, "Call Sampson from the prison-house, and let him perform before us." So they called Sampson from the house of incarceration, and he began to perform before them. And they were beating him. And they placed him between the columns, and Sampson said to the young man who held his hand, "Let me go, and I will feel the columns, those on which the house stands, and lean against them." And the house was full with the men and women, and all the rulers of the allophyles were there, and on top of the house there were about seven hundred men and women, those who were watching Sampson's performances.

And Sampson wept to the Lord and said, "Adonaie, Lord, do now remember me, and strengthen me just this once more, O God, and I will carry out this one act of requital against the allophyles for my two eyes." And Sampson embraced the two columns of the house on which the house stood, and he leaned against them and grasped one with his right hand and one with his left hand. And Sampson said, "Let my soul die with the allophyles." And he lifted with strength, and the house fell on the rulers and on all the people who were in it. And the dead whom Sampson put to death at his death were more than those he had put to death during his life. And his brothers and his father's house came down and took him and went up and buried him between Saraa and between Esthaol in the tomb of his father Manoe. And he himself judged Israel twenty years.
And his mother said, "My son is blessed to the Lord!" 3And he returned the eleven hundred pieces of silver to his mother, and his mother said, "By an act of consecration I consecrated the silver to the Lord from my hand, setting it apart to make a carved object\(^a\) and a cast object\(^b\), and now I will return them to you and will give it back to you." 4And he returned the silver to his mother, and his mother took two hundred pieces of the silver and gave it to the smelter, and he made it into a carved object\(^a\) and a cast object\(^b\), and it came to be in the house of Micha. 5As for the man Micha, he had a house of god, and he made ephod and tharaphin\(^b\) and filled the hand of one of his sons, and he became for a priest to him. 6In those days there was no king in Israel; a man would do what was good in his own eyes.

7 And there was a lad of Bethleem, division of loudas, of the clan of loudas, himself a Leuite, and he himself lived there as a resident alien. 8And the man went from the city of loudas, from Bethleem, to live as resident alien wherever he could find. 9And he came to the hill country of Ephraim and far as the house of Micha, to make his journey. 10And Micha filled the Leuite’s hand, and the lad became for a priest to him and was in the house of Michaias. 11And Michaias said, "Now I know that the Lord favors me, because the Leuite has become for a priest to him." 12And Micha filled the Leuite’s hand, and the lad became for a priest to him and was in the house of Micha. 13And Michaias said, "Now I know that the Lord favors me, because the Leuite has become for a priest to me."

18 In those days there was no king in Israel. And in those days the tribe of Dan was seeking an inheritance for itself to live in. For up to those days no inheritance had fallen to their lot in the midst of the tribes of Israel. 2And the sons of Dan sent out five men from their clans, from part of them, sons of power, from Saraa and Esthaol, to spy out the land and to explore it, and they said to them, "Go, and search out the land." And they came to the hill country of Ephraim, as far as the house of Micha, and they rested there. 3While they were near Micha’s house, they also themselves recognized the voice of the young lad, the Leuite, and they went over and said to him, "Who brought you here? And what are you doing here, and what is your business here?" 4And he said to them, "Micha did such and such for me, and he hired me, and I became for a priest to him." 5And they said to him, "Do inquire by God, and we will know whether the

And the priest said to them, “Go in peace. Your journey, that upon which you are going, is before the Lord.”

And the five men went on, and they came to Laïsa, and they observed the people who were living in it, settled in hope, according to the decision of the Sidonians, resting in hope and unable to speak a word, for they were far from Sidon and had no word with Syria. And the five men came to their brothers at Saraa and Esthaol and their brothers were saying to them, “Why are you sitting down?”

And they said, “Get up, and let us go up against them. For we have entered and journeyed about in the land as far as Laïsa, and we saw the people who live in it in hope, according to the judgment of the Sidonians: and they were far away, away from Sidon, and they had no word with Syria. But get up, and let us go up against them! For we have found the land, and see, it is very good. And will you keep silent? Do not hesitate to go, to come and inherit the land.”

Whenever you enter, you will come to a trusting people, and the land is broad—for God has delivered it in your hand—a place, there where there is no lack of every matter, everything on earth.”

And six hundred men of a clan of Dan, armed with military implements, set out from Saraa and Esthaol and went up and encamped at Kariahïrîm in Loidas. On this account that place is called Dan’s Camp to this day; see, it is behind Kariahïrîm. From there they passed on and came as far as the hill country of Ephraïm and came as far as the house of Micha.

And the five men who were going to spy out the land answered and said to their brothers, “Do you know that in these buildings there are ephod, theraphïn, a carved object and a cast object? So now consider what you will do.” And they turned in that direction and entered the house of the lad, the Leuite, at the home of Micha, and greeted him. And the six hundred men who were armed with military implements were standing like pillars by the door at the gateway, those of the sons of Dan. And the five men who were going to spy out the land went up. They came there and took the carved object, the ephod, the theraphïn and the cast object. And the priest was standing like a pillar by the door at the gateway, and the six hundred men armed with military implements. And they went into Micha’s house and took the carved object, the ephod, the theraphïn and the cast object, and the priest said to them, “What are you doing?” And they said to him, “Keep quiet! Put your hand over your mouth, and come here with us, and you will be to us for a father and for a priest. Is it better that you should be priest to the house of one man than that you should become priest to a tribe and clan in Israel?” And the priest’s heart was glad. And he took the ephod, the theraphïn, the carved ob-whether the journey, that on which we are going, will be successful.” And the priest said to them, “Go in peace. Your journey, that on which you are going, is before the Lord.”

And the five men went on, and they came to Laïsa, and they observed the people in the midst of it, settled in hope, like the judgment of Sidonians, being quiet, and there was none in the land to deter or to make them ashamed in regard to a word, no oppressive inheritor of a treasury, and they were far from Sidonians and did not have a word with a person. And the five men came to their brothers at Saraa and Esthaol and said to their brothers, “Why are you sitting down?” And they said, “Get up, and let us go up against them. For we saw the land, and see, it is very good. And will you remain quiet? Do not hesitate to go and enter in to inherit the land.” And whenever you go, you will enter in to a people in hope, and the land is wide—for God has given it in your hand—a place, there where there is no lack of every matter of the things on earth.”
the carved object and the cast object and went into the midst of the people.

21 And they turned around and departed and positioned the whole household and his esteemed possession in front of them. 22 Now when they had gone a long distance from the home of Michaias, then see, Micha and the men who belonged to the house with Micha were crying out behind the sons of Dan. 23 And the sons of Dan turned their faces around and said to Micha, "What is the matter that you cried out?" 24 And Micha said, "Because you took my carved object that I made for myself and the priest, and went away, and what have I left? And why do you say this to me, 'Why do you cry out like this?'" 25 And the sons of Dan said to him, "Your voice had better not be heard with us or else men who are afflicted in soul will attack you, and you will add your life and the lives of your household." 26 And the sons of Dan went on their way. And Micha saw that they were too strong for him, and he turned away and went back to his home. 27 And they took everything Micha had made and the priest who belonged to him and came as far as Laisa, to a people quiet and trusting, and they struck them down with the edge of the sword and burned down the city. 28 And there was none to rescue, because it was far from Sidonians and they had no word with a person. And it was in a valley that belongs to the house of Roob. And they built the city and pitched tent in it. 29 And they called the name of the city Dan, after the name of their ancestor, who was born to Israel; and the city formerly had the name Laisa. 30 And the sons of Dan set up Micha's carved object for themselves, and Jonathan son of Gersom son of Moyes, he and his sons were priests for the tribe of Dan until the day of the removal from the land. 31 And they appointed for themselves Micha's carved object that he had made, all the days that the house of God was at Selom.

And it came about in those days that there was no king in Israel. And it came about that a man, a Leuite, was living as a resident alien in the thighs of the hill country of Ephraim. And the man took to himself a wife, a concubine from Bethlehem of Ioudas. 2 And his concubine became angry with him, and she went away from him to her father's house at Bethleem of Ioudas and was there for days, four months. 3 And her husband got up and set out after her, to speak to her heart, to turn her back to him. And his young man was with him, and a team of draft animals. And he came as far as her father's house, and the young woman's father saw him and was there to meet him. 4 And his father-in-law, the young woman's father, brought him inside and sat with him three days, and they ate and drank and slept there. 5 And it came about on the fourth day that they rose early in the morning, and he got up.

to leave, and the young woman's father said to his son-in-law, "Strengthen your heart with a morsel of bread, and go after that." 6 And both sat and ate in the same place, and they drank, and the young woman's father said to the man, "Begin, and lodge, and let your heart be glad." 7 And the man got up to go, and his father-in-law put great pressure on him, and he lodged there again. 8 And on the fifth day he rose early in the morning to leave, and the young woman's father said, "Strengthen your heart with bread, and campaign until the day declines." And both of them ate and drank. 9 And the man got up to leave, and he and his concubine and his young servant, and his father-in-law, the young woman's father, said to him, "Look now, the day has declined towards evening. Stay here today as well, and let your heart be glad, and tomorrow you shall rise early for your journey and shall depart for your dwelling."

10 And the man did not want to lodge, and he got up and departed, and they came as far as opposite lebous (this is Jerusalem). And with him was a team of loaded draft animals, and his concubine was with him. 11 While they were still near lebous (and the day was far spent), then the young servant said to his master, "Come now, and let us turn aside to this city of the lebousite and lodge in it." 12 And his master said to him, "I will not turn aside into a foreigner's city, which is not of the sons of Israel, and we will continue on as far as Gabaa."

13 And he said to his young servant, "Come, and let us enter one of the places and lodge in Gabaa or in Rama." 14 And they passed by and went on, for the sun sank near Gabaa, which belongs to Beniamin. 15 And they turned aside there, to go in to stay in Gabaa. And they went in and sat down in the square of the city, and there was no man who would take them into the house to stay.

16 And at evening, see, an old man came in from his work, from the field. And the man was from the hill country of Ephraim, and he himself was a resident alien in Gabaa (and the men of the place were sons of Beniamin). 17 And when he looked up with his eyes, he saw the man, the wayfarer in the square of the city, and the old man said, "Where are you going, and where do you come from?" 18 And he said to him, "We are passing through from Bethleem of Ioudas as far as the thighs of the hill country of Ephraim. Now, I am from there, and I went as far as Bethleem of Ioudas, and I am returning to my home, and there is no man taking me into the house. 19 And indeed, there is straw and fodder for our donkeys, and indeed there is bread and wine for me and for your slave-woman and for the young servant, your slaves. There is no lack of anything." 20 And the old man said, "Peace be to you. Yet, everything you lack is my concern; only do not spend the night in the square." 21 And he led him into his house and fed him, and he lodged there.

10 And the man was not pleased to lodge, and he got up and departed, and he came as far as opposite lebous (this is Jerusalem). And with him was a team of loaded donkeys, and his concubine was with him. 11 And they came as far as lebous, and the day was far advanced, and the young man said to his master, "Come now, and let us turn aside to this city of the lebousite and lodge in it." 12 And his master said to him, "We will not turn aside into a foreign city in which there is none from among the sons of Israel here, and we will continue on as far as Gabaa." 13 And he said to his young man, "Come, and let us go near one of the places, and we will lodge in Gabaa or in Rama." 14 And they passed by and went on, and the sun sank on them near Gabaa, which belongs to Beniamin. 15 And they turned aside there, to go in to lodge in Gabaa. And they went in and sat down in the square of the city, and there was no man taking them in to a house to lodge.

16 And at evening, see, an old man was coming in from his work, from the field. And towards morning, the woman came and fell down by the door at the gateway to the man’s house, there where her master was, until it was light.

And her master got up early and opened the doors of the house and went out to go on his way, and see, the woman, his concubine, lying by the door, and her hands were in the entrance. And he said to her, “Get up, and let’s go.” And she did not answer him, but she had died. And he took her up onto the draft animal, and the man got up and departed for his place. And he entered his house and took his dagger and took hold of his concubine and dismembered her into twelve pieces, and sent them to all the tribes of Israel. And it came about that everyone who saw would say, “Neither has it happened nor has it appeared thus from the day of the coming up of the sons of Israel from Egypt until this day. And all the sons of Israel came out, from Dan and up to Bersabee, and the land of Galaad, and all the congregation assembled like one man before the Lord at Massepha. And the region of all the people stood, all the tribes of Israel in the assembly of the people of God, four hundred thousand men, foot-soldiers drawing a sword.

And the sons of Beniamin heard that the sons of Israel had gone up to the Lord at Massepha. And the sons of Beniamin heard that the sons of Israel had gone up to the Lord at Massepha. And then they came, the sons of Israel said, “Say where this wickedness took place.” And the Leuite, the husband of the murdered woman, answered and said, “I came to Gabaa in the territory of Benjamin, and they washed their feet themselves and ate and drank.

And the region of all the people stood, all the tribes of Israel in the assembly of the people of God, four hundred thousand men, foot-soldiers drawing a sword.

And the sons of Beniamin heard that the sons of Israel had gone up to the Lord at Massepha. And then they came, the sons of Israel said, “Say where this wickedness took place.” And the Leuite, the husband of the murdered woman, answered and said, “I came to Gabaa in the territory of Benjamin, and they washed their feet themselves and ate and drank.

And towards morning, the woman came and fell down by the door at the gateway to the man’s house, there where her master was, until it was light.

And her master got up early and opened the doors of the house and went out to go on his way, and see, the woman, his concubine, lying by the door, and her hands were in the entrance. And he said to her, “Get up, and let’s go.” And she did not answer him, but she had died. And he took her up onto the draft animal, and the man got up and departed for his place. And he entered his house and took his dagger and took hold of his concubine and dismembered her into twelve pieces, and sent them to all the tribes of Israel. And it came about that everyone who saw would say, “Neither has it happened nor has it appeared thus from the day of the coming up of the sons of Israel from Egypt until this day. And he commanded the men whom he sent, saying, “This is what you shall say to every man of Israel, ‘Has it happened according to this thing from the day of the coming up of the sons of Israel from Egypt until this day? Do take counsel with yourselves about her, and speak out.’”

And all the sons of Israel came out, from Dan and up to Bersabee, and the land of Galaad, and all the congregation assembled like one man before the Lord at Massepha. And the region of all the people stood, all the tribes of Israel in the assembly of the people of God, four hundred thousand men, foot-soldiers drawing a sword.

And the sons of Beniamin heard that the sons of Israel had gone up to the Lord at Massepha. And then they came, the sons of Israel said, “Say where this wickedness took place.” And the Leuite, the husband of the murdered woman, answered and said, “I came to Gabaa in the territory of Benjamin.
And the sons of Israel went up and wept in the place, there where they had drawn up in battle in the land of Israel. 23And the sons of Israel were strong, and they added to draw up for war near for battle against our brothers, sons of Benjamin. 15And in that day the sons of Belial, and we will put them to death and purge wickedness from Israel.” And the sons of Benjamin gathered together from their cities, coming as one man.

12 And the tribes of Israel sent men through all the tribe of Benjamin, saying, “What evil is this that has happened among you? 13Now then, hand over the godless men in Gabaa, the sons of transgressors, those in Gabaa, and we will put them to death and purge wickedness from Israel.” And the sons of Benjamin did not see fit to listen to the voice of their brothers, the sons of Israel. 14And the sons of Benjamin came together out of their cities to Gabaa, to go out to fight with sons of Israel. 15And in that day the sons of Benjamin were reviewed, twenty-five thousand men from the cities drawing a sword, besides the inhabitants of Gabaa. They were reviewed, seven hundred men, handpicked young men, ambidextrous. All these were slingers, throwing a stone at a hair and not missing. 17And every man of Israel—they were reviewed, apart from the sons of Benjamin, four hundred thousand men drawing a sword. All of these were men, warriors.

18 And they arose and went up to Baithel, and the sons of Israel inquired by God and said, “Who shall go up for us as leader, to fight with Benjamin?” And the Lord said, “Ioudas shall go up as leader.”

19 And the sons of Israel arose and encamped against Gabaa. 20And every man of Israel went out to battle with Benjamin, and they mustered with them for battle, a man of Israel against Benjamin. 21And the sons of Benjamin came out of the city and destroyed among Israel in that day twenty-two thousand men upon the land. 22And a man of Israel was strong, and they added to draw up for war in the place, there where they had drawn up in the first day. 23And the sons of Israel went up and wept before the Lord until the evening, and they inquired by the Lord, saying, “Shall I add to draw near for battle against my brother Benjamin?” And the Lord said, “Go up against him.”

And the men of Gabaa rose up against me and surrounded the house at night against me. They wanted to murder me, and they humiliated my concubine, and she died. 6And I seized my concubine and dismembered her and sent throughout every territory of the inheritance of the sons of Israel, for they committed zemaa and an error in Israel. 7See, all of you, sons of Israel, give yourselves advice and counsel there.”

8 And all the people got up like one man, saying, “We will not go, a man into his dwelling, and we will not turn aside, a man to his house. 9And now this is the word that we will carry out against Gabaa: we will go up against it by lot. 10And we will take ten men for a hundred, and a hundred for a thousand, and a thousand for ten thousand, to bring provisions for the people, those who are going in to carry out against Gabaa of Benjamin according to all the madness that they have committed in Israel.” 11And every man of Israel gathered from their cities, coming as one man.

12 And the tribes of Israel sent out men through all the tribe of Benjamin, saying, “What evil is this that has happened among you? 13Now then, hand over the godless men in Gabaa, the sons of transgressors, those in Gabaa, and we will put them to death and purge wickedness from Israel.” And the sons of Benjamin did not see fit to listen to the voice of their brothers, the sons of Israel. 14And the sons of Benjamin came together from their cities to Gabaa, to go out to battle against sons of Israel. 15And in that day the sons of Benjamin were reviewed, twenty-three thousand men from the cities, a man drawing a sword, excluding the inhabitants of Gabaa, who were reviewed, seven hundred men, handpicked 16from all the people, ambidextrous. All these were slingers of stones at a hair and not missing. 17And a man of Israel—they were reviewed, excluding Benjamin, four hundred thousand men drawing a sword. All of these were men of battle.

18 And they arose and went up to Baithel, and they inquired by God. And the sons of Israel said, “Who shall go up for us as leader, to fight against sons of Benjamin?” And the Lord said, “Ioudas shall go up as leader.”

19 And the sons of Israel arose in the morning and encamped against Gabaa. 20And they went out, every man of Israel, for battle against Benjamin, and they joined battle with them by Gabaa. 21And the sons of Benjamin came out of the city and destroyed among Israel in that day twenty-two thousand men upon the land. 22And they were strong, a man of Israel, and they added to join battle in the place where they had joined battle in the first day. 23And the sons of Israel went up and wept before the Lord until the evening, and they inquired by the Lord, saying, “Shall we add to draw near for battle against our brothers, sons of Benjamin?” And the Lord said, “Go up against them.”

24 And the sons of Israel advanced against Benjamín in the second day. 25 And Benjamín went out to meet them from Gabaa in the second day and destroyed eighteen thousand men of the people upon the land; all these had drawn a sword. 26 And all the sons of Israel and all the people went up and came to Baithel and wept before the Lord, and they fasted in that day and offered whole burnt offerings of deliverance before the Lord. 27 And the sons of Israel inquired by the Lord (and the ark of the covenant of the Lord was there in those days). 28 And Phinees son of Eleazar son of Aaron stood before it in those days), saying, "Shall I yet add to go out for battle with the sons of Benjamin my brother, or shall I desist?" And the Lord said, "Go up, for tomorrow I will deliver him in your hand."

29 And the sons of Israel set ambushes against Gabaa all around. 30 And Israel drew up against Benjamin in the third day, and they deployed against Gabaa, as once and once. 31 And the sons of Benjamin went out to meet the people, and they were drawn away out of the city, and as once and once they began to strike down some from the people along the roads, one of which goes up to Baithel and one goes up to Gabaa, in the fields, about thirty men in Israel. 32 And the sons of Benjamin said, "They are stumbling before us as previously." And the sons of Israel said, "Let us retreat and draw them out of the city toward the roads." 33 And every man of Israel went up from his position, and they mustered in Baalthamar, and the Israelite ambush was struggling out of its position west of Gabaa. 34 And there arrived in front of Gabaa ten thousand men from all Israel, and the war became grievous. And they did not realize that evil had touched them.

35 And the Lord routed Benjamin in front of Israel, and the sons of Israel destroyed twenty-five thousand one hundred men among Benjamin in that day; all these were drawing a sword.

36 And Benjamín saw that he was routed.

And a man of Israel gave ground to Benjamin, because they looked to the ambush that they had stationed against Gabaa. 37 And the ambush rushed forward, and they spread out against Gabaa, and the ambush advanced, and they struck down the whole city with the edge of the sword. 38 And the command for a man of Israel as regards the ambush was that they should send up a signal of the smoke of the city. 39 And they turned, a man of Israel, in the battle, and Benjamin had begun to strike down wounded in the man of Israel, about thirty men, for they said, "But being routed he is routed before us, just like the previous battle."

24 And the sons of Israel advanced against the sons of Benjamin in the second day. 25 And the sons of Benjamin went out to meet them from Gabaa in the second day and destroyed a further eighteen thousand men from the sons of Israel upon the land; all these were drawing a sword. 26 And all the sons of Israel and all the people went up and came to Baithel and wept and sat there before the Lord, and they fasted in that day until evening and offered whole burnt offerings and ones of completion before the Lord. 27 For the ark of the covenant of the Lord God was there, 28 and Phinees son of Eleazar son of Aaron stood before it in those days. And the Israelites inquired by the Lord, saying, "Shall we yet add to go out for battle against the sons of Benjamin our brothers, or are we to call a halt?" And the Lord said, "Go up, for tomorrow I will give them into your hands."

29 And the sons of Israel set ambushes against Gabaa all around. 30 And the sons of Israel went up against the sons of Benjamin in the third day and joined battle against Gabaa, as once and once. 31 And the sons of Benjamin went out to meet the people, and they poured out of the city. And as once and once they began to strike down some of the people as casualties along the roads, one of which goes up to Baithel and one to Gabaa, in fields, about thirty men in Israel. 32 And the sons of Benjamin said, "They are falling before us as at first." And the sons of Israel said, "Let us retreat and clear them out, away from the city toward the roads." And so they did. 33 And every man went up from his position, and they formed up in Baalthamar, and the Israelite ambush was coming up from its position, from Maaragabe. 34 And there came in front of Gabaa ten thousand men from all Israel, and battle was grievous. And they did not realize that evil was overtaking upon them.

35 And the Lord struck down Benjamin before the sons of Israel, and the sons of Israel destroyed twenty-five thousand one hundred men from Benjamin in that day; all these would draw a sword.

36 And the sons of Benjamin saw that they were beaten.

And a man of Israel gave ground to Benjamin, because they looked to the ambush that they had positioned against Gabaa. 37 And when they retreated, the ambush also moved, and they stretched out towards Gabaa, and the ambush spread out, and they struck down the city with the edge of the sword. 38 And there was a sign for the sons of Israel with the ambush in the battle, that they should send up a signal of smoke from the city. 39 And the sons of Israel saw that the ambush had quickly seized Gabaa, and they formed up in their battle-line. And Benjamin began to strike down wounded among the men of Israel, about thirty men, for they said, "Again they are falling with a falling before us, just like the previous bat-
And the signal, a pillar of smoke, began to rise out of the city, and Beniamin looked behind him, and see, the annihilation of the city went up toward the sky! And a man of Israel turned back, and a man of Beniamin made haste, and he saw that evil had touched him. And they turned before a man of Israel in the direction of the wilderness, and the battle overtook them, and those from the cities destroyed him in their midst. And they cut down Beniamin, to stop him with a stopping, and they trampled him down until opposite Gabaa from the east. And there fell eighteen thousand men of Beniamin. With all these were powerful men. And they turned and fled into the wilderness to the rock of Remmon. And they gleaned five thousand men along the roads, and they clung on after him as far as Gadaam, and they struck down two thousand men of them. And all those who fell in that day among Beniamin were twenty-five thousand men who drew a sword. With all these were powerful men. And six hundred turned and fled into the wilderness to the rock of Remmon and remained at the rock of Remmon for four months. And a man of Israel shut out the sons of Beniamin, and they struck them down with the edge of the sword, from city, one after another, up to animal and up to everything that was found, into all the cities. And the cities that were found they sent off with fire.

And the sons of Israel had sworn at Massepha, saying, “A man out of us shall not give his daughter to Beniamin for a wife.” And all the people came to Massepha and Baithel and sat there until evening before God, and they lifted up their voice and wept with a great weeping. And they said, “O Lord, the God of Israel, why has this come about in Israel, that today in Israel one tribe should be reviewed?” And it came about in the next day that the people rose early, and they built an altar there and offered up whole burnt offerings of deliverance. And the sons of Israel said, “Who is the one who did not come up in the assembly to the Lord, from all the tribes of Israel?” For there was a solemn oath against the one who did not come up in the assembly to the Lord to Massepha, saying, “He will die by death.” And the sons of Israel were comforted concerning Beniamin their brother, and they said, “One tribe has been cut off from Israel this day.” What are we to do for wives for them that are left? And it was we who swore by the Lord that we would not give them any of our daughters for wives.”

And they said, “What one of the tribes of Israel is there which did not come up to the Lord to Massepha?” And see, a man did not come from Iabis Galaad to the camp, to the assembly. And the people were reviewed, and see, there was not a

And in front of the sons of Israel they looked in the direction of the wilderness and fled, and the battle overtook upon them, and those from the cities were destroying them in their midst. And they were cutting down Beniamin, and they pursued him from Noua, at his heel, until opposite Gabaa to the east. And there fell eighteen thousand men from Beniamin, all these men of power. man there of the inhabitants of Iabis Galaad. 10 And the congregation sent twelve thousand men there of the sons of power and commanded them, saying, ‘Go, and strike down all the inhabitants of Iabis Galaad with the edge of the sword, both the women and the people. 11 And this is the word that you shall carry out: everything male and every woman who is familiar with intercourse with a male you shall anathematize.’ 12 And they found from among the inhabitants of Iabis Galaad four hundred young women, virgins, who had not known a man for intercourse with a male, and they led them to the camp at Selo, which is in the land of Chanaan.

13 And the whole congregation sent, and they spoke to Benjamin, who was at the rock of Remmon, and called them to peace. 14 And Benjamin turned back to the sons of Israel in that time, and they gave them the women who were from among the women of Iabis Galaad, and in this way they were content.

15 And the people were comforted over Benjamin, because the Lord had made a breach in the tribes of Israel. 16 And the elders of the congregation said, ‘What are we to do for wives for those who are left, since a woman has disappeared from Benjamin?’ 17 And they said, ‘An inheritance has survived for Benjamin, and a tribe will not be blotted out from Israel. 18 And we will not be able to give them wives from among our daughters, for we, the sons of Israel, swore, saying, ‘Cursed be the one who gives a wife to Benjamin.’ ‘ 19 And they said, ‘There is a feast to the Lord at Selo from days to days, which is to the north of Baithel, to the east, by the road that goes up from Baithel to Sichem, and to the south of Lebanon.’ 20 And they commanded the sons of Benjamin, saying, ‘Spread out, and lie in wait in the vineyards. 21 And you will watch, and see, when the daughters of the inhabitants of Selo in Selo come out to dance in dances, you shall also come out from the vineyards and carry off, a man a wife for himself, from the daughters of Selo, and you shall go away to the land of Benjamin.’ 22 And it will be, when their fathers or their brothers come to dispute with you, that we will say to them, ‘Have mercy on them, because they did not capture, a man his wife, in war. For it was not you who gave to them; you erred based on circumstance.’ 23 And the sons of Benjamin did so, and they took wives according to their number from the dancers whom they abduced. And they went away and turned back to their inheritance, and they built cities for themselves and lived in them. 24 And the sons of Israel went about from there in that time, a man to his tribe and to his family, and they went away from there, a man to his own inheritance.

13 And the whole congregation sent, and they spoke to the sons of Benjamin at the rock of Remmon and called them to peace. 14 And Benjamin returned to the sons of Israel in that time, and the sons of Israel gave them the women whom they had caused to live from among the daughters of Iabis Galaad, and in this way they were content.

15 And the people were comforted over Benjamin, because the Lord had made a breach in the tribes of Israel. 16 And the elders of the congregation said, ‘What are we to do for wives for those who are left over, since a woman disappeared from Benjamin?’ 17 And they said, ‘There is an inheritance of survivors for Benjamin, and a tribe will not be blotted out from Israel. 18 For we will not be able to give them wives from among our daughters, for we swore among the sons of Israel, saying, ‘Cursed be the one who gives a wife to Benjamin.’ ‘ 19 And they said, ‘See now, there is a feast of the Lord at Selon from days to days, which is to the north of Baithel, to the east, by the road that goes up from Baithel to Sichem, and to the south of Lebanon.’ 20 And they commanded the sons of Benjamin, saying, ‘Go, lie in wait in the vineyards. 21 And you will watch, and see, if the daughters of the inhabitants of Selon come out to dance in their dances, you shall also come out of the vineyards; then carry off for yourselves, a man a wife, from the daughters of Selon, and you shall go to the land of Benjamin. 22 And it will be, when their fathers or their brothers come to dispute with you, that we will say to them, ‘Do us mercy concerning them, because we did not capture, a man his wife, in battle. For it is not you who have given them to them; err as circumstance dictates!’ ‘ 23 And the sons of Benjamin did so, and they took wives up to their number from the dancers whom they abducted. And they went and turned back to their inheritance, and they built the cities and settled in them. 24 And the sons of Israel went about from there in that time, a man to his tribe and to his family, and they went out from there, a man to his own inheritance.

TO THE READER

Edition of the Greek Text
The present English translation of Routh (the Greek spelling of Ruth) follows the Greek edition by Alfred Rahlfs, which is generally regarded as the best available for this biblical book (Septuaginta. Id est Vetus Testamentum graece iuxta LXX interpretes, 2 vols. [Stuttgart: Württembergische Bibelanstalt, 1935]). Departures from Rahlfs’ text as the basis for the English translation are rare, except where punctuation is concerned. Rahlfs’ Septuagint as a whole is based principally upon three early codices, not upon all available textual evidence, but for the book of Ruth Rahlfs presumably was able to draw upon his earlier work involving c. 50 manuscripts. See A. Rahlfs, Das Buch Ruth griechisch als Probe einer kritischen Handausgabe der Septuaginta (Stuttgart: Privilegierte Württembergische Bibelanstalt, 1922), which was not available to me, and Studie über den griechischen Text des Buches Ruth (MSU 3, 2; Berlin: Wiedmannsche Buchhandlung, 1922), also published in Nachrichten von der Gesellschaft der Wissenschaften zu Göttingen (Philologisch-historische Klasse, 1922) 47–164.

Translation Profile of the Greek
The book of Ruth is a fairly literal translation of the Hebrew, with the Greek text often matching the Hebrew in a word-for-word fashion. At times the translator reflects distinctions in the Hebrew that seem to be of no consequence semantically, as in the consistent representation of יְבַשֵּׁל and יָבַשְׁל (both meaning “said to”) as εἶπεν plus dative (15x) and εἶπεν πρὸς (7x) respectively.

Not surprisingly, the Greek text displays a high tolerance for Hebraic modes of expression, retaining certain idioms like “uncover your ear” (4.4) and generally keeping the paratactic syntax of the Hebrew original. The latter is illustrated by the fact that ‘meaning “and” (etc.) that begins most Hebrew sentences is reproduced in Greek by the word καὶ (“and”) somewhat less than 90% of the time. Typically this is done even when the resulting Greek is awkward or unappealing stylistically.

Evidently the merits of this kind of close translation were seen to outweigh its disadvantages. By virtue of its Hebraisms, the translation had the power to evoke the original. Non-Jewish readers, no doubt, would have found it strangely worded or even obscure in places, but for the reader who shared the translator’s social setting, the Hebraisms in Routh must have been valued as highly accurate renderings.

To speak of a tendency toward literal translation, however, is to tell only part of the story. In many ways the translator exhibits a degree of flexibility and freedom in the treatment of the text. Renderings as completely regular as the example of εἶπεν mentioned above are the exception rather than the rule, and the usual Greek equivalent was often rejected where clarity or other considerations came into play. An interesting example is the rendering of יָניֵרו, “I,” by ἐγώ εἰμι, “I am,” a feature of Kaige texts (of which Routh is one) by which יָניֵרו was distinguished from its synonym יָני. This rendering, which is generally found in Routh (in 2.10; 3.9, 12; and twice in 4.4), is replaced by ἐγώ alone in 2.13 and 3.13, where ἐγώ εἰμι would have resulted in difficult or ungrammatical Greek.

Often, too, a single Hebrew word is represented by a variety of Greek ones. Three different Greek words, νεῖταις, “young woman” (2.5), πάις, “lass” (2.6), and παιδίσκη, “maidservant” (4.12), are all used to translate Hebrew食べיל when it refers to Routh, and a fourth Greek word, κορησίον, “girl, young woman” (2.8, etc.), is used when食べיל refers to the female workers of Boos (Boaz). Throughout, the attentive reader will find that Routh, like any translation, is very much an interpretation.

Not infrequently we find that information drawn from the context is inserted into a verse in order to clarify its meaning. These insertions are mostly minor; in a typical if prosaic example from 1.15, in place of MT’s “she said” the Greek specifies “Noemin said to Routh.” A more substantive insertion occurs in 4.8, where the next-of-kin removes his sandal, as in the MT, “and gave it to him” (to Boos), an act that is implied by 4.7 but not stated in the Hebrew text. Minuses relative to the MT are less frequent. Often they seem to involve words that were seen as superfluous, as with “days of” in the Hebrew text of 1.1. Several may have been motivated by a sense of propriety, as in the omission of “tonight” in 1.12.

Of course many of the differences between the Hebrew text that we know today and the Greek transluation might have been present in the Vorlage (the translator’s Hebrew text) rather than originating in the translation. Such was evidently the case with the name of Noemin’s husband, which is Elimelech in our present-day Hebrew text but is Abimelech in the Greek text (six times in the book). The difference between the two names is only one letter in the vowelless ancient Hebrew script.

THE NETS TRANSLATION OF ROUTH
NETS Routh attempts to capture something of the character of the Greek translation. Like the Greek translation, the present English one is relatively literal. In attempting to reflect the Greek closely, it is a more literal rendering of the Greek than the NRSV is of the Hebrew. (For the role of the NRSV as the base text for NETS, see “TO THE READER OF NETS.”) In fact, since the Greek often renders the Hebrew literally, and NETS Routh attempts to render the Greek literally, NETS frequently represents the Hebrew phrasology more closely than the NRSV does.

It follows that divergences of NETS Routh from NRSV Ruth in many cases do not indicate divergences of the Greek text from the Hebrew Masoretic Text, but rather stem from the different translation philosophies of NETS and the NRSV. Wherever possible, however, the wording of the NRSV has been retained so that it can be compared profitably with NETS. A somewhat free translation within NETS, Routh may, therefore, be the result of a desire to preserve the NRSV where possible, or it may reflect the necessity for grammatical English.

In many cases the NRSV does not translate the conjunction “and” into English, especially when it begins a sentence, or the NRSV renders it “now,” “then,” “so,” or the like. In this matter NETS Routh is more conservative, generally translating “and.” But where both Hebrew and Greek have initial “and,” and the NRSV does not translate it, NETS Routh also ignores it, so as not to imply that the Hebrew and Greek differ. When the Greek uses the alternative conjunction δὲ, NETS tries to use a nuanced English equivalent instead of “and.” In more significant matters NETS Routh tends to follow the Greek rather than retaining an NRSV translation that does not adequately represent it.

Generally the Greek words in the book of Routh are used in their ordinary meanings, but at times the linkage between a Hebrew word and its typical Greek equivalent apparently caused the Greek word (at least in “biblical Greek”) to be used in a Hebraic sense. Examination of Hellenistic sources has often turned up Greek parallels to supposed Hebraisms, but a residue remains that cannot be explained as ordinary Greek. Examples in Routh include καί, “and,” introducing an apodosis or conclusion, ὅτι, “that” as an asseverative (perhaps explicable as ellipsis); and ἐν, “in,” marking the recipient of a thought or emotion.

That certain Hebraisms (but not others) were tolerated seems to point to the audience’s familiarity with them, due either to their use in earlier parts of the Septuagint or to their penetration into Jewish liturgical or other settings. If indeed the audience understood certain words and expressions in their Hebrew senses, rather than as ordinary Greek, one might justify a freer, more idiomatic rendering of the Greek than the present one. But in the absence of evidence (as is often the case) that these Greek expressions were so understood, and in keeping with NETS policy, I have adopted a conservative approach, translating the expressions literally except where the sense was in peril or where English grammar would not permit a literal rendering.

Here and there the reader might perceive overtones of the King James Version or other exemplars of “biblical English” (“and it shall be,” “look upon [favorably],” etc.). Similarly, it seems, the first audience of Routh experienced its Hebraistic constructions as the “biblical Greek” that they had come to know from oral translations. But NETS Routh avoids “biblical English” where it might obscure the meaning. Thus in 3.3 NRSV’s ill-chosen “anoint”—a word restricted to ritual contexts in contemporary English—is rejected in favor of “apply oil.”

FREDERICK W. KNOBLOCH
It was when the judges were judging, and there was a famine in the land, and a man went from Baithleem in Iouda to sojourn in the countryside of Moab, he and his wife and his sons.

The name of the man was Abimelech, and the name of his wife, Noemin, and the name of his two sons, Maalon and Chelaion, Ephrathites from Baithleem in Iouda. They went into the countryside of Moab and remained there.

And Abimelech, the husband of Noemin, died, and she was left, and she and her two sons.

They took for themselves Moabite wives; the name of the one was Orpha, and the name of the second, Routh.

And they lived there about ten years, and both Maalon and Chelaion also died, and the woman was left, apart from her husband and apart from her two sons.

And she set out, she and her two daughters-in-law, and they came back from the countryside of Moab, for they had heard in the countryside of Moab that the Lord had looked upon his people, giving them bread.

And she went out from the place, there where she had been, and her two daughters-in-law with her, and they were going on their way to return to the land of Iouda.

Noemin said to her daughters-in-law, "Go now, go back, each to her mother’s house. May the Lord do mercy with you, as you have done with the dead and with me.

May the Lord give to you, and may you find rest, each in the house of her husband." And she kissed them, and they lifted up their voice and wept.

They said to her, "We are returning with you to your people."

And Noemin said, "Turn back now, my daughters! Now why are you going with me? Do I still have sons in my womb, and will they become husbands for you?"

Turn back now, my daughters, for I am too old for a husband. For if I said, "I have confidence that a man will marry me and I will bear sons, 'you would not wait for them until they mature, 'would you? Or would you, on their account, refrain from getting married? Don’t, my daughters, for it has been more bitter for me than for you, because the hand of the Lord has gone forth against me."

And they lifted up their voice and wept further. Orpha kissed her mother-in-law and returned to her people, but Routh followed her.

And Noemin said to Routh, "See, your sister-in-law has turned back to the land of Iouda, and with me.

May the Lord give to you, and may the Sufficient One do great mercy with you, as he has done with the dead and with me.

And the Sufficient One has maltreated me? And I am a foreigner!"

And Boos said to Routh, "Was it not said, "The Lord be with you." They said to him, "The Lord be with you," and they were going on their way to return to the land of Iouda.

And Boos said to Routh, "Did you not hear, my daughter? Do not go to glean in another field, and you should not go from this one. Stick close to your eyes on the field, wherever they are reaping, and walk behind them. See, I have commanded the young men not to touch you. If you want anything to drink, go to the vessels, and drink from what the young men draw."

And she fell upon her face and did obeisance on the ground and said to him, "Why is it that I have had favor in your eyes, that you should take notice of me? And I am a foreigner!"

And Boos answered and said to her, "All that you have done together with your mother-in-law since the death of your husband has been fully told me, and how you and thus and so may he add—for death alone shall part me from you!"

Then when Noemin saw that she was determined to go with her, she ceased speaking to her further.

So the two of them went on until they came to Baithleem. And the whole city was abuzz because of them, and they said, "Is this Noemin?"

She said to them, "Call me no longer Noemin; call me Bitter, for the Sufficient One was greatly embittered against me."

I went away full, and the Lord has brought me back empty. Why do you call me Noemin when the Lord has abused me and the Sufficient One has maltreated me?"

And Noemin returned, and Routh the Moabite, her daughter-in-law, returning from the countryside of Moab. Now they came to Baithleem at the beginning of the barley harvest.

And with regard to Noemin there was a man, an acquaintance of her husband, and the man was powerful, of the kin of Abimelech, and his name was Boos.

And Routh the Moabite said to Noemin, "Let me go now to the field and gather among the ears of grain, behind anyone in whose eyes I may find favor." And she said to her, "Go, daughter."

And she went and gleaned in the field behind the reapers. And by happenstance she happened upon the part of the field belonging to Boos, who was of the kin of Abimelech.

And there, from Baithleem, came Boos! He said to the reapers, "The Lord be with you." They said to him, "The Lord bless you."

And Boos said to his servant who was in charge of the reapers, "To whom does this young woman belong?"

The servant who was in charge of the reapers answered and said, "She is the Moabitess, the one who came back with Noemin from the countryside of Moab. She said, 'Let me glean now and gather among the sheaves behind the reapers.' And she came, and she stood from morning until evening. She did not rest a bit in the field."

And Boos said to Routh, "Did you not hear, daughter? Do not go to glean in another field, and you should not go from this one. Stick close to my girls here. Keep your eyes on the field, wherever they are reaping, and walk behind them. See, I have commanded the young men not to touch you. If you want anything to drink, go to the vessels, and drink from what the young men draw."

And she fell upon her face and did obeisance on the ground and said to him, "Why is it that I have found favor in your eyes, that you should take notice of me? And I am a foreigner!"

And Boos answered and said to her, "All that you have done together with your mother-in-law since the death of your husband has been fully told me, and how you left your father and your mother and your native land and came to a people that you did not know yesterday or the day before. 12 May the Lord repay you for your work, and may your recompense be full from the Lord, God of Israel, to whom you came, to put your trust under his wings! 13 Then she said, "May I find favor in your eyes, sir, because you have comforted me and because you have spoken to the heart of your slave, and see, I shall be like one of your maidservants." 14 And Boos said to her, "It is already time to eat. Come here, and eat some of the bread, and dip your morsel in the wine vinegar." And Routh sat by the side of the reapers, and Boos heaped up barley groats for her. She ate and was satisfied and had some left over. 15 And she got up to glean, and Boos commanded his young men, saying, "Let her glean even among the standing sheaves, and do not dishonor her. 16 By all means carry for her, and even throw aside something for her from the bundles, and leave it, and she will glean, and do not rebuke her." 17 And she gleaned in the field until evening and beat out what she had gleaned, and it was about an ephahb of barley. 18 She picked it up and came into the city, and her mother-in-law saw what she had gleaned. And taking it out, Routh gave her what she had left over after she had been satisfied. 19 Her mother-in-law said to her, "Where did you glean today? And where did you work? Blessed be the man who took notice of you." And Routh told her mother-in-law where she worked and said, "The name of the man with whom I worked today is Boos." 20 And Noemin said to her daughter-in-law, "It is already time to eat. Come here, and eat some of the bread, and dip your morsel in the wine vinegar." And Routh sat by the side of the reapers, and Boos heaped up barley groats for her. act as next-of-kin, and I come after you." So he said, "I am the one; I will act as next-of-kin." 5 And Boos said, "The day you acquire the field from the hand of Noemin and from Routh the Moabite, the wife of the deceased, it is necessary for you to acquire her also in order to raise up the name of the deceased on his inheritance." 6 And the next-of-kin said, "I will not be able to perform the kinsman's function for myself without ruining my inheritance. Take for yourself my right of inheritance, for I will not be able to act as next-of-kin."

7 And this was the statute in former times in Israel concerning the right of inheritance and concerning exchange: to confirm every agreement, a man would take off his sandal and give it to his neighbor who was acquiring the right of inheritance. This was an attestation in Israel. 8 And the next-of-kin said to Boos, "Acquire for yourself my right of inheritance," and he took off his sandal and gave it to him. 9 And Boos said to the elders and all the people, "Today you are witnesses that I have acquired everything of Abimelech's and all that belongs to Chelaion and Maalon from the hand of Noemin. 10 I have also acquired Routh the Moabite, the wife of Maalon, for myself as a wife, to raise up the name of the deceased on his inheritance, and the name of the deceased shall not be extirpated from his brothers and from the clan of his people. Today you are witnesses." 11 And all the people who were at the gate said, "We are witnesses." And the elders said, "May the Lord make your wife who is coming into your house like Rachel and like Leia, who built up, both of them, the house of Israel and produced might in Ephratha, and there shall be a name in Baithleem. 12 And, through the offspring that the Lord will give you from this maidservant, may your house be like the house of Phares whom Thamar bore to Iouda."

13 And Boos took Routh, and she became a wife to him. And he went in to her, and the Lord granted her conception, and she bore a son. 14 And the women said to Noemin, "Blessed be the Lord, who did not bring your next-of-kin to an end this day! And may he call your name in Israel! 15 He shall be to you a restorer of life and shall sustain your gray head. For your daughter-in-law, who loves you, who is better to you than seven sons, has borne him." 16 And Noemin took the child and laid him in her bosom and became a nanny to him. 17 The women of the neighborhood gave him a name, saying, "A son has been born to Noemin." They named him Obed. This was the father of Issai, the father of David.

18 And these are the generations of Phares: Phares became the father of Hesron, 19 then Hesron became the father of Arran, and Arran became the father of Aminadab; 20 Aminadab became the father of Naasson; Naasson became the father of Salmon; 21 Salmon became the father of Boos; Boos became the father of Obed; 22 Obed became the father of Issai, and Issai became the father of David.

THE OLD GREEK TEXT OF REIGNS
TO THE READER

Edition of the Greek Text
Since no volume of the Göttingen Septuagint is currently available for the four books of Reigns, the translation throughout is of Alfred Rahlfs, Septuaginta. Id est Vetus Testamentum graece iuxta LXX interpretes 2 vols. (Stuttgart: Württembergische Bibelanstalt, 1935), except in the few places noted. Rahlfs did not include any diacriticals for proper nouns, so the Swete text as reproduced in the Larger Cambridge Septuagint has determined whether names beginning with a vowel or diphthong should be aspirated.

The NETS translation of the OG sections departs from the Rahlfs text in only seven places: 1 Rgns 1.4; 9.24; 13.4; 14.20, 23; 2 Rgns 3.5; 7.21. Versification follows the Rahlfs text, with the numbering of the NRSV noted in parentheses.

Translational Profile of the Greek
In 1907 Henry St. John Thackeray claimed that the Old Greek (OG) translation did not include all of Samuel and Kings.1 To simplify his presentation, he divided the text of the four books of Reigns using the following sigla:

\begin{align*} \alpha &= 1 \text{ Rgn 1–31} \\
\beta \beta &= 2 \text{ Rgn 1.1–11.1} \\
\beta \gamma &= 2 \text{ Rgn 11.2–3 Rgn 2.11} \\
\gamma \gamma &= 3 \text{ Rgn 2.12–21.43} \\
\gamma \delta &= 3 \text{ Rgn 22 + 4 Rgn 1–25} \\
\beta \delta &= \text{the combined passages } \beta \gamma \text{ and } \gamma \delta.
\end{align*}

On the basis of the presence or absence of two syntactical and eight lexicographical features in the earliest and best extant Greek manuscripts for 1–4 Reigns, he claimed that the Old Greek text originally omitted the \( \beta \delta \) portion and that the current text was the work of a later translator. The omissions in \( \beta \gamma \) include the events of the life of David from his initial encounter with Bathsheba to his death, and in \( \gamma \delta \) they extend from the time of Jehoshaphat to the Babylonian exile. Thackeray saw the omissions as prompted by concern over content, what he characterized as “The Decline and Fall of the Monarchy,” and he found ready parallels in the book of 2 Supplements (Chronicles in the MT), which similarly omits the David and Bathsheba story and extended portions of the subsequent events.

In the light of the research of Barthélemy and others, it is now generally accepted that rather than representing a new translation, \( \beta \delta \) is the result of a later revision. Accordingly, the underlying translation has affinities with the OG of the rest of Reigns, but the revisions have distinct differences that set the sections apart from the rest of Reigns. However, those who accept that the text is a revision lack any agreed upon explanation for why only these portions were revised.

In a similar manner NETS assigned the Old Greek sections and the revised sections to two different translators, and while collaboration has been necessary at specific points, for the most part they worked independently, including the writing of the respective introductions. It is significant, then, that when the introductions were brought together in preparation for publication, each translator has characterized the overall Greek translation in similar terms relative to its relationship to the Hebrew Vorlage and the degree of faithfulness.

2 The Greek title is Βασιλείων; 1, 2 Reigns = 1, 2 Samuel; 3, 4 Reigns = 1, 2 Kings.
3 As will be noted in more detail, in section \( \gamma \gamma \) the order of the OG text varies extensively from that of the standard Hebrew Bible, and the text from 2 Kgs 22.41–50 (the beginning of \( \gamma \delta \)) is included within \( \gamma \gamma \) as 3 Rgns 16.28a–h.
THE OLD GREEK TRANSLATION OF REIGNS

The Translation Process

The translation work involved two major iterations and several minor ones. The first major one concentrated on the text of the NRSV. Throughout, the NRSV and NETS were placed in parallel columns, and a synoptic relationship was maintained with the two texts aligned not only by chapter and verse, but by clause, phrase, and even word. Since the NRSV was the basis of the NETS translation, as few changes as necessary were made. However, the second time through careful attention was paid to the Greek text, and all necessary changes were made to ensure that the resultant text was faithful to the OG qua Greek.

The Old Greek Text

While Thackeray gave few specifics, he believed that each of the three OG sections was the work of a different translator. At the same time, they all share common underlying characteristics. The one characteristic he chose to focus on was the frequency of historic presents where past events are described using present tense verbs “as date-registering” and “to introduce new scenes in the drama.” By his count there are 227 examples in the OG sections of Reigns (close to two-thirds of all the examples in the LXX), but only 9 in 188, some of which he considered spurious. In 1 Reigns 17, seven occur in the first three verses: συνάγονται . . . συνήγονται . . . παρεμβάλλονται . . . συνάγονται . . . παρατάσσονται . . . έσταται. In accord with standard translation methods, this construction is not represented in NETS.

In terms of the traditional criteria, the translation is literal, though generally not slavishly so in the style of Aquila, and more specifically, overall it is isomorphic. However, the insistence on representing in Greek all of the frequent, redundant nominative personal pronouns in imitation of the Hebrew Vorlage would have sounded strange to the native Greek speaker. While Greek does at times use such a pronoun for emphasis, it is clear that this is not what prompts the translator but rather the presence of the corresponding pronoun in the Hebrew. It is as if the guiding principle was: leave no element untranslated.

Because of the close adherence to the Hebrew word order, the initial impression is that this is semiлизized Greek, and it is true that at the level of idiomatic numerous Hebrew expressions found their way into Greek and would have sounded strange to the reader. Yet at the same time, word order aside, with few exceptions, the grammar and syntax is that of koine Greek. In contradistinction to Hebrew (and Latin), Greek has in addition to the active voice and the passive voice, the middle voice where the subject of the verb is both the doer and the receiver of the action. Some Greek verbs only occur in the middle voice, while others are regularly middle in one tense and active in another. A study of all of the middle voices in 1 Reigns established that the presence of middle voice forms was not due to Semitic interference from the Hebrew text, but rather the Greek syntax follows normal Greek usage.

While the translation in general is adequate, at times it is so literal that even though the Greek matches the Hebrew word for word, the resultant translation says something significantly different. At the word level, הָרִיך “horn,” בָּשׂ “hand,” and הַבַּי “house” are translated respectively κέρας, χείρ, and οἶκος with the same basic meanings. This is not a problem so long as the semantic fields do not move outside of their standard denotations. However, on the Hebrew side, וָנֶל (1 Sam 2.1.10) and וָנֶל (2 Sam 8.3) connote “strength,” “power,” and in addition, וָנֶל (1 Sam 15.12) while הַבַּי (1 Sam 1.21) connotes “family,” “household,” none of which find any correspondence on the Greek side. In spite of this, with no regard for the context, the translator maintains the standard associations. Similarly, where the homophone ב “I pray” occurs, it is translated εὐεμί “in/by me” with no regard for context, as if it were the inseparable preposition ב with pronominal suffix.

At the level of phrase, a typical example is found at 1 Sam 9.21. The MT reads: דַּלּוּא הֵבִית יִבְנֵי נֵטִים (NRSV “I am only a Benjaminite”), for which the OG has: Οὐχὶ ὁ ἄνδρος ὁ Ἰσραήλιτης ἤτοι ἐμί “Am I not son of a leminite man?” In contrast, in the same verse, נַפְלְטֵים (NRSV “the tribes of Benjamin”) is translated/transliterated σκιπτρον βενιαμίν (‘scepter of Benjamin’). This atomistic approach to the text where it is translated word for word with no regard for either sense or overall meaning occurs often. Since the two languages belong to different language groups, the syntax of each does not correspond at every point, so close correspondence of the Greek to the Hebrew at times results in infelicitous Greek. The last part of 2 Reigns 2.23 reads καὶ εἴγεντο πᾶς ὁ ἐρχόμενος ἐως τοῦ τόπου, οὗ ἐπέσεν ἐκεί

5 Thackeray, Septuagint, 20.
One of the features of the OG is the frequent use of transliterations, though at times in unpredictable ways, since in the same context a word can be both translated and transliterated. In 1 Reigns 5, Ἄσας is first transliterated ὠμας in v. 4, and then translated βσιμίς in v. 5. In all, there are 25 transliterations of common nouns in the OG sections, but with none found in section ββ. Since most of the Hebrew proper nouns have no counterparts in Greek, the translator has simply transliterated. For the most part these are consistent across all three sections, though some variation occurs, such as the dual spelling Σηλω/Σηλω. Where the resulting transliteration has an existing Greek counterpart, such as Αὐσα, it will sometimes decline as if it were a Greek noun. This is not always obvious in the Rahlfis text, since it does not include diacriticals for proper nouns (e.g., 1 Rgns 1.2 καὶ τῇ Αὐσα). Similarly, proper nouns with an existing Greek form, such as Αἴγυπτος ("Egypt"), are used to translate the Hebrew counterpart (in this case, אָירֵי). At the same time, Ἰερουσαλήμ ("Jerusalem") is always transliterated ἱεροσόλυμα in the OG of Reigns, since it is the only form found in the Greek translations of the Hebrew Bible. It is not until the Apocrypha that the declinable form ἱεροσόλυμα (Hierosolyma), also found in the Greek New Testament, appears.

Two transcriptions are worthy of closer attention. First is Γνωσίς, as in the title Γνωσίζων ἡμῖν "Lord of hosts," found first in the Hebrew Bible at 1 Sam 1.3. In 1 Reigns, Γνωσίς is transliterated σοβσωθ ("sabaoth," 1.2, 11; 15.2; 17.45; in 4.4 the OG has no counterpart in MT). In section ββ of 2 Reigns the translation is either παντοκράτωρ ("Almighty," 5.10; 7.8, 25 [not in MT]; 19.10, 15) or δύναμις ("host," 6.2, 18). The γγ section of 3 Reigns again has a translation, either as παντοκράτωρ ("Almighty," 19.10, 14) or δύναμις ("host," 17.1 [not in MT]; 18.15), but it does not have a transliteration.

The second example is the consistent translation of Ἐφεσσες "Philistine" as Ἱὸ/Ιοὶ ἀλλόφυλος/-οι "al-lophele(s)," first seen in the book of Judges (3.3, 31; for a total of 20x), rather than the transliteration φιλιστῆμι ("Philistim") found already in Genesis (8x), Exodus (2x), Iesous (Joshua) (1x), Judges (6x) and Sirach (3x).

Overall, with the strong Semitic flavor so pervasive, this is non-literary Greek. For instance, the particle μεν only occurs once in the OG sections (1 Rgns 20.14), and then without a corresponding δε; and δε is found 14 times, in stark contrast to the books of Genesis with 855 instances and Exodus with 402 occurrences. Further, with close imitation of the Hebrew parataxis being the norm, the standard Greek hypotaxis is largely eschewed. In line with the LXX text in general, neologisms are found in the OG sections, though only four are unique to these sections: ἐπεκρόσις (1 Rgns 15.22), αὐλάρχης (2 Rgns 8.18) ἀπελεκτρος (3 Rgns 6.1a, 36, 48, 49; 10.11, 12 [2x]), κοιλοσταθμε (3 Rgns 6.9), δικτύωσαι (3 Rgns 7.6), ὀλυρίτης (3 Rgns 19.6).

It is not uncommon in the recording of a Hebrew oath to leave the apodosis unexpressed, perhaps originally having been signaled by a hand gesture akin to drawing the fingers across one's throat, or something similar. The resulting Greek translation is a solecism (see 1 Rgns 3.14).

In the areas of slavery and children/youth, Greek has a more extensive vocabulary than Hebrew, and while several words are interchanged as virtually synonymous, it was deemed advisable to standardize the translation equivalents to signal word changes for the NETS reader. Perhaps the most jarring is the frequent translation of ῥωμ ("servant/slave") as δούλος/ δουλὴ ("bond slave") (including Hanna, 1 Rgns 1.10), but the Greek is unequivocal. While παις is "boy," it is often found in the context of slavery and is there translated "servant." As far as youth and children are concerned, the following standard equivalents have been adopted: παιδίου "boy, child," παιδάριον "boy, lad," τέκνον "child," νεανίας "young man," νεανίσκος "youth, young man."

In line with the NRSV translation, gender inclusive language has been adopted where the Greek text supports it. However, where the OG translation uses gender specific terms such as ἄνδρα "man," γυνῆ "woman" rather than the generic ἄνθρωπος "human" (whether male or female), the NETS translation reflects this. However, there is also fluidity in the usage of the terms as seen in the story of the Lemite who... brought news of the capture of the ark of the Lord in 1 Rgns 4. He is variously designated as ἄνηρ (v. 12), ἀνθρωπός (vv. 13, 14), ἄνηρ (v. 16), παιδόρων (v. 17).

In addition to the above, some words or phrases are used relatively frequently in these OG sections, significantly more frequently than elsewhere in the rest of the LXX. Of the 661 times that the preposition ἐνώπιον (“before”) occurs overall, 138 (21%) are in these sections, and 66 are found in 1 Rgns, the most of any book, LXX or Greek New Testament (the most in the latter is Revelation at 35x). In contrast it occurs only 5x in Genesis and 43x in the Pentateuch as a whole.

For the most part the stereotypical pairings are to be expected, such as κιβωτός (“ark”), εὐλογεῖσέν (“to bless”), and δόξα (“glory”). At one level the association of ἐκκλησία (“assembly, congregation”) and μαρτυρίαν (“witness, testimony”) is to be expected, since it is found in earlier books, however not when the former means “appointed time,” but once the connection was made, it is used in the OG regardless of context.

1 Reigns
This is the longest of the three OG sections, and it sets the stage. In relation to the MT, the following verses are not included: 13.1; 17.12–31, 41, 50, 55–58; 18.1–5, 10–11, 17–19; 23.12. The most significant is the shorter version of events surrounding the David and Goliath story in chapters 17–18.

While the Hebrew text underlying the OG is not identical to the MT, it nevertheless is quite close, and comparison to the latter proved helpful in understanding the Greek text. The Hebrew of 1 Samuel has suffered in transmission, though this is not readily apparent simply by reading the text. Rather it is evident when compared to the OG and the Qumran Samuel manuscripts. Note the following example:

NETS 1 Rgns 14.41 And Saoul said, “O Lord God of Israel, why is it that you have not answered your slave today? If this guilt is in me or in my son Jonathan, O Lord God of Israel, give ‘clear ones,’ and if this is what you say, ‘In your people Israel,’ give, now, holiness.” And Jonathan and Saoul were indicated by the lot, and the people were cleared.

NRSV 1 Sam 14.41 Then Saul prayed to the LORD, the God of Israel, “Give me the right answer.” And Jonathan and Saul were taken by lot, and the men were cleared.

NIV 1 Sam 14.41 Then Saul prayed to the LORD, the God of Israel, “Give me the right answer.” And Jonathan and Saul were taken by lot, and the men were cleared.

The NRSV reflects the longer OG translation, as can be seen when compared to the NIV translation of the MT. However, the NRSV translators have done more than this. Consciously or unconsciously, they translate δοσίς δήλους “give manifestations” back into Hebrew as קבֶּרֶן קְבֶרֶן, and then translate as “give Thummim.”

2 Reigns
While the overall characteristics of the text in section ββ are the same as those found in 1 Reigns, there are nevertheless some 7 differences beyond Thackeray’s observations. Already noted is the preference for translating rather than transliterating ἀνάβασις (“hosts”) and the absence of transliteration of common nouns, although only two of the lexemes transliterated in the other OG sections are found here: ὕππος (“raid”) translated ἔξοδος (“raid”) in 3.22 and συστρεμμάτων (“bands”) in 4.2; and ἔφοδος (“ephod”) translated στολή (“garment”) in 6.14.

Third, it is surprising to find the expression καὶ γε intruding into this section at 2.6, 7. However, the manuscript evidence makes clear that these two readings are found in the earliest and best witnesses, rather than being later glosses.

Fourth, at 2.13 the expression ἐπὶ τοῦ συντό (“at the same place”) translating ἔπειτα 9 occurs for the first of the two times in Reigns OG, the other being in 10.15 (ἔπειτα). Elsewhere in the OG sections the translation appearing first in Deut 12.15 (κατὰ τὸ συντό “according to this”) is found (1 Rgns 11.11; 30.24; 31.6; 2 Rgns 16.10 and 3 Rgns 3.18). 10 9 In 1 Rgns 30.8, 15, 23 it is transliterated as γεδώρων.

10 Not translated in NRSV.
11 In the Pentateuch and elsewhere the translation is frequently ἔτος.
Fifth, at 7.3 the verb βαδίζω translates ἄφα (both: “walk,” “go”). This is the only time this verb occurs in the OG of Reigns, and as close as two verses later the expected πορεύομαι translates ἄφα.

Next, at 8.7, rather than the expected Σολομών used everywhere else in Reigns, including the very next verse (and the rest of the LXX), the declinable form Σολομών occurs. The latter is the only form found in the NT (Matt, Luke-Acts, John).

Seventh, at 10.2 ὅν τρόπον (“just as”) translates ἕνα (“as”). This is the default (but not the only) translation in the Pentateuch, Joshua and Judges. However, though ἕνα occurs 20 times in 1 Reigns, ὅν τρόπον is not used. Instead a variety of other words with the same basic meaning are used (ὁς, καθὼς, ὡς, καθότι, διότι). Thus in 2 Reigns there is a measure of selectivity.

Taken individually, some of these examples might be easily dismissed, but taken together they indicate either the influence of one or more hands or a change in editorial approach.

3 Reigns

Unlike any of the other sections, 3 contains both additions not found in any extant Hebrew text and extensively rearranged text from within the section, and these Miscellanies are its most striking characteristic. Whole chapters are in different order. Sections are included more than once, some drawn from Supplements (MT Chronicles), while others have no known counterpart in the Hebrew Bible or the LXX. The sections are: 2.35a–n, 46a–l; 5.14a,b; 6.1a–d; 6.36a; 9.9a; 10.22a–c; 12.24a–z; 16.28a–h; also, chapters 20 and 21 are in reverse order, and 22.41–50, from the beginning of section γδ, are included in this section at 16.28a–h. Where the source of the transposed text is known, the reference is given in parentheses. In many instances only parts of verses are included, and the material quoted might not be as extensive as would otherwise appear, since the end of known passages is not indicated within any particular “verse.”

The additions to 12.24 are the longest interpolation. They include 14.1–20, which is not found in loco and is not found in chapter 12 in MT order. Further, the additions include a duplication of the verses from the beginning of chapter 12 already included ahead of the addition. They serve to rehearse the events surrounding the death of Salomon, the reign of Roboam, and the rise of Ieroboam and concomitant revolt of Israel. However, all this had already been covered in chapters 11 and 12. The additions constitute a distinct recension and give at once evidence of an underlying Hebrew original, but an agenda different from that of the MT. To date, no a priori grounds have been established as a basis for preferring one recension over the other in toto.

Naturally this phenomenon has been the subject of discussion and debate, but there is no agreed accounting for it.

Bibilographical Note

The translation process was enhanced by various resources. The time-honored translations by Thomson and Brenton sometimes provided a starting point for a difficult verse but also proved to have been overly influenced by the Hebrew text (and possibly English translations of the same) at just such points. Tov’s Hebrew-Greek parallel text has been invaluable, initially as worksheets where all the preliminary translation work was done. The integration of Tov’s text into BibleWorks 7 facilitated preparation of this Introduction. Along the same line, the availability of a hyperlinked version of the LSJ lexicon within Logos Bible software made lexical work a pleasure. Though regrettably not complete at this time, MSL 2002 contains a wealth of important information that has guided the translation at key points.

Beyond the physical resources, my weekly adult Bible class proved invaluable. Since they knew neither Greek nor Hebrew, their focus was thereby on the NETS translation itself, and their observations helped shape English expression.

Finally, my profound thanks to Albert Pietersma. I have been privileged to work with him from the outset of the project, beginning with the NETS Translation Committee, and then throughout my translation work. His vision for the completed project provided guidance along the way and encouragement to persist. While his acumen enriched at many places, it is nowhere more evident than in the translation of 3 Reigns 7.

12 It occurs 4x in the βγ section of 2 Reigns (14.8; 15.9; 18.21, 24.1). Thus the use of this verb and the occurrence of καί γε suggest a possible link to the following section and its translator.

1 There was a man of Harmathaim Sipha from the hill country of Ephraim, and his name was Elkana son of Iereemel son of Eliou son of Thoke, in Nasib Ephraim. 2 And he had two wives; the name of the one was Hanna, and the name of the second Phennana. And Phennana had children, and Hanna had no child.

3 And the man used to go up from days to days from his town, from Harmathaim, to do obeisance and to sacrifice to the Lord God Sabaoth at Selom, and there Eli and his two sons, Hopnhi and Phinees, were priests of the Lord. 4 And it happened on a day and Elkana sacrificed and gave portions to his wife Phennana and to her sons, 5 and to Hanna he gave one portion, because she did not have a child; however, Elkana loved Hanna more than this one, and the Lord had closed the area of her womb. 6 Since the Lord did not give her a child according to her affliction and according to the despondency of her affliction, she was also becoming despondent because of this, that the Lord had closed the area of her womb. 7 Thus she used to do year by year, when she would go up to the house of the Lord, and she would be despondent and would weep and not eat. 8 And her husband Elkana said to her, "Hanna," and she said to him, "Here I am, sir." And he said to her, "How is it that you are weeping? And why do you not eat? And why does your heart smite you? Am I not good to you beyond ten children?"

9 And after they had eaten at Selom, Hanna rose and stood before the Lord, and Eli the priest was standing in the porch before the Lord. 10 And she was deeply distressed and stood before the Lord, and Eli the priest was standing in the porch before the Lord. 11 And she said, "No, sir; I am a woman for whom this is a hard thing. I am pouring out my soul before the Lord; 12 do not despise your handmaid, because I have not drunk wine and strong drink, and I have not eaten anything that has gone up from adays to days to the Lord, and he brought the boy before the Lord and presented him, 13 and gave vows and all the tithes of his land, 14 and the name of the one was Hanna, and the name of the second Phennana. 15 And the boy grew, and the Lord blessed Hanna, and she had sons.

16 And they rose early in the morning and did obeisance to the Lord and went their way. And Elkana entered into his house at Harmathaim, and he knew his wife Hanna, and the Lord remembered her, 17 and she conceived. And it happened at the season of days that she bore a son, and she called his name Samouel, and she said, "Because I have requested him of the Lord God Sabaoth."

18 And the man Elkana and all his household went up to offer in Selom the sacrifice of the days and his vows and all the tithes of his land, 22 and Hanna did not go up with him, for she said to her husband, "Until the boy goes up if I shall wean it, and it will appear to the face of the Lord and stay there forever." 23 And her husband Elkana said to her, "Do what is good in your sight; stay until you have weaned him; only may the Lord establish that which goes out of your mouth." And the woman remained and nursed her son until she weaned him.

24 And she went up with him to Selom with a three-year-old bull calf and bread and an ephah of flour, and she entered into the house of the Lord at Selom, and the boy was with them. 25 And they brought him before the Lord, and his father slaughtered the sacrifice that he used to do from days to days to the Lord, and he brought the boy near and slaughtered the bull calf. And Hanna, the mother of the child, brought it to Eli 26 and said, "By me, sir! Your soul lives, I am the woman who stood before you when praying to the Lord; 27 for this boy I prayed, and the Lord has granted me my request that I requested of him. 28 And I lend him to the Lord as long as he lives, a loan to the Lord."

2 And she said, "My heart was made firm in the Lord; my mouth was exalted in my god; my mouth was made wide against enemies; I was glad in your deliverance, because there is none holy like the Lord, and there is none righteous like our God; there is none holy besides you.

3 "Boast not, and speak not lofty things; let not big talking come forth from your mouth, because the Lord is a god of knowledge, and a god who prepares his own ways. The bow of the mighty has become weak, and weak ones have girded themselves with might; full of bread they suffered loss, and the hungry have forsaken the land, because a barren one has borne seven, and she who is rich in children became weak.

4 The Lord puts to death and brings to life;
he brings down to Hades and brings up.

The Lord makes poor and makes rich; he brings low, and he raises on high.

He raises up the needy from the ground and lifts the poor from the dunghill, to make them sit with the mighty of the peoples, even making them inherit a throne of glory.

"Granting the prayer to the one who prays, he has even blessed the years of the righteous, because not by strength is a man mighty.

The Lord will make his adversary weak; the Lord is holy. Let not the clever boast in his cleverness, and let not the mighty boast in his might, and let not the wealthy boast in his wealth, but let him who boasts boast in this: to understand and know the Lord and to execute justice and righteousness in the midst of the land.

The Lord ascended to the heavens and thundered. He will judge earth’s ends and gives strength to our kings and will exalt the horn of his anointed."

And they left him there before the Lord and departed to Har-mathaim, and the lad was ministering to the face of the Lord, before Eli the priest.

And the sons of Eli the priest were pestilent sons not knowing the Lord, and what was due to the priest from the people, when any was sacrificing, and the priest’s servant would come, while the meat boiled, and a three-pronged meat hook in his hand, and he thrust it into the great cauldron or into the kettle or into the pot; all that came up on the meat hook the priest would take for himself.

Like this they would do to all Israel who came to sacrifice to the Lord at Shiloh. And before the fat was burned, the priest’s servant would come and say to the man who was sacrificing, "Give meat for the priest to roast, and I will not accept from you boiled meat out of the cauldron." And the man who was sacrificing would say, "Let the fat be burned first as is proper, and take for yourself of all that your soul desires." And he said, "No, because you shall give it now, otherwise I will take it by force." And the sin of the boys before the Lord was very great, for they set at naught the offering of the Lord.

The Lord ascended to the heavens and thundered. He will judge earth’s ends and gives strength to our kings and will exalt the horn of his anointed."

And Samouel was ministering before the Lord, a boy wearing an ephoudbarr and his mother made for him a small ebdouble cloakf and would bring it up to him from days to days when she would go up with her husband to offer the sacrificef of the daysg. And Eli blessed Elkanah and his wife, saying, "May the Lord repay you with offspring by this woman in return for the loan that you made to the Lord." And the man returned to his place.

And the Lord took note of Hanna, and she bore further, three sons and two daughters. And the boy Samouel became great before the Lord.

And Eli was a very old man, and he heard what his sons were doing to the sons of Israel, and he said to them, "Why do you do according to this thing which I hear from the mouth of all the people of the Lord? No, children, for the report which I hear is not good; do not behave in this way. For the reports that I hear are not good so that people are not subject to God. If in sinning a man sins against a man, and they shall pray for him to the Lord, and if he sins against the Lord, who shall pray for him?" And they would not listen to the voice of their father, for the Lord willfully willed to destroy them.

And the boy Samouel kept going and became great and was in favor both with the Lord and with people.

And a man of God came to Eli and said, "This is what the Lord says, ‘When I revealed myself to your father's house when they were in Egypt, slaves to the house of Pharao, and I chose the house of your father out of all the scepters of Israel, to serve me as priests and to go up on my altar and to offer incense and to bear an ephod, and I gave to the house of your father all the things of the fire of the sons of Israel for food, and why did you look with greedy eye at my incense and my sacrifice and honored your sons above me, to bless themselves with the first fruit of every offering of Israel before me?’ Therefore this is what the Lord the God of Israel has said: ‘I said: Your family and your ancestral family shall go in and out before me forever, but now, says the Lord: ‘Far be it from me, for I will only honor those who honor me, and he who despises me shall be treated with contempt. Behold, days are coming, and I will destroy your offspring and the offspring of your father’s house, and no elderly of yours will be in your house all the days, and a man I will not destroy for you from my altar so that his eyes may fail and his soul may ebb away, but every one that remains of your house—they will fall by the sword of men. And this is the sign for you that will come upon these two sons of yours, Hophni and Phinees; both shall die on one day. And I will raise up for myself a faithful priest, who shall do all that is in my heart and that is in my soul, and I will build him a sure house, and he shall go about before my anointed one all the days. And it shall be; he who is left in your house shall come to do obeisance to him for a silver obolh, saying, Put me down in one of your priestly places to eat bread.’

And the boy Samouel was ministering before the Lord before Eli the priest, and a word of the Lord was preciousi in those days; there was no distinguishing vision.

2 And it happened in that day that Eli was lying down in his place, and his eyes began to be heavy, and he could not see, and it was before the lamp of God was replenished, and Samouel was lying down in the shrine, where the ark of God was. 3And the Lord called, "Samouel! Samouel!" And he said, "Here I am!" 4And ran to Eli and said, "Here I am, for you have called me," and he said, "I have not called you; return, lie down." And he returned and lay down. 5And the Lord continued and called, "Samouel! Samouel!" and he went to Eli the second time and said, "Here I am, for you have called me," and he said, "I have not called you; return, lie down." 6And it was before Samouel knew God and a word of the Lord had been revealed to him. 7And the Lord continued to call Samouel a third time, and he got up and went to Eli and said, "Here I am, for you have called me." And Eli learned that the Lord had called the boy, 8and he said, "Return, lie down, my child, and it shall be that if he calls you, then you shall say, 'Speak, Lord, for your slave is listening.'" And Samouel went and lay down in his place.

10 And the Lord came and stood and called him. 11And the Lord said to Samouel, "Behold, I carry out my words in Israel so that both ears of everyone that hears will tingle. 12On that day I will raise up against Eli all that I have spoken concerning his house; I will begin, and I will finish. 13And I have told him that I am about to punish his house forever, for the iniquities of his sons, because his sons were reviling God, and even so he would not admonish them. 14I have sworn to the house of Eli, 'If the iniquity of Eli's house shall not be expiated by incense or sacrifice forever . . . ' " And Samouel went and lay down in his place.

15 And Samouel lay there until morning, and he arose early in the morning and opened the doors of the house of the Lord, and Samouel was afraid to tell the vision to Eli. 16And Eli said to Samouel, "Samouel, my child," and he said, "Here I am." 17And he said, "What was the word that was told you? Nay, do not hide it from me; may God do thus to you and thus add, if you hide anything from me of all the words spoken to you in your ears." 18And Samouel reported all the words and hid not from him, and Eli said, "He is the Lord; he will do what is good before him."

19 And Samouel became great, and the Lord was with him, and none of his words fell to the ground. 20And all Israel from Dan and as far as Bersabee knew that Samouel was faithful to the Lord as a prophet. 21And the Lord continued to appear at Selom, for the Lord had revealed himself to Samouel, and from one end of the land and as far as the other, Samouel was believed to be a prophet of the Lord to all Israel. And Eli was a very old man, and his sons kept advancing, and their way was evil before the Lord.

4 And it happened in those days that the allophyles mustered for war against Israel, and Israel went out to meet them for war, and they encamped at Abenezar, and the allophyles encamped at Aphek. 2And the allophyles prepared for war against Israel, and the battle turned and a man of Israel fell before the allophyles, and four thousand men were smitten on the field in the battle. 3And the people came to the camp, and the elders of Israel said, "Why has the Lord caused us to fall today before allophyles? Let us take the ark of our God from Selom, and let it go out in our midst, and it will save us out of the hand of our enemies." 4And the people sent to Selom and brought from there the ark of the Lord who is seated on the cheroubins, and both sons of Eli, Hophni and Phineees, were with the ark.

5 And it happened, when the ark of the Lord came into the camp, all Israel gave a mighty shout, and the earth resounded. 6And the allophyles heard the shouting, and the allophyles said, "What is this great shouting in the camp of the Hebrews?" And they learned that the ark of the Lord had come into the camp. 7And the allophyles were afraid and said, "These are the gods that have come to them into the camp; woe to us, O Lord! Deliver us today, for nothing like this has happened yesterday or the third day. 8Woe to us! Who will deliver us out of the hand of these sturdy gods? These are the gods who struck Egypt with every plague, and in the wilderness. 9Strengthen yourselves and be men, O allophyles, lest you become subject to the Hebrews as they have been subject to us, and be men and fight them."

10 And they fought them, and a man of Israel fell, and they fled each to his covert, and there was very great distress, and there fell of Israel thirty thousand from the units. 11And the ark of God was captured, and both sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinees, died. 12And a man, a leeminee, ran from the battle line and came to Selom on that day, and his clothes were torn, and earth was upon his head. 13And he arrived, and behold, Eli was sitting upon the seat by the gate watching the road, for his heart was straitened for the ark of God, and the man came into the city to report the news, and the city cried out. 14And Eli heard the sound of the cry and said, "What is the cry of this sound? And the man, hurrying, entered in and told Eli. 15And Eli was a son of ninety years, and his eyes were set, and he could not see, and Eli said to the men standing about him, "What is the sound of this noise?"

16 And hurrying the man came to Eli and said to him, "I am the one who has come from the camp, and I have fled from the battle today." And he said, "What has happened, child?" 17And the lad answered and said, "A man of Israel has fled before the allophyles, and there has also been a great slaughter among the people, and both your sons are dead, and the ark of God has been captured." 18And it happened, when he mentioned the ark of God, he fell over backward from the seat near the gate, and his back was broken, and he died, for the man was old and heavy, and he had judged Israel twenty years.

19 And his daughter-in-law, the wife of Phinees, was pregnant to give birth, and she heard the news that the ark of God was captured and that her father-in-law and her husband were dead, and she crouched down and gave birth, for her labor pains came upon her. 20And as she was about to die, the women attending her said to her, “Do not be afraid, for you have borne a son,” and she did not answer, and her heart did not give heed. 21And she named the boy Woe Barchaboth, because of the ark of God and because of her father-in-law and because of her husband. 22And they said, “The glory of Israel has been exiled, in that the ark of the Lord has been taken.”

5 And the allophyles took the ark of God and brought it from Abennezer to Azotus. 2And the allophyles took the ark of the Lord and brought it into the house of Dagon and placed it beside Dagon. 3And the Azotians rose early and entered into the house of Dagon and looked and beheld, Dagon fallen on his face before the ark of God. And they raised up Dagon and put him back in his place. And the hand of the Lord was heavy on the Azotians, and he plagued them and afflicted them on their seats, Azotus and its borders.

4 And it happened, when they rose early on the next morning, that, behold, Dagon fallen on his face before the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and the head of Dagon and both soles of his hands cut off, each on the front parts of amaphetha, and both wrists of his hands fallen in the doorway; only the spine of Dagon was left. 5This is why the priests of Dagon and anyone who enters the house of Dagon do not step on the step of the house of Dagon and look and beheld, Dagon fallen on his face before the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and it will propitiate for you, lest his hand not withdraw from you.” 6And they said, “What is that something of the torment that we should render for it?” And they said, “Five gold pieces, according to the number of the satraps of the allophyles, because you and your rulers and the people have one offense, and a gold mouse a likeness of your mice that ravage the land, and you shall give glory to the Lord, that he might lighten his hand from off you and from off your gods and from off your land. 6And why should you make your hearts heavy, as Egypt and Pharao made their heart heavy? Was it not so when he mocked them, they sent them off, and they departed? 7And now take, and make a new cart, and take two cows without their young that have calved for the first time, and yoke the cows to the cart, but take the young that have calved for the first time, and place it on the cart and render for it the implements of gold for the torment, and you shall put bersechthanc as a deposit at its side, and you shall send it off and drive it away, and it will go its way, and you shall watch, if it goes on the way to its own borders by Baithsamys, he has done us this great harm, and if not, then we shall know that his hand has not struck us, but this is a chance that has happened to us.”

10 And the allophyles did so and took two cows that had calved for the first time and yoked them to the cart and kept back their young at home, 11and they put the ark on the cart and the deposit as ergab and the gold mice. 12And the cows went straight on the way to the way of Baithsamys; they kept going on one path and kept toiling and did not turn aside to the right or the left, and the satraps of the allophyles kept going behind it as far as the borders of Baithsamys.

13 And the people of Baithsamys were reaping the wheat harvest in the valley, and they lifted up their eyes and saw the ark of the Lord and rejoiced to meet it. 14And the cart came into the field of Hosee which was in Baithsamys, and they set up there beside it a great stone, and they split up the satraps of the allophyles and said, “Send away the ark of God of Israel, and let it lodge in its own place, and it shall not put us and our people to death”; for there was a very heavy confusion of death in the whole city when the ark of God of Israel entered there, and those who lived and did not die were stricken on the seats, and the cry of the city went up to the sky.

6 And the ark was in the country of the allophyles seven months, and their land broke out in mice. 2And the allophyles called for the priests and the diviners and their enchanters, saying, “What should we do with the ark of the Lord? Tell us in what we should send it to its place.” 3And they said, “If you are sending away the ark of the covenant of the Lord, God of Israel, on no account send it away empty, but in giving it back give back for it something of the torment, and then you will be healed, and it will prophesying for you, lest his hand not withdraw from you.” 4And they said, “What is that something of the torment that we should render for it?” And they said, “Five gold pieces, according to the number of the satraps of the allophyles, because you and your rulers and the people have one offense, and a gold mouse a likeness of your mice that ravage the land, and you shall give glory to the Lord, that he might lighten his hand from off you and from off your gods and from off your land. 6And why should you make your hearts heavy, as Egypt and Pharao made their heart heavy? and the hand of the Lord was heavy upon Azotus and brought trouble on them, and it broke out upon them into the ships, and in the midst of its territory mice grew up, and there was great confusion of death in the city. 7And the men of Azotus saw that it was so, and they said, “The ark of the God of Israel has been exiled, in that the ark of the Lord has been taken.” 8And they sent and gathered together the satraps of the allophyles and said, “Send away the ark of God of Israel, and let it lodge in its own place, and it shall not put us and our people to death”; for there was a very heavy confusion of death in the whole city when the ark of God of Israel entered there, and those who lived and did not die were stricken on the seats, and the cry of the city went up to the sky.

wood of the cart and offered the cows as a whole burnt offering to the Lord. 15 And the Leuites brought up the ark of the Lord and the deposit, the erga with it, and the gold implements that were with it, and set them upon the large stone, and the men of Baithsamys offered whole burnt offerings and sacrifices in that day to the Lord. 16 And the five satraps of the allophyles were watching, and they returned on that day to Ascalon.

17 And these are the gold seats which the allophyles returned to the Lord for the torment: one for Azotus, one for Gaza, one for Ascalon, one for Gath, one for Akkaron—and the gold mice according to the number of all the cities of the allophyles, of the five satraps, from fortified city and as far as the village of the Pherezite and to the great stone on which they set down the ark of the covenant of the Lord, in the field of Hose the Baith-samsyte.

18 And the sons of Iechonias were not pleased with the men of Baithsamys, because they saw the ark of the Lord, and he smote among them seventy men and fifty thousand men. And the people mourned because the Lord had inflicted on the Israelites this great plague. 19 And the men who were from Baithsamys said, “Who shall be able to pass before this holy Lord? And to whom shall the ark of the Lord go up from us?” 20 And they sent messengers to the inhabitants of Kariathaim, saying, “The allophyles returned the ark of the Lord; come down, and take it up to yourselves.”

7 And the men of Kariathaim came and brought up the ark of the covenant of the Lord and brought it in to the house of Aminadab, which was on the hill, and they consecrated his son, Eleazar, to have charge of the ark of the covenant of the Lord.

2 And it happened, from the day the ark was at Kariathaim, that the days multiplied, and it was twenty years, and all the house of Israel looked back after the Lord.

3 And Samouel said to all the house of Israel, saying, “If you are returning to the Lord with all your heart, take away the foreign gods and the groves from among you, and prepare your hearts towards the Lord, and be subject to him alone, and he will deliver you out of the hand of allophyles.” 4 And the sons of Israel took away the Baalim and the groves of Astaroth and were subject to the Lord alone.

5 And Samouel said, “Gather all Israel at Massephath, and I will pray to the Lord for you.” 6 And they were brought together at Massephath, and they drew water and poured it out on the ground before the Lord, and they fasted in that day and said, “We have sinned before the Lord.” And Samouel was judging the sons of Israel at Massephath.

7 And the allophyles heard that all the sons of Israel had been gathered together at Massephath, and the satraps of the allophyles went up against Israel, and the sons of Israel heard and were afraid from before the allophyles. 8 And the sons of Israel said to Samouel, “Do not omit mention of us so as not to cry to the Lord, your God, and he will save us out of the hand of the allophyles.” 9 And Samouel took one sucking lamb and offered it with all the people as a whole burnt offering to the Lord, and Samouel cried out to the Lord for Israel, and the Lord heard him. 10 And Samouel was offering up the whole burnt offering, and the allophyles drew near for war against Israel. And the Lord thunders with a mighty voice in that day against the allophyles, and they were thrown into confusion and fell before Israel. 11 And the men of Israel went out of Massephath and pursued the allophyles and struck them down as far as under Baithchor.

12 And Samouel took one stone and set it up between Massephath and between the old city and called its name Abenezer, Stone of the Helper, and he said, “Thus far the Lord has helped us.” 13 And the Lord humbled the allophyles, and they did not add again to enter into the territory of Israel, and the hand of the Lord was against the allophyles all the days of Samouel. 14 And the towns that the allophyles took from the sons of Israel were restored, and they restored them to Israel from Ascalon to Azob, and Israel recovered the territory from the hand of the allophyles. And there was peace between Israel and between the Amorrite.

15 And Samouel was judging Israel all the days of his life, and he went and made the rounds year by year to Baithel and Galgala and Massipherath and was judging Israel in all these consecrated places. 16 But his return was to Harmathaim, for his home was there, and he was judging Israel there, and he built there an altar to the Lord.

8 And it happened, when Samouel became old, that he appointed his sons judges over Israel. And these are the names of his sons; the firstborn Ioel, and the name of the second, Abia, judges in Bersabee. 3 And his sons did not go in his way and turned aside after completion and were taking bribes and perverting statutes.

4 And the men of Israel gathered together and came to Harmathaim to Samouel and said to him, “You are old, and your sons do not go in your way, and now appoint over us a king to judge us just like the rest of the nations.” 6 And the message was evil in the eyes of Samouel when they said, “Give us a king to judge us,” and Samouel prayed to the Lord. 7 And the Lord said to Samouel, “Listen to the voice of the people in whatever they say to you, for they have not rejected you, but they have rejected me from being king over them. 8 According to all the deeds that they did to me from the day I brought them up out of Egypt to this day, and they forsook me and were subject to other gods, so also they are doing to you. 9 And now listen to their voice; only, when testifying, you shall testify to them and tell them the just claim of the king which shall reign over them.”

And Samouel told every word of the Lord to the people who were requesting a king of him. And he said, “This will be the just claim of the king who will reign over you: he will take your sons and put them in his chariots and for his cavalry, and those running before his chariots, and to appoint them for himself officers of thousands and officers of hundreds and to reap his harvest and to gather his vintage and to make his implements of war and the equipment of his chariots, and he will take your daughters for perfumers and for cooks and for bakers, and he will take your fields and your vineyards and your good olive-groves and give to him his eunuchs and his slaves, and he will take your male and female slaves and your good cattle and your donkeys and his slaves, and he will take one-tenth of your grain and of your vineyards and give to his eunuchs and his slaves, and he will take one-tenth of your flocks, and you shall be slaves to him. And in that day you will cry out from before your king whom you chose for yourselves, and the Lord will not hear you in those days, because you chose a king for yourselves.”

And the people did not want to listen to Samouel and said to him, “No! But a king will be chosen a king for yourselves.”

And Samouel heard all the words of the people and spoke them in the ears of the Lord. And the Lord uncovered Samouel’s ear, saying: “Tomorrow the Lord will uncover his ear.” And Samouel said to the people, “Listen to your voice, and appoint for them a king.” And Samouel said to the men of Israel, “Let each return to his town.”

And there was a man of the sons of Benjamin, and his name was Kis son of Abiel son of Sareid son of Bachir son of Aphek son of a Ieminite, a bakers, and he was not among the sons of Israel better than he; above the shoulder and upward he was taller than all the land.

And the donkeys of Kis, Saoul’s father, strayed, and Kis said to his son Saoul, “Take one of the lads with yourself, and arise, and go, and look for the donkeys.” And they passed through the hill country of Ephraim and passed through the land of Selcha and did not find them, and they passed through the land of Easakem, and there was nothing, and they passed through the land of Ishvik and did not find them.

When they came to Siph, then Saoul said to his lad who was with him, “Come, and let us turn back, lest when my father leaves the donkeys he should be anxious about us.” And the lad said to him, “Behold, now a man of God is in this town, and the man is held in honor; anything, whatever he says, when it comes, it will happen, and now let us go, that he might tell us our journey on which we have set out on it.” And Saoul said to his lad who was with him, “And behold, we will go, and what shall we bring the man of God? For the bread in our containers is used up, and there is nothing more that belongs to us to bring to the man of God.” And the lad added to answer Saoul and said, “Behold, a quarter of a shekel of silver is found in my hand, and you will give it to the man of God, and he will tell us our way.” And formerly in Israel everyone when going to inquire of God would say this, “Come, let us go to the seer,” for formerly the people used to call the prophet, “the seer.” And Saoul said to his lad, “The matter is good; come and let us go.” And they went to the town, there where the man of God was.

As they were going up the ascent to the town, then they found the girls when they had come out to draw water and said to them, “Is the seer here?” And the girls answered them and said to them, “He is, behold, ahead of you! He has come because of the day to the town, because the people have a sacrifice today at Bama; as soon as you enter the town, thus you will find him in the town before he goes up to Bama to eat, for the people will not eat until he enters, because he blesses the sacrifice, and after these things the guests eat, and now go up, for because of the day you will find him.” And they went up to the town. As they were entering into the center of the town then, behold, Samouel came to meet them to go up to Bama.

And one day before Saoul came to him, the Lord uncovered Samouel’s ear, saying: “Tomorrow about this time I will send to you a man from the land of Benjamin, and you shall anoint him to be ruler over my people Israel, and he shall save my people from the hand of allophyles; for I have looked upon the humiliation of my people, because their cry has come to me.” And Samouel saw Saoul, and the Lord answered him, “Behold, the man about whom I said to you, ‘This one shall rule among my people.’” And Saoul approached Samouel in the center of the town and said, “Tell, now, which is the house of the seer?” And Samouel answered Saoul and said: “I am he; go up before me to Bama, and eat with me today, and in the morning I will send you off and will tell you all that is in your heart. And as for your donkeys that were lost three days ago, do not set your heart on them, for they have been found, and whose is the beauty of Israel? Is it not yours and your ancestral house?” And Saoul answered and said, “Am I not son of a lemmite man, the small scepter of a tribe of Israel and of the least tribe of the whole scepter of Benjamin? And why did you speak to me according to this word?”

And Saoul took Saoul and his lad and brought them into the lodging place and set a place for them among the first of those who had been invited—about seventy men. And Samouel said to the cook, “Give me the portion that I gave you, the one I told you to put aside.” And the cook had boiled the thigh, and he set it before Saoul, and Samouel said to Saoul, “Behold, that which is left, set it before you, and eat, for it is set before you for a testimony in preference to the others; tear off.” And Saoul ate with Samouel in that day.
he came down from Bama into the town, and they spread a bed for Saoul on the roof, \(^\text{26}\) and he fell asleep. And it happened when dawn arose that Samouel called Saoul on the roof, saying, "Get up, and I will send you on your way," and Saoul got up, and he and Samouel went out, outside.

27 As they were going down to the outskirts of the town, Samouel said to Saoul, "Speak to the young man, and let him go on before us, and as for you, stand as today, and hear a message from God."

10 And Samouel took the flask of oil and poured it on his head and kissed him and said to him, "Has the Lord not anointed you ruler over his people, over Israel? And you shall reign among the people of the Lord, and you will save them from the hand of their enemies all around. And this shall be the sign to you that the Lord anointed you ruler over his heritage: \(^\text{2}^\text{2}\) when you depart from me today, then you will find two men, by Rachel's tomb in the territory of Beniamin, jumping greatly, and they will say to you, 'The donkeys that you went to seek are found, and behold, your father has disposed of the matter of the donkeys and is worrying about you, saying: What shall I do about my son?' \(^\text{3}\) And you shall go on from there further and come to the oak of Thabor and find there three men going up to God at Baithel, one carrying three kids and one carrying three containers of bread and one carrying a skin of wine, \(^\text{4}\) and they will ask you matters of peace and give you two first fruits of bread, and you shall accept from their hand. \(^\text{5}\) And after these things you shall enter into the hill of God, there where is the establishment of the allophyles; there is Nasib the allophyle. And it will be as you enter there into the establishment of the allophyles; there is Nasib the allophyle. And it will be as you enter there into the town, that you will meet a band of prophets coming down from Bama, and before them, a nablab and a drum and a flute and a "kinnor"; and they will be prophesying. \(^\text{6}\) and a spirit of the Lord will spring upon you, and you will prophesy along with them and be turned into another man. \(^\text{7}\) And it will be, when these signs shall come upon you, do all whatever your hand finds to do, for God is with you. \(^\text{8}\) And you shall go down in front of Galgala, and behold, I am coming down to you to offer a whole burnt offering and peace offerings; seven days you shall wait until I come to you and show you what you shall do."

9 And it happened, as he was turned with his shoulder to leave Samouel, God changed for him another heart, and all the signs came in that day. \(^\text{10}\) And he went from there to the hill, and behold, a band of prophets was opposite him, and a divine spirit sprang upon him, and he prophesied in the midst of them. \(^\text{11}\) And all who knew him yesterday and the third day came and saw, and behold, he was in the midst of the prophets, and the people said each to his neighbor, "What is this that has happened to the son of Kis? Is Saoul also among the prophets?" \(^\text{12}\) And one of them answered and said, "And who is his father?" Therefore it became an illustration, "Is Saoul also among the prophets?"

13 And he finished prophesying and went to the hill.

14 And his uncle said to him to his lad, "Where did you go?" And they said, "To seek the donkeys, and we saw that they were not, and we went to Samouel." \(^\text{15}\) And the uncle said to Saoul, "Tell me now what Samouel said to you." \(^\text{16}\) And Saoul said to his uncle, "He told telling me that the donkeys had been found." But of the matter of the kingship he did not tell him.

17 And Samouel summoned all the people to the Lord at Massepha \(^\text{18}\) and said to the sons of Israel, "This is what the Lord the God of Israel said, saying, 'I brought up the sons of Israel out of Egypt and delivered you from the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt and from all the kingdoms that were oppressing you, \(^\text{19}\) and today you have rejected God who is your savior from all your evils and your distresses, and you have said, 'Not! but you shall set a king over us,' and now stand before the Lord by your scepters and by your clans."

20 And Samouel brought all the scepters of Israel near, and the scepter of Benimam was taken by lot, \(^\text{21}\) and he brought the scepter of Benimam near in tribes, and the tribe of Mattari was taken by lot, and they brought the tribe of Mattari near by man, and Saoul son of Kis was taken by lot. And he was looking for him, and he was not to be found. \(^\text{22}\) And Samouel inquired again by the Lord, "Did the man come here?" and the Lord said, "Behold, he is hidden among the baggage." \(^\text{23}\) And he ran and took him from there and set him among the people, and he was elevated above all the people by his shoulder and upward. \(^\text{24}\) And Samouel said to all the people, "Do you see the one whom the Lord has chosen for himself, that there is no one like him among you all?" And all the people took notice and said, "Tear the king live!"

25 And Samouel told the people the just claim of the king, and he wrote in a book and set it before the Lord. And Samouel sent off all the people, and they went, each to his place. \(^\text{26}\) And Saoul went to his home at Gabaa, and with Saoul went sons of labis of power whose hearts the Lord had touched. \(^\text{27}\) And some pestilent sons said, "What, will this one save us?" And they despaired him and brought him no presents.

11 And it happened about a month later, that Naas the Ammanite went up and encamped against Iabis-Galaad, and all the men of labis said to Naas the Ammanite, "Make a covenant with us, and we will be subject to you." \(^\text{2}\) And Naas the Ammanite said to them, "By this! I will make a covenant with you, by gouging out of you every right eye, and I will put disgrace upon Israel." \(^\text{3}\) And the men of labis said to him, "Allow us seven days, and we will send messengers through all the territory of Israel; if there is no one to save us, we will come out to you." \(^\text{4}\) And the messengers came to Gabbaa to Saoul and spoke the words in the ears of the people, and all the people lifted up their voice and wept.

5 And behold, Saoul was coming from the field after the early morning, and Saoul said, "Why is it that the people are weeping?" And they told him the words of the sons of Iabis. 6 And a spirit of the Lord sprang upon Saoul when he heard these words, and his anger was greatly kindled against them. 7 And he took two oxen and cut them in pieces and sent throughout all the territory of Israel by the hand of messengers, saying, "He who does not come out after Saoul and after Samouel, like this shall they do to his oxen!" And the dread of the Lord fell upon the people of Israel, and they cried out as one man. 8 And he reviewed them at Abiezek in Bama, every man of Israel, six hundred thousand and the men of Lousadas, seventy thousand. 9 And he said to the messengers who came, "This is what you shall say to the men of Iabis: Tomorrow, by the time the sun is hot, you shall have deliverance." And the messengers came to the town and told the men of labis, and they rejoiced. 10 And the men of labis said to Naas the Ammanite, "Tomorrow we will come forth to you, and you shall do to us what seems good before you." 11 And it happened after the morrow that Saoul put the people in three companies. And at the morning watch they came into the camp and smote the sons of Ammon until the day had become hot, and there were those who survived; they were scattered, and no two among them were left together. 12 And the people said to Samouel, "Who is it that said, 'Shall Saoul reign over us?' Hand the men over and we will put them to death." 13 And Saoul said, "No one shall die in this day, for today the Lord has wrought deliverance in Israel." 14 And Samouel said to the people, saying, "Let us go to Galgala and there renew the kingdom." And all the people went to Galgala, and there Samouel anointed Saoul king before the Lord, and there he sacrificed meat offerings and peace offerings before the Lord, and Samouel and all Israel rejoiced exceedingly. 15 And Samouel said to every man of Israel, "Behold, I heard your voice in all that you said to me, and I set a king over you. 2And now, behold, the king goes about before you, and I am old, and I will sit still, and behold, my sons are with you, and behold, I have gone about before you from my youth even until this day. 3Here I am; answer against me before the Lord and before his anointed; whose calf have I taken, or whose donkey have I taken, or whom of you have I oppressed, or whom have I mistreated, or from whose hand have I taken a bribe, even a sandal? Answer against me, and I will restore it to you." 4 And they said to Samouel, "You have not defrauded us, and you have not oppressed us, and you have not afflicted us, and you have not taken anything from the hand of anyone." 5And Samouel said to the people, "The Lord is witness among you, and his anointed is witness in this very day that you have not found anything in my hand." And they said, "He is witness." 6 And Samouel said to the people, saying, "The Lord who made Moyses and Aaron is witness, who brought your fathers up out of Egypt. 7And now stand still, and I will enter into judgment with you before the Lord, and I will declare to you all the righteousness of the Lord, which things he performed among you and among your fathers: 8 how Ikab and his sons went into Egypt, and Egypt humiliated them, and our fathers cried to the Lord, and the Lord sent Moyses and Aaron, and he brought forth our fathers out of Egypt and settled them in this place. 9 And they forgot the Lord their God, and he sold them into the hands of the sands of the enemy, and he sold them intom the hands of Sisara, commander-in-chief of the army of King Iabin of Harim and into the hands of the Alaphydes and into the hands of the king of Moab, and they fought against them. 10 And they cried to the Lord and were saying, "We have sinned, because we forsok the Lord and were subject to the Baalis and the groves, and now deliver us out of the hand of our enemies, and we will be subject to you." 11 And the Lord sent Ierobaal and Barak and Iephthae and Samouel and delivered you out of the hand of your enemies who were round about, and you were living securely. 12 And you saw that Naas, king of the sons of Ammon, came against you, and you said, 'No, none but a king shall reign over us,' and the Lord our God is our king. 13 And now, behold, the king whom you chose, and behold, the Lord has granted a king over you. 14 If you fear the Lord and are subject to him and heed his voice and do not contend with the mouth of the Lord, and if both you and the king who reigns over you keep following the Lord, 15 but if you should not heed the voice of the Lord and contend with the mouth of the Lord, the hand of the Lord will also be against you and against your king. 16 And now stand still, and see this great thing that the Lord will do before your eyes. 17 Is it not the wheat harvest today? I will call upon the Lord, and he will give sounds and rain, and know, and see that your wickedness that you have done before the Lord is great in asking a king for yourselves." 18 And Samouel called upon the Lord, and the Lord gave sounds and rain in that day, and all the people greatly feared the Lord and Samouel. 19 And all the people said to Samouel, "Pray to the Lord, your God, for your slaves, and we shall not die, for we have added to all our sins an evil by asking for a king for ourselves." 20 And Samouel said to the people, "Do not be afraid; you have done this entire evil; yet do not turn aside from after the Lord, and be subject to the Lord with your whole heart. 21 And do not turn aside after those things that are nothing, who do not accomplish anything and who will not deliver, for they are nothing. 22 For the Lord will not cast away his people for his great name's sake, because the Lord graciously took you to him for a people. 23 And far be it from me to sin against the Lord by ceasing to pray for you, and I will subject to the Lord and show you the good and the right way; 24 only fear the Lord..."
and be subject to him in truth and with your whole heart, for you saw what things he has magnified with you. And if you still do wickedly, you shall be handed over, both you and your king."

13 And Saoul chose for himself three thousand men from the men of Israel, and two thousand were with Saoul in Machemas and in the hill country of Baithel, and a thousand were with Ionathan in Gabee of Beniamin, and the rest of the people he sent home each to his covert. And Ionathan smote Nasib the allophyle who was in the hill, and the allophyles heard. And Saoul blew with a trumpet in all the land, saying, "The slaves have revolted!" And all Israel heard say, "Saoul has smitten Nasib the allophyle, and Israel was put to shame among the allophyles." And the people went up after Saoul at Galgala.

5 And the allophyles gathered for battle against Israel, and thirty thousand chariots and six thousand horsemen and a people like the sand that is by the sea in multitude came up against Israel, and they came up and encamped at Machemas over against Baithon, southward. And a man of Israel saw that he was in distress so that he could not proceed, and the people hid in caves and in dens and in rocks and in holes and in pits. And those who crossed over crossed the Jordan to the land of Gad and Galada. And Saoul was still at Galgala, and all the people were confounded behind him.

8 And he waited seven days for the testimony as Samouel said, and Samouel did not come to Galgala, and his people slipped away from him. And Saoul said, "Bring, that I may offer a whole burnt offering, that the slaves of the Lord, ' and I forced myself and offered the whole burnt offering." And it happened, as he finished offering the whole burnt offering, that Samouel arrived, and Saoul went out to meet him to bless him. And Samouel said, "What have you done?" And Saoul said, "Because I saw how the people slipped away from me, and you did not come as you arranged in the testimony of the days, and the allophyles were gathered at Machemas, and I and I said, 'Now the allophyles will come down to me to Galgala, and I have not entreated the face of the Lord,' and I forced myself and offered the whole burnt offering." And Saoul said to Saoul, "You have done foolishly, for you did not keep my commandment, which the Lord commanded you. As just now the Lord prepared your kingdom over Israel forever, also now your kingdom will not stand, and the Lord will seek for himself a person after his heart, and the Lord will command him to be ruler over his people, because you did not keep what the Lord commanded you."

15 And Samouel arose and departed from Galgala on his way. And the rest of the people went up behind Saoul, to meet behind the people of war.

When they were come from Galgala to Gabaa of Beniamin, then Saoul counted the people who were present with him, about six hundred men. And Saoul and his son Ionathan and the people who were present with them stayed in Gabee Beniamin, and they wept, and the allophyles had encamped at Machemas. And there came out of the field of the allophyles a raider in three companies; the one company closely observed the way of Goiphera over the land of Sogal, and the one company closely observed the way of Baithoron, and the one company closely observed the way of Gabee, which overlooks Gai Sabin.

19 And there was no craftsman in iron to be found in all the land of Israel, for the allophyles said, "Lest the Hebrews should make sword and spear." And all Israel used to go down to the land of the allophyles to forge each his sickle and his tool and each his axe and his pruning hook. And the harvest was ready to reap; but the implements were three shekels for the prong, and for the axe and the pruning hook the plan was the same. And it happened in the days of the battle of Machemas that neither sword nor spear was to be found in the hand of any of the people who were with Saoul and with Ionathan, and Saoul and his son Ionathan had them.

23 And some of the substance of the allophyles, which is on the other side of Machemas, went out.

14 And a day came, and Ionathan son of Saoul said to the lad who carried his armor, "Come, and let us go over to Messab of the allophyles which is on the yonder side," but he did not tell his father. And Saoul was sitting on the top of the hill under the pomegranate tree that is at Magdon, and there were with him about six hundred men, and Achia son of Achiob, Iochabed's brother, son of Phinees son of Eli the priest of God in Selom, carrying an ephoud. And the people did not know that Ionathan had gone. And in the middle of the pass, where Ionathan was trying to go over to the substance of the allophyles, there was a rocky crag on one side and a rocky crag on the other; the name of the one was Bazes, and the name of the other, Senna; one way from the north was for one going to Machemas, and the other way from the south, for one going to Gabee.

6 And Ionathan said to the lad who carried his armor, "Come, let us go over to Messab of these uncircumcised, if perhaps the Lord may do something for us, for nothing can hinder the Lord from saving by many or by few." And his armor-bearer said to him, "Do all that your mind inclines to: behold, I am with you; my mind is as your mind." And Ionathan said, "Behold, we are going to cross over to the men, and we will be rolled down to them, and if this is what they say to us, 'Stand off there until we tell you;' then we will stand by ourselves and definitely not go up to them, and if this is what they say to us, 'Come up to us,' then we will go up, for the Lord has given them into our hands; this will be the sign for us." And both of them entered into Messab of the allophyles, and the allophyles said, "Behold, the Hebrews are coming out of their holes where they hid there." And the men of Messab hailed Ionathan and his armor-bearer and said, "Come up to us, and we will show you something." And Ionathan said to his armor-bearer, "Come up after me, for the Lord has given them into the hands of Israel." And Ionathan climbed up on his hands and on his feet, and his armor-bearer with him, and they looked intently at the face of Ionathan, and he smote them, and his armor-bearer behind him was providing supplies. And the first slaughter that Ionathan and his armor-bearer inflicted was about twenty men, with darts and with sling stones and with pebbles of the plain. And there was a dread in the camp and in the field, and all the people, those in Messab and the raiders, were astounded, and they would not act, and the earth was terror-struck, and the dread was from the Lord.

And Saoul's lookouts in Gabee of Benjamin saw, and beheld, the camp was in commotion on this side and that. And Saoul said to the people that were with him, "Call the roll now and see who has gone from us," and they called the roll, and behold, Ionathan and his armor-bearer were not to be found. And Saoul said to Achiæ, "Bring the ephoud," for he bore the ephoud in that day before Israel. And it happened, while Saoul was talking to the priest, that the tumult in the camp of the allophyles increased more and more, and Saoul said to the priest, "Bring your hands together." And Saoul and all the people who were with him went up and came to the battle, and behold, a man's sword was against his neighbor, a very great confusion. And the slaves who yesterday had gone from their masters and slain men, and the battle was extended into every town in the hill country of Ephraim, and the battle passed through Bamoth, and all the people with Saoul were about ten thousand men, and the battle was extended into every town in the hill country of Ephraim.

And Saoul was ignorant with great ignorance in that day, and he laid an oath on the people, saying, "Curse Seba anyone who eats food before it is evening, so I will avenge my enemy," and none of the people tasted food. And all the land was astounded, and the people came upon the beehive on the ground, and the people came upon the beehive, and behold, they were talking on their hands to their mouths, for the people feared the oath of the Lord. And Ionathan had not heard when his father charged the people with the oath, and he extended the scepter that was in his hand and dipped the tip of it in the honeycomb and put his hand to his mouth, and his eyes recovered their sight. And one of the people answered and said, "Ad-and more also, you shall die the death today." 45And the people said to Saoul, "Shall he who achieved this great victory in Israel die today? The Lord lives; shall a hair of his head fall to the ground?—for the people of God wrought this day." And the people prayed for Ionathan in that day, and he did not die. 46And Saoul went up from following the allophyles, and the allophyles went to their place.

47 And Saoul had received by lot office over Israel, and he was fighting against all his enemies on every side—against Moab and against the sons of Ammon and against the sons of Edom and against Baitheoer and against the king of Soubah and against the allophyles; wherever he turned, he was being kept safe. 48And he formed an army and struck down Amalek and delivered Israel out of the hand of those who trampled on them.

49 And the sons of Saoul were Ionathan and Lessiou and Melchisa, and the names of his two daughters: the name of the firstborn was Merob, and the name of the second, Melchol. 50And the name of his wife was Achinoom daughter of Achi-mas. And the name of the commander-in-chief was Abenner son of Ner son of a kinsman of Saoul, and Kis was the father of Saoul, and Ner the father of Abenner was the son of Iamin son of Abiel.

52 And the fighting against the allophyles was hard all the days of Saoul, and when Saoul saw any strong man and any man a son of might, then he took them to himself.

15 And Samouel said to Saoul, "The Lord sent me to anoint you as king over Israel, and now listen to the voice of the Lord. 2This is what the Lord Sabaoth said, 'Now I will avenge what Amalek did to Israel, how he encountered him in the wadi. 3And I will make Amalek a curse among the nations, because I saw that you have utterly destroyed them, and that they might be sacrificed to the Lord, your God, and the people spared, the best of the flock and of the cattle, that they might be sacrificed to the Lord, our God, in Galgala.' 4And Saoul summoned the people, and reviewed them in Galgala, four hundred thousand in units, and Ioudas, thirty thousand in units. 5And Saoul came to the cities of Amalek and lay in wait in the wadi. 6And Saoul said to the Kinite, "Depart, and turn aside from among the Amalekites, lest I include you with him, and as for you, you deal mercifully with the sons of Israel when they came up out of Egypt." And the Kinite withdrew from among Amalek. 7And Saoul smote Amalek, from Euilat as far as Sour, facing Egypt. 8And he took king Agag of Amalek alive, but he killed all the people of Jerim with the edge of the sword. 9And Saoul and all the people saved alive Agag and the best of the flocks and of the herds and of the foods and of the vineyards and of all the good things and did not wish to destroy them utterly, and every despised and worthless artifact they utterly destroyed.

10 And a word of the Lord came to Samouel, saying: 11 "I have been comforted, because I made Saoul king, for he has turned away from behind me and has not kept my words." And Samouel was disheartened, and he cried out to the Lord the whole night. 12And Samouel rose early and went to meet Israel in the morning, and it was told to Samouel, saying, "Saoul came to Carmel and raised a hand for himself, and «the chariot returned»." And he went down to Galgala to Saoul, and behold, he was offering up to the Lord as a whole burnt offering the first of the spoils that he brought from Amalek.

13 And Samouel came to Saoul, and Saoul said to him, "Blessed are you to the Lord; I have established all that the Lord spoke." 14And Samouel said, "And what is the sound of this flock in my ears and the sound of cattle that I am hearing?" 15And Saoul said, "From Amalek I brought them, what the people spared, the best of the flock and of the cattle, that they might be sacrificed to the Lord, your God, and the rest I have utterly destroyed." 16And Samouel said to Saoul, "Stop, and I will tell you what the Lord spoke to me during the night." And he said to him, "Speak." 17 And Samouel said to Saoul, "Are you not small before him, a leader of a scepter of a tribe of Israel? And the Lord anointed you as king over Israel. 18And the Lord sent you on a journey and said to you, 'Go, and utterly destroy those who sin against me, Amalek, and you shall fight them until you consume them.' 19And why did you not hearken to the voice of the Lord, but rushed to set upon the spoils and did what was evil before the Lord?" 20And Saoul said to Samouel, "Because I listened to the voice of the people, and I went on the journey on which the Lord sent me, and I brought Agag, king of Amalek, and I utterly destroyed Amalek, 21and from the spoils the people took flocks and herds, the first of the things devoted to destruction, to sacrifice before the Lord, our God, in Galgala." 22 And Samouel said, "Are whole burnt-offerings and sacrifices as wanted to the Lord as hearkening to the voice of the Lord? Behold, hearing is better than sacrifice and listening than the fat of rams. 23For divination is a sin, and theraphin bring grief and toil. Because you rejected the word of the Lord, the Lord will also reject you from being king over Israel." 24And Saoul said to Samouel, "I have sinned: for I have transgressed the word of the Lord and what you said, because I feared the people and listened to their voice. 25And now do take away then my sin, and return with me, and I will do obedience to the Lord your God." 26And Samouel said to Saoul, "I will not return with you, for you have rejected the word of the Lord, and the Lord will reject you from being king over Israel." 27And Samouel turned away his face to go away, and Saúl caught hold of the wing of his double cloak, and tore it. 28And Saúmuel said to him, “The Lord tore the kingdom of Israel from your hand today, and he will give it to a neighbor of yours, who is better than you. 29And Israel will be divided in two, and he will not turn back or change his mind, for he is not like a human, that he should change his mind.” 30And Saúl said, “I have sinned; yet do honor me now before the elders of Israel and before my people, and return with me, and I will do obedience to the Lord, your God.” 31And Saúmuel turned back after Saúl, and he did obeisance to the Lord.

32 And Saúmuel said, “Bring Agag king of Amálek to me.” And Agag came to him trembling. And Agag said, “Is death thus bitter?” 33And Saúmuel said to Agag, “As your sword made women childless, so your mother shall be childless among women.” And Saúmuel slew Agag before the Lord in Galgal.

And Saúmuel grieved over Saúl. And the Lord was sorry that he had made Saúl king over Israel.

16 And the Lord said to Saúmuel, “How long are you grieving over Saúl? And it is I that have set him at naught not to be king over Israel. Fill your horn with oil, and come, let me send you to Iessai as far as to Bethleem, for I have observed among his sons one to be king for me.” 2And Saúmuel said, “How am I to go? Saúl will both hear and kill me.” And the Lord said, “Take a heifer of the ozen in your hand, and you will say, ‘I have come to sacrifice to the Lord,’ 3and you shall invite Iessai to the sacrifice, and I will show you what you shall do, and you shall anoint whomever I say to you.” 4And Saúmuel did all that the Lord spoke to him and came to Bethleem. And the elders of the city were surprised at meeting him and said, “Is your entering peace, you seer?” 5And he said, “Peace; I have come to sacrifice to the Lord; sanctify yourselves and be glad with me today.” And he sanctified Iessai and his sons and invited them to the sacrifice.

6 And it happened, when they entered, and he looked on Eliab that he said, “To be sure, before the Lord is his anointed.” 7And the Lord said to Saúmuel, “Do not look on his appearance, or on the posture of his size, because I have rejected him, for God will not look as a mortal will see, for a mortal will see into a face, but God will see into a heart.” 8And Iessai called Aminadab, and he passed before Saúmuel. And he said, “Neither has the Lord chosen this one.” 9And Iessai brought forward Sama. And he said, “Also for this one the Lord has not chosen.” 10And Iessai brought his seven sons forward before Saúmuel, and Saúmuel said, “The Lord has not chosen among these.” 11And Saúmuel said to Iessai, “Have the boys come to an end?” And he said, “There is yet the smallest; behold, he is shepherding among the flock.” And Saúmuel said to Iessai, “Send, and fetch him; for we will definitely not recline until he comes.” 12And he sent and brought him in. And this one was ruddy with beauty of eyes and was good in appearance to the Lord. And the Lord said to Saúmuel, “Rise, and anoint Dávid; for this one is good.” 13And Saúmuel took the horn of oil and anointed him in the midst of his brothers, and a spirit of the Lord sprang upon Dáuid from that day and onward. And Saúmuel rose and returned to Harmathaim.

14 And a spirit of the Lord departed from Saúl, and an evil spirit from the Lord tormented him. 15And Saúl’s servants said to him, “See now, an evil spirit from the Lord is tormenting you. Let now your slaves speak before you, and let them seek for our lord a man who has learned how to play on a cinyra, and it will be, when an evil spirit is upon you, that he will play on his cinyra, and it will be good for you, and it will give you respite.” 16And Saúl said to his servants, “Do look out for me for a man who plays well, and bring him to me.” 17And one of his lads answered and said, “Behold, I have seen a son of Iessai a Bethleemite, and he knows how to play music, and the man is intelligent, and the man is a warrior and prudent with words, and a man good in appearance, and the Lord is with him.” 18And Saúl sent messengers to Iessai, saying, “Send me your son Dávid who is with your flock.” 19And Iessai took a gomor of bread and a skin of wine and one kid of goats and sent them by the hand of his son Dávid to Saúl. 20And Dávid came in to Saúl and stood before him. And Saúl loved him greatly, and he became to him one that would bear his armor. 21And Saúl sent to Iessai, saying, “Do let Dávid stand before me, for he has found favor in my eyes.” 22And it happened, when an evil spirit came upon Saúl, that Dávid would take the cinyra and play it with his hand, and Saúl would be relieved, and it was good for him, and the evil spirit would depart from him.

17 And the allophyles gathered their armies for battle, and they were gathered at Sokchoth of Judea, and they encamped between Sokchoth and between Azeka, in Ephremm. 2And Saúl and the men of Israel were gathered and encamped in the valley; they formed ranks for battle opposite the allophyles. 3And the allophyles stood on the mountain here, and Israel stood on the mountain there, and the valley was between them. 4And a mighty man came out from the ranks of the allophyles; Goliath was his name, from Geth; his height was four cubits and a span. 5And he had a helmet on his head, and he was armed with a coat of chain mail, and the weight of his coat was five thousand shekels of bronze and iron. 6And there were bronze greaves on his legs and a bronze shield between his shoulders. 7And the shaft of his spear was like a beam of weavers, and his spear

Weighed six hundred shekels of iron, and the one who carried his armor would go before him. And he stood and shouted to the ranks of Israel and said to them, “Why do you come out to draw up for battle opposite us? Am I not an allophyle, and are you not Hebrews of Saul? Choose a man for yourselves, and let him come down to me, 9and if he is able to fight against me and if he strike me, then we will be to you for slaves, but if I am able and kill him, then you shall be to us for slaves and be subject to us.” And the allophyle said, “Behold, today on this very day I have chided the ranks of Israel. Give me a man, and we both will fight in single combat.” 11And Saul and all Israel heard these words of the allophyle, and they were dismayed and greatly afraid.

32 And David said to Saul, “On no account let the heart of my lord collapse upon him; your slave will go and will fight with this allophyle.” 33And Saul said to David, “You will definitely not be able to go against the allophyle to fight with him, for you are a boy, and he has been a warrior from his youth.” 34And David said to Saul, “Your slave was tending the flock for his father, and when the lion and the bear would come and take a sheep from the herd, 35and I would go after it, then I struck it and pulled from its mouth, and if it turned against me, then I caught it by its throat and struck it down and put it to death. 36And your slave would smite both the bear and the lion, and the uncircumcised allophyle shall be like one of these. Shall I not go and smite him and take away today a reproach from Israel? For who is this uncircumcised one who reproached the ranks of the living God? 37The Lord who delivered me from the paw of the lion and from the paw of the bear, he himself will rescue me from the hand of this uncircumcised allophyle.” 38And Saul said to David, “Go, and the Lord will be with you!”

39 And Saul put a woolen cloak on David, and a bronze helmet around his head, and he girded David with his sword over his woolen cloak, and he grew tired walking once and twice. And David said to Saul, “I shall definitely not be able to go in these, for I am not experienced.” And they removed them from him. 40And he took his staff in his hand and chose for himself five smooth stones from the wadi and put them in his shepherd’s bag, which he had with him for collecting, and his sling in his hand, and he advanced against the man, the allophyle.

42 And Goliad saw David, and he disdained him, for he was a boy, and he was ruddy with beauty of eyes. 43And the allophyle said to David, “Am I like a dog, that you come upon me with a rod and stones?” 44And David said, “No, but worse than a dog.” And the allophyle cursed David by his gods. 45And the allophyle said to David, “Come to me, and I will give your flesh to the birds of the air and to the animals of the earth.” 46And David said to the allophyle, “You come to me with sword and with spear and with shield, and I am coming to you in the name of the Lord Sabaoth, the God of the ranks of Israel, which you have reproached today. And today the Lord will shut you up into my hand, and I will kill you and remove your head from you, and I will give your limbs and the limbs of the camp of the allophyles on this day to the birds of the air and to the wild animals of the earth, and all the earth will know that there is a God in Israel, and all this assembly will know that the Lord does not save by sword and spear, for the battle is the Lord’s, and the Lord will give you into our hands.”

48 And the allophyle arose and came to meet David, and David stretched out his hand into the bag and took out from there one stone and slung it and struck the allophyle on his forehead, and the stone penetrated through the helmet into his forehead, and he fell on his face on the ground. 49And David ran and stood over him and took his sword and put him to death and cut off his head. And the allophyles saw that their mighty one was dead, and they fled. 52And the men of Israel and loudas rose up and shouted and pursued after them, as far as the entrance to Geth and as far as the gate of Ascalon, and the wounded of the allophyles fell on the way of the gates, even as far as Geth and as far as Akkon. 53And the men of Israel came back from turning aside after the allophyles, and they trampled their camps. And David took the head of the allophyle and brought it into Jerusalem, and he put his armor in his covert.

18 And the dancers came to meet David out of all the towns of Israel, with drums and with rejoicing and with cymbals. 2And the women began and were saying, “Saoul killed amongst his thousands, and David amongst his ten thousands.” 8And the matter appeared evil in the eyes of Saul concerning this word, and he said, “They ascribed to David the ten thousands, and to me they ascribed the thousands.” 4And Saoul was eyeing David with suspicion from that day and beyond.

12 And Saul was afraid from before David, and he removed him from him and made him an officer of a thousand for himself, and he was going out and coming in before the people. 14And David was prudent in all his ways, and the Lord was with him. 15And Saoul saw how he acted very prudent-ly, and he was afraid from before him. 16And all Israel and loudas loved David, for he was going out and coming in from before the people.

20 And Saoul’s daughter Melchol loved David, and Saoul was told, and it was right in his eyes. 21And Saoul said, “I will give her to him, and she will be a snare to him.” And the hand of the allophyles was against Saul, and Saul commanded his servants, saying, “Speak to David secretly, saying, ‘Behold, the king wants you, and all his servants love you, and as for you, become the king’s son-in-law.’” 23And Saul’s servants spoke these words in the hearing of David. And David said, “Does it seem light in your eyes to become the king’s son-in-law? And as for me, I am a humble man and of no repute.” 24And the servants of Saoul reported to him according to these things that Dauid said. 25And Saoul said, "This is what you shall say to Dauid, 'The king does not desire to avenge for the king's enemies with a present, except with a hundred foreskins of the allophyles.' " And Saoul counted on casting him into the hands of the allophyles. 26And the servants of Saoul told Dauid these words, and the matter was right in the eyes of Dauid to be the king's son-in-law. 27And Dauid rose and went, he and his men, and smote one hundred men among the allophyles and brought their foreskins to the king, and he became the king's son-in-law, and he gave him his daughter Melchol for him as a wife. 28And Saoul saw that the Lord was with Dauid and that all Israel loved him, 29and he continued to be afraid of Dauid even more.

19 And Saoul spoke to his son Ionathan and to all his servants to put Dauid to death. And Saoul's son Ionathan was much taken with Dauid. 2And Ionathan told Dauid, saying, "Saoul seeks to put you to death; therefore be on guard tomorrow morning, and hide yourself, and stay in hiding. 3And I will go out and stand beside my father about you and see what it might be, and I will tell you." 4And Ionathan spoke well of Dauid to his father Saoul and said to him, "Let the king not sin against your slave Dauid, because he has not sinned against you, and his deeds are very good, 5and he put his life in his hand and smote the allophyle, and the Lord brought about a great deliverance, and all Israel saw and rejoiced, and why do you sin against innocent blood by putting Dauid to death without cause?" 6And Saoul heeded the voice of Ionathan, and Saoul swore, saying, "The Lord lives, if he shall die!" 7And Ionathan called Dauid and related all these words to him, and Ionathan brought Dauid in to Saoul, and he was in his presence as yesterday and the third day.

8 And the war continued to be against Saoul, and Dauid prevailed over and fought the allophyles, and he smote among them with a very great blow, and they fled from before him. 9And there came an evil divine spirit upon Saoul, and he was at rest in his house, and a spear was in his hand, and Dauid was playing music with his hands, 10and Saoul was seeking to strike the spear into Dauid, and Dauid withdrew from before Saoul, and he struck the spear into the wall, and Dauid fled and escaped.

11 And it happened in that night that Saoul sent messengers to Dauid's house to keep watch over him to put him to death in the morning. And his wife Melchol told Dauid, saying, "If you do not save your own life this night, tomorrow you will be put to death." 12And Melchol let Dauid down through the window, and he departed and flew away and escaped. 13And Melchol took and laid the cenotaph on the bed, and she put goats' liver by its head and covered them with a garment. 14And Saoul sent messengers to take Dauid, and they said he was unwell. 15And he sent for Dauid, saying, "Bring him to me on the bed, that I may put him to death." 16And the messengers came, and behold, the cenotaph was on the bed, and goats' liver by its head. 17And Saoul said to Melchol, "Why have you thus deceived me and sent off my enemy, and he has escaped?" And Melchol said to Saoul, "He said, "Send me off, but if not, I will put you to death.'"

18 And Dauid fled and escaped and came to Samouel at Harmathaim and told him all that Saoul did to him, and Dauid and Samouel went and settled at Nauath in Rama. 19And it was told to Saoul, saying, "Behold, Dauid is at Nauath in Rama." 20And Saoul sent messengers to take Dauid, and they saw the assembly of the prophets, and Samouel stood as appointed over them, and a divine spirit came upon the messengers of Saoul, and they were prophesying. 21And it was told to Saoul, and he sent other messengers, and they also prophesied. And Saoul added to send messengers the third time, and they too prophesied. 22And Saoul was seething with anger, and he too went to Harmathaim, and he came to the well of the threshing floor that is in Sephi, and he asked and said, "Where are Samouel and Dauid?" And they said, "Behold, at Nauath in Rama." 23And he went from there toward Nauath in Rama, and a divine spirit also came upon him, and as he was going, he was prophesying until he came to Nauath in Rama. 24And he stripped off his clothes, and he prophesied before them and fell naked all that day and the whole night. Therefore they were saying, "Is Saoul also among the prophets?"

20 And Dauid fled from Nauath in Rama and came before Ionathan and said, "What have I done? And what is my wrong? And wherein have I sinned before your father that he is seeking my life?" 2And Ionathan said to him, "Far be it from you! You shall not die. Behold, my father will not do anything either great or small and not uncover my ear, and why is it that my father should hide this matter? This is not possible!" 3And Dauid answered Ionathan and said, "Perceiving your father knows that I have found favor in your eyes, and he said, 'Do not let Ionathan know this; he may not consent.' But, the Lord lives, and your soul lives, that, as I said, between me and death has been filled up." 4And Ionathan said to Dauid, "What does your soul desire, and what shall I do for you?" 5And Dauid said to Ionathan, "Behold, now, tomorrow is the new moon and seated I will not sit with the king to eat, and you will send me off, and I will hide in the plain until evening. 6If observing your father observes me, then you will say, 'Entreating Dauid asked leave of me to run as far as to Bethleem his city, for there is a sacrifice of days there for all the tribe.' 7If this is what he says, 'Very well!' there is peace for your slave, and if he should answer you harshly, know that evil has been determined by him. 8And you shall do mercy with your slave, for you have brought your slave into a covenant with the Lord along with yourself, and if there is iniquity in your slave, you put me to death, and why should you bring me thus to your father?" 9And Ionathan said, Far be it from you, for if knowing I know that the evil from my father had been determined to come upon you—and if not—I will bring tidings to you to your cities. 10And Daud said to Ionathan, "Who will tell me if your father answers you harshly?" 11And Ionathan said to Daud, "Go, and stay in a field." And they both went out into a field.

12 And Ionathan said to Daud, "The Lord the God of Israel knows that I will sound out my father as the opportunity arises, three times, and behold, if there is good concerning Daud, then I will not send to you in the field; 13this is what God may do to Ionathan, and this is what he may add, for I will report the evils to you and uncover your ear and I will send you off, and you will depart in peace, and the Lord will be with you as he was with my father.

14And if I am still living, you shall also do mercy with me, and if I die by death, 15you shall not remove your mercy from my house for ever; and if not, when the Lord removes the enemies of Daud, each from the face of the earth, 16that the name of Ionathan be removed from the house of Daud, and may the Lord seek out the enemies of Daud."

17And Ionathan added yet to swear to Daud, for he loved the soul of one who loved him.

18 And Ionathan said, "Tomorrow is the new moon, and you will be observed, because your seat will be observed. 19And you shall do it three times and observe and come to your place where you hid on the workday, and you will sit by that ergab. 20And I will shoot three times with darts, sending them into the amattarib. 21And behold, I will send the lad, saying, 'Go, find the dart for me.' If I say to the lad, saying, 'Here is the dart, away from you, even here; take it'; come, for, the Lord lives, there is peace for you, and there is no word. 22If this is what I say to the young man, 'Here is the dart, away from you, even beyond;' then I will know that this evil from his father to put Daud to death was fully determined, 34and Ionathan sprang up from the field in fierce anger and ate no food on the second day of the month, for he was grieved for Daud, because his father was set against him.

25 And morning came, and Ionathan went out into the field as arranged for a witness to Daud, and with him was a little boy. 36And he said to the boy, "Run, find for me the darts with which I am throwing." And the boy ran, and he was throwing the dart and sent it beyond. 37And the boy came to the place where Daud was, and Ionathan called after the young man and said, "There is the dart, away from you, even beyond."

38And Ionathan called after his boy saying, "Hurry, be quick, and do not linger." And Ionathan's boy gathered up the darts for his master. 39And the boy knew nothing; only Ionathan and Daud knew the matter. 40And Ionathan gave his implements to his boy and said to his boy, "Go, enter into the city." 41And when the boy had entered, Daud rose from the ergab and fell on his face and did obeisance to him three times, and each kissed each his fellow and each wept with his fellow, until a great completion. 42And Ionathan said, "Go in peace, and as we both have sworn in the name of the Lord, saying, 'The Lord shall be witness between me and you and between my seed and between your seed, forever.'"

2(21.1) And Daud came to Nomba to the priest Abimelech. And Abimelech was astonished to meet him and said to him, "Why is it that you are alone, and no one with you?" 3(2)And Daud said to the priest, "The king has charged me with a matter today and said to me, 'Let no one know the matter about which I send you and concerning which I have charged you,' and I have testified solemnly to the lads in the place called Faith of God, Phellani, Alemoni, 4(3)and now if there are in your hand five loaves, give into my hand what is found." 5(4)And the priest answered Daud and said, "There are no permitted loaves in my hand, for there are only consecrated loaves; if the lads have kept themselves from a woman, then they shall eat." 6(5)And Daud answered the priest and said to him, "Indeed we have kept ourselves from a woman yesterday and the third day; when I go on a journey all the lads have become consecrated, and this journey is profane, wherefore it shall be consecrated today through my implements."

7(6) And Abimelech the priest gave him the loaves of the presentation, for there was no bread there except the loaves of the presence, which are removed from the presence of the Lord to be replaced by hot bread on the day that he took them.

8(7) And one of the lads of Saul was there in that day detained by necessity before the Lord, and his name was Doek the Syrian, tending Saul's mules.

9(8) And David said to Abimelech, "See if there is a spear or sword here by your hand, for I have not brought my sword and my implements in my hand, because the king's business was in haste."

10(9) And the priest said, "Behold, the sword of Goliad the allophyle whom you killed in the valley of Ela, and it is wrapped in a garment; if you will take this for yourself, take it, for there is none here except this one." And David said, "Behold, there is none like it; give it to me." And he gave it to him.

11(10) And David rose and fled in that day from before Saul. And David went to King Anchous of Geth. 12(11) And the servants of Anchous said to him, "Is this not David, the king of the land? Did Saul kill amongst his thousands, and David amongst his ten thousands?"

13(12) And David put the words in his heart and was very much afraid from before King Anchous of Geth. 14(13) And he changed his face before him, and he put on an act in that day, and he drummed on the doors of the city and gestured with his hands and fell against the doors of the gate, and his spittle ran down on his beard. 15(14) And Anchous said to his servants, "Look, see an epileptic man; why did you bring him to me? 16(15) And he said, "Behold, there is none here except this one." And David said, "Behold, there is none like it; give it to me." And he gave it to him.

17(16) And the king said to the runners who stood around him and said to him, "Is this not David, the king of the land? Did the dancers not take the lead for this one, saying, 'Saul killed amongst his thousands, and David amongst his ten thousands?'"

22 And David left there and escaped and came to the Odollam cave. And his brothers and his father's house heard and went down there to him. 2 And every one in distress and every one in debt and every one troubled in soul were gathering to him, and he was leader over them, and there were with him about four hundred men.

3 And David went from there to Ramah and said to the king of Moab, "Let now my father and my mother be with you until I know what God will do for me." 4 And he persuaded the person of the king of Moab, and they were dwelling with him all the days that David was in the stronghold. 5 And the prophet Gad said to David, "Do not remain in the stronghold; leave, and you shall enter into the land of Lousas." And David left and went and settled in the city of Sarich.

6 And Saul heard that David had been recognized, and the men who were with him, and Saul was sitting on the hill below the cultivated field which is in Rama, and his spear in his hand, and all his servants stood around him. 7 And Saul said to his servants who stood around him and said to them, "Do hear, sons of Benjamin, if the son of lessai will truly give every one of you fields and vineyards and make you all officers of hundreds and officers of thousands! For you are all in collusion against me, and there is no one who uncovers my ear when my son makes a covenant with the son of lessai, and there is no one of you who feels sorry for me or uncovers my ear because my son stirred up my slave against me as an enemy, as this day." 8 And Doek the Syrian who was in charge of Saul's mules answered and said, "I have seen the son of lessai coming to Nomba to Abimelech son of Achitob the priest, and he was inquiring of God for him, and he gave him provisions and gave him the sword of Goliad the allophyle."

11 And the king sent to call Abimelech son of Achitob and all the sons of his father, the priests who were at Nomba, and all of them came to the king. 12(11) And Saul said, "Listen now, son of Achitob." And he said, "Here I am, speak, sir." 13(12) And Saul said to him, "Why have you conspired against me, you and the son of lessai, that you gave him bread and a sword and that you ask through God for him, to set him against me as an enemy, as this day?"

14 And he answered the king and said, "And who among all your slaves is like David, faithful and the king's son-in-law and executor of your every behest and honored in your house? 15(14) Have I begun today to ask through God for him? By no means! Let not the king impute anything to his slave or to the whole of my father's house, for your slave knew nothing of all this, a matter small or large."

16 And Saul the king said, "You shall die by death, Abimelech, you and all your father's house." 17(16) And the king said to the runners who stood around him, "Draw near, and put to death the priests of the Lord, because their hand is with David and because they knew that he was fleeing and they did not uncover my ear." And the servants of the king were not willing to extend their hands to attack the priests of the Lord. 18(17) And the king said to Doek, "You, turn, and attack the priests." And Doek the Syrian turned and put to death the priests of the Lord in that day, three hundred fifty men, all bearing an ephoud. 19(18) And Nomba, the city of the priests, he smote with the edge of the sword: from man up to woman, from child up to infant, and calf and donkey and sheep.

20 And one son of Abimelech son of Achitob escaped, and his name was Abiathar, and he fled after David. 21(20) And Abiathar told David that Saul put to death all the priests of the Lord. 22(21) And David said to Abiathar, "I knew in that day that Doek the Syrian—that telling he would tell Saul. I am responsible for the lives of your father's house. 23(22) Stay with me; do not be afraid; for where I shall seek a place for my life, I shall also seek one for your life, for you are safe with me."
And it was told to Dauid, saying, "Behold, the allophyles are fighting in Keila, and they are despoiling, they are trampling the threshing floors." 2And Dauid inquired through the Lord, saying, "Shall I go and attack these allophyles?" And the Lord said, "Go, and you shall attack among these allophyles and rescue Keila." 3And Dauid's men said to him, "Behold, we are afraid here in Judea, and how will it be if we go to Keila? We shall enter into the spoils of the allophyles." 4And Dauid added to inquire again through the Lord, and the Lord answered him and said to him, "Arise, and go down to Keila, for I am giving the allophyles into your hands." 5And Dauid went, and the men who were with him, to Keila and fought with the allophyles, and they fled from before him, and he brought away their livestock and dealt a heavy blow among them. And Dauid rescued the inhabitants of Keila.

And it happened, when Abiathar son of Abimelech fled to Dauid, that he came down with Dauid to Keila having an ephod in his hand. 2And it was told Saoul that Dauid had come to Keila, and Saoul said, "God has sold him into my hands, for he has shut himself in having entered a town of doors and bars." 3And Saoul summoned all the people to war to go down to Keila, for I am giving the allophyles into your hands. 4And Dauid learned that Saoul was not keeping the evil concerning him, and Dauid said to the priest Abiathar, "Bring the ephod of the Lord here." 5And Dauid said, "O Lord, the God of Israel, hearing your slave has heard that Saoul seeks to come to Keila to destroy the city on my account. 6(9) Will it be shut up? And now, will Saoul come down as your slave has heard? O Lord, the God of Israel, tell your slave." 7And the Lord said, "It will be shut up." 8And it happened, when Saoul returned from after the allophyles, that it was told him, saying, "Dauid is in the wilderness of Engaddi." 9And Dauid and his men were in the Maan wilderness in the evening to go out and went ahead of Saoul, and Dauid and his men were sitting in the inner part of the cave. 10And Dauid's men said to him, "Behold, it will be shut up? And now, will Saoul come down as your slave has heard? O Lord, the God of Israel, tell your slave." 11And the Lord said, "It will be shut up." 12And Saoul said, "It will be shut up." 13(6) And it happened after Saoul said, "It will be shut up," and the Lord said, "Be not afraid; for the hand of your father Saoul shall not find you, and you shall be king over Israel, and I shall be second to you, and my father Saoul knows that this is so." 14(4) And both of them made a covenant before the Lord, and Dauid sat at New, and Jonathan departed to his house.

And the Ziphites from the dry country went up to Saoul on the hill, saying, "Behold, is Dauid not hiding among us in Messara in the narrows in New in the hill of Hechela, which is on the right of lessaimoun? 20And now, as for everything that is on the king's mind for a descent, let him descend to us; they have shut him up into the king's hands." 21And Saoul said to them, "May you be blessed to the Lord, for you felt sorry for me! 22Go, and make ready once more, and know his place where his foot will be, quickly there where you said, lest he be cunning. 23And look around, and know, and we will go with you, and it will be, if he is in the land, that I will search him out among all the thousands of loudas." 24And the Ziphites set out and went ahead of Saoul, and Dauid and his men were in the Maan wilderness in the evening to the right of lessaimoun.

25 And Saoul went, and his men, to search for him, and they reported to Dauid, and he went down to the rock that is in the wilderness of Maan. And Saoul heard and pursued after Dauid into the wilderness of Maan. 26 And Saoul and his men went on one side of this mountain, and Dauid and his men were on the other side of this mountain. And Dauid was sheltering himself to get away from before Saoul, and Saoul and his men encamped against Dauid and his men to capture them. 27 And a messenger came to Saoul, saying, "Hurry, and come, for the allophyles have made a raid on the land." 28And Saoul turned back from pursuing after Dauid and went to meet the allophyles; therefore that place was called the Divided Rock.

24 (23,29) And Dauid went up from there and settled in the narrows of Engaddi. 2(24,1) And it happened, when Saoul returned from after the allophyles, that it was told him, saying, "Dauid is in the wilderness of Engaddi." 3(2) And he took with him three thousand chosen men out of all Israel and went to look for Dauid and his men in front of Sadaiem. 4(3) And he came to the flocks of herds that were beside the road, and a cave was there, and Saoul went in to prepare himself, and Dauid and his men were sitting in the inner part of the cave. 5(4) And Dauid's men said to him, "Behold, this is the day of which the Lord spoke to you to give your enemy into your hands, and you shall do to him as is good in your eyes." And Dauid arose and stealthily removed the wing of Saoul's double-cloaka. 6(5) And it happened after these things that Dauid's heart smote him, because he had removed the wing of his double-cloaka. 7(6) And Dauid said to his men, "Not at all is it to me from the Lord, if I shall do this thing to any lord, the Lord's anointed, to bring his hand against him, for this one is the Lord's anointed." 8(7) And Dauid persuaded his men with words and did not permit them to get up to put Saoul to death. And Saoul got up and went down to the road.

9(8) And Dauid got up after him out of the cave, and Dauid called after Saoul, saying, "My lord king!" And Saoul looked behind him, and Dauid bowed with his face to the ground and did obeisance to him.

in appearance, and the man was surly and mean in countenance. But his wife was good at understanding and very beautiful to look upon.

And Dauid said to Abigaia, Nabal’s wife, saying, “Behold, Dauid sent messengers out of the wilderness to salute our master, and he turned away from them. [15] And the men were very good to us; they did not hinder us nor make demands on us, and when we were in the fields, they were like a wall around us both by night and by day, during all the days that we were with them keeping the flock. [16] And now, be sure to say this: ‘To good times; to days of peace, 6 and you shall say this: ‘To good times: may you be in good health and your house, and all that you have be in good health! 7 And now, behold, I have heard that they are shearing for you—now your shepherds who were with us in the wilderness, and we did not hinder them and did not demand anything of them, all the days they were in Carmel. [8] Ask your lads, and they will tell you. And let my lads find favor in your sight, for we have come on a good day. Do give whatever your hand finds to your son Dauid.’ [9] And the lads came and spoke these words to Nabal according to all these words in the name of Dauid. And he leaped up, [10] and Nabal answered Dauid’s servants and said, “Who is Dauid? And who is the son of his father? Slave have I been multiplied today, when they are breaking away each from before his master. [11] And shall I take my bread and my wine and my sacrifices, the sheep that I have sacrificed for my shearers, and give them to men who come from I do not know where?” [12] And Dauid’s lads turned away on their way and returned and came and told Dauid according to these words. [13] And Dauid said to his men, “Each strap on his sword!” and about four hundred men went up after Dauid, and the two hundred remained with the baggage.

14 And one of the lads told Abigaia, Nabal’s wife, saying, “Behold, Dauid sent messengers out of the wilderness to salute our master, and he turned away from them. [15] And the men were very good to us; they did not hinder us nor make demands on us, and when we were in the fields, they were like a wall around us both by night and by day, during all the days that we were with them keeping the flock. [16] And now, know, and see what you will do, for evil has been decided against your master and against his house, and he is a pestilent son, and it is not possible to speak to him.” [17] And Abigaia hurried and took two hundred loaves and two vessels of wine and five sheep ready dressed and five ephahs of parched grain and one gomer of raisins and two hundred cakes of dried fruit and put them on the donkeys [19] and said to her lads, “Go on ahead of me, and behold, I am coming after you.” And she did not tell her husband. [20] And it happened, when she was mounted on the donkey and was going down under cover of the mountain, that, behold, Dauid and his men were coming down to meet her, and she met them. [21] And Dauid said, “Perchance for an unrighteous fellow I have protected all his belongings in the wilderness, and we have not ordered to receive anything of all his belongings, and he has returned me evil for good. [22] This is what God may do to Dauid, and this is what he may he add, if by morning I will leave of all who belong to him one who urine at a wall.”

23 And Abigaia saw Dauid, and she hurried and alighted from the donkey and fell before Dauid on her face and did obeisance to him on the ground and said, “Upon me, my lord, be the injustice; do let your slave speak in your ears, and hear a word of your slave. 25 Let not now my lord set his heart on this pestiferous person, for as his name is, so is he; Nabal is his name, and folly is with him, but I, your slave, did not see your lads whom you sent.

26 "And now, my lord, the Lord lives, and your life lives, since the Lord restrained you from coming against innocent blood, and to save your hand for yourself, even now may your enemies and those who seek evil for my lord be like Nabal. 27 And now accept this benefaction that your slave has brought for my lord, and you shall give it to the lads who follow my lord. 28 Do remove the trespass of your slave, for making the Lord will make for my lord a faithful house, because my lord is fighting the battle of the Lord, and evil shall not be found in you ever. 29 And a person will rise up pursuing you and seeking your life, and the life of my lord shall be bound up in the bundle of life under the care of the Lord God, and the life of your enemies you shall sling out in the midst of the sling. 30 And it will be that the Lord will do to my lord all the good that he spoke concerning you, and the Lord will command you to be leader over Israel. 31 and this shall not be for you an abomination and offense to my lord, to save your hand for myself! 32 For surely the Lord is preparing for you to do good to her.

33 And Dauid said to Abigaia, "Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel, who has chosen your face." 34 And now do take the spear from by his head, and the jar of water, and let us depart by ourselves. 35 And Dauid received from her hand all that she had brought him, and he said to her, "Go up to your house in peace; see, I have heeded your voice, and I have chosen your face."

36 And Abigaia came to Nabal, and behold, he had a feast in his house like a feast of a king, and Nabal's heart was merry upon him, and he was exceedingly drunk, and she did not tell him a word of your slave. 37 And it happened in the morning, when Nabal had gone up from the wine, his wife told him these things, and his heart died within him, and he became like a stone. 38 And it happened about ten days later, and the Lord struck Nabal, and he died.

39 And Dauid heard and said, "Blessed be the Lord who has judged the cause of my reproach at Nabal's hand and has kept back his slave from the hand of evil acts, and the Lord has returned the evil-doing of Nabal upon his head." And Dauid sent and spoke concerning Abigaia to take her to himself as a wife. 40 And Dauid's servants came to Abi-
And Daud said in his heart, saying, "I shall now be added in one day into the hands of Saoul, and there is no good for me, unless I escape to a land of allophyles and Saoul ceases from seeking me within every border of Israel, and I shall escape out of his hand." 2And Daud and the four hundred men with him arose and came to Anchous son of Ammach, king of Geth. 3And Daud settled with Anchous at Geth, he and his men, each and his household, and Daud and both his wives, Achinaam the Iezraelite and Abigaia the wife of Nabai the Carmelite. 4And it was told Saoul that Daud had fled to Geth, and he no longer added to seek him. 5And Daud said to Anchous, "If indeed your slave has found favor in your eyes, do let them give me a place in one of the towns that are in the land of Egypt—by suitable walled places. 6And he said to Anchous, "So I will make you chief of the bodyguard and the jar of water that are at his head?" 7And Anchous answered and said, "Why are you laying a snare for my life to put it to death? 8And Saoul inquired through the Lord, and the Lord did not answer him by dreams and by clear ones and by prophets. 9And Saoul said to his servants, "Seek out for me a ventriloquizing woman, and I will go to her and inquire by her," and his servants said to him, "Behold, there is a ventriloquizing woman at Aendor." 10And Saoul disguised himself and put on other clothes and went, he and two men with him, to the woman by night, and he said to her, "Do seek divinations for me by a ventriloquizing woman, and I will go to her and inquire by her," and his servants said to him, "Behold, there is a ventriloquizing woman at Aendor." 11And the woman said to him, "Behold, indeed you longed to the king of Judea to this day. 12And it happened in those days that allophyles were gathering in their camps to go out to fight with Israel, and Anchous said to Daud, "Knowing you shall know that you will go out with me to battle, you and your men." 13And Daud said to Anchous, "Thus now you shall know what your slave will do," and Anchous said to Daud, "So I will make you chief of the bodyguard and succeeding you will succeed." And Daud went on his way, and Saoul returned to his place.

27 And Daud was fully trusted with Anchous, saying, "Shaming he has made himself shamed among his people in Israel, and he shall always be a slave to me." 28 And it happened in those days that allophyles were gathering in their camps to go out to fight with Israel, and Anchous said to Daud, "Behold, the spear of the king! Let one of the lads come over and get it. 23And the Lord will return to the land of Gath, saying, "They must not bring word to the king of Judea to this day. 24And he was striking the land and not leaving man or woman alive and was taking away flocks and herds and donkeys and camels and clothing, and they returned and were coming to Anchous. 10And Anchous said to Daud, "Against whom have you made a raid today?" 11And Daud said to Anchous, "Against the south of Judea and against the south of Iesmega and against the south of Kenezi." 12And he left neither man nor woman alive to bring back to Geth, saying, "They must not bring word to Geth against us, saying, 'This is what Daud does.' And this was his rationale all the days that Daud was settled in the country of the allophyles. 13And Daud was fully trusted with Anchous, saying, "Shaming he has made himself shamed among his people in Israel, and he shall always be a slave to me."
Lord lives, if injustice shall befall you in this matter." 11And the woman said, “Whom shall I bring up for you?” And he said, “Bring up Samouel for me.” 12And the woman saw Samouel, and she cried out with a loud voice, and the woman said to Saoul, “Why did you deceive me? And you are Saoul!” 13And the king said to her, “Have no fear; tell whom you have seen.” And she said to him, “I have seen gods coming up out of the ground.” 14And he said to her, “What did you perceive?” And she said to him, “A man, standing, coming up out of the ground, and he is wrapped in a double-cloak.” And Saoul knew that this was Samouel, and he bowed with his face to the ground and did obeisance to him.

15 And Samouel said, “Why did you disturb me that I ascend?” And Saoul said, “I am greatly distressed, and the allophyles are warring against me, and God has turned away from me and no longer heeds me, either by the hand of prophets or by dreams, and now I have summoned you to tell me what I shall do.” 16And Samouel said, “Why do you inquire of me? And the Lord has turned from you and is with your neighbor, 17and the Lord has done to you just as he spoke by my hand, and the Lord will tear your kingdom out of your hand and give it to your neighbor Dauid. 18Because you did not hear the voice of the Lord and did not carry out his fierce wrath on Amalek, therefore the Lord did this thing to you this day. 19And the Lord will hand over Israel along with you into the hands of allophyles, and tomorrow you and your sons with you shall fall, and the Lord will give the camp of Israel into the hands of allophyles.”

20 And Saoul hastened, and as he stood, he fell on the ground and was filled with fear because of the words of Samouel, and there was no more any strength in him, for he had eaten nothing the whole day and that whole night. 21And the woman came to Saoul and saw that he fastened greatly and said to him, “Behold, indeed your slave heard your voice, and I put my life in my hand and heard the words that you spoke to me, 22and now do listen to the voice of your slave, and I will set a morsel of bread before you, and eat, and there will be strength in you for you will go on the way.” 23And he did not want to eat, and his servants and the woman were urging him, and he listened to their voice and got up from the ground and sat on the seat. 24And the woman had a gracious heifer in the house, and she hastened and slaughtered it and took flour and kneaded it and baked unleavened cakes 25and brought them before Saoul and before his servants, and they ate. And they rose and went away that night.

29 And allophyles gathered all their armies at Aphek, and Israel encamped in Aendor which is in Izrael. 2And satraps of allophyles were passing on by hundreds and by thousands, and Dauid and his men were passing on in the rear with Anchous. 3And the satraps of the allophyles said, “Who are these who pass by?” And Anchous said to the commanders of the allophyles, “Is this not Dauid, the slave of King Saoul of Israel? He has been with us for days; this is the second year, and from the day he fell in with me I have found no fault in him and until this day.” 4And the commanders of the allophyles were distressed by him and said to him, “Return the man to his place, there where you have assigned him, and let him not go with us to the battle, and let him not be a plotter against the camp, and by what means could this fellow reconcile himself to his lord? Would it not be with the heads of those men? 5Is this not Dauid, for whom they began with dances, saying, ‘Saoul has killed amongst his thousands, and Dauid amongst his ten thousands?’”

6 And Anchous called Dauid and said to him, “The Lord lives, that you and your going in and your going out with me in the camp are right and good in my eyes and that I have not found evil against you from the day you have come to me until the present day, and in the eyes of the satraps you are not good. 7And now go back, and go in peace, and you shall not do evil in the eyes of the satraps of the allophyles.” 8And Dauid said to Anchous, “What have I done to you, and what did you find in your slave from the day I was before you even until this day, that I shall not go to fight the enemies of my lord the king?” 9And Anchous replied to Dauid, “I know that you are good in my eyes, but the satraps of the allophyles say, ‘He shall not go up with us to battle.’ 10And now be early in the morning, you and the servants of your lord who came with you, and go to the place, there where I appointed you, and do not place a pestilent thought in your heart, for you are good before me, and start early on the way, and let there be light upon you, and go.” 11And Dauid was early to depart, he and his men, and to guard the land of the allophyles, and the allophyles went up to fight against Israel.

30 And it happened, when Dauid and his men entered into Sekelak on the third day, that Amalek had made a raid on the south and on Sekelak and had struck Sekelak and burned it with fire, 2and with respect to the women and all that was in it, from small up to great, they did not put to death man or woman, but took them captive and went on their way. 3And Dauid came, and his men, to the city, and behold, it had been burned with fire, but their wives and their sons and their daughters taken captive. 4And Dauid raised, and his men, their voice, and they wept until they had no more strength left to weep. 5And both Dauid’s wives were taken captive, Achinoom the Izraelite and Abigaia the wife of Nabal the Carmelite. 6And Dauid was greatly distressed, for the people spoke of stoning him, because the soul of all the people was in great pain each for his sons and for his daughters, and Dauid was strengthened in the Lord, his God.
7 And Dauid said to the priest, Abiathar son of Achimelech, "Bring the ephoud." 8 And Dauid inquired through the Lord, saying, "Shall I pursue after this geddour? Shall I overtake them?" And he said to him, "Pursue, for overtaking you shall overtake, and delivering you shall deliver." 9 And Dauid went out, he and the six hundred men with him. And they came to Wadi Bosor, and the reserves stayed. 10 And he pursued with four hundred men, but two hundred stayed behind, who stayed on the other side of Wadi Bosor.

11 And in the open country they found an Egyptian man, and they took him and brought him to Dauid in the open country, and they gave him bread, and he ate, and his spirit revived in him, for he had not eaten bread or drunk water for three days and three nights. 12 And Dauid said to him, "Whose are you, and where are you from?" And the Egyptian lad said, "I am a slave of an Amalekite man, and my master left me behind because I fell sick three days ago. 13 And we had made a raid on the south of Cholthi and on the parts of Judea and on the south of Chelouh, and we burned Sekelak with fire." 14 And Dauid said to him, "Will you take me down to this geddour?" And he said, "Do swear to me by God that you will not put me to death and not hand me over into the hands of my master, and I will take you down to this geddour." 15 And Dauid recovered all that the Amalekites took and delivered both his wives. 16 And Dauid came upon them and smote them from the land of amalekites and from the land of louldas. 17 And Dauid came upon them and smote them from morning star till late at night and on the morrow, and not a man of them escaped, except four hundred lads, who had mounted on camels and fled. 18 And Dauid recovered all that the Amalekites took and delivered both his wives. 19 And nothing was amiss with them, from small up to great and to all the things that they took of theirs; Dauid brought back all the things. 20 And Dauid took all the flocks and herds and led them away ahead of the spoils, and of those spoils it was being said, "These are Dauid's spoils."

21 And Dauid came to the two hundred men who had been too exhausted to go after Dauid, and he had caused them to sit at Wadi Bosor, and they went out to meet Dauid and to meet the people who were with him, and Dauid drew near to the people, and they asked him the matters for peace. 22 And every pestilent and bad fellow among the men, the warriors, who had gone with Dauid answered and said, "Because they did not pursue together with us, we will not give them any of the spoils that we have recovered, except let each take his wife and his children and leave." 23 And Dauid said, "You shall not do so after the Lord delivered them to us and guarded us, and the Lord delivered the geddour that came against us into our hands. 24 And who will listen to these your words? For they are not inferior to you; because according to the share of the one who goes down into the battle, so shall be the share of the one who stays by the baggage; according to this they shall be divided." 25 And it happened, from that day and beyond, that it was for an ordinance and for a statute for Israel until today.

26 And Dauid came to Sekelak and sent part of the spoils to the elders of louldas and to his fellows, saying, "Behold, some of the spoils of the enemies of the Lord." 27 For those in Baithsour and those in Rama of the south and those in Ieththor and those in Carmel and those in the towns of lerameli and those in the towns of Kenezi and those in Jerimouth and those in Bersabee and those in Noo and those in Chebron and in all the places, there where Dauid crossed, he and his men.

31 And the allophyles were fighting against Israel, and the men of Israel fled from before the allophyles, and wounded fell on Mount Gelboe. 2 And allophyles engaged Saoul and his sons, and allophyles smote Ionathan and Aminadab and Melchisa, sons of Saoul. 3 And the battle pressed hard upon Saoul, and the darters, the bowmen found him, and he was wounded in the abdomen. 4 And Saoul said to the one who bore his armor, "Draw your sword, and thrust me through with it, lest these uncircumcised come and thrust me through and make sport of me." And the one who bore his armor was unwilling, for he feared greatly, and Saoul took the sword and fell upon it. 5 And the one who bore his armor saw that Saoul had died, and he also fell upon his sword and died with him. 6 And Saoul and his three sons and the one who bore his armor died together in that day. 7 And the men of Israel who were on the other side of the valley and those beyond the Jordan saw that the men of Israel fled and that Saoul had died, and his sons, and they forsook their towns and fled, and the allophyles came and settled in them.

8 And it happened on the next day that the allophyles came to strip the dead, and they found Saoul and his three sons fallen on the mountains of Gelboe. 9 And they brought him back and stripped off his armor and sent them into the land of allophyles round about, proclaiming the good news to their idols and to their people. 10 And they put his armor in the Astarteion and they fastened his body on the wall of Baithsan. 11 And the inhabitants of Libas of Galaditis heard what the allophyles had done to Saoul, 12 and every man of might arose and went the whole night and took the body of Saoul and the body of Ionathan his son from the wall of Baithsan and brought them to Libas and burned them there. 13 And they took and buried their bones under the cultivated ground of Libas and fasted seven days.

THE KAIGE TEXT OF REIGNS

TO THE READER

EDITION OF THE GREEK TEXT
The NETS translation of the two Kaige sections in Reigns, 2 Rgns 11.2–3 Rgns 2.11 (= ὑγ) and 3 Rgns 22.1–4 Rgns 25.30 (= γδ), is based on the preliminary critical edition by Alfred Rahlfs, Septuaginta. Id est Vetus Testamentum graece iuxta LXX interpretes, 2 vols. (Stuttgart: Württembergische Bibelanstalt, 1935).

In a few places I have disagreed with Rahlfs' edition. For example, he was correct to adopt τον Λουδα in 2 Rgns 24.1 and Λουδα in 4 Rgns 21.1. Both readings show that the translator rendered ήδων by an uninflected transcription (Λουδα) instead of the inflected form (Λουδας). Inner-Greek copyists preferred Λουδας, which accounts for Rahlfs' readings in 2 Rgns 11.11; 20.5; 4 Rgns 8.19; 9.29; 14.10, 12; 17.19; 21.16; 23.27; 25.21.

KAIGE AS COMPOSITE TEXT
Most Septuagint scholars today agree that Rahlfs' edition of ὑγ and γδ (Thackeray's labels for the two sections) is a reasonable approximation (as a work in progress) to the text presupposed by extant Hexaplaric readings and a counterweight to the text of the so-called Lucianic manuscripts. A growing consensus further suggests that Rahlfs' text most likely represents a composite text, consisting of an underlying Old Greek (OG) translation (second century BCE) interspersed with "Kaige" revisions (latter part of the first century BCE, perhaps by a Jewish Palestinian school of translators), with the aim of bringing the OG into closer agreement with a proto-Masoretic text. This composite text is commonly referred to as "Kaige-Theodotion" or simply "Kaige." For further details about scholarly theories on the OG and Kaige in 1–4 Reigns, see, "The Old Greek Text of REIGNS" (pp. 244–248).

TWO SECTIONS OF KAIGE

Shared Features in ὑγ and γδ
Several translation equivalents and techniques are shared by ὑγ and γδ, in contrast to the OG sections of 1–4 Reigns. (1) Εἰς or Εἰςθαμμεν was typically rendered by καί γε (c. 26x and 17x respectively: e.g., 2 Rgns 11.12, 17, 21, 24; 3 Rgns 22.22; 4 Rgns 2.5; 8.1) in distinction from καί in OG (c. 72x). One can therefore infer that a Kaige translator/reviser was intent on contrasting καί with Εἰς or Εἰςθαμμεν. I have tried to flag this contrast by glossing καί γε with "and indeed/indeed." (2) ἐγω ἐκαθορίσας ἐπὶ ἱερατῆς "I am–I anointed you to be king over Israel" (2 Rgns 12.7[2] and cf. 1 1.5; 13.28; 15.28; 18.12; 20.17; 24.12, 17; 3 Rgns 2.2). Though γδ is less consistent than ὑγ, there too one finds ἐγω ἐκαθορίσας plus a finite verb (cf. 4 Rgns 4.13; 10.9; 22.20), a barbarism absent from the OG sections of 1–4 Reigns. (3) Though κάλπη “a ram’s horn” is translated by σαλπιγξ “a (metal) trumpet” in the OG (and Lucianic manuscripts within ὑγ and γδ), in Kaige it is rendered by κροστίνη “a horn” (e.g., contrast 1 Rgns 13.3 with 2 Rgns 18.16 and 4 Rgns 9.13). (4) The historic present tense, found over 220 times in the OG sections, is used fewer than 10 times in Kaige. (5) Εἰς ήδων “from” is rendered by ἐπάνωσθαι or ἐπάνω “from upon,” rather than by ἐπί or ἐπάνω “from” as in OG (e.g., 2 Rgns 11.21; 13.9; 24.25; 3 Rgns 2.4; 4 Rgns 2.3, 5, 13, 14; 10.31; 17.21, 23; 25.5, 21, 28). These shared features set ὑγ and γδ apart from the OG sections in 1–4 Reigns.

Isomorphic Translation of Hebrew
Another distinctive Kaige feature, ubiquitous in ὑγ and γδ, is what may be called “rigid isomorphism” or “extreme literalism.” Each constituent element in the source text (apparently proto-Masoretic) is translated sequentially morpheme-for-morpheme or word-for-word, with the result that the Greek is often unidiomatic. Although this feature is not absent from the OG sections, it is more strictly adhered to in ὑγ and γδ (which is not to say that “normal” Greek does not occur). A few examples are in order:
See further 2 Rgns 14.28; 3 Rgns 2.4; 4 Rgns 5.3; 8.20, 22; 10.30; 11.11; 14.21.

Overworked pairings are ἐν ἡμέρᾳ – ιδίᾳ “see/behind” (c. 45x in βυ, 60x in γδ) and λέγων – λέγων “saying” (c. 40x in βυ, 60x in γδ). The infinitive absolute plus finite verb was translated awkwardly by finite verb plus cognate participle/cognate dative, e.g., παροξυόνας παροξυόνας . . . βασιλέως Ἀβιαὶς αὐτοῦ “provokingly you provoked . . . [he] shall die by death” (2 Rgns 12.14; cf. 14.14; 15.8; 17.10–11; 18.2–3; 23.7, 24.24; 3 Rgns 22.28; 4 Rgns 1.4, 6, 16; 8.10, 14; 14.10; 18.30, 33). Oath formulae were rendered word-for-word, to the point where the standard default ἐκ – ἐκ failed to pick up on the emphatic negative component of γδ when it occurs in an oath, which resulted in an unstated protasis or apodosis, e.g., ζῆν κύριος ἐπεστείλατε ἀπό τῆς τρίχος τοῦ υἱοῦ σου ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν “The Lord lives, if a hair of your son shall fall on the ground!” (2 Rgns 14.11; cf. 11.11; 14.19; 15.21; 19.8; 3 Rgns 2.8; 4 Rgns 2.2, 4, 6; 3.14; 4.30; 5.16). Throughout βυ and γδ clauses were not subordinated but simply strung together according to the equation 1 – καί.

Stereotypes

Stereotyping in βυ and γδ sometimes results in negative semantic interference from the Hebrew source text. So, for example, the third instance of βύλη – εἰρήνη in 2 Rgns 11.7 gives rise to an oxymoron: “and Daud salted after the peace of Joab and after the peace of the people and after the peace of the war.” In 4 Rgns 1.7 ἐποίησεν has the sense “kind/sort/manner”: “What sort of man was he who came to meet you?” However, the translator's isomorphic approach is further underscored by numerous transcriptions of typically difficult or unknown Hebrew words. For example, in βυ finds one: ἀραβῶν τοῦ βασιλέως in the clause “and there went out after him a burden/portion of the king” (2 Rgns 11.8). ἐποίησεν was derived from ἐποιήσας, which usually corresponds to ιδίω “to raise,” which in turn produced ἀραβικός, a word that is a poor contextual fit here. Another example is τούτος σκυθῆς “his bodyguard” in 2 Rgns 23.23 via the equation ἔπεσεν – ἄρανος “to hear.”

γδ has numerous isolate translations, for example: Νάση “he too” – ἀφοι (4 Rgns 2.14); ἐντὸς ἡμῶν “a short distance” – εἰς διήθησα τῆς γῆς “for debrah of the land” (4 Rgns 5.19); ἐποίησεν ἡμᾶς “to the citadel” – εἰς τοῦ κοσμείνων “into the darkness” (4 Rgns 5.24) where the translator may have misconstrued the Hebrew noun to be ἐποιήσας; ἐποίησεν “a present” – μάνας (4 Rgns 8.8, 9: 17.3, 4: 20.12); ἐποίησεν “then” – ἀφοι (4 Rgns 10.10); ἐποίησεν ἢ καθῆκεν “to the keeper of the wardrobe” – ἐπὶ τοῦ οἴκου μεθάσας “to the man over the house of mastehall” (4 Rgns 10.22); ἐποίησα “the thornbush” – ὁ ἄνω (4 Rgns 14.9[2x]); ἐποίησεν “the Chaldean officials” – έποίησεν τῶν Χαλδαίων “a passing” (4 Rgns 25.24) although the translator may have misread ἐποίησεν as ἐποίησεν as ἐποίησεν. Isolate translations further illustrate the translator's rigid isomorphism in both sections of Kaige.

Transcriptions

The translator's isomorphic approach is further underscored by numerous transcriptions of typically difficult or unknown Hebrew words. For example, in βυ one finds: ἀραβῶν τοῦ βασιλέως “arab of the wilderness” (2 Rgns 15.28), “dried araphoth on it” (17.19), and “saphphoth from cows” (17.29). In γδ a great number of transcriptions occur (c. 26), not including person or place names (cf. 4 Rgns 3.4; 4.39; 8.15; 9.13; 11.8, 12; 12.6, 10; 15.5; 16.17; 17.6; 19.23; 20.12–13; 22.14; 23.4, 5, 7, 11, 24; 25.12, 14, 17). Some of these may be technical terms and thus unknown to the translator, while some may have been institutionalized.

Neologisms

Apparent neologisms in βυ include παροβιβάζω “to put aside” (2 Rgns 12.13; 24.10); κολλυρίζω “to roll κολλυρίας (i.e., rolls)” (13.6, 8); παροβιβάζω “belt” (18.11); ἕξισσω “to hang in the sun (i.e., as a form of torture)” (21.6, 9, 13); ἐπιστηρίγμα “a support” (22.19); μοῦξωνος “a lightly armed (man)” Distinctive Features in βγ and γδ vis-à-vis the MT

βγ and γδ share many translation features, resulting from strict adherence to the Hebrew source text and Kaige revision, which set them apart for the OG sections in 1–4 Reigns. At the same time, both βγ and γδ reflect hundreds of small semantic variants from MT. A comparison of NETS with NRSV will spot many of these. These variants may be quantitative, ranging in length from a single word to several verses, or qualitative, i.e., the source text was interpreted differently. In either case, the composite Kaige text in both βγ and γδ reflects only partial revision towards a proto-Masoretic text.

The fact that semantic variations exist between MT and the Kaige text in both βγ and γδ, means that each section has its own distinctive features or translation profile vis-à-vis MT. Naturally, such features are conditioned by the way the translator (or were there two translators?) handled the details in the various narratives recounted in each section. Here I do not intend to make a detailed comparison between βγ and γδ that would argue for or against the existence of two translators for these two sections. Such a project awaits future study. My more limited aim is to alert the reader to the kind of quantitative and qualitative variants visible in both βγ and γδ.

Distinctive Features in βγ vis-à-vis MT

Many quantitative differences in βγ are probably due to a source text slightly different from proto-MT. In these instances the unwary reader of NETS (side by side with NRSV) might incorrectly conclude that Kaige is a free translation of the corresponding Hebrew. However, close comparison of MT with Kaige, along with new insights from 4QSaM1 (first century BCE), show that many variants in the Greek are best attributed to a Hebrew source different from proto-MT or to changes that occurred in proto-MT after the Hebrew had been translated into Greek (e.g., editorial changes or errors in transmitting the Hebrew).

One may note quantitative variants in: 2 Rgns 11.22; 12.16, 30; 13.21, 27, 34, 39; 14.27, 30; 15.18, 34; 17.3, 8, 28; 18.3, 14, 18; 19.9, 10, 11, 19, 44; 20.18; 21.1, 5, 11, 22; 23.1.1, 3, 8, 9, 15; 24.25; 3 Rgns 14.7, 48 (for discussion see Barthelemy, Driver, McCarter, and McLean).

Other differences are likely due to the translator/reviser. I count some 100 light interpretive touches. Consistent with the translator’s usual mode of translating, these variants are typically limited to one or two words in a given sentence.

Semantic leveling occurs. So for example, while MT distinguishes between מנה הוקדש “commander” (10x, e.g., 2 Rgns 18.5; 19.7) and מלך “chief” (2 Rgns 23.8, 18), the translator uses but one, מנה “commander.”

At other times, the translator differentiated where the Hebrew did not. For example, מנה “slave/servant/minister/adviser/official” was rendered by מנה as “servant” or מנה “slave,” the latter typically in a deferential context (e.g., 2 Rgns 11.24; 13.24; 14.6; 3 Rgns 1.13, 17). Similarly, Hebrew מנה “sword” becomes either מנה “dagger” or מנה a large broad “sword” or “scimitar.” (The last two examples of differentiation occur in γδ also.) In numerous instances the translator made a grammatical subject or object explicit. Sometimes the subject was altered in Greek (e.g., 2 Rgns 20.22; 21.13).

As instances of interpretation in βγ from MT to Kaige (i.e., MT > Kaige) one may cite: “fourfold” > “sevenfold” (2 Rgns 12.6); “desolate woman” > “widow” (13.20); “the king” > “his father” (15.7); “turn [it] into foolishness” > “scatter abroad” (15.31); “playing on pipes” > “dancing in choruses” (3 Rgns 1.40).

In 2 Rgns 18.21, 22, 23, 31, 32 an anonymous “Cushite” has been turned into David’s wise friend “Chousi” (cf. 2 Rgns 15.32, 37; 16.16–18; 17.5–8, 14, 15).
Distinctive Features in γδ vis-à-vis MT

In general, the Hebrew text behind γδ appears to have been in better shape than that behind βγ. Nevertheless, one observes many pluses and minuses in γδ vis-à-vis MT. Two of the longest variants involve doublets. (1) Greek text missing at 3 Rgns 22.47–50 (= 1 Kings 22.46–49 in NRSV) actually appears in the OG section at 3 Rgns 16.28d–g. This doublet concerns the reign of Iosaphat, cf. 3 Rgns 16.28a–h; 22.41–46, 51. (2) γδ contains a lengthy plus at 4 Rgns 1.18a–d concerning Ioram’s reign, which reappears with slight differences in the doublet at 4 Rgns 3.1–3.

Other quantitative variants are typically only a word or a few words in length. Minuses in γδ (i.e., pluses in MT) occur in or in between such verses as: 3 Rgns 22.47–50; 4 Rgns 1.17; 3.13; 4.20; 5.21; 6.21, 31; 9.28, 29, 32; 10.14; 13.1, 13, 16; 15.14, 19; 16.11–12; 17.14–15, 27; 18.34; 19.6, 10, 15, 25, 34; 20.11; 21.7, 12; 23.17; 24.2; 25.10. Pluses in γδ occur in: e.g., 3 Rgns 22.7, 53; 4 Rgns 1.18a–d (cf. 3.1–3); 2.6; 16; 4.36; 6.16; 9.16, 29, 32; 10.16, 21, 34; 15.25; 16.2; 17.32; 19.20; 20.21; 22.3; 23.16, 29. Given the relatively good shape of the Hebrew text, many of the pluses here and elsewhere in γδ may have been intentionally added by the translator to clarify the identity of a speaker, to avoid points of misunderstanding, to highlight certain items, or for other unknown reasons. In one case, 4 Rgns 17.32–34, Kaige reflects a doublet and several minuses whose overall effect, whether or not they stem from the translator, is to paint the Samaritans and their syncretistic practices in a harsher way than in MT. Sometimes the translator might have misread the Hebrew, for example in 4 Rgns 5.24; 6.25; 7.10, from the translator, is to paint the Samaritans and their syncretistic practices in a harsher way than in MT. Sometimes the translator might have misread the Hebrew, for example in 4 Rgns 5.24; 6.25; 7.10, 17; 11.10, 14; 19.25.

Variations between the Hebrew and Greek texts, however the differences arose, also have a bearing on the complicated chronological problems that surface in γδ and elsewhere in 1–4 Reigns. For example, in 4 Rgns 8.25–29 Kaige does not distinguish as clearly as MT between kings Ioram and Jehoram. In 8.17 Rahlfs adopted the reading “eight years” (= MT) for the length of Jehoram’s reign; yet another well at-

One finds instances of semantic leveling. In 4 Rgns 13.12 and περὶ were leveled to ποιεῖν (NETS “did” and “exercised” allows for better English grammar). In 4 Rgns 24.6, 8, 12, 15; 25.27 Kaige fails to distinguish between father Jehoiakim and his son Jehoiakin and names them both “Ioakim.” This leads to further confusion in 4 Rgns 3.1–3 where there is another variant concerning the relationship between Ioakim and Sedeikas.

Occasionally Kaige exhibits semantic differentiation. In 4 Rgns 2.2, 4, 6 Elisaie declares three times that he will not “leave” or “abandon” Eliou, a small change from MT’s “leave.” In 4 Rgns 10.27 men “pulled down (κατστρέφου) the steles of Baal and tore down (κατστρέφου) the house of Baal,” while MT uses the same verb γραφεῖν “demolish.” In 4 Rgns 11.9 Kaige describes Iodae not only as “the priest” (2x in MT) but also as διακήρυκας “the wise,” perhaps picking up on the semantic component ΔΙΚΤΟΣ in his Hebrew name ΔΙΚΤΟΣ “Jehoiada.”

On numerous occasions in γδ the translator interpreted the Hebrew in a different way from what we see in MT (glossed here as, MT > Kaige). For example: “Elijah ascended in a whirlwind into heaven” > “Eliou was taken up in a whirlwind as into heaven” (4 Rgns 2.11); “mantle/cloak” > “sheepskin” (4 Rgns 2.8, 13, 14; in LXX μπαλζτε is used solely to designate Eliou’s sheepskin, cf. previously in the OG in 3 Rgns 19.13, 19); “eighty shekels” > “fifty shekels” (4 Rgns 6.25); “arrows” > “bows” (4 Rgns 13.18); “king of Assyria” > “king of the Assyrians” (c. 48x, e.g., 4 Rgns 15.19, 20, 29); “they did wicked things”...

TO THE READER OF THE KAIGE TEXT OF ReIGNS

> “and they made partners and engraved <Perhaps engraved stelae>” (4 Rgns 17.11); “he prospered” > “he understood” (4 Rgns 18.7); “one hundred talents of silver and a talent of gold” > “one hundred talents of silver and one hundred talents of gold” (4 Rgns 23.33); “the captain of the bodyguard” > “the chief cook” (4 Rgns 25.8, 10–12, 15, 18, 20). In 4 Rgns 11.4, 19 MT refers to captains of “the Carites” (אַרְיאֵים) and “the guards” (בְּנֵי־חֲמֵשָׁה), while Kaige interpreted these as two commanders named “Chorri” (חורי) and “Rasim” (Ρασίμ). In 4 Rgns 2.12 the translator interpreted the expression “Father, father! The chariots of Israel and its horsemen!” (MT) as “Father, father! Chariot of Israel and its horseman!” (γäche), apparently a designation for the prophet Eliou himself, not a description of other elements in the vision (similarly in 13.14 where Elisha is given the same epithet). In 4 Rgns 8.1, 5, Elisha is said to have vividly “sparked to life” (ξησαμόθησαν) the Soumanite woman’s dead son (MT reads Hiphil forms of ἀνέστη “restored”; contrast 5.7 where the verb ἔζωσεν “to make alive” was used).

Some semantic variants in γutsche pertain to foreign gods or goddesses. (1) The translator consistently rendered ἀσερά “Asherah” or the Asherah pole that represented this foreign goddess by τὸ ἄλος “a sacred grove” (4 Rgns 13.6; 17.10, 16; 18.4; 21.3, 7; 23.4, 6, 7, 14, 15 and cf. the precedent for this in Ex 34.13; Deut 7.5). (2) In 4 Rgns 1.2, 3, 6, 16 (and cf. 21.3) the translator interpreted “Baal” in an intriguing manner: ἄλος ἄρετες “of Baal-zebub [i.e., Baal of flies] the god of Ekron” – ἐν τῇ Βασίλειον τοῦ Ἀκκάρου “by the goddess Baal, fly god of Akkaron.” Oddly, the translator refers to this Baal using both feminine and masculine articulation (e.g., 1.2 ἐν τῇ Βασίλειον where NETS supplies “goddess” and διὰ αὐτοῦ “through him”). Previously, in 3 Rgns 22.54, the translator rendered Μιλησίας “Baal – τοῖς Βασιλίων “the Baalim” using a transcription (Βασιλίων usually marks the plural form ἀσεράς, e.g., 1 Rgns 7.4; 12.10; 3 Rgns 18.18). Thus the translator perceived Baal in a variety of ways.

Finally, some of the translator’s interpretations touch on matters of a theological nature. (1) Where MT frequently reads “man of God” in reference to Elisha, for some reason Kaige preferred “Elishaic” (cf. 4 Rgns 4.16, 25, 27; 5.8, 14, 15, 20; 6.9, 10, 15; 7.2, 18, 19; 8.2). One might suppose the translator did this to avoid being vague or confusing Elisaie with others called a “man of God” (e.g., Eliou, cf. 3 Rgns 17.18, 24; 4 Rgns 19.9–13). However, in many other verses pertaining to Elisha as a “man of God,” Kaige did translate the expression word-for-word (e.g., 4.7, 9, 21, 22, 25, 40, 42; 7.17; 8.4, 7, 8, 11; 13.19). (2) If the variation in 4 Rgns 20.17 is not attributed to a different Hebrew Vorlage, then the translator has shown theological interest in underscoring the point that every word of the Lord shall be fulfilled: ἵνα ἡ λόγος τοῦ Κυρίου ἀνέλθῃ καὶ δέντρα καὶ δέντρα “nothing shall be left, says the Lord” – καὶ οὐκ ὑπολείψηται βῆμα ὅ ἐπιηθεν κυρίος “and no word which the Lord said shall fail.”

In summary

There are numerous shared features in the so-called “Kaige” text of ἄγω and γutsche that distinguish these two sections from the OG sections found elsewhere in 1–4 Reigns. The Kaige text itself is most likely a composite text which consists of an underlying layer of OG along with a scattering of subsequent partial revisions towards a proto-Masoretic text. In both ἄγω and γutsche the Kaige text reflects a typically isomorphic word-for-word rendering of the Hebrew source text, to the point where one finds examples in almost every sentence of linguistic features native to Hebrew that have been translated quite mechanically into Greek. The longer pluses or minuses found in these Kaige chapters, vis-à-vis the traditional Hebrew text every sentence of linguistic features native to Hebrew that have been translated quite mechanically into Greek, small interpretive touches for various contextual reasons, and some theological interpretations, all of which have affected the Greek narrative in slightly different ways from the Hebrew story.

The NETS Translation of Kaige in ἄγω and γutsche

Throughout my translation of Kaige in sections ἄγω and γutsche, I have tried to adhere strictly to the guidelines outlined in the introduction, “TO THE READER OF NETS.” In particular, in order to represent the predominantly isomorphic and stilted nature of the Greek text, I have intentionally used an isomorphic or wooden style of English, when demanded by the Greek. Even in verses where the Hebrew and Greek texts are semantically equivalent, the reader will observe that NETS (correctly) has the same essential meaning as NRSV, though the style of the NETS translation may be laborious English. In other words, in translating the Greek text, I have often altered the wording of NRSV in such a way that NETS reproduces unidiomatic Greek features using unidiomatic yet grammatical English.
EDITORIAL DETAIL
In matters of punctuation I have followed NRSV as much as possible. To assist the reader in making sense of Kaige’s awkward rendering of ἐγώ εἰμι plus a finite verb, I have used an em dash (e.g., 3 Rgns 2.8). An ellipsis indicates the unstated protasis or apodosis in an oath (e.g., 2 Rgns 11.11). Versification follows Rahlfs’ Greek text with NRSV’s verse numbers in parentheses where applicable (cf. 2 Rgns 19.1–44; 3 Rgns 22.44–54; 4 Rgns 1.18a–d; 12.1–22).

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

My heartfelt appreciation goes to my teacher and friend, Albert Pietersma, co-editor of NETS and the director of my doctoral thesis. Al has provided me with expert guidance, sage advice and warm encouragement throughout the translation and analysis of both Kaige sections in 1–4 Reigns.

PAUL D. McLEAN
And it happened, after Saoul died, that Daid returned from smiting Amalek, and Daid settled two days in Sekelak. And it happened on the third day, and behold, a man came from the camp of Saoul’s people, and his clothes were torn, and earth was on his head. And it happened, when he came in to Daid, that he fell to the ground and did obeisance to him. And Daid said to him, "Where have you come from?" And he said to him, "I have come safe from the camp of Israel." And Daid said to him, "What is this word? Tell me!" And he said, "The people fled from the battle, and many of the people have fallen and died, and Saoul died, and his son Ionathan died." And Daid said to the lad who was telling him, "How do you know that Saoul and his son Ionathan died?" And the lad who was telling him said, "By accident I had an encounter on Mount Gelboue, and behold, Saoul was propped up on his spear, and behold, the chariots and the horse captains drew close to him. And he looked on the things behind him and saw me and called me, and I said, "Behold, here am I." And he said to me, "Who are you?" And I said 'I am an Amalekite.' And he said to me, 'Do stand over me, and put me to death, for I knew that he could not live after he had fallen, and I took the crown that was on his head and the armlet that was on his arm, and I have brought them here to my lord.'

And Daid took hold of his clothes and tore them, and all the men who were with him tore their clothes. And they beat themselves and wept until evening for Saoul and for his son Ionathan and for the people of Ioudas and for the house of Israel, because they were smitten with a sword. And Daid said to the lad who had told him, "Where are you from?" And he said, "I am son of a man, a resident alien, an Amalekite." And Daid said to him, "How did you not fear to bring your hand to destroy the Lord’s anointed?" And Daid called one of his lads and said, "Drawing near, fall upon him," and he struck him down, and he died. And Daid said to him, "Your blood be on your head, for your mouth answered against you, saying, 'I put to death the Lord’s anointed.’"

And Daid lamented this lamentation over Saoul and over his son Ionathan and said to the sons of Ioudas—behold, it is written in a book of the upright—

Set up a monument, O Israel, for the wounded that have died upon your heights! How the mighty have fallen!

Tell it not in Geth, and proclaim it not in the exits of Ascalon, lest daughters of allophyles rejoice, lest daughters of the uncircumcised exult.

You mountains that are in Gelboue, let no dew descend, and let there be no rain upon you or fields of first fruits! For there the shield of the mighty was treated with vexation; Saoul’s shield was not anointed with oil.

From the blood of wounded, from the fat of mighty ones, Ionathan’s bow did not return empty to the rear, and Saoul’s sword did not turn back empty.

Saoul and Ionathan, the beloved and lovely, not divided; comely in their life and in their death they were not divided; swift beyond eagles they were, and they had strength beyond lions.

O daughters of Israel, weep over Saoul, who clothed you with scarlet with your ornament, who brought gold ornament to your apparel.

How the mighty have fallen amidst the battle! Ionathan, a casualty upon your heights. I grieve for you, my brother Ionathan; you were made very beautiful to me; your love to me was wonderful, beyond women’s love.

How the mighty have fallen, and the weapons of war perished!

And it happened after these things that Daid inquired by the Lord, saying, “Shall I go up into one of the cities of Ioudas?” And the Lord said to him, “Go up.” And Daid said, “Where shall I go up?” And he said, “To Chebron.” And Daid went up there to Chebron, and both his wives, Achinoom the Iezraelite and Abigaia, the wife of Nabal the Carmelite, and the men who were with him, each and his household, and they dwelled in the towns of Chebron. And the men of Judea came, and there they anointed Daid to reign over the house of Ioudas. And they told Daid, saying, “The men of labis of Galaaditis buried Saoul.” And Daid sent messengers to the leaders of labis of Galaaditis and said to them, “You are blessed to the Lord, because you have done this mercy to your lord, to Saoul the anointed of the Lord, and buried him and Ionathan his son! And now may the Lord do these good things with you, because you have done this thing. And now let your hands be strong, and become mighty sons, for Saoul your lord is dead, and indeed the house of Ioudas has anointed me king over themselves.”
8 And Abenner son of Ner, commander-in-chief for Saul, took lebosthos the son of Saul and brought him out of the camp to Maama 9and made him king over Galaaditis and over Thasiri and over Iezrael and over Ephraim and over Benjamin and over all Israel. 10lebosthos, Saul’s son, was forty years old when he began to reign over Israel, and he reigned two years, except over the house of Ioudas who were behind Dauid. 11And the days that Dauid was king in Chebron over the house of Ioudas were seven years and six months.

12 And Abenner son of Ner went out, and the servants of lebosthos the son of Saul, from Manama to Gabaon, 13and Ioab son of Sarouia and the servants of Dauid went out from Chebron and met them at the well of Gabaon at the same place and they sat, thesea at the well of Gabaon here and thers at the well there. 14And Abenner said to Ioab, “Do let the lads arise and have a game before us,” and Ioab said, “Let them arise.” 15And they arose and passed by, to the number of twelve of the servants of Benjamin, those of Ietheraam the son of Saouil, and twelve of the servants of Dauid. 16And they held each his hand upon the head of his fellow, and they fell down together, and the name of that place was called the Portion of the Plotters, which is at Gabaon. 17And the battle was extremely hard in that day, and Abenner stumbled, and the men of Benjamin, being absent d from being afraid of him. 18And three sons of Sarouia were there, Ioab and Abessa and Asael, and Asael was as swift on his feet as one gazelle in a field. 19And Asael pursued after Abenner and did not turn to go to the right or to the left after Abenner. 20And Abenner looked behind him and said, “Are you Asael himself?” And he answered, “I am.” 21And Abenner said to him, “Turn to the right or to the left, and seize for yourself one of the lads, and take for yourself his armor.” 22And Abenner added again, saying to Asael, “Withdraw from me, lest I strike you to the ground, and how then could I lift up my face to Ioab? And where are these things leading? Return to your brother Ioab.” 23But he was not willing to withdraw. And Abenner struck him in the loins with the butt of his spear, and the spear went out behind him, and he fell there and died under him. And it happened, each one who came to the place, there where Asael fell and died — and he stood still.

24 And Ioab and Abessa pursued after Abenner, and the sun was going down, and they came to the hill of Amman, which is before Gabaon. 25And the sons of Benjamin who were behind Abenner gathered themselves together and formed one band, and they stood on the top of one hill. 26And Abenner said to Ioab and said, “The sword will not devour unto victory, will it? Do you not know that in the end it will be bitter? And how long will you not say to the people to turn from after our brothers?” 27And Ioab said, “The Lord lives, for if you had not spoken, wherefore, then the people from early morning would have gone up, each after his brother.” 28And Ioab trumpeted with the trumpet, and all the people departed, and they did not pursue after Israel, and they did not add to fight any longer.

29 And Abenner and his men returned westward that whole night and crossed the Jordan and went the whole stretch of time aheadb and came to the camp. 30And Ioab returned from after Abenner and gathered all the people together, and nineteen men and Asael of Dauid’s servants were notedc. 31And the servants of Dauid smote of the sons of Benjamin three hundred sixty men, belonging to him. 32And they took up Asael and buried him in the tomb of his father at Baithleem. And Ioab went, and the men who were with him, the whole night, and the day broke upon them at Chebron.
son Memphibosthe, saying, “Give me back my wife Melchol whom I took for a hundred foreskins of allophyles.” 15And Memphibosthe sent and took her from her husband, from Phaltiel son of Selles. 16And her husband went with her, weeping behind her until Barakim, and Abenner said to him, “Go, return,” and he returned.

17 And Abenner said to the elders of Israel, saying, “Yesterday and the third day you were seeking Dauid to rule over you, 18and now act, for the Lord spoke concerning Dauid, saying: ‘By the hand of my slave Dauid I will save Israel from the hand of allophyles and from the hand of all their enemies.’” 19 And Abenner spoke in the ears of Benjamin. And Abenner went to speak in the ears of Dauid at Chebron all that seemed pleasing in the eyes of Israel and in the eyes of all the house of Benjamin.

20 And Abenner came to Dauid at Chebron and with him twenty men. And Dauid made a feast for Abenner and the men who were with him. 21And Abenner said to Dauid, “Indeed I will arise and go and will gather all Israel to my lord the king, and I will make a covenant with you, and you will reign over all that your soul desires.” And Dauid sent away Abenner, and he went in peace.

22 And behold, the servants of Dauid and Ioab arrived from the raid, and they brought much spoil with them, and Abenner was not with Dauid at Chebron, for he had sent him away, and he had gone in peace. 23And Ioab and all his army came, and it was told Ioab, saying, “Abenner son of Ner has come to Dauid, and he has dismissed him, and he went away in peace.” 24 And Ioab went in to the king and said, “What is this you have done? Behold, Abenner came to you, and why have you sent him off, and he has gone away in peace?” 25Do you not know that a great leader has fallen in this day in Israel 26and that today I am a reproach before sons of injustice you fell.

And all the people gathered to weep over him. 27And all the people came to make Dauid eat a funeral meal with bread while it was still day, and Dauid swore, saying, “This is what God may do, and this may he add, because, if the sun does not set, I will not taste of bread, or from anything!” 28And all the people knew, and everything that the king did before the people was pleasing before them. 29And all the people and all Israel knew in that day that it was not from the king to put Abenner son of Ner to death. 30And the king said to his servants, “Do you not know that a great leader has fallen in this day in Israel and that today I am a Kinsman and one appointed by a king? But these men, sons of Sarouia, are too cruel for me; the Lord pay back the one who does evil in accordance with his wickedness!”

4 And Saoul’s son Memphibosthe heard that Abenner had died at Chebron, and his hands were weakened, and all the men of Israel grew faint. 2And Saoul’s son Memphibosthe had two men, captains of bands, the name of the one was Baana, and the name of the second, Rechab, sons of Remmon the Berothite of the sons of Benjamin; for Beroth is reckoned to the sons of Benjamin, 3and the Berothites escaped to Geththaim and were living there as resident aliens to this day.

4 And Saoul’s son Jonathan had a son injured in the feet; he was a son of five years when the news about Saoul and his son Jonathan came from Iezrael, and his nurse picked him up and fled, and it happened, when she hastened and withdrew, that he fell and became lame, and his name was Memphibosthe.

5 And sons of Remmon the Berothite, Rekcha and Baana, went, and about the heat of the day they entered into the house of Memphibosthe, and he was sleeping on the bed at noonday, 6and behold, the doorkeeper of the house was cleaning wheat, and she became drowsy and slept, and Rekcha and Baana, the brothers, escaped notice 7and entered into the house, and Memphibosthe was asleep on his couch in his bedchamber, and they attacked him and put him to death and beheaded him and took his head and returned by the western road the whole night. 8And they brought the head of Memphibosthe to Dauid at Chebron and said to the king, “Behold, the head of Memphibosthe son of Saoul your enemy, who used to seek your life, and the Lord gave the lord king vengeance on his enemies, as this day, on Saoul your enemy and on his offspring.” 9And Dauid answered Rekcha and his brother Baana sons of Remmon the Berothite and said to... them, “The Lord lives, who redeemed my life out of every adversity.” 10 For the one who told me that Saoul had died—and he was as one bringing good news before me—and I seized and killed him at Sekelak, to whom I ought to have given a reward for good tidings. 11 And now wicked men have killed a righteous man on his bed in his own house! And now I shall require his blood at your hand and destroy you from the earth.” 12 And Dauid commanded his lad, and they killed them and docked their hands and their feet and hung them at the well at Chebron, and the head of Memphibosethe they buried in the tomb of Abenner son of Ner.

5 And all the tribes of Israel came to Dauid at Chebron and said to him, “Behold, we are your bone and your flesh, and yesterday and the third day, while Saoul was king over us, it was you who led out and brought in Israel, and the Lord said to you: It is you who shall shepherd my people Israel, and it is you who shall become a ruler over Israel.” 3 And all the elders of Israel came to the king at Chebron, and King Dauid made a covenant with them at Chebron before the Lord, and they anointed Dauid king over all Israel. 4 Dauid was a son of thirty years when he began to reign, and he reigned forty years, seven years and six months he reigned at Chebron over Ioudas, and thirty-three years he reigned over all Israel and Ioudas at Ierousalem.

6 And Dauid departed, and his men, to Ierousalem against the lebusiote who inhabited the land. And it was said to Dauid, “You will not come in here,” for the blind and the lame resisted, saying, “Dauid shall not come in here.” 7 And Dauid took the stronghold Sion (this is the city of Dauid). 8 And Dauid said on that day, “Everyone who strikes down the Iebousite, let him attack with a dirk both the lame and the blind, and those who hate the soul of Dauid”; therefore they shall say, “The blind and the lame shall not come into the house of the Lord.” 9 And Dauid settled in the stronghold, and this was called the city of Dauid, and he built the city all around from the citadel and his house. 10 And Dauid would go, going and increasing, and the Lord Almighty was with him.

11 And King Chiram of Tyre sent messengers to Dauid and cedar wood and craftsmen of wood and craftsmen of stones, and they built Dauid a house. 12 And Dauid perceived that the Lord had prepared him to be king over Israel and that his kingdom was exalted for the sake of his people Israel. 13 And Dauid took yet wives and concubines out of Ierousalem after he came from Chebron, and Dauid yet had sons and daughters. 14 And these are the names of those who were born to him in Ierousalem: Sammous and Sobab and Nathan and Salomon 15 and Ebeer and Elisous and Naphek and Iephies 16 and Elisama and Elidae and Eliphalath, Samae, Lessibath, Nathan, Galamaan, lebaat, Theesous, Elphalat, Naged, Naphek, Iananah, Leasamy, Baalimath, Eliphalath.

17 And allophyles heard that Dauid had been anointed king over Israel, and all the allophyles went up to seek Dauid, and Dauid heard and went down to the stronghold. 18 And the allophyles came and converged on the valley of the Titans. 19 And Dauid inquired through the Lord, saying, “Shall I go up against the allophyles, and will you give them into my hands?” And the Lord said to Dauid, “Go up, for giving I will give the allophyles into your hands.” 20 And Dauid came from the upper breaches and smote the allophyles there, and Dauid said, “The Lord has breached my enemies the allophyles before me, like water is breached”; therefore the name of that place was called the Upper Breaches. 21 And they abandoned their gods there, and Dauid and those who were with him took them.

22 And allophyles added still to come up and converged in the valley of the Titans. 23 And Dauid inquired through the Lord, and the Lord said, “You shall not go up to meet them; return from them, and you shall meet them near the Wailing.” 24 And it will be when you hear the sound of the confinement of the grove of the Wailing, then you shall go down to them, because then the Lord will go out before you, to strike down in the battle of the allophyles.” 25 And Dauid did just as the Lord had commanded him and struck down the allophyles from Gabaon to the land of Gazera.

6 And Dauid again gathered every young man of Israel, about seventy thousand. 2 And he arose and went, Dauid and all the people with him, from the rulers of Ioudas on an ascent, to bring up from there the ark of God on which the name of the Lord of hosts who is seated on the cherubim upon it is called. 3 And he loaded the ark of the Lord on a new cart and brought it out of the house of Aminadab which was on the hill, and Oza and his brothers, sons of Aminadab, were leading the cart 4 with the ark, and his brothers were going in front of the ark. 5 And Dauid and the sons of Israel were sporting before the Lord with tuned instruments, with strength and with songs and with cinyrasb and with nablas and with drums and with cymbals and with flutes.

6 And they came to the threshing floor of Nodab, and Oza reached out his hand to the ark of God to steady it and took hold of it, for the bull calf caused it to swerve, to steady it. 7 And the Lord was angry with Oza, and God struck him there, and he died there beside the ark of the Lord before God. 8 And Dauid was disheartened because the Lord breached a breach upon Oza, and that place was called the Breach of Oza until this day. 9 And Dauid was afraid of the Lord in that day, saying, “How will the ark of the Lord come to me?” 10 And Dauid did not want to turn aside the ark of the covenant of the Lord to him in the city of Dauid, and Dauid turned it aside into the house of Abed-dara the Geththite. 11 And the ark of the Lord sat in the house of Abeddara the Geththite three months, and the Lord blessed the whole house of Abdeddara and all that belonged to him.

12 And it was told King Dauid, saying, "The Lord has blessed the house of Abdeddara and all that belongs to him because of the ark of God." And Dauid went and brought up the ark of the Lord from the house of Abbeddara to the city of Dauid with rejoicing. 13 And there were with them seven bands carrying the ark and a sacrifice: calf and lamb. 14 And Dauid struck upon tuned instruments before the Lord, and Dauid was girded with a distinguishing garment. 15 And Dauid and all the house of Israel brought up the ark of the Lord with shouting and with sound of trumpet.

16 And it happened, as the ark of the Lord was entering the city of Dauid, that Melchol the daughter of Saoul was peeking through the window and saw King Dauid dancing and striking up before the Lord, and she despised him in her heart.

17 And they brought the ark of the Lord and set it in its place into the midst of the tent that Dauid pitched for it, and Dauid offered whole burnt offerings and peace offerings and blessed the people in the name of the Lord of hosts 19 and distributed to all the people, to all the host of Israel from Dan to Bersabee, from man until woman, to each a small loaf of bread and a portion of roasted bread and a cake from a frying-pan, and all the people went back, each to his home.

20 And Dauid returned to bless his household, and Melchol the daughter of Saoul came out to meet Dauid and blessed him and said, "How the king of Israel has honored himself today, who was uncovered today in the eyes of his own slaves' maids, as one of the disrobed dancers uncovers himself?" 21 And Dauid said to Melchol, "I will dance before the Lord; blessed be the Lord who has loved me until today, and will not remove my mercy from him, as I removed it from those whom I removed from before me. 16 And his house and his kingdom shall be made sure forever before me, and his throne shall be restored forever. 17 According to all these words and according to all this vision, thus Nathan spoke to Dauid.

18 And King Dauid went in and sat before the Lord and said, "Who am I, my Lord, O Lord, and what is my house, that you have loved me until these? 19 And it was very small before you, my Lord, O Lord, and you spoke of your slave's house, and you spoke of your slave's house to your servant, saying: 20 And what more shall Dauid add to say to you? And now you know your slave, my Lord, O Lord! 21 On account of your slave you have acted and according to your own heart you did all this greatness to make known to your slave, 22 for the sake of magnifying you, my Lord, O Lord, for there is no one like you and there is no god besides you in all that we have heard with our ears.

23 And who is like your people Israel—another nation in the earth? How God guided them to redeem a people for him to make you a name to do greatness and manifestation that you should cast out nations and coverts from before your people whom you redeemed for yourself out of Egypt! 24 And you prepared your people Israel for yourself, a people forever, and you, O Lord, became a god to them. 25 And now, my Lord, O Lord, the word that you spoke concerning your slave and his house, confirm it forever, O Lord Almighty, O God of Israel, and now as you said, may your name be magnified forever. 27 O Lord Almighty, God of Israel, you uncovered the ear of your slave, saying, 'I will build you a house'; therefore your slave found his own heart to pray this prayer to you. 28 And now, my Lord, O Lord, you are God, and your words will be true, and you spoke these good things concerning your slave. 29 And now begin, and bless the house of your slave, that it may exist forever before you, for you exist, my Lord, O Lord; you have spoken, and from your blessing shall the house of your slave be blessed forever."

And it happened after these things that Dauid smote the allophyles and put them to flight, and Dauid took what had been marked off out of the hand of the allophyles.

2 And Dauid smote Moab and measured them off with ropes, putting them to sleep on the ground, and there were the two portions for putting to death, and the two portions he kept alive, and Moab became slaves to Dauid bearing gifts. 3 Dauid also smote Hadraazar son of Raab, king of Souba, as he went to establish his hand to the river Euphrates. 4 And Dauid pre-empted a thousand of his chariots and seven thousand cavalrymen and twenty thousand men on foot, and Dauid disabled all the chariots and left remaining from them a hundred chariots. 5 And Syria of Damascus came to help Hadraazar, king of Souba, and Dauid smote among the Syrian twenty-two thousand men. 6 And Dauid put a garrison in Syria, which was at Damascus, and the Syrian became slaves to Dauid bringing gifts. 7 And the Lord preserved Dauid in all to which he went, and Dauid took the gold bracelets that were on the servants of Hadraazar, king of Souba, and brought them to Ierousalem. 8 And Dauid also smote the allophyles and put them to flight, and Dauid took gold and silver vessels and the bronze sea and the pillars and the washbasins and all the vessels.

9 And Thoou, the king of Hemath, heard that Dauid smote the whole force of Hadraazar, 10 and Thoou sent his son leddouran to King Dauid, to ask him matters of peace and to salute him because he had fought against Hadraazar and smote him, for he was an adversary to Hadraazar, and in his hands were silver vessels and gold vessels and bronze vessels. 11 And these King Dauid dedicated to the Lord with the silver and with the gold that he dedicated from all the cities that he got control of. 12 And Dauid made a name, and when he returned he smote Idumea, eighteen thousand in Gaimele. 13 And he put a garrison in Idumea, throughout all Idumea, and all the Idumeans became the king's slaves. And the Lord preserved Dauid in all to which he went.

15 And Dauid reigned over Israel, and Dauid was administering judgment and justice for all his people. 16 And Joab son of Sarouia was over the army, and Josaphat son of Achia was over the records. 17 And Saddouk son of Achitob and Achimelech son of Abiathar were priests, and Asa was the secretary. 18 And Banaias son of Iodae was counselor—and Cheleththi and Pheletti, and Dauid's sons were chiefs of the court.

9 And Dauid said, "Is there still anyone left of the house of Saoul, and I will do mercy with him for Ionathan's sake," 2 and there was a servant from the house of Saoul, and his name was Siba, and they called him to Dauid. And the king said to him, "Are you Siba?" And he said, "I am your slave." 3 And the king said, "Is there still a man remaining from the house of Saoul, and I will do with him divine mercy," and Siba said to the king, "There is still a son of Ionathan injured in the feet." 4 And the king said, "Where is he?" And Siba said to the king, "Behold, in the house of Machir son of Amiel from Ladabar." 5 And King Dauid sent and took him from the house of Machir son of Amiel from Ladabar. 6 And Memphibosthe son of Ionathan son of Saoul came to King Dauid and fell on his face and did obeisance to him. And Dauid said to him, "Membosthe," and he said, "Behold, your slave." 7 And Dauid said to him, "Do not be afraid, for doing I will do mercy with you on account of your father Ionathan, and I will restore to you every field of Saoul, father of your father, and you shall eat bread at my table always." 8 And Memphibosthe did obeisance and said, "Who am I, your slave, that you looked upon a dead dog like me?"

9 And the king called Saoul's lad Siba and said to him, "All that belongs to Saoul and to his whole house I have given to your master's son, 10 and you shall till the land for him, you and your sons and your slaves, and you shall bring in food to your master's son, and he shall eat it, and your master's son Memphibosthe shall always eat bread at my table." (And Siba had fifteen sons and twenty slaves.) 11 And Siba said to the king, "According to all that my lord the king has commanded his slave, so your slave will do." And Memphibosthe used to eat at Dauid's table like one of the king's sons. 12 And Memphibosthe had a young son and his name was Micha. And all the household of Siba's house became Memphibosthe's slaves. 13 And Memphibosthe was living in Ierousalem, for he always used to eat at the king's table, and he was lame in both his feet.

10 And it happened after these things that the king of the sons of Ammon died, and his son Hannon reigned in his stead. 2 And Dauid said, "I will do mercy with Hannon son of Naas, just as his father did mercy with me," and Dauid sent by his hand of his slaves to comfort him concerning his father. And Dauid's servants came into the land of the sons of Ammon, and the rulers of the sons of Ammon said to their lord Hannon, "Was it from Dauid’s glorifying your father before you, that he sent comforters to you? But has not Dauid sent his servants to you to search the city and to spy it out and in order to survey it?" 4And Hannon took Dauid’s servants and shaved their beards and cut their woolen cloaks in half up to their hips and sent them away. 5And they told Dauid about the men, and he sent for a meeting with them, for the men were very insulted, and the king said, "Settle at Jericho until your beards grow, and you shall return."

6 And the sons of Ammon saw that the people of Dauid were put to shame, and the sons of Ammon sent and hired Syria of Baithroob, twenty thousand foot soldiers, and the king of Maacha, one thousand men, and Istob, twelve thousand men. 7And Dauid heard and sent Ioab and the entire force, the mighty ones. 8And the sons of Ammon came out and prepared for battle near the door of the gate, and Syria of Soubha and Roob and Istob and Maacha were by themselves in open country.

9And Ioab saw that there was a front of the battle against him both in front and in the rear, and he chose from the young men of Israel and arrayed them opposite Syria. 10And the rest of the people he put in the hand of his brother Abessa, and he arrayed them opposite the sons of Ammon. 11And he said, "If Syria is too strong for me, then you shall be a deliverance to me, and if the sons of Ammon are too strong for you, then we will be to save you; 12be valiant, and let us be strong for the sake of our people and for the cities of our God, and the Lord will do what is good in his eyes."

13And Ioab and his people with him moved forward into battle against Syria, and they fled from before him. 14And the sons of Ammon saw that Syria fled, and they fled from before Abessa and entered into the city, and Ioab returned from the sons of Ammon and came to Ierousalem.

15 And Syria saw that they fell before Israel, and they gathered themselves together. 16And Hadraazar sent and gathered Syria who was from beyond the river Chalamak, and they came, Hai-lam and Sobak, the ruler of the army of Hadraazar, in front of them. 17And it was told Dauid, and he gathered all Israel together and crossed the Jordan and came to Hai-lam, and Syria arrayed itself against Dauid and fought with him. 18And Syria fled from before Israel, and Dauid destroyed of Syria seven hundred chariots and forty thousand horsemen and smote Sobak the commander of their force, and he died there. 19And all the kings who were slaves of Hadraazar saw that they stumbled before Israel, and they deserted to Israel and became subject to them. And Syria was afraid to save the sons of Ammon again.

11And it happened after the year had turned, at the time of the going out of kings, Dauid also sent Ioab and his servants with him and all Israel, and they destroyed the sons of Ammon and took up position against Rabbath, and Dauid sat in Ierousalem.

have finished telling the king all the news of the fighting, and it shall be, if the anger of the king rises and he says to you, ‘Why is it that you went so near the city to fight? Did you not know that they would shoot from the top of the wall? 21Who struck Abimelech son of Ierobaal? Did not a woman throw a piece of millstone on him from the top of the wall, and he died at Thamasi? Why did you draw so near the wall?’ and you shall say, ‘And indeed Ourias your slave, the Chettite, died.’

22 And the messenger of Ioab went to the king in Ierousalem and came and told Dauid all that Joab had told him, all the news of the fighting. And Dauid was angry with Ioab and said to the messenger, ‘Why did you draw so near the city to fight? Did you not know that you would be struck from the wall? Who struck Abimelech son of Ierobaal? Did not a woman throw a piece of millstone on him from the wall, and he died at Thamasi? Why did you draw so near the wall?’

23 And the messenger said to Dauid, ‘Because the men prevailed against us and came out against us in the field, and we were upon them to the entrance of the gate. 24 And the archers shot at your servants from the top of the wall, and some of the servants of the king died, and indeed your slave Ourias the Chettite died.’

25 And Dauid said to the messenger, ‘This is what you shall say to Ioab, ‘Do not let this thing be evil in your sight, for the dagger devours now one way then another way; strengthen your fight against the city, and pull it down. And strengthen him.’

26 And the wife of Ourias heard that Ourias her husband had died, and she made lamentation for her husband. 27 And the mourning passed, and Dauid sent and brought her to his house, and she became his wife and bore him a son.

And the thing that Dauid had done appeared evil in the Lord’s sight.

12 And the Lord sent Nathan the prophet to Dauid. And he went in to him and said to him, ‘There were two men in one city, one rich and one poor. 2And the rich man had very many flocks and herds, and the poor man had nothing but one little ewe lamb, which he had bought. And he preserved and reared it, and it grew up with him and with his sons together; it used to eat from his bread and drink from his cup and sleep in his bosom, and it was like a daughter to him. 4And there came a traveler to the rich man, and he refrained from taking anything from his flocks and from his herds to prepare for the stranger, since he had come to him as a wayfarer, and he took the ewe lamb of the poor man and prepared it for the man who had come to him.’

5 And Dauid was greatly inflamed with anger at the man. And Dauid said to Nathan, ‘The Lord lives, for the man who did this is a son of death, and he shall restore the ewe lamb sevenfold, because he did this thing, and because he did not refrain.’

7 And Nathan said to Dauid, ‘You are the man who did this! This is what the Lord, the God of Is-rael, says: I am—I rescured you from the hand of Saoul, and I gave you the house of your master and the wives of your master into your bosom, and I gave you the house of Israel and of Iouda, and if it is too little, I will add to you in accordance with these. 9Why is it that you trivialized the word of the Lord, to do what is evil in his sight? You struck Ourias the Chettite with a sword and took his wife for yourself and killed him with a sword of the sons of Ammon. 10And now, a sword shall never depart from your house, because you counted me as nothing and took the wife of Ourias the Chettite to be your wife. 11This is what the Lord says: Behold, I am raising up trouble against you out of your own house, and I will take your wives before your eyes and give them to your neighbor, and he shall lie with your wives before this sun.

12 For you did it secretly, and I will do this thing before all Israel and before this sun.’ 13 And Dauid said to Nathan, ‘I have sinned against the Lord.’ And Nathan said to Dauid, ‘Indeed, the Lord put aside your sin, you shall not die. 14 Yet, because provokingly you provoked the enemies of the Lord by this thing, indeed your son who was born to you shall die by death.’

15 And Nathan went away to his house.

And the Lord weakened the child that the wife of Ourias bore to Dauid, and it became ill. 16 And Dauid sought God concerning the child, and Dauid fasted a fast and went in and lodged in sackcloth on the ground. 17 And the elders of his house stood by him to raise him from the ground, but he was unwilling, and he did not eat bread together with them. 18 And it happened in the seventh day that the child died. And the slaves of Dauid were afraid to tell him that the child was dead; for they said, ‘Behold, while the child was still alive, we spoke to him, and he did not listen to our voice, and how can we tell him that the child is dead? Indeed, he shall do harm.’ 19 And Dauid noticed that his servants were whispering, and Dauid perceived that the child was dead, and Dauid said to his servants, ‘Is the child dead?’ And they said, ‘He is dead.’

20 And Dauid rose from the ground and washed and anointed himself and changed his clothes. And he entered into the house of God and did obeisance to him, and he entered into his house, and he asked for bread to eat, and they set bread before him, and he ate. 21 And his servants said to him, ‘What is this thing that you did? For the sake of the child, while it was still alive, you were fasting and weeping and keeping watch, and when the child died, you rose and ate bread, and you have taken a drink.’

22 And Dauid said, ‘While the child was still alive, I fasted and wept, for I said, ‘Who knows whether the Lord will have pity on me and the child will live?’ 23 But now he is dead. Why is this, that I fast? I will not be able to bring it back again, will I? I will go to him, but he shall not return to me.’

24 And Dauid consoled Bersabee his wife and went in to her and lay with her, and she conceived and bore a son and called his name Salomon. And the Lord loved him. 25 And he sent by the hand of Nathan the prophet, and he called his name Isted, on account of the Lord.

26 And Joab made war on Rabbath of the sons of Ammon and seized the royal city. 27 And Joab sent messengers to David, and said, "I made war on Rabbath and seized for myself the city of the waters. 28 And now gather the rest of the people together, and encamp against the city, and seize it in advance for yourself so that I myself might not seize the city in advance for myself, and my name be called over it." 29 And David gathered all the people together and went to Rabbath and made war on it and seized it for himself. 30 And he took the crown of Melchol, their king, from his head, and the weight of it was a talent of gold and of precious stone, and it was on the head of David. And he brought forth very many spoils of the city. 31 And he brought out the people who were in it and set them at the saw and at the iron threshing machines and conducted them through the brickworks. And thus he did to all the cities of the sons of Ammon. And David and all the people returned to Jerusalem.

13 And it happened after this that Absalom, son of David, had a sister very beautiful in appearance, and her name was Tamar, and Amnon son of David loved her. 2 And Amnon was tormented so as to be ill because of Tamar his sister, for she was a virgin, and it was excessive in Amnon’s sight to do anything to her. 3 And Amnon said to her, "Do you not love me, Tamar my sister? Do not set your heart to speak about this thing." 4 And Tamar said to him, "What's with you that you are so haggard, O son of the king, morning by morning? Will you not tell me?" 5 And Amnon said to him, "I love Tamar, the sister of Amnon my brother." 6 And Ionadab said to him, "Lie down on your bed and act weak, and your father will come in to see you, and you shall say to him, ‘Do let Tamar my sister come and feed me some morsels, and let her prepare food in my sight so that I may see and eat from her hands.’" 7 And Amnon lay down and became ill, and the king came in to see him, and Amnon said to the king, "Do let Tamar my sister come to me and roll two rolls in my sight, and I will eat from her hand." 8 And Tamar went to the house of Amnon her brother, and he was lying down. And she took the dough and kneaded it and rolled rolls in his sight and boiled the rolls. 9 And she took the frying-pan and emptied it out before him, but he did not want to eat. And Amnon said, "Lead out every man from upon me." And they led out every man from upon him. 10 And Amnon said to Tamar, "Bring the food into the chamber, and I will eat from your hand." And Tamar took the food and brought it to Amnon her brother, into the bedroom. 11 And she brought them to him to eat, and he took hold of her and said to her "Come on, lie with me, my sister!" 12 And she said to him, "No, my brother, do not humiliate me; for it shall not be done in this way in Israel; do not do this folly! 13 And I, where will I carry away my shame? And you, you shall be as one of the fools in Israel. And now, do speak to the king; for surely he shall not withhold me from you." 14 But Amnon did not want to listen to her voice, and he prevailed over her and humiliated her and lay with her.

15 And Amnon hated her with very great hatred; for the hatred with which he hated her was greater than the love with which he had loved her. And Amnon said to her, "Get up, and get out!" 16 And Tamar said to him, "No, brother, for greater is the last wrong than the first which you did with me, to send me away." But Amnon did not want to listen to her voice. 17 And he called his lad who was in charge of his house, and he said to him, "Now send this woman away from me, outside, and bar up the door after her." 18 (And on her was a tunic to the wrists, for so the daughters of the king who were virgins were clothed in their outer garments.) And his attendant led her outside and barred up the door after her. 19 And Tamar took ashes and put them on her head and tore the tunic to the wrists that was on her, and she put her hands on her head and went away, walking and crying aloud.

20 And Absalom her brother said to her, "Amnon your brother wasn’t with you, was he? And now, my sister, be quiet, for he is your brother; do not set your heart to speak about this thing." And Tamar stayed as a widow in her brother Absalom’s house. 21 And King David heard all these words and was very angry, but he did not grieve the spirit of Amnon his son, for he kept loving him, for he was his firstborn. 22 And Absalom did not speak with Amnon, from evil to good, for Absalom kept hating Amnon on account of which he had humiliated Tamar his sister.

23 And it happened in a two-year span of days that they were shearing for Absalom at Belasor, which borders Ephraim, and Absalom invited all the sons of the king. 24 And Absalom came to the king and said, "Behold now, they are shearing for your slave; do let the king and his servants go with your slave." 25 And the king said to Absalom, "Surely not my son, let us not all go, and we will not be a burden on you." And he pressed him, but he did not want to go, and he blessed him. 26 And Absalom said, "And if not, do let Amnon my brother go with us." And the king said to him, "Why should he go with you?" 27 And Absalom pressed him, and he went with him Amnon and all the sons of the king. And Absalom made a feast according to the feast of the king. 28 And Absalom commanded his lads, saying, "Watch, when the heart of Amnon is made good with wine, and I say to you, ‘Strike Amnon, and put him to death.’ Don’t be afraid, for I am—I am commanding you, am I not? Act like men and be sons of power." 29 And the lads of Absalom did to Amnon just as Absalom had commanded them. And all the sons of the king rose, and they sat, a man upon his mule, and fled.
30 And it happened, while they were on the way, that the report came to Dauid, saying, "Abessalom struck all the sons of the king, and none of them was left, not even one." 31 And the king rose and tore his garments and lay on the ground, and all his servants who were standing around him tore their garments. 32 And Ionadab, son of Samaa brother of Dauid, answered and said, "Let not my lord the king say that he put to death all the lads, the sons of the king, for only Amnon alone has died, for it was determined by the mouth of Abessalom from the day when he humiliated Themar his sister. 33 And now, let not my lord the king set a thing on his heart, saying, 'All the sons of the king have died,' but only Amnon alone has died.

34 And Abessalom ran away. And the lad, the lookout, raised his eyes and saw, and behold, many people were coming on the road behind him from the side of the mountain in the descent, and the lookout came and told the king and said, "I have seen men from the road of Oronen from the region of the mountain." 35 And Ionadab said to the king, "Behold, the sons of the king are nearby; according to the word of your slave, so it happened." 36 And it happened, when he finished speaking, that behold, the sons of the king came and raised up their voice and wept, and indeed the king and all his servants wept with a very great weeping.

37 And Abessalom fled and went to Tholmai the land of Machad. And King Dauid mourned for his son all the days. 38 And Abessalom ran away and went to Gedsour and was there three years. 39 And the spirit of the king ceased to go out after Abessalom, for he was consoled over Amnon, that he had died.

14 And Joab son of Sarouia perceived that the heart of the king was on Abessalom. 2 And Joab sent to Thekoite and took from there a wise woman and said to her, "Do mourn, and put on mourning garments, and do not anoint yourself with oil, and you shall be as a woman mourning over one who has been dead here many days, and you shall go to the king and speak to him according to this matter." And Joab put the words into her mouth.

4 And the Thekoite woman went to the king, and she fell on her face to the ground and did obeisance to him and said, "Save, O king, save!" 5 And the king said to her, "What is it with you?" And she said, "And certainly I am a widow woman, and my husband has died. 6 And indeed your slave had two sons, and they both struggled in the field, and there was no one to part them, and the one struck his brother and put him to death. 7 And behold, the whole paternal family rose up against your slave, and they said, "Give up the one who struck his brother, and we will put him to death for the life of his brother whom he killed, and we will remove indeed your heir." And they will quench my ember that is left, so as not to establish for my husband remnant and name on the face of the earth."

8 And the king said, "Proceed to your house in good health, and I will give command concerning you." 9 And the Thekoite woman said to the king, "On me, my lord O king, be the lawlessness, and on the house of my father, and the king and his throne be guiltless." 10 And the king said, "Who was speaking to you? You shall also bring him to me, and he shall not any longer touch him." 11 And she said, "Do let the king keep the Lord, his God, in mind, that a next of kin of blood succeed in destroying him, and they shall not remove my son." And he said, "The Lord lives, if a hair of your son shall fall on the ground!"

12 And the woman said, "Do let your slave speak a word to my lord the king." And he said, "Speak." 13 And the woman said, "Why did you calculate such a thing against God's people? Is this word out of the king's mouth an error, inasmuch as the king did not bring back his own banished one? 14 For by death we shall die and be as water that is spilled on the ground, which shall not be gathered up. And God shall take a life, even as he calculates to banish a banished one from him. 15 And now, what I came to say to the king my lord is this word, because the people will see me, and your slave will say, 'Do let one speak to the king, if somehow the king will enact the word of his slave; 16 for the king will hear, and so to deliver his slave from the hand of the man who seeks to remove me and my son from a divine heritage.'" 17 And the woman said, "May the word of my lord the king indeed be as an offering, for as a divine angel, so is my lord the king, to hear the good and the evil, and the Lord your God shall be with you!"

18 And the king answered and said to the woman, "Do not hide from me a thing that I ask you." And the woman said, "Do let my lord the king speak." 19 And the king said, "The hand of Joab is not in all this with you, is it?" And the woman said to the king, "Your soul lives, my lord O king, if there is to the right or to the left from anything that my lord the king said! For your slave Joab himself commanded me, and he himself put all these words in the mouth of your slave. 20 In order to get around the facade of this thing, your slave Joab made up this tale. And my lord is wise like the wisdom of an angel of God, to know all things that are in the earth."

21 And the king said to Joab, "Behold now, I acted for you according to this your word; go, bring back the lad Abessalom." 22 And Joab fell on his face on the ground and did obeisance and blessed the king, and Joab said, "Today your slave realized that I found favor in your sight, my lord O king, for my lord the king enacted the word of his slave." 23 And Joab set off and went to Gedsour and brought Abessalom to Jerusalem. 24 And the king said, "Let him return to his house and not see my face.” And Abessalom returned to his house and did not see the face of the king.

And in all Israel there was no man quite so praiseworthy as Abessalom; from the sole of his foot even to the crown of his head there was no blemish in him. And when he cropped his head (and it happened from a beginning of days to days, when he would crop, that it weighed down on him), and after he cropped it, he weighed the hair of his head, two hundred shekels by the royal shekel. And there were born to Abessalom three sons and one daughter, and her name was Tamar; she was a very beautiful woman, and she became wife to Roboam son of Salomon, and she bore him Abia.

Abessalom stayed in Jerusalem two years of days and did not see the face of the king. And Abessalom sent to Ioab to send him to the king, but he did not want to come to him. And he sent a second time to him, but he did not want to come. And Abessalom said to his servants, “Look, the portion in Ioab’s field is next to mine, and he has barley there; go, and burn it with fire.” And Ioab set off to the king, saying, ‘Why did your servants burn my portion with fire?” And Ioab set off and came to Abessalom into his house and said to him, “Why did your servants burn my portion with fire?” And Abessalom said to Ioab, “Behold, I sent to you, saying: Come here, and I will send you to the king, and he summoned Abessalom. And he went in to the king and told him, and he summoned Abessalom. And he went in to the king and told him, and he summoned Abessalom. And he went in to the king and did obeisance to him and fell on his face on the ground in front of the king, and the king kissed Abessalom.

And it happened after this that Abessalom got himself chariots and horses and fifty men to run along before him. And Abessalom woke up at dawn and stood close by the road of the gate, and it happened: every man who had a judgment came to the king for judgment, and Abessalom called out to him and would say to him, “From what city are you?” And the man said, “Your slave is from one of the tribes of Israel.” And Abessalom said to him, “Behold, your claims are good and easy, and there is no one from the king to hear you.” And Abessalom said, “Who will make me a judge in the land? And every man who may have a dispute and a judgment will come to me, and I will give him justice.” And it happened, when a man came near to do obeisance to him, that he would stretch out his hand and take hold of him, and he kissed him. And Abessalom did according to this thing to all Israel, to those who came to the king for judgment, and Abessalom made the heart of the men of Israel his own.

And when the king had changed his abode from his city, from Gedsour in Syria, saying, “If by returning the Lord will be for death and if it be for life, for there your slave will be.” And the king said to him, “Proceed in peace.” And getting up, he went to Chebron. And Abessalom sent spies among all the tribes of Israel, saying, “When you hear the sound of the horn, then you will say, ‘Abessalom has been crowned king in Chebron!’” And two hundred men from Jerusalem went with Abessalom, invited and going in their simplicity, and they did not know anything. And Abessalom sent and summoned Achitophel the Gehemite, the counselor of Dauid, from his city, from Gola, when he was offering sacrifices. And the conspiracy became strong, and the people, going and in great number, were with Abessalom.

And the messenger came to Dauid, saying, “The heart of the men of Israel has gone after Abessalom.” And Dauid said to all his servants who were with him in Jerusalem, “Get up, and let us flee, for there is no deliverance for us from before Abessalom. Be quick to go so that he might not be quick and overtake us and thrust out evil upon us and strike the city with a dagger’s edge.” And the servants of the king said to the king, “According to everything which our lord the king chooses, behold, your servants.” And the king went out and all his servants on foot, and they stopped at the far house. And all his servants were passing by near him, and all those about him, and every Chetti and every Pheletthi, and they stood by the olive tree in the wilderness. And all the people were passing by near him, and all those about him and all the prominent men and all the warriors, six hundred men, and they were passing by at his hand, and every Cherethith and every Pheletthi and all the Geththites, six hundred men, who came on their feet from Geh, going in front of the king.

And the king said to Eththi the Geththite, “Why are you also going with us? Turn back, and turn back your foot, and do not go with us; for in the place wherever my lord may be, both if it be for death and if it be for life, for there your slave will be.” And the king said to Eththi, “Come on and cross over with me.” And Eththi the Geththite went past, and all his servants and all the throng... that was with him. 23 And the whole country was weeping with a loud voice. And all the people were passing by at the Wadi Kedron, and the king crossed the Wadi Kedron, and all the people and the king were passing by the wilderness on the road surface.

24 And behold, and indeed Sadok and all the Levites were with him carrying the ark of the covenant of the Lord from Baithar, and they set down the ark of God, and Abiathar went up until all the people ceased to pass out of the city. 25 And the king said to Sadok, "Return the ark of God to the city. If I find favor in the eyes of the Lord, then he will bring me back and show me it and its beauty."

26 And if he says thus, 'I have no want in you,' behold, here I am, let him do to me according to what is good in his eyes." 27 And the king said to Sadok, "Look, you are turning back to the city in peace, and Achimaas your son and Jonathan the son of Abiathar, your two sons with you. 28 Look, I am—I am at arms in araboth a of the wilderness until word comes from you to inform me." 29 And Sadok and Abiathar returned the ark to Jerusalem, and it sat there.

30 And David was ascending by the ascent of themen, ascending, and weeping and his head covered, and he went barefoot, and all the people who were with him—a man covered his head, and they were ascending, ascending and weeping. 31 And it was told David, saying, "Even Achitophel is among the conspirators with Abessalom." And David said, "Do scatter abroad the counsel of Achitophel, O Lord my God."

32 And David was coming to the Roos, there where he did obedience to God, and behold, there was Chousi the Archi, a companion of David, to meet with him, with his tunic torn and earth on his head. 33 And David said to him, "If you cross over with me, then you will be for me a burden on me. 34 And if you return to the city and will say to Abessalom, 'Your brothers have passed through, and your father the king has passed through behind me, and now I am your servant, O king, permit me to live; I was a servant of your father in the past and recently, and now I am a slave of yours, then you will scatter abroad for me the counsel of Achitophel."

35 And behold, Sadok and Abiathar the priests are with you there, and it shall be that every word which you might hear from the king's house, you shall also tell it to Sadok and Abiathar the priests. 36 Behold, their two sons are there with them, Achimmas son of Sadok and Jonathan son of Abiathar, and by their hand you shall send to me every word which you might hear." 37 And Chousi, the companion of David, entered into the city, and Abessalom was going into Jerusalem.

16 And David passed some little way from the Roos, and behold, there was Siba, the lad of Memphibosthe, to meet him, and a couple of donkeys fully laden and upon them two hundred loaves of bread and one hundred raisins and one hundred dates and a nebel of wine. And the king said to Siba, "Why do you have these things?" And Siba said, "The draft animals are for the household of the king to sit upon, and the loaves of bread and the dates for food for the lads, and the wine for those who are faint in the wilderness to drink."

3 And the king said, "And where is the son of your master?" And Siba said to the king, "Behold, he sits in Jerusalem, for he said, 'Today the house of Israel will return to me the kingdom of my father.'" 4 And the king said to Siba, "Behold, everything is yours that belongs to Memphibosthe." And doing obeissance Siba said, "May I find favor in your sight, my lord O king."

5 And King David came to Baourim, and behold, a man from the kinsfolk of the house of Saoul went out from there, and his name was Semei son of Gera; he came out, going out and cursing 6 and stoning with stones David and all the servants of King David, and there were all the people, and all the powerful men were on the right and on the left of the king. 7 And thus Semei kept saying while he cursed, "Get out, get out, man of blood and lawless man! 8 The Lord returned on you all the blood of the house of Saoul, for you became king in his stead, and the Lord gave the kingdom into the hand of Abassalom your son. And behold, you are in your bad state, for you are a man of blood."

9 And Abessa son of Sarouia said to the king, "Why does this dead dog curse my lord the king? I will surely walk over and take off his head." 10 And the king said, "What have I to do with you, O sons of Sarouia? Leave him alone, and so let him curse, because the Lord told him to curse David, and who shall say, 'To what end did you do so?' " 11 And David said to Abessa and to all his servants, "Behold, my son who came out of my belly seeks my life, and now besides, the son of the femini! Leave him alone to curse, because the Lord told him to curse. 12 And Semei said to his lord, the king, 'The Lord has caused my lord the king to return to me good things in place of somehow the Lord may look on my humiliation, then he will return to me good things in place of his curse this day.'" 13 And David and his men went on the road, and Semei was going by the side of the mountain next to him, going and cursing and stoning with stones from his flanks and sprinkling with dirt. 14 And the king came, and all his people, exhausted, and they recovered there.

15 And Abessalom and every man of Israel entered into Jerusalem, and Achitophel was with him. 16 And it happened when Chousi the Archi, a companion of David, came to Abessalom, that Chousi said to Abessalom, "Let the king live!" 17 And Abessalom said to Chousi, "Is this your mercy with your companion? Why did you not go away with your companion?" 18 And Chousi said to Abessalom, "No, but hereafter he whom the Lord and this people and every man of Israel have chosen, his I will be, and with him I will sit. 19 And secondly, to whom will I be subject? Is it not in the presence of his son? Just as I was subject in the presence of your father, so I will be in your presence."

20 And Abessalom said to Achitophel, "Bring forth counsel among yourselves, what we should
And Achitophel said to Abessalom, “I will now choose for myself twelve thousand men, and I will set out and pursue closely after David tonight. And I will come suddenly upon him, and he will be weary and faint in hands, and I willastonish him, and all the people who are with him shall flee, and I will strike only the king all alone, and I will turn all the people back to you, as a bride turns back to her husband. You seek only the life of one man, and there will be peace for all the people.” And the saying was right in the sight of Abessalom and in the sight of all the elders of Israel. 5 And Abessalom said, “Do call indeed Chousi the Arachi, and let us hear what is in his mouth, indeed his.” 6 And Chousi went in to Abessalom, and Abessalom said to him, saying, “According to this word Achitophel spoke. Shall we act according to his saying? But if not, you speak.” 7 And Chousi said to Abessalom, “This counsel, that Achitophel counseled this one time, is not good.” 8 And Chousi said, “You know your father and his men, that they are very powerful and downright bitter in their spirit, as a bear robbed of her young in a field and as a savage sow in the plain. And your father is a man of war, and he shall not budge with the people. For behold, he is now hidden in one of the hills or in one of the places. And it shall be, when he falls upon them at first, and if the hearer hears and says, ‘There has been a slaughter among the people who are behind Abessalom,’ and indeed a son of power himself, whose heart is like the heart of a lion—melting it shall melt away, for all Israel knows that your father is powerful, and those who are with him are sons of power. For in advising I so advised, that all Israel being gathered, shall be gathered together to you, from Dan even to Bersabee, as the sand by the sea being gathered, shall be gathered together to you, lest one swallow up the king and all the people who are with him.” 9 And Jonathan and Achimaas stood by the spring of Rogel, and the servant-girl went and told them, and they would go and tell King David, for they could not be seen to enter into the city. 10 And a lad saw them and told Abessalom, and the two went quickly and entered into the house of a man in Baourim, and he had a cistern in his courtyard, and they went down there. 11 And the wife took and spread out the covering over the face of the cistern and dried aphabetical on it, and not a thing was known. 12 And the servants of Abessalom came to the woman into the house, and they said, “Where are Achimaas and Jonathan?” And the woman said to them, “They passed by a little way from the water.” And they searched and did not find, and they returned to Jerousalem. 13 And it happened, after they departed, that they came out up of the cistern and went and told King David. And they said to David, “Set out, and cross the water quickly, for thus Achitophel counseled about you.” 14 And David set out, and all the people who were with him, and they crossed the Jordan until the morning light; not even one went unnoticed who did not pass through the Jordan. 15 And Achitophel saw that his counsel did not come to pass, and he saddled his donkey and set out and departed to his house into his city. And he commanded his household and hanged himself, and he died and was buried in the tomb of his father. 16 And David passed through to Manaim, and Abessalom crossed the Jordan, he and every man of Israel with him. 17 And Abessalom set Amessai instead of Ioab over the force. And Amessai was the son of a man, and his name was Iothor the Israelite; he it was who went in to Abigaia daughter of Naas, sister of Sarouia mother of Ioab. 18 And all Israel and Abessalom encamped in the land of Galaad. 19 And it happened, when David came to Manaim, Ouesbi son of Naas from Rabbath of the sons of Ammon and Machir son of Amiel from Lodabar and Berzelli the Galaadite from Rogellim brought ten beds and double-sided rugs and ten cauldrons and earthen vessels and wheat and barley and wheat meal and barley meal and beans and lentils and honey and butter and sheep and saphphoth from cows, and they brought them to David and the people with him, to eat, for they said, “The people are hungry and faint and thirsty in the wilderness.”

18 And David inspected the people who were with him and set over them officers of thousands and officers of hundreds. 2And David sent out the people, one-third by the hand of Joab and one-third by the hand of Abassalom son of Sarouia, brother of Joab, and one-third by the hand of Eththi the Eththite. And David said to the people, “Going out I will go out, and indeed I will go with you.” 3And they said, “You shall not go out. For if in flight we should flee, they will not set heart upon us. And if we should die, even half of us, they will not set heart upon us; for you are as we are, ten thousand, and now it is good that you will be a help for us in the city to help.” 4And the king said to them, “Whatever pleases in your sight I will do.” And the king stood close by the gate, and all the people were going out in hundreds and in thousands. 5And the king commanded Joab and Abassalom and Eththi, saying, “Spare for my sake the lad Abassalom.” And all the people heard when the king commanded all the commanders concerning Abassalom.

6 And all the people went out into the forest opposite Israel, and the battle took place in the forest of Ephraim. 7And the people of Israel fell there before the servants of David, and the slaughter was great in that day, twenty thousand men. 8And the battle took place there, spread about over the face of all the country, and the forest exceeded in devouring of the people more than those whom the dagger devoured among the people in that day. 9 And Abassalom met face to face in front of the servants of David. And Abassalom was mounted on his mule, and the mule entered under the thick branches of the great oak. And his head was hung in the oak, and he was hung between heaven and between earth, and the mule under him passed on. 10And one man said to Joab, and told Joab, and said, “Behold, I have seen Abassalom hanging in the oak.” 11And Joab said to the man who told, “And behold, you have seen! Why is it that you did not strike him to the ground? And I would have given you ten pieces of silver and one belt.” 12But the man said to Joab, “Even I am—should I weigh on my hands a thousand shekels of silver, I would never lay my hand upon the son of the king; for in our ears the king commanded you and Abassalom and Eththi, saying, ‘Protect for my sake the lad Abassalom,’ to do no wrong to his life. And no word from the king will escape notice; even you shall stand opposed.” 13And Joab said, “I will begin this; I will not wait thus in your sight.” And Joab took three spears in his hand and planted them in the heart of Abassalom, while he was still alive in the heart of the oak. 15And ten lads bearing the weapons of Joab surrounded and struck Abassalom and put him to death.

16 And Joab trumpeted with a horn, and the people turned back in order not to pursue after Israel, for Joab was sparing the people. 17And he took Abassalom and threw him into a great chasm in the forest, into the great pit, and set up as a stele over him, a very great heap of stones. And all Israel fled, a man to his covert. 18And Abassalom, while still alive also set up for himself the stele by which he was taken and set it up as a stele to take, the stele that is in the valley of the king, for he said, “He has no son for the sake of remembering his name,” and he called the stele Hand of Abassalom, until this day.

19 And Achimaas son of Sadok said, “Do let me run, and I will carry good tidings to the king that the Lord has vindicated him from the hand of his enemies.” 20And Joab said to him, “You are not a man of good tidings in this day, and you shall carry good tidings in another day, but in this day you shall not carry good tidings, because the son of the king has died.” 21And Joab said to Chousi, “Proceed, tell the king what you saw.” And Chousi did obeisance to Joab and went out. 22And Achimaas son of Sadok continued further and said to Joab, “And let it be that I may run, and indeed I after Chousi.” And Joab said, “Why is this that you run, my son? Come on; by going you have no good tidings for gain.” 23And he said, “So what if I will run?” And Joab said to him, “Run.” And Achimaas ran the way of the Kechar and went beyond Chousi.

24 And David was sitting between the two gates. And the lookout went to the roof of the gate at the wall and lifted up his eyes and looked, and behold, a man running alone before him. 25And the lookout shouted and told the king. And the king said, “If he is alone, there are good tidings in his mouth.” And he kept going, going and drawing near. 26And the lookout saw another man running, and the lookout shouted to the gate and said, “Behold, another man running alone!” And the king said, “And indeed he is bringing good tidings.” 27And the lookout said, “I see the running of the first one as the running of Achimaas son of Sadok.” And the king said, “He is a good man, and indeed he will come for the purpose of beneficial good tidings.”

28 And Achimaas shouted and said to the king, “Peace!” And he did obeisance to the king on his face on the ground and said, “Blessed be the Lord your God, who shut up the men who hate, their hand against my lord the king.” 29And the king said, “Is there peace for the lad Abassalom?” And Achimaas said, “I saw the great multitude, so that loab sent off the slave of the king, even your slave, but I knew not what was there.” 30And the king said, “Turn aside, be set up as a stele here.” And he turned aside and stood.

31 And behold, Chousi came and said to the king, “Let my lord the king receive good tidings! For the Lord has vindicated you today from the hand of all who were stirred up against you.” 32And the king said to Chousi, “Is there peace for the lad Abassalom?” And Chousi said, “May the enemies of my lord the king, and all who rose up against him for evil, be like the lad.”

And the king was troubled and went up to the upper chamber of the gate and wept, and thus he said, as he went, "O my son Abessalom, my son, my son Abessalom! Who would give my death instead of you, I instead of you? O Abessalom, my son, my son!"

And it was told Joab, saying, "Behold, the king is weeping and mourning for Abessalom." And the deliverance in that day turned into mourning for all the people, for the people heard in that day, saying, "The king is grieving for his son." And the people kept stealing away in that day to enter into the city, as people steal away who are ashamed when they flee in battle.

And the king covered his face, and the king cried with a loud voice, saying, "O my son Abessalom, O Abessalom, my son!" And Joab went in to the king into the house and said, "Today you covered with shame the face of all your slaves who delivered you today, and the life of your sons and your daughters and the life of your wives and your concubines, to love those who hate you and to hate those who love you. And you proclaimed today that neither your commanders nor servants exist, for I have pronounced today that if you would dethrone me alive, all of us would be dead today, that then it would have been the right thing in your sight.

And now arise, go out, and speak to the heart of your slaves; for I swore by the Lord, that unless you shall go out today—if a man shall lodge with you this night—you would not see again the face of your lord the king. And your slave said to him, "Let my lord not consider my lawlessness, and do not remember how much your servant did wrong in the day when my lord the king was going out from Ierousalem so that the king put it in his heart. For your slave knew that I sinned, and behold, I came today, first of all the house of Joseph to go down to meet my lord the king."

And Abessal son of Sarouia answered and said, "Shall not Semei be put to death for this, because he cursed the Lord's anointed?" And David said, "What have I to do with you, O sons of Sarouia, that you become treacherous to me today? Today no man from Israel shall be put to death, for I do not know whether I am king today over Israel."

And the king said to Semei, "You shall not die." And the king swore to him.

And Memphibosthe son of Jonathan son of Saoul went down to meet the king, and he did not take care of his feet nor pare his nails nor make his moustache, and he did not wash his clothes, from the day when the king departed until the day when he arrived in peace. And it happened, when he entered into Ierousalem to meet the king, that the king said to him, "Why is it that you did not go with me, Memphibosthe?" And Memphibosthe said to him, "My lord O king, my slave deceived me; for your servant said to him, 'Saddle the donkey for me, and I will mount up on it and go with the king.' For your slave is lame. And he played a trick on your slave against your slave, Memphibosthe."

And Memphibosthe said to him, "My lord O king, my slave deceived me; for your servant said to him, 'Saddle the donkey for me, and I will mount up on it and go with the king.' For your slave is lame. And he played a trick on your slave against your slave, Memphibosthe."

"And the king said to Memphibosthe, 'Why do you say any longer to your affairs? I said, You and Siba shall divide the field for yourselves.' And Memphibosthe said to the king, "And let him take indeed all, after my lord the king comes in peace to his house."

And Berzelli the Galaadite came down from Rogellim and crossed over the Jordan with the king, to send him out at the Jordan. And Berzelli was a very elderly man, a son of eighty years, and he supported the king while he lived in Manaim, for he was a very great man. 34(33)And the king said to Berzelli, "You shall cross over with me, and I will support your old age with me in Jerusalem." 35(34)And Berzelli said to the king, "How many are the days of the years of my life, that I shall go up with the king to Jerusalem? 36(35)Today I am a son of eighty years; I shall not discern between good and evil, shall I? Or will your slave taste any longer what I shall eat or drink? Or shall I hear any longer the voice of singing men and singing women? Why will your slave be a burden any longer on my lord the king? 37(36)Your slave will cross over the Jordan a little with the king. And why does the king recompense me this reward? 38(37)Do let your slave stay put, and I shall die in my city, near the tomb of my father and my mother. And behold, your slave Chamaam will cross over with my lord the king. And do for him what is good in your sight." 39(38)And the king said, "Let Chamaam cross over with my slave. And he will cross over with my lord the king. And indeed half of the people of Israel. And all the people of Judah were crossing over with the king, and indeed the half of the people of Israel. 40(39)And the king crossed over to the Jordan, and the king crossed over, and the king said to Joab, "Why has your slave not crossed over with me? 41(40)And the king said, "Let Chamaam cross over with my slave. And he will cross over with my lord the king. And indeed half of the people of Israel. And all the people of Judah were crossing over with the king, and indeed the half of the people of Israel. 42(41)And behold, every man of Israel came to the king, and they said to the king, "Why is it that our brothers, men of Judah, stole you away and brought the king and his household over the Jordan, and all David's men with him?" 43(42)And every man of Judah answered a man of Israel and said, "Because the king is near to me. And why were you thus angry concerning this matter? In eating, we did not eat from the king, did we? Or did he give us a gift or lift a burden on us?" 44(43)And a man of Israel answered the man of Judah and said, "I have ten hands in the king, and I am firstborn rather than you, and indeed in David I am over you. And why is this that you despised me? And was my word not reckoned first to me, to bring the king back to me?" And the word of the man of Judah grew harder than the word of the man of Israel.

20 And one nicknamed a lawless son was there, and his name was Sabee son of Bochori, theتمر man, and he trumpeted with the horn and said,

"We have no portion in David, and we have no inheritance in the son of Jessai!"

A man to your coverts, O Israel!"

2And every man of Israel went up from behind David after Sabee son of Bochori, and men of Judah adhered to their king from the Jordan even to Jerusalem.

3And David entered into his house in Jerusalem, and the king took the ten women, his concubines, whom he left to keep the house, and gave them over into a house under guard and supported them but did not go in to them. And they were shut up until the day of their death, living as widows.

4And the king said to Amessai, "Call the man of Judah to me for three days, and stand here yourself." 5And Amessai went to call Iouda, and he delayed beyond the set time that David appointed for him. 6And David said to Abessa, "Now Sabee son of Bochori will do us more harm than Abessaom, and now, take with yourself the servants of your lord, and pursue closely after him, lest he find strong cities for himself and will overshadow our eyes." 7And there went out after him the men of Ioab and Cherethibhi and Phelethibhi and all the powerful men, and they went out from Jerusalem to pursue after Sabee son of Bochori. 8And they were beside the great stone that is in Gabaon, and Amessai went in before them. And Ioab was wearing a woolen cloak as his garment, and over it he was wearing a dagger fastened at his waist in its sheath, and the dagger came out and fell. 9And Iouda said to Amessai, "Are you in good health, brother?" And the right hand of Ioab took hold of the beard of Amessai to kiss him. 10And Amessai did not guard himself against the dagger that was in the hand of Ioab, and Ioab struck him with it in the muscles of the loins, and his entrails poured out on the ground, and he did not do it to him a second time, and he died.

And Ioab and Abessa his brother pursued after Sabee son of Bochori. 11And a man from the lads of Ioab stood over him and said, "Who is it that likes Ioab, and who belongs to David after Ioab!"

12And Amessai was drenched in his blood in the middle of the path. And the man saw that all the people had stopped, and he turned Amessai away from the path into a field and threw a garment over him, inasmuch as he saw all who came by him standing still. 13And when he preceded off the path, every man of Israel passed on after Ioab to pursue after Sabee son of Bochori.

14And he passed through among all the tribes of Israel to Abel and to Baithmacha, and all in Charrib both assembled and came behind him. 15And they came near and kept laying siege against him in Abel and Baithmacha, and they poured out a mound against the city, and it stood within the outer fortification, and all the people who were with Ioab were intending to throw down the wall. 16And a wise woman shouted from the wall and said, "Listen! Listen! Do say to Ioab, 'Come over here,' and I will speak to him." 17And he came near to her, and the woman said, "Are you Ioab?" And he said, "I am." And she said to him, "Listen to the words of your slave." And Ioab said, "I am listening—I am." 18And she said, saying, "A saying they spoke at first, saying, 'When inquiring of, one was inquired of in Abel,' and in Dan if they had abandoned what the faithful of Israel had established. 'When inquiring, they shall inquire in Abel,' and likewise if they had abandoned it. 19I am a peaceful one of the supports of Israel, but you seek to put to death a city and a mother city in Israel; why do you drown the Lord's inheritance?" 20And Ioab an-swared and said, “Be gracious to me; be gracious to me, if I shall drown and if I shall destroy! 21 This is not the reason! For there is a man from mount Ephraim—Sabbee son of Bochori is his name—and he lifted up his hand against King David; give him alone up to me, and I will depart from upon the city.” And the woman said to Joab, “Behold, his head shall be thrown to you through the wall.” 22 And the woman went in to all the people and spoke to all the city in her wisdom. And she removed the head of Sabee son of Bochori and threw it to Joab. And he trumpeted with a horn, and they were dispersed from the city, a man to his coverts, and Joab returned to Jerusalem to the king.

23 And Joab was engaged with the entire force of Israel, and Banaias son of Iodae was over Chereththi and over Pheleththi, 24 and Adoniram was over the tribute, and Osapath son of Achilouth was doing the recording, 25 and Sousa was secretary, and Sadok and Abiathar were priests, 26 and indeed Iar was David’s priest.

21 And there was a famine in the days of David for three years, year next to year, and David sought the face of the Lord. And the Lord said, “There is an injustice upon Saul and upon his house, because he put to death by a death of blood, on account of which he put to death the Gabaonites.” 2 And King David called the Gabaonites and spoke to them. (And the Gabaonites are not sons of Israel, but only from the remnant of the Amorrite, and the sons of Israel swore to them, and Saul sought to strike them, when he was zealous for the sons of Israel and Iouda.) 3 And David said to the Gabaonites, “What shall I do for you? And in what way shall I make atonement, and you will bless the inheritance of the Lord?” 4 And the Gabaonites said to him, “For us it is not silver and gold with Saul and with his house, and for us there is no man to put to death in Israel.” And he said, “What are you saying, and I will do it for you?” 5 And they said to the king, “The man brought an end upon us, and he who deceived in order to utterly destroy us persecuted us; let us go away with him, so he has no stand within any boundary of Israel. 6 Let one hand over to us seven men from his sons, and let us hang them in the sun for the Lord in Gabaon of Saul, elect ones of the Lord.” And the king said, “I will hang them over.”

7 And the king spared Memphibo of son of Jonathan son of Saul, because of the oath of the Lord that was between them, between David and between Jonathan son of Saul. 8 And the king took the two sons of Respha daughter of Aia, whom she bore to Saul, Eroni and Memphibo, and the five sons of Michol daughter of Saul, whom she bore to Eric the Mooulathi, son of Berzelli, 9 and he gave them into the hand of the Gabaonites, and they hung them in the sun on the mountain before the Lord. And the seven themselves fell together. And also they were put to death in the days of harvest at the first, at the beginning of barley harvest.

10 And Respha daughter of Aia took the sackcloth and fixed it for herself to the rock at the beginning of barley harvest until water dripped upon them from the sky, and she did not grant the birds of the sky to rest on them by day, or the beasts of the field by night. 11 And it was told David what Respha daughter of Aia, concubine of Saul, had done, and they were released, and Dan son of Io from the descendants of the giants took them down. 12 And David went and took the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathan his son from the men, sons of Iabis Galaad, who stole them from the avenue of Baithsan, for the allophyles set them there, in the day when the allophyles struck Saul in Gelboue. 13 And he brought up from there the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathan his son and gathered the bones of those who were hung in the sun. 14 And they buried the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathan his son and of those who were hung in the sun, in the land of Beniamin, in the side, in the tomb of Kid his father, and they did all that the king commanded. And after this, God listened to the land.

15 And the allophyles still had war with Israel. And David went down, and his servants with him, and they fought with the allophyles, and David was faint. 16 And lesbi, who was among the descendants of Rapha—and the weight of his spear was the weight of three hundred shekels of bronze, and he was fitted with a mace—he also intended to strike David. 17 But Abessa son of Sarouia came to his aid and struck the allophyle and put him to death. Then the men of David swore, saying, “You shall no longer go out with us to battle, and you shall not quench the lamp of Israel.”

18 And after this there was still a battle in Geth with the allophyles; then Sebocha the Hastatothi struck Seph, who was among the descendants of Rapha. 19 And the battle was in Gob with the allophyles. And Eleanan son of Ariosim, the Baith-leemite, struck Goliath the Geththite, and the shaft of his spear was like a beam of weavers. 20 And there was still war in Geth. And there was a man of Madon, and the fingers of his hands and the toes of his foot were six and six, twenty-four in number, and indeed he was born to Rapha. 21 And he reproached Israel, and Jonathan son of Semei brother of David struck him. 22 These four were born as descendants of the giants in Geth, to Rapha, as a household, and they fell by the hand of David and by the hand of his slaves.

22 And David spoke to the Lord the words of this ode in which day the Lord delivered him from the hand of all his enemies and from the hand of Saul. 2 And he said:

O Lord, my rock and my fortress, and for me one who delivers me; my God shall be my keeper; I will be reliant on him, my protector and horn of my salvation, my supporter and my refuge for my salvation, you shall save me from wrong.

I will call upon the Lord for he is praiseworthy, and I shall be saved from my enemies.

For afflictions of death encompassed me;
waals of lawlessness astounded me;
pangs of death surrounded me;
rigidities of death outran me.

When I am afflicted I will call upon the Lord, and to my God I will shout, and from his shrine he shall heed my voice, and my cry shall be in his ears.

And the earth was stirred up and quaked, and the foundations of the sky were confounded and torn apart, because the Lord was angry with them.

Smoke went up in his wrath, and fire from his mouth shall devour;
coals flamed forth from him.

And he bent the heavens and came down, and thick darkness was under his feet.

And he sat on cherubin and flew,
and he was seen upon wings of wind.

And he made darkness his hideaway around him;
his tent was a darkness of waters;
a it thickened it with clouds of air.

From the splendor before him coals of fire flamed forth.

The Lord thundered from heaven, and the Most High gave his voice.

And he sent forth arrows and scattered them—lightning, and astounded them.

And emissions of se were seen, and foundations of the world were laid bare by the rebuke of the Lord, at the blast of the breath of his anger.

He sent from on high, and he took me;
he drew me out of many waters.

He rescued me from my enemies of strength, from those who hate me,
for they were too strong for me.

They outran me in the day of my affliction, and the Lord was my support.

And he brought me out into spaciousness, and he delivered me, because he delighted in me.

And the Lord rewarded me according to my righteousness;
according to the cleanness of my hands
he rewarded me.

For I kept ways of the Lord and did not impiously depart from my God.

For all his judgments were in front of me, and his statutes, I did not depart from them.

And I shall be blameless to him, and I shall keep myself from my lawlessness.

And the Lord will pay me back according to my righteousness and according to the cleanness of my hands in his sight.

With the devout you will be deemed devout, and with a perfect man you will be deemed perfect, and with the select you will be select,
and with the crooked you will be deemed crooked.

And you will save the poor people, and you will lower your eyes on the haughty.

For you are my lamp, O Lord, and the Lord will illumine my darkness for me.

For in you I shall run as a lightly armed man, and in my God I shall scale a wall.

The Strong One—his way is blameless;
the word of the Lord is strong, e tried by fire;
he is a protector for all who rely on him.

Who is strong except the Lord?
And who will be a creator except our God?
It was the Strong One who strengthened me with power and shook my way blameless, making my feet like the feet of deer and setting me secure on the heights, training my hands for war and breaking a bronze bow with my arm.

And you gave me protection for my salvation, and your answer made me increase into spaciousness for my steps under me, and my legs did not totter.

I will pursue my enemies and destroy them, and I will not turn back until I will bring them to an end.

And I will crush them, and they shall not rise, and they shall fall under my feet.

And you will strengthen me with power for battle;
you will make those who rise up against me bow down under me.

And you gave me my enemies in the back;
those who hated me, you even put them to death.

They will shout, and there is no helper;
to the Lord, but he did not answer them.

And I ground them down like dust of the earth;
like mire of exits I beat them fine.

And you will rescue me from battle with peoples; you will guard me to be head of nations; a people whom I did not know was subject to me.

Foreign sons lied to me; at the hearing of the ear they heard me. Foreign sons shall be cast away and shall stumble out of their enclosures.

The Lord lives! And blessed be my keeper! And my God, the keeper of my salvation, shall be exalted!

The Lord who gives me vengeance is strong, disciplining peoples underneath me and bringing me out from my enemies. And you will exalt me from those who are stirred up against me; you will rescue me from a man of wrongs.

Therefore I will acknowledge you, O Lord, among the nations, and make music in your name, magnifying acts of deliverance of his king and doing mercy to his anointed, to David and his offspring forever.

And these are the last words of David: Faithful is David, son of Jesse, and faithful the man whom the Lord raised up to be the anointed of Jacob’s God, and fitting are Israel’s melodies.

The Lord’s spirit spoke by me, and his word was upon my tongue. Israel’s keeper spoke to me: Speak a parable. How might you strengthen fear of God by a human?

And by God may the sun rise at the light of dawn; the morning did not pass from splendor, and it was as if from rain for tender grass from the earth.

For is my house not so with Someone Strong? For he made with me an everlasting covenant, ready in every season, kept safe; for my whole salvation and total will is that the lawless shall not sprout. They are all like a thorny plant, thrust out, for not by hand shall they be taken, and a man shall not grow weary among them—and full of iron also is a shaft of a spear—and with fire, with burning, they shall be burned by their shame.

8 These are the names of the powerful men of David: Iebosthe the Chanite is commander of the Third—Adinon the Asonite—he drew his sword against eight hundred casualties at once.

9 And after him was Eleazar, son of his father’s brother, son of Sousites, among the three powerful men. He was with David in Serran, and when he reproached among the allophyles, they gathered there for battle, and they went up, a man of Israel. He stood up and struck among the allophyles until his hand grew weary and his hand stuck to the dagger, and the Lord brought about a great deliverance in that day. And the people were encamped behind him—only to despoil.

11 And after him was Samaia son of Asa, the Harouchite. And the allophyle gathered together at Wild Beasts, and there was there a portion of the field full of lentil, and the people fled from before allophyles. And he was made a stele in the middle of the portion and delivered it and struck the allophyles, and the Lord brought about a great deliverance.

13 And three of the Thirty went down and came into Kason to David into the cave of Odollam, and a unit of the allophyles encamped in the valley of Raphaim. And David was then in the enclosure, and the support of the allophyles was then in Baithlehem. And David longed and said, “Who will give me water to drink from the cistern that is in Baithleem, that is by the gate?” But the corps of the allophyles was then in Baithlehem. And the three powerful men broke through into the camp of the allophyles and drew water from the cistern that was in Baithleem that was by the gate and took it and brought it there, and the Lord delivered it to David. But he did not want to drink it, and he poured it out as a libation to the Lord and said, “Be gracious to me, O Lord, for doing this. Shall I drink the blood of the men who went by their lives?” And he did not want to drink it. The three powerful men did these things.

18 And Abessa, brother of Joab son of Sarouia, he was commander among the Three. And he awakened his spear against three hundred casualties and had a name among the Three. Of those Three he was highly esteemed and became a commander for them, but he did not attain to the Three.

20 And Banaias son of Iodae, he was a man great in deeds, from Kabeseel, and he struck the two sons of Ariel of Moab. He also went down and struck the lion in the middle of the pit in the day of the snowfall. He struck the Egyptian man, a man to be seen. Now in the hand of the Egyptian was a spear, like the upright of a ladder, and he went down to him with a rod and snatched the spear out of the hand of the Egyptian and killed him with his own spear. These things did Banaias son of Iodae, and he had a name among the three powerful men. Of the Three he was highly...
and esteemed, but he did not attain to the Three. And Dauid appointed him for his hearings. 4 And these are the names of the powerful men of King Dauid: Asael, brother of Ioab (he was among the Thirty), Eleanan son of Doudi his father’s brother in Baithlehem, 5 Samai the Harouite, Ethhithi son of the sons of the Hosoithite, 6 Selmon the Aoitite, Moore the Netophathite, 7 Ethhithi son of Ribah of Gabaeth son of Benjamin, 8 Baana the Netophathite, Eththi son of Riba of the Ammanite, Gelorai the Berothite, 9 carrier of the word of the Lord to the king, 10 Orna the Iebousite, Eliab son of Nathan from power, son of Gaddi, 11 Eliasou the Salabonite, sons of Iasan, Jonathan, 12 Samma the Harodite, Achian son of Sarad the Araourite, 13 Alipaleth son of the Hasbite son of the Maachatitme, Eliab son of Achitophel the Gelonite, 14 Hasarai the Carmelite, Phara the Erchi, 15 Igaal son of Nathan from power, son of Gaddi, 16 Elie the Ammanite, Gelorai the Berothite, carrier of the weapons of Ioab son of Sarouia, 17 Irsas the Ierousalinite, Gareb the Iethirite, 18 and the sheep; what did they do? Now let your hand. 19 And the angel of the Lord was by the threshing floor of Orna the Iebousite. 20 And Orna said to the king, “May the Lord your God May the Lord your God add to the people, just as they are, even while the eyes of my lord the king see! And my lord the king will not offer up a whole burnt offering to the Lord and offer it up to the Lord what is good in his sight; behold, the oxen for a whole burnt offering, and the wheels and the gear of the oxen for wood.” 21 And Orna gave everything to the king, and the king took and offer it up to the Lord what is good in his sight; behold, the oxen for a whole burnt offering, and the wheels and the gear of the oxen for wood.” 22 And Orna said to Dauid, “This is what the Lord says: Three things I am—I am taking up against you, and I shall fall now into the hand of the Lord, for his mercies are very many, but into human hands I will not fall.” And Dauid chose for himself death. 23 And there were days of wheat harvest, and the Lord gave death in Israel from morning till lunchtime, and the destruction began among the people, and seventy thousand of the men died out of the people, from Dan and as far as Bersabee. 24 And the angel of God stretched out his hand towards Jerusalem to destroy it, and the Lord was consoled over the evil and said to the angel who was destroying among the people, “It is much now; relax your hand.” And the angel of the Lord was by the threshing floor of Orna the Iebousite. 25 And Dauid went up according to the word of Gad, and they crossed the Jordan and encamped in Aroer on the right side of the city that is in the middle of the ravine of Gad and Eliezer. 26 And they came to Galaad and to the land of Thabason, which is Hadassai, and they drew near to Danidan and Oudan and circled round to Sidon and came to Mapsr of Tyre and all the cities of the Heuite and the Chananite, and they came down south of Iouda to Bersabee. 27 And they went round in all the land, and they drew near to Ierousalem at the end of nine months and twenty days. 28 And Joab gave the number of the inspection of the people to the king: and Israel was eight hundred thousand men of power capable of drawing a sword, and man of Iouda was five hundred thousand warrior men. 29 And Dauid’s heart struck him after he had numbered the people, and Dauid said to the Lord, “I sinned greatly in what I did. Now, O Lord, do put aside the lawlessness of your slave, for I have been very foolish.” 30 And Dauid rose in the morning, and a word of the Lord came to Gad the prophet,
And King David was old, advanced in days, and they kept clothing him with clothes, and he was not being warmed. And his servants said, "Let them search for a young virgin for our lord the king, and she shall wait on the king, and she shall be keeping him warm and shall fall asleep with him, and our lord the king shall be warmed." And they searched for a beautiful girl from every boundary of Israel and found Abisak the Somanite and brought her to the king. And the girl was beautiful, extremely so, and she was keeping the king warm and was ministering to him, but the king did not know her.

And Adonias son of Haggith was exalting himself, saying, "I will be king," and he prepared for himself chariots and horsemen and fifty men to run along before him. And his father did not ever hinder him, saying, "For what reason did you act?" And indeed he was very youthful in appearance, and he begot him after Abessalom. And his conferences were with Joab the son of Sarouia and with Abiathar the priest, and they were helping behind Adonias. And Sadok the priest and Banaia son of Iodae and Nathan the prophet and Semei and Rei and the powerful men of David were not behind Adonias.

And Adonias offered sacrifices, sheep and calves and lambs, with stone of Zoeloth, which was next to the spring of Rogel, and he invited all his brothers and all the prominent men of Iouda, servants of the king. And Nathan the prophet and Banaia and the powerful men and Salomon his brother he did not invite.

And Nathan spoke to Bersabee mother of Salomon, saying, "Did you not hear that Adonias son of Haggith became king, and our lord David did not know? And now come, I will indeed give you advice. And deliver your own life and the life of your son Salomon. Come on, go in to King David, and you shall speak to him, saying, 'Did you not, my lord O king, swear to your slave, saying: Salomon your son shall be king after me, and he shall sit on my throne? And why is it that Adonias became king?' And behold, while you are still there speaking with the king, I too will go in after you and will fill out your words."

And Beraßbee went in to the king into the chamber. And the king was very old, and Abisak the Somanite was ministering to the king. And Beraßbee bent down and did obeisance to the king, and the king said, "What is it with you?" And she said, "My lord O king, you swore by the Lord your God to your slave, saying: Salomon your son shall be king after me, and he shall sit on my throne. And now, behold, Adonias became king, and you, my lord O king, did not know. And he offered sacrifices, calves and lambs and sheep in great numbers, and invited all the sons of the king and Abiathar the priest and loab the commander of the force, but Salomon your slave he did not invite. And you, my lord O king—the eyes of all Israel are towards you to tell them who shall sit on the throne of my lord the king after him. And it will come to pass, when my lord the king sleeps with his fathers, that I myself and my son Salomon will be sinners."

And behold, while she was still speaking with the king, Nathan the prophet also came. And it was told the king, "Behold, Nathan the prophet." And he entered in front of the king and did obeisance to the king, in front of him on the ground. And Nathan said, "My lord O king, did you say, 'Adonias shall be king after me, and he shall sit on my throne'? For today he went down and offered sacrifices, calves and lambs and sheep in great numbers, and invited all the sons of the king and the commanders of the force and Abiathar the priest, and behold, they are eating and drinking before him, and they said, 'Let King Adonias live!' But me myself your slave and Sadok the priest and Banaia son of Iodae and Salomon your slave he did not invite. If this thing has been brought about by my lord the king, then you did not let your slave know who shall sit on the throne of my lord the king after him."

And David answered and said, "Summon to me Beraßbee." And she came in before the king and stood before him. And the king swore and said, "The Lord lives, who redeemed my life from every affliction, that as I swore to you by the Lord, the God of Israel, saying, 'Salomon your son shall be king after me, and he shall sit on my throne instead of me,' that so will I do this day."

And Beraßbee bent down on her face on the ground and did obeisance to the king and said, "Let my lord King David live forever!"

And David answered and said, "Summon to me Sadok the priest and Nathan the prophet and Banaia son of Iodae." And they came in before the king. And the king said to them, "Take the slaves of your lord with you and mount my son Salomon on my own mule and bring him down to Gion.

And there let Sadok the priest and Nathan the prophet anoint him king over Israel. And trumpet with a horn, and you shall say, ‘Let King Salomon live!’ 35 And he shall sit on my throne, and he shall be king instead of me, and I myself commanded that he be ruler over Israel and louda.” 36 And Banaias son of Iodae answered the king and said, “May it be! May the Lord, the God of my lord the king, so guarantee. 37 As the Lord was with my lord the king, so may he be with Salomon, and may he make his throne greater than the throne of my lord King David.”

38 And Sadok the priest went down, and Nathan the prophet and Banaias son of Iodae and Chereththi and Pheleththi, and they seated Salomon on the mule of King David and led him away to Gion. 39 And Sadok the priest took the horn of oil from the tent and anointed Salomon with oil of anointing and trumpeted with the horn. And all the people said, “Let King Salomon live!” 40 And all the people went up after him, and they were dancing in choruses and rejoicing with great joy, and the earth burst at their sound.

41 And Adonias heard, and all his guests, and they finished eating. And Ioab heard the sound of the horn and said, “What, the sound of the city echoing?” 42 While he was still speaking, also be tered and did obeisance to King Salomon, and Sa-brought him down from upon the altar. And he en-ad and rose, and they went away, a man on his way.

50 And Adonias was afraid from before Salomon and got up and went away and took hold of the horns of the altar. 51 And it was told Salomon, saying: 2 “Iam— I am going by way of all the earth. And you shall not bring his gray hair down in peace to Hades. 7 And you shall do mercy to the sons of Beserelli the Galaadite, and they shall be among those who eat your table, for thus they drew near to me when I ran away from before Abessalom your brother. 8 And behold, there is with you Semei son of Gera son of the Iemeni from Baourim, and he cursed me with a painful curse on the day when I went to Camps, and he came down to meet me at the Jordan, and I swore to him by the Lord, saying, ‘If I will put you to death with a sword, . . . ’ 9 And you shall not hold him guiltless, for you are a wise man, and you will know what you shall do to him, and you shall bring his gray hair down with blood to Hades.”

10 And David slept with his fathers and was buried in the city of David. 11 And the days that David reigned over Israel were forty years; in Chebron he reigned seven years and in Ierousalim thirty-three years.

(OLD GREEK)
19 And Bersabee went in to King Salomon to speak to him on behalf of Adonias. And the king rose to meet her and kissed her, and he sat on his throne, and a throne was placed for the king's mother, and she sat on his right. 20And she said to him, "I request one small request from you; do not turn your face away." And the king said to her, "Make your request, my mother, for I will not refuse you." 21And she said, "Let now Abisak the Semei son of Gera, son of the offspring of the Iemini, from Chebron; 35nand he cursed me with a painful curse on the day I was going into Camps, 35nand he would come down to meet me at the Jordan, and I swore to him by the Lord, saying: If he will be put to death with a sword . . . ! 35oAnd now do not hold him guiltless, for you are a prudent man, and you will know what you shall do to him, and you shall bring his gray head down with blood to Hades."

36 And the king summoned Semei and said to him, "Build yourself a house in Jerusalem, and sit there, and you shall not go out from there to any place whatever, 37and it will be on the day of your going out, and you shall cross the Wadi Kedron; 38that you may eat the bread of affliction that is before the Lord your God for forty years, 39even as you cursed me and spoke, saying, 'The Lord shall bring back the blood of his injustice on his head.' 40And the king commanded Abiathar the priest, saying, 'Send Tarethsar son of Achim, the seer, and bring him to me.' And Tarethsar came to King Salomon. 41And the king said to Tarethsar, 'Tell me, Abiathar, why did you not bring me Tarethsar son of Achim, the seer, 42for you know of their blood, Abenner son of Ner, commander-in-chief of Israel, and Amessa son of Jathob, commander-in-chief of Ioudas, 33and their spilled blood was brought back on his head and on the head of his offspring forever, and to Daid and to his offspring and to his house and to his throne may there be peace from the Lord forever. 34And Banaïou son of Iodae came upon Ioaob and put him to death and buried him at his house in the wilderness. 35And the king put Banaïou son of Iodae in command in his place, and the kingdom was being established in Jerusalem, and the king appointed the priest Sadak first priest in the place of Abiathar.

35a (4.29) And the Lord gave Salomon discernment and very great wisdom and breadth of mind like the sand which is by the sea, 35b(4.30)and the discernment of Salomon was greatly multiplied above the discernment of all ancient sons and above all prudent ones of Egypt. 35c(3.1) And he took the daughter of Pharao and brought her into the city of Dauid until he first finished his house and the house of the Lord and the wall of Jerusalem round about, in seven years he made and finished them. 35d(5.15)And Salomon had seventy thousand bearing a burden and eighty thousand stonecutters in the hill country. 35e(7.23) And Salomon made the sea and the supports and the great washbasins and the pillars and the fountain of the court and the bronze sea. 35fAnd he built the citadel and its defenses, and he cut through the city of Daid; (9.24)thus Pharao's daughter used to go up from the city of Daid to her house which he built for her. Then he built the citadel. 35g(9.25) And Salomon would offer up in the year three whole burnt offerings and peace offerings on the altar that he built for the Lord and would burn incense before the Lord. And he finished the house. 35h(9.23) And these are the chief officers who were appointed over the works of Salomon: (5.16)three thousand six hundred overseers of the people who did the works. 35iAnd he built Assour and Magdo and Gazer and Upper Baithoron and Baalath; 35jonly after he built the house of the Lord and the wall of Jerusalem round about, after these he built these cities. 35kAnd while Daid was still alive, he commanded Salomon, saying, (2.8) "Behold, with you is Semei son of Gera, son of the offspring of the Lemuini, from Chebron; 35mhe cursed me with a painful curse on the day I was going into Camps, 35nand he would come down to meet me at the Jordan, and I swore to him by the Lord, saying: If he will be put to death with a sword . . . ! 35oAnd now do not hold him guiltless, for you are a prudent man, and you will know what you shall do to him, and you shall bring his gray head down with blood to Hades."

36 And the king summoned Semei and said to him, "Build yourself a house in Jerusalem, and sit there, and you shall not go out from there to any place whatever, 37and it will be on the day of your going out, and you shall cross the Wadi Ke-
3 And it happened after three years that two of Simei’s slaves ran away to King Anchous son of Maacha of Geth, and it was told Simei, saying, “Behold, your slaves are in Geth.” 4And Simei arose and saddled his donkey and went to Anchous in Geth to search for his slaves, and Simei went and brought his slaves from Geth. 4And it was reported to Salomon, saying, “Simei went from Jerusalem to Geth and brought back his slaves.” 42And the king sent and summoned Semei and said to him, “Did I not make you swear by the Lord and solemnly adjure you, saying, ‘Knowing you shall know that on the day you go out of Jerusalem and go to the right or to the left, by death you shall die?’ 43And why is it that you have not spoken the word that I commanded against you?” 44And the king kept the oath of the Lord and the commandment of the Lord to give Simei the blood of his slaves. 45And King Salomon is blessed, and the throne of David shall be established before the Lord for ever.” 46And King Salomon commanded Banaia son of Iodae, and he went out and did away with his slaves.

10 And it was pleasing before the Lord that Salomon requested this thing. 11And the Lord said to him, “Because you requested this thing from me and did not request for yourself many days and did not request riches and did not request lives of your enemies but requested for yourself understanding to discern between good and evil; for who will be able to judge this your weighty people?”

3 2Only, the people were burning incense at the high places, because until now a house had not been built for the name of the Lord.

4 And Salomon loved the Lord, to walk in the ordinances of his father David; only, he would sacrifice and offer incense at the high places. 4And he arose and went to Gabaon to sacrifice there, for this was the highest ground and great; Salomon offered a thousand whole burnt offerings on the altar at Gabaon. 5And the Lord appeared to Salomon in a dream by night, and the Lord said to Salomon, “Request some request for yourself.” 6And Salomon said, “You did great mercy with your slave, my father David, as he passed through before you in truth and in righteousness and in uprightness of heart with you, and you have kept him this great mercy to give his son on his throne, and I am a little lad, and I do not know my going out and my coming in, 8but your slave is in the midst of your people whom you chose, a large people, who shall not be counted, 9and you shall give your slave a heart to hear and to judge your people in righteousness to discern between good and evil; for who will be able to judge this your weighty people?”

46a And King Salomon was very prudent and wise, (4.20) and loudas and Israel were very many as the sand which is by the sea in great number, eating and drinking and being happy, (4.24) for he was chief everywhere across the river from Raphi to Gaza, among all the kings across the river, (4.25) and he had peace on all his sides round about, (4.23) and choice fatted birds. 46b And Salomon began to open the resources of Lebanon, (4.26) for he was chief among all the kings from the river and as far as the land of allopycles and to the borders of Egypt. 46i(4.2 1)And he was chief among all the kings from the river and as far as the land of allopycles and to the borders of Egypt.

46 Salomon son of David reigned over Israel and loudas in Jerusalem.

And these were the officials of Salomon: Azariou son of Sadok the priest and Ornion son of Nathan chief of those in charge and Edram, over his house, and Soubia, scribe, and Basa son of Achithalam, recorder, and Abi son of Ioab, commander-in-chief, and Achire son of Edrai over the levies and Banaia son of Iodae over the main court and over the brickworks and Zachour son of Nathan, the counselor. (4.28) And Salomon had forty thousand brood mares for chariots and twelve thousand horsemen. (4.21) And he was chief among all the kings from the river and as far as the land of allopycles and to the borders of Egypt.
birth, and we were together, and there was no one else with us beside both of us in the house. 19 And this woman's son died in the night, as she lay on him, 20 and she got up in the middle of the night and took my son from my arms and laid him in her bosom and laid her dead son in my bosom.
21 And I arose in the morning, to nurse my son, and that one was dead, and behold, I looked at him closely in the morning, and behold, it was not my son whom I had borne. 22 And the other woman said, "No, but the living son is mine, but the dead son is yours." And they spoke before the king.
23 And the king said to them, "You say, 'This is my son that is alive, and this woman's son is the dead one,' and you say, 'Not so! but my son is the living one, and your son is the dead one.' " 24 And the king said, "Take a dagger for me," and they brought the dagger before the king. 25 And the king said, "Divide the living boy, the suckling, in two, and give the half of it to this woman and the half of it to this woman." 26 And the woman whose was the living son answered and said to the king—because her womb was troubled over her son—and she said, "With regard to me, my lord, give her the boy, and by death do not put him to death," and this woman said, "Let it be neither mine nor yours;
divide it." 27 And the king answered and said:
"Give the boy to the one who said, 'Give it to her, and by death do not put him to death.' She is his mother." 28 And all Israel heard this judgment that the king judged, and they stood in awe from before the king, because they perceived that divine discernment was in him to execute judgment.

4 And King Salomon was ruling over Israel:
1 and these were the rulers who were his: Azairius son of Sadok 3 and Eliareph and Achia son of Saba, secretaries, and Iosaphat son of Achilid, recorded, 4 and Sadouch and Abiathar, priests, 5 and Ornia son of Nathan, over the officials, and Zabouth son of Nathan, the king's companion, and Achiel, steward, and Eliab son of Saph, over the paternal family, and Adoniram son of Ephra, over the levy.

7 And Salomon had twelve appointed over all Israel to provide for the king and his household; it would be that for one month in the year the one would provide. 8 And these are their names: Benor in the hill country of Ephraim, one; 9 son of Rechab in Machemah and Bethalamin and Baithsamus and Ailon as far as Baithanan, one; 10 son of Esoth Bethbethna, Lousamencha and Resphara; 11 Chinanadab and Anaphathi, a man of Tableth
(his wife was a daughter of Salomon), one; 12 Bakcha son of Achilid Thanan and Mekedo and all the house of San which is beside Sesathan below the Esrae and from Baisaphoud Ebelmaola as far as Maebor Loukam, one; 13 son of Gaber in Remath Galaad, and to this the allotment Eregaba, which is in Basan, sixty great cities with walls and bronze bars, one; 14 Chinadab son of Achel Maanain, one; 15 Achimaha, in Nepthali (and he took Basemmath, Salomon's daughter, as wife), one; 16 Baana son of Chousi in Maalath, one; 17 Samaa son of Ela in Benjamin; 18 Gaber son of Adai in the land of Gad, the land of King Seon of Hesebon and of King Og of Basan; and one nasiph 9 in the land of Ioudas; 19 Iosaphat son of Phouasoud in Issachar.

5 (4.27) And thus the officials would supply provisions for King Salomon and everything ordered for the table of the king, each one in his month, they did not alter a thing, and they also used to bring to the place where the king might be barley and straw for the horses and the chariots, each according to his charge. 2(4.22) And these were Salomon's provisions for one day: thirty kors b of choice flour and sixty kors of ground meal 3(4.23) and ten choice calves and twenty pasture-fed oxen and one hundred sheep, besides deer and gazelles and choice birds, 'grain fed'; 4(4.24) For he was ruler across the river, and he was at peace on all sides round about.

9(4.29) And the Lord gave Salomon discern-cement and very great wisdom and volume of mind like the sand that is by the sea. 10(4.30) And Salomon was greatly multiplied, above the discernment of all ancient people and above all the discerning of Egypt. 11(4.31) And he was wise beyond all humans;
he was wise beyond Gaithan the Ezraine and Haiman and Chalkal and Darda, sons of Mal.
12(4.32) And Salomon spoke three thousand illustrations, and his songs were five thousand.
13(4.33) And he spoke of trees, from the cedar that is in Lebanon and as far as the hyssop that comes out through the wall, and he spoke of animals and of birds and of reptiles and of fish. 14(4.34) And all the people used to come to hear the wisdom of Sa-loom, and he would receive gifts from all the kings of the earth who were hearing of his wisdom.

14a(3.1) And Salomon took the daughter of Pharao for himself as a wife and brought her into the city of Dauid until he finished the house of the Lord and his own house and the wall of Ierousalam. 14b(9.16) Then Pharao king of Egypt went up and captured Gazer and burned it and the Canaanite who lived in Mergab, and Pharao gave them 9 as send-off to his daughter, Salomon's wife, and Sa-loom built Gazer.

15(5.1) And King Chiram of Tyre sent his servants to anoint Salomon in place of his father Dauid, for Chiram had affection for Dauid all the days. 16(5.2) And Salomon sent to Chiram, saying, 175.3) "You know my father Dauid that he could not build a house for the name of the Lord, my God, from the presence of the wars that surrounded him until the Lord put them under the traces of his feet. 18(5.4) And now the Lord my God gave me rest all around; there is no plotter, and there is no evil encounter. 19(5.5) And behold, I intend to build a house for the name of the Lord, my God, as the Lord God spoke to my father Dauid, saying, 'Your son whom I will give on your throne in your place, a Heb = official  b Heb 1 kor = 220 liters  c I.e. the sheep  d I.e. Gazer and Mergab this one shall build the house for my name.'

20(5.6) And now command, and let them cut timber from Lebanon for me, and behold, my slaves are with your slaves, and I will give you the wages of your services according to all that you say, for you know that we have no one who knows how to cut timber like the Sidonians."

21(5.7) And it happened, when Chiram heard the words of Salomon, he rejoiced greatly and said, "Blessed be God today, who gave to David a discerning son over this numerous people."

22(5.8) And he sent to Salomon, saying, "I have heard concerning all that you sent to me; I will do your every wish, cedar timber and pine. 23(5.9) My slaves shall bring them down to the sea from Lebanon, and I will make them rafts to the place that you indicate to me, and I will have them broken up there, and you will take them away, and you shall do my wish by providing food for my household."

24(5.10) And Chiram was giving Salomon cedars and his every wish. 25(5.11) And Salomon in turn gave Chiram twenty thousand kors of wheat and thirty thousand baths of beaten oil, like this Salomon would give to Chiram yearly.

26(5.12) And the Lord gave Salomon wisdom, as he spoke to him, and there was peace between Chiram and between Salomon, and they made a covenant between themselves.

27(5.13) And the king raised a levy out of all Israel, and the levy was thirty thousand men. 28(5.14) And he sent them to Lebanon, ten thousand a month alternating, they were a month in Lebanon and two months in their home, and Adoni-ram was in charge of the levy. 29(5.15) And Salomon had seventy thousand bearing a burden and eighty thousand timber like the Sidonians."

30(5.16) And he made an altar twenty cubits long and twenty its width in cubits and twenty its height in cubits.

31(5.17) And the king commanded, and they took great, costly stones and the unnumbered stones, boards and stones for the foundation of the house, and unnumbered stones. 31(5.18) And the king commanded, and they took great, costly stones and the unnumbered stones, boards and stones for the foundation of the house, and unnumbered stones, and sides the rulers appointed over Salomon's works, three thousand six hundred supervisors who managed the works. 32(5.18) And for three years they prepared the stones and the wood. 6

And it happened, in the four hundred fortieth year of the departure of the sons of Israel from Egypt, in the fourth year in the second month, when King Salomon reigned over Israel, 1d(5.17) that the king commanded, and they took great, costly stones for the foundation of the house, and unnumbered stones, boards and stones for the foundation of the house, and unnumbered stones, and sides the rulers appointed over Salomon's works, three thousand six hundred supervisors who managed the works.

6 And it happened, in the four hundred fortieth year of the departure of the sons of Israel from Egypt, in the fourth year in the second month, when King Salomon reigned over Israel, 1d(5.17) that the king commanded, and they took great, costly stones for the foundation of the house, and unnumbered stones, boards and stones for the foundation of the house, and unnumbered stones, and sides the rulers appointed over Salomon's works, three thousand six hundred supervisors who managed the works. 23 And in the dabi4 he made two cherubim of ten cubits measured size. 24 And five cubits the wing of the one cheroub and five cubits the second wing and from the tip of its wing to the tip of its wing ten in cubits; 25 thus it was with the second cheroub, with one measure one completion for both. 26 And the height of the one cheroub ten in cubits and so the second cheroub. 27 And both the cherubim were in the midst of the innermost house and he spread out their wings, and one wing was touching the wall, and a wing of the second was touching the wall, and their other wings which were in the midst of the house were touching wing to wing. 28 And he overlaid the cherubim with gold.

29 And with a stylus he inscribed all the walls of the house, round about, with engraved cherubim, and the inner and the outer had palm trees. 30 And the floor of the house he overlaid with gold, of the innermost and of the outermost.

31 And for the doorway of the dabi4 he made doors of juniper wood and a five-sided lintel and two doors of pine boards and carved on them carved cherubim and palm trees and open flower-leaves, and he overlaid with gold, and the gold went down on the cherubim and on the palm trees.

33 And thus he made for the gateway to the shrine lintels of juniper, four-sided porticoes. 34 And pine boards in both the doors; the one door two leaves and their hinges and the second door two leaves, hinged; 35 carved cherubim and palm trees and open flower-leaves and overlaid with gold brought down upon the relief work. 36 And he built the inner court, three courses of unhewn stones and a course of prepared cedar round about. And he built the veil of the court of the altar of the house, which is before the shrine.

7 (13) And King Salomon sent and received Chiram from Tyre, 2(14) son of a widow, and he was from the tribe of Nephthali, and his father was a Tyrian man, an artisan in bronze and accomplished in skill and understanding and knowledge to perform every work in bronze, and he was brought in to King Salomon, and he made all the works.

5(15) And he cast the two pillars for the inner court, three courses of unhewn stones and a course of prepared cedar round about. And he built the veil of the court of the altar of the house, which is before the shrine.

10(23) And he made the sea, ten in cubits from its rim to its rim; the same was round in a circle; its height was five in cubits, and so the second pillar. 12(26) And its rim was like the work of the rim of a cup, like a bud of a lily, and the thickness of it a handbreadth. 13(25) And twelve oxen were under the sea, the three facing north and the three facing seaward and the three facing south and the three facing east, and all the hindquarters were toward the house, and the sea was upon them from above.

14(27) And he made ten bronze mechonoth, five cubits the length of the one mechonoth, and four cubits its width and six in cubits its height. 15(28) And this was the work of the mechonoth; they had a stopper, and a stopper between the projections were lions and oxen and cherubim, and on the projections thus: enclosed spaces both above and below the lions and the oxen, a work of descent. 17(30) And the one mechonoth had four bronze wheels and the bronze attachments and their four sides, shoulder pieces under the washbasins. 18(32) And there were hands in the wheels in the mechonoth, and the height of the one wheel was a cubit and a half. 19(33) The work of the wheels was the work of chariot wheels; their hands and their backst and their works, the whole castings. 20(34) The four shoulder pieces were at the four corners of the one mechonoth; its shoulders were from the mechonoth, 21(35) and on the top of the mechonoth, half a cubit its size, a circle around on the top of the mechonoth and a beginning of its hands and its borders, and it was open at the beginning of its hands. 22(36) And its borders were cherubim and lions and palm trees, standing, each connected on its front, inside and round about. 23(37) Like it, he made all the ten mechonoth, one order and measure for all.

24(38) And he made ten bronze buckets, the one bucket holding forty chous by measurement; the one bucket on the one mechonoth, for the ten mechonoth. 25(39) And he placed the ten mechonoth, five on the shoulder of the house on the right and five on the shoulder of the house on the left and the sea on the shoulder of the house on the right, eastward, on the side of the south.

26(40) And Chiram made the cauldrons and the tongs and the saucers, and Chiram finished making all the works that he made for King Salomon in the house of the Lord, 27(41) two pillars and the wreathed works of the pillars on the tops of the two pillars and the two lattice works to cover both the wreathed works of the carvings that were on the pillars, 28(42) two rows of pomegranates for the one lattice work, to wrap around the right and five on the shoulder of the house on the left and the sea on the shoulder of the house on the right, eastward, on the side of the south.

All the works of the king that Chiram made, entirely of bronze; 32(47) the weight of the bronze of which he made all these works, very much in abundance. 33(46) In the region of the Jordan the king cast them, in the thickness of the ground between Sokchoth and between Sira.

34(48) And King Salomon gave the implements that he made in the house of the Lord: the golden altar, and the table upon which were the loaves of the offering—golden, 35(49) and the lampstands, five on the right and five on the left, in front of the dabil—overlaid gold, and the torches and the lamps and the golden pouring vessels and the porticoes and the nails and the saucers and the bowls and the golden censers, overlaid, and the doorways of the innermost part of the house, the holy of the holies and the golden doors of the shrine. And all the work that King Salomon did on the house of the Lord was fulfilled, and Salomon brought in the holy things of his father David and all the holy things of Salomon, the silver and the gold and the implements, and gave them into the treasuries of the house of the Lord.

And Salomon built his house in thirteen years.

39(7.2) And he built the House to the Forest of the Lebanon, one hundred cubits its length and fifty cubits its width and thirty cubits its height, and three courses of cedar logs, and cedar shoulders for the logs. And he paneled the house, from above, on the sides of the logs, and the number of logs was forty-five; the course was fifteen,
and there were three beams and space on space, three times, and all the doorways and pillars and thickness before it for the ailemmi.

40(7.3) And he paneled the house, from above, on the sides of the logs, and the number of logs was forty-five; the course was fifteen,
and there were three beams and space on
space, three times, and all the doorways and pillars and thickness before it for the ailemmi.

41(7.4) And he paneled the house, from above, on the sides of the logs, and the number of logs was forty-five; the course was fifteen,
and there were three beams and space on
space, three times, and all the doorways and pillars and thickness before it for the ailemmi.

42(7.5) And there were three beams and space on space, three times, and all the doorways and pillars and thickness before it for the ailemmi.

43(7.6) And the Ailemmi of the Pillars was fifty fifty cubits long and thirty in cubits in width, linked together. There was an ailemmi in front of them, and pillars and thickness before it for the ailemmi.

44(7.7) And the Ailemmi of the Thrones, there where he pronounced judgment, Ailemmi of the Court.

45(7.8) And he had a house, there where he sat, one court evolved for those according to this work, and a house for Pharao's daughter whom Salomon took, corresponding to this ailemmi.

46(7.9) All these were of costly stones, sculptured at intervals on the inside, even from the foundation to the coping, and on the outside into the great court 47(7.10) and with large, costly stones, stones of ten cubits and eight cubits.

48(7.11) All these were of costly stones, sculptured at intervals on the inside, even from the foundation to the coping, and on the outside into the great court 47(7.10) and with large, costly stones, stones of ten cubits and eight cubits.

49(7.12) All these were of costly stones, sculptured at intervals on the inside, even from the foundation to the coping, and on the outside into the great court 47(7.10) and with large, costly stones, stones of ten cubits and eight cubits.

50(7.1b) And Salomon finished his whole house.

8 And it happened, when Salomon finished building the house of the Lord and his own house after twenty years, then King Salomon assembled all the elders of Israel in Sion to bring up the ark of the covenant of the Lord out of the city of David (this is Sion) in the month Athanin.

3 And the priests carried the ark and the covert of witness, and all the holy vessels that were in the tent of witness, and the king and all Israel were before the ark sacrificing countless sheep and oxen. 6 And the priests brought the ark into its place in the dabir, into the holy of holies, undernethath the wings of the cherubim, for the cherubim were spread out by their wings over the place of the ark, and the cherubim would cover above the ark and above its holy things from above, and the sacred things projected, and the heads of the sacred things were seen from the holy place in front of the dabir, but they could not be seen from outside. There was nothing in the ark except the two stone tablets, tablets of the covenant, that Moseys had placed there at Choreb—which things the Lord arranged with the sons of Israel, when they came out of the land of Egypt.

10 And it happened, when the priests came out of the holy place, that a cloud filled the house, and the priests could not stand to minister from before the cloud, for the glory of the Lord filled the house.

14 And the king turned his face away, and the king blessed all Israel, and all the assembly of Israel had stood. 15 And he said, "Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel today, who spoke with his mouth concerning my father David and fulfilled with his hands, saying, 16 'Since the day that I brought my people Israel out of Egypt, I have not chosen in a city, in one scepter of Israel, to build a house for my name to be there, but I chose in Jerusalem for my name to be there, and I chose David to be over my people Israel.' 17 And it was in the heart of my father David to build a house for the name of the Lord, God of Israel. 18 And the Lord said to my father David, 'Because it came into your heart to build a house for my name, you did well that it came into your heart; 19 nevertheless, you shall not build the house, but your son who will come forth out of your sides, he shall build the house for my name.' 20And the Lord raised up his word that he spoke, and I rose in the place of my father David, and I sat on the throne of Israel, as the Lord had spoken, and I built the house for the name of the Lord, God of Israel. 21 And I set there a place for the ark, there wherein is the covenant of the Lord, which the Lord made with our fathers, when he brought them out of the land of Egypt.

22 And Salomon stood before the altar of the Lord before all the assembly of Israel and spread out his hands to heaven and said, "O Lord God of Israel, there is no God like you in heaven above and on the earth beneath, keeping covenant and mercy for your slave who goes before you with his whole heart, which things you kept for your slave my father David and spoke with your mouth and have, as this day, fulfilled with your hands. 23And now, O Lord God of Israel, keep for your slave, my father David, what you spoke to him, saying, There shall not be taken from you a man from before me to sit on the throne of Israel, if only your children keep their ways to go before me, as you went before me! 24And now, O Lord God of Israel, do let your word to my father David be confirmed.

27 'For will God indeed dwell with people on the earth? If heaven and the heaven of the heaven will not suffice for you, how much less even this house that I built for your name! 28 And you shall look upon my petition, O Lord God of Israel, to hear the delight with which your slave prays before you to you today, 29 that your eyes may be open day and night toward this house, toward the place of which you said, 'My name shall be there,' that you may heed the prayer that your slave prays toward this place day and night. 30And you shall hearken to the petition of your slave and of your people Israel, which things they pray toward this place, and you shall listen in heaven, in the place of your habitation, and you shall do and be merciful.

31 "What each sins against his neighbor, and if he takes a curse upon him that he be cursed and comes and confesses before your altar in this house, 32then you shall listen from heaven and act and shall judge your people Israel, that a lawless person has acted lawlessly—to give his way to his head—and to declare righteous a righteous person—to give him according to his righteousness.

33 "When your people Israel fall before enemies, because they will sin against you, and they shall return and acknowledge your name and pray and plead in this house, 34then you shall listen from heaven and be merciful to the sins of your people Israel and bring them again to the land that you gave to your fathers.

35 "When heaven is shut up and there is no rain, because they will sin against you, and they pray toward this place and acknowledge your name and turn from their sins, when you humble them, 36then you shall listen from heaven and be merciful to the sins of your slave and your people Israel, because you will make clear to them the good way to go in it, and you will grant rain on the land that you gave to your people in inheritance.

37 "If there is famine, if there is death—for there will be burning, locust larva—if there is no rain, because they will sin against you, and they pray toward this place and acknowledge your name and turn from their sins, when you humble them, 38then you shall listen from heaven and be merciful to the sins of your slave and your people Israel, because you will make clear to them the good way to go in it, and you will grant rain on the land that you gave to your people in inheritance.

38 "If there is famine, if there is death—for there will be burning, locust larva—if there is no rain, because they will sin against you, and they pray toward this place and acknowledge your name and turn from their sins, when you humble them, 39then you shall listen from heaven, and act and give to a man according to his righteousness, as this day.

40 "And for the stranger, he who is not of your people, 41when they shall come and pray toward this place, 42then you shall listen from heaven, from your established dwelling place, and will be merciful and act and give to a man according to his ways, just as you know his heart, for you alone know the heart of the sons of people, 43so that they may fear you all the days that they live in the land that you gave to your fathers.

44 "For your people will go out to battle against their enemies, by a way that you shall turn them, and they will pray in the name of the Lord by way of the city, which you have chosen to be in it, and the house that I have built for your name, 45then you, from heaven, shall listen to their petition and their prayer and maintain their cause.

46 "Because they will sin against you—for there is not a person who will not sin—and you will bring against them and hand them over before enemies, and those who take captive shall take them captive to a land far off and near, 47and they will turn their hearts in the land, there where they were transferred. And should they turn and plead with you in the land of their deportation, saying, 'We have sinned; we have acted lawlessly; we have acted unjustly,' 48and they turn to you by their whole heart and with their whole soul in the land of their enemies where you transferred them, and they shall pray to you by way of their land, which you gave to their fathers, the city that you have chosen, and the house that I have built for your name, 49then you shall listen from heaven, from your established dwelling place, 50and you will be merciful to their injustices with which they sinned against you and according to all their transgressions that they have transgressed against you, and you will give them over to compassion before their captors, and they will have compassion on them, 51for they are your people and your heritage, which you brought out of the land of Egypt, from the midst of a smelter of iron. 52And let your eyes and your ears be open to the petition of your slave and to the petition of your people Israel, to listen to them whenever they call to you, 53for you have separated them for yourself from among all the peoples of the earth to be your heritage, just as you said by the hand of your slave Moyses, when you brought our fathers out of the land of Egypt, O Lord, O Lord."

53a(8.12) Then Salomon spoke concerning the house, when he had finished building it, 54 "A sun the Lord made manifest in heaven; he said that he should dwell in deep darkness:

(8.13) 'Build my house, a remarkable house for yourself, to dwell in anew.' And behold, is this one not written in a book of the song?

55 And it happened, when Salomon finished praying the whole prayer and this petition to the Lord, that he arose from before the altar of the Lord, crouched down on his knees and his hands spread out toward heaven, 56and he stood and blessed all the assembly of Israel with a loud voice, saying:

56 "Blessed be the Lord today, who has given rest to his people Israel according to all that he spoke; not one word failed in all his good words which he spoke by the hand of his slave Moyses.

57 "May the Lord our God be with us, as he was with our fathers; may he be not abandon us or turn us away, 58to incline our hearts to him, to go in all his ways and to keep all his commandments and his ordinances which he commanded our fathers. 59And let these words which I have pleaded before the Lord, our God, be near to the Lord, our God, day and night, that he may maintain the cause of your slave and the cause of your people Israel, as a word of a day in its day 60so that all the peoples of the earth may know that the Lord God, he is God and there is no other. 61And let our hearts be perfect to the Lord, our God, to go devoutly in his ordinances and to keep his commandments, as this day."
62 And the king and all the sons of Israel offered a sacrifice before the Lord. 63 And King Salomon offered the sacrifices of peace that he sacrificed to the Lord, twenty-two thousand oxen and one hundred twenty thousand sheep, and the king and all the sons of Israel dedicated the house of the Lord. 64 On that day the king consecrated the middle of the court that was in front of the house of the Lord, for there he made the whole burnt offering and the sacrifices and the fat pieces of the peace offerings, because the bronze altar that was before the Lord was small so as not to be able to bear the whole burnt offering and the sacrifices of peace.

65 And Salomon held the feast in that day, and all Israel with him, a great assembly, from the entering in of Hemath to the river of Egypt, before the Lord, our God, in the house that he built, eating and drinking and rejoicing before the Lord, our God, seven days. 66 And in the eighth day he sent the people away, and he blessed them, and they went each to his tents joyful and in good heart because of the good things that the Lord did to his slave David and to his people Israel.

9 And it happened, when Salomon had finished building the house of the Lord and the house of the king and all the business of Salomon that he desired to do, 2 that the Lord appeared to Salomon a second time, as he appeared at Gabaon, 3 and the Lord said to him, “I heard the sound of your prayer and your petition which you petitioned before me; I have consecrated this house that you built to put I have done for you according to all your prayer; I and your petition which you petitioned before me; I have done for you according to all your prayer; I have heard the sound of your prayer and your petition which you petitioned before me; I have consecrated this house that you built to put gold and with every wish of his. Then the King gave Chiram twenty cities in the land of Galilee. 12 And Chiram departed from Tyre and went to Galilee, to see the cities that Salomon gave him, and they did not please him, 13 and he said, “What kind of cities are these that you gave me, brother?” And he called them Boundary to this day. 14 And Chiram brought Salomon one hundred twenty talents of gold, 26 and with that King Salomon made a ship at Gasionaber, which is near Ailath on the shore of the last sea in the land of Edom. 27 And Chiram sent off in the ship some of his servants, seafaring men who knew how to row the sea, together with the servants of Salomon. 28 And they went to Sophera and took from there one hundred twenty talents of gold and brought them to King Salomon.

10 And the queen of Saba heard the name of Salomon and the name of the Lord and came to test him with riddles, 2 and she came to Jerusalem with a very weighty force, and there were camels bearing spices and very much gold and precious stone, and she came in to Salomon and spoke to him all that was on her heart. 3 And Salomon reported to her all her words; there was not a word overlooked by the king that he did not report to her. 4 And the queen of Saba observed all the discernment of Salomon and the house that he built 5 and the food of Salomon and the sitting of his servants and the standing of his public servants and concerning your discernment, 7 and I did not believe those who spoke to me until I came and my own eyes had seen it, and behold, as they reported to me, it is not the half. You have added good things to them in every report that I heard in my land. 8 Happy are your wives! Happy are these your servants who continually stand before you, who hear all your discernment! 9 May the Lord your God be blessed who wanted you, to give you on the throne of Israel. Because the Lord loves Israel to establish it forever, he also made you king over them to do judgment in righteousness, even in their lawsuits. 10 And she gave Salomon one hundred twenty talents of gold and very much spices and precious stone. Like those spices, which the queen of Saba gave to King Salomon, there have not come again in quantity.

11 (And the ship of Chiram which carried the gold from Souphir brought very much unhehn wood and precious stone. 12 And the king made the unhehn wood supports of the house of the Lord and of the house of the king and nablasa and cinyras for the singers. Such unhehn wood had not come into the land or been seen anywhere to this day.)

13 And King Salomon gave the queen of Saba everything, as much as she desired, as much as she requested, beyond all that Salomon had given her through the hand of the king, and she returned and went to her own land, she and all her servants.

14 And the weight of gold that had come to Salomon in one year was six hundred sixty-six talents of gold.

15 Besides the tributes from those subjected and from the merchants and from all the kings who are from beyond and the satraps of the land.

16 And Salomon made three hundred beaten gold spears; three hundred gold pieces went into the one spear. 17 And he made three hundred beaten gold weapons; three minas of gold went into the one weapon, and he put them in the House of the Forest of Lebanon. 18 And the king made a great ivory throne and gilded it with pure gold; the throne had six steps, and the throne had heads of calves in relief behind it and on this side and on that, on the place of the seat, were arms and two lions standing beside the arms. 20 And twelve lions standing “on this side and on that”, on the six steps; it was not done so in any kingdom. 21 And all Salomon’s drinking vessels were of gold, and gold washbasins, all the vessels of the House of the Forest of Lebanon, were of overlaid with gold; there was no silver, for it was not reckoned in the days of Salomon. 22 For the king had a ship of Tharsis at sea with the ships of Chiram, one ship used to come to the king from Tharsis every three years with gold and silver and carved and hewn stones.

22a(9.15) This was the business of the foraging that King Salomon brought to build the house of the Lord and the house of the king and the wall of Jerusalem and the citadel, to fortify all round the land, and the cities for the horsemen and the business of Salomon which he was engaged in, to build in Jerusalem and in all the land, 22b(9.20) so that all the people who remained of the Chettite and of the Amorrite and of the Pherezite and of the Chettites and Ammonites, Syrians and Idumeans, Chettites and Amorrites, 2 from the nations that the Lord forbade the sons of Israel: “You shall not go in to them, and they shall not go in to you, lest they turn away your hearts after their idols”; Salomon clung to them for love. 4 And it happened at the time of Salomon’s old age that his heart was not perfect with the Lord, his God, as was the heart of his father David. 5 Then Salomon built a high place to Chamos, idol of Moab, and to their king, idol of their gods. 6 Then Salomon did evil before the Lord, his God, as was the heart of his father David his father.

9 And the Lord was angry with Salomon, because his heart had turned away from the Lord God of Israel, who appeared to him twice, 10 and commanded him concerning this matter that he should definitely not go after other gods and should keep to do what the Lord God commanded him. 11 And the Lord said to Salomon, “Since these things were with you and you did not keep my commandments and my ordinances that I commanded you, tearing I will tear your kingdom that I have given to your father David I will not do them in your days; I will take it out of the hand of your son.

17 And the king gave gold and silver in Jerusalem like stones, and he gave the cedars like sycamores that are in plain in abundance. 20 And Salomon’s import of horses was from Egypt and Thekoue, and the king’s traders would receive them from Thekoue by barter, 29 and the import from Egypt rose, a chariot for a hundred pieces of silver and a horse for fifty pieces of silver, and thus to all the kings of Chettini and the kings of Syria they used to go out by sea.

11 And King Salomon was a philogynist. And he had seven hundred ruling women and three hundred concubines. And he took foreign women, both the daughter of Pharao, Moabites, Ammonites, Syrians and Idumeans, Chettites and Amorrites, 2 from the nations that the Lord forbade to the sons of Israel: “You shall not go in to them, and they shall not go in to you, lest they turn away your hearts after their idols”; Salomon clung to them for love. 4 And it happened at the time of Salomon’s old age that his heart was not perfect with the Lord, his God, as was the heart of his father David, and his foreign wives turned away his heart after their gods. 7 Then Salomon built a high place to Chamos, idol of Moab, and to their king, idol of their gods. 8 And thus he did for all his foreign wives; they were offering incense and sacrificing to their idols, 9 and Salomon did evil before the Lord; he did not go after the Lord as David his father.

9 And the Lord was angry with Salomon, because his heart had turned away from the Lord God of Israel, who appeared to him twice, 10 and commanded him concerning this matter that he should definitely not go after other gods and should keep to do what the Lord God commanded him. 11 And the Lord said to Salomon, “Since these things were with you and you did not keep my commandments and my ordinances that I commanded you, tearing I will tear your kingdom from your hand and give it to your slave. 12 Yet, for the sake of your father David I will not do them in your days; I will take it out of the hand of your son.

18 And the Lord was angry with Salomon, because his heart had turned away from the Lord God of Israel, who appeared to him twice, 10 and commanded him concerning this matter that he should definitely not go after other gods and should keep to do what the Lord God commanded him. 11 And the Lord said to Salomon, “Since these things were with you and you did not keep my commandments and my ordinances that I commanded you, tearing I will tear your kingdom from your hand and give it to your slave. 12 Yet, for the sake of your father David I will not do them in your days; I will take it out of the hand of your son. 13 Yet, I will not take the entire kingdom; I will give one scepter to your son for the sake of my slave David and for the sake of Jerusalem, the city which I chose.”

14 And the Lord raised up a satan against Salomon, Hader the Idumean (11.23) and Hesrom son of Eliade who was in Raemmath, Hadrazar, king of Souba, his master, (11.24) and men were gathered around him, and he was leader of a band, and he first captured Damasek, (11.25) and they were a satan to Israel all the days of Salomon. And Hader the Idumean was of the seed of the kingdom in Idumea. 13 And it happened, when Dauid utterly destroyed Edom while Ioab, commander of the army, went to bury the casualties, that they cut off every male in Idumea 16 (for Ioab and all Israel encamped there in Idumea six months until he had eliminated every male from Idumea), 17 and Hader fled, he and all the Idumean men of the servants of his father with him, and they went into Egypt, and Hader was a young lad. 18 And men from the city of Madiam rose up and came into Pharan, and they took men with them and came to Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and Hader entered in before Pharaoh, and he gave him a house and arranged food for him. 19 And Hader found great favor in the sight of Pharaoh, and he gave him for a wife a sister of his sons of Pharaoh, and Ganebath was among the sons of Pharaoh. 20 And Hader heard in Egypt that Dauid his father and of his heavy collar that he placed on us, and Salomon saw the lad, that he was a man of action, and he gave him charge over the 21 And Hader said to Pharaoh, "What do you lack with me? And behold, you seek to go to your land," and Hader said to him, "Sending off send me off." And Hader returned to his land. 25 This was the evil which Hader did, and he was indignant with Israel, and he reigned in the land of Edom. 26 And Ieroboam son of Nabat the Ephrathi from Sarira, son of a widow woman, was a slave of Salomon. 27 And this was the matter when he lifted up hands against King Salomon. He built the citadel, closed up the fence of the city of Dauid his father, 28 and the person Ieroboam was mighty in power, and Salomon saw the lad, that he was a man of action, and he gave him charge over the levies of the house of Joseph. 29 And it happened at that time that Ieroboam went out of Jerusalem, and the prophet Achias the Selonite found him on the way and took him aside out of the way, and Achias had clothed himself with a new garment, and both were in the plain. 30 And Achias laid hold of his new garment that was upon him and tore it into twelve pieces. 31 And he said to Ieroboam: Take for yourself ten pieces, for this is what the Lord, God of Israel, says, "Behold, I am about to tear the kingdom from the hand of Salomon, and I will give you ten scepters, and two scepters will remain his for the sake of my slave Dauid and for the sake of Jerusalem, the city that I chose in it, out of all the tribes of Israel, 32 because he forsook me and acted for Astarte, abomination of the Sidonians, and for Chamos and for the idols of Moab and for their king, offense of the sons of Ammon, and he did not go in my ways, to do what is right before me, like his father Dauid. 34 And I will certainly not take the whole kingdom out of his hand because, resisting I will resist him all the days of his life, for the sake of my slave Dauid, him whom I chose. 35 And I will take the kingdom out of the hand of his son and give you the ten scepters, but to his son I will give the two scepters in order that there be an institution for my slave Dauid all the days before me in Jerusalem, the city which I chose for myself to put my name there. 37 And I will take you, and you shall reign in what your soul desires, and you shall be king over Israel. 38 And it will be, if you keep all that I command you and go in my ways and do what is right before me, to keep my commandments and my ordinances, as Dauid, my slave, did, then I will be with you and will build you a sure house, as I built for Dauid." 40 And Salomon sought to put Ieroboam to death, and he arose and fled to Egypt to King Sousakim of Egypt, and he was in Egypt until Salomon died. 41 And the rest of the words of Salomon and all that he did and all his discernment, behold, have these not been written in a book of the words of Salomon? 42 And the days that Salomon reigned in Jerusalem were forty years. 43 And Salomon slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of his father Dauid. And it happened, (12.2) when Ieroboam son of Nabat heard (and he was still in Egypt, since he fled from before Salomon and settled in Egypt), he went straight and came to his city in the land of Sarira which is in the hill country of Ephraim. And King Salomon slept with his fathers, (11.43) and his son Roboam ruled in his stead.

12 And King Roboam went to Sikima, for all Israel was coming to Sikima to make him king. 3 And the people spoke to Roboam the king, saying, "Your father made our collar heavy, and you advise, and what should I answer this people who spoke to me, saying, 'If you will be a slave to this people in this day and be subject to them and speak good words to them, they will also be your slaves all the days.'" And he disregarded the advice of the elders that attended before his father Salomon while he was still living, saying, "How do you advise and I answer this people a word?" 7 And they spoke to him, saying, "If you will be a slave to this people in this day and be subject to them and speak good words to them, they will also be your slaves all the days." 8 And he answered the advice of the elders that attended before him and said to them, "What do you advise, and what should I answer this people who spoke to me, saying, 'Lighten some of the collar that your father put on us'?" 10 And the young men who had grown up with him who attended before him and said to them, "My smallness is thicker than my fa-12 And all Israel saw that the king did not listen to them, and the people answered the king, saying, “What share do we have in David? depart to your coverts, O Israel! Now feed your own house, O David.” And Israel went away to its coverts. 18 And the king sent Adoniram who was over the levy, and all Israel stoned him with stones, and he died, and King Roboam was the first to mount to flee to Jerusalem stoned him with stones, and he died, and King Roboam was the first to mount to flee to Jerusalem; let each return to his own house, for this thing has come from me.” And they heeded the word of the Lord and forbore to go, according to the word of the Lord.

24b(11.26-28) And there was a person of Mount Ephraim, a slave of Salomon, and his name was Ieroboam, and his mother’s name was Sarira, a prostitute, and Salomon made him ruler of the cedgel over the burdens of the house of Joseph, and he built for Salomon Sarira, which was in Mount Ephraim, and he had three hundred chariots of horses; he built the citadel with the burdens of the house of Ephraim; he enclosed the city of Dauid, and he was aspiring to the kingdom. 24c(11.40) And Salomo was seeking to put him to death, and he was afraid and ran away to King Sousakim of Egypt, and he was with him until Salomon died. 24d(11.21,22) And Ieroboam heard in Egypt that Salomon had died, and he spoke in the ears of Sousakim, king of Egypt, saying, “Send me off, and I will depart into my land,” and Sousakim said to him, “Request any request, and I will give it to you.” 24e And Sousakim gave Ieroboam Ano, the older sister of Thekemina his wife, to him as wife; she was great among the king’s daughters, and she bore to Ieroboam Abia his son. 24f And Ieroboam said to Sousakim, “Do really send me off, and I will depart.” And Ieroboam departed from Egypt and came into the land of Sarira, which is in Mount Ephraim, and there all the scepter of Ephraim gathered, and Ieroboam built a palisaded camp there.

24g(14.1) And his lad was sick with a very severe sickness, and Ieroboam went to inquire about the lad, (14.2) and he said to Ano his wife, “Arise, and go; ask God about the lad, whether he will recover from his sickness.” 24h And there was a person in Selo, and his name was Achia, and he was a son of sixty years, and the word of the Lord was with him. And Ieroboam said to his wife, “Arise, and (14.3) take in your hand for the man of God loaves and two cakes and grapes and a jar of honey.” And the woman arose and took in her hand loaves and two cakes and grapes and a jar of honey for Achia, and the person was rather old, and his eyes were dim-sighted to see.

24i And she arose from Sarira and came, and it happened, after she entered into the city to Achia the Selonite, that Achia said to her lad: Indeed, go out to meet Ano the wife of Ieroboam and you will say to her, (14.6) “Come in and do not stand, for this is what the Lord says, ‘I will send hard things upon you.’” 24j And Ano entered in before the man of God, and Achia said to her, “Why have you brought me loaves and grapes and cakes and a jar of honey? This is what the Lord says, ‘Behold, you will depart from me, and it will be when you enter the gate to Sarira that your girls will come out to meet you and will say to you, “The lad has died.”’” 24k And King Salomo slept with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of Dauid. And his son Roboam ruled in his stead in Jerusalem being a son of sixteen years when he began to reign, and he reigned twelve years in Jerusalem, and his mother’s name was Naanan daughter of Anan son of Naas, king of the sons of Ammon, (14.22) and he did evil before the Lord and did not go in the way of Dauid his father.

thing concerning the Lord."

And the woman departed when she heard, and it happened, as she entered into Sarira, that the lad died, and the wailing came out to meet her.

24o And Ieroboam went to Sikima which is in Mount Ephraim and gathered there the tribes of Israel, and Roboaom son of Salomon came up there, and a word of the Lord came to Samaias the Elami, saying, “Take for yourself a new garment which has not been immersed in water and tear it into twelve pieces, and you shall give to Ieroboam and say to him, ‘This is what the Lord says, Take for yourself ten pieces to cover yourself.’” and Ieroboam took them, and Samaias said, “This is what the Lord says concerning the ten tribes of Israel.”

24p(12.3) And the people said to Roboaom son of Salomon, (12.4) “Your father made his collar heavy upon us and the food of his table heavy. And now if you will ease up on us, then we will be subject to you,” and Roboaom said to the people, (12.5) “Yet three days, and I will answer you a word.”

24q(12.6) And Roboaom said, “Bring in the elders to me and I will take counsel with them what I should answer the people in the third day.” And Roboaom spoke in their ears the people sent to him, and the elders of the people said, “Thus the people spoke to you.”

24r(12.8) And Roboaam rejected their advice, and it was not pleasing before him, and he sent and gathered those who had been brought up with him (12.9) and spoke to them the issues, “And the people sent to me, saying these things.” (12.10) And those who had been brought up with him said: “Thus you shall speak to the people, saying, ‘My smallness is thicker than my father's loins; (12.11) my father chastised you with whips, but I will rule you with scorpions.’” 24s(12.16) And the word was pleasing before Roboaom, (12.14) and he answered the people according as the lads who grew up with him advised him, (12.16) And all the people as one man cried out, saying, “There is no part for us in Dauid, neither inheritance in the son of Iessai; to your coverts, O Israel, for this person is not for a ruler or for a leader.”

24t(12.18) And the people were dispersed from Sikima, and each departed to his coverts. (12.21) And Roboaom retained control and departed and mounted on his chariot and entered into Ierousalem, and all the scepter of Ioudas and all the scepter of Beniamin went after him.

And it happened at the beginning of the year that Roboaom gathered every man of Ioudas and Beniamin and went up to fight against Ieroboam at Sikima, 24u(12.22) And a word of the Lord came to Samaias a man of God, saying: (12.23) “Say to Roboaom, king of Ioudas, and to all the house of Ioudas and Beniamin and to the rest of the people, saying, (12.24) ‘This is what the Lord says, You shall not go up or fight against your brothers, sons of Israel; return each to his house, for this word has come from me.’” 24v(12.24) And they heard the word of the Lord and forbore to go, according to the word of the Lord.

25 And Ieroboam built Sikima, which is in Mount Ephraim and settled in it, and he went out from there and built Phanouel. 26 And Ieroboam said in his heart, “Behold, now the kingdom will revert to the house of Dauid. 27 If these people go up to offer sacrifices in the house of the Lord in Ierousalem, the heart of the people will also turn again to the Lord and their lord, to King Roboaom of Ioudas, and they will kill me.” 28 And the king took counsel and went and made two golden calves and said to the people, “Let it suffice for you to go up to Ierousalem; behold, your gods, O Israel, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt.” 29 And he set the one in Baithel, and the one he gave in Dan. 30 And this thing became a sin, and the people would go before the one as far as Dan.

31 And he made houses on high places and made some part of the people priests who were not of the sons of Leui. 32 And Ieroboam made a feast in the eighth month in the fifteenth day of the month like the feast that was in the land of Ioudas, and he went up onto the altar that he made in Baithel to sacrifice to the calves that he had made, and he placed in Bethel the priests of the high places that he made. 33 And he went up onto the altar that he made on the fifteenth day in the eighth month on the feast that he fashioned from his heart, and he made a feast for the sons of Israel and went up onto the altar to sacrifice.
11 And one old prophet lived in Baithel and his sons came and told him all the deeds that the man of God did in that day in Baithel, and the words that he spoke to the king, and they turned the face of their father. 12 And their father spoke to them, saying, "Which way has he gone?" And his sons showed him the way on which the man of God who came from Ioudas returned. 13 And he said to his sons, "Saddle the donkey for me," and they saddled the donkey for him, and he mounted it. 14 And he went after the man of God and found him sitting under an oak tree, and he said to him, "Are you the man of God who came from Ioudas?" And he said to him, "I am." 15 And he said to him, "Come with me, and eat some food." 16 And he said, "I am not able to return with you neither will I eat food or drink water in this place." 17 For thus the Lord has commanded me by a word, saying: Do not eat food there, and do not drink water there, and do not return by the way that you came on it." 18 And he said to him, "Which way has he gone?" And his sons said to him, "Saddle the donkey for me," and they saddled the donkey for him, and he mounted it. 19 And he brought him back, and he ate food and drank water in his house.

20 And it happened, as they were sitting at the table, that a word of the Lord came to the prophet who had brought him back, and he said to the man of God who came from Ioudas, saying, "This is what the Lord says: Because you emblemed the word of the Lord and did not keep the commandment that the Lord your God commanded you, and came back and ate food and drank water in this place, therefore the Lord has commanded me by a word, saying: Do not eat food there, and do not drink water there, and do not return by the way that you came on it." 18 And he said to him, "I also am a prophet as you are, and an angel has spoken to me by a word of the Lord, saying: Bring him back to yourself into your house, and let him eat food and drink water," and he lied to him. 19 And he brought him back, and he ate food and drank water in his house.

20 And it happened, as they were sitting at the table, that a word of the Lord came to the prophet who had brought him back, and he said to him, "I am." 15 And he said to him, "Come with me, and eat some food." 16 And he said, "I am not able to return with you neither will I eat food nor drink water in this place, 17 for thus the Lord has commanded me by a word, saying: Do not eat food there, and do not drink water there, and do not return by the way that you came on it." 18 And he said to him, "I also am a prophet as you are, and an angel has spoken to me by a word of the Lord, saying: Bring him back to yourself into your house, and let him eat food and drink water," and he lied to him. 19 And he brought him back, and he ate food and drank water in his house.

20 And it happened, as they were sitting at the table, that a word of the Lord came to the prophet who had brought him back, and he said to him, "I am." 15 And he said to him, "Come with me, and eat some food." 16 And he said, "I am not able to return with you neither will I eat food nor drink water in this place, 17 for thus the Lord has commanded me by a word, saying: Do not eat food there, and do not drink water there, and do not return by the way that you came on it." 18 And he said to him, "I also am a prophet as you are, and an angel has spoken to me by a word of the Lord, saying: Bring him back to yourself into your house, and let him eat food and drink water," and he lied to him. 19 And he brought him back, and he ate food and drank water in his house.

20 And it happened, as they were sitting at the table, that a word of the Lord came to the prophet who had brought him back, and he said to him, "I am." 15 And he said to him, "Come with me, and eat some food." 16 And he said, "I am not able to return with you neither will I eat food nor drink water in this place, 17 for thus the Lord has commanded me by a word, saying: Do not eat food there, and do not drink water there, and do not return by the way that you came on it." 18 And he said to him, "I also am a prophet as you are, and an angel has spoken to me by a word of the Lord, saying: Bring him back to yourself into your house, and let him eat food and drink water," and he lied to him. 19 And he brought him back, and he ate food and drank water in his house.

20 And it happened, as they were sitting at the table, that a word of the Lord came to the prophet who had brought him back, and he said to him, "I am." 15 And he said to him, "Come with me, and eat some food." 16 And he said, "I am not able to return with you neither will I eat food nor drink water in this place, 17 for thus the Lord has commanded me by a word, saying: Do not eat food there, and do not drink water there, and do not return by the way that you came on it." 18 And he said to him, "I also am a prophet as you are, and an angel has spoken to me by a word of the Lord, saying: Bring him back to yourself into your house, and let him eat food and drink water," and he lied to him. 19 And he brought him back, and he ate food and drank water in his house.

20 And it happened, as they were sitting at the table, that a word of the Lord came to the prophet who had brought him back, and he said to him, "I am." 15 And he said to him, "Come with me, and eat some food." 16 And he said, "I am not able to return with you neither will I eat food nor drink water in this place, 17 for thus the Lord has commanded me by a word, saying: Do not eat food there, and do not drink water there, and do not return by the way that you came on it." 18 And he said to him, "I also am a prophet as you are, and an angel has spoken to me by a word of the Lord, saying: Bring him back to yourself into your house, and let him eat food and drink water," and he lied to him. 19 And he brought him back, and he ate food and drank water in his house.

20 And it happened, as they were sitting at the table, that a word of the Lord came to the prophet who had brought him back, and he said to him, "I am." 15 And he said to him, "Come with me, and eat some food." 16 And he said, "I am not able to return with you neither will I eat food nor drink water in this place, 17 for thus the Lord has commanded me by a word, saying: Do not eat food there, and do not drink water there, and do not return by the way that you came on it." 18 And he said to him, "I also am a prophet as you are, and an angel has spoken to me by a word of the Lord, saying: Bring him back to yourself into your house, and let him eat food and drink water," and he lied to him. 19 And he brought him back, and he ate food and drank water in his house.

20 And it happened, as they were sitting at the table, that a word of the Lord came to the prophet who had brought him back, and he said to him, "I am." 15 And he said to him, "Come with me, and eat some food." 16 And he said, "I am not able to return with you neither will I eat food nor drink water in this place, 17 for thus the Lord has commanded me by a word, saying: Do not eat food there, and do not drink water there, and do not return by the way that you came on it." 18 And he said to him, "I also am a prophet as you are, and an angel has spoken to me by a word of the Lord, saying: Bring him back to yourself into your house, and let him eat food and drink water," and he lied to him. 19 And he brought him back, and he ate food and drank water in his house.

20 And it happened, as they were sitting at the table, that a word of the Lord came to the prophet who had brought him back, and he said to him, "I am." 15 And he said to him, "Come with me, and eat some food." 16 And he said, "I am not able to return with you neither will I eat food nor drink water in this place, 17 for thus the Lord has commanded me by a word, saying: Do not eat food there, and do not drink water there, and do not return by the way that you came on it." 18 And he said to him, "I also am a prophet as you are, and an angel has spoken to me by a word of the Lord, saying: Bring him back to yourself into your house, and let him eat food and drink water," and he lied to him. 19 And he brought him back, and he ate food and drank water in his house.
establish his children after him and establish Jerusalem; as David did what was right before the Lord, he did not turn aside from anything that he commanded him all the days of his life. And the rest of the histories of Abijah and all that he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Judah? And there was war between Abijah and between Jeroboam. And Abijah slept with his fathers in the twenty-fourth year of Jeroboam, and he was buried with his fathers in the city of David, and his son Asa reigned instead of him.

9 In the twenty-fourth year of King Jeroboam of Israel, Asa began to reign over Judah, and he reigned forty-one years in Jerusalem, and his mother’s name was Ana daughter of Abessalom. And Asa did what was right before the Lord like his father David. And he took away the mystic rites out of the land and removed all the evil practices that his fathers did. And he also removed his mother Ana from being a leader, because she conducted a meeting in her grove, and Asa cut down her hiding-places and burned them with fire at the Wadi Kedron. But he did not take away the high places; yet, the heart of Asa was perfect with the Lord all his days. And he brought in the columns of his father, and he brought in his columns into the house of the Lord—silver and gold and utensils.

16 And there was war between Asa and between King Baasha of Israel all the days. And King Baasha of Israel went up against Judah and built Ramah to prevent anyone from going out and coming in to King Asa of Judah. And Asa took the silver and the gold that was found in the treasures of the house of the king and gave them into the hands of his servants, and King Asa sent them away to Hadar’s son, son of Tabernakan son of Hazim king of Syria who resided in Damascus, saying, Make a covenant between me and between you and between my father and your father; behold, I have sent you presents, silver and gold; go, break your covenant with King Baasha of Israel, and he will withdraw from me.” And Hadad’s son listened to King Asa and sent the commanders of his forces against the cities of Israel and smote Ain and Dan and Abelmaa and all Chezrath as far as all the land of Nephthali. And it came to pass, when Baasha heard, that he stopped building Ramah and returned to Thersa. And King Asa made a proclamation to all Judas up to Ainakim, and they carried away the stones of Ramah and its timber which Baasha built, and with them King Asa built all the hill of Beniamin and the watchtower. And the rest of the histories of Asa and all his dominance that he exercised, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Judah? Yet, in the time of his old age he was diseased in his feet. And Asa slept and was buried with his fathers in the city of David, and his son Josaphat reigned instead of him.

25 And Nadab son of Jeroboam began to reign over Israel in the second year of King Asa of Judah, and he reigned over Israel two years. And he did what was evil before the Lord and went in the way of his father and in his sins with which he made Israel sin.

27 And Baasha son of Achia, over the house of Belaam, laid siege against him and struck him down at Gabathon, which belonged to the allophyles, and Nadab and all Israel were laying siege to Gabathon. And Baasha put him to death in the third year of Asa son of King Abijah of Judah, and he reigned. And it happened, when he reigned, that he smote the house of Jeroboam and did not leave the house of Jeroboam any breath until he destroyed it according to the word of the Lord that he spoke by the hand of his slave Achia the Selonite concerning the sins of Jeroboam as he made Israel sin and by his provocation with which he provoked the Lord God of Israel.

And the rest of the histories of Nadab and all that he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel?

33 And in the third year of King Asa of Judah, Baasha son of Achia began to reign over Israel at Thersa for twenty-four years. And he did what was evil before the Lord and went in the way of Jeroboam son of Nebat in his sins as he made Israel sin.

16 And a word of the Lord came by the hand of Ioü son of Hanani against Baasha, ‘Since I raised you from the ground and gave you as a leader over my people Israel and you went in the way of Jeroboam and made my people Israel sin, provoking me to anger with their vain things, behold, I am rousing up after Baasha and after his house, and I will render your house like the house of Jeroboam son of Nebat; the dead person of Baasha in the city, him the dogs shall devour, and his dead person on the plain, him the birds of the air shall devour.”

And the rest of the histories of Baasha and all that he did and his acts of domininance, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days of the Kings of Israel? And Baasha slept with his fathers and was buried at Thersa, and his son Ela reigned in his stead in the twentieth year of King Asa. And by the hand of Ioü son of Hanani the Lord spoke against Baasha and against his house all the evil that he did before the Lord, to provoke him to anger with the works of his hands, in being like the house of Jeroboam, and because he smote it.

8 And Ela son of Baasha reigned over Israel two years in Thersa. And Zambri, commander of half his cavalry, conspired against him, and he was at Thersa drinking himself drunk in the house of Osa the steward at Thersa, and Zambri came in and struck him down and put him to death and reigned instead of him.

11 And it happened, when he began to reign, when he sat on his throne, that he smote the whole house of Baasha according to the word which the Lord spoke against the house of Baasha to the prophet Ioü concerning all the sins of Baasha and his son Ela as made Israel sin, provoking the Lord God of Israel to anger with their vain things.

14 And the rest of the histories of Ela and all that he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days of the Kings of Israel?

15 And Zambri reigned seven days in Thersa. And the camp of Israel was against Gabathon, which belonged to the allophyles, and the people in the camp heard, saying, "Zambri conspired and struck the king," and in Israel they made Ambri, the commander of the army, king over Israel on that day in the camp. 17 And Ambri went up from Gabathon, and all Israel with him, and they laid siege to Thersa. And it happened, when Zambri saw that his city had been taken, that he went into the cave of the house of the king and burned down the house of the king over himself with fire, and he died because of his sins that he did, to do what was evil before the Lord, to go in the way of Ieroboam son of Nabat and in his sins as he made Israel sin. And the rest of the histories of Zambri and the collusions in which he colluded, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days of the Kings of Israel?

16 Then the people of Israel were divided; half of the people were behind Thamni son of Gonath to make him king, and half of the people were behind Ambri. The people who were behind Ambri overcame the people who were behind Thamni son of Gonath, and Thamni died, and Ioram his brother, at that time, and Ambri became king after Thamni. In the thirty-first year of King Asa, Ambri began to reign over Israel for twelve years. He reigned six years in Thersa.

24 And Ambri bought mount Semeron from Semer, the owner of the mount, for two talents of silver, and he built the mount and called the name of the mount that he built Saemeron after the name of Semer, the owner of the mount.

25 Ambri did what was evil before the Lord and did more evil than all who were before him, and he went in every way of Ieroboam son of Nabat and in his sins with which he made Israel sin, provoking the Lord God of Israel, to anger with their vain things. And the rest of the words of Ambri and all that he did and his dominance, behold, are these not written in the Book of the Words of the Days of the Kings of Israel? In the second year of Iosaphat, Achaab son of Ambri began to reign; he reigned over Israel in Samaria twenty-two years. And Achaab did what was evil before the Lord, he was more wicked than all who were before him, and it was not enough for him to go in the sins of Ieroboam son of Nabat, and he took as his wife Iezebel daughter of King Iethebaal of the Sidonians and went and was subject to Baal and did obeisance to him. And he set an altar for Baal in the house of his offences which he built in Samaria, and Achaab made a grove, and Achaab added to do provocations to provoke to anger so that his life might be destroyed; he did more evil than all the kings of Israel who were before him. In his days Achiel the Bethelite built Iericho; he laid its foundation with Abiron his firstborn and set up its doors with his younger son Segoub according to the word of the Lord, which he spoke by the hand of Jesus son of Naue.

17 And Eliou the prophet, the Thesbite from Thebsbon of Galaad, said to Achaab, "The Lord lives, the God of hosts, the God of Israel before whom I stand, if there shall be dew and rain these years, except by the word of my mouth." And a word of the Lord came to Eliou, "Go from here eastward, and hide yourself by the wadi Chorrath which is before the Jordan. And it will be that you shall drink water from the wadi, and I will command the ravens to feed you there." And Eliou did according to the word of the Lord, and he settled by the wadi Chorrath before the Jordan. And the ravens would bring him bread in the morning and meat in the evening, and he drank water from the wadi. And it happened after days that the wadi dried up, because there was no rain in the land.

8 And a word of the Lord came to Eliou, "Arise, and go to Sarepta of Sidonia; behold, I have commanded a widow there to feed you." And he arose and went to Sarepta, to the gateway of the town, and behold a widow there to feed you." And he arose and went to Sarepta, to the gateway of the town, and behold a widow there to feed you. And Eliou shouted after her and said, "Bring me now a little water in a vessel, and I will drink." And she went to take it, and Eliou shouted after her and said to her, "Indeed take for me a morsel of bread in your hand." And the woman said, "The Lord your God lives, if I have a cake, but there is only a handful of meal in the jar and a little oil in the jug, and behold, I am now gathering two sticks, and I shall go in and make it for myself and my children, and we shall eat and die.” 13And Eliou said to her, “Be of good courage; go in, and do according to your word, but first make me a little cake of it, and you shall bring it to me, but afterwards you shall make something for yourself and your children. 14For this is what the Lord says, ‘The jar of meal will not fail, and the jug of oil will not diminish until the day that the Lord gives rain on the earth.’ ” 15And the woman went and did it, and she and he and her children ate. 16And the jar of meal did not fail, and the jug of oil did not diminish according to the word of the Lord that he spoke by the hand of Eliou.

17 And it happened after these things that the son of the woman, the mistress of the house, became ill, and his illness was so severe until there was no breath left in him. 18And she said to Eliou, “What to me and to you, O man of God? You have come to me to bring my injustices to remembrance and to put to death my son!” 19And Eliou said to the woman, “Give me your son.” And he took him from her bosom and carried him up into the upper chamber, there where he was lodging, and laid him on his bed. 20And Eliou cried out and said, “Alas O Lord, the witness of the widow, her with whom I am staying, you have done evil by putting to death her son.” 21And he breathed on the lad three times and called on the Lord and said, “O Lord my God, let this lad’s life now come into him.” 22And it happened thus, and the lad cried out. 23And he brought him down from the upper chamber into the house and gave him to his mother, and Eliou said, “See, your son is alive.” 24And the woman said to Eliou, “Behold, I know that you are a divine man and that a word of the Lord in your mouth is true.”

18 And it happened after many days that a word of the Lord came to Eliou in the third year, saying, “Go, and appear to Achaab, and I will give rain on the surface of the earth.” 2And Eliou went to appear to Achaab. And the famine was severe in Samaria. 3And Achaab summoned Abdiou the steward. (And Abdiou was one who revered the Lord greatly, and it happened, when Iezabel smote the prophets of the Lord, that Abdiou took a hundred men, prophets, and hid them by fifty to a cave, and kept providing them with bread and water.) 4And Achaab said to Abdiou, “Come, and let us pass through the land to springs of water and to wadis, if perhaps we may find grass and keep the horses and mules alive, and none of the animals will be destroyed.” 5And they divided for themselves the way to pass through it; Achaab went in one direction alone, and Abdiou went in another direction alone.

7 And Abdiou was on the way alone, and Eliou came to meet him alone, and Abdiou hastened and fell on his face and said, “Are you he, my lord Eliou?” 8And Eliou said to him, “It is I; go, say to your lord, Behold, Eliou.” 9And Abdiou said, “What have I sinned, that you give your slave into the hand of Achaab, to put me to death? 10The Lord your God lives, if there is a nation or kingdom to which my lord has not sent to seek you, and they said, ‘He is not here,’ and he set fire to the kingdom and its regions, because it had not found you. 11And now you say, ‘Go, tell your lord, Behold, Eliou.’ 12And it will be if I depart from you, that a spirit of the Lord will carry you into a land that I know not, and I will go in to tell Achaab, and he will kill me, and your slave is one who reveres the Lord from his youth. 13Has it not been told to you my lord what I have done when Iezabel killed the prophets of the Lord, that I hid some of the Lord’s prophets, a hundred men, by fifty to a cave, and provided them with loaves and water? 14And now you say to me, ’Go, say to your lord, Behold Eliou,’ and he will kill me.” 15And Abdiou said, “The Lord of hosts lives before whom I stand, for I will appear to him today.” 16And Abdiou went to meet Achaab and told him, and Achaab ran forth and came to meet Eliou.

17 And it happened, when Achaab saw Eliou, that Achaab said to Eliou, “Are you he who perverts Israel?” 18And Eliou said, “I am not perverting Israel, but you and your father’s house, when you forsook the Lord, your God, and went after the Baalim. 19And now send, assemble all Israel for me at Mount Carmel, and the four hundred fifty prophets of shame and the four hundred prophets of the groves, since they eat at Iezabel’s table.” 20And Achaab sent to all Israel and gathered all the prophets at Mount Carmel. 21And Eliou came near to all, and Eliou said to them, “How long will you go limping on both legs? If the Lord is God, go after him, but if Baal is he, go after him.” 22And the people did not answer a word. 23And Eliou said to the people, “I fall alone against over as prophet of the Lord, and Baal’s prophets number four hundred fifty men, and the prophets of the grove, four hundred. 24Let them give us two bulls, and let them choose the one for themselves and cut it in pieces and lay it on the wood, and let them put on no fire, and I will do the other bull and will put on no fire. 25And shout in the name of your gods, and I will call on the name of the Lord, my God, and it will be, the god who answers by fire, he is God.” And all the people answered and said, “The word which you spoke is good!” 26And Eliou said to the prophets of shame, “Choose for yourselves the one bull calf, and do it first, for you are many, and call on the name of your god, and put on no fire.” 27And they took the bull calf and did it and were calling on the name of Baal from morning until noon and said, “Hear us, O Baal, hear us!” And there was no voice, and there was no hearing, and they ran about on the altar that they made. 28And it happened at noon that Eliou the Thesbite mocked them and said, “Call in a loud voice! For he is a god, for prating occupies him, and at the same time he is perhaps giving an oracle, or perhaps he is asleep and will... get up." 28 And they were calling in a loud voice and, as was their custom, they were cutting themselves with daggers and lances until the blood gushed out over them, 29 and they were acting the prophet until evening came. And it happened, as it was the time for the sacrifice to ascend and there was no voice, that Eliou the Thesbite spoke to the prophets of the offenses, saying, "Stand aside for the present, and I will do my whole burnt offering," and they stood aside and departed.

30 And Eliou said to the people, "Come closer to me," and all the people came closer to him. 31 And Eliou took twelve stones according to the number of the tribes of Israel, as the Lord had spoken to him, saying, "Israel shall be your name," and he built the stones in the name of the Lord and repaired the altar that had been thrown down and made a thaalaa around the altar, holding two measures of seed. 32 And he piled up the firewood on the altar that he made and cut the whole burnt offering in pieces and laid it on the firewood and piled it on the altar. 33 And he said, "Take for me four jars of water, and pour it on the whole burnt offering and on the firewood," and they did so.

And he said, "Do it a second time," and they did it a second time. And he said, "Do it a third time," and they did it a third time. 35 And the water ran all around the altar, and filled the thaalaa with water.

36 And Eliou cried aloud to heaven and said, "O Lord, God of Abraam and Isaak and Israel, heed me, O Lord, heed me today with fire, and let this people know that you are Lord God and that you turned the heart of this people back." 37 And fire from the Lord fell from heaven and consumed the whole burnt offering and the firewood and the water that was in the thaalaa and the stones, and the fire licked up the dust. 38 And all the people fell on their face and said, "Truly the Lord is God; he is God." 39 And Eliou said to the people, "Seize the prophets of Baal; do not let one of them escape." And they seized them, and Eliou brought them down to the wadi Kison and slaughtered them there.

40 And Eliou said to Achaab, "Go up, and eat, and drink, for there is a sound of the feet of the rain." 41 And Achaab went up to eat and to drink, and Eliou went up on Carmel and bowed down upon the earth and put his face between his knees, and 42 And he said to his lad, "Go up, and look the way of the sea." And the lad looked and said, "There is nothing." And Eliou said, "Now you—go again seven times." And the lad returned seven times.

43 And it happened at the seventh time, and behold, a little cloud—like the sole of a person’s foot—bringing water. And he said, "Go up, and say to Achaab, ‘Harness your chariot, and go down; do not let the rain overtake you.’ " 44 And it happened until thus and thus, and heaven grew black with clouds and wind, and there was a heavy rain, and Achaab wept and went to Iezrael.

45 And the hand of the Lord was on Eliou, and he girded up his loins and ran in front of Achaab to Iezrael.

19 And Achaab told Iezabel his wife all that Eliou did and how he killed the prophets with a sword. 2 And Iezabel sent to Eliou and said, "If you are Eliou and I am Iezabel, this is what God may do to me, and this is what he may add, because I will make your life like the life of one of them by this hour tomorrow." 3 And Eliou was afraid and got up and went away for his life and came to Bersabee which belongs to loudas, and he left his lad there.

4 And he went a day’s journey into the wilderness and came and sat down under one rathm and asked that his soul die and said "Let it be enough now; indeed, take away my life from me, Lord, for I am no better than my fathers." 5 And he lay down there under a plant and fell asleep, and behold, someone touched him and said to him, "Get up, and eat." 6 And Eliou looked, and behold, at his head was a wheat cake and a jar of water, and he arose and ate and drank. And turning away, he slept. 7 And "Be the angel of the Lord returned a second time and touched him and said to him, "Get up, eat, for the journey will be too much for you."

8 And he got up and ate and drank, and he went in the strength of that food forty days and forty nights as far as Mount Choreb. 9 And there he entered into a cave and lodged there.

And behold, a word of the Lord came to him and said, "Why are you here, Eliou?" 10 And Eliou said, "Being zealous, I have been zealous for the Lord Almighty, for the sons of Israel forsook you; they threw down your altars and killed your prophets with a sword, and I alone am a remnant, and they are seeking my life, to take it."

11 And he said, "You shall go out tomorrow and shall stand before the Lord on the mountain; behold, the Lord will pass by." And there was a great, strong wind splitting mountains and crushing rocks before the Lord, and the Lord was not in the wind, and after the wind a seismic upheaval; the Lord was not in the seismic upheaval, and after the seismic upheaval a fire; the Lord was not in the fire, and after the fire the sound of a light breeze, and the Lord was there. 13 And it happened, when Eliou heard it, that he wrapped his face in his hairy mantle and went out and stood by the cave, and behold, there came a voice to him, and it said, "Why are you here, Eliou?" 14 And Eliou said, "Being zealous, I have been zealous for the Lord Almighty, for the sons of Israel forsook your covenant; they tore down your altars and killed your prophets with a sword, and I alone am a remnant, and they are seeking my life, to take it."

15 And the Lord said to him, "Go, return on your way, and you will come to the way of the wilderness of Damascus, and you shall anoint Hazael as king of Syria, and you shall anoint lou son of Namessi as king over Israel, and you shall anoint

Elisaie son of Saphat from Abelmaoula as prophet in your stead. 17 And it will be that the one who escapes from the sword of Hazael Iou shall put to death, and the one who escapes from the sword of Iou Elisaie shall put to death. 18 And you will leave seven thousand men in Israel, all the knees that did not bow a knee to Baal and every mouth that did not do obeisance to him.

19 And he set out from there and found Elisaie son of Saphat, and he was plowing with oxen—twelve yoke of oxen ahead of him, and he was with the twelve—and he came upon him and threw his hairy mantle over him. 20 And Elisaie left the oxen and ran after Eliou and said, “I will kiss my father and will follow after you,” and Eliou said, “Go back, for I am done with you.” 21 And he returned from behind him and took the yoke of oxen and slaughtered and boiled them with the equipment from the oxen and gave it to the people, and they ate, and he arose and went after Eliou and ministered to him.

20(21) And Nabouthai the Iezraelite had one vineyard beside the threshing floor of King Achaab of Samaria. 2And Achaab spoke to Nabouthai, saying, “Give me your vineyard, and it will be to me for a garden of vegetables, because it is nearer my house, and I will give you another vineyard better than it, but if it seems pleasing before you, I will give you money in exchange for this your vineyard, and it will be to me for a garden of vegetables.” 3 And Nabouthai said to Achaab, “May it not be to me from my God to give you the inheritance of my fathers.” 4 And the spirit of Achaab became troubled, and he lay down on his bed and covered his face and did not eat bread.

5 And his wife Iezabel came in to him and said, “Why is your spirit troubled and you are not eating bread?” 6 And he said to her, “Because I spoke to Nabouthai the Iezraelite, saying, ‘Give me your vineyard for money, but if you prefer, I will give you another vineyard for it,’ and he said, ‘I will not give you the inheritance of my fathers.’” 7 And his wife Iezabel said to him, “Do you now thus act the king over Israel? Get up, eat bread, and be yourself, I will give you the vineyard of Nabouthai the Iezraelite.”

8 And she wrote a document in Achaab’s name and sealed it with his seal and sent the document to the elders and the freemen who lived with Achaab. 9 And it was written in the documents, saying, “Fast a fast, and seat Nabouthai at the head of the people, 10 and seat two men, sons of transgressors, opposite him and have them testify against him, saying, ‘You have blessed God and king, and let them take him out and stone him, and let him die.’” 11 And the men of his city, the elders and the freemen who lived in his city, did as Iezabel sent to them, just as it was written in the documents that she sent to them. 12 They called a fast and seated Nabouthai at the head of the people, 13 and two men, sons of transgressors, came and sat opposite him and testified against him, saying, “You have blessed God and king,” and they took him outside the city and stoned him with stones, and he died. 14 And they sent to Iezabel, saying, “Nabouthai has been stoned and is dead.” 15 And it happened, when Iezabel heard, that she said to Achaab, “Get up, take possession of the vineyard of Nabouthai the Iezraelite, which he refused to give you for money, for Nabouthai is not alive, for he is dead.” 16 And it happened, when Achaab heard that Nabouthai the Iezraelite was dead, that he tore his garments and put on sackcloth, and it happened after these things that Achaab arose and went down to the vineyard of Nabouthai the Iezraelite to possess it.

17 And the Lord said to Eliou the Thesbite, saying: 18 Arise, and go down to meet King Achaab of Israel who is in Samaria; behold, he is in the vineyard of Nabouthai, for he has gone down there to possess it. 19 And you shall speak to him, saying, “This is what the Lord says: Since you murdered and took possession,” therefore, “this is what the Lord says: In every place where swine and dogs licked up the blood of Nabouthai, there dogs will lick up your blood, and the prostitutes will wash themselves in your blood.”

20 And Achaab said to Eliou, “Have you found me, O my enemy?” And he said, “I have found you, because you have vainly sold yourself to do what is evil before the Lord, to provoke him to anger. 21 This is what the Lord says, ‘Behold I am bringing disaster on you, and I will burn after you and will cut off from Achaab every one who urinates against a wall, both shut up and one left in Israel, 22 and I will render your house like the house of Jeroboam son of Nathan and like the house of Baasa son of Achia concerning the provocations with which you provoked, and you made Israel sin.’” 23 And to Iezabel the Lord spoke, saying, ‘The dogs shall eat her by the fortification of Iezrael.’ 24 The dead of Achaab in the city the dogs shall eat, and his dead on the plain the birds of the air shall eat.”

25 (Yet, Achaab did act foolishly when he sold himself to do what was evil before the Lord, as his wife Iezabel led him astray, 26 and he acted most abominably in going after abominations, according to all that the Amorrites did, whom the Lord utterly destroyed from before the sons of Israel.)

27 And because of the word, when Achaab was smitten with remorse from before the Lord, he went weeping, and he tore his tunic and girded himself with sackcloth on his body and fasted and put on sackcloth in the day on which he smote Nabouthai the Iezraelite. 28 And a word of the Lord by the hand of his slave Eliou came concerning Achaab, and the Lord said, “29 Have you seen how Achaab is smitten with remorse from before me? I will not bring the disaster in his days, but in his son’s days I will bring the disaster.”

21(20) And Hader’s son gathered all his force together and went up and laid siege against Samaria, and thirty-two kings with him and every horse and chariot, and they went up and laid siege against Samaria and fought against it. 2And he sent into the city to King Achaab of Israel 3and said to him, “This is what Hader’s son says: Your silver and your gold are mine, and your wives and your children are mine.”

4And the king of Israel answered and said, “As you spoke, O lord, king, I am yours, and all that is mine. 5And the messengers came again and said, “This is what Hader’s son says: I have sent to you, saying: You shall give me your silver and your gold and your wives and your children, 6for I will send my servants to you tomorrow at this time, and they shall search your house and the houses of your servants, and it will be the desirable objects of their eyes, on which they shall lay their hands, they will take.”

7And the king of Israel called all the elders, and said, “Indeed, know, and see that this man is seeking trouble, for he has sent to me concerning my wives and concerning my sons and concerning my daughters; my silver and my gold I did not keep back from him.” 8And the elders and all the people said to him, “Do not listen, and do not consent.” 9And he said to the messengers of Hader’s son, “Say to your master: All things that you have sent to your slave about at first I will do, but this matter I cannot do.” And the men left and returned word to him. 10And Hader’s son sent back to him, saying, “This may God do to me, and this may he add, if the dust of Samaria will suffice for foxes for all the people, for my footmen.” 11And the king of Israel answered and said, “Let it suffice; let not the hunchback boast as he who is straight.”

12And it happened, when he answered him this word, he was drinking, he and all the kings with him, in booths, and he said to his servants, “Build a palisade!” And they placed a palisade against the city.

13And behold, one prophet came up to the king of Israel and said, “This is what the Lord says, Have you seen all this great multitude? Behold, I will give it into your hand today, and you shall know that I am the Lord.” 14And Achaab said, “By whom?” and he said, “This is what the Lord says, By the lads who serve the district governors.” And Achaab said, “Who shall begin the battle?” And he said, “You.”

15And Achaab mustered the lads who served the district governors, and there were two hundred thirty, and after these things he mustered the people, every son of power, sixty thousand.

16And he went out at noon, and Hader’s son was drinking himself drunk in Sokchoth, he and the kings, thirty-two kings allied with him. 17And the lads who served the district governors went out among the first. And they sent and reported to the king of Syria, saying, “Men have come out from Samaria.”

18And he said to them, “If these have come out for peace, take them alive, and if they have come out for war, take them alive, and do not let the lads who serve the district governors come out of the city.” And the force behind them smote, each the one beside him, and Syria fled, and Israel pursued them, and Hader’s son, king of Syria, escaped on a horse of a horseman. 19And the king of Israel went out and took all the horses and the chariots and struck a great blow in Syria.

obeyed the voice of the Lord, behold, you will depart from me, and a lion will smite you." And he went out from him, and a lion found him and smote him. 32 And he found another person and said, "Now smite me!" And the person smote him, and he smote and smashed him. 38 And the prophet departed and waited for the king of Israel along the road and bound his eyes with a bandage. 39 And it happened, as the king was passing by, that he shouted to the king and said, "Your slave went out to the army for the battle, and behold, a man brought a man to me and said to me, 'Guard this man, but if escaping he escapes, then your life shall be for his life, or else you shall pay a talent of silver.' 40 And it happened: your slave looked around here and there, and he was not. And the king of Israel said to him, "Behold, you have also slain the ambushes on my side." 41 And he hastened and removed the bandage away from his eyes, and the king of Israel recognized him that he was one of the prophets. 42 And he said to him, "This is what the Lord says, 'Because you carried off a man destined for destruction at your hand, your life shall also be for his life, and your people for his people.'" 43 And the king of Israel departed, troubled and faint, and came to Samaria.

22 And he stayed for three years, and there was no war between Syria and between Israel. 2 And it happened in the third year that Jotham, king of Judah, came down to the king of Israel. 3 And the king of Israel said to his servants, "Do you know that Remmath Galaad belongs to us, and we are saying nothing to take it out of the hand of the king of Syria?" 4 And the king of Israel said to Jotham, "Will you go up with us to Remmath Galaad to battle?" And Jotham said, "As I am, so also are you; as my people, are your people; as my horses, are your horses." 5 And Jotham, king of Judah, said to the king of Israel, "Do inquire of the Lord today." 6 And the king of Israel gathered all the prophets together, about four hundred men, and the king said to them, "Shall I go to battle against Remmath Galaad, or shall I refrain?" And they said, "Go up, and giving the Lord will give it into the hands of the king." 7 And Jotham said to the king of Israel, "Is there not a prophet of the Lord here? And we will inquire of the Lord through him." 8 And the king of Israel said to Jotham, "There is still one man to inquire of the Lord through him, but I hate him, for he does not speak anything good about me, but only evil, Michaias son of Iemla." And Jotham, king of Judah, said, "Let the king not say so." 9 And the king of Israel summoned one eunuch and said, "Quickly, Michaias son of Iemla." 10 And the king of Israel and Jotham king of Judah were sitting, a man upon his throne, armed in the gates of Samaria, and all the prophets were prophesying before them. 11 And Jotham son of Chanana made for himself horns of iron, and he said, "This is what the Lord says: With these you shall gore Syria until it is finished." 12 And all the prophets were prophesying the same way, saying, "Go up to Remmath Galaad, and you will succeed, and the Lord will give into your hands the king of Syria." 13 And the messenger who had gone to summon Michaias spoke to him, saying, "Behold now, all the prophets are speaking with one mouth good things about the king; now you too, let your words be like the words of one of them, and speak good things." 14 And Michaias said, "The Lord lives, for whatever the Lord says to me, that I will speak." 15 And he came to the king, and the king said to him, "Michaias, shall I go up to Remmath Galaad to battle, or shall I refrain?" And he said, "Go up, and you will succeed, and the Lord will give it into the hands of the king." 16 And the king said to him, "How many times must I make you swear that you tell me the truth in the name of the Lord?" 17 And Michaias said, "Not so—I have seen all Israel scattered on the mountains, like a flock that has no shepherd, and the Lord said, 'These have no master; let each one go home in peace.'" 18 And the king of Israel said to Jotham, king of Judah, "Did I not tell you that this one does not prophesy anything good to me, for on the contrary evil?" 19 And Michaias said, "Not so, not I—hear the word of the Lord—not so: I saw the Lord God of Israel, sitting on his throne, and all the host of heaven stood near him on his right and on his left. 20 And the Lord said, 'Who will entice Achaab, king of Israel, and he will go up and fall at Remmath Galaad?' And one spoke one way, and another another way. 21 And a spirit came forward and stood before the Lord and said, 'I will entice him.' And the Lord said to him, 'In what way?'" 22 And he said, 'I will go out and be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.' And he said, 'You shall entice him, and indeed you shall prevail; go out, and do so.' 23 And now, behold, the Lord has put a lying spirit in the mouth of all these your prophets, and the Lord has spoken evil against you." 24 And Sedekias son of Chanana came near and struck Michaias on the cheek and said, "What kind of a spirit of the Lord has spoken in you?" 25 And Michaias said, "Behold, you shall see in that day, when you go into a chamber of the chamber to hide." 26 And the king of Israel said, "Take Michaias, and return him to Emer the governor of the city, and tell loas son of the king to put this fellow in prison and to feed him bread of affliction and water of affliction until I return in peace." 27 And Michaias said, "If returning you return in peace, the Lord has not spoken by me." 28 And the king of Israel and Jotham, king of Judah, with him went up to Remmath Galaad. 29 And the king of Israel said to Jotham, king of Judah, "I will disguise myself and enter into the battle, and you wear my clothing." And the king of Sedekias = Ra Israel disguised himself and entered into the battle. 31 And the king of Syria commanded the thirty-two commanders of his chariots, saying, “Fight not small or great, but only the king of Israel.” 32 And it happened, as the commanders of the chariots saw Josaphat, king of Juda, that they said, “This appears to be the king of Israel.” And they surrounded him to fight him, and Josaphat cried out. 33 And it happened, as the commanders of the chariots saw that this was not the king of Israel, that they turned back from him. 34 And one drew his bow aiming well and struck the king of Israel between the lungs and between the breastplate. And he said to the driver of his chariot, “Turn your hands around, and carry me away out of the battle, for I am wounded.” 35 And the battle turned into a rout in that day, and the king stood on his chariot facing Syria from morning until evening, and he shed blood from the wound into the hollow of the chariot, and he died in the evening, and blood of the rout flowed out to the hollow of the chariot. 36 And the herald of the army stood at sunset, saying, “Every man to his own city and to his own country, 37 for the king is dead!” And they came to Samaria and buried the king in Samaria. 38 And they washed off the chariot by the spring of Samaria, and the sows and the dogs licked up the blood, and the prostitutes washed themselves in the blood, according to the word of the Lord that he had spoken. 39 And the rest of the histories of Achaab and all that he did and the ivory house that he built and all the cities that he made, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days of the Kings of Israel? 40 And Achaab slept with his fathers, and Ochozias his son reigned in his stead.

41 And Josaphat son of Asa reigned over Juda. In the fourth year of Achaab, king of Israel, he became king. 42 Josaphat was a son of thirty-five years when he became king, and he reigned twenty and five years in Jerusalem. And his mother’s name was Azouba daughter of Selei. 43 And he walked in all the way of Asa his father; he did not turn aside from it, doing what was right in the sight of the Lord; 44 yet he did not take away any of the high places; the people were still sacrificing and offering incense on the high places. 45 And Josaphat made peace with the king of Israel.

46(45) And the rest of the histories of Josaphat and his acts of dominance that he exercised, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days of the Kings of Juda? 51 And Josaphat slept with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of Daud his father, and Ioram his son reigned in his stead.

52(51) And Ochozias son of Achaab reigned over Israel in Samaria in the seventeenth year of Josaphat, king of Juda, and he reigned in Israel two years. 53 And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord and walked in the way of Achaab his father and in the way of Iezabel his mother and in the sins of the house of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin. 54 And he was subject to the Baalim and did obeisance to them, and he provoked the Lord, God of Israel, to anger, according to all that had been done before him.

1 And Moab rebelled against Israel after Achaab died.

2 And Ochozias fell through the lattice in his upper chamber in Samaria and was sick, and he sent messengers and told them, "Go, and inquire by the goddess Baal, fly god of Akkaron, whether I shall recover from this my sickness." And they went to inquire through him. And an angel of the Lord spoke to Eliou the Thesbite, saying, "Get up, go to meet the messengers of Ochozias, king of Samaria, and you shall say to them, 'Is it because there is no god in Israel that you are going to inquire by the goddess Baal, fly god of Akkaron? Not so, for this is what the Lord says, 'The bed upon which you went up there, you shall not come down from it, for by death you shall die.' " And Eliou went and spoke to them.

5 And the messengers returned to him, and he said to them, "Why is it that you returned?" And they said to him, "A man came up to meet us and said to us, 'Go, return to the king who sent you, and you shall say to him: This is what the Lord says: Is it because there is no god in Israel that you are going to inquire by the goddess Baal, fly god of Akkaron? Not so, the bed upon which you went up there, you shall not come down from it, for by death you shall die.' " And he spoke to them, saying, "What was the judgment of the man who went up to meet you and told you these words?"

8 And they said to him, "A hairy man, and wearing a leather belt around his waist." And he said, "This is Eliou the Thesbite."

11 And the king proceeded and sent to him another officer of fifty and his fifty. And he went up, and the officer of fifty spoke to him and said, "O man of God, fire will come down from heaven and consume you and your fifty." And fire came down from heaven and consumed him and his fifty.

13 And the king proceeded still to send a third leader, an officer of fifty, and his fifty. And the third officer of fifty went to him and knelt on his knees before Eliou and entreated him and spoke to him and said, "O man of God, do let my life and the life of these fifty slaves of yours be precious in your sight. Look, fire came down from heaven and consumed the two former officers of fifties and their fifties, but now do let the life of your slaves be precious in your sight." And an angel of the Lord spoke to Eliou and said, "Go down with him; do not be afraid from before them." And Eliou set out and went down with him to the king. And he spoke to him, and Eliou said, "This is what the Lord says: Why is it that you sent messengers to inquire by the goddess Baal, fly god of Akkaron? Not so, the bed upon which you went up there, you shall not come down from it, for by death you shall die."

17 And he died according to the word of the Lord that Eliou had spoken. And the rest of the histories of Ochozias, what he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel?

18a And Ioram son of Achaab reigns over Israeel in Samaria twelve years in the eighteenth year of Iosaphat, king of Iouda. 18b And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, yet not like his brothers nor like his mother. 18c And he removed the stelers of Baal that his father had made and broke them in pieces. Yet, he clung to the sins of the house of Ieroboam who made Israel sin; he did not depart from them. 18d And the Lord was inflamed with anger against the house of Achaab.

2 And it happened, when the Lord was about to take Eliou up by a whirlwind as into heaven, that Eliou and Elisaie went from Galgala. 2And Eliou said to Elisaie, "Do stay here, for the Lord has sent me as far as Baithel." And Elisaie said, "The Lord lives, and your soul lives, if I will stay here!"

4 And Eliou said to Elisaie, "Do stay here, for the Lord has sent me to Iericho." And Elisaie said, "The Lord lives, and your soul lives, if I will aban..."
And they came to Jericho.  And the sons of the prophets who were in Jericho drew near to Elisea and said to him, “Did you know that today the Lord is taking your master from above your head?” And he said, “And indeed I know; be silent.”

And Elisea said to him, “Do stay here, for the Lord has sent me as far as the Jordan.” And Elisea said, “The Lord lives, and your soul lives, if I will abandon you!” And they both went on. And fifty men, sons of the prophets, also stood opposite at a distance, and they both stood by the Jordan.

And Elisea took his sheepskin and rolled it up and struck the water, and the water was divided here and there, and they both crossed in a wilderness.

And it happened, when they had crossed, that Elisea said to Elisea, “Ask what I may do for you, before I am taken from you.” And Elisea said, “Do let twofold in your spirit be on me.” And Elisea said, “You made hard to ask this for yourself; if you see me as I am being taken up from you, then it will be so for you, and if not, it will not be.”

And it happened, as they walked, that they were walking and talking, and behold, a chariot of fire and horses of fire, and they separated between both, and Elisea was taken up in a whirlwind as into heaven.

And Elisea kept watching and crying out, “Father, Father! Chariot of Israel and its horseman!” And he saw him no longer, and he grasped his clothes and tore them into two tears.

And he picked up the sheepskin of Elisea that fell from upon Elisea, and Elisea went back and stood on the bank of the Jordan. And he took the sheepskin of Elisea that fell from upon him and struck the water, and it did not part, and he said, “Where is the God of Elisea—aphphoph?” And he struck the waters, and they burst here and there, and Elisea went over.

And the sons of the prophets who were in Jericho saw him opposite it to him. And Elisea went out to the outlet of a new bowl, and put salt there.” And they brought a new bowl, and put salt there. And they brought it to him. And Elisea went out to the outlet of the waters and threw the salt there and said, “This is what the Lord says, I have healed these waters; no longer shall there be death nor a lack of children from there.”

And the waters have been healed to this day, according to the word of Elisea that he spoke.

And he went up from there to Bethel, and while he was going up on the way, small children also came out of the city and jeered at him and said to him, “Go up, baldhead! Go up!” And he turned aside after them and saw them and cursed them in the name of the Lord. And behold, two bears came out of the wood and tore open forty-two children of them. And he went on from there to the Carmelite mountain and from there returned to Samaria.

And Ioram son of Achaab became king in Israel in the eighteenth year of Iosaphat, king of Juda, and he reigned twelve years. And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, yet not like his father and not like his mother, and he removed the stèles of Baal that his father had made. Yet, he clung to the sin of leroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin; he did not depart from it.

And Mosa, king of Moab, was noked; and he used to return to the king of Israel: 4At the rising of a thousand rams, based on wool. And it happened, after Achaab died, that the king of Moab rebelled against the king of Israel. And King Ioram went out of Samaria in that day and inspected Israel.

And he went and sent to Iosaphat, king of Juda, saying, “The king of Moab rebelled against me; will you go with me to Moab to battle?” And he said, “I will go up; like me, like you; as my people are your people, as my horses are your horses.”

And he said, “By which way should I go up?” And he said, “The way of the wilderness of Edom.”

And the king of Israel set out, and the king of Juda, and the king of Edom, and they circled around a journey of seven days, and there was no water for the camp or for the animals that were at their feet. And the king of Israel said, “O, for the Lord has summoned the three kings passing by, to give them into the hand of Moab.” And Iosaphat said, “Is there no prophet of the Lord here? And let us inquire of the Lord through him.” And one of the servants of the king of Israel answered and said, “Elisea son of Saphat, who poured water on the hands of Elisea, is here.”

And Elisea said, “He has a word of the Lord.” And the king of Israel said, “O, for the Lord has summoned the three kings passing by, to give them into the hand of Moab.” And Iosaphat said, “Is there no prophet of the Lord here? And let us inquire of the Lord through him.” And one of the servants of the king of Israel answered and said, “Elisea son of Saphat, who poured water on the hands of Elisea, is here.”

And Elisea said, “He has a word of the Lord.” And the king of Israel said, “What have I to do with you? Go to the prophets of your father.” And the king of Israel said to him, “No, for the Lord has summoned the three kings to hand them over to the hands of Moab.” And Elisea said, “The Lord of hosts before whom I stand lives, unless I regard the person of Iosaphat, king of Juda, if I had looked at you and seen you! But as it is, get me a harpist.” And it happened, as the harpist was playing, that the hand of the Lord came upon him. And he said, “This is what the

17 For this is what the Lord says, ‘You shall not see wind, and you shall not see rain, and this wadi shall be filled with water, and you shall drink, you and your possessions, and your animals.’

18 And this is easy in the sight of the Lord, and I will hand over Moab in your hand. And you shall strike every strong city, and every good tree you shall fell, and all springs of water you shall stop up, and every good portion of land you shall ruin with stones.”

20 And it happened in the morning, when the offering was going up, and behold, waters were coming from the way of Edom, and the land was filled with water.

21 And all Moab heard that the kings had come up to fight them, and they called out, from everyone wearing a belt and upward, and they stood at the frontier. And they rose early in the morning, and the sun rose over the waters, and Moab saw the waters opposite, red as blood. And they said, “This is blood of the sword; the kings had a fight, and they struck, a man his neighbor. And now, to the spoils, Moab!”

22 And they entered into the camp of Israel, and Israel rose up, and they struck them back, and they fled before them, and they entered Moab, going in and beating. And the cities they overran, and on every good portion of land they threw, a man his stone, and they filled it, and every spring of water they stopped up, and every good tree they felled until they left the stones of the wall overturned, and the slingers surrounded and struck it.

26 And the king of Moab saw that the battle prevailed over him, and he took with him seven hundred men who drew sword to break through to the king of Edom, but they could not. And he took his firstborn son who became king in his stead and offered him up as a whole burnt offering on the wall. And great regret came upon Israel, and they withdrew from him and returned to their land.

And one woman from the sons of the prophets cried to Elisaie, saying, “Your slave, my husband, died, and you knew that he was a slave who feared the Lord, and the creditor came to take my two sons for himself as slaves.”

2 And Elisaie said, “What shall I do for you? Tell me, what do you have in the house?” And she said, “Your slave has nothing in the house, but for oil with which I shall pour out into these vessels, and that which has been filled, you shall remove.”

5 And she departed from him and did so and shut the door upon her and upon her sons; they kept coming near to her, and she kept pouring in until the vessels were filled. And she said to her sons, “Bring yet to me a vessel.” And they said to her, “There is no longer a vessel.” And the oil stopped. And she came and told the man of God, and Elisaie said, “Come on, and sell the oil, and you shall pay your interests, and you and your sons shall live by the remaining oil.”

8 And a day came, and Elisaie passed through to Souman, and a great woman was there, and she prevailed on him to eat bread. And it happened after enough of his entrances that he turned aside to eat there. And the woman said to her husband, “Look, indeed I knew that this man was a holy man of God; he regularly passes through to us. Let us now make for him an upper chamber, a small place, and put for him there a bed and a table and a chair and a lampstand, and it shall be, when he enters to us, that he shall turn aside there.”

11 And a day came, and he entered there and turned aside to the upper chamber and lay down there. And he said to Giezi, his lad, “Call to me this Somanite woman.” And he called her, and she stood before him. And he said to him, “Do say to her, Behold, you amazed us with all this amazement; what must be done for you? Is it a word on your behalf to the king or to the commander of the force?” And she said, “I am—I live among my own people.”

14 And he said, “What must be done for her?” And Giezi, his lad, said, “Actually she has no son, and her husband is old.”

15 And he called her, and she stood at the door. And Elisaie said to her, “At this season, as the time is ripe, you shall have embraced a son.” But she said, “No, my lord, do not deceive your slave.”

17 And the woman conceived and bore a son at this season, as the time was ripe, as Elisaie said to her.

18 And the child matured, and it happened, when the child went out to his father to the reapers, that he said to his father, “My head, my head!” And he said to his lad, “Carry him to his mother.”

20 And he carried him to his mother, and he lay down on her knees until noon, and he died. And she carried him up and laid him on the bed of the man of God and closed upon him and went out. And she called her husband and said, “Do send me one of the lads and one of the donkeys, and I shall go quickly to the man of God and come back.”

23 And he said, “Why is it that you go to him today? It is neither new moon nor sabbath.” And she said, “Peace.”

24 And she saddled the donkey and said to her lad, “Lead, go; do not hold back for me to mount, for if I tell you . . . !”

25 Come on, and you shall go and come to the man of God at the Carmelit mountain.”

And it happened, as Elisaie saw her coming, that he said to Giezi, his lad, “Look, indeed there is that Somanite woman; now run to meet her, and you shall say, Do you have peace? Does your husband have peace? Does the child have peace?” And she said, “Peace.”

27 And she came to Elisaie at the mountain, and she caught hold of his feet. And Giezi approached to push her away. And Elisaie said, “Let her alone, for her soul is painful to her, and the Lord hid it from me and did not tell me.”

28 Then she said, “Did I ask for a son from my lord?”

29 And Elisea said to Giezi, "Gird up your loins, and take my staff in your hand, and go, for if you meet a man, you shall not bless him, and if a man blesses you, you shall not answer him, and you shall lay my staff on the face of the child." 30 And the mother of the child said, "The Lord lives, and your soul lives, if I will abandon you!" And Elisea rose up and went after her. 31 And Giezi went on ahead of her and laid the staff on the face of the child, but there was no sound, and there was no hearing. And he went back to meet him and told him, saying, "The child was not awakened."

32 And Elisea entered into the house, and behold, the child was lying dead on his bed. 33 And Elisea entered into the house and closed the door upon the two of them and prayed to the Lord. 34 And he went up and lay upon the child, and he put his mouth upon his mouth and his hands upon his hands, and he bent over him, and the flesh of the child was warmed. 35 And he turned around and walked to and fro in the house and went up and bent over the child until seven times, and the child opened his eyes. 36 And Elisea cried out to Giezi and said, "Call this Somanite woman." And he called, and she came in to him. And Elisea said, "Take your son." 37 And the woman came in and fell at his feet and did obeisance on the ground, and she took her son and went out.

38 And Elisea returned to Galgala, and the famine was in the land, and the sons of the prophets were sitting before him. And Elisea said to his lad, "Put the large cauldron on, and boil boiled stuff for the sons of the prophets." 39 And one went out into the field to gather ariotha, and he found a vine in the field and gathered from it a wild gourd, and he went and filled his garment full, and he threw it into the cauldron, and it became boiling. And he said, "This is not good stuff for them." 40 And he poured it in for the men to eat. And it happened, while they were eating from the boiled stuff, that behold, they cried out and said, "O man of God, there is death in the cauldron!" And they could not eat it. 41 And he said, "Bring flour, and throw it into the cauldron." And Elisea said to Giezi the lad, "Pour for the people, and let them eat." And there was no longer any harmful thing there in the cauldron.

42 And a man passed through from Baith-sarisa, and he brought to the man of God from the first products: twenty barley loaves and fruitcakes. And he said, "Give it to the people, and let them eat." 43 And his attendant said, "Why should I set this before a hundred men?" And he said, "Give it to the people, and let them eat, for this is what the Lord says, 'They shall eat and leave some behind.' " 44 And they ate and left some behind, according to the word of the Lord.

And Naiman, the commander of the force of Syria, was a great man before his master and was bmarried at in face, by him the Lord gave deliverance to Syria. And the man was powerful in strength—leprous. 2 And as for Syria, they went out lightly armed and took captive from the land of Israel a little girl, and she was in the presence of the wife of Naiman. 3 And she said to her mistress, "Would that my lord were in the presence of the prophet of God who is in Samaria! Then he will recover him from his leprosy." 4 And she went in and told her own lord and said, "Thus and so said the girl from the land of Israel." 5 And the king of Syria said to Naiman, "Come here, enter, and I will send out a document to the king of Israel."

And he went and took in his hand ten talents of silver and six thousand gold pieces and ten changes of robes. 6 And he brought the document to the king of Israel, saying, "And now, as soon as this document comes to you, behold, I sent to you Naiman my slave, and you shall recover him from his leprosy." 7 And it happened, as the king of Israel read the document, that he tore his clothes and said, "Am I a god, to put to death and to make alive, that this man sends to me to recover a man from his leprosy? For only know now, and see, that this man is setting me up as an excuse." 8 And it happened, as Elisea heard that the king of Israel had torn his own clothes, that he sent to the king of Israel, saying, "Why did you tear your clothes? Do let Naiman come to me, and let him know that there is a prophet in Israel." 9 And Naiman came in horse and chariot and stood at the door of the house of Elisea. 10 And Elisea sent a messenger to him, saying, "Going, wash seven times in the Jordan, and your flesh shall return to you, and you shall be cleansed." 11 And Naiman became angry and went away and said, "Behold now, I kept saying that he will come out to me and stand and call out in the name of his god and lay his hand on the place and recover the leprosy!" 12 Are not Abana and Pharphar, rivers of Damascus, better than the Jordan and all the waters of Israel? Going, shall I not wash in them and be cleansed?" And he turned and went away in a rage. 13 And his servants approached and said to him, "The prophet spoke a great word to you; shall you not do it—even because he said to you, 'Wash, and be cleansed.' " 14 And Naiman went down and immersed himself in the Jordan seven times, according to the word of Elisea, and his flesh returned like the flesh of a small child, and he was cleansed. 15 And he returned to Elisea, he and all his camp, and he came and stood and said, "Behold, indeed I know that there is no god in all the earth but only in Israel, and now accept the blessing from your slave." 16 And Elisea said, "The Lord lives, before whom I stand, if I will accept it!" And he urged him to accept, but he refused. 17 And Naiman said, "And if not, do let there be given to your slave a load of a pair of mules, and you shall give me from the red earth, for your slave will no longer make whole burnt offering and sacrifice to other gods except to the Lord alone. 18 And the Lord will have mercy on your slave when my mas-

And to your offspring forever.” And he went out of the place where he had talked with him.

20 And Giezi, the lad of Elisaie, said, “Behold, my master spared Naiman, this Syrian, by not accepting from his hand what he brought. The Lord lives, for I will surely run after him and get something from him.” 21 And Giezi hurried after Naiman. And Naiman saw him running after him, and he turned around from the chariot to meet him. 22 And he said, “Peace. My master sent me, saying, ‘Behold, the iron is floated.’” 23 And Naiman said, “Accept two talents of silver.” And he accepted it in two bags, with two changes of robes.

24 And Naiman said, “I will give you two talents of silver. But if you will not receive it, then you may not go with me.” 25 And Elisaie said to him, “As the Lord lives, who has given you this talent? I will not accept it.” 26 And the king of Israel said, “O master, what shall I do to your servant?” 27 And Elisaie said to them, “Do strike this nation with blindness.” 28 And he struck them with blindness according to the word of Elisaie. 29 And Elisaie said to them, “This is not the city, and this is not the way; come after me, and I will lead you to the man whom you seek.” And he led them to Samaria.

30 And it happened, as they entered into Samaria, that Elisaie said, “O Lord, do open their eyes, and let them see.” And the Lord opened their eyes, and they saw. And the king of Israel said, “O master! What shall we do to these men?” 31 And Elisaie said, “Do not be afraid, for those who are with us are more than those who are with them.” 32 And Elisaie prayed and said, “O Lord, open the eyes of the lad, and let him see.” And the Lord opened his eyes, and he saw, and beheld, the mountain was full of horses, and there was a chariot of fire all around Elisaie. 33 And they came down against him. And Elisaie prayed to the Lord, and said, “Do strike this nation with blindness.” And he struck them with blindness according to the word of Elisaie. 34 And Elisaie said to them, “This is not the city, and this is not the way; come after me, and I will lead you to the man whom you seek.” And he led them to Samaria.

35 And it happened, as they entered into Samaria, that Elisaie said, “O Lord, do open their eyes, and let them see.” And the Lord opened their eyes, and they saw, and beheld, they were in the middle of Samaria. 36 And the king of Israel said, when he saw them, “Father, striking shall I strike?” 37 And he said, “You shall not strike; if you did not strike, would you have captured them with your sword and your bow? Would you have struck them? Serve up food and water before them, and let them eat and drink, and let them go to their master.” 38 And he served up before them a great serving, and they ate and drank, and he sent them, and they went to their master. And lightly armed men of Syria no longer continued to come into the land of Israel.

39 And it happened after this that the son of Hader, king of Syria, mustered all his camp and went up and besieged Samaria. 40 And there was a great famine in Samaria, and behold, they besieged it until a donkey’s head was fifty shekels of silver, and the fourth of a kab of doves’ dung was five shekels of silver. 41 And the king of Israel was passing by on the city wall, and a woman cried out to him, saying, “Save, O lord king!” 42 And he said to her, “No! May the Lord save you. How can I save you? Surely not from the threshing floor or from the wine press?” 43 And the king said to her, “What is it with you?” And she said, “This woman said to me, ‘Give up your son, and we will eat him today, and my son, we will also eat him tomorrow.’” 44 And we boiled my son and ate him, and I said to her on the second day, ‘Give up your son, and let us eat him.’ But she hid her son.” 30 And it happened, when the king of Israel heard the words of the woman, that he tore his clothes—and he was passing by on the city wall—and the people saw the sackcloth on his flesh underneath. 31 And he said, “This is what God may do to me, and this is what he may add, if the head of Elisaie shall stand firm upon him today.”

32 And Elisaie was sitting in his house, and the elders were sitting with him. And he sent a man before his presence. Before the messenger came to him, he also said to the elders, “Are you aware that this son of the murderer sent someone to take off my head? Look, when the messenger comes, shut the door, and detain him at the door. Is not the sound of his master’s feet behind him?” 33 He was still speaking with them, and behold, a messenger came down to him and said, “Behold, this trouble is from the Lord! Why should I wait for the Lord any longer?”

7 And Elisaie said, “Hear a word of the Lord; this is what the Lord says, About this time tomorrow a double measure of barley for a shekel and a double measure of barley for a shekel, in the gates of Samaria.” 2And the number-three man, on whose hand the king rested on it, answered Elisaie and said, “Behold, the Lord will make cataracts in heaven; this thing will not be, will it?” And Elisaie said, “Behold, you shall see with your own eyes, but you shall not eat from there.”

3 And there were four leprous men by the gate of the city, and a man said to his neighbor, “Why should we sit here until we die? 4If we say, ‘Let us fall into the camp of Syria.’ if they keep us alive, we shall also die. And now come, and let us fall into the camp of Syria; if they put us to death, we shall also die.” And they arose in the darkness, to enter into the camp of Syria, and behold, there was no man there. 5And they arose in the darkness, to enter into the camp of Syria; and they came into a part of the camp of Syria; and behold, there was no man there. 6And the Lord caused the camp of Syria to hear a sound of chariot and a sound of horse and a sound of a great force, and a man said to his brother, “Now the king of Israel has hired against us the kings of the Chettites and the kings of Egypt to come against us.” 7And they arose and fled in their tents and their horses and their donkeys in the camp as it was and fled for their own life. 8And these leprous men entered to a part of the camp, and they entered into one tent and ate and drank and carried away from there silver and gold and clothing and went, and they came back and entered into another tent and took from there and went and hid it.

9 And a man said to his neighbor, “Not in this manner we are acting. This day is a day of good news, and we are silent and waiting until the morning light, and we will find lawlessness, and now come, and let us enter and report in the house of the king.” 10 And they entered and called toward the gate of the city and reported to them, saying, “We entered into the camp of Syria, and behold, there is no man nor human voice there but only a tied horse and a donkey and their tents as they are.” 11 And the gatekeepers called out and reported to the house of the king within. 12 And the king got up at night and said to his servants, “I will now tell you what Syria did to us. They know that we are hungry, and they went out of the camp and hid in the field, saying, ‘They will come out of the city, and we shall take them alive and enter into the city’.” 13 And one of his servants answered and said, “Do let them take five of the remaining horses, which were left here; behold, it is for all the departed multitude of Israel, and we shall send there and look.” 14 And they took two mounted on horses, and the king of Israel sent them after the king of Syria, saying, “Go, and see.” 15 And they went after them as far as the Jordan, and behold, all the way was full of garments and vessels which Syria had thrown away in their alarm. And the messengers returned and told the king.

16 And the people went out and plundered the camp of Syria. And there was a measure of fine flour for a shekel, and a double measure of barley for a shekel, according to the word of the Lord. 17 And the king appointed the number-three man, on whose hand the king rested on it, over the gate, and the people trampled him in the gate, and he died, just as the man of God had spoken, who spoke when the messenger came down to him. 18 And it happened just as Elisaie had spoken to the king, saying, “A double measure of barley for a shekel and a measure of fine flour for a shekel, and it will be about this time tomorrow in the gate of Samaria.” 19 And the number-three man answered Elisaie and said, “Behold, the Lord makes cataracts in heaven; this thing will not be, will it?” And Elisaie said, “Behold, you shall see with your own eyes, but you shall not eat from there.”

8 And Elisaie spoke to the woman whose son he sparked to life, saying, “Get up, and go, you and your household, and sojourn wherever you may sojourn, for the Lord has called for a famine upon the land.” And indeed it came upon the land for seven years. 2And the woman got up and did according to the word of Elisaie, and she went, she and her household, and sojourned in the land of the allophyles seven years. 3 And it happened after the end of the seven years that the woman returned from the land of the allophyles into the city, and she came to cry out to the king for her own house and for her own fields. 4 And the king was speaking to Giezi, the lad of Elisaie the man of God, saying, “Do tell me all the great things that Elisaie did.” 5 And it happened, while he was telling the king the fact that he sparked to life a dead son, that behold the woman whose son Eli-inquire of the Lord through him, saying, ‘Shall I recover from this my illness?’ “ 9 And Hazaël went to meet him and took mānaa in his hand and all the good things of Damascus, a load of forty camels. And he came and stood before him and said to Elisaïe, “Your son, Hader’s son, king of Syria, sent me to you, saying, ‘Shall I recover from this my illness?’ “ 10 And Eliisaïe said, “Go, say to him, ‘By life you shall live, but the Lord showed me that by death you shall die.’ “ 11 And he stood before his face and fixed bhis gazeb until shame, and the man of God wept. 12 And Hazaël said, “Why is it that my lord weeps?” And he said, “Because I know what evil you will do to the sons of Israel; you will dispatch their fortresses by fire and kill their choice men by sword and drive into their infants and rip open their pregnant women.” 13 And Hazaël said, “What is your slave, the dead dog, that he shall do this thing?” And Eliisaïe said, “The Lord showed me you reigning over Syria.” 14 And he departed from Eliisaïe and went in to his master, and he said to him, “What did Eliisaïe say to you?” And he said, “He told me, ‘By life you shall live.’ “ 15 And it happened the next day that he took the mānaa and dipped it in the water and put it on his face, and he died. And Hazaël reigned in his stead.

16 In the fifth year of Ioram son of Achaab, king of Israel, Ioram son of losaphot, king of Iouda, became king. 17 He was a son of thirty-two years when he became king, and he reigned eight years in Ierousalem. 18 And he walked in the way of the kings of Israel, as did the house of Achaab, for a daughter of Achaab was his wife, and he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord. 19 But the Lord did not want to destroy Iouda, for the sake of Dauid his slave, since he had said to give a lamp to him and to his sons all the days. 20 In his days Edom revolted from under the hand of Iouda, and they made a king over themselves. 21 And Ioram went up to Sior, and all the chariots with him, and it happened, when he arose, that he struck Edom, who had surrounded him, and the commanders of the chariots, and the people fled to their coverts. 22 And Edom revolted from under the hand of Iouda until this day. Then Lobena revolted at that time. 23 And the rest of the histories of Ioram and all that he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Iouda? 24 And Ioram slept with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of Dauid his father, and Ochozias his son reigned in his stead.

25 In the twelfth year of Ioram son of Achaab king of Israel, Ochozias son of Ioram became king. 26 Ochozias was a son of twenty-two years when he became king, and he reigned one year in Ierousalem. And his mother’s name was Gotholia, daughter of Ambri, king of Israel. 27 And he walked in the way of the house of Achaab and did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, as did the house of Achaab.

28 And he went with Ioram son of Achaab into battle with Hazaël, king of the allophyles, at Remmoth Galaad, and the Syrians struck Ioram. 29 And King Ioram returned to be healed in Iezrael of the wounds with which they struck him at Remmoth, when he fought with Hazaël, king of Syria. And Ochozias son of Ioram went down to see Ioram son of Achaab in Iezrael, because he was ill.

9 And the prophet Eliisaïe called one of the sons of the prophets and said to him, “Gird up your loins, and take the jug of this oil in your hand, and go to Remmoth Galaad. 2 And you shall enter there and see there lou son of losaphot son of Namessi, and you shall enter and stand him up in the chamber in the chamber. 3 And you shall take the jug of oil and pour it on his head and say, ‘This is what the Lord says: I have anointed you as king over Israel.’ And you shall open the door and flee and not linger.” 4 And the lad, the prophet, went to Remmoth Galaad. 5 And he entered, and behold, the commanders of the force were sitting, and he said, “I have a message for you, commander.” And iou said, “For which one of all of us?” And he said, “For you, commander.” 6 And he got up and entered into the house, and he poured the oil on his head and said to him, “This is what the Lord, the God of Israel says: I have anointed you as king over the people of the Lord, over Israel. 7 And you shall utterly destroy the house of Achaab, your master, from before me and avenge the blood of my slaves the prophets and the blood of all the slaves of the Lord from the hand of Iezabel 8 and from the hand of the whole house of Achaab, and you shall utterly destroy from the house of Achaab “one urinating against a wall”, both bond and left behind in Isra-

il. 9 And I will make the house of Achaab like the house of Ieroobaom son of Nabat and like the house of Baasa son of Acha. 10 And the dogs shall devour Iezabel in the portion of Iezrael, and there is no one to bury her.” And he opened the door and fled.

11 And iou came out to the servants of his master, and they said to him, “Is it peace? Why is it that this epistle entered to you?” And he said to them, “You know the man and his babble.” 12 And they said, “Wrong! Do tell us!” And iou said to them,
Thus and so he spoke to me, saying, “This is what the Lord says: I have anointed you as king over Israel.” 11 And when they heard this, they hurried, and they took each man his garment and put it under him on garem of the steps, and they trumpeted with a horn and said, “Iou has become king.” 14 And Iou son of Josaphat son of Namessi conspired against Ioram. And Ioram, he was guarding at Remmoth Galaad, he and all Israel, from before Hazael, king of Syria, 15 and King Ioram returned to be healed in Iezrael of the wounds with which the Syrians struck him, when he fought with Hazael, king of Syria. And Iou said, “If your soul is with me, let no one go out of the city escaping to go and tell in Iezrael.” 16 And Iou rode and proceeded and went down to Iezrael, because Ioram, king of Israel, was being healed in Iezrael from the arrows with which the Aramin shot him down in Rammath in the battle with Iezrael, and the Lord says: I have anointed you as king over Is- rael.” 17 And when they heard this, they hurried, and said, “I see a cloud of dust.” And Ioram, he was guarding at Remmoth Galaad, he and all Israel, from before Hazael, king of Syria, 15 and King Ioram returned to be healed in Iezrael of the wounds with which the Syrians struck him, when he fought with Hazael, king of Syria. And Iou said, “If your soul is with me, let no one go out of the city escaping to go and tell in Iezrael.” 18 And a horse rider went and said, “Take a rider, and send him before them, and let him say, ‘Is it peace?’” 19 And he sent a second horse rider, and he came to him and said, “This is what the king says, ‘Is it peace?’” And Iou said, “What have you to do with peace? Fall in behind me.” And the lookout reported, saying, “The messenger came to them, but he did not come back.” 20 And he sent a second horse rider, and he came to him and said, “This is what the king says, ‘Is it peace?’” And Iou said, “What have you to do with peace? Fall in behind me.” And the lookout reported, saying, “The messenger came to them, but he did not come back.” 21 And Ioram said, “Get ready.” And he got a chariot ready. And Ioram, king of Israel, went out, and Iozchias, king of Iouda, a man in his chariot, and they went out to meet Iou, and they found him in the portion of Nabouthai the Iezraelite. 22 And it happened, when Ioram saw Iou, that he said, “Is it peace, Iou?” And Iou said, “What peace? I have come to you around this time tomorrow in Iezrael.” 23 And Ioram turned his hands to flee and said to Iozchias, “Treachery, Iozchias!” 24 And Iou filled his hand with his bow and struck Ioram between his arms, and the arrow came out through his heart, and he went on his knees. 25 And Iou said to Badekar his number-three man, “Throw him in the portion of field of Nabouthai the lezraelite, for I remember, when I and you were mounted on teams behind Achaab his father, and the Lord took this issue against him, saying, 26 Surely with the blood of Nabouthai and the blood of his sons that I saw yesterday, says the Lord, I will also repay him in this portion, says the Lord. And now, do lift him up, and throw him in the portion, in ac- cordance with the word of the Lord.” 27 And Ochozias, king of Iouda, saw and fled on Baithaggan road. And Iou pursued after him and said, “And indeed him!” And he struck him in the chariot at the ascent of Gai, which is leblam. And he fled to Mageddon and died there. 28 And his servants put him on the chariot and brought him to Jerousalem and buried him in his tomb in the city of Daud. 29 And in the eleventh year of Ioram, king of Israel, Iozchias became king over Iouda; b 30 And Iou came to Iezrael, and Iezabel heard, and she painted her eyes black and adorned her head and peeked through the window. 31 And Iou entered into the city, and she said, “Is it peace, Zambri, the murderer of his master?” 32 And he lifted up his face toward the window and saw her and said, “Who are you? Come down with me!” And two eunuchs peered down towards him. 33 And he said, “Roll her.” And they rolled her, and some of her blood was spattered to the wall and to the horses, and they trampled on her. 34 And Iou went in and ate and drank, and he said, “Do see to this cursed woman, and bury her, for she is a king’s daughter.” 35 And they went to bury her, and they found nothing in connection with her other than the skull and the feet and the palms of her hands. 36 And they went back and told him, and he said, “The word of the Lord, which he spoke by the hand of his slave Eliou the Thesbite, saying, ‘In the portion of Iezrael the dogs shall devour the flesh of Iezabel, and the carcass of Iezabel shall be like dung on the surface of the field in the portion of Iezrael so that they shall not say, It is Iezabel!’ ”

And in the thirteenth year of Ioram, king of Israel, Iou ruled over them. And Ioram, king of Israel, saw that there was peace, and he trusted in his heart, saying, “Surely there is no god in Samaria.” 2 And he left the messengers who had come to him from Iezabel his mother, who said, “Do make a man king.” 3 And he took horses, and the chariot ready. And Ioram, king of Israel, went out, and Ochozias, king of Iouda, a man in his chariot, and they went out to meet Iou, and they found him in the portion of Nabouthai the lezraelite, for I remember, when I and you were mounted on teams behind Achaab his father, and the Lord took this issue against him, saying, 4 Surely with the blood of Nabouthai and the blood of his sons that I saw yesterday, says the Lord, I will also repay him in this portion, says the Lord. And now, do lift him up, and throw him in the portion, in accordance with the word of the Lord.” 5 And those over the house and those over the city and the elders and the guardians sent to Iou, saying, “Come down with us, in the king’s name.” 6 And Ioram said, “This is what the king says, ‘Is it peace?’” And Iou said, “What peace? We are your servants, and whatever you say to us, we will do. We will not make a man king; we will do what is good in your sight.” 7 And he wrote them a second letter, saying, “If you are for me and you listen to my voice, take the heads of the men of the sons of your master, and bring them to me around this time tomorrow in Iezrael. 8 And the sons of the king were seventy men. These as prominent men of the city were bringing them up. 9 And it happened, when the letter came to them, that they took the sons of the king and slaughtered them, seventy men, and they put their heads in baskets and sent them to him in Iezrael.
And the messenger came and reported, saying, "They brought the heads of the sons of the king."

And he said, "Lay them in two heaps at the entrance of the gate until morning." 9 And it happened in the morning that he went out and stood in the gateway of the city and said to all the people, "You are righteous. Behold, I am—I conspired against my master and killed him, but who struck all these! 10 Know apherpho that there shall fall to pened in the morning that he went out and stood 12 And he set out and went to Samaria. He was in Baithakad of the shepherds, on the way, and Ionadab found the brothers of Ochozias, king of Iouda, and said, "Who are you?" And they said, "We are the brothers of Ochozias, and we came down for the peace of the sons of the king and the sons of the woman who holds power." 14 And he said, "Take them alive." And they took them alive and slaughtered them at Baithakad, forty-two men; he left not a man of them.

15 And he went from there and found Ionadab son of Rechab on the way to meet him, and he brought him up to him on the chariot. 16 And he said to him, "Come with me, and see the word of the Lord that he spoke to Eliou."

17 And he went from there and found Ionadab son of Rechab in Iezrael, and all his prominent men and his acquaintances and his priests, so as not to leave a remnant of him.

18 And he set out and went to Samaria. He was in Baithakad of the shepherds, on the way, 13 and Ionadab found the brothers of Ochozias, king of Iouda, and said, "Who are you?" And they said, "We are the brothers of Ochozias, and we came down for the peace of the sons of the king and the sons of the woman who holds power." 14 And he said, "Take them alive." And they took them alive and slaughtered them at Baithakad, forty-two men; he left not a man of them.

And he entered to make the sacrifices of the house of Baal, and he said to the slaves of Baal, "Search, and see if there is among you any of the slaves of the Lord, but only the slaves of Baal all alone." 24 And he entered to make the sacrifices and the whole burnt offerings.

And ionadab son of Rechab entered into the house of Baal, and he said to the slaves of Baal, "Search, and see if there is among you any of the slaves of the Lord, but only the slaves of Baal all alone." 24 And he entered to make the sacrifices and the whole burnt offerings.

And ionadab son of Rechab entered into the house of Baal, and he said to the slaves of Baal, "Search, and see if there is among you any of the slaves of the Lord, but only the slaves of Baal all alone." 24 And he entered to make the sacrifices and the whole burnt offerings.

of the king's house, and they sat him on the throne of the kings. And all the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was quiet, and Gotholia they had put to death by sword in the king's house.

12 (11)Ioas was a son of seven years when he became king.

2(12.1) In the seventh year of Ioas, Ioas became king, and he reigned forty years in Jerousalem. And his mother's name was Abia of Bersabe. (3)And Ioas did what was right in the sight of the Lord all the days that Iodae the priest enlightened him. (4) Yet, some of the high places were not removed, and the people were still sacrificing there and making incense offerings on the high places.

5(4) And Ioas said to the priests, "All the money of the holy things that is brought into the house of the Lord, assessment-money—when a man receives assessment-money—all money, whatever arises in a man's heart to bring into the Lord's house, let the priests take for themselves, a man from their sale, and they shall secure the bedekf of the house in everything, there wherever a bedekf is discovered. " (7) And it happened in the twenty-third year of King Ioas that the priests had not strengthened the bedekf of the house. (8) And Ioas the king summoned Iodae the priest and the priests and said to them, "Why is it that you were not strengthening the bedekf of the house? And now, do not take money from your sales, because you shall donate it for the bedekf of the house." (9) And the priests agreed not to take money from the people and not to strengthen the bedekf of the house.

10(9) And Iodae the priest took one chest and bored a hole on its lid and set it beside iamib in the house of a man of the Lord's house, and the priests who guard the threshold gave all the money that was found in the Lord's house. (11) And it happened, when they saw that the money in the chest was much, that the secretary of the king went up, and the great priest and they bundled and counted the money that was found in the Lord's house. (12) And they gave the money that had been prepared into the hands of those doing the work of the overseers of the Lord's house, and they paid it out to the workers in wood and to the builders who were working in the Lord's house (13) and to the wall-builders and to the quarrriers of stone to buy wood and quarried stone to restrain the bedekf of the Lord's house, for all that was paid on the house to strengthen it. (14) Yet, there shall not be made for the Lord's house silver doors, nails, saucers and trumpets, any golden vessel and silver vessel, from the money that was brought into the Lord's house, (15) for they shall give itb to those doing the work, and they strengthened the Lord's house with it. (16) And they were not computing the men into whose hands they were giving the money to give to those doing the work, for they dealt honestly. (17) Money for sin and money for error, whatever was brought into the Lord’s house, belonged to the priests.

18(17) Then Hazael, king of Syria, went up and fought against Gath and seized it in advance for himself. And Hazael fixed his face to go up against Jerusalem. 19(18) And Ioas, king of Iouda, took all the holy things that Iosaphat and Iram and Ochozias, his fathers and kings of Iouda, had dedicated, and his own holy things and all the gold that was found in the treasuries of the Lord’s house and of the king’s house and sent these to Hazael, king of Syria, and he went up from Jerusalem.

20(19) And the rest of the histories of Ioas and all that he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Iouda? 21(20) And his slaves arose and bound an entire bond\(^b\) and struck Ioas in Mallo’s house in Gaalla. 22(21) And Izizchar son of Iemouath and lezechoub, his son Somer, his slaves, struck him, and he died. And they buried him with his fathers in the city of Dauid and Amessias his son reigned in his stead.

13 In a year, the twenty-third year of Ioas son of Ochozias, king of Iouda, Joachas son of lou became king in Samaria for seventeen years. 2And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord and went after the sins of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin; he did not depart from them. 3And the Lord grew angry with rage in Israel and gave them into the hand of Hazael, king of Syria, and into the hand of Hader’s son, son of Hazael, all the days. 4And Ioachas entreated the face of the Lord, and the Lord heeded him, for he saw the oppression of Israel, that Syria’s king oppressed them. 5And the Lord gave Israel deliverance, and they went out from under the hand of Syria, and the sons of Israel sat in their coverts as yesterday and the day before. 6Yet, they did not depart from the sins of house of Ieroboam, who made Israel sin; they walked in them, and indeed the grove stood in Samaria. 7For there was not left to Ioachas a people, except fifty horsemen and ten chariots and ten thousand footmen, for Syria’s king had destroyed them, and they made them like dust for trampling. 8And the rest of the histories of Ioachas and all that he did and all his acts of dominance, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel? 9And Ioas slept with his fathers, and Ieroboam sat upon his throne in Samaria with the sons of Israel.

14 And Elisaie had become sick with his sickness by which he died. And Ioas, king of Israel, went down to him and wept on his face and said, “Father, Father! Chariot of Israel and its horseman!” 15And Elisaie said to him, “Take a bow and arrows,” and he took to himself a bow and arrows. 16And he said to the king, “Put your hand on the bow,” and Ioas put his hand on the bow. And Elisaie laid his hands on the hands of the king. 17And he said, “Open the window eastward,” and he opened it. And Elisaie said, “Shoot,” and he shot. And he said, “The Lord’s arrow of deliverance, and arrow of deliverance in Syria! And you shall strike Syria in Aphek until completion.” 18And Elisaie said to him, “Take bows,” and he took them. And he said to the king of Israel, “Strike the ground,” and the king struck three times and stopped. 19And the man of God was grieved at him and said, “If you had struck five times or six times, then you would have struck Syria until completion, but now you will strike Syria three times.”

20 And Elisaie died, and they buried him. And lightly armed men of Moab came in the land when the year came. 21And it happened, when they were burying the man, that behold, they saw the lightly armed man, and they threw the man in the grave of Elisaie, and he went and touched the bones of Elisaie, and he revived and stood up on his feet. 22 And Hazael oppressed Israel all the days of Ioas. 23But the Lord had mercy on them and had compassion on them and had regard for them, because of his covenant with Abraam and Isaak and Jakob, and the Lord did not want to destroy them, and he did not banish them from his face.

24 And Hazael, king of Syria, died, and Hader’s son, his son, reigned in his stead. 25And Ioas son of Ioachas returned and took from the hand of Hader’s son, son of Hazael, the towns that he had taken from the hand of Ioachas his father in the war. Three times Ioas struck him and returned the towns of Israel.

14 In the second year of Ioas son of Ioachas, king of Israel, Amessias son of Ioas, king of louda, also became king. 2He was a son of twenty-five years when he became king, and he reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. And his mother’s name was Ioadin of Ierousalem. 3And he did what was right in the sight of the Lord, yet not like Dauid his father; he did according to all things that Ioas his father had done. 4Yet, he did not remove the high places; the people were still sacrificing and making incense offerings on the high places. 5And it happened, when the royal power was firmly in his hand, that he struck his slaves who had struck his father. 6And he did not put to death the sons of those who had struck, just as it is written in the book of the laws of Moyses, as the Lord com-

7 He struck Edom in Gaimele—ten thousand—and seized the Rock in the battle, and he called its name Kothiel—until this day.

8 Then Amassias sent messengers to Ioas son of Io, king of Israel, saying, "Come, let us be seen by faces." ²⁹And Ioas, king of Israel, sent to Amassias, king of Iouda, saying, "The akana that was in Lebanon sent to the cedar that was in Lebanon, saying, 'Give your daughter to my son for a wife,' and the wild animals of the field that were in Lebanon passed through and trampled down the akana. ¹⁰Wounding you struck ldumea, and your heart lifted you up. 8 In the thirty-eighth year of Azarias, king of Iouda, Zacharias son of Ieroboam became king over Israel in Samaria for six months. ⁹And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, just as his fathers had done. He did not depart from the sins of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin.

10 And Selloum son of Iabis and Keblaam conspired against him, and they struck him and put him to death, and Selloum reigned in his stead. And the rest of the histories of Zacharias, behold, they are written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel. ¹²The word of the Lord it was, that he spoke to lou, saying, "Fourthb sons shall sit for you on the throne of Israel." And so it happened.

13 And Selloum son of Iabis became king, and in the thirty-ninth year of Azarias, king of Iouda, Selloum reigned a month of days in Samaria. ¹⁴And Manaem son of Gaddi went up from Tharsila and came to Samaria, and he struck Selloum son of Iabis in Samaria and put him to death.

²⁸And the rest of the histories of Ieroboam and all that he did and all his acts of dominance, what he fought about and how he turned against Damascus and Haimath belonging to Iouda in Israel, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel? ²⁹And Ieroboam slept with his fathers, with the kings of Israel, and Azarias son of Amassias reigned in his father's stead.

And his mother's name was Chalia of Ierousalem. ³³And he did what was right in the sight of the Lord, according to all things that Amassias his father had done. ⁴Yet, he did not remove any of the high places; the people were still sacrificing and making incense offerings on the high places. ⁵And the Lord touched the king, and he was leprous to the day of his death, and he reigned in a house aphphousothd. And loatham, the king's son, was in charge of the house, judging the people of the land. ⁶And the rest of the histories of Azarias and all that he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel? ⁷And Azarias slept with his fathers, and they buried him with his fathers in the city of David, and loatham his son reigned in his stead.

²³In the fifteenth year of Amassias son of Ioas, king of Iouda, Ieroboam son of Ioas became king over Israel in Samaria, forty and one year. ²⁴And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord; he did not depart from any of the sins of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin. ²⁵He removed the border of Israel from the entrance of Haimath as far as the Sea of the Araba, according to the word of the Lord, God of Israel, which he spoke by the hand of his slave Ionas son of Amathi, the prophet who was from Gethchober. ²⁶For the Lord saw that the humiliation of Israel was very bitter and that they were few, bound and in want and abandoned, and there was no one to help Israel. ²⁷And the Lord had not said that he would wipe out the seed of Israel from under heaven, and he saved them by the hand of Ieroboam son of Ioas.

¹¹And Manaem son of Gaddi went up from Tharsila and came to Samaria, and he struck Selloum son of Iabis in Samaria and put him to death.

¹²The word of the Lord it was, that he spoke to lou, saying, "Fourthb sons shall sit for you on the throne of Israel." And so it happened.

²³In the fifteenth year of Amassias son of Ioas, king of Iouda, Ieroboam son of Ioas became king over Israel in Samaria, forty and one year. ²⁴And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord; he did not depart from any of the sins of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin. ²⁵He removed the border of Israel from the entrance of Haimath as far as the Sea of the Araba, according to the word of the Lord, God of Israel, which he spoke by the hand of his slave Ionas son of Amathi, the prophet who was from Gethchober. ²⁶For the Lord saw that the humiliation of Israel was very bitter and that they were few, bound and in want and abandoned, and there was no one to help Israel. ²⁷And the Lord had not said that he would wipe out the seed of Israel from under heaven, and he saved them by the hand of Ieroboam son of Ioas.

16 Then Manaem struck Thersa and all that was in it and its territory from Thersa on, because they did not open it to him, and he struck it and ripped open the pregnant women.

17 In the thirty-ninth year of Azarias, king of Iouda, Manaem son of Gaddi also became king over Israel for ten years in Samaria. 18 And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord; he did not depart from any of the sins of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin. 19 In his days Phoul, king of the Assyrians, went up against the land, and Manaem gave Phoul a thousand talents of silver for his hand to be with him. 20 And Manaem brought out the money against a Israel, against every powerful man with strength, to give to the king of the Assyrians, fifty shekels for one man. And the Assyrians’ king turned back and did not stay there in the land. 21 And the rest of the histories of Manaem and all that he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel? 22 And Manaem slept with his fathers, and Phakeias his son reigned in his stead.

In the fiftieth year of Azarias, king of Iouda, Phakeias son of Manaem became king over Israel in Samaria for two years. 24 And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord; he did not depart from the sins of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin. 25 And Phakee son of Romelias, his number-three man, conspired against him and struck him in Samaria in front of the king’s house with Argob and with Aria, and with him were fifty men from the four hundred, and he put him to death and reigned in his stead. 26 And the rest of the histories of Phakeias and all that he did, behold, they are written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel.

27 In the fifty-second year of Azarias, king of Iouda, Phakee son of Romelias became king over Israel in Samaria for twenty years. 28 And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord; he did not depart from any of the sins of Ieroboam son of Nabat, who made Israel sin.

29 In the days of Phakee, king of Israel, Thaglathphellasar, king of the Assyrians, came and took Ain and Abelbaithamaacha and Ianoch and Kenez and Hasor and Galaad and Galilee, all the land of Nephthali, and he exiled them to the Assyrians. 30 And Hosee son of Eli conspired a conspiracy against Phakee son of Romelias and struck him and put him to death, and he reigned in his stead in the twentieth year of Ioatham son of Azarias. 31 And the rest of the histories of Phakee and all that he did, behold, they are written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel.

32 In the second year of Phakee son of Romelias, king of Israel, Ioatham son of Azarias, king of Iouda, became king. 33 He was a son of twenty-five years when he became king, and he reigned sixteen years in Ierousalem. And his mother’s name was Ierousa daughter of Zadok. 34 And he did what was right in the sight of the Lord, according to all that Azarias his father had done. 35 Yet, he did not remove the high places; the people were still sacrificing and making incense offerings on the high places. He built the upper gate of the Lord’s house. 36 And the rest of the histories of Ioatham and all that he did, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Ierousalem? 37 In those days the Lord began to send out in Iouda Raasson, king of Syria, and Phakee son of Romelias. 38 And Ioatham slept with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of Dauid his father and Achaz his son reigned in his stead.

In the seventeenth year of Phakee son of Romelias, Achaz son of Ioatham, king of Iouda, became king. 2 Achaz was a son of twenty years when he became king, and he reigned sixteen years in Ierousalem. And he did not faithfully do what was right in the sight of the Lord, his God, as Dauid his father did, 3 but he walked in the way of Ieroboam son of Nabat, king of Israel. And indeed he conducted his son into fire, according to the abominations of the nations whom the Lord drove out from before the sons of Israel. 4 And he was sacrificing and making incense offerings on the high places and on the hills and under every woodland tree.

5 Then Raasson, king of Syria, went up, and Phakee son of Romelias, king of Israel, against Ierousalem to war, and they were laying siege against Achaz but could not wage war. 6 At that time Raas- son, king of Syria, returned Ailath to Syria and drove out the Judeans from Ailath, and the Idumeans came to Ailath and lived there to this day. 7 And Achaz sent messengers to Thaglathphel- lasar, king of the Assyrians, saying, “I am your slave and your son. Come up, and rescue me from the hand of the king of Syria and from the hand of the king of Israel, who are rising up against me.” 8 And Achaz took the silver and the gold that was found in the treasuries of the Lord’s house and the king’s house and sent presents to the king. 9 And the Assyrians’ king listened to him, and the Assyrians’ king went up against Damascus and captured it and exiled it, and he put Raasson to death.

10 And King Achaz went to meet Thaglathphel- lasar, king of the Assyrians, in Damascus, and saw the altar in Damascus. And King Achaz sent to Ourias the priest the likeness of the altar and its pattern for its entire construction. 11 And Ourias the priest built the altar in accordance with all that King Achaz had sent from Damascus. 12 And the king saw the altar and went up on it 13 and burnt for smoke his whole burnt offering and his sacrifice and his libation and poured the blood of his peace items on the altar. 14 And the bronze altar that was before the Lord he also brought forward from the front of the house of the Lord, from the one between the altar and from the one between the house of the Lord, and put it near the thigh of the altar on the north. And King Achaz commanded Ourias the priest, saying, "Upon the great altar offer the morning whole burnt offering and the evening sacrifice and the whole burnt offering of the king and his sacrifice and the whole burnt offering of all the people and their sacrifice and their libation, and you shall pour on it all blood of whole burnt offering and all blood of sacrifice, and the bronze altar shall be for me in the morning."

And Ourias the priest did according to everything that King Achaz commanded him.

And King Achaz cut off the borders of the mechonoth and removed the washbasin from them, and he took down the sea from the bronze oxen that were under it and put it on a stone pedestal. And he built the foundation of the seat in the Lord's house, and he turned the outer entrance of the king in the Lord's house from before the Assyrians' king. And the rest of the histories of Achaz, what he did, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Israel and Ored of Medes.

And the Assyrians' king found injustice in Hosee, son of Ela became king in Samaria in the twelfth year of Achaz, king of Iouda. And in the twelfth year of Achaz, king of Iouda, Hosee son of Ela became king in Samaria over Israel for nine years. And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, yet not like the kings of Israel who were before him. Salamanasar, king of the Assyrians, went up against him, and Hosee became his slave and returned to him manaab. And the Assyrians' king found injustice in Hosee, for he had sent messengers to Segor, king of Egypt, and brought no manaab to the king of the Assyrians in that year, and the king of the Assyrians besieged him and bound him in a prison house.

And the king of the Assyrians went up in all the land and went up against Samaria and laid siege against it for three years. In the ninth year of Hosee the Assyrians' king captured Samaria, and he exiled Israel to the Assyrians and made them dwell in Halae and in Habor, at rivers c of Gozan and Ore of Medes.

And it happened, because the sons of Israel had sinned against the Lord, their God, who had brought them up out of the land of Egypt from under the hand of Pharaoh, king of Egypt. And they feared other gods and walked in the statutes of the nations whom the Lord drove out from before the sons of Israel, both the kings of Israel, as many as did it, and the sons of Israel, as many as clothed themselves with words, not just against the Lord, their God. And they built for themselves high places in all their towns, from tower for watchers to strong city. And they erected for themselves steles and groves on every high hill and under every woodland hill, and there they made incense offerings on all high places, just as the nations whom the Lord exiled from before them. And they made partners and engraved to provoke the Lord to anger, and they served the idols of which the Lord had said to them, "You shall not do this thing to the Lord." And the Lord testified in Israel and in Iouda by the hand of all his prophets, every seer, saying, "Turn away from your evil ways, and keep my commandments and my statutes and all the law that I commanded your fathers, which I sent to you by the hand of my slaves the prophets." But they did not listen, but hardened their back more than the back of their fathers.

And his testimonies that he testified to them they did not keep but went after the worthless things and were rendered worthless and after the nations that were around them of whom he had commanded them not to do in accordanc with these. They forsook the commandments of the Lord, their God, and made for themselves something cast, two heifers, and made groves and did obeisance to all the host of heaven and served Baal. And they conducted their sons and their daughters into fire, and they were divining and practicing ornithomancy, and they were sold to do what was evil in the sight of the Lord to provoke him to anger. And the Lord became very angry with Israel and removed them from his face, and none was left except Iouda's tribe alone.

And indeed Iouda did not keep the commandments of the Lord, their God, but walked in the statutes of Israel, which they practiced, and they rejected the Lord among all the offspring of Israel, and he shook them and gave them into the hand of those who plundered them until he had disheartened them from his presence, for only Israel was from upon Daud's house. And they made Ieroaboam son of Nabad king. And Ieroaboam drove out Israel from behind the Lord and made them sin great sin. And the sons of Israel walked in all the sin of Ieroaboam that he committed; they did not depart from it until the Lord removed Israel from his sight, just as the Lord had spoken by the hand of all his slaves the prophets. And Israel was exiled from upon its own land to the Assyrians until this day.

And the Assyrians' king brought from Babylon the people of Chouontha and from Aia and from Haimath and Sepharouain, and they were made to dwell in the cities of Samaria instead of the sons of Israel, and they took possession of Samaria and dwelt in its cities. And it happened, at the beginning of their sitting, that they did not fear the Lord, and the Lord sent lions among them, and they were killing among them. And they told the king of the Assyrians, saying, "The nations that you exiled and placed instead in the cities of Samaria did not know the judgment of the god of the land, and he sent lions against them, and behold, they are putting them to death, because they do not know the judgment of the god of the land."

And the king of the Assyrians commanded, saying, "Bring from yonder, and let them go and dwell there, and they shall enlighten them about the judgment of the god of the land." 28 And they brought one of the priests whom they had excluded from Samaria, and he stayed in Baithel, and he was enlightening them how they should fear the Lord.

29 And nations by nations were making their own gods, and they put them in the house of the high places that the Samaritans had made, nations in their cities, them in which they dwelt, 30 and the men of Babylon made Sokchothbainith, and the men of Chouth made Netigel, and the men of Haimath made Asimath. 31 And the Euties made Eblazer and Tharthak, and the Sepharouain burned up their sons in fire to Adramelech and Anemelech, gods of Sepharouain. 32 And they were fearing the Lord, and they caused their abominations to dwell in the houses of the high places that they had made in Samaria, nation by nation in a city, that in which they dwelt, and they were fearing the Lord, and they made for themselves priests of the high places, and they acted for them in the house of the high places. 33 They were fearing the Lord and serving their own gods according to the judgment of the nations, there where he had exiled them.

34 To this day they were acting according to their judgment. They fear, and they act according to their statutes and according to their judgment and according to the law and according to the commandment that the Lord commanded the sons of Jakob, him whose name he made Israel. 35 And the Lord had made a covenant with them and commanded them, saying, "You shall not fear other gods, and you shall not do obeisance to them, and you shall not serve them, and you shall not sacrifice to them, 36 but only to the Lord, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt with great strength and with a high arm, him you shall fear, and to him you shall do obeisance, and to him you shall sacrifice. 37 And the statutes and the judgments and the law and the commandments that he wrote for you, be careful to observe them all the days. And you shall not fear other gods, 38 and the covenant that he made with you, you shall not forget. And you shall not fear other gods, 39 but only the Lord, your God, you shall fear, and he will deliver you from all your enemies. 40 And you shall not listen to their judgment that they practice."

41 But these nations were fearing the Lord, and they were subject to their carved images, and indeed the sons and the sons of their sons do to this day as their fathers did.

18 And it happened in the third year of Hosee son of Ela, king of Israel, that Salamanassar, king of the Assyrians, went up against Samaria and was laying siege against it, 42 and he seized it at the end of three years, in the sixth year of Hezekias (it was the ninth year of Hosee, king of Israel), and Samaria was captured. 43 And the Assyrians' king exiled Samaria to the Assyrians and put them in Halae and in Habor, at a river of Gozan and Ore of Medes. 44 Because they did not obey the voice of the Lord, their God, but transgressed his covenant—all that Moyses the slave of the Lord had commanded, and they did not listen and did not act.

19 And in the fourteenth year of King Hezekias, Sennacherim, king of the Assyrians, went up against the strong cities of Iouda and captured them. 44 And Hezekias, king of Iouda, sent messengers to the Assyrians' king to Lachis, saying, "I have done wrong; turn away from me; whatever you impose on me I will bear." And the king of the Assyrians imposed on Iouda four hundred talents of silver and thirty talents of gold. 45 And Hezekias gave him all the silver that was found in the Lord's house and in the treasuries of the king's house. 46 At that time Hezekias cut off the doors of the Lord's shrine and the doorposts that Hezekias, king of Iouda, had gilded and gave them to the Assyrians' king. 17 And the Assyrians' king sent Tharthan and Raphis and Rapsakes from Lachis to King Hezekias with a heavy force against Jerusalem. And they went up and came to Jerusalem and stood by the conduit of the upper pool, which is by the way of the fuller's field.

18 And they shouted to Hezekias, and there came out to him Eliakim son of Chelkias, the household manager, and Somnas, the secretary, and Ioas son of Asaph, the recorder.

19 And Rapsakes said to them, "Do say to Hezekias: This is what the king, the great king of the Assyrians, says: What is this confidence on which you rely? 20 You said, 'Mere words of lips are strategy and power for war.' Now then, on whom do you rely, that you rebelled against me? 21 Now behold, you have entrusted yourself to this broken reed rod, to Egypt; whatever man is supported on..."
it, it will also enter into his hand and pierce it. Thus is Pharaoh, king of Egypt, to all who rely on him. 22 And since you said to me, ‘We rely on the Lord God,’ is not he this one whose high places and altars Hezekias removed, and he said to Louda and to Jerusalem, ‘You shall do obeisance before this altar in Jerusalem’? 23 And now, do be joined in my master, king of the Assyrians, and I will give you two thousand horses, if you will be able on your part to put riders on them. 24 And how will you turn away the face of a single district governor of the least of the slaves of my master? And you hoped for yourself on Egypt for chariots and horsemen. 25 And now, is it without the Lord that we came up against this place to destroy it? The Lord said to me, ‘Go up against this land, and destroy it.’ 26 And Eliakim son of Chelkias, and Somnas and Ioa, said to Rapsakes, ‘Do speak to your servants in the Syrian language, for we understand it, but you shall not speak with us in Judean, and why do you speak within the hearing of the people who are on the wall?’ 27 And Rapsakes said to them, ‘Did my master send me to speak these words to your master and to you, not to the men sitting on the wall, to eat their own dung and to drink their own urine together with you?’ 28 And Rapsakes stood and called out in a loud voice in Judean and spoke and said, ‘Hear the words of the great king of the Assyrians!’ 29 This is what the king says: ‘Do not let Hezekias stir you up with words, for he shall not be able to deliver you out of my hand. 30 And do not let Hezekias buoy you up with hope in the Lord by saying: Delivering the Lord will deliver us; this city shall not be given in the hand of the Assyrians’ king. 31 Do not listen to Hezekias, for this is what the king of the Assyrians says: ‘Make a blessing with me, and come out to me, and put on sackcloth and enter into the Lord’s house. 2 And he sent Eliakim, the household manager, and Somnas, the secretary, and the elders of the priests, clothed in sackcloth, to Esaias the prophet son of Amos. 3 And they said to him, ‘This is what Hezekias says, This day is a day of distress and of rebuke and of provocation, for sons came to the point of birth pangs, but she who gives birth has no strength. 4 If somehow the Lord, your God, will hear all the words of Rapsakes, whom his master, king of the Assyrians, sent to mock a living god and to blaspheme with words that the Lord, your God, heard, you shall also undertake prayer for the remnant that is found.’ 5 And the servants of King Hezekias came to Esaias, and Esaias said to them, ‘This is what you shall say to your master, ‘This is what the Lord says: Do not be afraid because of the words that you heard, with which the lads of the Assyrians’ king blasphemed. 7 Behold, I myself am putting a spirit in him, and he shall hear a message and return to his own land, and I will strike him down by a sword in his own land.’” 8 And Rapsakes returned and found the king of the Assyrians fighting against Lomna, for he had heard that he had departed from Lachis. 9 And he heard concerning Thara, king of the Ethiopians, saying, “Behold, he went out to fight with you.” And he returned and sent messengers to Hezekias, saying, “Do not let your God, him on whom you rely upon, stir you up by saying, Ierousalem shall not be rescued? 10 Do not let the Lord, God of Hosts, hear, you shall also undertake prayer for the remnant that is found.” 11 Behold, you heard everything that the Assyrians’ kings did to all the lands to anathematize them. And shall you be rescued? 12 Did the gods of the nations that my fathers destroyed deliver them: both Gozan and Charran and Raphes and Edem’s sons, who were in Thaesthen? 13 Where is the king of Haimath and the king of Arphad, and where is Sepharouain, Hana and Aua?” 14 And Hezekias took the documents from the hand of the messengers and read them, and he went up to the Lord’s house, and Hezekias unrolled them before the Lord. 15 And he said: “O Lord God of Israel, who sits on the cheroubin, you alone are God in all the kingdoms of the earth; you made heaven and earth. 16 Incline your ear, O Lord, and hear; open your eyes, O Lord, and see, and hear the words of Sennacherim, which he sent to mock a living god. 17 For truly, O Lord, the Assyrians’ kings laid waste the nations 18 and gave their gods into the fire, for they were no gods but works of human hands—wood and stone—and they destroyed them. 19 And now, O Lord, our God, save us from his hand, and all the kingdoms of the earth shall know that you are the Lord, God alone.” 20 And Esaias son of Amos sent to Hezekias, saying, “This is what the Lord, the God of hosts, the God of Israel, says: I heard what you prayed to me about Sennacherim, king of the Assyrians. 21 This is the word that the Lord spoke against him: Virgin daughter Sion made nothing of you a Or you alone are the Lord God and sneered at you; daughter Jerousalem shook her head at you.

22 Whom did you mock and revile? And against whom did you raise your voice and lift your eyes on high? Against the Holy One of Israel!
23 By the hand of your messengers you mocked the Lord and said, ‘With the multitude of my chariots I shall ascend to a height of mountains, thigs of Lebanon, and I felled the greatness of its cedar, the choicest of its cypresses, and I came to a melon of its end, forest of his Carmel.

24 I sought the cool air and drank foreign waters, and I made desolate with the sole of my foot all the streams of enclosure.
25 I shaped it; now I brought it, and it turned into risings of warlike colonies, strong cities.

26 And the inhabitants in them were weak with the hand; they cowered and were put to shame; they became fodder of the field, or green pasture, grass on the housetops, and trodden opposite him who stands.’

27 And I knew your sitting and your exiting and your entering and your rage against me. Because you grew angry against me and your wantonness came up in my ears, and your rage against me and your exiting and your entering and from Jerousalem I heard it; I saw your tears; behold, I will heal you; on the third day you shall go up to the Lord’s house.
28 And I will add to your days fifteen years. And I will save you and this city out of the hand of the Assyrians’ king, and I will hold a shield over this city, for my own sake and for the sake of Daud my slave.”

20 In those days Hezekia became sick unto death. And Esaias son of Amos, the prophet, entered to him and said to him, “This is what the Lord says: Command your house, for you are dying; you shall not live.”

21 And Hezekia turned his face to the wall and prayed to the Lord, saying:
22 “Do, O Lord, do remember how I walked before you in truth and with a full heart and did what is good in your sight.” And Hezekia wept with a great weeping.

23 And Esaias was in the middle court, and a word of the Lord came to him, saying:

24 “Turn back, and you shall say to Hezekia, the leader of my people, This is what the Lord, the God of Daud your father says: I heard your prayer; I saw your tears; behold, I will heal you; on the third day you shall go up to the Lord’s house.”

25 And he said, “Let them take a cake of figs and apply it on the festering sore, and it shall cure him.”

26 And Hezekia said to Esaias, “What shall be the sign that the Lord will heal me, and I shall go up to the Lord’s house on the third day?”

27 And Esaias said, “This is the sign from the Lord, that the Lord will do the thing that he spoke: Shall the shadow advance ten steps, if it turns ten steps?”

28 And Hezekia said, “It is easy for the shadow to lengthen ten steps; no, but let the shadow return ten steps backwards.”

29 And Esaias the prophet cried to the Lord, and the shadow on the stairs returned backwards ten steps.

30 At that time Marodachbaladan son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent documents and manac to Hezekia, for he had heard that Hezekia was sick.

31 And Hezekia rejoiced over them, and he showed them the whole house of the nechotha, the silver and the gold, the spices and the precious oil and the house of the vessels and as much as was found in his storehouses; there was nothing that Hezekia did not show them in his house and in all his realm.

32 “Not so! This is what the Lord says to the Assyrians’ king: He shall not enter into this city, and he shall not shoot an arrow there, and a shield shall not anticipate it, and he shall not pour out a mound against it. By the way that he came, by it he shall return, and he shall not enter into this city, says the Lord. And I will hold a shield over this city, for my own sake and for the sake of Daud my slave.”

33 And it happened, while it was night, that an angel of the Lord went out and struck one hundred eighty-five thousands in the camp of the Assyrians, and they rose early in the morning, and behold, all were dead bodies.

35 And it happened, while it was night, that an angel of the Lord went out and struck one hundred eighty-five thousands in the camp of the Assyrians, and they rose early in the morning, and behold, all were dead bodies.

37 And it happened, as he was doing obedience in the house of Neserach his god, that his sons Adramelech and Sarasar struck him with a dagger, and they escaped into the land of Ararat. And Asordan his son reigned in his stead.
16 And Esaias said to Hezekias, “Hear a word of the Lord: 17 Behold, days are coming, and all that is in your house and as much as your fathers stored up until this day shall be taken to Babylon, and no word which the Lord said shall fail. 18 And your own sons, who will come out of you, whom you will father, shall be taken, and they shall be eunuchs in the house of the king of Babylon.” 19 And Hezekias said to Esaias, “The word of the Lord that he spoke is good; let there be peace in my days.”

20 And the rest of the histories of Hezekias and all his dominance and what he made: the fountain and the conduit and brought water into the city, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Iouda? 21 And Hezekias slept with his fathers and was buried in the city of Dauid, and Manasses his son reigned in his stead.

Manasses was a son of twelve years when he became king, and he reigned fifty-five years in Ierousalem. And his mother’s name was Hopsiba. 2 And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, according to the abominations of the nations whom the Lord drove out from before the sons of Israel. 3 And he turned back and built the high places that Hezekias his father had pulled down, and he erected an altar to the goddess Baal and made groves, just as Achab, king of Israel, had done, and did obeisance to all the host of heaven and was subject to them. 4 And he built an altar in the Lord’s house, as he had said, “In Ierousalem I will put my name.” 5 And he built an altar to all the host of heaven in the two courts of the Lord’s house. 6 And he conducted his sons into fire, and he was acting as diviner and practicing ornithomancy, and he made one who wills and people that know. 7 And he multiplied to do what is evil in the sight of the Lord, to provoke him to anger. 8 And he put the carved image of the grove in the house of which the Lord had said to Dauid and to Salomon his son, “In this house and in Ierousalem, which I chose out of all the tribes of Israel, I will also put my name.” 5 And he built an altar to all the Lord’s house, as he had said, “In Ierousalem I will put my name.” 5 And he built an altar to all the host of heaven in the two courts of the Lord’s house. 6 And he conducted his sons into fire, and he was acting as diviner and practicing ornithomancy, and he made one who wills and people that know. 7 And he multiplied to do what is evil in the sight of the Lord, to provoke him to anger. 8 And he put the carved image of the grove in the house of which the Lord had said to Dauid and to Salomon his son, “In this house and in Ierousalem, which I chose out of all the tribes of Israel, I will also put my name.” 9 And they did not listen, and Manasses misled them to do what was evil in the sight of the Lord, more than the nations that the Lord had annihilated from before the sons of Israel.

10 And the Lord spoke by the hand of his slaves, saying, 11 “Forasmuch as Manasses, the king of Iouda, committed these abominations, evil things from which the Lord’s house, which those who guard the threshold collected from the people, and let them give it into the hand of those doing the work of those in charge in the Lord’s house.” And he gave it to those doing the work who were in the Lord’s house, to strengthen the bedek\(^a\) of the house, \(^b\)to the craftsmen and to the builders and to the wall-builders, and to buy wood and quarried stone to strengthen the bedek\(^c\) of the house. \(^d\)Yet, they were not computing for them the money that was given to them, for they dealt honestly.

\(^8\) And Chelkias the great priest said to Saphphan the secretary, "I found a book of the law in the Lord’s house." And Chelkias gave the book to Saphphan, and he read it. \(^e\)And he brought it in to King Josias and returned word to the king and said, "Your slaves
\(^f\)melted down\(^g\) the silver that was found in the Lord’s house and gave it into the hand of those doing the work of those in charge in the Lord’s house."

\(^10\)And Saphphan the secretary spoke to the king, saying, "Chelkias the priest gave me a book." And Saphphan read it aloud in the presence of the king.

\(^11\) And it happened, when the king heard the words of the book of the law, that he tore his own clothes. \(^h\)And the king commanded Chelkias the priest and Achikam son of Saphphan, and Achobot son of Michaias and Saphphan the secretary and Asias the king’s slave, saying, \(^i\)Go, seek out the Lord for me and for all of the people and for all of Iouda, concerning the words of this book that was found, for great is the wrath of the Lord that is blazed out against us, because our fathers did not obey the words of this book, to do according to all that is written against us."

\(^14\) And Chelkias the priest and Achikam and Achobot and Saphphan and Asias went to Holda the prophetess, wife of Sellem son of Thekoue son of Achobor and Saphhan and Asaias went to Holda

\(^16\)This is what the Lord says, Behold, I am bringing evil on this place and on those who made incense offerings to Baal and to the sun and to the moon and to the mazouroth\(^i\) and to all the host of heaven. \(^j\)And he brought out the grove from the Lord’s house, outside Ierousalem, to the Wadi Kedron, and burned it in Wadi Kedron and pulverized it into dust and threw the dust of it into the grave of the sons of the people. \(^k\)And he tore down the house of the kadesim\(^k\) that were in the house of the Lord, there where the women were weaving chettin\(^b\) for the grove. \(^l\)And he brought up all the priests out of the towns of Iouda and defiled the high places, there where the priests had made incense offerings from Gabaa and as far as Bersabee, and he tore down the house of the gates that was at the entrance of the gate of Iesous, governor of the city, which were from a man’s left in the gate of the city. \(^m\)Yet the priests of the high places did not go up to the altar of the Lord in Ierousalem but only ate unleavened bread in the midst of their brothers. \(^n\)And he defiled Tapheth, which is in the ravine of Son of Hennom, which was for a man to conduct his son and a man to conduct his daughter to Moloch in fire. \(^o\)And he put an end to the horses that the kings of Iouda had dedicated to the sun, in the entrance of the Lord’s house, by the treasury of Nathan, the king’s eunuch, in pharourim, and he burned the chariot of the sun with fire. \(^p\)And the altars on the roof of the upper chamber of Achaz, which the kings of Iouda had made, and the altars that Manasses had made in the two courts of the Lord’s house the king also tore down and pulled down from there and threw their dust into the Wadi Kedron. \(^q\)And the king defiled the house that was in front of Ierousalem, on the right of the Mount of Mosoath\(^h\), which Salomon, king of Israel, had built for As-tarte, offense of the Sidonians, and for Chamos, offense of Moab, and for Molchol, abomination of the sons of Ammon. 14And he smashed the steles and utterly destroyed the groves and filled their sites with human bones.

15 And indeed the altar in Baithel, the high place that Ieroboam son of Nabat made, who made Israel sin—and indeed that altar and the high place he pulled down. And he smashed its stones and pulverized them into dust and burned the grove. 16And Iosias turned aside and saw the stones and pulverized them into dust and burned the high place he pulled down. And he smashed its stones and pulverized them into dust and burned the place that Ieroboam son of Nabat made, who made Israel sin—and indeed that altar and the place that Ieroboam son of Nabat made, who made Israel sin and put him to death in Mageddo when he saw him.

17 And he said, "What is that mound that I see?" And the men of the city said to him, "It is the man of God who came out from Iouda and invoked these words that he invoked against the altar of Baithel." 18And he said, "Leave it; let no man move his bones." And they preserved his bones with the bones of the prophet who came out of Samaria. 19And indeed regarding all the houses of the high places that were in the towns of Samaria, which kings of Israel had made to provoke the Lord to anger—Iosias removed them and did among them all the works that he had done in Baithel.

20 And he sacrificed all the priests of the high places who were there on the altars and burned the bones of human beings on them. And he removed the altars and all the hangings, images, and household gods. And he cut down the steles; and the Cenaclaq he was going in the city said to him, "It is the man of God who came out from Iouda and invoked these words that he invoked against the altar of Baithel." 21And he said, "Leave it; let no man move his bones." And they preserved his bones with the bones of the prophet who came out of Samaria. 22And indeed regarding all the houses of the high places that were in the towns of Samaria, which kings of Israel had made to provoke the Lord to anger—Iosias removed them and did among them all the works that he had done in Baithel.

23 But only in the eighteenth year of King Iosias the pascha b to the Lord took place in Ierusalem. 24 And indeed King Iosias removed those that want and those that know and the theraphin c and the idols and all the offences that were made in the land of Iouda and in Ierusalem so that he established the words of the law that were written in the book that Chelkias the priest had found in the house of the Lord's house. 25 Before him there was no king like him, who turned to the Lord with his whole heart and with his whole soul and with his whole strength, according to all the law of Moyses, and after him none arose like him.

26 Yet the Lord did not turn away from the fierceness of his great wrath, by which his anger was kindled against Iouda, because of the provocations with which Manasses had provoked him. 27 And the Lord said, "And indeed I will remove Iouda from my sight, just as I removed Israel, and I will reject this city that I chose, Ierusalem, and the house of which I said, My name shall be there."

28And the rest of the histories of Iosias and all that he did, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Iouda? 29 But in his days Pharao Nechao, king of Egypt, went up against the Assyrians' king to the river Euphrates. And Iosias went to meet him, but Nechao put him to death in Mageddo when he saw him.

30 And his servants made him ride dead from Mageddo and brought him to Ierusalem and buried him in his own tomb in the city of Daud. And the people of the land took loachas son of Iosias and anointed him and made him king instead of his father.

31 Ioachas was a son of twenty-three years when he became king, and he reigned three months in Ierusalem. And his mother's name was Hamital daughter of Jeremias from Lemna. 32 And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, according to all that his fathers had done. 33 And Pharao Nechao removed him into Deblatha in the land of Heth, so that he might not reign in Ierusalem, and imposed a penalty on the land, one hundred talents of silver and one hundred talents of gold. 34 And Pharao Nechao made Eliakim son of Iosias, king of Iouda, king over them instead of Iosias his father, and he turned his name into Ioakim. And he took Ioachas and brought him into Egypt, and he died there. 35 And Ioakim gave the silver and the gold to Pharao; yet he taxed the land in order to give the money at the mouth d of Pharao. They gave the silver and the gold, a man according to his assessment together with the people of the land, to give to Pharao Nechao.

36 Ioakim was a son of twenty-five years when he became king, and he reigned eleven years in Ierusalem. And his mother's name was Lelah daughter of Pedeia from Rouma. 37 And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, according to all that his fathers had done.

24 In his days Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon, went up, and Ioakim became his slave for three years, and he turned and rebelled against him. 2And he sent against him the lightly armed men of the Chaldeans and the lightly armed men of Syria and the lightly armed men of Moab and the lightly armed men of the sons of Ammon, and he sent them out against the land of Iouda to prevail, according to the word of the Lord that he spoke by the hand of his slaves the prophets. 3 Only it was because of the Lord's wrath against Iouda, to remove him from his sight, because of the sins of Manasses, according to all that he had committed, 4 and indeed he shed innocent blood and filled Ierusalem with innocent blood, and the Lord did not want to be conciliated. 5 And the rest of the histories of Ioakim and all that he did, behold, are these things not written in a book of Histories of the Days for the Kings of Iouda? 6 And Ioakim slept with his fathers, and Ioakim his son reigned in his stead. 7 And the king of Egypt did not continue further to come out of his land, for the king of Babylon had taken all that belonged... to the king of Egypt from the Wadi of Egypt to the River Euphrates.

8 Ioakim was a son of eighteen years when he became king, and he reigned three months in Ierousalem. And his mother’s name was Nestha daughter of Ellanathan from Ierousalem. 9 And he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, according to all that his father had done.

10 At that time Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon, went up to Ierousalem, and the city came under enclosure. 11 And Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon, entered into the city, and his servants were besieging it. 12 And Ioakim, king of Iouda, came out against the king of Babylon, and he and his servants and his mother and his commanders and his eunuchs, and the king of Babylon took him in the eighth year of his reign.

13 And he carried out from there all the treasures of the Lord’s house and the treasures of the king’s house, and he cut up all the golden vessels that Salomon, king of Israel, had made in the shrine of the Lord, according to the word of the Lord. 14 And he exiled Ierousalem and all the commanders and those mighty in power, taking captive ten thousand captives, and every craftsman and he that encloses, and no one remained, except the poor of the land. 15 And he exiled Ioakim to Babylon, and the mother of the king and the king’s sisters and his eunuchs, and the king of Babylon took him in the eleventh year of his reign.

16 And the Lord’s house and the treasures of the king’s house, and he cut up all the golden vessels that Salomon, king of Israel, had made in the shrine of the Lord, according to the word of the Lord. 17 The height of the chothar g all around. And the second pillar had the same on the sabacha h.

18 And the king of Babylon made Maththanias his son king in his stead and changed his name to Sedekias.

19 And the king of Babylon went up to Ierousalem, and the city came under enclosure until the eleventh year of Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon—Nabouzardan, the chief cook, since he stood before the king of Babylon, came to Ierousalem. 20 And he burned the house of the Lord and the house of the king and all the houses of Ierousalem, and every house the chief cook burned. 21 And Nabouzardan, the chief cook, removed the residue of the people who were left in the city and the fallen men who had fallen in with the king of Babylon and the rest of the support. 22 But the chief cook left some of the poor of the land to be vinedressers and gabin.

23 And it happened in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, that Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon, and all his force came against Ierousalem and encamped against it and built a surrounding wall against it all around. 2 And the city came under enclosure until the eleventh year of King Sedekias. 3 On the ninth of the month the famine also grew strong in the city, and there was no food for the people of the land. 4 And the city was breached, and all the men of war went out by night by way of the gate between the walls; this is the one of the garden of the king, and the Chaldeans were at the city all around. And he went by way of the Araba. 5 And the force of the Chaldeans pursued after the king, and they overtook him in Araboth Iericho, and all his force was scattered from about him. 6 And they captured the king and brought him to the king of Babylon in Deblatha, and he spoke judgment with him. 7 And he slaughtered the sons of Sedekias before his eyes and made blind the eyes of Sedekias and bound him in fetters and led him to Babylon.

8 And in the fifth month, on the seventh of the month—that is the nineteenth year of Nabouchodonosor, king of Babylon—Sedekias, the chief cook, since he stood before the king of Babylon, came to Ierousalem. 9 And he burned the house of the Lord and the house of the king and all the houses of Ierousalem, and every house the chief cook burned. 10 And Nabouzardan, the chief cook, removed the residue of the people who were left in the city and the fallen men who had fallen in with the king of Babylon and the rest of the support. 11 But the chief cook left some of the poor of the land to be vinedressers and gabin.

12 And the bronze pillars that were in the Lord’s house and the mechonothe and the bronze sea that was in the Lord’s house the Chaldeans smashed and carried their bronze to Babylon. 13 And the cauldrons and the iamin f and the saucers and the censers and all the bronze utensils, with which they would minister with them, he took; 14 and the chief cook took the fire-pans and the gold and silver saucers, 15 two pillars, the one sea and the mechonoth, which Salomon had made for the Lord’s house—there was no weight of the bronze of all the utensils. 16 The height of the one pillar was eighteen cubits, and on it was the bronzchothar, and the height of the chothar was three cubits; sabacha and pomegranates, all of bronze, were on the chothar all around. And the second pillar had the same on the sabacha.

17 And the chief cook took Saraia the first baker and the first cooks and the chief bakers and the bakers under them and the chief officers over the storehouse, and he took him and had him bound in fetters and led him to Babylon. 18 And the chief cook took Saraia the first baker and the first cooks and the chief bakers and the bakers under them and the chief officers over the storehouse, and he took him and had him bound in fetters and led him to Babylon. 19 And the chief cook took Saraia the first baker and the first cooks and the chief bakers and the bakers under them and the chief officers over the storehouse, and he took him and had him bound in fetters and led him to Babylon. 20 And the chief cook took Saraia the first baker and the first cooks and the chief bakers and the bakers under them and the chief officers over the storehouse, and he took him and had him bound in fetters and led him to Babylon.
and Saraias son of Thanemath the Netophathite and Iezonias son of the Machathi. 24And Godolias swore to them and to their men and said to them, “Fear not a passinga of the Chaldeans; stay in the land, and be subject to the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you.” 25And it happened in the seventh month that Ismael son of Nathanias son of Elisama of the offspring of the kings came, and ten men with him, and he struck Godolias, and he died, and the Judeans and the Chaldeans who were with him, in Massephath. 26And all the people, from small even to great, and the commanders of the forces set out and entered into Egypt, for they were afraid from before the Chaldeans.

27 And it happened in the thirty-seventh year of the exile of Joakim, king of Iouda, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-seventh of the month, that Eulmarodach, king of Babylon, in the year of his reign, lifted up the head of Joakim, king of Iouda, and brought him out from his prison house, 28and he spoke with him good things and put his throne above the thrones of the kings who were with him in Babylon. 29And he changed his prison clothes and would eat food continually before him all the days of his life. 30And his allowance, an allowance continually, was given to him from the king’s house, bby reckoning of a day in its dayb, all the days of his life.

1 AND 2 SUPPLEMENTS TO THE READER

EDITION OF THE GREEK TEXT
The NETS translation of 1 and 2 Supplements (a translation of the Greek Paraleipomena, the LXX title for the Hebrew books of 1 and 2 Chronicles) is based on Alfred Rahlfs, Septuaginta. Id est Vetus Testamentum graece iuxta LXX interpretes, 2 vols. (Stuttgart: Württembergische Bibelanstalt, 1935) 752–811. Although this is not a fully-fledged critical edition since its collation base comprises mainly the readings of only three early manuscripts, nevertheless it provides a better running text of the work for translation than does the diplomatic edition of the book in the Cambridge series, which prints the text of one manuscript, noting variants in the critical apparatus.

TRANSLATION PROFILE OF THE GREEK

General Character
The Greek text of this book has been relatively well preserved and derives from a type of Hebrew text fairly close to that represented by the MT. Moreover, the translation technique adopted by the Greek translator was rather literal with the result that its overall profile is to offer a word-for-word representation of the syntactical and morphological structure of the underlying Hebrew for readers of Greek. As a result, variations in genre of the component parts of the Hebrew text are well reflected in the translation, e.g., speeches, prayers, prophecies, psalms (1 Suppl 16.8–36 and 2 Suppl 6.41–42), etc. Similarly, long sections of 1 Supplements are given over to lists of various sorts (genealogies, city lists, census lists, officials, clerical orders, warriors, etc.) occupying 1 Supplements 1–9 and 23–27 in particular. Here, too, the Greek parallels the very staccato structure of the Hebrew, as in the following example from 6.46, where the verb of giving expressed in vv. 40 and 42 has been omitted in the interests of brevity.

MT:... לְהַעֲבֹרָה... לְעַרְבּוֹת
LXX: καὶ τῶν υἱῶν Κααθ . . . πόλεις δέκα.
NETS: And to the rest of Kaath’s sons . . . ten cities.
NRSV (= 6.61): To the rest of the Kohathites were given . . . ten towns

Some less literal renderings suggest that the type of Hebrew with which the translators were most familiar was that of their own time. As a result, on occasion they reflect the later semantic range of a term rather than its earlier sense. Thus, the term דַּי (hand) in the prepositional phrase דַּי וֹל, which in the past had frequently borne the metaphorical nuance of control and direction, is here mainly construed in terms of physical proximity, as in 1 Suppl 25.6:

MT:... יִלָּךְ דַּי
LXX: εἶχομενα τοῦ βασιλέως
NETS: near the king
NRSV: under the order of the king

Another facet of the literalness of the Greek rendering is the incorporation of certain Hebrew lexemes as loanwords, often as technical terms, relating, for example, to the temple in Jerusalem (2 Suppl 3.4 ailam “porch,” v. 16 sersereth “chains,” dabir “inner chamber,” ʼhol of holies”), as well as some of the musical instruments employed there liturgically (1 Suppl 13.8 kinnor “lyre” and nabla “harp”). Other examples involve genealogy. Thus, although the Greek renders the term Αἴγυπτος (Egypt) in strictly geographical contexts, at 1 Suppl 1.8, when the same form is applied to the eponymous ancestor of that people, the name is simply transliterated as Μεστραιμ as Мерем (NETS “Mestrain,” NRSV “Egypt”). Occasionally, however, the opposite phenomenon is found, as in 1 Suppl 4.12, where the Greek translates the first portion of the compound name יִהְיָה ʼר to render πόλεως Ναας (NETS “the city of Naas”; NRSV “Ir-nahash”).
The translators’ literal translation technique is also reflected in their divergence from the accepted norms of Greek syntax in order to render characteristics of the Hebrew phraseology more distinctly, as in 1 Suppl 11.18:

MT: לֵכָהּ אֱלֹהִים דָּוִד לְשַׁחַטֶּהָ LXX: οὐκ ἠθέλησεν Δαυὶδ τοῦ πιεῖν αὐτὸ NETS: David did not want it, in order to drink it. NRSV: David would not drink of it.

Whereas normally the articulated infinitive is used to express the goal of motion, here it is employed unidiomatically to denote the object of David’s desire, which would generally be conveyed by the infinitive alone in order to parallel the use of the preposition ἐν in Hebrew.

A more widespread form of the above tendency is the use of calques, i.e., the stereotyping of translation equivalents semantically appropriate in only part of their range and extending their usage to contexts where their equivalency standard is much less acceptable, as a means of foregrounding the Hebrew construction. A good example of this is the calquing of the Greek preposition εἰς (“in”) on its Hebrew counterpart ב, as in 1 Suppl 13.8, where the simple use of the dative case would be more idiomatic:

MT: תָּבְשֵׁרִים יבּכּר לַעֲבֹדֶה LXX: εἰς ψαλτηδοῖς καὶ εἰς κινήραις NETS: with harp-singers and with cinyras NRSV: with song and lyres

Hebrew idiom, unlike Greek and English, tends to repeat the prepositional phrase in compound expressions. Here, too, our translators represented this phenomenon faithfully in their text, as at 1 Suppl 20.8:

MT: בָּנָיְּרוֹדִים בְּסֶפַּר מְגַלְלַל LXX: εἰς χειρὶ Δαυὶδ καὶ εἰς χειρὶ παιδῶν αὐτοῦ NETS: by the hand of David and by the hand of his servants NRSV: by the hand of David and his servants

Fidelity to the morphology of the Hebrew sometimes led the translators to avoid idiomatic technical terms in favor of periphrases closer to the precise formulation in their Vorlage, as at 1 Suppl 10.4, where an exchange between Saoul (Saul) and his armor-bearer takes place. The accepted Greek term for the latter office is σκευοφόρος; however, as the Hebrew form is made up of a compound expression formed by a present participle and accompanying noun, they adopted the same construction in Greek, as follows:

MT: שֶׂפַּר דָּוִיד LXX: τῷ σφραγὶ τῷ σκεύῃ αὐτοῦ NETS: to the one bearing his arms NRSV: to his armor-bearer

Nevertheless, the translation of Supplements is by no means slavish: there are several instances where the translators have opted for terms that both offer a reasonable representation of the Hebrew and also conform to the canons of Greek idiom. A number of these relate to technical contexts of various sorts.

At 1 Suppl 10.13 Saoul (Saul) is condemned for consulting a medium, referring to the episode of the witch of Endor (1 Rgns 28.8–25). The Greek equivalent ἐγγεμετρυθης of the Hebrew term בָּנָיְּרָה is a culturally appropriate form, as it too mostly connotes a woman who delivered oracles by means of ventriloquism. Similarly, at 20.6 the Greek employs the term ἀνδρόγυνος to render the Hebrew נְכֻלִי (“descendant”), although in v. 4 the narrower term υἱός (“son”) is found in a parallel context. The setting at 5.24 is one of genealogical tables of leaders of the various tribes and the Hebrew term מְגַלָּל has connotations both of primordiality and primacy. This dual semantic ground is well expressed by the equivalent ἀρχηγόι the translators selected. However, when the same elastic Hebrew term appears at 11.6 with reference to bearing office and in parallel with military command, the translators realized the need for nuance and chose to render it by the form ᾳρχων (“ruler,” “commander”). The same judgment applies to another reflex of that Hebrew root, מְגַלָּל, at 18.17, referring to officials in the king’s immediate vicinity, which is rendered by the technical term διάδοχος, as, in addition to the widespread sense of “successor,” it also bears the meaning of "substitute," “deputy.” Another very felicitous lexical choice is the employment of the classical compound adjective φιλογεωργος (“devoted to agriculture”) at 2 Suppl 26.10 to render the Hebrew phrase יבשה. Encountered in the works of such Attic authors as Xenophon and Aristophanes, this place is its only occurrence in the Greek Bible. The term is extremely apposite in context, as the setting is not one of rugged natural beauty but of human endeavor in working the soil.

Where appropriate, one notes that the translators sought to express nuances implicit in the formulation of a Hebrew phrase. A good example of this trend is the clarification of the dispute between the commander Joab and David regarding the conduct of a census of Israel. At 1 Suppl 21.3 Joab remonstrates against his sovereign’s command. Yet in the following verse he is constrained to submit to the latter’s authority. This reversal, somewhat masked in Hebrew by the use of the simple copula, is idiomatically drawn out by the Greek particle δε, marking a contrast from the preceding. Similarly, at 1 Suppl 20.3 the translators found an elegant solution to render the Hebrew phrasal construction of definition with רַבָּה, which obviates the need for a verbal clause by utilizing the parallel Greek articular construction, as follows: LXX: τον λαόν τὸν ἐν σωτηρίᾳ, NETS: “the people who were in it”; NRSV: “the people who were in it.”

Despite its close affinities with the Hebrew, there are a number of cases where the Greek text diverges from its standard for various reasons. On occasion this relates to the context and connotations of a term, as at 1 Suppl 10.13, where the Hebrew text fundamentally indicts Saul (Saul) for infidelity, being unfaithful in his relation to God in disobeying his commands. However, the framework in Greek is one of jurisprudence and the charge of breaking the divine law.

MT: ירימה שלמה, מערער אתו, תנים פלח יבשה.
LXX: στιθενεν Σαούλ ἐν ταῖς άνουμιαῖς αὐτοῦ, αἷς ἠρμόμησεν τῷ κυρίῳ NETS: Saul died in his acts of lawlessness, which he had done lawlessly against the Lord
NRSV: Saul died for his unfaithfulness; he was unfaithful to the LORD

Other instances involve contextual exegesis and the impact of parallel passages in earlier biblical books, whose matter is being reviewed by the Chronicler. Hence, the Greek description of Nimrod at 1 Suppl 1.10, with its addition of his prowess at hunting, has been assimilated to the account in the Pentateuch.

MT: נבורה
LXX: γίγας κυνηγός cf. Genesis 10.9 MT and LXX NETS: a giant hunter
NRSV: a mighty one

In a small number of cases it appears that both MT and LXX in their current form may be corrupt. In one of these at 2 Suppl 14.14(15) the Greek witnesses a plus referring presumably to a final tribe or people in the list of conquests achieved by Asa’s forces.1 The term in question, “Amazons,” is not to be associated with the female warriors of Greek mythology (the preceding article identifying them as male), but it seems connected with a by-form, Άλιμαζώνεις, occurring at 22.1.

MT: וְגוֹ לָא מָלֵא דָּרֶם דֵּרֶם.
LXX: καὶ γε σκηναῖς κτήσεων, τοὺς Αμαζόνεις, ἔζηκον NETS: Indeed tents of possessions, the Amazons, they eradicated
NRSV: They also attacked the tents of those who had livestock

THE NETS TRANSLATION OF SUPPLEMENTS

General Approach

The key principle guiding this translation has been to avoid overly interpreting the Greek, but to provide a close English rendering of the Greek’s representation of the original Hebrew. In consequence, it has sought not to smooth over problems, but to allow aporias to show through rather than trying to solve them by offering one particular sense, which would naturally exclude other possibilities.

In accordance with general NETS policy, I have attempted to maintain the vocabulary of the NRSV version, where the latter is compatible with the MT and the LXX does not diverge from that standard. Although well preserved, the Hebrew text of these books is not completely intact, and hence scholarly editors have proposed a variety of emendations to improve on what are regarded as its secondary readings.

1 Curtis and Madsen, 381, 419-420.
NRSV, in turn, has adopted some of these suggestions, and therefore rejects the MT reading at such points. A good example is afforded by the textual variation at 1 Suppl 20.3 in relating David’s policy toward the Ammonite captive population. MT followed by LXX indicates that he exacted severe physical reprisals against them; however, the parallel passage at 2 Rgns 12.31 states that he set them to work with saws as hard labor, which seems more standard practice in such cases.

MT: יִשְׂרָאֵל מַגְנָה
LXX: διείσπρεσεν πρίσισιν
NETS: he sawed (them, i.e., the people) with saws
NRSV: (He) set them to work with saws

On rare occasions it appears that the NRSV translation does not do full duty to the MT reading. Thus at 1 Suppl 14.15 both the Hebrew and Greek terms relate more narrowly to a camp or encampment, while the NRSV version interprets this more broadly as referring to the army.

MT: לַעֲבֹר הַמַּגִּינָה מַגִּינָה
LXX: τού παταξάει την παρέμβολην των ἀλλοφύλων
NETS: to strike down the camp of the allophyles
NRSV: to strike down the army of the Philistines

At other junctures the NRSV rendering has recourse to explanatory additions to clarify particulars, which may not have been fully unpacked in the Hebrew. Thus at 1 Suppl 20.1 the reference is to the passing of winter and the opening up of communications in spring, creating conditions conducive to initiating the campaigning season, a regular phenomenon for ancient societies but not a given for the modern reader. Hence, NRSV spells out the passage’s implicit significance.

MT: לְמַעְלוֹת אֲלֵהוֹ מִלְשָׁנָה
LXX: καὶ ἐγένετο εἰς τὸ ἐπίστευτον ἐτει ἐν τῇ ἔξοδῷ τῶν βασιλέων NETS: And it happened in the following year, at the marching out of the kings
NRSV: In the spring of the year, the time when kings go out to battle (interpretative addition/clarification)

Similarly, at 1 Suppl 21.1 the issue is one of instituting a national census, and so the term “Israel” relates to the population, not to the actual land, a point explicitly made by NRSV to remove any misunderstanding.

MT: לְמַעְלוֹת אֲלֵהוֹ
LXX: τοῦ ὀρθυμέρας τὸν Ἰσραήλ
NETS: to count Israel
NRSV: to count the people of Israel

Joab, as noted above, is to carry out the census and report back to the king on its completion. However, the form of the Hebrew here faithfully followed by the Greek is somewhat elliptical regarding what precisely Joab is to bring, and so NRSV specifies this.

MT: רֹבֵעַ עֲלָיוֹ
LXX: καὶ ἐνέγκατε πρός με
NETS: and bring to me
NRSV: and bring me a report

On occasion, NRSV evinces the opposite tendency of condensing the formulation where MT may be guilty of tautology, as in the following example from 1 Suppl 20.1 where “force” and “army” refer to the same collective.

MT: נְגֵן יָאוּב אֱלֹהֵי הָעָרָבָה
LXX: καὶ ἤγαγεν Ιωάβ πάσαν τὴν δύναμιν τῆς στρατιᾶς NETS: and Joab led out the entire force of the army
NRSV: Joab led out the army

Selected words and phrases

The Hebrew term וְּנַבְשׂ closely followed by the Greek (υἱοὶ, τέκνα), which literally refers to sons, is frequently translated as “descendants” by NSRV (e.g., 1 Suppl 1.5, 6, 7, 8, 9) with regard to more generic clan genealogy.

Problems of Grammar

In Hebrew syntax the norm is to construct narrative paratactically, linking all the events in a continuum by the simple copula rather than highlighting the particular relation between the actions by, for example, assigning those semantically less significant to subordinate clauses or directing the reader’s attention to important spatial, temporal or other features linking the stages in the evolving story. However, this procedure is highly unidiomatic in English usage, and hence the NRSV translators frequently vary their rendering both for stylistic variety and to render the above clausal relations more explicit. In contrast, NETS seeks to reflect for the English reader the full degree of the literalness of the Greek version.

In the protracted lists where the presence of the copula becomes highly repetitive, NRSV will periodically omit the connective to ease the flow in English, as in 1 Suppl 1.10

</tbody>
</table>

NRSV also punctuates the ongoing discourse by signaling a new episode, the introduction of a new theme, etc. through a more colorful term, as at 1 Suppl 10.1, which marks the transition from the genealogical lists of temple personnel to the opening of the historical narrative.

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Similarly, important temporal relationships between actions are underscored by appropriate language as at v. 4, where the severe conditions of battle prompt Saul’s exchange with his armor-bearer.

<td>Then Saul said to his armor-bearer</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

On other occasions the narrative focus requires a counterpoint between the reactions of two persons or groups, as at v. 11, where the Israelite response to the defeat at Mount Gilboa is contrasted with that of the jubilant Philistines:

<td>καὶ ἔκουσαν πάντες οἱ κατοικοῦντες Γαλαὰδ</td>
<td>And all those living in Galaad heard</td>
<td>But when all Jabesh-gilead heard</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Result is another key narrative link whereby an action is marked as the consequence of the preceding, as at v. 6 depicting Saul’s death from his wounds:

<th>NETS</th>
<th>NRSV</th>

<tr>
<td>וְּנַבְשׂ לְאֵל אַדְמוֹגָרָה</td>

<td>Thus Saul died</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Purpose also forms a bond between actions, underlining how one is undertaken in order to facilitate another, as at 1 Suppl 21.2 regarding the rationale for conducting the census.
The NRSV translators also permit themselves a certain freedom in focusing their rendering on the semantic field rather than being constrained by issues of quantitative representation, as at 1 Suppl 10.4, where MT followed by LXX expresses terror by means of a simple verb of fearing modified by an adverb of intensity.

MT: δώρωσέν μι ανασκυλών
LXX: έφοβείτο σφόδρα
NETS: he was very afraid
NRSV: he was terrified

Often this leads to employing a more technical term appropriate to context rather than to MT’s more general phraseology, as at 1 Suppl 10.10, where the religious context is explicated by reference to a temple:

MT: ἐν οἴκῳ θεοῦ αὐτῶν
LXX: εν οίκῳ του θεου αυτων
NETS: in the house of their god
NRSV: in the temple of their gods

Similarly, at v. 13 the reference to Saul’s infringing divine regulations leads the translators to select the more specific term “command” over the broader Hebrew lexeme דַּבָּר “word.”

MT: מֵלִיצִיו דַּבָּר
LXX: (κατὰ) τὸν λόγον τοῦ κυρίου
NETS: (according to) the Lord’s word
NRSV: the command of the Lord

Likewise, in describing the prodigious attributes of a gigantic Philistine warrior at 1 Suppl 20.6, the translators expand on the rather laconic Hebrew version literally represented in Greek, differentiating extremities of the hands and feet according to the idiom of the target language as “fingers” and “toes.”

MT: אֲבוֹּתָיו וּפַלַחְלַחְלַחְלַחְלַחְלַח
LXX: καὶ διάκτυλοι αὐτοῦ ἕξ καὶ ἕξ NETS: and his digits were six and six
NRSV: six fingers on each hand, and six toes on each foot

Frequently, idiomatic expressions of time are employed more expansively than their literal sense would suggest, as, for example, in the phrase “yesterday and the third day” encountered at 1 Suppl 11.2, which clearly envisages a period of some years during which David led the Israelite army under Saul’s reign, a point that the NRSV translators duly highlight.

MT: נָתיָוָא נְשֵׁלָהָהָהָהָהָהָהָה
LXX: ἐξῆς καὶ τρίτην
NETS: yesterday and the third day
NRSV: for some time now

Very rarely do matters of theological exegesis loom large in a work like 1 and 2 Supplements. One of the few instances occurs at 1 Suppl 21.1, which, not surprisingly, is styled by Sara Japhet as “one of the most discussed and interpreted verses in Chronicles.” The question at issue is the precise identification of the one who instigated David to conduct the census, Satan or some undefined slanderer. In the counterpart to this passage at 2 Rgs 24.1 the perpetrator is God himself in his wrath. This the Chronicler has mitigated according to his normal practice by refocusing the intervention. At the same time, there is no indication that the author believed in a self-existing principle of evil. Moreover, when the Hebrew term נזיר denotes a proper noun, it is normally found with the article, whereas here it is unarticulated. Consequently, in sum, it appears that a human instigator is intended.

MT: נזיר נלע בּי נזיר

LXX: καὶ έστη διάβολος ἐν τῷ Ισραήλ

NETS: and a slanderer stood in Israel

NRSV: Satan stood up against Israel

5 And Rouben’s sons, Israel’s firstborn—because he was the firstborn, but he gave his blessing to his son Ioseph son of Israel, when he climbed into his father’s bed, and he was not reckoned in the genealogy as firstborn, 2because Ioudas was powerful in strength also among his brothers and one from him became a leader, and the blessing was Ioseph’s—3Rouben’s sons, Israel’s firstborn: Henoch and Phallous, Harson and Charmi. 4And Iesai’s sons: Semei and Banaia his son, and Goug’s sons, son of Semei: 5his son Micha, his son Recha, his son Baal, 6his son Beera whom Thaglathphalnasar, king of Assour, exiled. He was the ruler of those of Rouben. And his brothers in his paternal family in their registers according to their generations: Ioel the ruler and Zacharia and Balek son of Ozouz son of Sama son of Joel; he lived in Araer and at Nabau and Beelmaon, and toward the east he lived as far as the beginnings of the wilderness this side of the river Euphrates, because their cattle were many in the land of Galaad. And in the days of Saoul they waged war on those adjacent, and people who live in tents fell in their hands, even all in the east of Galaad.

11 Gad's sons lived opposite them in Basan, as far as Selcha. 12Ioel was the firstborn and Sapham the second and Iani the scribe in Basan. And their brothers according to their paternal houses were: Michael, Mosollam and Sebee and loree and Iachan and Zoue and Obed, seven. These were sons of Abichail son of Houri son of Idai son of Galaad son of Michael son of Isai son of Iouri son of Zaboucham son of Abiel son of Gouni, ruler of a paternal house. They were living in Galaad, in Basan and in their villages, and all the surrounding area of Saron as far as its limit. The register of all was in the days of Ioatham, king of Ioudas, and in the days of Ieroboam, king of Israel.

18 Sons of Rouben and Gad and the half-tribe of Manasses: some sons of power, men bearing shields and dagger and drawing a bow and skilled in warfare, forty-four thousand seven hundred and sixty going out to the battle front. And they would wage war with the Hagarenes and the Iourites and Naphisites and Nadabites. And they prevailed over them, and the Hagarenes and all their coverts were given into their hands, because they called upon God in the battle and he heard them, because they hoped in him. And they captured their belongings, fifty thousand camels and two hundred and fifty thousand sheep, two thousand donkeys, and one hundred thousand souls of men, because many casualties fell, because the war was from God, and they lived in their place until the exile.

23 And the members of the half-tribe of Manasses lived in the land from Basan to Baalermom and Sanir and Mount Haeremon, and they multiplied in Lebanon. And these were the chiefs of their paternal house: Opher and Isei and Eliel and Edriel and lormea and Hodouia and Iediel, men strong in power, men of reputation, rulers of their ancestral houses. And they transgressed against their fathers' God and whored after the gods of the land of their fathers' God and whored after the gods of the land from Basan to Baalermon and Sanir and Mount Haeremon. Some sons of power, men bearing shields and dagger and drawing a bow and skilled in warfare, forty-four thousand seven hundred and sixty going out to the battle front. And they would wage war with the Hagarites and all their coverts were given into their hands, because they called upon God in the battle and he heard them, because they hoped in him. And they captured their belongings, fifty thousand camels and two hundred and fifty thousand sheep, two thousand donkeys, and one hundred thousand souls of men, because many casualties fell, because the war was from God, and they lived in their place until the exile.

26 And these are the ones whom Dauid put in hands of singers in the house of the Lord in the place of rest of the ark, and they ministered with instruments before the tent of the house of witness until Salomon had built the Lord's house in Ierousalem, and they stood according to their rule at their ministrations. And these are the ones who stood and their sons from among the sons of Kaath: Haiman, the harp-singer, son of Ieeth his son, Zemma his son, Iethri his son, because they were skilled in playing on the harp and on the psaltery and on the timbrel.

3 And Dauid took more wives in Jerusalem, and again sons and daughters were born to Dauid. 4 And these are the names of them that were born, whom he had in Jerusalem: Samaa, Isobaam, Naasam, Salmon 5 and Ibaar and Elisas and Eliphalet 6 and Nage and Nathrop and Ianaou and Elisasame 7 and Ballede and Eliphalet.

8 And allophyles heard that Dauid had been anointed king over all Israel, and all the allophyles went up to search out Dauid. And Dauid heard and went out to confront them. 9 And allophyles came and raided in the valley of the giants. 10 And Dauid inquired of God, saying, "If I go up against the allophyles, will you also give them into my hands?" And the Lord said to him, "Go up, and I will give them into your hands." 11 And he went up to Baalphasar, and Dauid struck them down there. And Dauid said, "God has cut down my enemies by my hand like cutting through water." Therefore he called the name of the place Cutting-through Pharasine. 12 And they abandoned their gods there, and Dauid said that they burned them with fire.

13 And Dauid assembled all Israel from the borders of Egypt and as far as the entrance of Hamath, to bring the ark of God from the city of Iarim. 14 And Dauid brought it up, and all Israel went up to Dauid's city, which was in Lousis, to bring up from there the ark of God the Lord, sitting on the cherubim, of him by whose name it is called. 15 And they set the ark of God on a new cart from the house of Aminadab, and Oza and his brothers directed the cart. 16 And Dauid and all Israel were playing before God with all their might and with harp-singers and with cineras and with nablas, with drums and with cymbals and with trumpets. 17 And they came to the threshing floor, and Oza stretched out his hand to hold the ark, because the ox was tilting it. 10 And the Lord raged with anger against Oza and struck him down on the spot for stretching out his hand to the ark, and he died there before God. 11 And Dauid was vexed with the Lord, for God has gone out before you to strike down the ark of God, save the Leuites, as the Lord has chosen them to lift the ark of God and to minister to him forever. 3 And Dauid assembled all Israel in Ierousalem, to bring up the ark of the Lord to the place he had prepared for it. 4 And Dauid gathered the sons of Aaron and the Leuites. 5 Of the sons of Kaath: Ouriel the chief and his brothers, one hundred and twenty. 6 Of the sons of Gersam: Eliel the chief and his brothers, one hundred and fifty. 7 Of the sons of Merari: Asaia the chief and his brothers, two hundred and fifty. 8 Of the sons of Elisaphan: Samaias the chief and his brothers, two hundred and fifth. 9 Of the sons of Gersam: Joael the chief and his brothers, one hundred and fifty. 8 Of the sons of Elisaphan: Samaias the chief and his brothers, two hundred. 9 Of the sons of Chebron: Eliel the chief and his brothers, eighty. 10 Of the sons of Ozziel: Aminadab the chief and his brothers, one hundred and twelve.

11 And Dauid summoned the priests Sadok and Abiathar and the Leuites Ouriel, Asaia, Joael, Samaia, Eliel, Aminadab. 12 And he said to them, "You are the rulers of the paternal families of the Leuites; be sanctified, you and your brothers, and bring up the ark of the God Israel to where I have prepared for it, because when you were not around earlier our God cut into us, as we did not seek by means of a ruling." 14 And the priests and Leuites were sanctified to bring up the ark of Israel's God. 15 And the sons of the Leuites took the ark of God with carrying-poles on them, as Moyses commanded with a divine word according to prescription.

16 And Dauid said to the rulers of the Leuites, "Install their brothers, the harp-singers, with instruments of songs, with nablas and cineras and cymbals, to articulate upward with a sound of gladness." 17 And the Leuites appointed Joel's son Haiman; of his brothers there was Asaph son of Barachia, and from the sons of Merari, his brothers, Aithan son of Kisaiou. 18 And with them were their brothers, the seconds, Zacharias and Oziel and Semiramoth and Iiel and Oni and Eliab and Banaia and Maasaia and Mattathias and Eliphalia and Makenia and Abeddom and Iiel and Ozias, the gatekeepers, 19 and the harp-singers, Haiman, Asaph and Aithan, to produce sound with bronze cymbals. 20 Zacharias and Oziel, Semiramoth, Iiel, Oni, Eliab, Maasaia and Banaia with nabalas on alaimoth, 21 and Mattathias and Eliphalia and Makenia and Abeddom and Iiel and Ozias to support them with cinyras amasenith, 22 and Chonenia, chief of the Leuites, chief of the singers, because he was intelligent. 23 And Barachia and Elkana were gatekeepers of the ark, 24 and Sobnia and Josaphat and Nathanael and Amasai and Zacharia and Banaia and Eliezer the priests were trumpeting with the trumpets before the ark of God. And Abeddom and Iia were gatekeepers of the ark of God.

25 And there was Daudi and the elders of Israel and the officers of thousands, who advanced to lead the ark of the Lord’s covenant up from Abdedom’s house with gladness. 26 And it happened, when God strengthened the Leuites as they were carrying the ark of the Lord’s covenant, that they sacrificed seven calves and seven rams. 27 And Daudi was girded with a linen garment, and all the Leuites, as they carried the ark of the Lord’s covenant, and the harp-singers, and Chonenias the chief of the singers that sing, and Daudi had on a linen garment. 28 And all Israel brought up the ark of the Lord’s covenant with declamation and with the sound of sopher and with trumpets and with cymbals, sounding with nabalas and with cinyras.

29 And the ark of the Lord’s covenant came, and it reached the city of Daudi, and Melchol, Saoul’s daughter, peeped out of the window and saw King Daudi dancing and sporting, and she despised him in her heart.

16 And they brought in the ark of God and set it in the middle of the tent that Daudi had pitched for it, and they offered whole burnt offerings and of deliverance before God. 2 And Daudi finished offering whole burnt offerings and of deliverance and blessed the people in the Lord’s name. 3 And he distributed to every man in Israel—from man even to woman—one baker’s loaf of bread and a sweet cake.

4 And he appointed some of the Leuites as ministers before the ark of the Lord’s covenant, proclaiming both to acknowledge and to praise the Lord, God of Israel; 5 Asaph was the leader, and acting as his second was Zacharias, Iiel, Semiramoth, Iiel, Mattathias, Eliab and Banaia and Abeddom and Iiel, with instruments, nabalas and cinyras and Asaph sounding with cymbals and the priests Banaia and Oziel with trumpets continually before the ark of God’s covenant.

7 On that day at that time Daudi at first stipulated that they praise the Lord, by the hand of Asaph and his brothers.

8 Acknowledge the Lord; call on him by his name; make known his practices among peoples.

9 Sing to him, and sing hymns to him; tell all his wonderful things, which the Lord has done.

10 Praise in his holy name.

When a heart seeks his good pleasure, it shall be glad.

11 Seek the Lord, and be strong; seek his face continually.

12 Be mindful of his wonderful things, which he did, miracles and judgments of his mouth, O offspring of Israel, his servants, sons of Iakob, his chosen ones.

13 The Lord himself is our God; in all the earth are his judgments, since he is mindful of his covenant forever, his word that he commanded for a thousand generations, which he pledged to Abraam, and his oath to Isaak.

14 He established it for Iakob as an ordinance, for Israel as an everlasting covenant, saying, “To you I will give the land of Chanaan as a parcel for your inheritance.”

15 When they became very few in number, as they were diminished and lived as resident aliens in it, they also advanced from nation to nation and from kingdom to another people.

16 He allowed no man to dominate them, and he rebuked kings for their sake: “Do not touch my anointed ones, and among my prophets do no harm.”

17 Sing to the Lord, all the earth; declare his deliverance from day to day, because great is the Lord and highly praised; he is terrible to all the gods, because all the gods of the nations are idols, but our God made the sky.

18 Glory and commendation are before him, strength and boasting in his place.

19 Give to the Lord, O paternal families of the nations; give to the Lord glory and strength.

20 Give to the Lord the glory of his name; take gifts, and bring them before him. And do obeisance to the Lord in his holy courts.

21 Let all the earth fear from before him;

let the earth be firmly founded and not be shaken.
31 Let the sky be glad and the earth rejoice, and let them say among the nations that the Lord is king.
32 The sea shall roar together with its fullness, and the tree of the field and everything in it.
33 Then the wood of the forest will be glad before the Lord, because he came to judge the earth.
34 Acknowledge the Lord, for it is good, because his mercy is forever.

35 And say,
   “Save us, O God of our salvation, and deliver us from the nations, to praise your holy name and boast in your praises.
36 Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting.”
And all the people shall say, “Amen!” And they praised the Lord.

37 And they left there Asaph and his brothers before the ark of the Lord’s covenant to minister before the ark continually what was required from day to day.
38 And Abdedom and his brothers were sixty-eight, and Abdedom son of Idithon and Hossa became gatekeepers.
39 And they left Sadok the priest and his brothers the priests before the Lord’s tent in Bama, which is in Gabaon, to offer whole burnt offerings continually in the morning and evening and according to all that is written in the Lord’s law, which he commanded upon the priests before the ark of the Lord’s covenant to minister before the ark of the Lord’s covenant to offer whole burnt offerings continually in the morning and evening and according to all that is written in the Lord’s law, which he commanded upon the sons of Israel by the hand of Moyses, God’s attendant.
40 And with him were Haiman and Idithon and their sons were for the gate.
41 And all the people went, each to his house, and Dauid returned to bless his house.

17 And it happened, when Dauid settled in his house, Dauid also said to the prophet Nathan, “Look, I am living in a house of cedar, and the ark of the Lord’s covenant is under skins.”
2 And Nathan said to Dauid, “Do all that you have in mind, because God is with you.”
3 And it happened in that night, and a word of the Lord came to Nathan, saying:
4 Go, and tell Dauid my servant: Thus said the Lord, You shall not build me a house to live in it, because I have not lived in a house since the day I brought up Israel until this day, and I was in a tent and in a lodging.
5 In all the areas I traversed in all Israel, when speaking did I speak to one tribe of Israel to shepherd my people, saying, You have not built me a house of cedar?
6 And now thus you will say to my slave Dauid: This is what the Lord Almighty says: I took you from the fold behind the flocks to be a leader over my people Israel.
7 And I was with you in every place to which you went and utterly destroyed all your enemies from before you and made for you a name like the name of the great ones on the earth.
8 And I will appoint a place for my people Israel and will plant them, and they will encamp on their own and will no longer be concerned, and injustice will not add to humiliate them as at the outset.
9 And from the days I appointed judges over my people Israel I also laid low all your enemies.
10 And I shall make you grow, and the Lord will build you a house.
11 And it shall be, when your days are fulfilled and you lie down with your fathers, also I will raise up your seed after you, he who shall be from your belly, and I will establish his kingdom.
12 It is he who shall build me a house, and I will set up his throne forever.
13 I will be a father to him, and he shall be a son to me. And I will not withdraw my mercy from him as I withdrew it from those before you.
14 And I will confirm him in his house and in his reign forever.
15 And his throne shall be established forever.
16 In accordance with all these words and all that vision Nathan spoke to Dauid;

16 And King Dauid went and sat before the Lord and said, “Who am I, Lord God, and what is my house, that you have loved me forever?
17 And this was a small thing before you, God, and you have spoken about your servant’s house from afar, and you looked upon me as a vision of a human being and exalted me, Lord God.
18 What shall Dauid add to you to glorify? And you know your slave.
19 And according to your heart you have done all this greatness.
20 Lord, no one is like you, and there is no one but you according to all that we have heard with our ears.
21 And there is no nation on the earth like your people Israel, as God directed it to redeem it as a people for himself, to place upon it his great and illustrious name to drive out nations from before your people whom you redeemed from Egypt.
22 And you gave your people Israel to yourself as a people forever, and you, Lord, became their God.
23 “And now, Lord, let the word you spoke to your servant and concerning his house be confirmed forever,
24 when they say, ‘Lord, Lord Almighty, God of Israel, and the house of your servant Dauid established before you!’
25 For you, Lord, have opened your servant’s ear to build him a house. Therefore your servant found it possible to pray in your presence.
26 And now, Lord, you are the selfsame God and have spoken these good things regarding your slave.
27 And now you have begun in order to bless your servant’s house for it to be before you forever, because you, Lord, have blessed it. And bless it forever!”

18 And it happened after these things that Dauid struck the allophyles and put them to flight and seized Geth and its villages from the hand of allophyles.

2 And he struck Moab, and Moab were David's servants, bearing gifts.

3 And David struck Hadraazar, king of Soubia Hemath, when he was advancing to put his hand on the river Euphrates. 4And David took in advance of them a thousand chariots and seven thousand horses and twenty thousand infantry men. And David hamstrung all the chariot-horses but left one hundred chariot-horses of them. 5And the Syrian came from Damascus to help Hadraazar, king of Soubia. And David struck down twenty-two thousand men of the Syrian. 6And David put a garrison in Syria opposite Damascus, and they became David's servants, bearing gifts. And the Lord kept saving David in all he went through. 7And David took the gold collars, which were on Hadraazar's servants, and brought them to Jerusalem. 8And from the metebecha and from Hadraazar's select cities David took very much bronze; with it Solomon made the bronze sea and the pillars and the bronze vessels.

9 And Thoa, king of Hemath, heard that David had struck the whole force of Hadraazar, king of Soubia. 10And he sent his son Hidouram to King David to ask him the things that were in his hand, and for the king of Soubia, and he sent all the silver and gold vessels. 11And David dedicated these to the Lord along with the silver and gold that he had taken from all the nations, from Idumea and Moab and from the sons of Ammon and from the allophyles and from Amalek.

12 And Abessa son of Sarouia struck down Idumea in the Valley of Salt, eighteen thousand men. 13And he put garrisons in the valley, and all the Idumeans became David's servants. And the Lord kept saving David in all he went through. 14And David reigned over all Israel and was executing judgment and justice to all his people. 15And Ioab son of Sarouia was over the army, and Josophat son of Achiloud was recorder. 16And Sadok son of Achitob and Achimelech son of Abithath were priests, and Sousa was scribe, 17and Banaias son of Iodae was over Chereththi and Phleththi, and David's sons were the king's foremost deputies.

19 And it happened after these things, Naas, king of Ammon's sons, died, and his son Hanan became king in his stead. 2And David said, "I will do mercy with Naas' son Hanan as his father did mercy with me." 3And David sent messengers to console him concerning his father. And David's servants came to the land of Ammon's sons to console him. 4And the rulers of Ammon said to Hanan, "Surely not to honor your father before you has David sent to you men to console? Is it not in order to investigate the city to spy out the land that his servants have come to you?" 5And Hanan seized David's servants and shaved them and removed half of their cloaks as far as the man who was sent. 6And they came to report to David concerning the men, and he sent to meet them, because they had been severely dishonored. And the king said, "Sit in Iericho until your beards regrow, and return."

20 And the sons of Ammon saw that David's people had been disgraced, and Hanan and the sons of Ammon sent a thousand silver talents to hire for themselves chariots and cavalry from Mesopotamian Syria and Syrian Moocha and from Soba. 2And they hired thirty-two thousand chariots and the king of Mocha and his people, and they came and encamped before Maidaba, and the sons of Ammon mustered from their cities and came to do battle. 8And David heard and sent Ioab and all his army of mighty men. 9And the sons of Ammon came out and were taking up position for battle by the gateway of the city, and the kings who had come encamped by themselves in the plain.

10 And Ioab saw that they had lined up against him on both sides in the van and at the rear. And he selected from every youth of Israel, and they took up position against the Syrian. 2And he gave the rest of the people in the hand of his brother Abessa, and they formed up opposite the sons of Ammon. 12And he said, "If the Syrian is too strong for me, then you will be my relief, and if the sons of Ammon are too strong for you, then I will save you. 13Be manly, and let us show our strength for our people and for the cities of our God, and the Lord will do what is right in his eyes." 14And Ioab and the people with him lined up for battle against the Syrians, and they fled before him. 15And the sons of Ammon saw that the Syrians had fled; then they too fled from before Ioab and from before Abessa his brother, and they came into the city. And Ioab came into Jerusalem.

16 And the Syrian saw that Israel had routed him, and he sent messengers, and they brought out the Syrian from the other side of the river, and Sophach, commander in chief of Hadraazar's force, was at their head. 17And it was reported to David, and he gathered all Israel and crossed the Jordan and came against them and lined up against them. And the Syrian is in formation opposite David and fought him. 18And the Syrian fled from before David, and David killed seven thousand chariots of the Syrian and forty thousand infantry, and he killed Sophach, the commander in chief of the force. 19And Hadraazar's servants saw that they had been defeated from before Israel, and they made terms with David and were subject to him. And the Syrian no longer had the will in order to help the sons of Ammon.
his head, and its weight was found to be a gold talent, and in it was a precious stone, and it was on Dauid’s head. And he brought out the booty of the city, a very great amount. 3And he led out the people who were in it, and he sawed with saws and with iron adzes. And so Dauid did to all the sons of Ammon. And Dauid and all his people returned to Ierousalem.

4 And it happened after this, and there was again war in Gazer with the allophyles. Then Sobochai the Housathi struck down Saphou, one of the sons of the giants, and humbled him. 5And there was again war in the allophyles. And El-lanan son of Iair struck down Leemi brother of Goliath the Geththite, and the wood of his spear was like part of a loom of weavers. 6And there was war again in Geth, and there was a massive man, and his digits were six and six, twenty-four, and he was a descendant of giants. 7And he defied Israel and Jonathan son of Samaa, Dauid’s brother, struck him down. 8These were born to Rapha in Geth. All four were giants, and they fell by the hand of Dauid and by the hand of his servants.

21 And a slanderer stood in Israel and incited Dauid to count Israel. 2And King Dauid said to loab and to the commanders of the force, “Go, count Israel from Bersabee and as far as Dan, and bring to me, and I shall know their number.” 3And loab said, “May the Lord add to his people as much as a hundred fold, and may the eyes of my Lord the king see. All servants to my lord! Why does my lord seek this? Lest it be counted as a sin against my lord the king see. All servants to my lord! Why does my lord seek this? Lest it be counted as a sin against my lord the king see. All servants to my lord!” 4But the king’s word prevailed against loab. And so the king’s word overpowered loab.

And an angel of the Lord said to Gad to say to Dauid to go up and erect an altar to the Lord on the threshing floor of Orna the lebusite. 19And Dauid went up according to the word of Gad, which he had spoken in the Lord’s name. 20And Orna turned and saw the king, and four of his sons were with him methachabin. And Orna was winnowing wheat. 21And Dauid came to Orna, and Orna left the threshing floor and did obeisance to Dauid with his face to the ground. 22And Dauid said to Orna, “Give me your site of the threshing floor, and I will build on it an altar to the Lord. Give it to me for goodly silver, and the plague will abate from the people.” 23And Orna said to Dauid, “Take it for yourself, and let my lord the king do what is good before him. See, I have given the oxen as a whole burnt offering and the plow and the carts for wood and the grain for a sacrifice. I have given it all.” 24And King Dauid said to Orna, “No, because buying I am buying with goodly silver, because I will not take for the Lord what is yours, to offer a whole burnt offering to the Lord for nothing.” 25And Dauid gave Orna six hundred shekels of gold by weight for his site.

And Dauid built there an altar to the Lord and offered whole burnt offerings and for deliverance. And he shouted to the Lord, and he heeded him with fire from the sky on the altar of the whole burnt offering, and it consumed the whole burnt offering. 27And the Lord spoke to the angel, and he put his sword back into its sheath.

28 At that time, when Dauid saw that the Lord had heeded him on the threshing floor of Orna the lebusite, he also sacrificed there. 29And the Lord’s tent, which Moyes had made in the wilderness, and the altar of whole burnt offerings at that time were in Bama in Gabaon. 30And Dauid was not able to go before it to inquire of God, because he made haste from before the sword of the angel of the Lord.

22 And Dauid said, "This is the house of the Lord God, and this is the altar for whole burnt offering for Israel."

2 And Dauid said to gather all the guests in the land of Israel, and he appointed them as quarrymen, to quarry dressed stones to build a house for God. 3And Dauid prepared a lot of iron for the nails of the doorways and of the gates, and the clamps and bronze in abundance beyond weighing. 4And cedar logs without number, for the Sidonians and Tyrrians were bringing cedar logs to Dauid in abundance. 5And Dauid said, "Salomon, my son, is a tender lad, and as for the house—in order that he may build it to the Lord unto lofty magnificence, unto fame and unto reputation throughout the earth, I shall make preparations for it." And Dauid prepared in abundance before his death.

6 And he called Salomon his son and commanded him that he should build the house for the Lord, God of Israel. 7And Dauid said to Salomon, "Child, I had it in mind to build a house for the name of the Lord God. 8And a word of the Lord came to me, saying, 'You have shed blood in abundance and have waged great wars; you shall not build a house to my name, because you have shed much blood before me upon the earth. 9Behold, a son is being born to you; he shall be a man of repose, and I will give him repose from all the enemies on every side, because his name shall be Salomon, and I will bestow peace and quiet on Israel in his days. 10He shall build a house for my name, and he will be a son to me, and I will be a father to him, and I shall set right the throne of his kingdom in Israel forever.' 11And now, my son, the Lord will be with you and will make you prosper, if you take care to do the ordinances of the Lord your God. 12Only, my son, the Lord will be with you and will make you prosper, if you take care to do the law of the Lord your God. 13Then he will strengthen you over Israel both to watch over and provide for you, and to give you rest from all the enemies on every side, because his name shall be Salomon, and I will bestow peace and quiet on Israel in his days. 14And Moyses was a man of God: his sons were men of integrity, and his sons were called into the tribe of Levi. 15And Dauid divided them in classes by the sons of Levi: Gersam and Eliezer. 16Gersam's sons: Soubael the chief, and Ziza the second. 17And Eliezer had sons: Raabia the chief. 18And Edan's sons: Ieth and Ziza the second. 19Chebron's sons: Idoud the chief. 20Mousi's sons: Mooli and Eder the chief. 21Mooli's sons: Mooli and Mousi. 22And Dauid was an old man and full of days, and he made Salomon his son king over Israel in his stead.

23 And Dauid was an old man and full of days, and he made Salomon his son king over Israel in his stead.

2 And he gathered all the rulers of Israel and the priests and the Leuites. 3And the Leuites, thirty years old and upward, were counted, and their number by their head came to thirty-eight thousand men. 4Of these twenty-four thousand were taskmasters over the tasks of the Lord's house, and six thousand were scribes and judges. 5And four thousand were gatekeepers, and four thousand praising the Lord with instruments that he made to praise the Lord. 6And Dauid divided them in classes by the sons of Levi: Gedson, Kaath and Merari, and by Parosom, by Edan and by Semei. 7And by the sons of Semei: Ieth and Ziza the second. And Ioas and Beria did not multiply sons, and they became a paternal house and one enrollment.

12 Kaath's sons: Ambram, Issaar, Chebron, Oziel, four. 13Ambram's sons: Aaron and Moyses. And Aaron was set apart to consecrate the holy of holies, and he and his sons forever to offer incense before the Lord, to minister and to pray to his name forever. 14And Moyses was a man of God: his sons were called into the tribe of Levi. 15Moyses' sons: Gersam and Eliezer. 16Gersam's sons: Soubael the chief. 17And Eliezer had sons: Raabia the chief. And Eliezer did not have other sons, but Raabia's sons were increased in height. 18Issaar's sons: Salomoth the chief. 19Chebron's sons: Idoud the chief, Amadia the second, Oziel the third, Ikemias the fourth. 20Oziel's sons: Michas the chief and Isia the second.

21 Merari's sons: Mooli and Mousi. 22And Eleazar and Kis. 22And Eleazar died and had no sons, only daughters, and Kis' sons, their brothers, married them. 23Mousi's sons: Mooli and Eder and Larimoth, three.

24 These were the sons of Levi according to their paternal houses, the rulers of their paternal families according to their enrollment according to the number of their names by head, those twenty years old and upward who performed the tasks of ministration in the house of the Lord, 25because Dauid said, "The Lord God of Israel has given his people repose and has made his abode in Jerusalem forever." 26And the Leuites were not carrying the tent and all its articles for its ministration, because in Dauid's last words was the number of Levi's sons from twenty years old and upward, for he appointed them for the hand of Aaron to minister in the Lord’s house over the courts and the shrine-carriers’ chambers and over the purification of all the holy things and over the tasks of ministering to the house of God, 29 with regard to the loaves of presentation, with regard to the flour of the sacrifice and with regard to the unleavened cakes and with regard to the faying-pan and with regard to the mixed offering and with regard to every measure, 30 and to stand in the morning to praise to acknowledge the Lord, and likewise at evening, 31 and to be in charge of all the whole burnt offerings presented to the Lord on the sabbaths and on the new moons and on the feasts according to number, according to the judgment upon them, always to the Lord. 32 And they shall keep the watches of the tent of witness and the watches of the sons of Aaron, their brothers, to minister in the Lord’s house.

And the sons of Aaron had divisions: 24 Aaron’s sons: Nadab and Abioud, Eleazar and Ithamar. 25 And Nadab and Abioud died before their father and had no sons. And Eleazar and Ithamar, Aaron’s sons, officiated as priests. 26 And Daud and Sadok of the sons of Eleazar and Achimelech of the sons of Ithamar divided them according to their enrollment, according to their ministation, according to their paternal houses. 27 And Eleazar’s sons were found to be more numerous as chiefs of the mighty ones than Ithamar’s sons, and he divided them up: sixteen as rulers of paternal houses to the sons of Eleazar and eight to the sons of Ithamar, according to their paternal houses. 28 And he divided them by lot, these with for them, these for the sons of Ithamar, and officers of the Lord among the sons of Eleazar and among the sons of Ithamar. 29 And they were officers of the holy things and officers of the Lord among the sons of Eleazar and among the sons of Ithamar. 30 And they were officers of masters and apprentices.

And the first lot came out for Iarib, and the second for Idithon, 31 the third for Charem, the fourth for Seorim, the fifth for Melchia, the sixth for Minister, the seventh for Kos, the eighth for Abia, the ninth for Iesou, the tenth for Sechenia, the eleventh for Eliasib, the twelfth for Iakim, the thirteenth for Hochchophpha, the fourteenth for Isbaal, the fifteenth for Belga, the sixteenth for Emmer, the seventeenth for Chezir, the eighteenth for Haphesse, the nineteenth for Phetaia, the twentieth for Ezekel, the twenty-first for lachin, the twenty-second for Gamou, the twenty-third for Dalaia, the twenty-fourth for Maasai. 32 This is their enrollment according to their ministation to enter the house of the Lord according to their appointment through the hand of Aaron their father, as the Lord God of Israel had commanded.

And Daud the king and the commanders of the force assigned the sons of Asaph and Haiman and Idithon to their tasks as those that make pronouncements with cines— and with nablas and with cymbals. And their number by head, as they worked at their tasks, was: 25 Asaph’s sons: Zakkhour and Joseph and Nathanaes and Erael, sons of Asaph next to Asaph the prophet, next to the king. 3 For Idithon, Idithon’s sons: Godolia and Souri and Isia and Semei and Hasabia and Mattathias, six, striking up on the cines, after their father Idithon, acknowledge and praise to the Lord. 4 For Haiman, Haiman’s sons: Boukias and Mantharias and Hizrael and Samhar, sons of Nathanael, the scribe, one of Leui, recorded them in the presence of the king and of the officers. And there was Sadok the priest and Achimelech son of Abiathar and rulers of the paternal families of the priests and of the Leuites, one by one, for a paternal house for Eleazar and one by one for Ithamar.

And the first lot came out for Iarib, and the second for Ideia, the third for Charem, the fourth for Seorim, the fifth for Melchia, the sixth for Minister, the seventh for Kos, the eighth for Abia, the ninth for Iesou, the tenth for Sechenia, the eleventh for Eliasib, the twelfth for Iakim, the thirteenth for Hochchophpha, the fourteenth for Isbaal, the fifteenth for Belga, the sixteenth for Emmer, the seventeenth for Chezir, the eighteenth for Haphesse, the nineteenth for Phetaia, the twentieth for Ezekel, the twenty-first for lachin, the twenty-second for Gamou, the twenty-third for Dalaia, the twenty-fourth for Maasai. 19 This is their enrollment according to their ministation to enter the house of the Lord according to their appointment through the hand of Aaron

26 In reference to the divisions of the gates: for Koreim's sons, Mosollamia son of Kore, of the sons of Abiasaph. 2And Mosollamia had sons: Zacharias the firstborn, Idiel the second, Zabadias the third, Ithnouel the fourth, 3Olam the fifth, Ioan the sixth, Elioenai the seventh. 4And Abeddom had sons: Samaia the firstborn, Iozabad the second, Ioaa the third, Sochar the fourth, Nathanael the fifth, 5Amiel the sixth, Issa-Char the seventh, Phollathi the eighth, because God blessed him. 6And to his son Samaia were born sons of the firstborn Rosai into his father's house, because they were able. 7Samaia's sons: Zacharias the firstborn, Idiel the second, Isba ash, able sons, Eliou, Sabchia and Ishbokom. 8All these were of the sons of Abeddom, they and their brothers and their sons, men working mightily at their activity, who were all together sixty-two from Abeddom. 9Mosollamia also had sons and brothers, eighteen able men. 10And Hosa of the sons of Merari had sons who kept office, because he was not the firstborn, but his father made him chief of the second division. 11Zacharias was the fourth; all these, sons and brothers to Hosa, were thirteen.

12 For these were the divisions of the gates, for the chiefs of the mighty men, classes as their brethren, to minister in the house of the Lord.

13 And as for Israel's sons according to their number, rulers of paternal families, officers of thousands and officers of hundreds and scribes, those ministering to the people and for every word of the king according to divisions, for every matter of the one entering and exiting, from month to month for all the months of the year—one division was twenty-four thousand.

2 And Lesboam the son of Zabdiel was in charge of the first division of the first month, and in his division were twenty-four thousand. 3He was from the sons of Phares, a commander of all the commanders of the force for the first month.
And Dodi the Echochi was in charge of the division of the second month, and twenty-four thousand were in his division, as commanders of the force. 5The third for the third month was Banaia the son of Iodae, the priest, the chief, and twenty-four thousand were in his division. 6Banaia himself was stronger than the thirty and in charge of the thirty. And his son Amizabath was in charge of his division. 7The fourth for the fourth month was Asael brother of Joab and his son Zabdiadas and his brothers, and there were twenty-four thousand in his division. 8The fifth for the fifth month was the leader Samaoth the Iesrae, and there were twenty-four thousand in his division. 9The sixth for the sixth month was Odouias the son of Ekkes the Thekoite, and there were twenty-four thousand in his division. 10The seventh for the seventh month was Chelles of the ones from Phallous of the sons of Ephraim, and there were twenty-four thousand in his division. 11The eighth for the eighth month was Sobochai the Hisathi, belonging to Zarai, and there were twenty-four thousand in his division. 12The ninth for the ninth month was Abiezer, the one from Anathoth from the land of Benjamim, and there were twenty-four thousand in his division. 13The tenth for the tenth month was Meera, and there were twenty-four thousand in his division. 14The eleventh for the eleventh month was Banaia, the son from Netouphat belonging to Zarai, and there were twenty-four thousand in his division. 15The twelfth for the twelfth month was Zachri the son of Sephni. 16And over the olive groves and over the mulberry trees that were in the valley was Balans the Gedorite, but over the stores of oil was Ioas. 17And over the cattle in the pastures that were in Asidon was Sasai the Saronite, and over the cattle that were in the valleys was Sophat the son of Adli. 18Now over the camels was Obil the Ismaelite, but over the donkeys was Ladias the one from Meraion. 19And over the sheep was Iaziz the Hagarite. (31) All these were guardians over King Davids possessions.

And Jonathan, Davids uncle, was a counselor; a person of understanding and a scribe he was, and liel the son of Hachamani was with the kings sons. 33And Achitophel was the kings counselor, and Chousi was First Friend of the king. 34And after this Achitophel, next was Iadaai the son of Banaia and Abiathar. And Ioad was the kings commander in chief.

And David assembled at Jerusalem all the rulers of Israel, rulers of the judges and the rulers of the classes, who watched over the kings person, and officers of the thousands and officers of the hundreds and the treasurers and those over his property and the men of substance and the warriors in the army. 2And David stood in the midst of the assembly and said, Hear me, my brothers and people. It was in my heart to build a house of repose for the ark of the covenant of the Lord and a station for the feet of our Lord, and I prepared the materials for the encamping. 3And God said, You shall not build me a house for my name to be called upon it, because you have been a person of war and have spilled blood. 4And the Lord God of Israel opted for me from all my fathers house to be king over Israel forever. And in loudas he chose the royal palace and my fathers house out of the house of loudas, and among my fathers sons he wanted me, that I be king over all Israel. 5And of all my sons (for the Lord has given me many sons) he opted for my son Salomon, that he should sit on the throne of the Lord's kingdom over Israel. 6And God said to me, It is Salomon your son who shall build my house and my court, because I have opted for him to be a son to me and I will be a father to him. 7And I will set right his kingdom forever, if he holds firm to keeping my commandments and my judgments, as this day. 8And now in front of all the Lords assembly and in the ears of our God, keep and seek all the commandments of the Lord our God in order that you may inherit the good land and bequeath it to your sons after you forever.

And now, Salomon, my son, know the God of your fathers, and be subject to him with complete heart and willing spirit, for the Lord searches all hearts and knows every notion. If you seek him, he will let you find him, but if you abandon him, he will abandon you completely. 10 See, though, that the Lord has chosen you to build him a house as a holy precinct. Be strong, and act." 11 And David gave Solomon his son the plan of the shrine and of its houses and of its zakchoψ and of the upper chambers and of the inner storerooms and of the house of atonement and the plan, which he had in his spirit, of the courts of the Lord's house and of all the shrine-carriers' chambers around that pertain to the stores of the Lord's house and of the stores of the sacred things and of the lodgings of the classes of the priests and Levites pertaining to every work of ministration of the Lord's house and of the stores of the liturgical vessels for service in the Lord's house. 14 And he gave him the weight of the lamps and of the lamps. 15 He likewise gave him the weight of the tables of presentation—of each gold table and likewise of those of silver—and of the meat hooks and libation bowls and of the gold saucers, and the weight of the gold and silver vessels, kephphoureul each weight. 18 And he showed him the weight of the altar of incense of refined gold and the plan of the chariot of the cherubim with their wings outstretched in flight and screening the ark of the Lord's covenant. 19 David gave all these to Solomon in writing by the Lord's hand, according to his surpassing understanding, to activate the plan. 20 And David said to Solomon his son, "Be strong, and be manly, and act; do not be afraid or terrified, because the Lord, my God, is with you and will not fail you nor will he desert you until you finish all the work of ministration of the house of the Lord. 21 And behold, the classes of the priests and the Levites for every ministry in the house of God, and with you in every activity is also every willing person with skill in every craft, and the rulers and all the people, for all your demands!" 29 And King David said to all the assembly, "Solomon, my son, one whom the Lord has chosen for him, is young and tender, and the task is great, for the construction is not for a human but for the Lord God. 2 With all my might I have prepared, for a divine house, gold, silver, bronze, iron, wood, stones somet—and in plenitude—and precious and variegated stones and every costly stone and much marble. 3 Moreover, since I was well pleased in the house of God, I have the gold and silver, which I have amassed for myself, and see, I have bestowed it on the house of my God for grandeur, apart from what I had made ready for the house of the holy things: 4 three thousand talents of gold that is from Souphir and seven thousand talents of fine silver, for the temple walls to be overlaid with them 5 through the hand of craftsmen. Now who is zealous to fill his hands today for the Lord?"

6 And the rulers of the paternal families and the rulers of the sons of Israel and the officers of thousands and the officers of hundreds and the overseers of the works and the king's stewards showed zeal. 7 And they gave for the tasks connected with the Lord's house five thousand talents of gold and ten thousand gold coins and ten thousand talents of silver and eighteen thousand talents of bronze and one thousand and one hundred talents of iron. 8 And those with whom stone was found gave it for the stores of the house of the Lord through the hand of Iiel the Gersoni. 9 And the people were glad at the zeal that was shown, because they had shown zeal for the Lord with a full heart, and King David was gladdened greatly.

10 And King David blessed the Lord before the assembly, saying, "Blessed are you, Lord God of Israel, our father from age even unto age. 11 Yours, Lord, is the greatness and the power and the boast and the victory and the strength, because you have dominion over everything in the sky and on the earth. Every king and nation quakes from before you. 12 From you are riches and honor. You rule over all, Lord, the ruler of all rule, and in your hand are strength and dominance, and it is in your hand, Almighty one, to make all things great and strong. 13 And now, Lord, we acknowledge you and praise the name of your boasting.

14 "And who am I, and who are my people, that we have been able to show zeal for you like this?—because all things are yours and of your own have we given you, 15 because we are resident aliens before you and live as resident aliens, like all our fathers. Our days on earth are like a shadow, and there is no endurance. 16 Lord, our God, all this abundance that I have made ready that a house to your holy name be built is from your hand, and all things belong to you. 17 And I knew, Lord, that you are the one who tests hearts, and you love righteousness. In simplicity of heart I have shown zeal for all these things, and now I have seen your people found here showing zeal for you with gladness. 18 Lord, God of our fathers Abraam and Isaak and Israel, keep these things forever in the thought of your people's heart, and direct their hearts toward you. 19 And grant to Solomon my son a good heart to do your commandments and your testimonies and your ordinances and to bring to conclusion the construction of your house."

20 And David said to all the assembly, "Bless the Lord, your God," and all the assembly blessed the Lord, God of their fathers, and bowed their knees and did obeisance to the Lord and the king. 21 And on the morrow of the first day David sacrificed sacrifices to the Lord and offered whole burnt offerings to God, a thousand calves, a thousand rams, a thousand lambs and their libations and sacrifices in abundance for all Israel. 22 And they ate and drank before the Lord on that day with joy. And they made David's son Solomon king a second time and anointed him as king to the Lord and Sadok to the priesthood. 23 And Solomon sat on the throne of his father David and prospered.
and all Israel obeyed him. 24 The rulers and the men of substance and all the sons of King David his father were subordinate to him. 25 And the Lord magnified Solomon over and above before all Israel and gave him royal majesty the like of which had never happened to any king before him.

26 And David son of Jesse reigned over Israel for forty years, seven years in Hebron and thirty-three in Jerusalem. 28 And he passed away at a ripe old age, full of days, with wealth and honor, and Solomon his son became king in his stead. 29 Now the rest of the histories of King David, the earlier and the later, are written in the Histories of Samuel the Seer and in the Histories of Nathan the Prophet and in the Histories of Gad the Seer, concerning all his reign and his prowess—and the times that befell him and Israel and all the kingdoms of the earth.
1 And Solon son of David prevailed over his kingdom, and the Lord his God was with him and magnified him highly.

2 And Solomon spoke to all Israel, to the officers of thousands and the officers of hundreds and the judges and all the rulers before Israel, to the rulers of the paternal families. And Solomon, and all the assembly with him, went to the high ground that is in Gabaon, there where God's tent of witness was, which Moses, servant of the Lord, had made in the wilderness. But David had carried God's ark up from the city of Kiriathiaim, for he had prepared a tent for it in Jerusalem. And the bronze altar, which Bezaleel son of Ouriya son of Hor had made, was there before the Lord's tent, and Solomon and the assembly sought it out. "And there Solomon offered on the bronze altar before the Lord and offered on it a thousand whole burnt offerings.

7 In that night God appeared to Solomon and said to him, "Ask what I should give you." Solomon said to God, "You have done great mercy with my father David and have made me king in his stead. And now, Lord God, let your name be confirmed over David my father, because it is you who have made me king over a people as numerous as the dust of the earth. Now grant me wisdom and understanding, and I will go out and go in before this people, because who will judge for you over whom I have made king over a people as numerous as the dust of the earth. Now grant me wisdom and understanding, and I will go out and will go in before this people, because who will judge this great people of yours?"

11 And God said to Solomon, "Since this was in your heart and you have not asked for wealth of possessions nor glory, nor have you asked for the life of your opponents and for many days, and you have asked for wisdom and understanding, so that I may grant you wisdom and understanding, I grant you wisdom and understanding, and I will give you both wealth and possessions and glory, as there has been none like you among the kings before you, and after you it shall not be so."

13 And Solomon came from Bama in Gabaon to Jerusalem from before the tent of witness and ruled over Israel.

14 And Solomon gathered together chariots and horsemen, and he had one thousand four hundred chariots and twelve thousand horsemen. And he stationed them in the chariot cities, and the people were with the king in Jerusalem. And the king placed gold and silver in Jerusalem like stones and the cedars in Judah, like mulberry trees that are in the plain in abundance.

16 And the export of Solomon's horses was from Egypt, and the price of the king's merchants; they would buy to trade. And they would go up and bring back from Egypt one chariot for six hundred shekels of silver and a horse for one hundred and fifty. And thus they would bring for all the kings of the Chettites and kings of Syria by their hands.

2 (2) And Solomon gathered seventy thousand men and eighty thousand stonecutters in the hill country, and the supervisors over them were three thousand six hundred.

2 (3) And Solomon sent to Chiram, king of Tyre, saying, "As you dealt with my father David and dispatched to him cedars to build a house for him to dwell in, behold, I, his son, also am building a house for the name of the Lord, my God, to dedicate it to him to offer incense before him and presentation always and to present whole burnt offerings always, in the morning and evening and on sabbaths and on new moons and on the feasts of the Lord, our God; this is upon Israel forever. And the house, which I am building, is great, for great is our God compared with all the gods. And who will be able to build him a house?—because the sky and the sky of the sky cannot bear his glory. And who am I to build him a house?—except to offer incense before him. And now send me a skilled man and one who knows how to work in gold and in silver and in bronze and in iron and in purple and in scarlet and in blue, one who understands to engrave engraving, with the skilled men who are with me in Judah and in Jerusalem, whom my father David provided. And send me cedar wood and juniper and pine from Lebanon, for I know how your slaves know about cutting wood from Lebanon. See, your servants will be with my servants. They will go to prepare me timber in abundance, for the house I am about to build will be great and glorious. And see, I have given the workmen, those cutting wood, grain as food in payment to your servants twenty thousand kors of barley and twenty thousand kors of wine and twenty thousand measures of oil."

people the Lord has granted you as king over them.” 11(12) And Chiram said, “Blessed be the Lord, God of Israel, who made the sky and the earth, who gave King David a wise son and one who understands discretion and understanding, who will build a house to the Lord and a house for his reign. 12(13) “Now I have sent you a skilled man and one endowed with understanding, Chiram my father—13(14) his mother was of the daughters of Dan, and his father was a Tyrian man—since he knows how to work in gold and in silver and in bronze and in iron, in stone and wood and to weave in purple and in blue and in linen and in scarlet and to engrave engravings and to visualize any design, whatever you give him, together with your skilled men and the skilled men of David my lord, your father. 14(15) And now, let him send to his servants the grain and the barley and the oil and the wine of which my lord spoke. 15(16) And we on our part shall cut wood from Lebanon to meet your entire need and will transport it on rafts to the sea of Joppa, and you will transport it to Jerusalem.” 16(17) And Solomon gathered all the men, the guests, in the land of Israel after the census, which his father David had conducted of them, and they were found to be one hundred and fifty-three thousand and six hundred. 17(18) And of them he made seventy thousand into porters and eighty thousand into stonemasons and three thousand six hundred taskmasters over the people.

And Salomon began building the Lord’s house in Jerusalem, on the mountain of Hamoria, where the Lord had appeared to David, his father, in the place that David had prepared in the threshing floor of Orna the Jebusite. 2 And he began building in the second month of the fourth year of his reign. 3 And this is how Solomon began building the house of God. The length in cubits, 4 the original measure, 5 was sixty cubits and the width twenty cubits. 4 And there was an ailet; 6 in front of the house, the length on face of the width of the house was twenty cubits, and its height was one hundred and twenty cubits. And he gilded it internally with pure gold. 5 And he lined the great house on the right, facing eastward.

7 And he made the house of the holy of holies: its length on face of its width was twenty cubits, and he gilded it with pure gold and engraved palms on it and chains. 8 And he adorned the house with precious stones for splendor and with gold—that was from Pharouaim. 9 And he gilded the house and the walls and the gateways and the ceilings and the doorways with gold and engraved cherubin on the walls.

8 And he made the house of the holy of holies: its length on face of its width was twenty cubits, and the breadth was twenty cubits, and he gilded it with pure gold—onto the cherubin—as much as six hundred talents of gold. 9 And the weight of the nails—the weight of one was fifty shekels of gold. And he gilded the upper chamber with gold.

10 And in the house of the holy of holies he fashioned a work of two cherubin out of wood, and he gilded them with gold. 11 And the cherubin’s wings were twenty cubits in length, and the one wing was five cubits, touching the wall of the house, and the other wing was five cubits, touching the wing of the other cherub. 12 And the wing of the one cherub was five cubits, touching the wall of the house and the other wing was five cubits, touching the wing of the other cherub. 13 And the wings of the cherubin extended twenty cubits. And they stood on their feet, and their faces were toward the house. 14 And he made the veil out of blue and purple and scarlet and linen and wove cherubin into it.

15 And he made two pillars in front of the house, thirty-five cubits in height, and their tops five cubits. 16 And he made serseroth in the dabit and placed them on the tops of the pillars, and he made one hundred pomegranates and set them on the chains. 17 And he erected the pillars in front of the shrine, one on the right and the other on the left, and he called the name of the one on the right Uprightness and the name of the one on the left Strength.

4 And he made the bronze altar, twenty cubits in length and twenty cubits in width and ten cubits in height. 2 And he made the molten sea, ten cubits in diameter, circular all round, and it was five cubits in height, and its circumference was thirty cubits. 3 And under it was a representation of bull calves. They encircled it on all sides, ten cubits; they surrounded the washbasin in a circle. They cast the bull calves of two kinds in their casting 4 by which they made them, twelve bull calves, and three faced north, and three faced west, and three faced south, and three faced east, and the court of the priests and the great court and their doorways, overlaid with bronze. 6 And he made ten washbasins and set five of them on the right and five on the left to rinse the utensils for the whole burnt offerings in them and wash them clean in them. And the sea was for the priests to wash in it.

7 And he made the gold lampstands, ten according to their prescription, and placed them in the shrine, five on the right and five on the left. 8 And he made ten tables and placed them in the shrine, five on the right and five on the left. And he made one hundred gold saucers. 9 And he made the court of the priests and the great court and doors for the court and their doorways, overlaid with bronze. 10 And he placed the sea at the corner of the house on the right, facing eastward.

11 And Chiram made the meat hooks and the fire-pans and the hearth for the altar and all its utensils. And Chiram finished producing all the work which he did for Salomon the king in the house of God, 12 two pillars and on them golath a for the chothareth b on the tops of the two pillars and two lattice works to cover the tops of the chothareth b, which were on the tops of the pillars, 13 and four hundred golden bells on the two lattice works and two sorts of pomegranates on one of the lattice works to cover the two golaths c of the chothareth b, which were above the pillars. 14 And he made the ten mechosoth d and he made the washbasins on the mechosoth e 15 and the one sea and the twelve bull calves beneath it f and the tripods g and pails and cauldrons and meat hooks and all their utensils, which Chiram had made and brought to King Salomon in the house of the Lord, of pure bronze. 17 The king cast them in the neighborhood of the Jordan in the ‘thickness of the land’ in the house of Sokchoth and between Sirchoth and between Sirchothareth b, which were on the tops of the pillars, for the chothareth b on the tops of the two pillars have been there until this day. 10 There was nothing in the ark except for two tablets, which Moyses placed in Choreb, with which things the Lord made a covenant with the sons of Israel when they came out of the land of Egypt.

11 And it happened, when the priests exited from the holy precincts—seeing that all the priests present had sanctified themselves, they were not arranged according to their divisions, 12 (and the Leuites, all harp-singers belonging to the sons of Asaph, to Haiman, to Idithoun and to sons of them and brothers of them, draped in linen garments with cymbals and nablath h and cinrash)—as they stood facing the altar and with them one hundred and twenty priests trumpeting with their trumpets, 13 that there was one sound in their trumpeting and in their doing harp-singing and in their acclaiming to acknowledge and praise the Lord and as they raised a sound with trumpets and cymbals and instruments of songs, and they said:

And the house was filled with a cloud of the Lord’s glory. 14 And the priests could not stand to minister from before the cloud, for the Lord’s glory had filled the house of God.

6 Then Salomon said: “The Lord said that he would encamp in thick darkness. 2 And I have built a house for your name, sacred to you and ready for you to encamp in forever.”

3 And the king turned his face and blessed all the assembly of Israel, and all the assembly of Israel stood by. 4 And he said: “Blessed be the Lord, God of Israel, who spoke with his mouth to Dauid my father and has fulfilled it with his hands, saying: 5 From the day when I brought my people out of Egypt, I did not choose for a city out of all the tribes of Israel to build a house that my name be there, and I did not choose for a man to be leader over my people Israel. 6 And I have chosen for Jerusalem for my name to be there, and I have chosen for Dauid to build a house for my name. 7 And it was in my father Dauid’s heart to build a house for the name of the Lord, God of Israel, 8 and the Lord said to my father Dauid, ‘Seeing that it was in your heart to build a house for my name, you have done well that it was in your heart. 9 Nevertheless, it is not you who will build the house, because your son, who will come from your loins, it is he who will build the house for my name: 10 And the Lord established his word, which he spoke, and I have taken the place of my father Dauid and sat down on the throne of Israel, as the Lord spoke, and I have built the house for the name of the Lord, God of Israel, 11 and I have set there the ark in which is the Lord’s covenant, which he made with Israel.”

out his hands—because Salomon had made a bronze platform and had set it in the midst of the temple court, its length five cubits and its width five cubits and its height three cubits, and he stood on it and fell to his knees before all the assembly of Israel—and he spread out his hands heavenward and said, “Lord, God of Israel, there is no god like you in heaven or on the earth, who keeps covenant and mercy for your servants who walk before you wholeheartedly. What you kept for your servant David my father what you spoke to him when making utterance—you both spoke with your mouth and fulfilled it with your hands—it is as this very day. And now, Lord, God of Israel, keep for your servant, for my father David, what you said when you told him, ‘No man sitting on the throne of Israel will fail you from before me, if only your sons keep their way to walk in my law, as you have walked before me.’

And now, Lord, God of Israel, let your utterance indeed be confirmed, which you spoke to your servant David—because if a god will truly dwell with men on the earth, if the sky and the sky of the sky will not be enough for you, what then is this house which I have built? And look upon the prayer of your servant and on my petition, Lord God, to hear the petition and the prayer, which your servant prays before you today, that your eyes be open toward this house day and night, toward this place, which you said that your name would be called upon there, to hear the prayer, which your servant prays toward this place. And you will hear the petition of your servant and your people Israel, whatever they pray toward this place, and as for you, you will hear in the place of your dwelling from the sky and will hear and be merciful.

If a man sins against his fellow and takes upon himself an imprecation to imprecate him and he goes and imprecates before the altar in this house, you shall also hear him from the sky and act and judge your slaves to repay the unjust and repay his ways on his head, to acquit the righteous act and judge your slaves to repay the unjust and repay the righteous in order to repay him according to his righteousness.

And if your people Israel are shattered before the enemy, if they have sinned against you and repent and acknowledge your name and pray and petition before you in this house, you shall also hear from the sky and be compassionate on the sins of your people Israel and return them to the land, which you gave to them and their fathers.

When the sky is sealed up and there is no rain because they will have sinned against you, and they will pray to this place and will praise your name and will turn from their sins, because you will have humbled them, you will also hear from the sky and be compassionate on the sins of your servants and your people Israel, because you will make clear to them the good way in which they will walk in it, and you will grant rain on your land, which you gave to your people as an inheritance.

If there is famine on the land, if there is death, blight and jaundice, grasshopper and locust larva, if the enemy oppresses them against their cities in accordance with every blow and every suffering and if every prayer and every petition arises from every person and all your people Israel, if a person knows his infection and his infirmity and spreads out his hands to this place, you will also hear from the sky, from your ready habitation, and you will grant expiation and will give a man according to his ways, as you know his heart, for you alone know the heart of the sons of men, that they should fear your ways all the days they are alive on the face of the land, which you gave our fathers.

And every stranger, who is not of your people Israel and may come from a far off land because of your great name and your powerful hand and your arm held high, and they come and pray in this place—you will also hear them from the sky, from your ready habitation, and you will act according to all that the stranger calls to you so that all the peoples of the earth may know your name both to fear you, as your people Israel, and to know that your name has been called upon this house, which I have built.

If your people go out to war against their enemies in the way you send them and pray to you according to the direction of this city, which you have chosen for it, and of the house, which I have built for your name, you will also hear their petition and their prayer from the sky and act on their plea of right because they will sin against you (for there is no person who will not sin), and you will strike them and hand them over before enemies, and their captors will take them captive into a land of enemies, to a land far or near, and if they turn back their heart in their land, there where they have been transported, and if they do indeed repent and petition you in their captivity, saying, ‘We have sinned; we have done wrong; we have acted lawlessly,’ and they turn back toward you with all their heart and soul in the land of their captors and pray in the direction of their land, which you gave to their fathers, and of the city, which you chose, and of the house, which I have built for your name, you will also hear their prayer and their petition from the sky, from your ready habitation, and you will make judgments and be compassionate to your sinning people.

Now, Lord, do let your eyes stand open and your ears alert to the petition from this place, and now:

“Arise, Lord God, to your repose, you and the ark of your strength.
May your priests, Lord God, clothe themselves in salvation, and let your sons be glad in good things.
Lord God, do not avert your face from your anointed; remember your mercies toward David your slave.”
the Lord's glory filled the house. 2 And the priests were unable to enter into the Lord's house at that time, because the Lord's glory filled the house. 3 And all the sons of Israel saw the fire descend, and the glory of the Lord was on the house and they fell face down on the ground on the pavement and did obeisance and were praising the Lord.

"Because it is good; because his mercy is forever."

4 And the king and all the people were sacrificing victims before the Lord. 5 And Salomon sacrificed the sacrifice: twenty-two thousand calves and one hundred and twenty thousand fatlings. And the king and all the people dedicated the house of God. 6 And the priests stood in their posts, and the Levites with instruments for songs to the Lord of King David to acknowledge before the Lord—because his mercy is forever—with hymns of David through their hand, and the priests trumpeted with the trumpets opposite them, and all Israel stood.

7 And Salomon consecrated the middle of the court that is in the house of the Lord, because there he had made whole burnt offerings and the fatty parts of the victims for deliverance, because the bronze altar Salomon had made he could not equip to receive whole burnt offerings and the manna and the fatty parts.

8 And Salomon made the feast at that time for seven days, and all Israel with him, an exceedingly large assembly from the entrance of Haimath and seven days, and all Israel with him, an exceedingly large assembly from the entrance of Haimath and all the fortified cities which he had observed for seven days the dedication of the altar as a feast. 10 And on the twenty-third of the month, he dismissed the people to their homes.

9 And Salomon sacrificed the offering of the Lord: twenty-two thousand calves and twenty-two thousand bulls and a hundred and twenty thousand fatlings. And Salomon started the sacrifice: twenty-two thousand calves and twenty-two thousand bulls and a hundred and twenty thousand fatlings. And he had consecrated for his name, I will turn it away from before me and render it an illustration of all this harm."

8 And it happened, after twenty years in which Salomon built the Lord's house and his own house, 2 also the cities that Chiram gave Salomon—Salomon built them and settled there the sons of Israel.

3 And Salomon went to Haimath Soba and prevailed over it. 4 And he built Thedmor in the wilderness and all the fortified cities, which he had built in Hemath. 5 And he built Upper Baithoron and Lower Baithoron, fortified cities—walls, gates and bolts there were—and Baalath and all the fortified cities that belonged to Salomon and all the cities for his chariots and the cities for his horsemen, and all that Salomon desired according to his desire to build in Jerusalem and in Lebanon and all his kingdom. 6 And the people who were left from the Chettite and the Amorrite and the Pherezite and the Heuite and he who are not from Israel—there were some of their sons who were left after them in the land, whom the sons of Israel had not utterly destroyed—and Salomon led them up for tribute until this day.

9 And Salomon did not give any of the sons of Israel to be servants for his kingdom, because they were warriors and commanders and mighty men and commanders of chariots and horsemen. 10 And these were rulers of King Salomon's overseers, two hundred and fifty taskmasters among the people.

11 And Salomon brought Pharaoh's daughter up from the city of David to the house which he had built for her, because he said, "My wife shall not live in the city of David, king of Israel, because there where the Lord's ark has entered is holy."

12 Then Salomon offered whole burnt offerings to the Lord on the altar, which he had built in Jerusalem, and on the feast of unleavened bread and on the feast of weeks and on the feast of tents and on the feast of new moons.

judgment with regard to their ministrations. And the Leuites were at their posts to praise and minister opposite the priests according to the reckoning of day by day and the door keepers according to their divisions at gate and gate, because thus were the commands of David, man of God. They did not transgress the king’s commandments concerning the priests and Leuites in any matter and regarding the treasuries.

16 And all the work was accomplished from the day it was founded until Salomon completed the Lord’s house.

17 Then Salomon went to Gasiongaber and Ailath, the maritime city in the land of Idumea. And Chiram sent ships by the hand of his servants and servants familiar with the sea, and they went to Sophira with Salomon’s servants and brought from there four hundred and fifty talents of gold, and they came to King Salomon.

9 And the queen of Sheba heard Salomon’s name and came to Ierousalem, to test Salomon with enigmas, with a very heavy retinue. And there were camels bearing spices and gold in profusion and precious stone. And she came to Salomon and spoke to him all that she had in her mind. And Salomon proclaimed to her all her words, and there was no issue that eluded Salomon, which he did not proclaim to her. And the queen of Sheba saw Salomon’s wisdom and the house, which he had built, and the foodstuffs on the tables and the seating of his servants and the standing of his ministers and their clothing and his wine stewards and their apparel and the whole burnt offerings, which he offered in the Lord’s house. And she was beside herself.

5 And she said to the king, “The report that I heard in my land about your words and about your wisdom was true. And I did not believe the reports until I came and my eyes saw, and behold. I had not been told the half of the abundance of your wisdom. You have added to the rumor I heard. Happy are your men; happy are these, your servants, who stand beside you continually and hear your wisdom. Let the Lord, your God, be blessed, who wanted you on his throne, to give you as king for the Lord, your God. When the Lord, your God, loved Israel to confirm it forever, he set you as king for the Lord, your God. When the Lord, who wanted you on his throne, to give you as king for the Lord, your God, loved Israel to confirm it forever, he set you as king for the Lord, your God. When the Lord, who wanted you on his throne, to give you as king for the Lord, your God, loved Israel to confirm it forever, he set you as king for the Lord, your God. When the Lord, who wanted you on his throne, to give you as king for the Lord, your God, loved Israel to confirm it forever, he set you as king for the Lord, your God. When the Lord, who wanted you on his throne, to give you as king for the Lord, your God, loved Israel to confirm it forever, he set you as king for the Lord, your God. When the Lord, who wanted you on his throne, to give you as king for the Lord, your God, loved Israel to confirm it forever, he set you as king for the Lord, your God. When the Lord, who wanted you on his throne, to give you as king for the Lord, your God, loved Israel to confirm it forever, he set you as king for the Lord, you wanted you on his throne, to give you as king for the Lord, your God, loved Israel to confirm it forever, he set you as king for the Lord, your God. When the Lord, who wanted you on his throne, to give you as king for the Lord, you wanted you on his throne, to give you as king for the Lord, your God, loved Israel to confirm it forever, he set you as king for the Lord.

10 And Salomon’s servants and the servants of Chiram brought Salomon gold from Souphir and pine wood and precious stone. And the king made the pinewood into ascents for the Lord’s house and the king’s house and into lyres and nebel for the singers. And such things had not been seen before in the land of Loudas.

12 And King Salomon gave the queen of Sheba all her wants which she requested, beyond everything she had brought King Salomon. And she returned to her land.

13 And the weight of gold that was brought to Salomon in one year was six hundred and sixty-six talents of gold, besides the men who were subordinates and merchants—what they would bring—and all the kings of Arabia and the sattars of the land—they would bring gold and silver to King Salomon. And King Salomon made two hundred oblong shields of beaten gold—six hundred of pure gold to one shield; six hundred of gold went into one shield—and three hundred round shields of beaten gold; he allotted three hundred of gold to each shield. And the king gave them in the house of the Forest of Lebanon. And the king made a large ivory throne of teeth and gilded it with certified gold. And the throne had six steps, attached with gold, and there were arms on either side of the throne for sitting, and two lions standing next to the arms and twelve lions standing there on the six steps at either side. Nothing like that had existed in any kingdom. And all King Salomon’s vessels were of gold, and all the vessels of the house of the Forest of Lebanon were covered with gold. Nor was silver held in any account in the days of Salomon, because a ship for the king traveled to Tharsis with Chiram’s servants. Once every three years the boats would come from Tharsis to the king full of gold and silver and ivory teeth and apes.

22 And Salomon was magnified over all the kings both in wealth and in wisdom. And all the kings of the earth would seek out the face of Salomon to hear his wisdom, which God had given in his heart. And every one of them brought his gifts, silver vessels and gold vessels and clothing and myrrh and spices, horses and mules, year by year, and Salomon had four thousand mares for chariots and twelve thousand horsemen, and he stationed them in chariot cities and with the king in Jerusalem. And he was leader of all the kings from the River to the land of alophyles and to the border of Egypt. And the king presented gold and silver like stones in Jerusalem and cedars like the sycamores that are in the flat country in profusion. And the export of horses was from Egypt to Salomon and from all the earth.

29 And the rest of the histories of Salomon, the first and the last, behold, they are written in the Histories of Nathan the Prophet and in the Histories of Achia the Selonite and in the Visions of Ioel the Seer concerning Ieroboam son of Nabat. And King Salomon reigned over all Israel for forty years. And Salomon slept, and they buried him in the city of David his father and Roboam his son reigned in his stead.

10 And Roboam went to Sychem, because all Israel was coming to Sychem to make him king. 2And it happened, when Ierooboam son of Nabat heard—and he was in Egypt, as he had fled from before King Salomon, and Ierooboam had taken up residence in Egypt—then Ierooboam returned from Egypt. 3And they sent and called him, and Ierooboam and all the assembly of Israel came to Roboam, saying, 4“Your father made our yoke hard. And now lighten your father’s harsh slavery and his heavy yoke that he placed upon us, and we will be subject to you.” 5And he said to them, “Go forth about three days, and then come to me.” And the people went away.

6 And King Roboam gathered the elders who had stood before Salomon his father during his lifetime, saying, “How do you advise that a word should be answered to this people?” 7And they spoke to him, saying, “If today you are well disposed to this people and you are well pleased with them and speak kind words to them, they will be your servants all your days.” 8And he rejected the advice of the elders who had counseled him and took counsel with the youths who had been brought up with him, who stood before him. 9And he said to them, “What do you counsel and what should be answered to this people?” 10And the youths who had been brought up with him said to him, “Thus shall you speak, ‘My little finger is thicker than my father’s waist. 11And now my father trained you with a heavy yoke, but I will add to your yoke. My father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with scorpions.’ ”

12 And Ierooboam and all Israel came to Roboam on the third day, as the king had spoken, saying, “Return to me on the third day.” 13And the king answered harshly and King Roboam abandoned the elders’ counsel. 14And he spoke to them according to the youths’ counsel, saying, “My father made our yoke heavy, but I will add to it. My father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with scorpions.” 15And the king did not listen to the people, because it was a reversal from God, saying, “The Lord has established his word, which he spoke by the hand of Achia the Selonite concerning Ierooboam son of Nabat and all Israel,” that the king did not listen to them. And the people replied to the king, saying, “What share do we have in Dauid, and what inheritance in the son of Jessai?

To your coverts, O Israel.

Now look at your house, Dauid!”

And all Israel went to their coverts. 17And as for the men of Israel who were living in the cities of loudas—even Roboam ruled over them. 18And King Roboam sent Hadoniram, the one in charge of revenue, and the sons of Israel stoned him with stones, and he died. And King Roboam hastened to mount his chariot to flee to Ierousalem. 19And Israel has rejected the house of Dauid to this day.

11 And Roboam went to Ierousalem and assembled loudas and Beniamin—one hundred and eighty thousand youths doing war—and he was mobilizing against Israel to return the kingdom to Roboam. 2And a word of the Lord came to Samaias, man of God, saying: 3“Say to Roboam the son of Salomon and all loudas and Beniamin, saying, 4“This is what the Lord says: You shall not go up and wage war against your brothers. Return, each one to his own home, because this thing is from me.” And they heeded the Lord’s word and turned back from advancing upon Ierooboam.

5 And Roboam resided in Ierousalem, and he built walled cities in Judea. 6And he built Baitheleem and Aitam and Thekoe and Baithsoura and Odollam and Sokchoth and Ooddollam and Geth and Marisa and Ziph and Adoraim and Lachis and Azeka and Saraa and Aialon and Chebron, walled cities, which belong to loudas and Beniamin. 11And he fortified them with walls and set in them leaders and stores of food, oil and wine in every city, and in every city shields and spears, and he greatly strengthened them in number. And Iouda and Beniamin belonged to him.

13 And the priests and Leuites who were in all Israel converged upon him from all the regions—14because the Leuites had left the coverts of their possession and proceeded to Ierousalem in loudas, because Ierooboam and his sons had expelled them so as not to minister to the Lord. 15And he appointed for himself priests of the high places and for the idols and the vanities and the bull calves, which Ierooboam had made. 16And he expelled from the tribes of Israel those who had set their heart to seek the Lord, God of Israel, and they went to Ierousalem to sacrifice to the Lord, God of their fathers. 17And they strengthened the kingdom of loudas and Beniamin. 18And Roboam appointed Abia son of Maacha as ruler, as leader among his brothers, because he intended for him to become king. And he was increased and as it became confirmed, he abandoned the Lord’s commandments.

and all Israel with him. And it happened in the fifth year of Roboam’s reign that Sousakim, king of Egypt, came up against Jerusalem because they had sinned against the Lord, with one thousand two hundred chariots and sixty thousand horses, and the multitude which accompanied him out of Egypt—Libyans, Troglydtetes and Ethiopians—was innumerable. And they seized the fortified cities that were in Ioudas, and he came to Jerusalem. And Samaias the prophet came to Roboam and the rulers of Ioudas, who had gathered in Jerusalem from before Sousakim, and said to them, “Thus said the Lord, ‘You abandoned me, and I will tell you to the hand of Sousakim.’” 6 And the rulers of Israel and the king were ashamed and said, “The Lord is just.” 7 And when the Lord saw that they were embarrassed, a word of the Lord came to Samaias, saying, “They have felt compunction; I will not destroy them, and I will give them a little for deliverance, and my wrath shall not be spread abroad in Jerusalem, because they will be as servants and will know bondage to me and bondage to earthly rule.” 8 And Sousakim, king of Egypt, went up and took the treasures that were in the Lord’s house and the treasures in the houses of the king; he took them all. Also he took the gold oblong shields that Salomon had made. And Roboam made bronze oblong shields to replace them. And Sousakim appointed over him commanders of runners, those who guard the king’s gate. And it happened that, when the king entered the Lord’s house, the guards would go in, and the runners and those returning to meet the runners. And when he felt compunction, the Lord’s wrath turned away from him and was not completely for destruction. Indeed matters were good in Ioudas. And Roboam became strong in Jerusalem, and he reigned. And Roboam was forty-one years old when he became king, and he reigned in Jerusalem for seventeen years in the city that the Lord had chosen out of all the tribes of the sons of Israel for his name to be called upon there. And his mother’s name was Noomma the Ammanite. And he did evil, because he did not direct his heart to seek out the Lord. And the histories of Roboam, the first and the last, behold, are they not written in the Histories of Samaias the Prophet and Addo the Seer, as well as his acts! And Roboam waged war against Ieroboam all his days. And Roboam died and was buried with his fathers and was buried in the city of Daud, and Abia his son became king in his stead. 13 In the eighteenth year of the reign of Ieroboam, Abia became king over Ioudas. He reigned three years in Jerusalem, and his mother’s name was Maacha daughter of Ouriel from Gabaon. And there was war between Abia and between Ieroboam. And Abia prepared for war with a force: warriors of a force, four hundred thousand mighty men. And Ieroboam lined up against him a battle with eight hundred thousand; mighty warriors of power they were. And Abia got up from Mount Somoron, which is in Mount Ephraim, and said, “Listen, Ieroboam and all Israel! Is it not for you to know that the Lord, God of Israel, gave rule over Israel forever to Daud and his sons as a covenant of salt? And Ieroboam the son of Nabat, the servant of Salomon son of Daud, rose up and rebelled against his lord. And pestilent men, lawless sons, were gathered to him, and he rose up against Roboam the son of Salomon. Now Roboam was rather young and timid in heart and did not stand up to him.

8 And now you say that you stand in opposition to the Lord’s kingdom through the hand of Daud’s sons. And you are a large multitude, and with you are golden calves, which Ieroboam has made as gods for you. Have you not thrown out the Lord’s priests, the sons of Aaron and the Levites, and made for yourselves priests from the people of the land? Anyone who approaches to fill the hands with a calf from cattle and seven rams also becomes priest to what is no god. And we have not abandoned the Lord, our God, and his priests, the sons of Aaron, and the Levites in their daily divisions minister to the Lord. They fume-gate to the Lord, in the morning and evening, whole burnt offerings and incense of integration and the presentation of loaves on the pure table. And there are the gold lampstand and the lamps for burning to ignite in the evening, because we keep the watches of the Lord, God of our fathers, and you have abandoned him. And, behold, to begin with, the Lord is with us and his priests and the signal trumpets to signal against you. You, the sons of Israel, are going to war against the Lord, God of your fathers—because it will not go well for you.” 13 And Ieroboam had turned their ambush to come from behind. And he was in front of Ioudas, and the ambush was behind. And Ioudas turned back, and, behold, the war loomed upon them in front and in the rear, and they called to the Lord, and the priests trumpeted with the trumpets. And the men of Ioudas shouted, and it happened that, when the men of Ioudas shouted, the Lord also struck Ieroboam and Israel before Abia and Ioudas. And the sons of Israel fled before Ioudas, and the Lord surrendered them into their hands. And Abia and his people struck a great blow in their midst, and five hundred thousand mighty men of Israel fell slain. And the sons of Israel were humbled on that day, and the sons of Ioudas prevailed, because they hoped in the Lord, God of their fathers. And Abia pursued after Ieroboam and seized some cities from him, Baithel and its villages and Isana and its villages and Ephron and its villages. And Ieroboam could not regain strength all the days of Abia, and the Lord struck him, and he died. And Abia grew strong and took to himself fourteen wives and fathered twenty-two sons and sixteen daughters. 13And the rest of the histories of Abia, both his acts and his words, are written in the Book of the Prophet Addo. 14(14.1)And Abia died with his fa-ters, and they buried him in the city of Dauid, and Asa his son became king in his stead.

14 In the days of Asa the land of l oudas was quiet for ten years. 2(2)And he did what was good and right before the Lord, his God. 2(3)And he removed the altars of the foreigners and the high places and smashed the steles and cut down the groves. 3(4)And he told l oudas to seek out the Lord, God of their fathers, and to do the law and the commandments. 4(5)And he removed from all the cities of l oudas the altars and the idols and enjoyed peace. 5(6)Cities were walled in the land of l oudas, because the land enjoyed peace. And he endured no war during those years because the Lord granted him repose. 6(7)And he said to l oudas, “Let us build these cities and make walls and towers and gates and bars, by which we will control the land, because as we sought the Lord, our God, he has sought us out and granted us repose on every side, and he has made us prosper.” 7(8)And Asa had a force of three hundred thousand heavy infantry in l oudas carrying shields and spears and two hundred and fifty thousand 4light troops 4light troops and archers in the land of benjamin, all mighty warriors.

8(9) And Zare the Ethiopian came out against them with a force of a million and three hundred chariots and went as far as Marisa. 9(10)And Asa came out to meet him and drew up his battle line in the ravine to the north of Marisa. 10(11)And Asa called out to the Lord, his God, and said, “Lord, it is not impossible with you to save with many or with few. Strengthen us, Lord, our God, because we have put our trust in you, and in your name we have come against this vast multitude. Lord, our God, let no man prevail against you.” 11(12)And the Lord struck the Ethiopians before l oudas, and the Ethiopians took to flight.

12(13)And Asa and his people pursued as far as Gedor, and the Ethiopians fell so that there was no preservation among them, because they were crushed before the Lord and before his force. And they took much plunder. 13(14)And they eradicated their villages round Gedor, because terror of the Lord had come upon them; and they plundered all their cities, because much plunder accrued to them. 14(15)Indeed tents of possessions, the Amazons, they eradicated and seized many sheep and camels and returned to Ierousalem.

And Azarias son of Oded—a spirit of the Lord came upon him. 2(2)And he went out to meet Asa and all l oudas and Benjamin and said, “Hear me, Asa, and all l oudas and Benjamin. The Lord is with you when you are with him, and if you seek him, he will be found to you, and if you abandon him, he will abandon you. 3And for many days it has been for Israel without a true god and without a teaching priest and without law. 4And he will return to the Lord, God of Israel, and he will be found to them. 5And at that time there is no peace for the one exiting and the one entering, because terror of the Lord is upon all the inhabits of the land. 6And nation will war against nation and city against city, because God has confounded them in every tribulation. 7And you, be strong, and let your hands not fail, for there is a reward for your work.” 8And when he 4he heard these words and the prophecy of Adad the prophet, he was both encouraged and he removed the abominations from all the land of l oudas and benjamin and from the cities he had gained possession of in Mount Ephraim, and he renewed the Lord’s altar that was in front of the Lord’s shrine. 9And he assembled l oudas and Benjamin and the guests who were sojourning with him from Ephraim and from Manasses and from Shechem, because many from Israel had joined him when they saw that the Lord, his God, was with him. 10And they were gathered in Ierousalem in the third month of the fifteenth year of Asa’s reign. 11And he sacrificed to the Lord on that day from the plunder that they had brought, seven hundred calves and seven thousand sheep. 12(13)And he entered in a covenant to seek the Lord, God of their fathers, from all his heart and from all his soul. 13(14)And if any one would not seek the Lord, God of Israel, he would die, from youth to elder, from man to woman. 14And they swore by the Lord with a loud voice, both with trumpets and with horns. 15And all l oudas 15And all l oudas was glad over the oath, because they had sworn from all their soul and had sought him with all their will, and the Lord was found to them and granted them rest all around.

16(17)And he 4he removed his mother, so she would not be ministering to Astarte, and he cut down the idol and burned it in the Wadi Kedron. 17Yet, they did not take away the high places; they kept on exin the land. Nevertheless, Asa’s heart was full all his days. 18And he brought in the holy things of Dauid his father and the holy things of the house of the Lord God, silver and gold and utensils. 19And there was no war with him until the thirty-fifth year of Asa’s reign.

16 In the thirty-eighth year of Asa’s reign, Baasa, king of Israel, went up against l oudas and built Rama so as not to give to Asa, king of l oudas, exit and entrance. 2And Asa took gold and silver from the treasures of the Lord’s house and the king’s house and sent them to the son of Hader, king of Syria, who resided in Damascus, saying, 3Make a covenant between me and you and between my father and between your father. See, I have sent you gold and silver. Come, and shake off from me Baasa, king of Israel, and let him withdraw from me.” 4And Hader’s son heard
King Asa and dispatched the commanders of his force against the cities of Israel and struck Ion and Dan and Abelmain and all the environs of Neph-thali. 5 And it happened, when Baasa heard, he left off building Rama any longer, and his labor came to a standstill. 6 And King Asa took all Ioudas and seized the stones of Rama and its timber, which Baasa was using for construction, and he built Gabae and Maspha with it.

7 And at that time Hanani the prophet came to Asa, king of Ioudas, and said to him, "When you trusted in the king of Syria and did not trust in the Lord, your God, the Syrian force was saved from your hands. 8 Did not the Ethiopians and Libyans possess a force large in courage, in horsemen in great profusion? And when you trusted in the Lord, he handed them into your hands, 9 because the Lord's eyes range over all the earth, to put strength in every heart full toward him. You overlooked this! From now on war will be with you." 10 And Asa was furious with the prophet and cast him in prison, because he was so angry with him. And Asa inflicted indignities among the people at that time.

11 And see, the histories of Asa, the first and the last, are written in the Book of the Kings of Ioudas and Israel. 12 And in the thirty-ninth year of his reign Asa grew infirm in his feet. He grew gravely infirm. And in his infirmity he did not seek the Lord, but physicians. 13 And Asa slept with his fathers and died in the thirty-ninth year of his reign. 14 And they buried him in the tomb that he dug for himself in the city of Dauid, and they laid him to rest on the couch and filled it with spices and types of myrrh of the perfumer, and they made a very large funeral for him.

17 And Iosaphat his son became king in his stead, and Iosaphat became powerful against Israel. 2 And he put a force in all the fortified cities of Ioudas and appointed leaders in all the cities of Ioudas and in the cities of Ephraim that Asa his father had seized before. 3 And the Lord was with Iosaphat, because he walked in the first ways of his father and did not seek out the idols. 4 But he sought out the Lord, God of his father, and walked in the commandments of his father and not like the deeds of Israel. 5 And the Lord directed the kingdom by his hand, and all Ioudas gave gifts to Iosaphat, and wealth accrued to him and much glory. 6 And his heart was exalted in the way of the Lord, and he furthermore removed the high places and the groves from the land of Ioudas.

7 And in the third year of his reign he dispatched his leaders and the sons of the mighty, Ab-dias and Zacharias and Nathanael and Michaias, to teach in the cities of Ioudas. 8 And with them were the Leuites, Samouias and Nathaniael and Zabdias and Asiel and Semiramoth and Jonathan and Ado-nias and Tobias, the Leuites, and with them the priests Elisama and Ioram. 9 And they taught in Ioudas and with them was a book of the Lord's law, and they passed through in the cities of Ioudas and taught the people.

10 And terror of the Lord came upon all the kingdoms of the earth, those around Ioudas, and they did not wage war against Iosaphat. 11 And some of the allophyles brought Iosaphat gifts and silver and presents, and the Arabs brought him seven thousand seven hundred rams of sheep. 12 And Iosaphat walked taller in stature and built dwellings and fortified cities in Judea. 13 And he had many works in Judea and men, mighty warriors, holding sway in Ierousalem. 14 And this is their number according to their paternal houses: for Ioudas, officers of thousands: Ednas the commander and with him three hundred thousand mighty sons of power. 15 And after him was Ioanan the leader and with him two hundred and eighty thousand. 16 And after him was Amsias the son of Zachri, who showed zeal for the Lord, and with him two hundred thousand mighty ones of power. 17 And from Beniamin: Eliada, a mighty one of power, and with him two hundred thousand archers and light troops. 18 And after him was Zabad and with him one hundred and eighty thousand mighty warriors. These were the ones who served the king, apart from those whom the king stationed in the fortified cities all over Judea.

18 And further wealth and much glory accrued to Iosaphat, and he married into the house of Achaab. 2 And at the end of years he went down to Achaab in Samaria, and Achaab sacrificed sheep and many calves for him and for the people who were with him and deceived him to go up with him to Ramoth of Galaaditis. 3 And Achaab, king of Israel, said to Iosaphat, king of Ioudas, "Will you go with me to Ramoth of Galaaditis?" And he said to him, "I am as you; your people, also my people, with you into war."

4 And Iosaphat said to the king of Israel, "Do seek the Lord today." 5 And the king of Israel gathered the prophets, four hundred men, and said to them, "Should I go to Ramoth Galaad for war or hold back?" And they said, "Go up, and God will give it into the king's hands." 6 And Iosaphat said, "Is there further no prophet of the Lord here, and we shall inquire from him?" 7 And the king of Israel said to Iosaphat, "There is still one man by whom we can inquire of the Lord; I for my part hated him, because he is not prophesying anything good about me, because all his days are for evil. He is Michaias son of Iemla." And Iosaphat said, "Let the king not speak like that." 8 And the king of Israel called one eunuch and said, "Quick. Michaias son of Iemla." 9 And the king of Israel and Iosaphat, king of Ioudas, each sitting on his throne and dressed in robes, sitting in the wide space at the door of the gate of Samaria, and all the prophets were prophesying before them. 10 And Sedekias son of Chanana made for himself iron horns and said, "This is what the Lord says: With these you will gore Syria until it is finished off." 11 And all the prophets were prophesying like that, saying, “Go up to Ramoth Galaad, and you will be successful, and the Lord will give it into the king’s hands.”

12 And the messenger who had gone to call Michaias spoke to him, saying, “Look, the prophets with one mouth have spoken good things concerning the king. And do let your words be as of one of them, and you shall speak good things.”

13 And Michaias said, “The Lord lives, because whatever God says to me, that will I speak.”

14 And he came to the king, and the king said to him, “Michaias, should I go to Ramoth Galaad for war or hold back?” And he said, “Go up, and you will be successful, and they shall be given into your hands.”

15 And the king said to him, “How many times have I made you swear to speak to me nothing but the truth in the name of the Lord?”

16 And he said, “I saw Israel scattered on the mountains, like sheep who have no shepherd, and the Lord said, ‘They have no leader. Let them—each one—return to his home in peace!’”

17 And the king of Israel said to Iosaphat, “Did I not tell you that he does not prophesy good about me, but only bad?”

18 And he said, “Not so; hear a word of the Lord. I saw the Lord sitting on his throne and all the host of heaven standing to his right and to his left.

19 And the Lord said, ‘Who will deceive Achaab, king of Israel, and he will go up and fall at Ramoth Galaad?’ And this one said thus, and that one said so.

20 And the spirit went out and stood before the Lord and said, ‘I will deceive him.’ And the Lord said, ‘In what way?’

21 And he said, ‘I will go and be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall deceive and prevail. Go, and do so.’

22 And now, see, the Lord gave a lying spirit in the mouth of all these your prophets, and the Lord spoke bad concerning you.”

23 And Sedekias son of Chanana approached Michaias and struck him on the jaw and said, “By what way did the Lord’s spirit pass from me to speak to you?”

24 And Michaias said, “Behold, you will see on that day when you enter an inner chamber to hide.”

25 And the commanders of the chariots withdrew from him. 33 And a man drew a bow with a good aim and struck the king of Israel between the lungs and between his breastplate, and he said to his driver, “Turn your hand, and take me out of the battle, because I am in trouble.”

34 And the battle was turned that day, and the king of Israel remained standing on his chariot facing Syria until evening and died as the sun set.

19 And Iosaphat, king of loudas, returned in peace to his house in Jerusalem. 2 And the prophet lour the son of Hanani went out to meet him and said to him, “King Iosaphat, were you helping a sinner, or are you acting as friend to one hated by the Lord? Because of this, wrath has come against you from the Lord. 3 But good features were found in you, because you removed the groves from the land of loudas and directed your heart to seek out the Lord.”

4 And Iosaphat resided in Jerusalem and again went out among the people from Bersabee up to Mount Ephraim and brought them back to the Lord, God of their fathers. 5 And he appointed judges in all the fortified cities of loudas, in city and city. 6 And he told the judges, “See what you are doing, because you are judging not for man but for the Lord, and with you are words of discernment. 7 And now let the fear of the Lord be upon you, and watch, and act, because there is no injustice with the Lord, our God, nor respect of person, nor accepting of gifts.”

8 Moreover, Iosaphat appointed some priests and Leuites and leading men of Israel in Jerusalem to adjudicate for the Lord and to judge the inhabitants of Jerusalem. 9 And he commanded them, saying, “This is how you shall act in the fear of the Lord, in truth, and with a full heart.

10 Should there be any man of your brothers who dwell in their cities with a case that leads to you, involving shedding of blood and involving an ordinance or commandment or statutes and judgments, you will then make a pronouncement for them, and they will not sin against the Lord, and no wrath will come upon you or upon your brothers. Thus you shall act, and you will not sin. 11 And behold, Amarias the priest, a leader over you in every matter concerning the Lord, and Zabdias son of Ismael, the leader over you regarding the house of loudas in every matter concerning the king, and the scribes and the Leuites before you! Be strong, and act, and the Lord will be with the good.”

20 And after this the sons of Moab and the sons of Ammon and with them some of the Moites came against Iosaphat for battle. 2 And they came and told Iosaphat of this, saying, “A great multitude has come against you from beyond the sea and Syria. And, see, they are in Hasasan-thamar” (this is Engaddi). 3 And Iosaphat was afraid and set his face to seek out the Lord and proclaimed a fast in all loudas. 4 And loudas was gathered to seek out the Lord, and from all the cities—loudas—they came to seek out the Lord.

5 And Isosaphat got up in the assembly of loudas in Ierousalem in the house of the Lord in front of the new court. 6 And he said, “Lord, God of our fathers, are you not God in heaven, and you govern all the kingdoms of the nations, and in your hand is the power of dominance, and there is no one able to withstand you? 7 Are you not the Lord who utterly destroyed the inhabitants of this land from before your people Israel and gave it forever to the seed of Abraam, your beloved? 8 And they lived in it and built in it a holy precinct to your name, saying, 9 If harm comes upon you, sword, disaster, death or famine, we will stand before this house and before you, because your name is upon this house, and we will call out to you out of affliction, and you will hear and save. 10 And now, see, sons of Ammon and Moab and Mount Seir, them through whom you did not grant Israel to pass when they came out of the land of Egypt—because they avoided them and did not utterly destroy them! 11 Now, see, it is they who are undertaking to come out against us to cast us from our inheritance, which you gave us. 12 Lord, our God, are you not going to make judgment against them?—because we have no strength to withstand this great multitude that has come against us, and we do not know how to deal with them. Rather our eyes are on you.”

13 And all loudas stood before the Lord and their children and wives. 14 And with reference to Oziel the son of Zacharias of the sons of Banaias of the sons of Eleel the son of Manthanias the Leuite of the sons of Asaph—a spirit of the Lord came upon him in the assembly 15 and he said, “Listen, all loudas and inhabitants of Ierousalem and King Isosaphat: This is what the Lord says to you yourselves. Do not be afraid or alarmed tomorrow to go out to meet them, and the Lord will be with you.”

16 Tomorrow descend upon them. See, they are ascending along the ascent of Hasas, and you will find them on the height of the river in the wilderness of Ieriel. 17 It is not for you to make war. Understand that, and see the Lord’s deliverance with you, loudas and Ierousalem. Do not be afraid or alarmed tomorrow to go out to meet them, and the Lord will be with you.”

18 And when Isosaphat bowed with his face down, all loudas also and the inhabitants of Ierousalem fell down before the Lord, to do obeisance to the Lord. 19 And the Leuites of the sons of Kaath and of the sons of Kore stood up to praise the Lord, God of Israel, in a supremely loud voice.

20 And they rose next morning and went out into the wilderness of Thekoe, and when they went out, Isosaphat halted and called out and said, “Listen to me, loudas and inhabitants of Ierousalem! Trust in the Lord, your God, and you will be given credence. Put your faith in his prophet, and you shall succeed.” 21 And he took counsel with the people and stationed harp-singers and singers of praise to acknowledge and praise the holy things as they went out ahead of the army and said, “Acknowledge the Lord, because his mercy is forever.”

22 And as they began the praise of his acknowledgment, the Lord granted that the sons of Ammon war against Moab and Mount Seir, who were coming out against loudas, and they were turned to flight. 23 And the sons of Ammon and Moab rose up against the inhabitants of Mount Seir utterly to destroy and to crush. And when they finished off the inhabitants of Mount Seir, they turned to destroy each other utterly.

24 And loudas went to the lookout place over the wilderness and scanned it and saw the multitude. And behold, they were all corpses fallen upon the earth; there was no survivor. 25 And Isosaphat and his people came to plunder their plunder, and they found many herds and baggage and plunder and desirable articles, and they plundered for themselves, and three days elapsed while they were plundering plunder, because there was much.

26 And on the fourth day they gathered together into the glen of the blessing, for there they blessed the Lord. That is why they called the name of that place Valley of Blessing until today. 27 And every man of loudas returned to Ierousalem in great gladness, and Isosaphat was their leader, because the Lord had made them glad due to their enemies. 28 And they entered into Ierousalem with nablab and with cinyras and with trumpets into the Lord’s house. 29 And terror of the Lord fell upon all the kingdoms of the earth when they heard that the Lord had fought against Israel’s adversaries. 30 And Isosaphat’s kingdom remained peaceful, and his God gave him rest all around.

31 And Isosaphat reigned over loudas, being thirty-five years old when he became king, and he reigned twenty-five years in Ierousalem. And his mother’s name was Azouba daughter of Sali. 32 And he walked in the ways of his father Asa and did not turn aside from doing what was right before the Lord. 33 But the high places still existed, and the people had not yet directed their heart toward the Lord, God of their fathers.

34 And the rest of the histories of Isosaphat, both the first and the last, behold, they are written in the Histories of Iou the Son of Hanani, who wrote a book on the kings of Israel.

35 And after that Isosaphat, king of loudas, made common cause with Ochozia, king of Israel, (and he was lawless) 36 when he acted and went to him to make ships to go to Tharris, and he made ships in Gasiongaber. 37 And Eliezer the son of Dodia from Marisa prophesied against Isosaphat, saying, “Since you became friends with Ochozia, the Lord has dashed your enterprise, and your ships have been wrecked, and they were not able to go to Tharris.”

21 And Isosaphat slept with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of Dauid, and his son Ioram became king in his stead. 2 And he had six brothers, sons of Iosaphat, Azarias and Iel and Zacharias and Azarias and Michael and Saphhatias. All these were sons of Iosaphat, king of loudas. 3 And their father gave them many gifts, silver and gold and arms along with walled cities in loudas. And the kingdom he gave to Ioram, because he was the firstborn. 4 And Ioram rose up over his kingdom and became strong and killed all his brothers by sword and some of the rulers of Israel. 5 When Ioram was thirty-two years old he became established over his kingdom, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. 6 And he walked in the way of the kings of Israel, as the house of Achaab had done, because Achaab's daughter was his wife, and he did what was evil before the Lord. 7 And the Lord did not wish to destroy utterly the house of David because he was the firstborn. 8 In those days Edom revolted from loudas and crowned a king over themselves. 9 And Ioram set out with his commanders, and all the cavalry with him. And it happened that Edom arose by night against Ioram, who was encircling him and the commanders of the chariots, and the people fled to their coverts. 10 And Edom revolted from loudas until this day. Then Lomna revolted from his hand at that time, because he had abandoned the Lord, God of his fathers.

11 For indeed he made high places in the cities of loudas and prostituted the inhabitants of Jerusalem and perverted loudas. 12 And a written note reached him from the prophet Elias, saying, "This is what the Lord, God of David your father, says: Because you have not walked in the way of your father Iosaphat and in the ways of Asa, king of loudas, but have walked in the ways of the kings of Israel and have prostituted loudas and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, as the house of Achaab prostituted, and your brothers, your father's sons, who were nobler than you, you killed, 13 behold, the Lord will strike you with a severe blow among your people and among your sons and among your wives and all your belongings. 14 And you will be in grave infirmity with a sickness of the belly until your belly comes out with the infirmity from days to days." 15 And the Lord aroused the allophyles and the Arabs and the neighbors of the Ethiopians against Ioram. 16 And they came up against loudas, and they seized and removed all the belongings they found in the king's house, and his sons and his daughters, and no son was left to him except Ochozias, the youngest of his sons.

17 And after all this the Lord struck him with an infirmity in his belly, for which there was no cure. 18 And it occurred from days to days. And when a time came during two days of the days, his belly came out with the illness, and he died in grave infirmity, and his people did not do a funeral like a funeral of his fathers. 19 He was thirty-two years old when he became king and reigned eight years in Jerusalem. And he walked not in commendation and was buried in the city of David and not in the tombs of the kings.

22 And the inhabitants of Jerusalem made Ochozias, his little son, king in his stead, because the band of robbers, the Arabs and the Almazones, that fell on them had killed all the older ones. And Ochozias son of Ioram, king of loudas, became king. 23 Being twenty years old Ochozias became king and reigned in Jerusalem for one year. And his mother's name was Gotholia daughter of Ambri. 22 And he walked in the way of the house of Achaab, because his mother was his counselor in sinning. 24 And he did what was evil before the Lord, like the house of Achaab, because they were his counselors after his father's death in order to destroy him utterly. 25 And he walked in their counsels. And he went with Ioram son of Achaab to war against Hazael, king of Syria, to Rama Galaad. And the archers struck Ioram. 26 And Ioram retreated to be cured in Izrael of the wounds the Syrians had inflicted on him at Rama when he fought against Hazael, king of Syria. And Ochozias son of Ioram, king of loudas, went down to see Ioram son of Achaab in Izrael, because he was sick.

27 And from God came ruin to Ochozias that he came to Ioram. And when he arrived, Ioram went out with him against lous, son of Namessi, the Lord's anointed, against the house of Achaab. 28 And it happened, as Iou was taking vengeance on the house of Achaab, he also found the rulers of loudas and Ochozias' brothers ministering to Ochozias, and he killed them. 29 And he gave orders to search for Ochozias, and they caught him as he was being cured in Samaria and led him to Iou, and he killed him. And they buried him, because they said, "He is Iosaphat's son, who sought the Lord with his whole heart." And there was no one in Ochozias' house to assert power over the kingdom.

30 And Gotholia, the mother of Ochozias, saw that her son was dead, and she was aroused and destroyed every offspring of the kingdom in the house of lous. 31 And Iosabeth, the king's daughter, took Ioas, Ochozias' son, and stole him from among the king's sons about to be killed and consigned him and his nurse to the storeroom of the beds. And Iosabeth daughter of King Ioram, sister of Ochozias, wife of Ioda the priest, hid him. And she hid him from before Gotholia, and she did not kill him. 32 And he was hidden with her in the house of God for six years, and Gotholia reigned over the land.

23 And in the seventh year Iodae gained strength and took the officers of hundreds, Azarias son of Ioram and Ismael son of Ioanan and Azarias son of Obed and Maasaias son of Adaias and Elisaphas son of Zacharias, with him into a house. 24 And they went round loudas and gathered... the Leuites from all the cities of Ioudas and the rulers of the paternal families of Israel and came to Ierousalem. 3And all the assembly of Ioudas made a covenant with the king in the house of God, and he showed to them the king's son and said to them, "Behold, let the king's son be king, as the Lord has spoken concerning the house of Dauid.
4Now this is the plan you will do. Let one third of you, of the priests and the Leuites, proceed on the sabbath and to the gates of the entrances, 5and let one third be in the king's house, and let one third be at the middle gate, and all the people are in the courts of the Lord's house. 6And let no one enter the Lord's house except the priests and the Leuites and those of the Leuites who are ministering. They shall enter because they are holy, and let all the people keep the Lord's watches. 7And the Leuites shall surround the king on all sides, a man with an implement in his hand, and he who enters the house shall die. And they shall be with the king as he enters and exits. 8

8 And the Leuites and all Iouda$a did according to all that Iodae the priest commanded, and each took his men from the beginning to the end of sabbath, because Iodae did not disband the daily divisions. 9And he distributed the daggers and the shields and the arms which had belonged to King Dauid in the house of God. 10And he appointed all the people, each with his arms, from the right angle of the house to the left angle of the altar, and the house, in a ring around the king. 11And he led out the king's son and bestowed the crown upon him, and the testimonies. And Iodae and his sons made him king and anointed him and said, "Let the king live!"

12 And Gotholia heard the sound of the people, those who ran and acknowledged and praised the king and approached the king in the house of the Lord. 13And she looked, and, behold, there was the king at his station and at the entrance the rulers and the trumpets around the king, and all the people were glad, and they trumpeted with the trumpets and the singers singing with their instruments and hymning a song of praise. And Gotholia tore her garment and exclaimed and said, "Attacking you are launching an attack." 14And Iodae the priest went out, and Iodae the priest commanded the officers of hundreds and commanders of the force and said to them, "Remove her from the house, and follow her, and let her die by dagger," because the priest said, "Let her not die in the house of the Lord." 15And they gave her leave, and she exited through the cavalry gate of the king's house, and there they put her to death.

16 And Iodae made a covenant between himself and the people and the king that they should be a people to the Lord. 17And all the people of the land entered into the house of Baal, and they tore it down and smashed to pieces its altars and idols, and they killed Matthan the priest of the she-Baal before his altars. 18And Iodae the priest put his hand to the works of the Lord's house through aPossibly everyone of Ioudas

24 Ioas was seven years old when he became king, and he reigned forty years in Ierous-alem. And his mother's name was Sabia from Bersabee. 2And Ioas did what was right before the Lord all the days of Iodae the priest. 3And Iodae took for him two wives, and he fathered sons and dughters.

4 And it happened afterwards that it came into Ioas's heart to restore the house of the Lord. 5And he gathered the priests and Leuites and said to them, "Go out into the cities of Ioudas, and gather money from all Israel to restore the Lord's house, year by year, and hurry to spread the word." But the Leuites did not hurry. 6And King Ioas sum-monned Iodae the chief and said to him, "Why have you not exercised oversight concerning the Leuites, to bring in from Ioudas and Ierousalem what was determined by Moyses, man of God, when he assembled Israel into the tent of witness?"—7be-because Gotholia was the lawless one, and her sons laid waste the house of God and furthermore made over to the she-Baalim all the holy things of the Lord's house.

8 And the king said, "Let there be a chest, and let it stand outside the gate to the Lord's house."
9And they proclaimed in Ioudas and Ierousalem that people should bring an offering to the Lord, as Moyses servant of God had mentioned for Israel in the wilderness. 10And all the rulers and all the people gave and brought and dropped into the chest money until it was full. 11And it happened, as they would bring the chest to the king's officials by means of the Leuites and as they saw that the money had increased, the king's scribe and the official of the great priest also came and emptied the chest and set it back in its place. This is how they acted day after day, and they collected much money. 12And the king and Iodae the priest gave it to those doing the work for the work of the Lord's house. And they hired masons and carpenters to restore the Lord's house and smiths of iron and copper to restore the Lord's house. 13And those doing the work kept on working, and the extent of their work expanded by their hands, and they raised up the Lord's house in its position and strengthened it.
14 And when they had finished, they brought the rest of the money to the king and Iodae, and they made utensils for the Lord’s house, liturgical utensils for whole burnt offerings and gold and silver censers. And they offered whole burnt offerings in the Lord’s house regularly all the days of Iodae.

15 And Iodae grew old and full of days and died at the age of one hundred and thirty years at his death. 16And they buried him in the city of Dauid with the kings, because he had done goodness with Israel and with God and with his house.

17 And it happened after Iodae’s death that the rulers of Ioudas entered and did obeisance to the king. Then the king heeded them. 18And they abandoned the Lord, God of their fathers, and were subject to the Ashtoreths and to the idols. And wrath came upon Ioudas and upon Ierousalem on that day. 19And he sent prophets to them to turn them back to the Lord, but they did not listen. And they bore witness against them, and they did not listen.

20 And a divine spirit entered Azarias the son of Iodae the priest, and he stood above the people and said, “This is what the Lord says: Why do you transgress the word of the Lord, as your fathers did? And will you not prosper. Because you have abandoned the Lord, he will also abandon you.” 21And they plotted against him and stoned him by command of King Ioaas in the court of the Lord’s house. 22And Ioaas did not remember the mercy that Iodae his father had done with him, and he put his son to death. And as he was dying, he said, “May the Lord see, and let him judge.”

23 And it happened after the completion of the year, the Syrian force came up against him and came against Ioudas and against Ierousalem, and they destroyed all the rulers of the people among the people and sent all the plunder to the king of Damascus. 24Because the Syrian force arrived with few men, God also delivered into their hands a very large force, because they had abandoned the Lord, God of their fathers. And he executed many judgments against Ioaas.

25 And after they had withdrawn from him, when they abandoned him in great infirmities, his servants also plotted against him because of the bloodshed of the son of Iodae the priest, and they put him to death on his bed. And he died. And they buried him in the city of Dauid, and they did not bury him in the tomb of the kings. 26And those plotting against him were Zabed the son of Maroth the Moabite. 27And all his sons, even the five, came against him. And the rest, behold, it is written in the document of the kings. And Amasias his son became king in his stead.

25 When he was twenty-five years old Amasias became king and reigned twenty-nine years in Ierousalem. And his mother’s name was Ioaden from Ierousalem. 2And he did what was right before the Lord, but not with a full heart. 3And it happened, as his reign was confirmed in his hand, he also put to death his servants who had murdered the king, his father. 4And he did not kill their sons according to the covenant of the Lord’s law, as it is written, as the Lord had commanded, saying, “Fathers shall not die because of children, and sons shall not die because of fathers, but each shall die for his own sin.”

5 And Amasias gathered the house of Ioudas and appointed them as officers of thousands and officers of hundreds according to their paternal families in all Ioudas and Ierousalem. And he numbered them from the age of twenty and up and found them to be three hundred thousand men able-bodied to go to war grasping spear and shield. 6And he hired one hundred thousand powerful in strength from Israel for one hundred talents of silver. 7And a man of God went to him and said, “King, a force of Israel shall not advance with you, because the Lord is not with Israel, since all are the sons of Ephraim—because, if you presume to prevail with these, then the Lord will defeat you before your enemies, because to prevail and to be routed are from the Lord.” 8And Amasias said to the man of God, “And what shall I do about the hundred talents I gave to the force of Israel?” And the man of God said, “It is for the Lord to give you more than these.” 9And Amasias discharged the force that had come to him from Ephraim to return to their place. And they were very angry with Ioudas and returned to their place in fierce anger.

11 And Amasias became strong and brought his people along with him and advanced into the Valley of Salt and there struck ten thousand sons of Seir. 12And the sons of Ioudas took captive ten thousand and brought them to the cliff edge and toss them over the cliff edge, and they were all rent asunder. 13And the force of the force whom Amasias had turned so as not to advance with him to war also fell upon the cities of Ioudas from Samaria to Baithoron, and they struck three thousand among them and took much plunder.

14 And it happened, after Amasias went and struck Idumea, he also brought back to them the gods of the sons of Seir and established them as gods for himself and would do obeisance to them, and he himself would sacrifice to them. 15And the Lord’s wrath came upon Amasias, and he sent to him prophets, and they said to him, “Why did you seek the gods of the people, who did not deliver their people out of your hand?” 16And it happened, as he spoke to him, that he said to him, “Surely I have not engaged you as a counselor to the king? Take heed lest you are whipped.” And the prophet fell silent. And he said, “I know that he desired for you to destroy you, because you have done this and have not heeded my counsel.”

17 And Amasias took counsel and sent to Ioaas son of Ioaachaz son of Iou, king of Israel, saying, “Come, let us see face to face.” 18And Ioaas, king of Israel, sent to Amasias, king of Ioudas, saying, “The aouchoub in Lebanon sent a message to the cedar... in Lebanon saying, ‘Give your daughter to my son for a wife. And behold, the wild beasts of the field in Lebanon will come out.’ And the wild beasts came and trampled down the aoucha. You said, ‘See, you have struck Idumea, and your heavy heart exalts you. Now sit in your house, and why are you planning harm, and you yourself will fall and loudas with you’?

20 And Amasias did not listen, because it was from the Lord to hand him over into his hands, because he sought out the gods of the Idumeans. 21 And Ioas, king of Israel, went up, and they appeared to one another, he and Amasias, king of loudas, in Baithsamys, which belongs to loudas. 22 And Ioudas was turned back before Israel, and each fled to his covert. 23 And Ioas, king of Israel, captured Amasias, king of Ioudas, son of Ioas in Baithsamys and led him into Ierousalem, and he pulled down a portion of the wall of Ierousalem from the gate of Ephraim to the gate of the corner, four hundred cubits. 24 And he took all the gold and the silver and all the vessels that were found in the Lord’s house and with Abdedom and the treasures of the king’s house and the sons of the mixed parentage and returned to Samaria. 25 And Amasias the son of Ioas, king of Ioudas, lived fifteen years after the death of Ioas son of loachaz, king of Israel. 26 And the rest of the histories of Amasias, the first and the last, behold, are they not written in the Book of the Kings of Ioudas and Israel? 27 And at the time when Amasias turned from the Lord, they plotted a plot against him, and he fled from Ierousalem to Lachis. And they sent after him to Lachis and there put him to death. 28 And they took him back on horses and buried him with his fathers in the city of Dauid.

26 And all the people of the land took Ozias, and he was sixteen years old, and they made him king in his father Amasias’ stead. 2 He built Ailath and restored it to loudas after the king slept with his fathers. 3 Ozias became king being a son of sixteen years and reigned in Ierousalem fifty-two years. And his mother’s name was Chalia, from Ierousalem. 4 And he did what was right before the Lord in accordance with everything his father Amasias had done. 5 And he would seek out the Lord in the days of Zacharias who had understanding in fear of the Lord. And in his days he sought the Lord, and the Lord made him prosper. 6 And he went out and made war against the allophyles and pulled down the walls of Iabne and the walls of Iabne and the walls of Azotus, and he built cities of Azotus and among the allophyles. 7 And the Lord made him prevail over the allophyles and over the Arabs who lived on the rock and over the Minites. 8 And the Minites gave Ozias gifts, and his fame reached as far as the entry to Egypt, because he was highly strong. 9 And Ozias built towers in Ierousalem, both at the gate of the corner and at the gate of the ravine and on the corners, and he grew strong. 10 And he built towers in the wilderness and heaved out many cisterns, because he had large herds in Sephela and in the low land and vinedressers in the hill country and in Carmel, because he loved the soil. 11 And Ozias had forces making war and going out to battle in number, and their number was through the hand of fiel the scribe and Maasias the judge through the hand of Ananias the king’s deputy. 12 And the entire number of the patriarchs of the mighty ones for war was two thousand six hundred. 13 And with them was a military force of three hundred and seven thousand five hundred. These were the ones making war with power of strength to assist the king against his adversaries. 14 And Ozias equipped them, the entire force, with shields and spears and helmets and breastplates and bows and slings for stones. 15 And he made machines in Ierousalem devised by a mathematician to be on the towers and on the corners, to fire projectiles and large stones. And their construction was noised abroad far and wide, because it was marveled at in order to be of help until he became strong. 16 And as he grew in power, his heart was exalted so as to be corrupt, and he did wrong against the Lord, his God, and entered into the Lord’s shrine, to burn incense on the altar of incense. 17 And Azarias the priest entered after him and with him the priests of the Lord, eighty mighty sons. 18 And they opposed King Ozias and said to him, “It is not for you, Ozias, to offer incense to the Lord, but for the priests, the sons of Aaron, who are consecrated, to offer incense. Go out of the holy precinct, because you are in revolt against the Lord, and this will not win you any glory from the Lord God.” 19 And Ozias became angry, and in his hand was the fumigator to offer incense in the shrine. And when he became angry with the priests, leprosy also rose up on his forehead in front of the priests in the house of the Lord over the altar of incense. 20 And the first priest and the priests turned toward him and, beheld, he was leprous on his forehead. And they hurried him out of there, and indeed he himself hurried to get out, because the Lord had convicted him. 21 And King Ozias was leprous until the day of his death, and he sat as a leper in the house of aphphousoth, because he was excluded from the Lord’s house. And Ioatham his son was in charge of his kingdom, judging the people of the land. 22 And the rest of the histories of Ozias, the first and the last, were written by Iessias the prophet. 23 And Ozias slept with his fathers, and they buried him with his fathers in the plain of the kings’ burial, because they said, “He is leprous.” And Ioatham his son became king in his stead.

27 Ioatham was a son of twenty-five years when he became king and reigned sixteen years in Ierousalem. And his mother’s name was ferousa daughter of Sadok. And he did what was right before the Lord in accordance with everything his father Ozias had done—but he did not enter into the Lord’s shrine. And still the people were becoming corrupt. 3 He built the high gate of the Lord’s house and built extensively on the wall of Ophla. 4 And he built cities in the hill country of Judah and both dwellings and towers in the forests. 5 He fought with the king of the sons of Ammon and prevailed over him. And the sons of Ammon would give him one hundred talents of silver annually and ten thousand kors of wheat and ten thousand of barley. These the king of Ammon would bring him annually in the first year and the second and the third. 6 And Joatham became strong, because he ordered his ways before the Lord, his God. 7 And the rest of the histories of Joatham and the war and his acts, behold, they are written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel. 8 And Joatham slept with his fathers and was buried in the city of David, and his son Achaz became king in his stead.

28 Achaz was a son of twenty years when he became king and reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. And he did not do what was right before the Lord, as David his father had done. 2 And he walked in the ways of the kings of Israel, for indeed he made carved objects for their idols. 3 And he would sacrifice in Gibehemnom, and he led his children through fire according to the abominations of the nations whom the Lord utterly destroyed from before the sons of Israel. 4 And he would offer incense on the high places and on the roofs and under every woodland tree.

5 And the Lord, his God, handed him over through the hand of the king of Syria, and he struck at him and took captive of them a large captives and wrapped all the naked from the plunder and clothed them and shod them and gave them to eat and to be anointed and assisted every sick person with pack animals and brought them back to their brothers in Iericho, the city of palms, and they returned to Samaria.

16 At that time Achaz sent to the king of Assour to help him 17 and on this occasion, because the Idumeans had attacked and struck at Judah and taken a captivity captive. 18 And the allophtes had attacked against the cities of the low land and from the southwest of Judah, and they had taken Baithsamys and Airon and Gaderoth and Socho and its villages and Thamma and its villages and Gamzo and its villages, and they settled there. 19 because the Lord humbled Judah on account of Achaz, king of Judah, because he had rebelled with rebellion against the Lord. 20 And Thaglathphellasar, king of Assour, came against him and struck him.

21 And Achaz took what was in the Lord’s house and in the house of the king and of the rulers and gave it to the king of Assour, but it was of no help to him. 22 Rather by his having been afflicted, he even added to rebel against the Lord, and the king said, 23 “I will seek out the gods of Damascus who are hitting me.” And he said, 24 Because the gods of the king of Syria themselves will strengthen them, I will therefore sacrifice to them, and they will support me.” And they became a stumbling block to him and to all Israel. 25 And Achaz removed the utensils of the Lord’s house and cut them up and closed the doors of the Lord’s house and made altars for himself on every corner of Jerusalem. 26 And in every city and city in Judah he made high places to burn incense to foreign gods, and they angered the Lord, God of their fathers. 27 And the rest of his histories and his acts, the first and the last, behold, they are written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel.

29 And Hezekiah became king at age twenty-five and reigned twenty-nine years in Jerusalem. And his mother’s name was Abba daughter of Zacharias. 2 And he did what was right before the Lord, just as his father David had done. 3 And it happened that, when he was established over his kingdom, in the first month he opened the doors of the Lord’s house and repaired them. 4 And he brought in the priests and the Levites and placed them on the side toward the east. 5 And he said to them, “Listen, Levites, now be purified, and purify the house of the Lord, God of your fathers, and cast out uncleanness from the holy places, because our fathers were apostate and did what was evil before the Lord and abandoned him and turned their face from the Lord’s tent and gave their necks a” and shut the doors of the shrine and put out the lamps. And they did not burn incense and did not offer whole burnt offerings in the holy place to Israel’s God. 6 And the Lord was angered with anger against loudas and against Jerusalem and gave them into terror and into annihilation and into scorn, as you see with your very eyes. 7 And, behold, your fathers were struck by dagger, and your sons and your daughters and your wives are in captivity in a land not their own, which even now is the case. 8 As a result of these things, it is now in my heart to make a covenant with the Lord, God of Israel, and he will turn the anger of his wrath from us. 9 And now do not delay, because the Lord has chosen for you to stand before him to minister and to be ministers and incense burners for him.”

12 And the Levites arose, Maath the son of Amasi and Joel the son of Azarias from the sons of Kaath, and from the sons of Merari, Kish the son of Abdi and Azarias the son of Iallelel, from the sons of Gedsoni, Ioaa the son of Zemmath and Ioana the son of Ioacha, 13 and of the sons of Elisaphan, Sambri and liel, and of the sons of Asaph, Zacharias and Maththaniahs, 14 and of the sons of Haiam, liel and Semei, and of the sons of Idithon, Samaias and Oziel. 15 And they gathered their brethren and were purified according to the king’s command through the Lord’s ordinance to cleanse the Lord’s house. 16 And the priests entered inside the Lord’s house to purify it and threw out all the uncleanness that they found in the Lord’s house and into the court of the Lord’s house, and the Levites took it to toss out into the Wadi Kedron outside. 17 And they began to purify on the first day, on the new moon of the first month, and on the eighth day of the month they entered into the Lord’s shrine and purified the Lord’s house in eight days, and they finished on the sixteenth day of the first month. 18 And they went inside to King Hezekias and said, “We have purified everything in the Lord’s house, the altar for whole burnt offerings and its utensils, the table of presentation and its utensils, and all the utensils, which even now is the case.”

20 And King Hezekias early in the morning gathered the rulers of the city and went up to the Lord’s house. 21 And he brought seven calves, seven rams, seven lambs, seven he-goats of goats for sin, for the kingdom and for the holy things and for Israel, and he told the priests, the sons of Aaron, to go up to the Lord’s altar. 22 And they sacrificed the calves, and the priests received the blood and poured it on the altar. And they sacrificed the rams and poured the blood on the altar. And they sacrificed the lambs and poured the blood for the altar. 23 And they brought the he-goats for sin in front of the king and the assembly and laid their hands on them. 24 And the priests sacrificed them, and they atoned with their blood at the altar, and they atoned for all Israel, because—the king said—the whole burnt offering and the victims for sin offerings were for all Israel.

25 And he stationed the Levites in the Lord’s house with cymbals and with nabsa and with cinras according to the commandment of King Dauid and of Gad the king’s seer and of Nathan the prophet, for the ordinance was through the Lord’s commandment by the hand of the prophets. 26 And the Levites stood with instruments of Dauid and the priests with the trumpets. 27 And Hezekias said that the whole burnt offering should be brought to the altar, and when they began to offer the whole burnt offering, they began to sing to the Lord, and the trumpets were next to the instruments of Dauid, king of Israel. 28 And all the assembly did obeisance, and the harp-singers were singing and the trumpets were trumpeting until the whole burnt offering was finished. 29 And as they finished offering, the king knelt, and all those present also did obeisance. 30 And King Hezekias and the rulers said that the Levites should hymn the Lord with words of Dauid and of Asaph the prophet. And they hymned with gladness and fell down and did obeisance.

31 And Hezekias answered and said, “Now you have filled your hands to the Lord, bring, and bear sacrifices of praise also to the Lord’s house, and everyone eager in heart brought whole burnt offerings. 32 And the number of the whole burnt offering that the assembly offered was seventy calves, one hundred rams, two hundred lambs. All these were for a whole burnt offering to the Lord. 33 And the consecrated calves were six hundred; sheep, three thousand. 34 But the priests were few and were unable to skin the whole burnt offering, and their brothers the Levites assisted them until the task was finished and until the priests were purified, because the Levites had been purified more eagerly than the priests. 35 And the whole burnt offering was abundant with the fats of the completion for deliverance and of the limitations of the whole burnt offering. And the service in the Lord’s house was restored. 36 And Hezekias and all the people were glad on account of the fact that God had prepared for the people, because the thing had come about suddenly.

30 And Hezekias sent to all Israel and loudas and wrote letters to Ephraim and Manasse, to come to the Lord’s house in Jerusalem to hold the phasek to the Lord, God of Israel. 2And the king and the rulers and all the assembly in Jerusalem took counsel to hold the phasek in the second month, 3for they were unable to hold it at that time, because not enough priests had been purified and the people had not gathered in Jerusalem. 4And the plan was pleasing both to the king and to the assembly. 5And they fixed a plan to pass a message through all Israel from Bersabee up to Dan to come and hold the phasek to the Lord, God of Israel, in Jerusalem, because the multitude had not held it according to prescription. 6And the couriers with the letters from the king and the rulers traveled throughout all Israel and Ioudas in accordance with the king's ordinance, saying, "Sons of Israel, turn to the God of Abraam and Isaak and Israel, and he will return those survivors who escaped the hand of the king of Assour. 7And do not be like your fathers and your brothers, who became apostate from the Lord, God of their fathers, and he gave them over to desolation, as you yourselves see. 8And now do not harden your necks. Give glory to the Lord God, and enter his holy precinct, which he sanctified forever, and be subject to the Lord, your God, and he will remove from you the anger of his wrath. 9Because, when you return to the Lord, your brothers and your children will become pitied before all who took them captive, and he will return them to this land, because the Lord our God is merciful and compassionate and will not turn his face from us, if we turn to him." 10And the couriers passed through city from city in Mount Ephraim and Manasse and as far as Zaboulon, and they were, as it were, as people de-riding and mocking them. 11But the people of Aser and some of Manasse and of Zaboulon were moved to shame and came to Jerusalem. 12And the hand of the Lord was on Ioudas to give them understanding for the Lord, God of their fathers. 13And many people gathered in Jerusalem to hold the feast of unleavened bread in the second month, an exceedingly vast assembly. 14And they got up and removed the altars that were in Jerusalem, and all with which they had burned incense to the false ones they pulled down and threw into the Wadi Kedron. 15And they sacrificed the phasek on the fourteenth of the second month. And the priests and the Leuites were ashamed and were purified and brought whole burnt offerings into the Lord's house. 16And they stood at their station according to their judgment in accordance with the commandment of Moses, man of God. And the priests received the blood from the hand of the Leuites, 17for the majority of the assembly were not purified and the Leuites had to sacrifice the phasek for anyone unable to be purified for the Lord. 18For the majority of the people from Ephraim and Manasse and Issachar and Zaboulon had not been purified but ate the phasek in contravention of prescription. And Hezekias prayed for them, saying, "Let the good Lord be propitiated over every heart directed to seek out the Lord, God of their fathers, and not in accordance with the purity of the holy things." 19And the Lord heard Hezekias and healed the people. 20And the sons of Israel who were found in Jerusalem held the feast of unleavened bread for seven days with great gladness and were singing hymns to the Lord day by day, and the priests and the Leuites with instruments to the Lord. 21And Hezekias spoke to every heart of the Leuites and those with a good understanding for the Lord, and they completed the feast of unleavened bread, sacrificing sacrifices for deliverance for seven days and acknowledging the Lord, God of their fathers.

23 And the assembly decided to hold it together for seven more days, and they celebrated for seven days with gladness, 24for Hezekias contributed to the assembly of Ioudas a thousand calves and seven thousand sheep and the rulers contributed to the people a thousand calves and ten thousand sheep, and the priests' holy things were in abundance. 25And the whole assembly was glad: the priests and the Leuites and all the assembly of Ioudas and those present from Israel and the guests who had come from the land of Israel and those who dwelt in Ioudas. 26And there was great gladness in Jerusalem. From the days of Salomon son of Dauid king of Israel there had not been such a feast in Jerusalem. 27And the priests, the Leuites, stood up and blessed the people. And their voice was heard and their prayer entered his holy dwelling place in the sky.

31 And when all this was finished, all Israel found in the cities of Ioudas went out and demolished the steeles and cut down the groves and completely dismantled the high places and altars from all over Judea and Benjamin and from Ephraim and from Manasse. And all Israel—each one— returned to his inheritance and to their cities. 2 And Hezekias appointed the daily divisions of the priests and of the Leuites and the daily divisions of each according to their ministry for the priests and for the Leuites in whole burnt offerings and in the sacrifice of deliverance and to praise and acknowledge and minister at the gates in the courts of the Lord's house. 3And the king's portion from his possessions was for whole burnt offerings, morning and evening, and whole burnt offerings on sabbaths and on new moons and on the feasts written in the Lord's law. 4And he told the people who lived in Jerusalem to give the portion due to the priests and the Leuites so that they might be strong in the ministry of the Lord's house. 5And when he had prescribed the matter, the sons of Israel multiplied their first fruits of grain and of wine and of oil and of honey and of every field crop, and the sons of Israel and of Ioudas brought all the tithes in profusion. And the inhabitants of all the cities in Ioudas, 6they too brought tithes of calves and of sheep and tithes of

And after these matters and this truth, Sennacherim, king of the Assyrians, sent his servants to Jerusalem, saying, 'Opposite this altar you shall draw them down in order that they might seize the city. 19 And he talked about Jerusalem's God as he shouted with a loud voice in Judean to the people of Jerusalem, saying, 'The Lord, our God, will save us from the hand of the king of Assyria.' 12 And he sent to Hezekiah, king of Judea, and to all Judea and to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying, 'Look, I am going to come up against you and your people and your cities, and I will destroy them utterly, as I did to Lachish, to Azekah, and to all the fortified cities of Judah.' 13 And he wrote a note to reproach the Lord, God of Israel, and spoke about him, saying, 'As the gods of the nations of all the earth have not been able to save their people from my hand, so Hezekiah's God will not deliver his people from my hand.' 14 And he shouted with a loud voice in Judean to the people of Jerusalem who were on the wall, to frighten them and draw them down in order that they might seize the city. 15 And he talked about Jerusalem's God as he did about the gods of the peoples of the earth: works of human hands.

2 And after this Hezekiah said to the chief officer of the Lord's house, who was in charge of the gifts to give the priests, to give faithfully to them the first fruits and tithes, and Chonenias the Leuite was supervisor over them, and Semei his brother was deputy. 3 And Iiel and Ozazias and Naeth and Asael and Jeremoth and Iozabath and Eliel and Samachia and Maath and Banaias and his sons were appointed through Chonenias and Semei his brother, as King Hezekias and Azarias, the chief officer of the Lord's house, had ordered. 4 And Kore the son of Lemna the Leuite, the gate-keeper on the east, was in charge of the gifts to give the first fruits to the Lord and the holy libations items through the hand of Odom and Beniamin and Iesous and Semei and Amarias and Sechonias through the hand of the priests, to give faithfully to their brothers according to the daily divisions, in accord with great and small, and apart from the offspring of the male line from three years old and up to every one entering the Lord's house, on the appropriate day, for ministry according to the calculation of days with the daily divisions of their dispositions. 5 This was the register of the priests according to their paternal houses, and the Leuites were in their daily divisions from the age of twenty and up, in order, in registers, in every generation of their sons and their daughters to their full extent, because they faithfully purified the holy place for the sons of Aaron, those serving as priests. And those from their cities, in every city and city, men who were named by name, were to give a portion to every male among the priests and to everyone enumerated among the Leuites.

And Hezekiah acted so in all Judea and did what was good and right before the Lord, his God, and brought them in and laid them in heaps by heaps. 7 In the third month the heaps began to be formed and in the seventh month they were finished. 8 And Hezekiah and the rulers came and saw the heaps and blessed the Lord and his people Israel. 9 And Hezekiah learned from the priests and the Levites about the heaps and blessed the Lord and his people Israel. 10 And he gathered a large group of people and sealed off the waters of the springs and the stream that separated the city, saying, 'May the king of Assyria not come and find much water and be revived.' 11 And Hezekiah strengthened and built the entire wall that had been demolished and towers and another external wall, and he strengthened the retaining structure of the city of David and fashioned many weapons. 12 And the Lord was with him. And as he set war commanders over the people, and they gathered to him in the square of the ravine gate, and he spoke to their hearts, saying: 'Be strong, and be manly. Do not be terrified from before the king of Assyria and from before all the nation with him, because with us are more than with him. 13 With him are physical arms, but with us is the Lord, our God, to save us and to fight our war for us.' And the people took heart at the words of Hezekiah, king of Judea.

And after this, Sennacherim, king of the Assyrians, came, and he himself was at Lachis, and all his army with him. And he sent to Hezekiah, king of Judea, and to all Judea in Jerusalem, saying, 'Thus says Sennacherim, king of the Assyrians: In what have you put your trust, that you sit in the siege in Jerusalem? Is not Hezekiah deceiving you, to hand you over to death and to famine and to thirst, saying, 'The Lord, our God, will save us from the hand of the king of Assyria?' Was it not this Hezekiah who removed his altars and his high places and said to Judea and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying, 'Opposite this altar you shall do obeisance and upon it you shall offer incense?' Shall you not know what I have done, I and my fathers, to all the peoples of the countries! Being able were the gods of the nations of all the earth able to save their people from my hand? Who was there among the gods of those nations whom my fathers utterly destroyed? Were they able to save their people from my hand, that your God will not save you from my hand? 15 Now, let Hezekiah not deceive you; let him not make you trust like this, and do not believe him, because no god of any nation or kingdom shall be able to save his people from my hand and from the hand of my fathers—because your God will not save you from my hand.'

And his servants spoke still more against the Lord God, and against Hezekiah his servant. 17 And he wrote a note to reproach the Lord, God of Israel, and spoke about him, saying, 'As the gods of the nations of the earth did not deliver their peoples from my hand, so Hezekiah's God will not deliver his people from my hand.' 18 And he shouted with a loud voice in Judean to the people of Jerusalem who were on the wall, to frighten them and draw them down in order that they might seize the city. 19 And he talked about Jerusalem's God as he did about the gods of the peoples of the earth: works of human hands.

And King Hezekiah and the prophet Esaias... son of Amos prayed about this and shouted out to the sky. And the Lord sent an angel, and he destroyed every powerful warrior and commander and general in the camp of Assour’s king, and he returned to his country shamefaced. And he came into the house of his god, and some of those fathers from his belly struck him down with a sword. And the Lord saved Hezekias and the inhabitants of Jerusalem from the hand of Shalmaneser, king of Assour, and from the hand of all. And he gave them rest on every side. And many brought gifts to the Lord in Jerusalem and presents to Hezekias, king of Judah, and he was exalted in the eyes of all the nations after that.

24 In those days Hezekias became sick unto death. And he prayed to the Lord, and he heard him and gave him a sign. And Hezekias did not repay according to the reward which he had given him; rather, his heart was exalted. And anger came upon him and upon Judah and Jerusalem.

25 And Hezekias was brought low from the exaltation of his heart—and the inhabitants of Jerusalem—and the Lord’s anger did not come upon them in the days of Hezekias.

26 And Hezekias made groves and did obeisance to all the host of the sky and was subject to them. And he built altars to all the host of the sky in the two courts of the Lord’s house. He too passed his children through fire in Gaian-Banai-en nom, and he acted as a diviner and practiced ornithomancy and sorcery and acted as ventriloquists and enchanters. He multiplied doing evil before the Lord in order to provoke him.

27 And wealth and very great honor accrued to Hezekias. And he made himself treasures for silver and gold and precious stone and for spices, and armories also for desirable articles, and cities for the produce of grain and oil and wine and mangers for every herd and folds for the flocks and cities, which he built for himself, and goods for sheep and cows in profusion, because the Lord gave him very abundant goods.

28 And Hezekias closed above the outlet of the water of Gion and directed them down to the southwest of the city of David. And Hezekias prospered in all his works, and likewise with regard to the envoys of the commanders of Babylon, who had been sent to inquire from him the marvel that had happened on the land, and the Lord abandoned him, to test him, to know what was in his heart.

29 And Hezekias closed above the outlet of the water of Gion and directed them down to the southwest of the city of David. And Hezekias prospered in all his works, and likewise with regard to the envoys of the commanders of Babylon, who had been sent to inquire from him the marvel that had happened on the land, and the Lord abandoned him, to test him, to know what was in his heart.

30 This same Hezekias closed above the outlet of the water of Gion and directed them down to the southwest of the city of David. And Hezekias prospered in all his works, and likewise with regard to the envoys of the commanders of Babylon, who had been sent to inquire from him the marvel that had happened on the land, and the Lord abandoned him, to test him, to know what was in his heart.

31 And he made himself mangers for every herd and folds for the flocks outside the city of David. And Hezekias prospered in all his works, and likewise with regard to the envoys of the commanders of Babylon, who had been sent to inquire from him the marvel that had happened on the land, and the Lord abandoned him, to test him, to know what was in his heart.

32 And the rest of the histories of Hezekias and his mercy, behold, they are written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel.

33 And Hezekias slept with his fathers, and they buried him on the ascent of the tombs of David’s sons, and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem gave him fame and honor in his death. And Manasses his son became king in his stead.

33 Manasses was twelve years old when he became king and reigned fifty-five years in Jerusalem. And he did what was evil before the Lord, arising from all the abominations of the nations whom the Lord had utterly destroyed from before the sons of Israel. And he turned and built the high places that his father Hezekias had pulled down and erected steles to the she-Baalim and made groves and did obeisance to all the host of the sky and was subject to them. And he built altars in the Lord’s house of which the Lord had said, “In Jerusalem shall my name be forever.” And he built altars to all the host of the sky in the two courts of the Lord’s house. He too passed his children through fire in Gaian-Banai-en nom, and he acted as a diviner and practiced ornithomancy and sorcery and acted as ventriloquists and enchanters. He multiplied doing evil before the Lord in order to provoke him.

And he installed what was carved and what was smelted, an image that he had made, in the Lord’s house of which God had said to David and to Solomon his son, “In this house and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, I will put my name forever.” And I will not add to shake Israel’s foot from the land that I gave to their fathers, if only they are careful to do all that I have commanded them, according to all the law and the ordinances and the judgments by Moses’ hand.

And Manasses led astray Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to do what was evil beyond all the nations whom the Lord had removed from before the sons of Israel.

10 And the Lord spoke to Manasses and to his people, but they gave no heed. And the Lord led against them the commanders of the force of the king of Assour, and they took Manasses in manacles and bound him with fetters and brought him to Babylon. When he was in distress he sought the face of the Lord, his God, and he was humbled exceedingly from before the God of his fathers. And he prayed to him, and he heard him. And he heard his cry and brought him back to Jerusalem to his kingdom. And Manasses knew that the Lord, he is God.

14 And afterward he built a wall outside the city of David from the southwest by Gion in the wadi and when people exit the round about gate even on to Ophla, and he heightened it significantly. And he appointed commanders of the force in all the walled cities in Judah. And he removed the foreign gods and the carved item from the Lord’s house and all the altars that he had built on the mountain of the Lord’s house and in Jerusalem and outside the city. And he restored the Lord’s altar and sacrificed on it a sacrifice of deliverance and of praise, and he said that Judah should be subject to the Lord, God of Israel. The people, however, were still on the high places; the Lord, however, was their God.

18 And the rest of the histories of Manasses and his prayer to God and the words of the seers when they spoke to him in the name of the Lord, God of Israel, behold, they are in the accounts of his prayer, and how he listened to him, and all his sins and his acts of apostasy and the places on which he built the high places and set up there groves and carved items before he repented, behold, they are written in the accounts of the seers.

21 Amon became king at twenty-two years old and reigned two years in Jerusalem. And he did what was evil before the Lord as Manasses his father had done. And Amon would sacrifice to all the idols his father Manasses had made, and he was subject to them. 23 And he was not humbled before the Lord, as his father Manasses had been humbled, because his son Amon increased error. 24 And his servants plotted against him and struck him in his house. 25 And the people of the land struck those who had plotted against King Amon, and the people of the land made Josias his son king in his stead.

Josias was eight when he became king and reigned thirty-one years in Jerusalem. 2 And he did what was right before the Lord and walked in the ways of his father Daud and did not stray to right or left. 3 And in the eighth year of his reign—and he was still a lad—he began to seek the Lord, God of Daud his father. And in the twelfth year of his reign he began to purge Ioudas and Ierousalem of the high places and the groves and smelted items. 4 And he pulled down in front of him the altars of the Baalim and the high places on them, and he cut down the groves and demolished the carved and smelted items and pulverized and threw them upon the memorials to those who had sacrificed to them, 5 and the bones of the priests he burned on the altars and purged Ioudas and Ierousalem. 6 And in the cities of Ephraim and Manasse and Symeon and Nephthali and in reference to their sites round about, 7 he also pulled down the groves and the altars and demolished the idols into smithereens and cut down all the groves from off the land of Israel and returned to Ierousalem.

8 And in the eighteenth year of his reign—in order to purge the land and the house—he sent out Saphan son of Eselias, his recorder, to repair the house of the Lord, his God. 9 And they came to Chelkias the great priest and delivered the money that had been brought into the house of God, which the Leuites in guarding the gate had collected from the hand of Manasse and Ephraim and the rulers and from everyone left in Israel and the sons of Ioudas and Beniamin and people living in Ierousalem. 10 And those appointed in the Lord's house gave it into the hand of people doing the task. 11 And they gave it to the carpenters and the builders to buy squared stones and wood as beams to roof the houses, which kings of Ioudas had utterly destroyed. 12 And there were the men faithfully in charge of operations, and over them as overseers were the Leuites Ieth and Abdias from the sons of Merari, and Zacharias and Mosollam from the sons of Kaath, to oversee, and every Leuite, everyone skilled in instruments of singers, 13 and over the burden bearers and over all those doing the tasks, chore by chore. And some of the Leuites were scribes and judges and gatekeepers.

14 And as they were bringing out the money that had been collected into the Lord's house, Chelkias the priest found a book of the Lord's law through the hand of Mose. 15 And Chelkias answered and said to Saphan the scribe, "A book of the law I have found in the Lord's house," and Chelkias gave the book to Saphan. 16 And Saphan brought the book to the king and rendered a further account to the king. "All the donated money is in the hand of your servants who are doing the task. 17 And they have smelted the silver found in the Lord's house and have given it into the hand of the overseers and into the hand of those doing the work." 18 And Saphan the scribe reported to the king, saying, "Chelkias the priest has given me a book," and Saphan read it before the king.

19 And it happened, when the king heard the words of the law, he rent his garments. 20 And the king commanded Chelkias and Saphan's son Achikam and Abdon, Michaias' son, and Saphan the scribe and Asaias the king's servant, saying:

21 "Go, and inquire of the Lord concerning me and concerning every one who is left in Israel and Ioudas, concerning the words of the book that has been found, because the Lord's wrath kindled against us is great, because our fathers did not listen to the words of the Lord, to act in accordance with all that is written in this book."

22 And Chelkias went, and those to whom the king had spoken, to Holda the prophetess, wife of Sellem son of Thakouath son of Chelles, since she kept the vestments—and she lived in Ierousalem in masanac, and they spoke to her to that effect. 23 And she said to them, "Thus said the Lord, God of Israel: Say to the man who sent you to me, 24 Thus says the Lord: Behold, I am bringing harm against this place, all the words that are written in the book that was read before the king of Ioudas, 25 since they have forsaken me and have offered incense to foreign gods so that they have provoked me to anger with all the works of their hands. And my wrath was blazed in this place, and it will not be quenched. 26 And as to the king of Ioudas, who sent you to inquire of the Lord, thus shall you say this to him: Thus said the Lord God of Israel: As for the words that you heard—27 and your heart was embarrassed, and you were humbled from before me, when you heard my words regarding this place and regarding those who inhabit it, and you were humbled before me and tore your garments, and you wept before me; I on my part also heard you, says the Lord. 28 Behold, I will add you to your fathers, and you shall be added to your memorials in peace, and your eyes shall not see among all the harm that I am bringing upon this place and upon its inhabitants." And they gave back word to the king.

29 And the king sent and gathered the elders of Ioudas and Ierousalem. 30 And the king went up to the Lord's house, and all Ioudas and the inhabitants of Ierousalem, both the priests and the Leuites and all the people, from great to small. And 35 And Josias held the passover to the Lord, his God, and they slaughtered the passover on the fourteenth of the first month. And he set the priests at their watches and strengthened them for the tasks of the Lord’s house. And he said to the Levites, who were powerful in all Israel, that they are not to carry anything on your shoulders. Now then, minister to the Lord, your God, and to his people Israel. And prepare according to your paternal houses and according to your daily divisions according to the writing of David, king of Israel, and he made all those found in Jerusalem and Israel be subject to the Lord, their God, all his days. He did not stray from behind the Lord, God of his fathers.

7 And Josias contributed sheep and lambs and kids from the young of goats to the sons of the people, everything for the passover for all those present, up to a number of thirty thousand and three thousand calves. These were from the king’s substance. And his officials contributed to the people and to the priests and the Levites. Chelkias and Zacharias and lieb, the chief officers of the house of God, gave to the priests, and they gave for the passover two thousand six hundred sheep and lambs and kids and three hundred calves. And Chopeniya and Banaias and Samaias and Nathaniel, his brother, and Hasabias and lieb and Lozabad, rulers of the Levites, contributed five thousand sheep and five hundred calves to the Levites for the passover.

23 And the archers shot at King Josias. And the king said to his servants, “Take me away, because I am very much in trouble.” 24 And his servants removed him from the chariot and put him on the secondary chariot that he had and brought him to Jerusalem. And he died and was buried with his fathers. And all Judah and Jerusalem mourned for Josias until this very day. And they made his memory lamentation in the Lamentations. 25 And Josias’ affairs and his hope are written in the Lord’s law. 26 And his affairs, the first and the last, behold, they are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel and Judah.

36 And the people of the land took Joachaz son of Josias and anointed him and established him as king in Jerusalem in his father’s stead. 2Joachaz was a son of twenty-three years when he became king and reigned three months in Jerusalem. 2And his mother’s name was Amital daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah. 2And he did what was evil before the Lord in all respects as his fathers had done. 2And Pharaoh Necho bound him in Debaltha in the land of Hamath so that he would not reign in Jerusalem. 3And the king transferred him to Egypt, and he imposed on the land a tribute of one hundred talents of silver and a talent of gold. 4 And Pharaoh Necho appointed Josias’ son Eliakim as king of Judah in place of his father Josias and changed his name to JOAKIM. And Pharaoh Necho took his brother Joachaz and led him to Egypt, and he died there. 4And they gave the silver and gold to the Pharaoh. Then the land was set free from the Jews until the reign of Darius.

5 Joakim was twenty-five years old when he became king and reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. And his mother’s name was Zechora daughter of Nerias of Rama. And he did what was evil before the Lord early on, because he was trying to spare his people by the hand of prophets, sending his messengers and disregarding his words and their rebellion. And his elderly they led away. He handed over everything into their hands. 18And all the vessels of the house of God, large and small, and the treasures and all the treasures of the king and the nobles, all these he brought to Babylon. 19And he set on fire the Lord’s house and broke down the wall of Jerusalem, and its bastions he burned with fire and every handsome vessel to annihilation. 20And he deported the remaining people to Babylon, and they were slaves to him and to his sons until the reign of the Medes in order to fulfill the Lord’s word by the mouth of Jeremiah until the land received its sabbats to sabbatize. All the days of its desolation it sabbatized until the fulfillment of seventy years. And the Lord, God of their fathers, sent out his hand against them for the might of their gods.”

22 In the first year of Cyrus, king of the Persians, after the fulfillment of the Lord’s dictum through the mouth of Jeremiah, the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus, king of the Persians, and he announced to proclaim in all his kingdom, in writing, saying, 23 “This is what Cyrus, king of the Persians says: The Lord, the god of the sky, has given me all the kingdoms of the earth, and it is he who has commanded me to build him a house in Jerusalem, which is in Judea. Who of you is from all his people? His god shall be with him, and let him go up.”

1 ESDRAS
TO THE READER

EDITION OF THE GREEK TEXT
The NETS translation of 1 Esdras is based on the standard critical edition prepared by Robert Hanhart (Septuaginta: Vetus Testamentum Graecum Auctoritate Academiae Scientiarum Gottingensis editum VIII.1: Esdare liber I [Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 1974]).

OVERVIEW OF THE BOOK
This book is known as Esdras A' in the Greek tradition and 1 Esdras in English translations. 1 Esdras and 2 Esdras (Esdras B') are one pair of double traditions found in Septuagint collections (see as well the double traditions of Daniel and Esther). They represent material from the Hebrew-Aramaic 2 Chronicles (2 Supplements), Ezra (2 Esdras 1–10), and Nehemiah (2 Esdras 11–23); in addition, in 1 Esdras there is a story of three youths who served as bodyguards for King Darius of Persia.

The general relationship of content among the various versions is as follows:

| 1 Esdras | Chr-Ezra-Neh (NRSV) (Suppl–2 Esd [NETS]) |
| 1.1–55  | 2 Chr (2 Suppl) 35.1–36.21 |
| 2.1–5   | Ezra 1.1–3 // 2 Chr (2 Suppl) 36.22–23 |
| 2.6–14  | Ezra 1.4–11 |
| 2.15–25 | 4.6–24 |
| 3.1–5.6 | 5.46–70 // Neh 7.73–8.12 (2 Esd 17.73–18.12) |
| 5.7–45  | 2.1–70 // Neh 7.7–73 (2 Esd 17.7–73) |
| 5.46–70 | 3.1–4.5 |
| 6.1–9.3 | 5.1–10.44 |

The relationship of this Greek book to the Hebrew-Aramaic biblical tradition, from a source-critical point of view, is unclear. There are two main positions: 1) that the book represents an earlier form of the biblical accounts, although the present form is thought to be only a portion of that larger work; 1 and 2) that the book is a composition subsequent to, and depending upon, the biblical books.2

In this book, Zorobabel (Zerubbabel) plays a more prominent role, being the winner of the wisdom contest in the story of the three young men (4.13), and appearing where he does not in the MT version (6.17 // Ezra 5.14; 6.26b // Ezra 6.7; 6.28b // Ezra 6.9a). Neemias (Nehemiah), however, is mentioned only in 5.8 (Ezra 2.2) and 5.40 (Ezra 2.63), the latter, significantly, being an addition compared to the Hebrew.

Another emphasis is the temple, the culmination of the restoration program (walls, altar, temple), and items and persons associated with it being made more prominent and distinct through the use of the ἱερο- stem: the temple (ἱερόν “temple” 1.2 et passim), its paraphernalia and practices (ἱερός “holy, sacred” 1.39 et passim; ἀνείροω “to consecrate, devote” 9.4), priests and priestly figures like the priest with the Urim and Thummim and Ezra, (ἱερατέω “to serve as priest” 5.39; ἱερατικός “priestly” 4.54; 5.44; ἱερεύς “priest” 1.2 et passim; ἱερωσύνη “priestly” 5.38; ἀρχιερεύς “high priest” 5.40 et passim) and various temple officials (ἱερόδουλος “temple-slave” 1.3 et passim; ἱεροστότης “temple official” 7.2; ἱεροφάλτης “temple-musician” 1.15 et passim).

TRANSLATION PROFILE OF THE GREEK

General Character

It is unclear whether this book is strictly the translation of a non-MT Hebrew-Aramaic text or loosely a composition in Greek that made use of 2 Chronicles, Ezra and Nehemiah or Greek translations of those works. It is clear that the work contains a few characteristics similar to those found in other translations. However, unlike works that are clearly translations, the Greek of this book is of a good quality. Thus, if it is a translation, it is of a much freer quality than the counterparts with parallel material (2 Supplements and 2 Esdras). There are few signs of literalism, due to the translator’s/composer’s contextualization of lexical choices and use of more normal Greek structures. Some features that suggest a Semitic source are:

Pleonasm

There are only a few examples of superfluous pronouns: 2.9 ("that Nabouchodonosor had removed . . . and stored them", ἀμετίγγαιον Ναβουκοδονοσόρ . . . καὶ απηρεῖασαν αὐτά; Ezra 1.7 ὁ θεὸς ἤλελυκεν ἀπὸ τῶν διὰ τὴν διάδοσιν τὴν καταθήκην τῶν σοφώτερων // –); 4.63 ("whoever his statement seems wiser"; καὶ οὐ δὲν φανῇ τὸ ῥῆμα αὐτοῦ σοφώτερον // –). 3.5 ("the temple where his name is named on it"; καὶ τὸ ἱερὸ, οὐ ωυμαζήθη τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ ἐπʼ αὐτῷ // –); 6.32 ("the Lord, whose his name is there called upon"; καὶ ὁ κύριος οὐ τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ ἐπικεκληται οὐκεί; Ezra 6.12 ὁ θεός ἐπικαλέσας τοῦ ὄνουμα αὐτοῦ // –).

Hebraisms

There is greater than normal occurrence of the conjunction καὶ, suggesting Semitic influence of the conjunction ἤ. The phrase καὶ ἐγένετο “and it happened,” for Hebrew יְהַעֲרִי, is found only one time (9.3 // Ezra 10.7; 8.61a // Ezra 8.32 uses a participle), but in neither case is the comparable construction in the source. At 8.87 we find ἰδοῦ, “behold” (Ezra 9.15b, ἑάν, “Behold, us!”), but forms of ἑάν, “Behold!” occur 3 additional times in the parallel materials in Ezra-Nehemiah (2 Chronicles 35.25 // 1.30; 35.27 // 1.31; 36.8 // 1.40), but they are represented only here in 1 Esdras.

Dependence

Although the vocabulary of 1 Esdras is distinct from other translations, one phrase stands out as dependent upon existing tradition: ἕως ἀναστῆ ἁρχιερεὺς εὐνεχεῖς τὴν διάδοσιν καὶ τὴν ἀλήθεια "until a high priest should arise wearing Explanation and Truth," (5.40) for ὡς ἦσαν διδάκτοι ταυτα λαμπρῶς ἀληθείας (Ezra 2.63), “until there should be a priest to consult Urim and Thummim” (NRSV). The 1 Esdras translation is in keeping with those in the LXX: Ex 28.30 [MT 26]; Leu 8.8; Deut 33.8.

THE NETS TRANSLATION OF 1 ESDRAS

As a matter of convenience this translation began with the NRSV, which was modified as necessary to fit this project. While the NRSV seeks to smooth out problematic constructions, uncertainties, etc., NETS seeks to represent the Greek as much as possible. Thus, alterations were made to the NRSV to bring it into line with Hanhart’s edition. As well, for vocabulary and style, an attempt was made to keep consistency with the rest of NETS and particularly with 2 Esdras: as much as possible, words from the same stem, used to translate the same material from Ezra-Nehemiah, are represented by words from the same stem in English in both 1 and 2 Esdras.

EDITORIAL POLICY

Versification differs among Greek editions of 1 Esdras and among the translations, and all have differences from the MT. In this translation, I have followed the versification of the critical edition.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

The translation on which this is based is the NRSV. I also consulted Jacob M. Myers, I and II Esdras: Introduction, Translation and Commentary (AB 42; Garden City, NY: Doubleday, 1974).

3 See Talshir, 1 Esdras, 181–268 for a detailed analysis of the characteristics of the translation.
And Josias celebrated the passover to the Lord in Jerusalem, and he sacrificed the passover on the fourteenth day of the first month, after he had arranged the priests by their daily duties, robed, in the temple of the Lord. And he told the Levites, temple-servants of Israel, that they should sanctify themselves to the Lord for the task of putting the holy ark of the Lord in the house that Solomon the king, the son of David, had built, “You need no longer carry it on your shoulders. And now, serve the Lord, your God, and attend to his nation Israel, and prepare yourselves by your paternal families and tribes, according to the writing of David, king of Israel, and according to the magnificence of his son Solomon. And having stationed yourselves in the temple by the paternal groupings of you, the Levites, who stand before your kindred, sons of Israel, in order, sacrifice the passover, and prepare the sacrifices for your kindred. And keep the passover according to the ordinance of the Lord that was given to Moses.”

7 To the people who were found there, Josias presented a gift of thirty thousand lambs and kids and three thousand calves; these were given, according to promise, from the king’s possessions to the people and the priests and Levites. 8Chekias and Zacharias and Eyselon, the chief officers of the temple, gave the priests two thousand six hundred sheep, three hundred calves, for the passover. 9And lechonias and Samaiais and his brother Nathanael and Hasabias and Ochielos and Ioram, officers of thousands, gave the Levites five thousand sheep, seven hundred calves, for the passover.

10 And when these things were done in proper order, the priests and the Levites, holding the unleavened bread, stood before the people by tribe and by groupings of fathers to offer to the Lord in accordance with what is written in the book of Moses, and so they did in the morning. And they roasted the passover with fire, as required, and they boiled the sacrifices in bronze pots and cauldrons, with a pleasing odor, and carried them to all that were from the people. 12Now, after this they prepared both for themselves and for their kindred the priests, sons of Aaron. 13For the priests were offering the fat until quite late, and the Levites prepared it for themselves and for their kindred the priests, sons of Aaron. 14And the temple-musicians, sons of Asaph, were in their order according to what had been arranged by David—and Asaph and Zacharias and Eddinous, the king’s representatives. 15And the doorkeepers were at each gateway. It was not possible that anyone omit his own daily service, for their kindred, the Levites, made preparations for them.

And the things that had to do with the sacrifice of the Lord were accomplished in that day: that the passover was celebrated and that the sacrifices were offered on the altar of the Lord according to the injunction of King Josias. 17And the sons of Israel who were found at that time celebrated the passover and the feast of unleavened bread for seven days. 18And no passover like it had been celebrated in Israel since the times of Samouel the prophet, and none of the kings of Israel had celebrated such a passover as Josias celebrated, and the priests and the Levites and the Judeans and all of Israel, who were found in their dwelling place, in Jerusalem. 20This passover was celebrated in the eighteenth year when Josias reigned. 21And the deeds of Josias, done with his heart full of piety, were deemed right in the sight of the Lord. 22Now, also the matters of his reign in previous times have been recorded: about those who sinned and those who acted impiously toward the Lord, more than any nation and kingdom, and how they conspicuously grieved him—and the words of the Lord rose up against Israel.

23 And after all this activity of Josias, it happened that Pharaoh, king of Egypt, came to incite war at Charkams on the Euphrates, and Josias went out to confront him. 24And the king of Egypt sent a dispatch to him, saying, “What issue do I and you have, O king of Judea? I have not been sent out against you by the Lord God, for my war is at the Euphrates. Now then, the Lord is with me! Also, the Lord with me is urging me on! Stand aside, and do not oppose the Lord.”
